
8 And when the sun was risen, the Lord commanded a hot and burning wind: and the sun beat upon the head of Jonas, and he broiled with the heat: and he desired for his soul that he might die, and said: It is better for me to die than to live.

9 And the Lord said to Jonas: Dost thou think thou hast reason to be angry, for the ivy? And he said: I am angry with reason even unto death.

10 And the Lord said: Thou art grieved for the ivy, for which thou hast not laboured, nor made it to grow, which in one night came up, and in one night perished.

11 And shall not I spare Ninive, that great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons that know not how to distinguish between their right hand and their left, and many beasts?

o Ps. 85. 5; Joel 2. 13.

Ver. 6. The Lord God prepared an ivy. Hederam. In the Hebrew it is Kikajon, which some render a gourd: others a palmerist, or palma Christi.

THE PROPHECY OF MICHEAS

MICHEAS, of Morasti, a little town in the tribe of JUDA, was contemporary with the prophet ISAIAS: whom he resembles both in his spirit and his style. He is different from the prophet MICHEAS mentioned in the third book of Kings, chap. 22. For that MICHEAS lived in the days of king ACHAB, one hundred and fifty years before the time of EZECHIAS, under whom this MICHEAS prophesied. His ministry coincided with the earlier part of that of ISAIAS.

CHAPTER 1

Samaria for her sins shall be destroyed by the Assyrians; they shall also invade Juda and Jerusalem.

THE word of the Lord that came to Micheas the Morasthite, in the days of Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias, kings of Juda: which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 ^aHear, all ye people: and let the earth give ear, and all that is therein: and let the Lord God be a witness to you, the Lord from his holy temple.

3 ^rFor behold the Lord will come forth out of his place: and he will come down, and will tread upon the high places of the earth.

4 And the mountains shall be melted under him: and the valleys shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, and as waters that run down a steep place.

5 For the wickedness of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the wickedness of Jacob? is it not Samaria? and what are the high places of Juda? are they not Jerusalem?

6 And I will make Samaria as a heap of stones in the field when a vineyard is planted: and I will bring down the stones thereof into the valley, and will lay her foundations bare.

7 And all her graven things shall be cut in pieces, and all her wages shall be burnt with fire, and I will bring to destruction all her idols: for they were gathered together of the hire of a harlot, and unto the hire of a harlot they shall return.

8 Therefore will I lament and howl: I will go stripped and naked: I will make a wailing like the dragons, and a mourning like the ostriches.

9 Because her wound is desperate, because it is come even to Juda, it hath touched the gate of my people even to Jerusalem.

10 Declare ye it not in Geth, weep ye not with tears: in the house of Dust sprinkle yourselves with dust.

11 And pass away, O thou that dwellest in the Beautiful place, covered with thy shame: she went not forth that dwelleth in the confines: the House adjoining shall receive mourning from you, which stood by herself.

12 For she is become weak unto good that dwelleth in bitterness: for evil is come down from the Lord into the gate of Jerusalem.

13 A tumult of chariots hath astonished

p B. C. 735-698.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 7. Her wages. That is, her donaries or presents offered to her idols: or the hire of all her traffic and labour.—Ibid. Of the hire of a harlot, &c. They were gathered together by one idolatrous city, viz., Samaria: and they shall be carried away to another idolatrous city, viz., Ninive.

Ver. 9. It hath touched the gate, &c. That is, the destruction of Samaria shall be followed by the invasion of my people of Juda, and the Assyrians shall come and lay all waste even to the confines of Jerusalem.

Ver. 10. Declare ye it not in Geth. Viz., amongst the Philistines, lest they rejoice at your calamity.—Ibid. Weep ye not, &c. Keep in your tears, that you may not give your enemies an occasion of insulting over you; but in your own houses, or in your house of dust, your earthly habitation, sprinkle yourselves with dust, and put on the habit of penitents. Some take the house of dust (in Hebrew, Aphrah) to be the proper name of a city.

q Deut. 32. 1; Isa. 1. 2. — r Isa. 26. 21.

Ver. 11. Thou that dwellest in the Beautiful place, viz., in Samaria. In the Hebrew the Beautiful place is expressed by the word Sapir, which some take for the proper name of a city.—Ibid. She went not forth, &c., that is, they that dwelt in the confines came not forth, but kept themselves within, for fear.—Ibid. The House adjoining, &c. Viz., Judea and Jerusalem, neighbours to Samaria, and partners in her sins, shall share also in her mourning and calamity; though they have pretended to stand by themselves, trusting in their strength.

Ver. 12. She is become weak, &c. Jerusalem is become weak unto any good; because she dwells in the bitterness of sin.

Ver. 13. It is the beginning, &c. That is, Lachis was the first city of Juda that learned from Samaria the inhabitants of Lachis: it is the beginning of sin to the daughter of Sion, for in thee were found the crimes of Israel.

14 Therefore shall she send messengers to the inheritance of Geth: the houses of lying to deceive the kings of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an heir to thee that dwellest in Maresa: even to Odollam shall the glory of Israel come.

16 Make thee bald, and be polled for thy delicate children: enlarge thy baldness as the eagle: for they are carried into captivity from thee.

CHAPTER 2

The Israelites by their crying injustices provoke God to punish them. He shall at last restore Jacob.

WOE to you that devise that which is unprofitable, and work evil in your beds: in the morning light they execute it, because their hand is against God.

2 And they have coveted fields, and taken them by violence, and houses they have forcibly taken away: and oppressed a man and his house, a man and his inheritance.

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord: Behold, I devise an evil against this family: from which you shall not withdraw your necks, and you shall not walk haughtily, for this is a very evil time.

4 In that day a parable shall be taken up upon you, and a song shall be sung with melody by them that say: We are laid waste and spoiled: the portion of my people is changed: how shall he depart from me, whereas he is returning that will divide our land?

5 Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast the cord of a lot in the assembly of the Lord.

6 Speak ye not, saying: It shall not drop upon these, confusion shall not take them.

7 The house of Jacob saith: Is the spirit of the Lord straitened, or are these his thoughts? Are not my words good to him that walketh uprightly?

8 But my people, on the contrary, are risen up as an enemy: you have taken away the cloak off from the coat: and them that passed harmless you have turned to war.

9 You have cast out the women of my people from their houses, in which they took delight: you have taken my praise for ever from their children.

10 Arise ye, and depart for there is no rest here for you. For that uncleanness of the land, it shall be corrupted with a grievous corruption.

11 Would God I were not a man that hath the spirit, and that I rather spoke a lie: I will let drop to thee of wine, and of drunkenness: and it shall be this people upon whom it shall drop.

12 I will assemble and gather together all of thee, O Jacob: I will bring together the remnant of Israel, I will put them together as a flock in the fold, as the sheep in the midst of the sheepcotes, they shall make a tumult by reason of the multitude of men.

13 For he shall go up that shall open the way before them: they shall divide, and pass through the gate, and shall come in by it: and their king shall pass before them, and the Lord at the head of them.

s That is, sheepfold.

the worship of idols, and communicated it to Jerusalem.

Ver. 14. Therefore shall she send, &c. Lachis shall send to Geth for help: but in vain: for Geth, instead of helping, shall be found to be a house of lying and deceit to Israel.

Ver. 15. An heir, &c. Maresa (which was the name of a city of Juda) signifies inheritance: but here God by his prophet tells the Jews, that he will bring them an heir to take possession of their inheritance: and that the glory of Israel shall be obliged to give place, and to retire even to Odollam, a city in the extremity of their dominions. And therefore he exhorts them to penance in the following verse.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 4. How shall he depart, &c. How do you pretend to say that the Assyrian is departing; when indeed he is coming to divide our lands amongst his subjects?

Ver. 5. Thou shalt have none, &c. Thou shalt have no longer any lot or inheritance in the land of the people of the Lord.

Ver. 6. It shall not drop, &c. That is, the prophecy shall not come upon these. Such were the sentiments of the people that were unwilling to believe the threats of the prophets.

Ver. 8. You have taken away, &c. You have even stripped people of their necessary garments: and have treated such as were innocently passing on the way, as if they were at war with you.

Ver. 9. You have cast out, &c., either by depriving them of their houses; or, by your crimes, given occasion to their being carried away captives, and their children, by that means, never learning to praise the Lord.

Ver. 11. Would God, &c. The prophet could have wished, out of his love to his people, that he might be deceived in denouncing to them these evils that were to fall upon them: but by conforming himself to the will of God, he declares to them, that he is sent to prophesy, literally to let drop upon them, the wine of God's indignation, with which they should be made drunk; that is, stupefied and cast down.

CHAPTER 3

For the sins of the rich oppressing the poor, of false prophets flattering for lucre, and of judges perverting justice, Jerusalem and the temple shall be destroyed.

AND I said: Hear, O ye princes of Jacob, and ye chiefs of the house of Israel: Is it not your part to know judgment,

2 You that hate good, and love evil: that violently pluck off their skins from them, and their flesh from their bones?

3 Who have eaten the flesh of my people, and have flayed their skin from off them: and have broken, and chopped their bones as for the kettle, and as flesh in the midst of the pot.

4 Then shall they cry to the Lord, and he will not hear them: and he will hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved wickedly in their devices.

5 Thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that make my people err: that bite with their teeth, and preach peace: and if a man give not something into their mouth, they prepare war against him.

6 Therefore night shall be to you instead of vision, and darkness to you instead of divination; and the sun shall go down upon the prophets, and the day shall be darkened over them.

7 And they shall be confounded that see visions, and the diviners shall be confounded: and they shall all cover their faces, because there is no answer of God.

8 But yet I am filled with the strength of the spirit of the Lord, with judgment, and power: to declare unto Jacob his wickedness, and to Israel his sin.

9 Hear this, ye princes of the house of Jacob, and ye judges of the house of Israel: you that abhor judgment, and pervert all that is right.

10 You that build up Sion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity.

11 ^tHer princes have judged for bribes, and her priests have taught for hire, and her prophets divined for money: and they leaned upon the Lord, saying: Is not the Lord in the midst of us? no evil shall come upon us.

^t Ezech. 22. 27; Soph. 3. 3.— ^u Jer. 26. 18.

^v Isa. 2. 2.

CHAP. 4. Ver. 3. Neither shall they learn, &c. The law of Christ is a law of peace; and all his true 12 Therefore, because of you, ^uSion shall be ploughed as a field, and Jerusalem shall be as a heap of stones, and the mountain of the temple as the high places of the forests.

CHAPTER 4

The glory of the church of Christ, by the conversion of the Gentiles. The Jews shall be carried captives to Babylon, and be delivered again.

AND ^vit shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be prepared in the top of mountains, and high above the hills: and people shall flow to it.

2 And many nations shall come in haste, and say: Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob: and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth out of Sion, and the word of the Lord out of Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into spades: nation shall not take sword against nation: neither shall they learn war any more.

4 And every man shall sit under his vine, and under his fig tree, and there shall be none to make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken.

5 For all people will walk every one in the name of his god: but we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.

6 In that day, saith the Lord, I will gather up her that halteth: and her that I had cast out, I will gather up: and her whom I had afflicted.

7 ^wAnd I will make her that halted, a remnant: and her that hath been afflicted, a mighty nation: ^xand the Lord will reign over them in mount Sion, from this time now and for ever.

8 And thou, O cloudy tower of the flock, of the daughter of Sion, unto thee shall it come: yea the first power shall come, the kingdom to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now, why art thou drawn together

^w Soph. 3. 19.

^x Dan. 7. 14; Luke 1. 32.

subjects, as much as lies in them, love and keep peace with all the world.

with grief? Hast thou no king in thee, or is thy counsellor perished, because sorrow hath taken thee as a woman in labour?

10 Be in pain and labour, O daughter of Sion, as a woman that bringeth forth: for now shalt thou go out of the city, and shalt dwell in the country, and shalt come even to Babylon, there thou shalt be delivered: there the Lord will redeem thee out of the hand of thy enemies.

11 And now many nations are gathered together against thee, and they say: Let her be stoned: and let our eye look upon Sion.

12 But they have not known the thoughts of the Lord, and have not understood his counsel: because he hath gathered them together as the hay of the floor.

13 Arise, and tread, O daughter of Sion: for I will make thy horn iron, and thy hoofs I will make brass: and thou shalt beat in pieces many peoples, and shalt immolate the spoils of them to the Lord, and their strength to the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAPTER 5

The birth of Christ in Bethlehem: his reign and spiritual conquests.

NOW shalt thou be laid waste, O daughter of the robber: they have laid siege against us, with a rod shall they strike the cheek of the judge of Israel.

2 AND THOU, BETHLEHEM Ephrata, art a little one among the thousands of Juda: out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel: and his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity.

3 Therefore will he give them up even till the time wherein she that travaileth shall bring forth: and the remnant of y Matt. 2. 6; John 7. 42.

CHAP. 5. Ver. 1. Daughter of the robber. Some understand this of Babylon; which robbed and pillaged the temple of God: others understand it of Jerusalem; by reason of the many rapines and oppressions committed there.

Ver. 2. His going forth, &c. That is, he who as man shall be born in thee, as God was born of his Father from all eternity.

Ver. 5. The Assyrian. That is, the persecutors of the church: who are here called Assyrians by the prophet: because the Assyrians were at that time the chief enemies and persecutors of the people of God.—Ibid. Seven shepherds, &c. Viz., the pastors of God's church, and the defenders of the faith. The number seven in scripture is taken to signify many: and when eight is joined with it, we are to understand that the number will be very great.

Ver. 6. They shall feed, &c. They shall make his brethren shall be converted to the children of Israel.

4 And he shall stand, and feed in the strength of the Lord, in the height of the name of the Lord his God: and they shall be converted, for now shall he be magnified even to the ends of the earth.

5 And this man shall be our peace, when the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall set his foot in our houses: and we shall raise against him seven shepherds, and eight principal men.

6 And they shall feed the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nemrod with the spears thereof: and he shall deliver us from the Assyrian, when he shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our borders.

7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples as a dew from the Lord, and as drops upon the grass, which waiteth not for man, nor tarrieth for the children of men.

8 And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many peoples as a lion among the beasts of the forests, and as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who when he shall go through and tread down, and take, there is none to deliver.

9 Thy hand shall be lifted up over thy enemies, and all thy enemies shall be cut off.

10 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will take away thy horses out of the midst of thee, and will destroy thy chariots.

11 And I will destroy the cities of thy land, and will throw down all thy strongholds, and I will take away sorceries out of thy hand, and there shall be no divinations in thee.

12 And I will destroy thy graven things, spiritual conquests in the lands of their persecutors, with the sword of the spirit, which is the word of God. Eph. 6. 17.

Ver. 7. The remnant of Jacob. Viz., the apostles, and the first preachers of the Jewish nation: whose doctrine, like dew, shall make the plants of the converted Gentiles grow up, without waiting for any man to cultivate them by human learning.

Ver. 8. As a lion, &c. This denotes the fortitude of these first preachers; and their success in their spiritual enterprises.

Ver. 10. I will take away thy horses, &c. Some understand this, and all that follows to the end of the chapter, as addressed to the enemies of the church. But it may as well be understood of the converts to the church: who should no longer put their trust in any of these things.

and thy statues out of the midst of thee: and thou shalt no more adore the works of thy hands.

13 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: and will crush thy cities.

14 And I will execute vengeance in wrath and in indignation among all the nations that have not given ear.

CHAPTER 6

God expostulates with the Jews for their ingratitude and sins: for which they shall be punished.

HEAR ye what the Lord saith: Arise, contend thou in judgment against the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 Let the mountains hear the judgment of the Lord, and the strong foundations of the earth: for the Lord will enter into judgment with his people, and he will plead against Israel.

3 ^zO my people, what have I done to thee, or in what have I molested thee? answer thou me.

4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and delivered thee out of the house of slaves: and I sent before thy face Moses, and Aaron, and Mary.

5 ^aO my people, remember, I pray thee, what Balach the king of Moab purposed: and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him, from Setim to Galgal, that thou mightest know the justices of the Lord.

6 What shall I offer to the Lord that is worthy? wherewith shall I kneel before the high God? shall I offer holocausts unto him, and calves of a year old?

7 May the Lord be appeased with thousands of rams, or with many thousands of fat he goats? shall I give my first-born for my wickedness, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 I will shew thee, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requireth of thee: ^bVerily, to do judgment, and to love

^z Jer. 2. 5.
^a Num. 22. 23.

CHAP. 6. Ver. 1. The mountains, &c. That is, the great ones, the princes of the people.

Ver. 5. From Setim to Galgal. He puts them in mind of the favour he did them, in not suffering them to be quite destroyed by the evil purpose of Balach, and the wicked counsel of Balaam: and then gives them a hint of the wonders he wrought, in order to bring them into the land of Promise, by mercy, and to walk solicitous with thy God.

9 The voice of the Lord crieth to the city, and salvation shall be to them that fear thy name: hear, O ye tribes, and who shall approve it?

10 As yet there is a fire in the house of the wicked, the treasures of iniquity, and a scant measure full of wrath.

11 Shall I justify wicked balances, and the deceitful weights of the bag?

12 By which her rich men were filled with iniquity, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue was deceitful in their mouth.

13 And I therefore began to strike thee with desolation for thy sins.

14 Thou shalt eat, but shalt not be filled: and thy humiliation shall be in the midst of thee: and thou shalt take hold, but shalt not save: and those whom thou shalt save, I will give up to the sword.

15 ^cThou shalt sow, but shalt not reap: thou shalt tread the olives, but shalt not be anointed with the oil: and the new wine, but shalt not drink the wine.

16 For thou hast kept the statutes of Amri, and all the works of the house of Achab: and thou hast walked according to their wills, that I should make thee a desolation, and the inhabitants thereof a hissing, and you shall bear the reproach of my people.

CHAPTER 7

The prophet laments, that notwithstanding all his preaching, the generality are still corrupt in their manners: therefore their desolation is at hand: but they shall be restored again and prosper; and all mankind shall be redeemed by Christ.

WOE is me, for I am become as one that gleaneth in autumn the grapes of the vintage: there is no cluster to eat, my soul desired the firstripe figs.

2 The holy man is perished out of the earth, and there is none upright among men: they all lie in wait for blood, every one hunteth his brother to death.

^b Zach. 7. 9; Matt. 23. 23; Deut. 6. 2, and 26. 16.
^c Deut. 28. 31; Agg. 1. 6.

stopping the course of the Jordan, in their march from Setim to Galgal.

Ver. 6. What shall I offer, &c. This is spoken in the person of the people, desiring to be informed what they are to do to please God.

Ver. 10. Full of wrath, &c. That is, highly provoking in the sight of God.

Ver. 16. The statutes of Amri, &c. The wicked ways of Amri and Achab, idolatrous kings.

3 The evil of their hands they call good: the prince requireth, and the judge is forgiving: and the great man hath uttered the desire of his soul, and they have troubled it.

4 He that is best among them, is as a brier: and he that is righteous, as the thorn of the hedge. The day of thy inspection, thy visitation cometh: now shall be their destruction.

5 Believe not a friend, and trust not in a prince: keep the doors of thy mouth from her that sleepeth in thy bosom.

6 ^dFor the son dishonoureth the father, and the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter in law against her mother in law: ^eand a man's enemies are they of his own household.

7 But I will look towards the Lord, I will wait for God my Saviour: my God will hear me.

8 Rejoice not, thou, my enemy, over me, because I am fallen: I shall arise, when I sit in darkness, the Lord is my light.

9 I will bear the wrath of the Lord, because I have sinned against him; until he judge my cause and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth into the light, I shall behold his justice.

10 And my enemy shall behold, and she shall be covered with shame, who saith to me: Where is the Lord thy God? my eyes shall look down upon her: now shall she be trodden under foot as the mire of the streets.

11 The day shall come, that thy walls may be built up: in that day shall the law be far removed.

d Matt. 10. 21.— e Matt. 10. 36.

CHAP. 7. Ver. 10. She shall be covered, &c. Viz., Babylon my enemy.

12 In that day they shall come even from Assyria to thee, and to the fortified cities: and from the fortified cities even to the river, and from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain.

13 And the land shall be made desolate, because of the inhabitants thereof, and for the fruit of their devices.

14 Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thy inheritance, them that dwell alone in the forest, in the midst of Carmel: they shall feed in Basan and Galaad according to the days of old.

15 According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt I will shew him wonders.

16 The nations shall see, and shall be confounded at all their strength: they shall put the hand upon the mouth, their ears shall be deaf.

17 They shall lick the dust like serpents, as the creeping things of the earth, they shall be disturbed in their houses: they shall dread the Lord our God, and shall fear thee.

18 / Who is a God like to thee, who takest away iniquity, and passest by the sin of the remnant of thy inheritance? he will send his fury in no more, because he delighteth in mercy.

19 He will turn again, and have mercy on us: he will put away our iniquities: and he will cast all our sins into the bottom of the sea.

20 Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, the mercy to Abraham: which thou hast sworn to our fathers from the days of old.

f Jer. 10. 6; Acts 10. 43.

Ver. 11. The law. Viz., of thy enemies, who have tyrannized over thee.

Ver. 13. The land, &c. Viz., of Babylon.

THE PROPHECY OF NAHUM

NAHUM was a native of Elcese, or Elcesai, probably in Judea. He prophesied the utter destruction of Ninive, by the Babylonians and Medes: which happened in the reign of JOAKIM, about 607 B. C. He probably wrote about 625 B. C.

CHAPTER 1

The majesty of God, his goodness to his people, and severity to his enemies.

THE burden of Ninive. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elcesite.

2 The Lord is a jealous God, and a revenger: the Lord is a revenger, and hath wrath: the Lord taketh vengeance on his adversaries, and he is angry with his enemies.

3 The Lord is patient, and great in power, and will not cleanse and acquit the guilty. The Lord's ways are in a tempest, and a whirlwind, and clouds are the dust of his feet.

4 He rebuketh the sea, and drieth it up: and bringeth all the rivers to be a desert. Basan languisheth and Carmel: and the flower of Libanus fadeth away.

5 The mountains tremble at him, and the hills are made desolate: and the earth hath quaked at his presence, and the world, and all that dwell therein.

6 Who can stand before the face of his indignation? and who shall resist in the fierceness of his anger? his indignation is poured out like fire: and the rocks are melted by him.

7 The Lord is good and giveth strength in the day of trouble: and knoweth them that hope in him.^h

8 But with a flood that passeth by, he will make an utter end of the place thereof: and darkness shall pursue his enemies.

9 What do ye devise against the Lord?

h 2 Tim. 11. 9.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 8. Of the place thereof. Viz., of Ninive.

Ver. 11. Shall come forth one, &c. Some understand this of Sennacherib. But as his attempt against the people seems to have been prior to the prophecy of Nahum, we may better understand it of Holofernes.

Ver. 12. Though they were perfect, &c. That is, however strong or numerous their forces may be, he will make an utter end: there shall not rise a double affliction.

10 For as thorns embrace one another: so while they are feasting and drinking together, they shall be consumed as stubble that is fully dry.

11 Out of thee shall come forth one that imagineth evil against the Lord, contriving treachery in his mind.

12 Thus saith the Lord: Though they were perfect: and many of them so, yet thus shall they be cut off, and he shall pass: I have afflicted thee, and I will afflict thee no more.

13 And now I will break in pieces his rod with which he struck thy back, and I will burst thy bonds asunder.

14 And the Lord will give a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name shall be sown: I will destroy the graven and molten thing out of the house of thy God, I will make it thy grave, for thou art disgraced.

15 ⁱBehold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, and that preacheth peace: O Juda, keep thy festivals, and pay thy vows: for Belial shall no more pass through thee again, he is utterly cut off.

CHAPTER 2

God sends his armies against Ninive to destroy it

HE is come up that shall destroy before thy face, that shall keep the siege: watch the way, fortify thy loins, strengthen thy power exceedingly.

2 For the Lord hath rendered the pride

i Isa. 52. 7; Rom. 10. 15.

they shall be cut off; and their prince or leader shall pass away and disappear.

Ver. 14. Will give a commandment. That is, a decree, concerning thee, O king of Ninive, thy seed shall fail, &c.

Ver. 15. Belial. The wicked one, viz., the Assyrian.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 2. Hath rendered the pride of Jacob, &c. He hath punished Jacob for his pride; of Jacob, as the pride of Israel: because the spoilers have laid them waste, and have marred their vine branches.

3 The shield of his mighty men is like fire, the men of the army are clad in scarlet, the reins of the chariot are flaming in the day of his preparation, and the drivers are stupefied.

4 They are in confusion in the ways, the chariots jostle one against another in the streets: their looks are like torches, like lightning running to and fro.

5 He will muster up his valiant men, they shall stumble in their march: they shall quickly get upon the walls thereof: and a covering shall be prepared.

6 The gates of the rivers are opened, and the temple is thrown down to the ground.

7 And the soldier is led away captive: and her bondwomen were led away mourning as doves, murmuring in their hearts.

8 And as for Ninive, her waters are like a great pool, but the men flee away. They cry: Stand, stand, but there is none that will return back.

9 Take ye the spoil of the silver, take the spoil of the gold: for there is no end of the riches of all the precious furniture.

10 She is destroyed, and rent, and torn: the heart melteth, and the knees fail, and all the loins lose their strength: and the faces of them all are as the blackness of a kettle.

11 Where is now the dwelling of the lions, and the feeding place of the young lions, to which the lion went, to enter in thither, the young lion, and there was none to make them afraid?

12 The lion caught enough for his whelps, and killed for his lionesses: and he filled his holes with prey, and his den with rapine.

13 Behold I come against thee, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will burn thy chariots even to smoke, and the sword shall devour thy young lions: and I will cut off thy prey out of the land, and the voice of thy messengers shall be heard no more.^j

CHAPTER 3

The miserable destruction of Ninive

WOE ^kto thee, O city of blood, all full of lies and violence: rapine shall not depart from thee.

2 The noise of the whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the neighing horse, and of the running chariot, and of the horsemen coming up,

3 And of the shining sword, and of the glittering spear, and of a multitude slain, and of a grievous destruction: and there is no end of carcasses, and they shall fall down on their dead bodies.

4 Because of the multitude of the fornications of the harlot that was beautiful and agreeable, and that made use of witchcraft, that sold nations through her fornications, and families through her witchcrafts.

5 Behold I come against thee, saith the Lord of hosts: ^land I will discover thy shame to thy face, and will shew thy nakedness to the nations, and thy shame to kingdoms.

6 And I will cast abominations upon thee, and will disgrace thee, and will make an example of thee.

7 And it shall come to pass that every one that shall see thee, shall flee from thee, and shall say: Ninive is laid waste: who shall bemoan thee? whence shall I seek a comforter for thee?

8 Art thou better than the populous Alexandria, that dwelleth among the rivers? waters are round about it: the sea is its riches, the waters are its walls.

9 Ethiopia and Egypt were the strength thereof, and there is no end: Africa and the Libyans were thy helpers.

10 Yet she also was removed and carried into captivity: her young children were dashed in pieces at the top of every street, and they cast lots upon her nobles, and all her great men were bound in fetters.

11 Therefore thou also shalt be made and therefore Ninive must not expect to escape. Or else, rendering the pride of Jacob means rewarding, that is, punishing Ninive for the pride they exercised against Jacob.

^j Mich. 7. 11.

^k Ezech. 24. 9; Hab. 2. 12.—^l Isa. 47. 3.

Ver. 3. Of his mighty men, &c. He speaks of the Chaldeans and Medes sent to destroy Ninive.—Ibid. Stupefied, consopiti. That is, they drive on furiously like men intoxicated with wine.

Ver. 5. Stumble in their march. By running hastily on.

CHAP. 3. Ver. 8. Populous Alexandria. No-Ammon. A populous city of Egypt destroyed by the Chaldeans, and afterwards rebuilt by Alexander, and called Alexandria. Others suppose No-Ammon to be the same as Diospolis.

drunk, and shalt be despised: and thou shalt seek help from the enemy.

12 All thy strong-holds shall be like fig trees with their green figs: if they be shaken, they shall fall into the mouth of the eater.

13 Behold thy people in the midst of thee are women: the gates of thy land shall be set wide open to thy enemies, the fire shall devour thy bars.

14 Draw thee water for the siege, build up thy bulwarks: go into the clay, and tread, work it and make brick.

15 There shall the fire devour thee: thou shalt perish by the sword, it shall devour thee like the bruchus: assemble together like the bruchus, make thyself many like the locust.

16 Thou hast multiplied thy merchandises above the stars of heaven: the bruchus hath spread himself and flown away.

17 Thy guards are like the locusts: and thy little ones like the locusts of locusts which swarm on the hedges in the day of cold: the sun arose, and they flew away, and their place was not known where they were.

18 Thy shepherds have slumbered, O king of Assyria, thy princes shall be buried: thy people are hid in the mountains, and there is none to gather them together.

19 Thy destruction is not hidden, thy wound is grievous: all that have heard the fame of thee, have clapped their hands over thee: for upon whom hath not thy wickedness passed continually?

THE PROPHECY OF HABACUC

HABACUC prophesied in JUDA about 605-600 B. C., some time before the invasion of the CHALDEANS, which he foretold.

CHAPTER 1

The prophet complains of the wickedness of the people: God reveals to him the vengeance he is going to take of them by the Chaldeans.

THE burden that Habacuc the prophet saw.

2 How long, O Lord, shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear? shall I cry out to thee suffering violence, and thou wilt not save?

3 Why hast thou shewn me iniquity and grievance, to see rapine and injustice before me? and there is a judgment, but opposition is more powerful.

4 Therefore the law is torn in pieces, and judgment cometh not to the end: because the wicked prevaieth against the just, therefore wrong judgment goeth forth.

5 ⁿ Behold ye among the nations, and see: wonder, and be astonished: for a work is done in your days, which no man will believe when it shall be told.

6 For behold, I will raise up the Chaldeans, a bitter and swift nation, marching upon the breadth of the earth, to possess the dwelling places that are not their own.

7 They are dreadful, and terrible: from themselves shall their judgment, and their burden proceed.

8 Their horses are lighter than leopards, and swifter than evening wolves; and their horsemen shall be spread abroad: for their horsemen shall come from afar, they shall fly as an eagle that maketh haste to eat.

9 They shall all come to the prey, their face is like a burning wind: and they shall gather together captives as the sand.

10 And their prince shall triumph over ⁿ Acts 13. 34.

Ver. 17. The locusts of locusts. The young locusts.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 1. Burden. Such prophecies more especially are called burdens, as threaten grievous evils and punishments.

kings, and princes shall be his laughing-stock: and he shall laugh at every stronghold, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take it.

11 Then shall his spirit be changed, and he shall pass, and fall: this is his strength of his god.

12 Wast thou not from the beginning, O Lord my God, my holy one, and we shall not die? Lord, thou hast appointed him for judgment: and made him strong for correction.

13 Thy eyes are too pure to behold evil, and thou canst not look on iniquity. Why lookest thou upon them that do unjust things, and holdest thy peace when the wicked devoureth the man that is more just than himself?

14 And thou wilt make men as the fishes of the sea, and as the creeping things that have no ruler.

15 He lifted up all them with his hook, he drew them in his drag, and gathered them into his net: for this he will be glad and rejoice.

16 Therefore will he offer victims to his drag, and he will sacrifice to his net: because through them his portion is made fat, and his meat dainty.

17 For this cause therefore he spreadeth his net, and will not spare continually to slay the nations.

CHAPTER 2

The prophet is admonished to wait with faith. The enemies of God's people shall assuredly be punished.

I WILL stand upon my watch, and fix my foot upon the tower: and I will watch, to see what will be said to me, and what I may answer to him that reproveth me.

2 And the Lord answered me, and said: Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables: that he that readeth it may run over it.

o John 3. 36; Rom. 1. 17; Gal. 3. 11; Heb. 10. 38.

Ver. 11. Then shall his spirit, &c. Viz., the spirit of the king of Babylon. It alludes to the judgment of God upon Nabuchodonosor, recorded Dan. 4., and to the speedy fall of the Chaldean empire.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 1. Will stand, &c. Waiting to see what the Lord will answer to my complaint, viz., that the Chaldeans, who are worse than the Jews, and who attribute all their success to their own strength, or to their idols, should nevertheless prevail over the people of the Lord. The Lord's answer is, that the prophet must wait with patience and faith: that all should be set right in due time; and the enemies of God and his people punished according to their deserts.

3 For as yet the vision is far off, and it shall appear at the end, and shall not lie: if it make any delay, wait for it: for it shall surely come, and it shall not be slack.

4 Behold, he that is unbelieving, his soul shall not be right in himself: ° but the just shall live in his faith.

5 And as wine deceiveth him that drinketh it: so shall the proud man be, and he shall not be honoured: who hath enlarged his desire like hell: and is himself like death, and he is never satisfied: but will gather together unto him all nations, and heap together unto him all people.

6 Shall not all these take up a parable against him, and a dark speech concerning him: and it shall be said: Woe to him that heapeth together that which is not his own? how long also doth he load himself with thick clay?

7 Shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee: and they be stirred up that shall tear thee, and thou shalt be a spoil to them?

8 Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all that shall be left of the people shall spoil thee: because of men's blood, and for the iniquity of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

9 Woe to him that gathereth together an evil covetousness to his house, that his nest may be on high, and thinketh he may be delivered out of the hand of evil.

10 Thou hast devised confusion to thy house, thou hast cut off many people, and thy soul hath sinned.

11 For the stone shall cry out of the wall: and the timber that is between the joints of the building, shall answer.

12 ^p Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and prepareth a city by iniquity.

13 Are not these things from the Lord

p Ezech. 24. 9; Nah. 3. 1.

Ver. 5. As wine deceiveth, &c. Viz., by affording only a short passing pleasure; followed by the evils and disgrace that are the usual consequences of drunkenness: so shall it be with the proud enemies of the people of God; whose success affordeth them only a momentary pleasure, followed by innumerable and everlasting evils.

Ver. 6. Thick clay. Ill-gotten goods, that, like mire, both burden and defile the soul.

Ver. 13. Are not these things, &c. That is, shall not these punishments that are here recorded, come from the Lord upon him that is guilty of such crimes.—Ibid. The people shall labour, &c. Viz., the enemies of God's people.

CHAPTER 3

1 A PRAYER OF HABACUC THE PROPHET
FOR IGNORANCES.

2 O LORD, I have heard thy hearing, and was afraid.

O Lord, thy work, in the midst of the years bring it to life:

In the midst of the years thou shalt make it known: when thou art angry, thou wilt remember mercy.

3 God will come from the south, and the holy one from mount Pharan:

His glory covered the heavens, and the earth is full of his praise.

4 His brightness shall be as the light: horns are in his hands:

There is his strength hid: 5 Death shall go before his face.

And the devil shall go forth before his feet.

6 He stood and measured the earth.

He beheld, and melted the nations: and the ancient mountains were crushed to pieces.

The hills of the world were bowed down by the journeys of his eternity.

7 I saw the tents of Ethiopia for their iniquity, the curtains of the land of Madian shall be troubled.

8 Wast thou angry, O Lord, with the rivers? or was thy wrath upon the rivers? or thy indignation in the sea?

of hosts? for the people shall labour in a great fire: and the nations in vain, and they shall faint.

14 For the earth shall be filled, that men may know the glory of the Lord, as waters covering the sea.

15 Woe to him that giveth drink to his friend, and presenteth his gall, and maketh him drunk, that he may behold his nakedness.

16 Thou art filled with shame instead of glory: drink thou also, and fall fast asleep: the cup of the right hand of the Lord shall compass thee, and shameful vomiting shall be on thy glory.

17 For the iniquity of Libanus shall cover thee, and the ravaging of beasts shall terrify them because of the blood of men, and the iniquity of the land, and of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

18 What doth the graven thing avail, because the maker thereof hath graven it, a molten, and a false image? because the forger thereof hath trusted in a thing of his own forging, to make dumb idols.

19 Woe to him that saith to wood: Awake: to the dumb stone: Arise: can it teach? Behold, it is laid over with gold, and silver, and there is no spirit in the bowels thereof.

20 ^a But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him.

^a Ps. 10. 5.

Ver. 17. The iniquity of Libanus. That is, the iniquity committed by the Chaldeans against the temple of God, signified here by the name of Libanus.

CHAP. 3. Ver. 1. For ignorances. That is, for the sins of his people. In the Hebrew, it is Sigio-noth: which some take to signify a musical instrument, or tune; with which this sublime prayer and canticle was to be sung.

Ver. 2. Thy hearing, &c. That is, thy oracles, the great and wonderful things thou hast revealed to me: and I was struck with a reverential fear and awe.—Ibid. Thy work. The great work of the redemption of man, which thou wilt bring to life and light in the midst of the years, when our calamities and miseries shall be at their height.

Ver. 3. God will come from the south, &c. God himself will come to give us his law, and to conduct us into the true land of promise; as heretofore he came from the South (in the Hebrew Theman) and from mount Pharan to give his law to his people in the desert. See Deut. 33. 2.

Ver. 4. Horns, &c. That is, strength and power, which, by a Hebrew phrase, are called horns. Or beams of light, which come forth from his hands. Or it may allude to the cross, in the horns of which the hands of Christ were fastened, where his strength was hidden, by which he overcame the world, and drove out death and the devil.

Ver. 5. Death shall go before his face, &c. Both death and the devil shall be the executioners of his justice against his enemies: as they were heretofore against the Egyptians and Chanaanites.

Ver. 6. He beheld, &c. One look of his eye is enough to melt all the nations, and to reduce them to nothing. For all heaven and earth disappear when they come before his light. Apoc. 20. 11. Ibid. The ancient mountains, &c. By the mountains and hills are signified the great ones of the world, that persecute the church, whose power was quickly crushed by the Almighty.

Ver. 7. Ethiopia, the land of the Blacks, and Madian, are here taken for the enemies of God and his people: who shall perish for their iniquity.

Ver. 8. With the rivers, &c. He alludes to the wonders wrought heretofore by the Lord in favour of his people Israel, when the waters of the rivers, viz., of Arnon and Jordan, and of the Red Sea, retired before their face: when he came as it were with his horses and chariots to save them when he took up his bow for their defence, in consequence of the oath he had made to their tribes: when the mountains trembled, and the deep stood with its waves raised up in a heap, as with hands lifted up to heaven: when the sun and the moon stood still at his command, &c., to comply with his anger, not against the rivers and sea, but against the enemies of his people. How much more will he do in favour of his Son; and against the enemies of his church?

Who will ride upon thy horses: and thy chariots are salvation.

9 Thou wilt surely take up thy bow: according to the oaths which thou hast spoken to the tribes.

Thou wilt divide the rivers of the earth.

10 The mountains saw thee, and were grieved: the great body of waters passed away.

The deep put forth its voice: the deep lifted up its hands.

11 The sun and the moon stood still in their habitation, in the light of thy arrows, they shall go in the brightness of thy glittering spear.

12 In thy anger thou wilt tread the earth under foot: in thy wrath thou wilt astonish the nations.

13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people: for salvation with thy Christ.

Thou struckest the head of the house of the wicked: thou hast laid bare his foundation even to the neck.

14 Thou hast cursed his sceptres, the head of his warriors, them that came out as a whirlwind to scatter me.

Their joy was like that of him that devoureth the poor man in secret.

15 Thou madest a way in the sea for thy horses, in the mud of many waters.

16 I have heard and my bowels were troubled: my lips trembled at the voice.

Let rottenness enter into my bones, and swarm under me.

That I may rest in the day of tribulation: that I may go up to our people that are girded.

17 For the fig tree shall not blossom: and there shall be no spring in the vines. The labour of the olive tree shall fall; and the fields shall yield no food: the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls.

18 But I will rejoice in the Lord: and I will joy in God my Jesus.

19 The Lord God is my strength: and he will make my feet like the feet of harts: and he the conqueror will lead me upon my high places singing psalms.

THE PROPHECY OF SOPHONIAS

SOPHONIAS or Zephaniah prophesied in the beginning of the reign of Josias (641-610 B. C.) and was consequently a contemporary of Jeremias. He foretold the punishments of the Jews, for their idolatry and other crimes; also the punishments that were to come on divers nations; the coming of messianic times, the conversion of the Gentiles and of the Jews.

CHAPTER 1

For divers enormous sins, the kingdom of Juda is threatened with severe judgment.

THE word of the Lord that came to Sophonias the son of Chusi, the son of Godolias, the son of Amarias, the son of Ezechias, in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda.

2 Gathering, I will gather together all things from off the face of the land, saith the Lord:

3 I will gather man, and beast, I will

Ver. 13. The head of the house of the wicked.—Such was Pharaoh heretofore: such shall Antichrist be hereafter.

Ver. 15. Thou madest a way in the sea, &c., to deliver thy people from the Egyptian bondage: and thou shalt work the like wonders in the spiritual way, to rescue the children of the church from their enemies.

Ver. 16. I have heard, &c. Viz., the evils that are now coming upon the Israelites for their sins; and that shall come hereafter upon all impenitent sinners; and the foresight that I have of these miseries makes me willing to die, that I may be at rest, before this general tribulation comes, in which all good things shall be withdrawn from the wicked.—Ibid. That I may go up to our people, &c. That I may join the happy company in the bosom of Abraham, that are girded, that is, prepared for their journey, by which they shall attend their Lord, when he shall ascend into heaven. To which high and happy place, my Jesus, that is, my Saviour, the great conqueror of death and hell, shall one day conduct me rejoicing and singing psalms of praise, ver. 18 and 19.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 2. Gathering, I will gather, &c. That is, I will assuredly take away, and wholly con-gather the birds of the air, and the fishes of the sea: and the ungodly shall meet with ruin: and I will destroy men from off the face of the land, saith the Lord.

4 And I will stretch out my hand upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and I will destroy out of this place the remnant of Baal, and the names of the wardens of the temples with the priests:

5 And them that worship the host of heaven upon the tops of houses, and them that adore, and swear by the Lord, and swear by Melchom.

6 And them that turn away from following after the Lord, and that have not sought the Lord, nor searched after him.

7 Be silent before the face of the Lord God: for the day of the Lord is near, for the Lord hath prepared a victim, he hath sanctified his guests.

8 And it shall come to pass in the day of the victim of the Lord, that I will visit upon the princes, and upon the king's sons, and upon all such as are clothed with strange apparel.

9 And I will visit in that day upon every one that entereth arrogantly over the threshold: them that fill the house of the Lord their God with iniquity and deceit.

10 And there shall be in that day, saith the Lord, the noise of a cry from the fish gate, and a howling from the Second, and a great destruction from the hills.

11 Howl, ye inhabitants of the Morter. All the people of Chanaan is hushed, all are cut off that were wrapped up in silver.

12 And it shall come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem with lamps, and will visit upon the men that are settled on their lees: that say in their hearts: The Lord will not do good, nor will he do evil.

13 And their strength shall become a booty, and their houses as a desert: ^sand they shall build houses, and shall not dwell in them: and they shall plant vineyards, and shall not drink the wine of them.

14 The great day of the Lord is near, it is near and exceeding swift: the voice of the day of the Lord is bitter, the mighty man shall there meet with tribulation.

15 ^tThat day is a day of wrath, a day of tribulation and distress, a day of calamity and misery, a day of darkness and obscurity, a day of clouds and whirlwinds,

16 A day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high bulwarks.

17 And I will distress men, and they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord: and their blood shall be poured out as earth, and their bodies as dung.

18 ^uNeither shall their silver and their gold be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the Lord: ^vall the land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy, for he shall make even a speedy destruction of all them that dwell in the land.

CHAPTER 2

An exhortation to repentance. The judgment of the Philistines, of the Moabites, and the Ammonites; of the Ethiopians, and the Assyrians.

ASSEMBLE yourselves together, be gathered together, O nation not worthy to be loved:

2 Before the decree bring forth the day as dust passing away, before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, before the day of the Lord's indignation come upon you.

3 Seek the Lord, all ye meek of the earth, you that have wrought his judgment: seek the just, seek the meek: if by any means you may be hid in the day of the Lord's indignation.

4 For Gaza shall be destroyed, and Ascalon shall be a desert, they shall cast out Azotus at noonday, and Accaron shall be rooted up.

5 Woe to you that inhabit the sea coast, O nation of reprobates: the word of the Lord upon you, O Chanaan, the land of the Philistines, and I will destroy thee, so that there shall not be an inhabitant.

6 And the sea coast shall be the resting place of shepherds, and folds for cattle:

7 And it shall be the portion of him that

^s Amos 5. 11.— ^t Jer. 30. 7; Joel 2. 11; Amos 5. 18.

sume, either by captivity, or death, both men and beasts out of this land.

Ver. 4. The wardens, &c. Viz., of the temples of the idols. Ædituos, in Hebrew, the Chemarims, that is, such as kindle the fires, or burn incense.

Ver. 5. Melchom. The idol of the Ammonites.

Ver. 10. The Second. A part of the city so called.

^u Ezech. 7. 19.— ^v Infra 3. 8.

Ver. 11. The Morter. Maktesh. A valley in or near Jerusalem.— Ibid. The people of Chanaan. So he calls the Jews, from their following the wicked ways of the Chanaanites.

Ver. 12. Settled on their lees. That is, the wealthy, and such as live at their ease, resting upon their riches, like wine upon the lees.

shall remain of the house of Juda, there they shall feed: in the houses of Ascalon they shall rest in the evening: because the Lord their God will visit them, and bring back their captivity.

8 I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the blasphemies of the children of Ammon, with which they reproached my people, and have magnified themselves upon their borders.

9 Therefore as I live, saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, Moab shall be as Sodom, and the children of Ammon as Gomorrha, the dryness of thorns, and heaps of salt, and a desert even for ever: the remnant of my people shall make a spoil of them, and the residue of my nation shall possess them.

10 This shall befall them for their pride: because they have blasphemed, and have been magnified against the people of the Lord of hosts.

11 The Lord shall be terrible upon them, and shall consume all the gods of the earth: and they shall adore him every man from his own place, all the islands of the Gentiles.

12 You Ethiopians, also shall be slain with my sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand upon the north, and will destroy Assyria: and he will make the beautiful city a wilderness, and as a place not passable, and as a desert.

14 ^wAnd flocks shall lie down in the midst thereof, all the beasts of the nations: and the bittern and the urchin shall lodge in the threshold thereof: the voice of the singing bird in the window, the raven on the upper post, for I will consume her strength.

15 This is the glorious city that dwelt in security: that said in her heart: I am, and there is none beside me: how is she become a desert, a place for beasts to lie down in? every one that passeth by her, shall hiss, and wag his hand.

CHAPTER 3

A woe to Jerusalem for her sins. A prophecy of the conversion of the Gentiles, and of the poor of Israel: God shall be with them. The Jews shall be converted at last.

WOE to the provoking, and redeemed city, the dove.

w Isa. 34. 11.

2 She hath not hearkened to the voice, neither hath she received discipline: she hath not trusted in the Lord, she drew not near to her God.

3 ^xHer princes are in the midst of her as roaring lions: her judges are evening wolves, they left nothing for the morning.

4 Her prophets are senseless men without faith: her priests have polluted the sanctuary, they have acted unjustly against the law.

5 The just Lord is in the midst thereof, he will not do iniquity: in the morning, in the morning he will bring his judgment to light, and it shall not be hid: but the wicked man hath not known shame.

6 I have destroyed the nations, and their towers are beaten down: I have made their ways desert, so that there is none that passeth by: their cities are desolate, there is not a man remaining, nor any inhabitant.

7 I said: Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive correction: and her dwelling shall not perish, for all things wherein I have visited her: but they rose early and corrupted all their thoughts.

8 Wherefore expect me, saith the Lord, in the day of my resurrection that is to come, for my judgment is to assemble the Gentiles, and to gather the kingdoms: and to pour upon them my indignation, all my fierce anger: ^yfor with the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be devoured.

9 Because then I will restore to the people a chosen lip, that all may call upon the name of the Lord, and may serve him with one shoulder.

10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, shall my suppliants the children of my dispersed people bring me an offering.

11 In that day thou shalt not be ashamed for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me: for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proud boasters, and thou shalt no more be lifted up because of my holy mountain.

12 And I will leave in the midst of thee a poor and needy people: and they shall hope in the name of the Lord.

x Ezech. 22. 27; Mich. 3. 11.— y Supra 1. 18.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 13. The beautiful city, viz., Ninive, which was destroyed soon after this, viz., in the sixteenth year of the reign of Josias.

13 The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies, nor shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth: for they shall feed, and shall lie down, and there shall be none to make them afraid.

14 Give praise, O daughter of Sion: shout, O Israel: be glad, and rejoice with all thy heart, O daughter of Jerusalem.

15 The Lord hath taken away thy judgment, he hath turned away thy enemies: the king of Israel the Lord is in the midst of thee, thou shalt fear evil no more.

16 In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem: Fear not: to Sion: Let not thy hands be weakened.

17 The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty, he will save: he will rejoice over thee with gladness, he will be silent in his love, he will be joyful over thee in praise.

18 The triflers that were departed from the law, I will gather together, because they were of thee: that thou mayest no more suffer reproach for them.

19 Behold I will cut off all that have afflicted thee at that time: and I will save her that halteth, and will gather her that was cast out: and I will get them praise, and a name, in all the land where they had been put to confusion.

20 At that time, when I will bring you: and at the time that I will gather you: for I will give you a name, and praise among all the people of the earth, when I shall have brought back your captivity before your eyes, saith the Lord.

THE PROPHECY OF AGGEUS

AGGEUS was one of those that returned from the captivity of Babylon, in the first year of the reign of king Cyrus. He was sent by the Lord, in the second year of the reign of king Darius, the son of Hystaspes, to exhort Zorobabel the prince of Juda, and Jesus the high priest, to the building of the temple; which they had begun, but left off again through the opposition of the Samaritans. In consequence of this exhortation they proceeded in the building and finished the temple. And the prophet was commissioned by the Lord to assure them that this second temple should be more glorious than the former, because the Messiah should honour it with his presence: signifying withal how much the church of the New Testament should excel that of the Old Testament.

CHAPTER 1

The people are reproved for neglecting to build the temple. They are encouraged to set about the work.

IN ^zthe second year of Darius ^athe king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus the prophet, to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, governor of Juda, and to Jesus the son of Josedec the high priest, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: This people saith: The time is not yet come for building the house of the Lord.

3 And the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus the prophet, saying:

4 Is it time for you to dwell in ceiled houses, and this house lie desolate?

5 And now thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts to consider your ways.

6 ^bYou have sowed much, and brought in little: you have eaten, but have not had enough: you have drunk, but have not been filled with drink: you have clothed yourselves, but have not been warmed: and he that hath earned wages, put them into a bag with holes.

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways:

8 Go up to the mountain, bring timber, and build the house: and it shall be acceptable to me, and I shall be glorified, saith the Lord.

9 You have looked for more, and behold it became less, and you brought it home, and I blowed it away: why, saith the ^z Esd. 5. 1.— ^a B. C. 520.

^b Deut. 28. 38; Mich. 6. 15.

Lord of hosts? because my house is desolate, and you make haste every man to his own house.

10 Therefore the heavens over you were stayed from giving dew, and the earth was hindered from yielding her fruits:

11 And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the wine, and upon the oil, and upon all that the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon beasts, and upon all the labour of the hands.

12 Then Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the son of Josedec the high priest, and all the remnant of the people hearkened to the voice of the Lord their God, and to the words of Aggeus the prophet, as the Lord their God sent him to them: and the people feared before the Lord.

13 And Aggeus the messenger of the Lord, as one of the messengers of the Lord, spoke, saying to the people: I am with you, saith the Lord.

14 And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zorobabel the son of Salathiel governor of Juda, and the spirit of Jesus the son of Josedec the high priest, and the spirit of all the rest of the people: and they went in, and did the work in the house of the Lord of hosts their God.

CHAPTER 2

Christ by his coming shall make the latter temple more glorious than the former. The blessing of God shall reward their labour in building. God's promise to Zorobabel.

IN the four and twentieth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king, they began.

2 And in the seventh month, the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus the prophet, saying:

3 Speak to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel the governor of Juda, and to Jesus the son of Josedec the high priest, and to the rest of the people, saying:

4 Who is left among you, that saw this house in its first glory? and how do you see it now? is it not in comparison to that as nothing in your eyes?

c B. C. 520.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 14. By occasion of a soul. That is, by having touched the dead; in which case, according to the prescription of the law, Num. 19. 13, 22, a person not only became unclean himself, but made every thing that he touched unclean. The prophet applies all this to the people, whose souls

5 Yet now take courage, O Zorobabel, saith the Lord, and take courage, O Jesus the son of Josedec the high priest, and take courage, all ye people of the land, saith the Lord of hosts: and perform (for I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts)...

6 The word that I covenanted with you when you came out of the land of Egypt: and my spirit shall be in the midst of you: fear not.

7 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: ^aYet one little while, and I will move the heaven and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land.

8 And I will move all nations: AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME: and I will fill this house with glory: saith the Lord of hosts.

9 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts.

10 Great shall be the glory of this last house more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place I will give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.

11 In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius the king, the word of the Lord came to Aggeus the prophet, saying:

12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Ask the priests the law, saying:

13 If a man carry sanctified flesh in the skirt of his garment, and touch with his skirt, bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat: shall it be sanctified? And the priests answered, and said: No.

14 And Aggeus said: If one that is unclean by occasion of a soul touch any of all these things, shall it be defiled? And the priests answered, and said: It shall be defiled.

15 And Aggeus answered, and said: So is this people, and so is this nation before my face, saith the Lord, and so is all the work of their hands: and all that they have offered there, shall be defiled.

16 And now consider in your hearts, from this day and upward, before there was a stone laid upon a stone in the temple of the Lord.

17 When you went to a heap of twenty bushels, and they became ten: and you d Heb. 12. 26.

remained unclean by neglecting the temple of God: and therefore were not sanctified by the flesh they offered in sacrifice: but rather defiled their sacrifices by approaching to them in the state of uncleanness.

went into the press, to press out fifty vessels, and they became twenty.

18 ^eI struck you with a blasting wind, and all the works of your hand with the mildew and with hail, yet there was none among you that returned to me, saith the Lord.

19 Set your hearts from this day, and henceforward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month: from the day that the foundations of the temple of the Lord were laid, and lay it up in your hearts.

20 Is the seed as yet sprung up? or hath the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree as yet flourished? from this day I will bless you.

21 And the word of the Lord came a second time to Aggeus in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying:

22 Speak to Zorobabel the governors of Juda, saying: I will move both heaven and earth.

23 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and will destroy the strength of the kingdom of the Gentiles: and I will overthrow the chariot, and him that rideth therein: and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

24 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, I will take thee, ^fO Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, my servant, saith the Lord, and will make thee as a signet, for I have chosen thee, saith the Lord of hosts.

THE PROPHECY OF ZACHARIAS

ZACHARIAS began to prophesy in the same year as Aggeus, and upon the same occasion. His prophecy is full of mysterious figures and promises of blessings, partly relating to the synagogue, and partly to the church of Christ.

CHAPTER 1

The prophet exhorts the people to return to God, and declares his visions, by which he puts them in hopes of better times.

IN ^gthe eighth month, in the second year of king Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zacharias the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the prophet, saying:

2 The Lord hath been exceeding angry with your fathers.

3 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: ^hTurn ye to me, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will turn to you, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 Be not as your fathers, to whom the former prophets have cried, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Turn ye from your evil ways, and from your wicked thoughts: but they did not give ear, neither did they hearken to me, saith the Lord.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, shall they live always?

6 But yet my words, and my ordinances, which I gave in charge to my servants the prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers, and they returned, and said: As the Lord of hosts thought to do to us according to our ways, and according to our devices, so he hath done to us.

7 In the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month which is called Sabbath, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zacharias the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the prophet, saying:

8 I saw by night, and behold a man riding upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle trees, that were in the bottom:

^e Amos 4. 9.
^f Eccli. 49. 13.
^g B. C. 520.

^h Isa. 21. 12, and 31. 6, and 45. 22; Jer. 3. 12;
Ezech. 18. 30, and 20. 7, and 33. 11; Osee 14. 2;
Joel 2. 12; Mal. 3. 7.

Ver. 24. O Zorobabel. This promise principally relates to Christ, who was of the race of Zorobabel.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 8. A man. An angel in the shape of a man. It was probably St. Michael, the guardian angel of the church of God.

and behind him were horses, red, speckled, and white.

9 And I said: What are these, my Lord? and the angel that spoke in me, said to me: I will shew thee what these are:

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle trees answered, and said: These are they, whom the Lord hath sent to walk through the earth.

11 And they answered the angel of the Lord, that stood among the myrtle trees, and said: We have walked through the earth, and behold all the earth is inhabited, and is at rest.

12 And the angel of the Lord answered, and said: O Lord of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, and on the cities of Juda, with which thou hast been angry? this is now the seventieth year.

13 And the Lord answered the angel, that spoke in me, good words, comfortable words.

14 And the angel that spoke in me, said to me: Cry thou, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: ⁱI am zealous for Jerusalem, and Sion with a great zeal.

15 And I am angry with a great anger with the wealthy nations: for I was angry a little, but they helped forward the evil.

16 Therefore thus saith the Lord: I will return to Jerusalem in mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the Lord of hosts: and the building line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem.

17 Cry yet, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: My cities shall yet flow with good things: and the Lord will yet comfort Sion, and he will yet choose Jerusalem.

18 And I lifted up my eyes, and saw: and behold four horns.

19 And I said to the angel that spoke to me: What are these? And he said to me: These are the horns that have scattered Juda, and Israel, and Jerusalem.

20 And the Lord shewed me four smiths.

21 And I said: What come these to do? and he spoke, saying: These are the horns which have scattered Juda every man apart, and none of them lifted up his head: and these are come to fray them, to cast down the horns of the nations, that have lifted up the horn upon the land of Juda to scatter it.

CHAPTER 2

Under the name of Jerusalem, he prophesieth the progress of the church of Christ, by the conversion of some Jews and many Gentiles.

AND I lifted up my eyes, and saw, and behold a man, with a measuring line in his hand.

2 And I said: Whither goest thou? and he said to me: To measure Jerusalem, and to see how great is the breadth thereof, and how great the length thereof.

3 And behold the angel that spoke in me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him.

4 And he said to him: Run, speak to this young man, saying: Jerusalem shall be inhabited without walls, by reason of the multitude of men, and of the beasts in the midst thereof.

5 And I will be to it, saith the Lord, a wall of fire round about: and I will be in glory in the midst thereof.

6 O, O flee ye out of the land of the north, saith the Lord, for I have scattered you into the four winds of heaven, saith the Lord.

7 O Sion, flee, thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon:

8 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: After the glory he hath sent me to the nations that have robbed you: for he that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of my eye:

9 For behold I lift up my hand upon them, and they shall be a prey to those that served them: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me.

10 Sing praise, and rejoice, O daughter of Sion: for behold I come, and I will i Infra 8. 2.

Ver. 10. These are they, &c. The guardian angels of provinces and nations.

Ver. 12. The seventieth year. Viz., from the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem, in the ninth year of king Sedecias, to the second year of king Darius. These seventy years of the desolation of Jerusalem and the cities of Juda, are different from the seventy years of captivity foretold by Jeremias; which began in the fourth year of Joakim, and ended in the first year of king Cyrus.

Ver. 18, 20. Four horns,—four smiths. The four horns represent the empires, or kingdoms, that persecute and oppress the people of God: the four smiths or carpenters (for faber may signify either) represent those whom God makes his instruments in bringing to nothing the power of persecutors.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 4. Jerusalem shall be inhabited without walls. This must be understood of the spiritual Jerusalem, the church of Christ.

dwell in the midst of thee: saith the Lord.

11 And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and they shall be my people, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to thee.

12 And the Lord shall possess Juda his portion in the sanctified land: and he shall yet choose Jerusalem.

13 Let all flesh be silent at the presence of the Lord: for he is risen up out of his holy habitation.

CHAPTER 3

In a vision Satan appeareth accusing the high priest. He is cleansed from his sins. Christ is promised, and great fruit from his passion.

AND the Lord shewed me Jesus the high priest standing before the angel of the Lord: and Satan stood on his right hand to be his adversary.

2 And the Lord said to Satan: The Lord rebuke thee, O Satan: and the Lord that chose Jerusalem rebuke thee: Is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?

3 And Jesus was clothed with filthy garments: and he stood before the face of the angel.

4 Who answered, and said to them that stood before him, saying: Take away the filthy garments from him. And he said to him: Behold I have taken away thy iniquity, and have clothed thee with change of garments.

5 And he said: Put a clean mitre upon his head: and they put a clean mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and the angel of the Lord stood.

6 And the angel of the Lord protested to Jesus, saying:

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If thou wilt walk in my ways, and keep my charge, thou also shalt judge my house, and shalt keep my courts, and I will give thee some of them that are now present here to walk with thee.

8 Hear, O Jesus thou high priest, thou and thy friends that dwell before thee, for they are portending men: for behold j I WILL BRING MY SERVANT THE ORIENT.

9 For behold the stone that I have laid before Jesus: upon one stone there are seven eyes: behold I will grave the grav-ing thereof, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will take away the iniquity of that land in one day.

10 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, every man shall call his friend under the vine and under the fig tree.

CHAPTER 4

The vision of the golden candlestick and seven lamps, and of the two olive trees. Zorobabel shall finish the building of the temple.

AND the angel that spoke in me came again: and he waked me, as a man that is wakened out of his sleep.

2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I have looked, and behold a candlestick all of gold, and its lamp upon the top of it: and the seven lights thereof upon it: and seven funnels for the lights that were upon the top thereof.

3 And two olive trees over it: one upon the right side of the lamp, and the other upon the left side thereof.

4 And I answered, and said to the angel that spoke in me, saying: What are these things, my lord?

5 And the angel that spoke in me answered, and said to me: Knowest thou not what these things are? And I said: No, my lord.

6 And he answered, and spoke to me, saying: This is the word of the Lord to Zorobabel, saying: Not with an army, nor by might, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.

j Luke 1. 78.

CHAP. 3. Ver. 1. Jesus, alias Jesue, the son of Josedec, the high priest of that time.

Ver. 3. With filthy garments. Negligences and sins.

Ver. 7. I will give thee, &c. Angels to attend and assist thee.

Ver. 8. Portending men. That is, men, who by words and actions are to foreshew wonders that are to come.—Ibid. My servant the Orient. Christ, who according to his humanity is the servant of God, is called the Orient from his rising like the sun in the east to enlighten the world.

Ver. 9. The stone. Another emblem of Christ, the rock, foundation, and corner stone of his church.—Ibid. Seven eyes. The manifold providence of Christ over his church, or the seven gifts of the spirit of God.—Ibid. One day. Viz., the day of the passion of Christ, the source of all our good: when this precious stone shall be graved, that is, cut and pierced, with whips, thorns, nails, and spear.

CHAP. 4. Ver. 2. A candlestick, &c. The temple of God that was then in building; and in a more sublime sense, the church of Christ.

Ver. 6. To Zorobabel. This vision was in favour of Zorobabel: to assure him of success in the building of the temple, which he had begun, signified by the candlestick; the lamp of which, without any other industry, was supplied with oil, dropping from the two olive trees, and distributed by the seven funnels or pipes, to maintain the seven lights.

7 Who art thou, O great mountain, before Zorobabel? thou shalt become a plain: and he shall bring out the chief stone, and shall give equal grace to the grace thereof.

8 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

9 The hands of Zorobabel have laid the foundations of this house, and his hands shall finish it: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to you.

10 For who hath despised little days? and they shall rejoice, and shall see the tin plummet in the hand of Zorobabel. These are the seven eyes of the Lord, that run to and fro through the whole earth.

11 And I answered, and said to him: What are these two olive trees upon the right side of the candlestick, and upon the left side thereof?

12 And I answered again, and said to him: What are the two olive branches, that are by the two golden beaks, in which are the funnels of gold?

13 And he spoke to me, saying: Knowest thou not what these are? And I said: No, my lord.

14 And he said: These are two sons of oil who stand before the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAPTER 5

The vision of the flying volume, and of the woman in the vessel.

AND I turned and lifted up my eyes: and I saw, and behold a volume flying.

2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I see a volume flying: the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 And he said to me: This is the curse that goeth forth over the face of the earth: for every thief shall be judged as is there written: and every one that

Ver. 7. Great mountain. So he calls the opposition made by the enemies of God's people; which nevertheless, without any army or might on their side, was quashed by divine providence.—Ibid. Shall give equal grace, &c. Shall add grace to grace, or beauty to beauty.

Ver. 10. Little days. That is, these small and feeble beginnings of the temple of God.—Ibid. The tin plummet. Literally, the stone of tin. He means the builder's plummet, which Zorobabel shall hold in his hand for the finishing the building.—Ibid. The seven eyes. The providence of God, that over-sees and orders all things.

Ver. 14. Two sons of oil. That is, the two anointed ones of the Lord; viz., Jesus the high priest, and Zorobabel the prince.

sweareth in like manner shall be judged by it.

4 I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts: and it shall come to the house of the thief, and to the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name: and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, with the timber thereof, and the stones thereof.

5 And the angel went forth that spoke in me, and he said to me: Lift up thy eyes, and see what this is, that goeth forth.

6 And I said: What is it? And he said: This is a vessel going forth. And he said: This is their eye in all the earth.

7 And behold a talent of lead was carried, and behold a woman sitting in the midst of the vessel.

8 And he said: This is wickedness. And he cast her into the midst of the vessel, and cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

9 And I lifted up my eyes and looked: and behold there came out two women, and wind was in their wings, and they had wings like the wings of a kite: and they lifted up the vessel between the earth and the heaven.

10 And I said to the angel that spoke in me: Whither do these carry the vessel?

11 And he said to me: That a house may be built for it in the land of Sennaar, and that it may be established, and set there upon its own basis.

CHAPTER 6

The vision of the four chariots. Crowns are ordered for Jesus the high priest, as a type of Christ.

AND I turned, and lifted up my eyes, and saw: and behold four chariots came out from the midst of two mountains: and the mountains were mountains of brass.

CHAP. 6. Ver. 1. Four chariots. That is, a tumultuous army, or the four of the elements, which were from the beginning, and were the first of the world.

Ver. 11. The land of Sennaar. Where Babel was built, Gen. 11. where also the tower in holy writ is often taken for the seat of the world, and for the seat of the empire of the world.

Ver. 12. Four chariots. That is, the four empires of the Chaldeans, Persians, Macedonians, and Romans. Or perhaps for the four elements of the world.

2 In the first chariot were red horses, and in the second chariot black horses.

3 And in the third chariot white horses, and in the fourth chariot grisled horses, and strong ones.

4 And I answered, and said to the angel that spoke in me: What are these, my lord?

5 And the angel answered, and said to me: These are the four winds of the heaven, which go forth to stand before the Lord of all the earth.

6 That in which were the black horses went forth into the land of the north, and the white went forth after them: and the grisled went forth to the land of the south.

7 And they that were most strong, went out, and sought to go, and to run to and fro through all the earth. And he said: Go, walk throughout the earth: and they walked throughout the earth.

8 And he called me, and spoke to me, saying: Behold they that go forth into the land of the north, have quieted my spirit in the land of the north.

9 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

10 Take of them of the captivity, of Holdai, and of Tobias, and of Idaias; thou shalt come in that day, and shalt go into the house of Josias, the son of Sophonias, who came out of Babylon.

11 And thou shalt take gold and silver: and shalt make crowns, and thou shalt set them on the head of Jesus the son of Josedec, the high priest.

12 And thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: ^kBEHOLD A MAN, THE ORIENT IS HIS NAME: and under him shall he spring up, and shall build a temple to the Lord.

13 Yea, he shall build a temple to the Lord: and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit, and rule upon his throne: and he shall be a priest upon his throne, and the counsel of peace shall be between them both.

14 And the crowns shall be to Helem, and Tobias, and Idaias, and to Hem, the son of Sophonias, a memorial in the temple of the Lord.

15 And they that are far off, shall come and shall build in the temple of the Lord: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. But this shall come to pass, if hearing you will hear the voice of the Lord your God.

CHAPTER 7

The people inquire concerning fasting: they are admonished to fast from sin.

AND ^lit came to pass in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, in the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Casleu.

2 When Sarasar, and Rogommelech, and the men that were with him, sent to the house of God, to entreat the face of the Lord:

3 To speak to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to the prophets, saying: Must I weep in the fifth month, or must I sanctify myself as I have now done for many years?

4 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

5 Speak to all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying: ^mWhen you fasted, and mourned in the fifth and the seventh month for these seventy years: did you keep a fast unto me?

6 And when you did eat and drink, did you not eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?

7 Are not these the words which the Lord spoke by the hand of the former prophets, when Jerusalem as yet was inhabited, and was wealthy, both itself and the cities round about it, and there were inhabitants towards the south, and in the plain?

^k Luke 1. 78.

presented the kings of Egypt and of Asia, the descendants of Ptolemeus and Seleucus.

Ver. 6. The land of the north. So Babylon is called; because it lay to the north in respect of Jerusalem. The black horses, that is, the Medes and Persians: and after them Alexander and his Greeks, signified by the white horses, went thither because they conquered Babylon, executed upon it the judgments of God, which is signified, ver. 8, by the expression of quieting his spirit.—Ibid. The land of the south. Egypt, which lay to the south of Jerusalem, and was occupied first by Ptolemeus, and then by the Romans.

^l B. C. 518.—^m Isa. 58. 5.

Ver. 13. Between them both. That is, he shall unite in himself the two offices or dignities of king and priest.

CHAP. 7. Ver. 3. The fifth month. They fasted on the tenth day of the fifth month; because on that day the temple was burnt. Therefore they inquire whether they are to continue that fast, after the temple is rebuilt. See this query answered in the 19th verse of the following chapter.

8 And the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, saying:

9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: "Judge ye true judgment, and shew ye mercy and compassion every man to his brother.

10 ° And oppress not the widow, and the fatherless, and the stranger, and the poor: and let not a man devise evil in his heart against his brother.

11 But they would not hearken, and they turned away the shoulder to depart: and they stopped their ears, not to hear.

12 And they made their heart as the adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the Lord of hosts sent in his spirit by the hand of the former prophets: so a great indignation came from the Lord of hosts.

13 And it came to pass that as he spoke, and they heard not: so shall they cry, and I will not hear, saith the Lord of hosts.

14 And I dispersed them throughout all kingdoms, which they know not: and the land was left desolate behind them, so that no man passed through or returned: and they changed the delightful land into a wilderness.

CHAPTER 8

Joyful promises to Jerusalem: fully verified in the church of Christ.

AND the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have been jealous for Sion with a great jealousy, and with a great indignation have I been jealous for her.

3 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I am returned to Sion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called The city of truth, and the mountain of the Lord of hosts, The sanctified mountain.

4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem: and every man with his staff in his hand through multitude of days.

5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls, playing in the streets thereof.

6 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If it seem hard in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days: shall it be hard in my eyes, saith the Lord of hosts?

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will save my people from the land of the east, and from the land of the going down of the sun.

8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God in truth and in justice.

9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strengthened, you that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the prophets, in the day that the house of the Lord of hosts was founded, that the temple might be built.

10 For before those days there was no hire for men, neither was there hire for beasts, neither was there peace to him that came in, nor to him that went out, because of the tribulation: and I let all men go every one against his neighbour.

11 But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people according to the former days, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 But there shall be the seed of peace: the vine shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew: and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.

13 And it shall come to pass, that as you were a curse among the Gentiles, O house of Juda, and house of Israel: so will I save you, and you shall be a blessing: fear not, let your hands be strengthened.

14 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: As I purposed to afflict you, when your fathers had provoked me to wrath, saith the Lord,

15 And I had no mercy: so turning again I have thought in these days to do good to the house of Juda, and Jerusalem: fear not.

16 These then are the things, which you shall do: ° Speak ye truth every one to his neighbour: judge ye truth and judgment of peace in your gates.

17 And let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his friend: and love not a false oath: for all these are the things that I hate, saith the Lord.

18 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

n Mich. 6. 8; Matt. 23. 23.

o Ex. 22. 22; Isa. 1. 23; Jer. 5. 28.— p Eph. 4. 25.

19 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth shall be to the house of Juda, joy, and gladness, and great solemnities: only love ye truth and peace.

20 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, until people come, and dwell in many cities, 21 And the inhabitants go one to another, saying: Let us go, and entreat the face of the Lord, and let us seek the Lord of hosts: I also will go.

22 And many peoples, and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the face of the Lord.

23 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: In those days, wherein ten men of all languages of the Gentiles shall take hold, and shall hold fast the skirt of one that is a Jew, saying: We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you.

CHAPTER 9

God will defend his church, and bring over even her enemies to the faith. The meek coming of Christ, to bring peace, to deliver the captives by his blood, and to give us all good things.

THE burden of the word of the Lord in the land of Hadrach, and of Damascus the rest thereof: for the eye of man, and of all the tribes of Israel is the Lord's.

2 Emath also in the borders thereof, and Tyre, and Sidon: for they have taken to themselves to be exceeding wise.

3 And Tyre hath built herself a strong hold, and heaped together silver as earth, and gold as the mire of the streets.

4 Behold the Lord shall possess her, and shall strike her strength in the sea, and she shall be devoured with fire.

5 Ascalon shall see, and shall fear, and Gaza, and shall be very sorrowful: and Accaron, because her hope is confounded:

and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ascalon shall not be inhabited.

6 And the divider shall sit in Azotus, and I will destroy the pride of the Philistines.

7 And I will take away his blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth: and even he shall be left to our God, and he shall be as a governor in Juda, and Accaron as a Jebusite.

8 And I will encompass my house with them that serve me in war, going and returning, and the oppressor shall no more pass through them: for now I have seen with my eyes.

9 a Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Sion, shout for joy, O daughter of Jerusalem: BEHOLD THY KING will come to thee, the just and saviour: he is poor, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.

10 And I will destroy the chariot out of Ephraim, and the horse out of Jerusalem, and the bow for war shall be broken: and he shall speak peace to the Gentiles, and his power shall be from sea to sea, and from the rivers even to the end of the earth.

11 Thou also by the blood of thy testament hast sent forth thy prisoners out of the pit, wherein is no water.

12 Return to the strong hold, ye prisoners of hope, I will render thee double as I declare to day.

13 Because I have bent Juda for me as a bow, I have filled Ephraim: and I will raise up thy sons, O Sion, above thy sons, O Greece, and I will make thee as the sword of the mighty.

14 And the Lord God shall be seen over them, and his dart shall go forth as lightning: and the Lord God will sound the trumpet, and go in the whirlwind of the south.

15 The Lord of hosts will protect them: and they shall devour, and subdue with q Isa. 62. 11; Matt. 21. 5.

CHAP. 8. Ver. 19. The fast of the fourth month, &c. They fasted, on the ninth day of the fourth month, because on that day Nabuchodonosor took Jerusalem, Jer. 52. 6. On the tenth day of the fifth month, because on that day the temple was burnt, Jer. 52. 12. On the third day of the seventh month, for the murder of Godolias, Jer. 41. 2. And on the tenth day of the tenth month, because on that day the Chaldeans began to besiege Jerusalem, 4 Kings 25. 1. All these fasts, if they will be obedient for the future, shall be changed, as is here promised, into joyful solemnities.

Ver. 23. Ten men, &c. Many of the Gentiles became proselytes to the Jewish religion before Christ: but many more were converted to Christ by the apostles and other preachers of the Jewish nation.

CHAP. 9. Ver. 1. Hadrach. Syria.

Ver. 7. His blood. It is spoken of the Philistines, and particularly of Azotus, (where the temple of Dagon was,) and contains a prophecy of the conversion of that people from their bloody sacrifices and abominations to the worship of the true God.

Ver. 8. That serve me in war. Viz., the Machabees.

Ver. 13. Thy sons, O Sion, &c. Viz., the apostles, who, in the spiritual way, conquered the Greeks, and subdued them to Christ.

the stones of the sling: and drinking they shall be inebriated as it were with wine, and they shall be filled as bowls, and as the horns of the altar.

16 And the Lord their God will save them in that day, as the flock of his people: for holy stones shall be lifted up over his land.

17 For what is the good thing of him, and what is his beautiful thing, but the corn of the elect, and wine springing forth virgins?

CHAPTER 10

God is to be sought to, and not idols. The victories of his church, which shall arise originally from the Jewish nation.

ASK ye of the Lord rain in the latter season, and the Lord will make snows, and will give them showers of rain, to every one grass in the field.

2 For the idols have spoken what was unprofitable, and the diviners have seen a lie, and the dreamers have spoken vanity: they comforted in vain: therefore they were led away as a flock: they shall be afflicted, because they have no shepherd.

3 My wrath is kindled against the shepherds, and I will visit upon the buck goats: for the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Juda, and hath made them as the horse of his glory in the battle.

4 Out of him shall come forth the corner, out of him the pin, out of him the bow of battle, out of him every exacter together.

5 And they shall be as mighty men, treading under foot the mire of the ways in battle: and they shall fight, because the Lord is with them, and the riders of horses shall be confounded.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Juda, and save the house of Joseph: and I will bring them back again, because I will have mercy on them: and they shall be as they were when I had cast them off, for I am the Lord their God, and will hear them.

Ver. 16. Holy stones. The apostles, who shall be as pillars and monuments in the church.

Ver. 17. The corn, &c. His most excellent gift is the blessed Eucharist, called here The corn, that is, the bread of the elect, and the wine springing forth virgins; that is, maketh virgins to bud, or spring forth, as it were, like flowers among thorns; because it has a wonderful efficacy to give and preserve purity.

7 And they shall be as the valiant men of Ephraim, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: and their children shall see, and shall rejoice, and their heart shall be joyful in the Lord.

8 I will whistle for them, and I will gather them together, because I have redeemed them: and I will multiply them as they were multiplied before.

9 And I will sow them among peoples: and from afar they shall remember me: and they shall live with their children, and shall return.

10 And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt, and will gather them from among the Assyrians: and will bring them to the land of Galaad, and Libanus, and place shall not be found for them.

11 And he shall pass over the strait of the sea, and shall strike the waves in the sea, and all the depths of the river shall be confounded, and the pride of Assyria shall be humbled, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart.

12 I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they shall walk in his name, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 11

The destruction of Jerusalem and the temple. God's dealings with the Jews, and their reprobation.

OPEN thy gates, O Libanus, and let fire devour thy cedars.

2 Howl, thou fir tree, for the cedar is fallen, for the mighty are laid waste: howl, ye oaks of Basan, because the fenced forest is cut down.

3 The voice of the howling of the shepherds, because their glory is laid waste: the voice of the roaring of the lions, because the pride of the Jordan is spoiled.

4 Thus saith the Lord my God: Feed the flock of the slaughter,

5 Which they that possessed, slew, and repented not, and they sold them, saying: Blessed be the Lord, we are become rich: and their shepherds spared them not.

6 And I will no more spare the inhabitants of the land, saith the Lord: behold I will deliver the men, every one into his r Apoc. 16. 12; Isa. 11. 15.

CHAP. 11. Ver. 1. O Libanus. So Jerusalem, and more particularly the temple, is called by the prophets, from its height, and from its being built of the cedars of Libanus.—Ibid. Thy cedars. Thy princes and chief men.

Ver. 6. Every one into his neighbour's hand, &c. This alludes to the last siege of Jerusalem, in which the different factions of the Jews destroyed one another; and they that remained fell into the hands neighbour's hand, and into the hand of his king: and they shall destroy the land, and I will not deliver it out of their hand.

7 And I will feed the flock of slaughter for this, O ye poor of the flock. And I took unto me two rods, one I called Beauty, and the other I called a Cord, and I fed the flock.

8 And I cut off three shepherds in one month, and my soul was straitened in their regard: for their soul also varied in my regard.

9 And I said: I will not feed you: that which dieth, let it die: and that which is cut off, let it be cut off: and let the rest devour every one the flesh of his neighbour.

10 And I took my rod that was called Beauty, and I cut it asunder to make void my covenant, which I had made with all people.

11 And it was made void in that day: and so the poor of the flock that keep for me, understood that it is the word of the Lord.

12 And I said to them: If it be good in your eyes, bring hither my wages: and if not, be quiet. ^s And they weighed for my wages thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the Lord said to me: Cast it to the statuary, a handsome price, that I was prized at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and I cast them into the house of the Lord to the statuary.

14 And I cut off my second rod that was called a Cord, that I might break the brotherhood between Juda and Israel.

15 And the Lord said to me: Take to thee yet the instruments of a foolish shepherd.

16 For behold I will raise up a shepherd in the land, who shall not visit what is forsaken, nor seek what is scattered, nor heal what is broken, nor nourish that which standeth, and he shall eat the flesh of the fat ones, and break their hoofs.

17 O shepherd, and idol, that forsaketh the flock: the sword upon his arm and upon his right eye: his arm shall quite wither away, and his right eye shall be utterly darkened.

CHAPTER 12

God shall protect his church against her persecutors. The mourning of Jerusalem.

THE burden of the word of the Lord upon Israel. Thus saith the Lord, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundations of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man in him:

2 Behold I will make Jerusalem a lintel of surfeiting to all the people round about: and Juda also shall be in the siege against Jerusalem.

3 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone to all people: all that shall lift it up shall be rent and torn, and all the kingdoms of the earth shall be gathered together against her.

4 In that day, saith the Lord, I will strike every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open my eyes upon the house of Juda, and will strike every horse of the nations with blindness.

5 And the governors of Juda shall say in their heart: Let the inhabitants of Jerusalem be strengthened for me in the Lord of hosts, their God.

6 In that day I will make the governors of Juda like a furnace of fire amongst wood, and as a firebrand amongst hay: and they shall devour all the people round about, to the right hand, and to the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place in Jerusalem.

7 And the Lord shall save the tabernacles of Juda, as in the beginning: that the

^s Matt. 27. 9.

of their king, that is, of the Roman emperor, of whom they had said, John 19. 15, We have no king but Cæsar.

Ver. 7. Two rods. Or shepherd's staves, meaning the different ways of God's dealing with his people; the one, by sweet means, called the rod of Beauty: the other, by bands and punishments, called the Cord. And where both these rods are made of no use or effect by the obstinacy of sinners, the rods are broken, and such sinners are given up to a reprobate sense, as the Jews were.

Ver. 8. Three shepherds in one month. That is, in a very short time. By these three shepherds probably are meant the latter princes and high priests of the Jews, whose reign was short.

Ver. 13. The statuary. The Hebrew word signifies also a potter.

Ver. 15. A foolish shepherd. This was to represent the foolish, that is, the wicked princes and priests that should rule the people, before their utter desolation.

CHAP. 12. Ver. 2. A lintel of surfeiting. That is, a door into which they shall seek to enter, to glut themselves with blood: but they shall stumble, and fall like men stupefied with wine. It seems to allude to the times of Antiochus, and to the victories of the Machabees.

house of David, and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, may not boast and magnify themselves against Juda.

8 In that day shall the Lord protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and he that hath offended among them in that day shall be as David: and the house of David, as that of God, as an angel of the Lord in their sight.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 And I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace, and of prayers: ^tand they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced: and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for an only son, and they shall grieve over him, as the manner is to grieve for the death of the firstborn.

11 In that day there shall be a great lamentation in Jerusalem ^ulike the lamentation of Adadremmon in the plain of Mageddon.

12 And the land shall mourn: families and families apart: the families of the house of David apart, and their women apart:

13 The families of the house of Nathan apart, and their women apart: the families of the house of Levi apart, and their women apart: the families of Semei apart, and their women apart.

14 All the rest of the families, families and families apart, and their women apart.

CHAPTER 13

The fountain of Christ. Idols and false prophets shall be extirpated: Christ shall suffer: his people shall be tried by fire.

IN that day there shall be a fountain open to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: for the washing of the sinner, and of the unclean woman.

2 ^vAnd it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will destroy the names of idols out of the earth, and they shall be remembered no more: and I will take away the false prophets, and the unclean spirt out of the earth.

3 And it shall come to pass, that when ^t John 19. 37.—^u 2 Par. 35. 22.

Ver. 11. Adadremmon. A place near Mageddon, where the good king Josias was slain, and much lamented by his people.

any man shall prophesy any more, his father and his mother that brought him into the world, shall say to him: Thou shalt not live: because thou hast spoken a lie in the name of the Lord. And his father, and his mother, his parents, shall thrust him through, when he shall prophesy.

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be confounded, every one by his own vision, when he shall prophesy, neither shall they be clad with a garment of sackcloth, to deceive:

5 But he shall say: I am no prophet, I am a husbandman: for Adam is my example from my youth.

6 And they shall say to him: What are these wounds in the midst of thy hands? And he shall say: With these I was wounded in the house of them that loved me.

7 Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that cleaveth to me, saith the Lord of hosts: ^wstrike the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered: and I will turn my hand to the little ones.

8 And there shall be in all the earth, saith the Lord, two parts in it shall be scattered, and shall perish: but the third part shall be left therein.

9 And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined: and I will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them. I will say: Thou art my people: and they shall say: The Lord is my God.

CHAPTER 14

After the persecutions of the church shall follow great prosperity. Persecutors shall be punished: so shall all that will not serve God in his church.

BEHOLD the days of the Lord shall come, and thy spoils shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 And I will gather all nations to Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses shall be rifled, and the women shall be defiled: and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the rest of the people shall not be taken away out of the city.

3 Then the Lord shall go forth, and shall ^v Ezech. 30. 13.—^w Matt. 26. 31; Mark 14. 27.

CHAP. 14. Ver. 2. I will gather, &c. This seems to be a prophecy of what was done by Antiochus.

fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

4 And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is over against Jerusalem toward the east: and the mount of Olives shall be divided in the midst thereof to the east, and to the west with a very great opening, and half of the mountain shall be separated to the north, and half thereof to the south.

5 And you shall flee to the valley of those mountains, for the valley of the mountains shall be joined even to the next, and you shall flee ^x as you fled from the face of the earthquake in the days of Ozias king of Juda: and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with him.

6 And it shall come to pass in that day, that there shall be no light, but cold and frost.

7 And there shall be one day, which is known to the Lord, not day nor night: and in the time of the evening there shall be light.

8 And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem: half of them to the east sea, and half of them to the last sea: they shall be in summer and in winter.

9 And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name shall be one.

10 And all the land shall return even to the desert, from the hill to Remmon to the south of Jerusalem: and she shall be exalted, and shall dwell in her own place, from the gate of Benjamin even to the place of the former gate, and even to the gate of the corners: and from the tower of Hananeel even to the king's wine-presses.

^x Amos 1. 1.

Ver. 6. No light. Viz., in that dismal time of persecution of Antiochus, when it was neither day nor night: (ver. 7) because they neither had the comfortable light of the day, nor the repose of the night.

Ver. 7. In the time of the evening there shall be light. An unexpected light shall arise by the means of the Machabees, when things shall seem to be at the worst.

Ver. 8. Living waters. Viz., the gospel of Christ.

Ver. 10. All the land shall return, &c. This, in some measure, was verified by the means of the Machabees: but is rather to be taken in a spiritual sense, as relating to the propagation of the church and kingdom of Christ, the true Jerusalem, which alone shall never fall under the anathema of destruction, or God's curse.

Ver. 12. The flesh of every one shall consume, &c. Such judgments as these have often fallen upon the persecutors of God's church, as appears by many instances in history.

11 And people shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more an anathema: but Jerusalem shall sit secure.

12 And this shall be the plague wherewith the Lord shall strike all nations that have fought against Jerusalem: the flesh of every one shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

13 In that day there shall be a great tumult from the Lord among them: and a man shall take the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall be clasped upon his neighbour's hand.

14 And even Juda shall fight against Jerusalem: and the riches of all nations round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and garments in great abundance.

15 And the destruction of the horse, and of the mule, and of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts, that shall be in those tents, shall be like this destruction.

16 And all they that shall be left of all nations that came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

17 And it shall come to pass, that he that shall not go up of the families of the land to Jerusalem, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, there shall be no rain upon them.

18 And if the family of Egypt go not up nor come: neither shall it be upon them, but there shall be destruction wherewith the Lord will strike all nations that will not go up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

Ver. 14. Even Juda, &c. The carnal Jews, and other false brothers, shall join in persecuting the church.

Ver. 15. Shall be like this destruction. That is, the beasts shall be destroyed as well as the men: the common soldiers as well as their leaders.

Ver. 16. They that shall be left, &c. That is, many of them that persecuted the church shall be converted to its faith and communion.—Ibid. To keep the feast of tabernacles. This feast was kept by the Jews in memory of their sojourning forty years in the desert, in their way to the land of promise. And in the spiritual sense is duly kept by all such Christians as in their earthly pilgrimage are continually advancing towards their true home, the heavenly Jerusalem; by the help of the sacraments and sacrifice of the church. And they that neglect this must not look for the kind showers of divine grace, to give fruitfulness to their souls.

19 This shall be the sin of Egypt, and this the sin of all nations, that will not go up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

20 In that day that which is upon the bridle of the horse shall be holy to the Lord: and the caldrons in the house of the Lord shall be as the phials before the altar.

21 And every caldron in Jerusalem and Juda shall be sanctified to the Lord of hosts: and all that sacrifice shall come, and take of them, and shall see the in them: and the merchant shall be no more in the house of the Lord of hosts in that day.

THE PROPHECY OF MALACHIAS

MALACHIAS, whose name signifies The Angel of the Lord, was contemporary with NEHEMIAS, and by some is believed to have been the same person as ESDRAS. He was the last of the prophets, in the order of time, and flourished about 450-445 B. C. He foretells the coming of Christ; the reprobation of the Jews and their sacrifices; and the calling of the Gentiles, who shall offer up to God in every place an acceptable sacrifice.

CHAPTER 1

God reproaches the Jews with their ingratitude: and the priests for not offering pure sacrifices. He will accept of the sacrifice that shall be offered in every place among the Gentiles.

THE burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by the hand of Malachias.

2 I have loved you, saith the Lord: and you have said: Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau brother to Jacob, saith the Lord, and I have loved Jacob,

3 But have hated Esau? and I have made his mountains a wilderness, and given his inheritance to the dragons of the desert.

4 But if Edom shall say: We are destroyed, but we will return and build up what hath been destroyed: thus saith the Lord of hosts: They shall build up, and I will throw down: and they shall be called the borders of wickedness, and the people with whom the Lord is angry for ever.

5 And your eyes shall see, and you shall say: The Lord be magnified upon the border of Israel.

y B. C. 450.

Ver. 20. That which is upon the bridle, &c. The golden ornaments of the bridles, &c., shall be turned into offerings in the house of God. And there shall be an abundance of caldrons and phials for the sacrifices of the temple: by which is meant, under a figure, the great resort there shall be to the temple, that is, to the church of Christ, and her sacrifice.

Ver. 21. The merchant shall be no more, &c. Or, as some render it, The Chanaanite shall be no more, &c., that is, the profane and unbelievers shall have no title to be in the house of the Lord. Or there shall be no occasion for buyers or sellers of oxen, 6 The son honoureth the father, and the servant his master: if then I be a father, where is my honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? saith the Lord of hosts.

7 To you, O priests, that despise my name, and have said: Wherein have we despised thy name? You offer polluted bread upon my altar, and you say: Wherein have we polluted thee? In that you say: The table of the Lord is contemptible.

8 If you offer the blind for sacrifice, is it not evil? and if you offer the lame and the sick, is it not evil? offer it to thy prince, if he will be pleased with it, or if he will regard thy face, saith the Lord of hosts.

9 And now beseech ye the face of God, that he may have mercy on you, (for by your hand hath this been done,) if by any means he will receive your faces, saith the Lord of hosts.

10 Who is there among you, that will shut the doors, and will kindle the fire z Rom. 9. 13.

or sheep, or doves, in the house of God, such as Jesus Christ cast out of the temple.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 2. I have loved Jacob, &c. I have preferred his posterity, to make them my chosen people, and to lead them with my blessings, without any merit on their part, and though they have been always ungrateful; whilst I have rejected Esau, and executed severe judgments upon his posterity. Not that God punished Esau, or his posterity, beyond their desert: but that by his free election and grace he loved Jacob, and favoured his posterity above their deserts. See the annotations upon Rom. 9.

on my altar gratis? I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will not receive a gift of your hand.

11 ^a For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 And you have profaned it in that you say: The table of the Lord is defiled: and that which is laid thereupon is contemptible with the fire that devoureth it.

13 And you have said: Behold of our labour, and you puffed it away, saith the Lord of hosts, and you brought in of rapine the lame, and the sick, and brought in an offering: shall I accept it at your hands, saith the Lord?

14 Cursed is the deceitful man that hath in his flock a male, and making a vow offereth in sacrifice that which is feeble to the Lord: for I am a great King, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the Gentiles.

CHAPTER 2

The priests are sharply reprov'd for neglecting their covenant. The evil of marrying with idolaters: and too easily putting away their wives.

AND now, O ye priests, this commandment is to you.

2 ^b If you will not hear, and if you will not lay it to heart, to give glory to my name, saith the Lord of hosts: I will send poverty upon you, and will curse your blessings, yea I will curse them, because you have not laid it to heart.

3 Behold, I will cast the shoulder to you, and I will scatter upon your face the dung of your solemnities, and it shall take you away with it.

4 And you shall know that I sent you this commandment, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

5 My covenant was with him of life and peace: and I gave him fear: and he a Ps. 112. 3.— b Lev. 26. 14; Deut. 28. 15.

Ver. 11. A clean oblation. Viz., the precious body and blood of Christ in the eucharistic sacrifice.

Ver. 13. Behold of our labour. &c. You pretended labour and weariness, when you brought your offering; and so made it of no value, by offering it with an evil mind. Moreover, what you offered was both defective in itself, and gotten by rapine and extortion.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 3. I will cast the shoulder to you.

feared me, and he was afraid before my name.

6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace, and in equity, and turned many away from iniquity.

7 For the lips of the priest shall keep knowledge, and they shall seek the law at his mouth: because he is the angel of the Lord of hosts.

8 But you have departed out of the way, and have caused many to stumble at the law: you have made void the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

9 Therefore have I also made you contemptible, and base before all people, as you have not kept my ways, and have accepted persons in the law.

10 ^c Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? why then doth every one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers?

11 Juda hath transgressed, and abomination hath been committed in Israel, and in Jerusalem: for Juda hath profaned the holiness of the Lord, which he loved, and hath married the daughter of a strange God.

12 The Lord will cut off the man that hath done this, both the master, and the scholar, out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth an offering to the Lord of hosts.

13 And this again have you done, you have covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping, and bellowing, so that I have no more a regard to sacrifice, neither do I accept any atonement at your hands.

14 And you have said: For what cause? Because the Lord hath been witness between thee, and the wife of thy youth, whom thou hast despised: yet she was thy partner, and the wife of thy covenant.

15 Did not one make her, and she is the residue of his spirit? And what doth one seek, but the seed of God? Keep c Matt. 23. 9; Eph. 4. 6.

I will cast away the shoulder, which in the law was appointed to be your portion, and fling it at you in my anger: and will reject both you and your festivals like dung.

Ver. 7. The angel. Viz., the minister and messenger.

Ver. 13. With tears. Viz., by occasion of your wives, whom you have put away: and who came to weep and lament before the altar.

then your spirit, and despise not the wife of thy youth.

16 When thou shalt hate her put her away, saith the Lord the God of Israel: but iniquity shall cover his garment, saith the Lord of hosts, keep your spirit, and despise not.

17 You have wearied the Lord with your words, and you said: Wherein have we wearied him? In that you say: Every one that doth evil, is good in the sight of the Lord, and such please him: or surely where is the God of judgment?

CHAPTER 3

Christ shall come to his temple, and purify the priesthood. They that continue in their evil ways shall be punished: but true penitents shall receive a blessing.

BEHOLD ^d I send my angel, and he shall prepare the way before my face. And presently the Lord, whom you seek, and the angel of the testament, whom you desire, shall come to his temple. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts.

2 And who shall be able to think of the day of his coming? and who shall stand to see him? for he is like a refining fire, and like the fuller's herb:

3 And he shall sit refining and cleansing the silver, and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and shall refine them as gold, and as silver, and they shall offer sacrifices to the Lord in justice.

4 And the sacrifice of Juda and Jerusalem shall please the Lord, as in the days of old, and in the ancient years.

5 And I will come to you in judgment, and will be a speedy witness against sorcerers, and adulterers, and false swearers, and them that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widows, and the fatherless: and oppress the stranger, and have not feared me, saith the Lord of hosts.

6 For I am the Lord, and I change not: and you the sons of Jacob are not consumed.

7 For from the days of your fathers you have departed from my ordinances, and have not kept them: ^e Return to me, and I will return to you, saith the Lord of hosts. And you have said: Wherein shall we return?

^d Matt. 11. 10; Mark 1. 2; Luke 1. 17, and 7. 27.

Ver. 16. Iniquity shall cover his garment. Viz., of every man that putteth away his wife without just cause; notwithstanding that God permitted it in the law, to prevent the evil of murder.

8 Shall a man afflict God? for you afflict me. And you have said: Wherein do we afflict thee? in tithes and in firstfruits.

9 And you are cursed with want, and you afflict me, even the whole nation of you.

10 Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and try me in this, saith the Lord: if I open not unto you the flood-gates of heaven, and pour you out a blessing even to abundance.

11 And I will rebuke for your sakes the devourer, and he shall not spoil the fruit of your land: neither shall the vine in the field be barren, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 And all nations shall call you blessed: for you shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.

13 ^f Your words have been unsufferable to me, saith the Lord.

14 And you have said: What have we spoken against thee? You have said: He laboureth in vain that serveth God, and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinances, and that we have walked sorrowful before the Lord of hosts?

15 Wherefore now we call the proud people happy, for they that work wickedness are built up, and they have tempted God and are preserved.

16 Then they that feared the Lord spoke every one with his neighbour: and the Lord gave ear, and heard it: and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that fear the Lord, and think on his name.

17 And they shall be my special possession, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day that I do judgment: and I will spare them, as a man spareth his son that serveth him.

18 And you shall return, and shall see the difference between the just and the wicked: and between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.

CHAPTER 4

The judgment of the wicked, and reward of the just. An exhortation to observe the law. Elias shall come for the conversion of the Jews.

FOR behold the day shall come kindled as a furnace: and all the proud, ^e Zach. 1. 3.—^f John 21. 14.

CHAP. 3. Ver. 1. My angel. Viz., John the Baptist, the messenger of God, and forerunner of Christ.

and all that do wickedly shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall set them on fire, saith the Lord of hosts, it shall not leave them root, nor branch.

2 ^g But unto you that fear my name, the Sun of justice shall arise, and health in his wings: and you shall go forth, and shall leap like calves of the herd.

3 And you shall tread down the wicked when they shall be ashes under the sole of your feet in the day that I do this, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 ^h Remember the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded him in Horeb for all Israel, the precepts, and judgments.

5 ⁱ Behold I will send you Elias the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.

6 And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers: lest I come, and strike the earth with anathema.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MACHABEES

These books are so called, because they contain the history of the people of God under the command of Judas Machabeus and his brethren: and he was surnamed Machabeus, most likely because compared to a hammer (Aramaic Maqqaba'). It is not known who was the author of these books. But as to their authority, though they are not received by the Jews, saith St. Augustine, (lib. 18. De Civ. Dei, c. 36,) they are received by the Church: who, in settling her canon of the scriptures, chose rather to be directed by the tradition she had received from the Apostles of Christ, than by that of the scribes and Pharisees. And as the Church has declared these two Books canonical, even in two general councils, viz., Florence and Trent, there can be no doubt of their authenticity. They cover the period 175-136 B. C.

CHAPTER 1

The reign of Alexander and his successors: Antiochus rifles and profanes the temple of God: and persecutes unto death all that will not forsake the law of God, and the religion of their fathers.

NOW ^j it came to pass, after that Alexander the son of Philip the Macedonian, who first reigned in Greece, coming out of the land of Cethim, had overthrown Darius king of the Persians and Medes:

2 He fought many battles, and took the strong holds of all, and slew the kings of the earth:

3 And he went through even to the ends of the earth, and took the spoils of many nations: and the earth was quiet before him.

4 And he gathered a power, and a very

^g Luke 1. 78.—^h Ex. 20.; Deut. 4. 5 and 6.

ⁱ Matt. 17. 10; Mark 9. 10; Luke 1. 17.

CHAP. 4. Ver. 6. He shall turn the heart, &c. By bringing over the Jews to the faith of Christ, he shall reconcile them to their fathers, viz., the patriarchs and prophets; whose hearts for many ages have been turned away from them, because of their refusing to believe in Christ.—Ibid. With anathema.

strong army: and his heart was exalted and lifted up.

5 And he subdued countries of nations, and princes: and they became tributaries to him.

6 And after these things, he fell down upon his bed, and knew that he should die.

7 And he called his servants the nobles that were brought up with him from his youth: and he divided his kingdom among them, while he was yet alive.

8 And Alexander reigned twelve years, and he died.^k

9 And his servants made themselves kings every one in his place:

10 And they all put crowns upon themselves after his death, and their sons after them many years, and evils were multiplied in the earth.

^j B. C. 336.

^k B. C. 323.

In the Hebrew, Cherem, that is, with utter destruction.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 7. Divided his kingdom, &c. This is otherwise related by Q. Curtius; though he acknowledges that divers were of that opinion, and that it had been delivered by some authors, lib. 10. But here we find from the sacred text, that he was in error.

11 And there came out of them a wicked root, Antiochus and Illustrious, the son of king Antiochus, who had been a hostage at Rome: and he reigned in the hundred and thirty-seventh year ^l of the kingdom of the Greeks.

12 In those days there went out of Israel wicked men, and they persuaded many, saying: Let us go, and make a covenant with the heathens that are round about us: for since we departed from them, many evils have befallen us.

13 And the word seemed good in their eyes.

14 And some of the people determined to do this, and went to the king: and he gave them license to do after the ordinances of the heathens.

15 And they built a place of exercise in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the nations.

16 And they made themselves prepuces, ^m and departed from the holy covenant, and joined themselves to the heathens, and were sold to do evil.

17 ⁿ And the kingdom was established before Antiochus, and he had a mind to reign over the land of Egypt, that he might reign over two kingdoms.

18 And he entered into Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots and elephants, and horsemen, and a great number of ships:

19 And he made war against Ptolemee king of Egypt, but Ptolemee was afraid at his presence, and fled, and many were wounded unto death.

20 And he took the strong cities in the land of Egypt: and he took the spoils of the land of Egypt.

21 And after Antiochus had ravaged Egypt in the hundred and forty-third year, ^o he returned and went up against Israel.

22 And he went up to Jerusalem with a great multitude.

23 And he proudly entered into the sanctuary, and took away the golden altar, and the candlestick of light, and all the vessels thereof, and the table of proposition, and the pouring vessels, and the vials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, and the crowns, and the golden ornament that was before the temple: and he broke them all in pieces.

24 And he took the silver and gold, and the precious vessels: and he took the hidden treasures which he found: and when he had taken all away he departed into his own country.

25 And he made a great slaughter of men, and spoke very proudly.

26 And there was great mourning in Israel, and in every place where they were:

27 And the princes, and the ancients mourned, and the virgins and the young men were made feeble, and the beauty of the women was changed.

28 Every bridegroom took up lamentation: and the bride that set in the marriage bed, mourned:

29 And the land was moved for the inhabitants thereof, and all the house of Jacob was covered with confusion.

30 And after two full years ^p the king sent the chief collector of his tributes to the cities of Juda, and he came to Jerusalem with a great multitude.

31 And he spoke to them peaceable words in deceit: and they believed him.

32 And he fell upon the city suddenly, and struck it with a great slaughter, and destroyed much people in Israel.

33 And he took the spoils of the city, and burnt it with fire, and threw down the houses thereof, and the walls thereof round about:

34 And they took the women captive, and the children, and the cattle they possessed.

35 And they built the city of David with a great and strong wall, and with strong towers, and made it a fortress for them:

36 And they placed there a sinful nation, wicked men, and they fortified themselves therein: and they stored up armour, and victuals, and gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem;

37 And laid them up there: and they became a great snare.

^l B. C. 175.

^m That is, uncircumcised.

ⁿ B. C. 170.—^o B. C. 170.

^p B. C. 168.

Ver. 11. Antiochus the Illustrious. Epiphanes, the younger son of Antiochus the Great, who usurped the kingdom, to the prejudice of his nephew Demetrius, son of his elder brother Seleucus Philopator.—Ibid. Of the kingdom of the Greeks. Counting, not from the beginning of the reign of Alexander, but from the first year of Seleucus Nicator.

Ver. 30. The chief collector, &c. Apollonius.

Ver. 35. The city of David. That is, the castle of Sion.

38 And this was a place to lie in wait against the sanctuary, and an evil devil in Israel.

39 And they shed innocent blood round about the sanctuary, and defiled the holy place.

40 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled away by reason of them, and the city was made the habitation to strangers, and she became a stranger to her own seed, and her children forsook her.

41 Her sanctuary was desolate like a wilderness, ^a her festival days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honours were brought to nothing.

42 Her dishonour was increased according to her glory, and her excellency was turned into mourning.

43 ^r And king Antiochus wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one: and every one should leave his own law.

44 And all nations consented according to the word of king Antiochus.

45 And many of Israel consented to his service, and they sacrificed to idols, and profaned the sabbath.

46 And the king sent letters by the hands of messengers to Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Juda: that they should follow the law of the nations of the earth.

47 And should forbid holocausts and sacrifices, and atonements to be made in the temple of God.

48 And should prohibit the sabbath, and the festival days, to be celebrated.

49 And he commanded the holy places to be profaned, and the holy people of Israel.

50 And he commanded altars to be built, and temples, and idols, and swine's flesh to be immolated, and unclean beasts.

51 And that they should leave their children uncircumcised, and let their souls be defiled with all uncleannesses, and abominations, to the end that they should forget the law, and should change all the justifications of God.

52 And that whosoever would not do according to the word of king Antiochus should be put to death.

53 According to all these words he wrote to his whole kingdom, and he appointed rulers over the people that should force them to do these things.

54 And they commanded the cities of Juda to sacrifice.

55 Then many of the people were gathered to them that had forsaken the law of the Lord: and they committed evils in the land.

56 And they drove away the people of Israel into lurking holes, and into the secret places of fugitives.

57 On the fifteenth day of the month Casleu, in the hundred and forty-fifth year, ^s king Antiochus set up the abominable idol of desolation upon the altar of God, and they built altars throughout all the cities of Juda round about:

58 And they burnt incense, and sacrificed at the doors of the houses, and in the streets.

59 And they cut in pieces, and burnt with fire the books of the law of God:

60 And every one with whom the books of the testament of the Lord were found, and whosoever observed the law of the Lord, they put to death, according to the edict of the king.

61 Thus by their power did they deal with the people of Israel, that were found in the cities month after month.

62 And on the five and twentieth day of the month they sacrificed upon the altar of the idol that was over against the altar of God.

63 ^t Now the women that circumcised their children, were slain according to the commandment of king Antiochus.

64 And they hanged the children about their necks in all their houses: and those that had circumcised them, they put to death.

65 And many of the people of Israel determined with themselves, that they would not eat unclean things: and they chose rather to die than to be defiled with unclean meats.

66 And they would not break the holy law of God, and they were put to death:

67 And there was very great wrath upon the people.

^a Tob. 2. 6; Amos 8. 10.—^r B. C. 168.

Ver. 38. An evil devil. That is, an adversary watching constantly to do harm, as the evil spirit is always watching and seeking whom he may devour.

^s B. C. 168.—^t 2 Mac. 6. 10.

Ver. 57. The abominable idol, &c. Viz., the statue of Jupiter Olympius.

CHAPTER 2

The zeal and success of Mathathias. His exhortation to his sons at his death.

IN ^uthose days arose Mathathias the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib, from Jerusalem, and he abode in the mountain of Modin.

2 And he had five sons: John who was surnamed Gaddis:

3 And Simon, who was surnamed Thasi:

4 And Judas, who was called Machabeus:

5 And Eleazar, who was surnamed Abaron: and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus.

6 These saw the evils that were done in the people of Juda, and in Jerusalem.

7 And Mathathias said: Woe is me, wherefore was I born to see the ruin of my people, and the ruin of the holy city, and to dwell there, when it is given into the hands of the enemies?

8 The holy places are come into the hands of strangers: her temple is become as a man without honour.

9 The vessels of her glory are carried away captive: her old men are murdered in the streets, and her young men are fallen by the sword of the enemies.

10 What nation hath not inherited her kingdom, and gotten of her spoils?

11 All her ornaments are taken away. She that was free is made a slave.

12 And behold our sanctuary, and our beauty, and our glory is laid waste, and the Gentiles have defiled them.

13 To what end then should we live any longer?

14 And Mathathias and his sons rent their garments, and they covered themselves with haircloth, and made great lamentation.

15 And they that were sent from king Antiochus came thither, to compel them that were fled into the city of Modin, to sacrifice, and to burn incense, and to depart from the law of God.

16 And many of the people of Israel consented, and came to them: but Mathathias and his sons stood firm.

17 And they that were sent from Antiochus, answering, said to Mathathias: Thou art a ruler, and an honourable, and great man in this city, and adorned with sons, and brethren.

18 Therefore come thou first, and obey the king's commandment, as all nations have done, and the men of Juda, and they that remain in Jerusalem: and thou, and thy sons, shall be in the number of the king's friends, and enriched with gold, and silver, and many presents.

19 Then Mathathias answered, and said with a loud voice: Although all nations obey king Antiochus, so as to depart every man from the service of the law of his fathers, and consent to his commandments:

20 I and my sons, and my brethren will obey the law of our fathers.

21 God be merciful unto us: it is not profitable for us to forsake the law, and the justices of God:

22 We will not hearken to the words of king Antiochus, neither will we sacrifice, and transgress the commandments of our law, to go another way.

23 Now as he left off speaking these words, there came a certain Jew in the sight of all to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the king's commandment.

24 And Mathathias saw and was grieved, and his reins trembled, and his wrath was kindled according to the judgment of the law, and running upon him he slew him upon the altar:

25 Moreover the man whom king Antiochus had sent, who compelled them to sacrifice, he slew at the same time, and pulled down the altar, 26 And shewed zeal for the law, ^vas Phinees did by Zamri the son of Salomi.

27 And Mathathias cried out in the city with a loud voice, saying: Every one that hath zeal for the law, and maintaineth the testament, let him follow me.

28 So he, and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that they had in the city.

29 Then many that sought after judgment, and justice, went down into the desert:

30 And they abode there, they and their children, and their wives, and their cattle: because afflictions increased upon them.

31 And it was told to the king's men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem in the city of David, that certain men who had broken the king's commandment, were gone away into the secret places in the wilderness, and that many were gone after them.

^u B. C. 168.

^v Num. 25. 13.

32 And forthwith they went out towards them, and made war against them on the sabbath day, 33 And they said to them: Do you still resist? come forth, and do according to the edict of king Antiochus, and you shall live.

34 And they said: We will not come forth, neither will we obey the king's edict, to profane the sabbath day.

35 And they made haste to give them battle.

36 But they answered them not, neither did they cast a stone at them, nor stopped up the secret places, 37 Saying: Let us all die in our innocency: and heaven and earth shall be witnesses for us, that you put us to death wrongfully.

38 So they gave them battle on the sabbath: and they were slain with their wives, and their children, and their cattle, to the number of a thousand persons.

39 And Mathathias and his friends heard of it, and they mourned for them exceedingly.

40 And every man said to his neighbour: If we shall all do as our brethren have done, and not fight against the heathens for our lives, and our justifications: they will now quickly root us out of the earth.

41 And they determined in that day, saying: Whosoever shall come up against us to fight on the sabbath day, we will fight against him: and we will not all die, as our brethren that were slain in the secret places.

42 Then was assembled to them the congregation of the Assideans, the stoutest of Israel, every one that had a good will for the law.

43 And all they that fled from the evils, joined themselves to them, and were a support to them.

44 And they gathered an army, and slew the sinners in their wrath, and the wicked men in their indignation: and the rest fled to the nations for safety.

45 And Mathathias and his friends went round about, and they threw down the altars:

46 And they circumcised all the children whom they found in the confines of Israel that were uncircumcised: and they did valiantly.

47 And they pursued after the children of pride, and the work prospered in their hands:

48 And they recovered the law out of the hands of the nations, and out of the hands of the kings: and they yielded not the horn to the sinner.

49 Now the days drew near that Mathathias should die, and he said to his sons: Now hath pride and chastisement gotten strength, and the time of destruction, and the wrath of indignation:

50 Now therefore, O my sons, be ye zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers.

51 And call to remembrance the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations: and you shall receive great glory, and an everlasting name.

52 ^w Was not Abraham found faithful in temptation, and it was reputed to him unto justice?

53 ^x Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment, and he was made lord of Egypt.

54 ^y Phinees our father, by being fervent in the zeal of God, received the covenant of an everlasting priesthood.

55 ^z Jesus, whilst he fulfilled the word, was made ruler in Israel.

56 ^a Caleb, for bearing witness before the congregation, received an inheritance.

57 ^b David by his mercy obtained the throne of an everlasting kingdom.

58 ^c Elias, while he was full of zeal for the law, was taken up into heaven.

59 ^d Ananias and Azarias and Misael by believing, were delivered out of the flame.

60 ^e Daniel in his innocency was delivered out of the mouth of the lions.

61 And thus consider through all generations: that none that trust in him fail in strength.

^w Gen. 22. 2.—^x Gen. 41. 40.
^y Num. 25. 13; Eccli. 45. 28.—^z Jos. 1. 2.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 42. The Assideans. A set of men that led a religious life; and were zealous for the law and worship of God.

Ver. 48. They yielded not the horn, &c. That is, they suffered not the power of Antiochus, that man of sin, to abolish the law and religion of God.

^a Num. 14. 6; Jos. 14. 14.—^b 2 Kings 2. 4.
^c 4 Kings 2. 11.—^d Dan. 3. 50.—^e Dan. 6. 22.

Ver. 55. Jesus. That is, Josue.

62 And fear not the words of a sinful man, for his glory is dung, and worms:

63 To day he is lifted up, and to morrow he shall not be found, because he is returned into his earth; and his thought is come to nothing.

64 You therefore, my sons, take courage, and behave manfully in the law: for by it you shall be glorious.

65 And behold, I know that your brother Simon is a man of counsel: give ear to him always, and he shall be a father to you.

66 And Judas Machabeus who is valiant and strong from his youth up, let him be the leader of your army, and he shall manage the war of the people.

67 And you shall take to you all that observe the law: and revenge ye the wrong of your people.

68 Render to the Gentiles their reward, and take heed to the precepts of the law.

69 And he blessed them, and was joined to his fathers.

70 And he died in the hundred and forty-sixth year: and he was buried by his sons in the sepulchres of his fathers in Modin, and all Israel mourned for him with great mourning.

CHAPTER 3

Judas Machabeus succeeds his father, and overthrows Apollonius and Seron. A great army is sent against him out of Syria. He prepares his people for battle by fasting and prayer.

THEN his son Judas, called Machabeus, rose up in his stead.

2 And all his brethren helped him, and all they that had joined themselves to his father, and they fought with cheerfulness the battle of Israel.

3 And he got his people great honour, and put on a breastplate as a giant, and girt his warlike armour about him in battles, and protected the camp with his sword.

4 In his acts he was like a lion, and like a lion's whelp roaring for his prey.

5 And he pursued the wicked and sought them out, and them that troubled his people he burnt with fire:

6 And his enemies were driven away for fear of him, and all the workers of iniquity were troubled: and salvation prospered in his hand.

7 And he grieved many kings, and made

Jacob glad with his works, and his memory is blessed for ever.

8 And he went through the cities of Juda, and destroyed the wicked out of them, and turned away wrath from Israel.

9 And he was renowned even to the utmost part of the earth, and he gathered them that were perishing.

10 And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, and a numerous and great army from Samaria, to make war against Israel.

11 And Judas understood it, and went forth to meet him: and he overthrew him, and killed him: and many fell down slain, and the rest fled away.

12 And he took their spoils, and Judas took the sword of Apollonius, and fought with it all his lifetime.

13 And Seron captain of the army of Syria heard that Judas had assembled a company of the faithful, and a congregation with him, 14 And he said: I will get me a name, and will be glorified in the kingdom, and will overthrow Judas, and those that are with him, that have despised the edict of the king.

15 And he made himself ready: and the host of the wicked went up with him, strong succours, to be revenged of the children of Israel.

16 And they approached even as far as Bethoron: and Judas went forth to meet him, with a small company.

17 But when they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas: How shall we, being few, be able to fight against so great a multitude and so strong, and we are ready to faint with fasting to day?

18 And Judas said: It is an easy matter for many to be shut up in the hands of a few: and there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to deliver with a great multitude, or with a small company:

19 For the success of war is not in the multitude of the army, but strength cometh from heaven.

20 They come against us with an insolent multitude, and with pride, to destroy us, and our wives, and our children. and to take our spoils.

21 But we will fight for our lives and our laws:

22 And the Lord himself will overthrow them before our face: but as for you, fear them not.

23 And as soon as he had made an end of speaking, he rushed suddenly upon them: and Seron and his host were overthrown before him:

24 And he pursued him by the descent of Bethoron even to the plain, and there fell of them eight hundred men, and the rest fled into the land of the Philistines.

25 And the fear of Judas and of his brethren, and the dread of them fell upon all the nations round about them.

26 And his fame came to the king, and all nations told of the battles of Judas.

27 Now when king Antiochus heard these words, he was angry in his mind: and he sent and gathered the forces of all his kingdom, an exceeding strong army.

28 And he opened his treasury, and gave out pay to the army for a year: and he commanded them, that they should be ready for all things.

29 And he perceived that the money of his treasures failed, and that the tributes of the country were small because of the dissension, and the evil that he had brought upon the land, that he might take away the laws of old times:

30 And he feared that he should not have as formerly enough, for charges and gifts, which he had given before with a liberal hand: for he had abounded more than the kings that had been before him.

31 And he was greatly perplexed in mind, and purposed to go into Persia, and to take tributes of the countries, and to gather much money.

32 And he left Lysias, a nobleman of the blood royal, to oversee the affairs of the kingdom, from the river Euphrates even to the river of Egypt:

33 And to bring up his son Antiochus, till he came again.

34 And he delivered to him half the army, and the elephants: and he gave him charge concerning all that he would have done, and concerning the inhabitants of Judea, and Jerusalem:

35 And that he should send an army against them, to destroy and root out the strength of Israel, and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away the memory of them from that place:

36 And that he should settle strangers to dwell in all their coasts, and divide their land by lot.

37 ⁱ So the king took the half of the army that remained, and went forth from Antioch the chief city of his kingdom, in the hundred and forty-seventh year: and he passed over the river Euphrates, and went through the higher countries.

38 Then Lysias chose Ptolemee the son of Dorymenus, and Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends.

39 And he sent with them forty thousand men, and seven thousand horsemen: to go into the land of Juda, and to destroy it according to the king's orders.

40 So they went forth with all their power, and came, and pitched near Emmaus in the plain country.

41 And the merchants of the countries heard the fame of them: and they took silver and gold in abundance, and servants: and they came into the camp, to buy the children of Israel for slaves: and there were joined to them the forces of Syria, and of the land of the strangers.

42 And Judas and his brethren saw that evils were multiplied, and that the armies approached to their borders: and they knew the orders the king had given to destroy the people and utterly abolish them.

43 And they said every man to his neighbour: Let us raise up the low condition of our people, and let us fight for our people, and our sanctuary.

44 And the assembly was gathered that they might be ready for battle: and that they might pray, and ask mercy and compassion.

45 Now Jerusalem was not inhabited, but was like a desert: there was none of her children that went in or out: and the sanctuary was trodden down: and the children of strangers were in the castle, there was the habitation of the Gentiles: and joy was taken away from Jacob, and the pipe and harp ceased there.

46 And they assembled together, and came to Maspha over against Jerusalem: for in Maspha was a place of prayer heretofore in Israel.

47 And they fasted that day, and put on haircloth, and put ashes upon their heads: and they rent their garments:

48 And they laid open the books of the law, in which the Gentiles searched for the likeness of their idols:

49 And they brought the priestly ornaments, and the firstfruits and tithes, and stirred up the Nazarites that had fulfilled their days:

50 And they cried with a loud voice toward heaven, saying: What shall we do with these, and whither shall we carry them?

51 For thy holies are trodden down, and are profaned, and thy priests are in mourning, and are brought low.

52 And behold the nations are come together against us to destroy us: thou knowest what they intend against us.

53 How shall we be able to stand before their face, unless thou, O God, help us?

54 Then they sounded with trumpets, and cried out with a loud voice.

55 And after this Judas appointed captains over the people, over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens.

56 And he said to them that were building houses, or had betrothed wives, or were planting vineyards, or were fearful, that they should return every man to his house, according to the law.

57 So they removed the camp, and pitched on the south side of Emmaus.

58 And Judas said: Gird yourselves, and be valiant men, and be ready against the morning, that you may fight with these nations that are assembled against us to destroy us and our sanctuary.

59 For it is better for us to die in battle, than to see the evils of our nation, and of the holies:

60 Nevertheless as it shall be the will of God in heaven so be it done.

CHAPTER 4

Judas routs the king's army. Gorgias flies before him. Lysias comes against him with a great army, but is defeated. Judas cleanses the temple, sets up a new altar, and fortifies the sanctuary.

j Deut. 20. 5 and 6; Judges 7. 3.

CHAP. 4. Ver. 4. The army was dispersed. That is, in different divisions, not all together encamped.

THEN ^k Gorgias took five thousand men, and a thousand of the best horsemen: and they removed out of the camp by night.

2 That they might come upon the camp of the Jews, and strike them suddenly: and the men that were of the castle were their guides.

3 And Judas heard of it, and rose up, he and the valiant men, to attack the king's forces that were in Emmaus.

4 For as yet the army was dispersed from the camp.

5 And Gorgias came by night into the camp of Judas, and found no man, and he sought them in the mountains: for he said: These men flee from us.

6 And when it was day, Judas shewed himself in the plain with three thousand men only, who neither had armour nor swords.

7 And they saw the camp of the Gentiles that it was strong, and the men in breastplates, and the horsemen round about them, and these were trained up to war.

8 And Judas said to the men that were with him: Fear ye not their multitude, neither be ye afraid of their assault.

9 Remember in what manner our fathers were saved in the Red Sea, when Pharaoh pursued them with a great army.

10 And now let us cry to heaven: and the Lord will have mercy on us, and will remember the covenant of our fathers, and will destroy this army before our face this day:

11 And all nations shall know that there is one that redeemeth and delivereth Israel.

12 And the strangers lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming against them.

13 And they went out of the camp to battle, and they that were with Judas sounded the trumpet.

14 And they joined battle: and the Gentiles were routed, and fled into the plain.

15 But all the hindmost of them fell by the sword, and they pursued them as far as Gezeron, and even to the plains of Idumea, and of Azotus, and of Jamnia: and there fell of them to the number of three thousand men.

k B. C. 166.—l Ex. 14. 9.

Ver. 6. Who neither had armour nor swords, such as they wished for.

16 And Judas returned again with his army that followed him,

17 And he said to the people: Be not greedy of the spoils: for there is war before us:

18 And Gorgias and his army are near us in the mountain: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overthrow them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards with safety.

19 And as Judas was speaking these words, behold part of them appeared looking forth from the mountain.

20 And Gorgias saw that his men were put to flight, and that they had set fire to the camp: for the smoke that was seen declared what was done.

21 And when they had seen this, they were seized with great fear, seeing at the same time Judas and his army in the plain ready to fight.

22 So they all fled away into the land of the strangers.

23 And Judas returned to take the spoils of the camp, and they got much gold, and silver, and blue silk, and purple of the sea, and great riches.

24 And returning home they sung a hymn, and blessed God in heaven, because he is good, because his mercy endureth for ever.

25 So Israel had a great deliverance that day.

26 And such of the strangers as escaped, went and told Lysias all that had happened.

27 And when he heard these things, he was amazed and discouraged: because things had not succeeded in Israel according to his mind, and as the king had commanded.

28 So the year ^m following Lysias gathered together threescore thousand chosen men, and five thousand horsemen, that he might subdue them.

29 And they came into Judea, and pitched their tents in Bethoron, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

30 And they saw that the army was strong, and he prayed, and said: Blessed art thou, O Saviour of Israel, ⁿ who didst break the violence of the mighty by the hand of thy servant David, ^o and didst deliver up the camp of the strangers into the hands of Jonathan the son of Saul and of his armourbearer.

31 Shut up this army in the hands of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their host and their horsemen.

32 Strike them with fear, and cause the boldness of their strength to languish, and let them quake at their own destruction.

33 Cast them down with the sword of them that love thee: and let all that know thy name, praise thee with hymns.

34 And they joined battle: and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men.

35 And when Lysias saw that his men were put to flight, and how bold the Jews were, and that they were ready either to live, or to die manfully, he went to Antioch, and chose soldiers, that they might come again into Judea with greater numbers.

36 Then Judas, and his brethren said: Behold our enemies are discomfited: let us go up now to cleanse the holy places and to repair them.

37 And all the army assembled together, and they went up into mount Sion.

38 And they saw the sanctuary desolate, and the altar profaned, and the gates burnt, and shrubs growing up in the courts as in a forest, or on the mountains, and the chambers joining to the temple thrown down.

39 And they rent their garments, and made great lamentation, and put ashes on their heads:

40 And they fell down to the ground on their faces, and they sounded with the trumpets of alarm, and they cried towards heaven.

41 Then Judas appointed men to fight against them that were in the castle, till they had cleansed the holy places.

42 And he chose priests without blemish, whose will was set upon the law of God:

43 And they cleansed the holy places, and took away the stones that had been defiled into an unclean place.

44 And he considered about the altar of holocausts that had been profaned, what he should do with it.

45 And a good counsel came into their minds, to pull it down: lest it should be a reproach to them, because the Gentiles had defiled it; so they threw it down.

46 And they laid up the stones in the mountain of the temple in a convenient place, till there should come a prophet, and give answer concerning them.

47 Then they took whole stones according to the law, and built a new altar according to the former:

48 And they built up the holy places, and the things that were within the temple: and they sanctified the temple, and the courts.

49 And they made new holy vessels, and brought in the candlestick, and the altar of incense, and the table into the temple.

50 And they put incense upon the altar, and lighted up the lamps that were upon the candlestick, and they gave light in the temple.

51 And they set the loaves upon the table, and hung up the veils, and finished all the works that they had begun to make.

52 And they arose before the morning on the five and twentieth day of the ninth month (which is the month of Casleu) in the hundred and forty-eighth year.^q

53 And they offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of holocausts which they had made.

54 According to the time, and according to the day wherein the heathens had defiled it, in the same was it dedicated anew with canticles, and harps, and lutes, and cymbals.

55 And all the people fell upon their faces, and adored, and blessed up to heaven, him that had prospered them.

56 And they kept the dedication of the altar eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and sacrifices of salvation, and of praise.

57 And they adorned the front of the temple with crowns of gold, and escutcheons, and they renewed the gates, and the chambers, and hanged doors upon them.

58 And there was exceeding great joy among the people, and the reproach of the Gentiles was turned away.

59 ^r And Judas, and his brethren, and all the church of Israel decreed, that the day of the dedication of the altar should be kept in its season from year to year for eight days, from the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu, with joy and gladness.

60 They built up also at that time mount Sion, with high walls, and strong towers round about, lest the Gentiles should at any time come, and tread it down as they did before.

61 And he placed a garrison there to keep it, and he fortified it to secure Bethsura, that the people might have a defence against Idumea.

CHAPTER 5

Judas and his brethren attack the enemies of their country, and deliver them that were distressed. Josephus and Azarias, attempting contrary to order to fight against their enemies, are defeated.

NOW it came to pass, when the nations round about heard that the altar and the sanctuary were built up as before, that they were exceeding angry.

2 And they thought to destroy the generation of Jacob that were among them, and they began to kill some of the people, and to persecute them.

3 Then Judas fought against the children of Esau in Idumea, and them that were in Acrabathane: because they beset the Israelites round about, and he made a great slaughter of them.

4 And he remembered the malice of the children of Ben: who were a snare and a stumblingblock to the people, by lying in wait for them in the way.

5 And they were shut up by him in towers, and he set upon them, and devoted them to utter destruction, and burnt their towers with fire, and all that were in them.

6 Then he passed over to the children of Ammon, where he found a mighty power, and much people, and Timotheus was their captain:

7 And he fought many battles with them, and they were discomfited in their sight, and he smote them:

8 And he took the city of Gazer and her towns, and returned into Judea.

9 And the Gentiles that were in Galaad, assembled themselves together against the Israelites that were in their quarters to destroy them: and they fled into the fortress of Datheman.

10 And they sent letters to Judas and his brethren, saying: The heathens that are round about are gathered together against us, to destroy us:

11 And they are preparing to come, and to take the fortress into which we are fled: and Timotheus is the captain of their host.

12 Now therefore come, and deliver us out of their hands, for many of us are slain.

13 And all our brethren that were in the places of Tubin, are killed: and they have carried away their wives, and their children, captives, and taken their spoils, and they have slain there almost a thousand men.

14 And while they were yet reading these letters, behold there came other messengers out of Galilee with their garments rent, who related according to these words:

15 Saying, that they of Ptolemais, and of Tyre, and of Sidon, were assembled against them, and all Galilee is filled with strangers, in order to consume us.

16 Now when Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly met together to consider what they should do for their brethren that were in trouble, and were assaulted by them.

17 And Judas said to Simon his brother: Choose thee men, and go, and deliver thy brethren in Galilee: and I, and my brother Jonathan will go into the country of Galaad.

18 And he left Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias captains of the people with the remnant of the army in Judea to keep it:

19 And he commanded them, saying: Take ye the charge of this people: but make no war against the heathens, till we return.

20 Now three thousand men were allotted to Simon, to go into Gallilee: and eight thousand to Judas to go into the land of Galaad.

21 And Simon went into Galilee, and fought many battles with the heathens: and the heathens were discomfited before his face, and he pursued them even to the gate of Ptolemais.

22 And there fell of the heathens almost three thousand men, and he took the spoils of them,

23 And he took with him those that were in Galilee and in Arbatis with their wives, and children, and all that they had, and he brought them into Judea with great joy.

24 And Judas Machabeus, and Jonathan his brother passed over the Jordan, and went three days' journey through the desert.

25 And the Nabutheans met them, and received them in a peaceable manner, and told them all that happened to their brethren in the land of Galaad, 26 And that many of them were shut up in Barasa, and in Bosor, and in Alima, and in Casphor, and in Mageth, and in Carnaim: all these strong and great cities.

27 Yea, and that they were kept shut up in the rest of the cities of Galaad. and that they had appointed to bring their army on the morrow near to these cities, and to take them and to destroy them all in one day.

28 Then Judas and his army suddenly turned their march into the desert, to Bosor, and took the city: and he slew every male by the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burnt it with fire.

29 And they removed from thence by night, and went till they came to the fortress.

30 And it came to pass that early in the morning, when they lifted up their eyes, behold there were people without number, carrying ladders and engines to take the fortress, and assault them.

31 And Judas saw that the fight was begun, and the cry of the battle went up to heaven like a trumpet, and a great cry out of the city:

32 And he said to his host: Fight ye to day for your brethren.

33 And he came with three companies behind them, and they sounded their trumpets, and cried out in prayer.

34 And the host of Timotheus understood that it was Machabeus, and they fled away before his face: and they made a great slaughter of them: and there fell of them in that day almost eight thousand men.

35 And Judas turned aside to Maspha, and assaulted, and took it, and he slew every male thereof, and took the spoils thereof, and burnt it with fire.

36 From thence he marched, and took Casbon, and Mageth, and Bosor, and the rest of the cities of Galaad.

37 But after this Timotheus gathered another army, and camped over against Raphon beyond the torrent.

38 And Judas sent men to view the army: and they brought him word, saying: All the nations, that are round about us, are assembled unto him an army exceeding great:

39 And they have hired the Arabians to help them, and they have pitched their tents beyond the torrent, ready to come to fight against thee. And Judas went to meet them.

40 And Timotheus said to the captains of his army: When Judas and his army come near the torrent of water, if he pass over unto us first, we shall not be able to withstand him: for he will certainly prevail over us.

41 But if he be afraid to pass over, and camp on the other side of the river, we will pass over to them and shall prevail against him.

42 Now when Judas came near the torrent of water, he set the scribes of the people by the torrent, and commanded them, saying: Suffer no man to stay behind: but let all come to the battle.

43 And he passed over to them first, and all the people after him, and all the heathens were discomfited before them, and they threw away their weapons, and fled to the temple that was in Carnaim.

44 And he took that city, and the temple he burnt with fire, with all things that were therein: and Carnaim was subdued, and could not stand against the face of Judas.

45 And Judas gathered together all the Israelites that were in the land of Galaad, from the least even to the greatest, and their wives, and children, and an army exceeding great, to come into the land of Juda.

46 And they came as far as Ephron: now this was a great city situate in the way, strongly fortified, and there was no means to turn from it on the right hand or on the left, but the way was through the midst of it.

47 And they that were in the city, shut themselves in, and stopped up the gates with stones: and Judas sent to them with peaceable words, 48 Saying: Let us pass through your land, to go into our country: and no man shall hurt you: we will only pass through on foot. But they would not open to them.

49 Then Judas commanded proclamation to be made in the camp, that they should make an assault every man in the place where he was.

50 And the men of the army drew near, and he assaulted that city all the day, and all the night, and the city was delivered into his hands:

51 And they slew every male with the edge of the sword, and he razed the city, and took the spoils thereof, and passed through all the city over them that were slain.

52 Then they passed over the Jordan to the great plain that is over against Bethsan.

53 And Judas gathered together the hindmost, and he exhorted the people all the way through, till they came into the land of Juda.

54 And they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts, because not one of them was slain, till they had returned in peace.

55 Now in the days that Judas and Jonathan were in the land of Galaad, and Simon his brother in Galilee before Ptolemas, 56 Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias captain of the soldiers, heard of the good success, and the battles that were fought.

57 And he said: Let us also get us a name, and let us go fight against the Gentiles that are round about us.

58 And he gave charge to them that were in his army, and they went towards Jamnia.

59 And Gorgias and his men went out of the city, to give them battle.

60 And Joseph and Azarias were put to flight, and were pursued unto the borders of Judea: and there fell, on that day, of the people of Israel about two thousand men, and there was a great overthrow of the people:

61 Because they did not hearken to Judas, and his brethren, thinking that they should do manfully.

62 But they were not of the seed of those men by whom salvation was brought to Israel.

63 And the men of Juda were magnified exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and of all the nations where their name was heard.

64 And people assembled to them with joyful acclamations.

65 Then Judas and his brethren went forth and attacked the children of Esau, in the land toward the south, and he took Chebron, and her towns: and he burnt the walls thereof and the towers all round it.

66 And he removed his camp to go into the land of the aliens, and he went through Samaria.

67 In that day some priests fell in battle, while desiring to do manfully they went out unadvisedly to fight.

68 And Judas turned to Azotus into the land of the strangers, and he threw down their altars, and he burnt the statues of their gods with fire: and he took the spoils of the cities, and returned into the land of Juda.

CHAPTER 6

The fruitless repentance and death of Antiochus. His son comes against Judas with a formidable army. He besieges Sion: but at last makes peace with the Jews.

NOW king Antiochus was going through the higher countries, and he heard that the city of Elymais in Persia was greatly renowned, and abounding in silver and gold.

2 And that there was in it a temple, exceeding rich: and coverings of gold, and breastplates, and shields which king Alexander, son of Philip the Macedonian that reigned first in Greece, had left there.

3 Lo, he came, and sought to take the city and to pillage it: but he was not able, because the design was known to them that were in the city.

4 And they rose up against him in battle, and he fled away from thence, and departed with great sadness, and returned towards Babylonia.

5 And whilst he was in Persia, there came one that told him, how the armies that were in the land of Juda were put to flight:

6 And that Lysias went with a very great power, and was put to flight before the face of the Jews, and that they were grown strong by the armour, and power, and store of spoils, which they had gotten out of the camps which they had destroyed:

7 And that they had thrown down the abomination which he had set up upon the altar in Jerusalem, and that they had compassed about the sanctuary with high walls as before, and Bethsura also his city.

8 And it came to pass when the king heard these words, that he was struck with fear, and exceedingly moved: and he laid himself down upon his bed, and fell sick for grief, because it had not fallen out to him as he imagined.

9 And he remained there many days: for great grief came more and more upon him, and he made account that he should die.

10 And he called for all his friends, and said to them: Sleep is gone from my eyes, and I am fallen away, and my heart is cast down for anxiety.

11 And I said in my heart: Into how much tribulation am I come, and into what floods of sorrow, wherein now I am: I that was pleasant and beloved in my power!

12 But now I remember the evils that I have done in Jerusalem, from whence also I took away all the spoils of gold, and of silver that were in it, and I sent to destroy the inhabitants of Juda without cause.

13 I know therefore that for this cause these evils have found me: and behold I perish with great grief in a strange land.

14 Then he called Philip, one of his friends, and he made him regent over all his kingdom.

15 And he gave him the crown, and his robe, and his ring, that he should go to Antiochus his son, and should bring him up for the kingdom.

16 So king Antiochus died there in the year one hundred and forty-nine.^x

17 And Lysias understood that the king was dead, and he set up Antiochus his son to reign, whom he brought up young: and he called his name Eupator.

18 Now they that were in the castle, had shut up the Israelites round about the holy places: and they were continually seeking their hurt, and to strengthen the Gentiles.

19 And Judas purposed to destroy them: and he called together all the people, to besiege them.

20 ^y And they came together, and besieged them in the year one hundred and fifty, and they made battering slings and engines.

21 And some of the besieged got out: and some wicked men of Israel joined themselves unto them.

22 And they went to the king, and said: How long dost thou delay to execute the judgment, and to revenge our brethren?

23 We determined to serve thy father and to do according to his orders, and obey his edicts:

24 And for this they of our nation are alienated from us, and have slain as many of us as they could find, and have spoiled our inheritances.

25 Neither have they put forth their hand against us only, but also against all our borders.

26 And behold they have approached this day to the castle of Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified the stronghold of Bethsura:

27 And unless thou speedily prevent them, they will do greater things than these, and thou shalt not be able to subdue them.

28 Now when the king heard this, he was angry: and he called together all his friends, and the captains of his army, and them that were over the horsemen.

29 There came also to him from other realms, and from the islands of the sea hired troops.

30 And the number of his army was an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and thirty-two elephants, trained to battle.

31 And they went through Idumea, and approached to Bethsura, and fought many days, and they made engines: but they sallied forth and burnt them with fire, and fought manfully.

32 And Judas departed from the castle, and removed the camp to Bethzacharam, over against the king's camp.

33 And the king rose before it was light, and made his troops march on fiercely towards the way of Bethzacharam: and the armies made themselves ready for the battle, and they sounded the trumpets:

34 And they shewed the elephants the blood of grapes, and mulberries to provoke them to fight.

35 And they distributed the beasts by the legions: and there stood by every elephant a thousand men in coats of mail, and with helmets of brass on their heads: and five hundred horsemen set in order were chosen for every beast.

36 These before the time wheresoever the beast was, they were there: and whithersoever it went, they went, and they departed not from it.

37 And upon the beast, there were strong wooden towers, which covered every one of them: and engines upon them: and upon every one thirty-two valiant men, who fought from above; and an Indian to rule the beast.

38 And the rest of the horsemen he placed on this side and on that side at the two wings, with trumpets to stir up the army, and to hasten them forward that stood thick together in the legions thereof.

39 Now when the sun shone upon the shields of gold, and of brass, the mountains glittered therewith, and they shone like lamps of fire.

40 And part of the king's army was distinguished by the high mountains, and the other part by the low places: and they marched on warily and orderly.

41 And all the inhabitants of the land were moved at the noise of their multitude, and the marching of the company, and the rattling of the armour, for the army was exceeding great and strong.

42 And Judas and his army drew near for battle: and there fell of the king's army six hundred men.

^y B. C. 163.

CHAP. 6. Ver. 31. But they sallied forth. That is, the citizens of Bethsura sallied forth and burnt them, that is, burnt the engines of the besiegers.

Ver. 36. These before the time. That is, these were ready for every occasion.

43 And Eleazar the son of Saura saw one of the beasts harnessed with the king's harness: and it was higher than the other beasts: and it seemed to him that the king was on it:

44 And he exposed himself to deliver his people and to get himself an everlasting name.

45 And he ran up to it boldly in the midst of the legion, killing on the right hand, and on the left, and they fell by him on this side and that side.

46 And he went between the feet of the elephant, and put himself under it: and slew it, and it fell to the ground upon him, and he died there.

47 Then they seeing the strength of the king and the fierceness of his army, turned away from them.

48 But the king's army went up against them to Jerusalem: and the king's army pitched their tents against Judea and mount Sion.

49 And he made peace with them that were in Bethsura: and they came forth out of the city, because they had no victuals, being shut up there, for it was the year of rest to the land.

50 ^z And the king took Bethsura: and he placed there a garrison to keep it.

51 And he turned his army against the sanctuary for many days: and he set up there battering slings, and engines and instruments to cast fire, and engines to cast stones and javelins, and pieces to shoot arrows, and slings.

52 And they also made engines against their engines, and they fought for many days.

53 But there were no victuals in the city, because it was the seventh year: and such as had stayed in Judea of them that came from among the nations, had eaten the residue of all that which had been stored up.

54 And there remained in the holy places but a few, for the famine had prevailed over them: and they were dispersed every man to his own place.

55 ^a Now Lysias heard that Philip, whom king Antiochus while he lived had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus, and to reign, to be king,

56 Was returned from Persia, and Media, with the army that went with him, and that he sought to take upon him the affairs of the kingdom:

57 Wherefore he made haste to go, and say to the king and to the captains of the army: We decay daily, and our provision of victuals is small, and the place that we lay siege to is strong, and it lieth upon us to take order for the affairs of the kingdom.

58 Now therefore let us come to an agreement with these men, and make peace with them and with all their nation.

59 And let us covenant with them, that they may live according to their own laws as before. For because of our despising their laws, they have been provoked, and have done all these things.

60 And the proposal was acceptable in the sight of the king, and of the princes: and he sent to them to make peace: and they accepted of it.

61 And the king and the princes swore to them: and they came out of the stronghold.

62 Then the king entered into mount Sion, and saw the strength of the place: and he quickly broke the oath that he had taken, and gave commandment to throw down the wall round about.

63 And he departed in haste, and returned to Antioch, where he found Philip master of the city: and he fought against him, and took the city.

CHAPTER 7

Demetrius is made king, and sends Bacchides and Alcimus the priest into Judea, and after them Nicanor, who is slain by Judas with all his army.

IN ^b the hundred and fifty-first year Demetrius the son of Seleucus departed from the city of Rome, and came up with a few men into a city of the sea coast, and reigned there.

2 And it came to pass, as he entered into the house of the kingdom of his fathers, that the army seized upon Antiochus, and Lysias, to bring them unto him.

3 And when he knew it, he said: Let me not see their face.

4 So the army slew them. And Demetrius sat upon the throne of his kingdom:

5 And there came to him the wicked and ungodly men of Israel: and Alcimus was at the head of them, who desired to be made high priest.

^z B. C. 163.—^a Supra ver. 15.

^b B. C. 162.

6 And they accused the people to the king, saying: Judas and his brethren have destroyed all thy friends, and he hath driven us out of our land.

7 Now therefore send some man whom thou trustest, and let him go, and see all the havock he hath made amongst us, and in the king's lands: and let him punish all his friends and their helpers.

8 Then the king chose Bacchides, one of his friends that ruled beyond the great river in the kingdom, and was faithful to the king: and he sent him,

9 To see the havock that Judas had made: and the wicked Alcimus he made high priest, and commanded him to take revenge upon the children of Israel.

10 And they arose, and came with a great army into the land of Juda: and they sent messengers, and spoke to Judas and his brethren with peaceable words deceitfully.

11 But they gave no heed to their words: for they saw that they were come with a great army.

12 Then there assembled to Alcimus and Bacchides a company of the scribes to require things that are just:

13 And first the Assideans that were among the children of Israel, and they sought peace of them.

14 For they said: One that is a priest of the seed of Aaron is come, he will not deceive us.

15 And he spoke to them peaceably: and he swore to them, saying: We will do you no harm nor your friends.

16 And they believed him. And he took threescore of them, and slew them in one day, according to the word that is written:

17 ^c The flesh of thy saints, and the blood of them they have shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them.

18 Then fear and trembling fell upon all the people: for they said: There is no truth, nor justice among them: for they have broken the covenant, and the oath which they made.

19 And Bacchides removed the camp from Jerusalem, and pitched in Bethzecha: and he sent, and took many of them that were fled away from him, and some of the people he killed, and threw them into a great pit.

20 Then he committed the country to Alcimus, and left with him troops to help him. So Bacchides went away to the king:

21 But Alcimus did what he could to maintain his chief priesthood.

22 And they that disturbed the people resorted to him, and they got the land of Juda into their power, and did much hurt in Israel.

23 And Judas saw all the evils that Alcimus, and they that were with him, did to the children of Israel, much more than the Gentiles.

24 And he went out into all the coasts of Judea round about, and took vengeance upon the men that had revolted, and they ceased to go forth any more into the country.

25 And Alcimus saw that Judas, and they that were with him prevailed: and he knew that he could not stand against them, and he went back to the king, and accused them of many crimes.

26 ^d And the king sent Nicanor one of his principal lords, who was a great enemy to Israel: and he commanded him to destroy the people.

27 ^e And Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a great army, and he sent to Judas and to his brethren deceitfully with friendly words, 28 Saying: Let there be no fighting between me and you: I will come with a few men to see your faces with peace.

29 And he came to Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: and the enemies were prepared to take away Judas by force.

30 And the thing was known to Judas that he was come to him with deceit: and he was much afraid of him, and would not see his face any more.

31 And Nicanor knew that his counsel was discovered: and he went out to fight against Judas near Capharsalama.

32 And there fell of Nicanor's army almost five thousand men, and they fled into the city of David.

33 And after this Nicanor went up into mount Sion: and some of the priests and the people came out to salute him peaceably, and to shew him the holocausts that were offered for the king.

34 But he mocked and despised them, and abused them: and he spoke proudly,

^c Ps. 78. 1, 2, and 3.

^d 2 Mac. 15. 1.—^e B. C. 161.

35 And swore in anger, saying: Unless Judas and his army be delivered into my hands, as soon as ever I return in peace, I will burn this house. And he went out in a great rage.

36 And the priests went in, and stood before the face of the altar and the temple: and weeping, they said:

37 Thou, O Lord, hast chosen this house for thy name to be called upon therein, that it might be a house of prayer and supplication for thy people.

38 Be avenged of this man, and his army, and let them fall by the sword: remember their blasphemies, and suffer them not to continue any longer.

39 Then Nicanor went out from Jerusalem, and encamped near to Bethoron: and an army of Syria joined him.

40 But Judas pitched in Adarsa with three thousand men: and Judas prayed, and said:

41 O Lord, when they that were sent by king Sennacherib blasphemed thee, an angel went out, and slew of them a hundred and eighty-five thousand:

42 Even so destroy this army in our sight to day, and let the rest know that he hath spoken ill against thy sanctuary: and judge thou him according to his wickedness.

43 And the armies joined battle on the thirteenth day of the month Adar: and the army of Nicanor was defeated, and he himself was first slain in the battle.

44 And when his army saw that Nicanor was slain, they threw away their weapons, and fled:

45 And they pursued after them one day's journey from Adazer, even till ye come to Gazara, and they sounded the trumpets after them with signals.

46 And they went forth out of all the towns of Judea round about, and they pushed them with the horns, and they turned again to them, and they were all slain with the sword, and there was not left of them so much as one.

47 And they took the spoils of them for a booty, and they cut off Nicanor's head, and his right hand, which he had proudly stretched out, and they brought it, and hung it up over against Jerusalem.

48 And the people rejoiced exceedingly, and they spent that day with great joy.

49 And he ordained that this day should be kept every year, being the thirteenth of the month of Adar.

50 And the land of Juda was quiet for a short time.

CHAPTER 8

Judas hears of the great character of the Romans: he makes a league with them.

NOW Judas heard of the fame of the Romans, that they are powerful and strong, and willingly agree to all things that are requested of them: and that whosoever have come to them, they have made amity with them, and that they are mighty in power.

2 And they heard of their battles, and their noble acts, which they had done in Galatia, how they had conquered them, and brought them under tribute:

3 And how great things they had done in the land of Spain, and that they had brought under their power the mines of silver and of gold that are there, and had gotten possession of all the place by their counsel and patience:

4 And had conquered places that were very far off from them, and kings that came against them from the ends of the earth, and had overthrown them with great slaughter: and the rest pay them tribute every year.

5 And that they had defeated in battle Philip, and Perses the king of the Ceteans, and the rest that had borne arms against them, and had conquered them:

6 And how Antiochus the great king of Asia, who went to fight against them, having a hundred and twenty elephants, with horsemen, and chariots, and a very great army, was routed by them:

7 And how they took him alive, and appointed to him, that both he and they that should reign after him, should pay a great tribute, and that he should give hostages, and that which was agreed upon,

8 And the country of the Indians, and of the Medes, and of the Lydians, some f 4 Kings 19. 35; Tob. 1. 21; Eccli. 48. 24; Isa. 37. 36; 2 Mac. 8. 19.—g That is, strength.

CHAP. 8. Ver. 2. They heard, &c. What is here set down of the history and character of the ancient Romans, is not an assertion, or affirmation of the sacred writer: but only a relation of what Judas had heard of them.

Ver. 5. Ceteans. That is, the Macedonians.

Ver. 8. Eumenes. King of Pergamus.

of their best provinces: and those which they had taken from them they gave to king Eumenes.

9 And that they who were in Greece had a mind to go and to destroy them: and they had knowledge thereof,

10 And they sent a general against them, and fought with them, and many of them were slain, and they carried away their wives and their children captives, and spoiled them, and took possession of their land, and threw down their walls, and brought them to be their servants unto this day.

11 And the other kingdoms, and islands, that at any time had resisted them, they had destroyed and brought under their power.

12 But with their friends, and such as relied upon them, they kept amity, and had conquered kingdoms that were near, and that were far off: for all that heard their name, were afraid of them.

13 That whom they had a mind to help to a kingdom, those reigned: and whom they would, they deposed from the kingdom: and they were greatly exalted.

14 And none of all these wore a crown, or was clothed in purple, to be magnified thereby.

15 And that they had made themselves a senate house, and consulted daily three hundred and twenty men, that sat in council always for the people, that they might do the things that were right.

16 And that they committed their government to one man every year, to rule over all their country, and they all obey one, and there is no envy, nor jealousy amongst them.

17 So Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Jacob, and Jason the son of Eleazar, and he sent them to Rome to make a league of amity and confederacy with them.

18 And that they might take off from them the yoke of the Grecians, for they saw that they oppressed the kingdom of Israel with servitude.

19 And they went to Rome, a very long journey, and they entered into the senate house, and said:

20 Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the people of the Jews have sent us to you, to make alliance and peace with you, and that we may be registered your confederates and friends.

21 And the proposal was pleasing in their sight.

22 And this is the copy of the writing that they wrote back again, graven in tables of brass, and sent to Jerusalem, that it might be with them there for a memorial of the peace and alliance.

23 GOOD SUCCESS BE TO THE ROMANS, and to the people of the Jews, by sea and by land for ever: and far be the sword and enemy from them.

24 But if there come first any war upon the Romans, or any of their confederates, in all their dominions:

25 The nation of the Jews shall help them according as the time shall direct, with all their heart:

26 Neither shall they give them, whilst they are fighting, or furnish them with wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans: and they shall obey their orders, without taking any thing of them.

27 In like manner also if war shall come first upon the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help them with all their heart, according as the time shall permit them.

28 And there shall not be given to them that come to their aid, either wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans: and they shall observe their orders without deceit.

29 According to these articles did the Romans covenant with the people of the Jews.

30 And if after this one party or the other shall have a mind to add to these articles, or take away any thing, they may do it at their pleasure: and whatsoever thy shall add, or take away, shall be ratified.

31 Moreover concerning the evils that Demetrius the king hath done against them, we have written to him, saying: Why hast thou made thy yoke heavy upon our friends, and allies, the Jews?

32 If therefore they come again to us complaining of thee, we will do them

Ver. 16. To one man. There were two consuls: but one only ruled at one time, each in his day.—Ibid. No envy, &c. So Judas had heard: and it was so far true, with regard to the ancient Romans, that as yet no envy or jealousy had divided them into such open factions and civil wars, as they afterwards experienced in the time of Marius and Sylla, &c.

justice, and will make war against thee by sea and land.

CHAPTER 9

Bacchides is sent again into Judea: Judas fights against him with eight hundred men and is slain. Jonathan succeeds him and revenges the murder of his brother John. He fights against Bacchides. Alcimus dies miserably. Bacchides besieges Beth-bessen. He is forced to raise the siege and leave the country.

IN the mean time when Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army were fallen in battle, he sent again Bacchides and Alcimus into Judea; and the right wing of his army with them.

2 And they took the road that leadeth to Galgal, and they camped in Masaloth, which is in Arabella: and they made themselves masters of it, and slew many people.

3 In the first month of the hundred and fifty-second year they brought the army to Jerusalem:

4 And they arose, and went to Berea with twenty thousand men, and two thousand horsemen.

5 Now Judas had pitched his tents in Laiza, and three thousand chosen men with him:

6 And they saw the multitude of the army that they were many, and they were seized with great fear: and many withdrew themselves out of the camp, and there remained of them no more then eight hundred men.

7 And Judas saw that his army slipped away, and the battle pressed upon him, and his heart was cast down: because he had not time to gather them together, and he was discouraged.

8 Then he said to them that remained: Let us arise, and go against our enemies, if we may be able to fight against them.

9 But they dissuaded him, saying: We shall not be able, but let us save our lives now, and return to our brethren, and then we will fight against them: for we are but few.

10 Then Judas said: God forbid we should do this thing, and flee away from them: but if our time be come, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our glory.

11 And the army removed out of the camp, and they stood over against them: and the horsemen were divided into two troops, and the slingers, and the archers went before the army, and they that were in the front were all men of valour.

12 And Bacchides was in the right wing, and the legion drew near on two sides, and they sounded the trumpets:

13 And they also that were on Judas' side, even they also cried out, and the earth shook at the noise of the armies: and the battle was fought from morning even unto the evening.

14 And Judas perceived that the stronger part of the army of Bacchides was on the right side, and all the stout of heart came together with him:

15 And the right wing was discomfited by them, and he pursued them even to the mount Azotus.

16 And they that were in the left wing saw that the right wing was discomfited, and they followed after Judas, and them that were with him, at their back:

17 And the battle was hard fought, and there fell many wounded of the one side and of the other.

18 And Judas was slain, and the rest fled away.

19 And Jonathan and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of their fathers in the city of Modin.

20 And all the people of Israel bewailed him with great lamentation, and they mourned for him many days.

21 And said: How is the mighty man fallen, that saved the people of Israel!

22 But the rest of the words of the wars of Judas, and of the noble acts that he did, and of his greatness, are not written: for they were very many.

23 And it came to pass after the death of Judas, that the wicked began to put forth their heads in all the confines of Israel, and all the workers of iniquity rose up.

24 In those days there was a very great famine, and they and all their country yielded to Bacchides.

25 And Bacchides chose the wicked men, and made them lords of the country:

26 And they sought out, and made diligent search after the friends of Judas, and brought them to Bacchides, and he took vengeance of them, and abused them

27 And there was a great tribulation in Israel, such as was not since the day, that there was no prophet seen in Israel.

28 And all the friends of Judas came together, and said to Jonathan:

29 Since thy brother Judas died, there is not a man like him to go forth against our enemies, Bacchides, and them that are the enemies of our nation.

30 Now therefore we have chosen thee this day to be our prince, and captain in his stead to fight our battles.

31 So Jonathan took upon him the government at that time, and rose up in the place of Judas his brother.

32 And Bacchides had knowledge of it, and sought to kill him.

33 And Jonathan and Simon his brother, knew it, and all that were with them: and they fled into the desert of Thecua, and they pitched by the water of the lake Asphar, 34 And Bacchides understood it, and he came himself with all his army over the Jordan on the sabbath day.

35 And Jonathan sent his brother a captain of the people, to desire the Nabuthians his friends, that they would lend them their equipage, which was copious.

36 And the children of Jambri came forth out of Madaba, and took John, and all that he had, and went away with them.

37 After this it was told Jonathan, and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri made a great marriage, and were bringing the bride out of Madaba, the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan, with great pomp.

38 And they remembered the blood of John their brother: and they went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain.

39 And they lifted up their eyes, and saw: and behold a tumult, and great preparation: and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends, and his brethren to meet them with timbrels, and musical instruments, and many weapons.

40 And they rose up against them from the place where they lay in ambush, and slew them, and there fell many wounded, and the rest fled into the mountains, and they took all their spoils:

41 And the marriage was turned into mourning, and the noise of their musical instruments into lamentation.

42 And they took revenge for the blood of their brother: and they returned to the bank of the Jordan.

43 And Bacchides heard it, and he came on the sabbath day even to the bank of the Jordan with a great power.

44 And Jonathan said to his company: Let us arise, and fight against our enemies: for it is not now as yesterday, and the day before.

45 For behold the battle is before us, and the water of the Jordan on this side and on that side, and banks, and marshes, and woods: and there is no place for us to turn aside.

46 ^k Now therefore cry ye to heaven, that ye may be delivered from the hand of your enemies. And they joined battle.

47 And Jonathan stretched forth his hand to strike Bacchides, but he turned away from him backwards.

48 And Jonathan, and they that were with him leaped into the Jordan, and swam over the Jordan to them:

49 And there fell of Bacchides' side that day a thousand men: and they returned to Jerusalem,

50 And they built strong cities in Judea, the fortress that was in Jericho, and in Ammaus, and in Bethoron, and in Bethel, and Thamnata, and Phara, and Thopo, with high walls, and gates, and bars.

51 And he placed garrisons in them, that they might wage war against Israel:

52 And he fortified the city of Bethsura, and Gazara, and the castle, and set garrisons in them, and provisions of victuals:

53 And he took the sons of the chief men of the country for hostages, and put them in the castle in Jerusalem in custody.

54 ^l Now in the year one hundred and fifty-three, the second month, Alcimus commanded the walls of the inner court of the sanctuary to be thrown down, and the works of the prophets to be destroyed: and he began to destroy.

55 At that time Alcimus was struck: and his works were hindered, and his mouth was stopped, and he was taken with a palsy, so that he could no more speak a word, nor give order concerning his house.

56 And Alcimus died at that time in great torment.

57 And Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead: and he returned to the king, and the land was quiet for two years.

58 And all the wicked held a council, saying: Behold Jonathan, and they that are with him, dwell at ease, and without fear: now therefore let us bring Bacchides hither, and he shall take them all in one night.

59 So they went, and gave him counsel.

60 And he arose to come with a great army: and he sent secretly letters to his adherents that were in Judea, to seize upon Jonathan, and them that were with him: but they could not, for their design was known to them.

61 And he apprehended of the men of the country, that were the principal authors of the mischief, fifty men, and slew them.

62 And Jonathan, and Simon, and they that were with him retired into Bethbesen, which is in the desert: and he repaired the breaches thereof, and they fortified it.

63 And when Bacchides knew it, he gathered together all his multitude: and sent word to them that were of Judea.

64 And he came, and camped above Bethbesen, and fought against it many days, and made engines.

65 But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the city, and went forth into the country: and came with a number of men.

66 And struck Odares, and his brethren, and the children of Phaseron in their tents, and he began to slay, and to increase in forces.

67 But Simon and they that were with him, sallied out of the city, and burnt the engines.

68 And they fought against Bacchides, and he was discomfited by them: and they afflicted him exceedingly, for his counsel, and his enterprise was in vain.

69 And he was angry with the wicked men that had given him counsel to come into their country, and he slew many of them: and he purposed to return with the rest into their country.

70 And Jonathan had knowledge of it, and he sent ambassadors to him to make peace with him, and to restore to him the prisoners.

71 And he accepted it willingly, and did according to his words, and swore that he would do him no harm all the days of his life.

72 And he restored to him the prisoners which he before had taken out of the land of Judea: and he returned and went away into his own country, and he came no more into their borders.

73 So the sword ceased from Israel: and Jonathan dwelt in Machmas, and Jonathan began there to judge the people, and he destroyed the wicked out of Israel.

CHAPTER 10

Alexander Bales sets himself up for king: both he and Demetrius seek to make Jonathan their friend. Alexander kills Demetrius in battle, and honours Jonathan. His victory over Apollonius.

NOW ⁿin the hundred and sixtieth year Alexander the son of Antiochus, surnamed the Illustrious, came up and took Ptolemais, and they received him, and he reigned there.

2 And king Demetrius heard of it, and gathered together an exceeding great army, and went forth against him to fight.

3 And Demetrius sent a letter to Jonathan with peaceable words, to magnify him.

4 For he said: Let us first make a peace with him, before he make one with Alexander against us.

5 For he will remember all the evils that we have done against him, and against his brother, and against his nation.

6 And he gave him authority to gather together an army, and to make arms, and that he should be his confederate: and the hostages that were in the castle, he commanded to be delivered to him.

7 And Jonathan came to Jerusalem, and read the letters in the hearing of all the people, and of them that were in the castle.

8 And they were struck with great fear, because they heard that the king had given him authority to gather together an army.

9 And the hostages were delivered to Jonathan, and he restored them to their parents.

10 And Jonathan dwelt in Jerusalem, and began to build, and to repair the city.

11 And he ordered workmen to build the walls, and mount Sion round about with square stones for fortification: and so they did.

12 And the strangers that were in the strong holds, which Bacchides had built, fled away.

13 And every man left his place, and departed into his own country:

14 Only in Bethsura there remained some of them, that had forsaken the law, and the commandments of God: for this was a place of refuge for them.

15 And king Alexander heard of the promises that Demetrius had made Jonathan: and they told him of the battles, and the worthy acts that he, and his brethren had done, and the labours that they had endured.

16 And he said: Shall we find such another man? now therefore we will make him our friend and our confederate.

17 So he wrote a letter, and sent it to him according to these words, saying:

18 King Alexander to his brother Jonathan, greeting.

19 We have heard of thee, that thou art a man of great power, and fit to be our friend:

20 Now therefore we make thee this day high priest of thy nation, and that thou be called the king's friend, (and he sent him a purple robe, and a crown of gold,) and that thou be of one mind with us in our affairs, and keep friendship with us.

21 Then Jonathan put on the holy vestment in the seventh month, in the year one hundred and threescore, at the feast day of the tabernacles: and he gathered together an army, and made a great number of arms.

22 And Demetrius heard these words, and was exceeding sorry, and said:

23 What is this that we have done, that Alexander hath prevented us to gain the friendship of the Jews to strengthen himself?

24 I also will write to them words of request, and offer dignities, and gifts: that they may be with me to aid me.

25 And he wrote to them in these words: King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews, greeting.

26 Whereas you have kept covenant with us, and have continued in our friendship, and have not joined with our enemies, we have heard of it, and are glad.

27 Wherefore now continue still to keep fidelity towards us, and we will reward you with good things, for what you have done in our behalf.

28 And we will remit to you many charges, and will give you gifts.

29 And now I free you, and all the Jews from tributes, and I release you from the customs of salt, and remit the crowns, and the thirds of the seed:

30 And the half of the fruit of trees, which is my share, I leave to you from this day forward, so that it shall not be taken of the land of Juda, and of the three cities that are added thereto out of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forth and for ever:

31 And let Jerusalem be holy and free, with the borders thereof: and let the tenths, and tributes be for itself.

32 I yield up also the power of the castle that is in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, to place therein such men as he shall choose to keep it.

33 And every soul of the Jews that hath been carried captive from the land of Juda in all my kingdom, I set at liberty freely, that all be discharged from tributes even of their cattle.

34 And I will that all the feasts, and the sabbaths, and the new moons, and the days appointed, and three days before the solemn day, and three days after the solemn day, be all days of immunity and freedom, for all the Jews that are in my kingdom:

35 And no man shall have power to do any thing against them, or to molest any of them in any cause.

36 And let there be enrolled in the king's army to the number of thirty thousand of the Jews: and allowance shall be made them as is due to all the king's forces, and certain of them shall be appointed to be in the fortresses of the great king:

37 And some of them shall be set over the affairs of the kingdom, that are of trust, and let the governors be taken from among themselves, and let them walk in their own laws, as the king hath commanded in the land of Juda.

38 And the three cities that are added to Judea, out of the country of Samaria, let them be accounted with Judea: that they may be under one, and obey no other authority but that of the high priest:

39 Ptolemais, and the confines thereof, I give as a free gift to the holy places, that are in Jerusalem, for the necessary charges of the holy things.

40 And I give every year fifteen thousand sicles of silver out of the king's accounts, of what belongs to me:

41 And all that is above, which they that were over the affairs the years before, had not paid, from this time they shall give it to the works of the house.

42 Moreover the five thousand sicles of silver which they received from the account of the holy places, every year, shall also belong to the priests that execute the ministry.

43 And whosoever shall flee into the temple that is in Jerusalem, and in all the borders thereof, being indebted to the king for any matter, let them be set at liberty, and all that they have in my kingdom, let them have it free.

44 For the building also, or repairing the works of the holy places, the charges shall be given out of the king's revenues:

45 For the building also of the walls of Jerusalem, and the fortifying thereof round about, the charges shall be given out of the king's account, as also for the building of the walls in Judea.

46 Now when Jonathan, and the people heard these words, ^o they gave no credit to them nor received them: because they remembered the great evil that he had done in Israel, for he had afflicted them exceedingly.

47 And their inclinations were towards Alexander, because he had been the chief promoter of peace in their regard, and him they always helped.

48 And king Alexander gathered together a great army, and moved his camp near to Demetrius.

49 And the two kings joined battle, and the army of Demetrius fled away, and Alexander pursued after him, and pressed them close.

50 And the battle was hard fought till the sun went down: and Demetrius was slain that day.

51 And Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemee king of Egypt, with words to this effect, saying:

52 Forasmuch as I am returned into my kingdom, and am set in the throne of my ancestors, and have gotten the dominion, and have overthrown Demetrius, and possessed our country,

53 And have joined battle with him, and both he and his army have been destroyed by us, and we are placed in the throne of his kingdom:

54 Now therefore let us make friendship one with another: and give me now thy daughter to wife, and I will be thy son in law, and I will give both thee and her gifts worthy of thee.

55 And king Ptolemee answered, saying: Happy is the day wherein thou didst return to the land of thy fathers, and satest in the throne of their kingdom.

56 And now I will do to thee as thou hast written: but meet me at Ptolemais, that we may see one another, and I may give her to thee as thou hast said.

57 So Ptolemee went out of Egypt, with Cleopatra his daughter, and he came to Ptolemais in the hundred and sixty-second year.^a 58 And king Alexander met him, and he gave him his daughter Cleopatra: and he celebrated her marriage at Ptolemais, with great glory, after the manner of kings.

59 And king Alexander wrote to Jonathan, that he should come and meet him.

60 And he went honourably to Ptolemais, and he met there the two kings, and he gave them much silver, and gold, and presents: and he found favour in their sight.

61 And some pestilent men of Israel, men of a wicked life, assembled themselves against him to accuse him: and the king gave no heed to them.

62 And he commanded that Jonathan's garments should be taken off, and that he should be clothed with purple: and they did so. And the king made him sit by himself.

63 And he said to his princes: Go out with him into the midst of the city, and make proclamation, that no man complain against him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any manner of cause.

^o Supra 7. 11.

^a B. C. 151.

64 So when his accusers saw his glory proclaimed, and him clothed with purple, they all fled away.

65 And the king magnified him, and enrolled him amongst his chief friends, and made him governor and partaker of his dominion.

66 And Jonathan returned into Jerusalem with peace and joy.

67 ^rIn the year one hundred and sixty-five Demetrius the son of Demetrius came from Crete into the land of his fathers.

68 And king Alexander heard of it, and was much troubled, and returned to Antioch.

69 And king Demetrius made Apollonius his general, who was governor of Celesyria: and he gathered together a great army, and came to Jamnia: and he sent to Jonathan the high priest, 70 Saying: Thou alone standest against us, and I am laughed at, and reproached, because thou shewest thy power against us in the mountains.

71 Now therefore if thou trustest in thy forces, come down to us into the plain, and there let us try one another: for with me is the strength of war.

72 Ask, and learn who I am, and the rest that help me, who also say that your foot cannot stand before our face, for thy fathers have twice been put to flight in their own land:

73 And now how wilt thou be able to abide the horsemen, and so great an army in the plain, where there is no stone, nor rock, nor place to flee to?

74 Now when Jonathan heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved in his mind: and he chose ten thousand men, and went out of Jerusalem, and Simon his brother met him to help him.

75 And they pitched their tents near Joppe, but they shut him out of the city: because a garrison of Apollonius was in Joppe, and he laid siege to it.

76 And they that were in the city being affrighted, opened the gates to him: so Jonathan took Joppe.

77 And Apollonius heard of it, and he took three thousand horsemen, and a great army.

78 And he went to Azotus as one that was making a journey, and immediately he went forth into the plain: because he had a great number of horsemen, and he trusted in them. And Jonathan followed after him to Azotus, and they joined battle.

79 And Apollonius left privately in the camp a thousand horsemen behind them.

80 And Jonathan knew that there was an ambush behind him, and they surrounded his army, and cast darts at the people from morning till evening.

81 But the people stood still, as Jonathan had commanded them: and so their horses were fatigued.

82 Then Simon drew forth his army, and attacked the legion: for the horsemen were wearied: and they were discomfited by him, and fled.

83 And they that were scattered about the plain, fled into Azotus, and went into Bethdagon their idol's temple, there to save themselves.

84 But Jonathan set fire to Azotus, and the cities that were round about it, and took the spoils of them, and the temple of Dagon: and all them that were fled into it, he burnt with fire.

85 So they that were slain by the sword, with them that were burnt, were almost eight thousand men.

86 And Jonathan removed his army from thence, and camped against Ascalon: and they went out of the city to meet him with great honour.

87 And Jonathan returned into Jerusalem with his people, having many spoils.

88 And it came to pass: when Alexander the king heard these words, that he honoured Jonathan yet more.

89 And he sent him a buckle of gold, as the custom is, to be given to such as are of the royal blood. And he gave him Accaron and all the borders thereof in possession.

CHAPTER 11

Ptolemy invades the kingdom of Alexander: the latter is slain: and the former dies soon after. Demetrius honours Jonathan, and is rescued by the Jews from his own subjects in Antioch. Antiochus the younger favours Jonathan. His exploits in divers places.

AND ^sthe king of Egypt gathered together an army, like the sand that lieth upon the sea shore, and many ships: and he sought to get the kingdom of Alexander by deceit, and join it to his own kingdom.

2 And he went out into Syria with peaceable words, and they opened to him the cities, and met him: for king Alexander had ordered them to go forth to meet him, because he was his father in law.

3 Now when Ptolemee entered into the cities, he put garrisons of soldiers in every city.

4 And when he came near to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon that was burnt with fire, and Azotus, and the suburbs thereof that were destroyed, and the bodies that were cast abroad, and the graves of them that were slain in the battle, which they had made near the way.

5 And they told the king that Jonathan had done these things, to make him odious: but the king held his peace.

6 And Jonathan came to meet the king at Joppe with glory, and they saluted one another, and they lodged there.

7 And Jonathan went with the king as far as the river, called Eleutherus: and he returned into Jerusalem.

8 And king Ptolemee got the dominion of the cities by the sea side, even to Seleucia, and he devised evil designs against Alexander.

9 And he sent ambassadors to Demetrius, saying: Come, let us make a league between us, and I will give thee my daughter whom Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in the kingdom of thy father.

10 For I repent that I have given him my daughter: for he hath sought to kill me.

11 And he slandered him, because he coveted his kingdom.

12 And he took away his daughter, and gave her to Demetrius, and alienated himself from Alexander, and his enmities were made manifest.

13 And Ptolemee entered into Antioch, and set two crowns upon his head, that of Egypt, and that of Asia.

14 Now king Alexander was in Cilicia at that time: because they that were in those places had rebelled.

15 ^t And when Alexander heard of it, he came to give him battle, and king

Ptolemee brought forth his army, and met him with a strong power, and put him to flight.

16 And Alexander fled into Arabia, there to be protected: and king Ptolemee was exalted.

17 And Zabdiel the Arabian took off Alexander's head, and sent it to Ptolemee.

18 And king Ptolemee died the third day after: and they that were in the strong holds were destroyed by them that were within the camp.

19 ^u And Demetrius reigned in the hundred and sixty-seventh year.

20 In those days Jonathan gathered together them that were in Judea, to take the castle that was in Jerusalem: and they made many engines of war against it.

21 Then some wicked men that hated their own nation, went away to king Demetrius, and told him that Jonathan was besieging the castle.

22 And when he heard it, he was angry: and forthwith he came to Ptolemais, and wrote to Jonathan, that he should not besiege the castle, but should come to him in haste, and speak to him.

23 But when Jonathan heard this, he bade them besiege it still: and he chose some of the ancients of Israel, and of the priests, and put himself in danger.

24 And he took gold, and silver, and raiment, and many other presents, and went to the king to Ptolemais, and he found favour in his sight.

25 And certain wicked men of his nation made complaints against him.

26 And the king treated him as his predecessor had done before: and he exalted him in the sight of all his friends.

27 And he confirmed him in the high priesthood, and all the honours he had before, and he made him the chief of his friends.

28 And Jonathan requested of the king that he would make Judea free from tribute, and the three governments, and Samaria, and the confines thereof: and he promised him three hundred talents.

29 And the king consented: and he wrote letters to Jonathan of all these things to this effect.

30 King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting.

^t B. C. 145.

^u B. C. 145.

31 We send you here a copy of the letter, which we have written to Lasthenes our parent concerning you, that you might know it.

32 King Demetrius to Lasthenes his parent, greeting.

33 We have determined to do good to the nation of the Jews who are our friends, and keep the things that are just with us, for their good will which they bear towards us.

34 We have ratified therefore unto them all the borders of Judea, and the three cities, Apherema, Lydda, and Ramatha, which are added to Judea, out of Samaria, and all their confines, to be set apart to all them that sacrifice in Jerusalem, instead of the payments which the king received of them every year, and for the fruits of the land, and of the trees.

35 And as for other things that belonged to us of the tithes, and of the tributes, from this time we discharge them of them: the saltpans also, and the crowns that were presented to us.

36 We give all to them, and nothing hereof shall be revoked from this time forth and for ever.

37 Now therefore see that thou make a copy of these things, and let it be given to Jonathan, and set upon the holy mountain, in a conspicuous place.

38 And king Demetrius seeing that the land was quiet before him, and nothing resisted him, sent away all his forces, every man to his own place, except the foreign army, which he had drawn together from the islands of the nations: so all the troops of his fathers hated him.

39 Now there was one Tryphon who had been of Alexander's party before: who seeing that all the army murmured against Demetrius, went to Emalchuel the Arabian, who brought up Antiochus the son of Alexander.

40 And he pressed him much to deliver him to him, that he might be king in his father's place: and he told him all that Demetrius had done, and how his soldiers hated him. And he remained there many days.

41 And Jonathan sent to king Demetrius, desiring that he would cast out them that were in the castle in Jerusalem, and those that were in the strong holds: because they fought against Israel.

42 And Demetrius sent to Jonathan, saying: I will not only do this for thee, and for thy people, but I will greatly honour thee, and thy nation, when opportunity shall serve.

43 Now therefore thou shalt do well if thou send me men to help me: for all my army is gone from me.

44 And Jonathan sent him three thousand valiant men to Antioch: and they came to the king, and the king was very glad of their coming.

45 And they that were of the city assembled themselves together, to the number of a hundred and twenty thousand men, and would have killed the king.

46 And the king fled into the palace, and they of the city kept the passages of the city, and began to fight.

47 And the king called the Jews to his assistance: and they came to him all at once, and they all dispersed themselves through the city.

48 And they slew in that day a hundred thousand men, and they set fire to the city, and got many spoils that day, and delivered the king.

49 And they that were of the city saw that the Jews had got the city as they would: and they were discouraged in their minds, and cried to the king, making supplication, and saying:

50 Grant us peace, and let the Jews cease from assaulting us, and the city.

51 And they threw down their arms, and made peace, and the Jews were glorified in the sight of the king, and in the sight of all that were in his realm, and were renowned throughout the kingdom, and returned to Jerusalem with many spoils.

52 So king Demetrius sat in the throne of his kingdom: and the land was quiet before him.

53 And he falsified all whatsoever he had said, and alienated himself from Jonathan, and did not reward him according to the benefits he had received from him, but gave him great trouble.

54 And after this Tryphon returned, and with him Antiochus the young boy, who was made king, and put on the diadem.

55 And there assembled unto him all the hands which Demetrius had sent away, and they fought against Demetrius, who turned his back and fled.

56 And Tryphon took the elephants, and made himself master of Antioch.

57 And young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan, saying: I confirm thee in the high priesthood, and I appoint thee ruler over the four cities, and to be one of the king's friends.

58 And he sent him vessels of gold for his service, and he gave him leave to drink in gold, and to be clothed in purple, and to wear a golden buckle:

59 And he made his brother Simon governor from the borders of Tyre even to the confines of Egypt.

60 Then Jonathan went forth and passed through the cities beyond the river: and all the forces of Syria gathered themselves to him to help him, and he came to Ascalon, and they met him honourably out of the city.

61 And he went from thence to Gaza: and they that were in Gaza shut him out: and he besieged it, and burnt all the suburbs round about, and took the spoils.

62 And the men of Gaza made supplication to Jonathan, and he gave them the right hand: and he took their sons for hostages, and sent them to Jerusalem: and he went through the country as far as Damascus.

63 And Jonathan heard that the generals of Demetrius were come treacherously to Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great army, purposing to remove him from the affairs of the kingdom:

64 And he went against them: but left his brother Simon in the country.

65 And Simon encamped against Bethsura, and assulted it many days, and shut them up.

66 And they desired him to make peace, and he granted it them: and he cast them out from thence, and took the city, and placed a garrison in it.

67 And Jonathan, and his army encamped by the water of Genesar, and before it was light they were ready in the plain of Asor.

68 And behold the army of the strangers met him in the plain, and they laid an ambush for him in the mountains: but he went out against them.

69 And they that lay in ambush rose out of their places, and joined battle.

70 And all that were on Jonathan's side fled, and none was left of them, but Mathathias the son of Absalom, and Judas the son of Calphi, chief captain of the army.

71 And Jonathan rent his garments, and cast earth upon his head, and prayed.

72 And Jonathan turned again to them to battle, and he put them to flight, and they fought.

73 And they of his part that fled saw this, and they turned again to him, and they all with him pursued the enemies even to Cades to their own camp, and they came even thither.

74 And there fell of the aliens in that day three thousand men: and Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 12

Jonathan renews his league with the Romans and Lacedemonians. The forces of Demetrius flee away from him. He is deceived and made prisoner by Tryphon.

AND Jonathan saw that the time served him, and he chose certain men and sent them to Rome, to confirm and to renew the amity with them:

2 And he sent letters to the Spartans, and to other places according to the same form.

3 And they went to Rome, and entered into the senate house, and said: Jonathan the high priest, and the nation of the Jews have sent us to renew the amity, and alliance as it was before.

4 And they gave them letters to their governors in every place, to conduct them into the land of Juda with peace.

5 And this is a copy of the letters which Jonathan wrote to the Spartans:

6 Jonathan the high priest, and the ancients of the nation, and the priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews, to the Spartans, their brethren, greeting.

7 There were letters sent long ago to Onias the high priest from Arius who reigned then among you, to signify that you are our brethren, as the copy here underwritten doth specify.

8 And Onias received the ambassador with honour: and received the letters wherein there was mention made of the alliance, and amity.

9 We, though we needed none of these things, having for our comfort the holy books that are in our hands,

10 Chose rather to send to you to renew the brotherhood and friendship, lest we should become strangers to you altogether: for there is a long time passed since you sent to us.

11 We therefore at all times without ceasing, both in our festivals, and other days, wherein it is convenient, remember you in the sacrifices that we offer, and in our observances, as it is meet, and becoming to remember brethren.

12 And we rejoice at your glory.

13 But we have had many troubles and wars on every side, and the kings that are round about us, have fought against us.

14 But we would not be troublesome to you, nor to the rest of our allies and friends in these wars.

15 For we have had help from heaven, and we have been delivered, and our enemies are humbled.

16 We have chosen therefore Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, and have sent them to the Romans to renew with them the former amity and alliance.

17 And we have commanded them to go also to you, and to salute you, and to deliver you our letters, concerning the renewing of our brotherhood.

18 And now you shall do well to give us an answer hereto.

19 And this is the copy of the letter which he had sent to Onias:

20 Arius king of the Spartans to Onias the high priest, greeting.

21 It is found in writing concerning the Spartans, and the Jews, that they are brethren, and that they are of the stock of Abraham.

22 And now since this is come to our knowledge, you do well to write to us of your prosperity.

23 And we also have written back to you: That our cattle, and our possessions are yours: and yours, ours. We therefore have commanded that these things should be told you.

24 Now Jonathan heard that the generals of Demetrius were come again with a greater army than before to fight against him.

25 So he went out from Jerusalem, and met them in the land of Amath: for he gave them no time to enter into his country.

26 And he sent spies into their camp, and they came back and brought him word that they designed to come upon them in the night.

27 And when the sun was set, Jonathan commanded his men to watch, and to be in arms all night long ready to fight, and he set sentinels round about the camp.

28 And the enemies heard that Jonathan and his men were ready for battle, and they were struck with fear, and dread in their heart: and they kindled fires in their camp.

29 But Jonathan and they that were with him knew it not till the morning: for they saw the lights burning.

30 And Jonathan pursued after them, but overtook them not: for they had passed the river Eleutherus.

31 And Jonathan turned upon the Arabians that are called Zabadeans: and he defeated them, and took the spoils of them.

32 And he went forward, and came to Damascus, and passed through all that country.

33 Simon also went forth, and came as far as Ascalon, and the neighbouring fortresses, and he turned aside to Joppe, and took possession of it, 34 (For he heard that they designed to deliver the hold to them that took part with Demetrius,) and he put a garrison there to keep it.

35 And Jonathan came back, and called together the ancients of the people, and he took a resolution with them to build fortresses in Judea, 36 And to build up walls in Jerusalem, and raise a mount between the castle and the city, to separate it from the city, that so it might have no communication, and that they might neither buy nor sell.

37 And they came together to build up the city: for the wall that was upon the brook towards the east was broken down, and he repaired that which is called Caphetetha:

38 And Simon built Adiada in Sephela, and fortified it, and set up gates and bars.

39 ~ Now when Tryphon had conceived a design to make himself king of Asia, and to take the crown, and to stretch out his hand against king Antiochus:

40 Fearing lest Jonathan would not suffer him, but would fight against him; he sought to seize upon him, and to kill him. So he rose up and came to Bethsan.

41 And Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand men chosen for battle, and came to Bethsan.

42 Now when Tryphon saw that Jonathan came with a great army, he durst not stretch forth his hand against him, 43 But received him with honour, and commended him to all his friends, and gave him presents: and he commanded his troops to obey him, as himself.

44 And he said to Jonathan: Why hast thou troubled all the people, whereas we have no war?

45 Now therefore send them back to their own houses: and choose thee a few men that may be with thee, and come with me to Ptolemais, and I will deliver it to thee, and the rest of the strong holds, and the army, and all that have any charge, and I will return and go away: for this is the cause of my coming.

46 And Jonathan believed him, and did as he said: and sent away his army, and they departed into the land of Juda:

47 But he kept with him three thousand men: of whom he sent two thousand into Galilee, and one thousand went with him.

48 Now as soon as Jonathan entered into Ptolemais, they of Ptolemais shut the gates of the city, and took him: and all them that came in with him they slew with the sword.

49 Then Tryphon sent an army and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain to destroy all Jonathan's company.

50 But they, when they understood that Jonathan and all that were with him were taken and slain, encouraged one another, and went out ready for battle.

51 Then they that had come after them, seeing that they stood for their lives, returned back.

52 Whereupon they all came peaceably into the land of Juda. And they bewailed Jonathan, and them that had been with him, exceedingly: and Israel mourned with great lamentation.

53 Then all the heathens that were round about them, sought to destroy them. For they said:

54 They have no prince, nor any to help them: now therefore let us make war upon them, and take away the memory of them from amongst men.

CHAPTER 13

Simon is made captain general in the room of his brother. Jonathan is slain by Tryphon. Simon is favoured by Demetrius: he taketh Gaza, and the castle of Jerusalem.

NOW Simon heard that Tryphon was gathering together a very great army, to invade the land of Juda, and to destroy it.

2 And seeing that the people was in dread, and in fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and assembled the people:

3 And exhorted them, saying: You know what great battles I and my brethren, and the house of my father, have fought for the laws, and the sanctuary, and the distresses that we have seen:

4 By reason whereof all my brethren have lost their lives for Israel's sake, and I am left alone.

5 And now far be it from me to spare my life in any time of trouble: for I am not better than my brethren.

6 I will avenge then my nation and the sanctuary, and our children, and wives: for all the heathens are gathered together to destroy us out of mere malice.

7 And the spirit of the people was enkindled as soon as they heard these words.

8 And they answered with a loud voice, saying: Thou art our leader in the place of Judas, and Jonathan thy brother.

9 Fight thou our battles, and we will do whatsoever thou shalt say to us.

10 So gathering together all the men of war, he made haste to finish all the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it round about.

11 And he sent Jonathan the son of Absalom, and with him a new army into Joppe, and he cast out them that were in it, and himself remained there.

12 And Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great army, to invade the land of Juda, and Jonathan was with him in custody.

13 But Simon pitched in Addus, over against the plain.

14 And when Tryphon understood that Simon was risen up in the place of his brother Jonathan, and that he meant to join battle with him, he sent messengers to him,

15 Saying: We have detained thy brother Jonathan for the money that he owed in the king's account, by reason of the affairs which he had the management of.

16 But now send a hundred talents of silver, and his two sons for hostages, that when he is set at liberty he may not revolt from us, and we will release him.

17 Now Simon knew that he spoke deceitfully to him, nevertheless he ordered the money, and the children to be sent: lest he should bring upon himself a great hatred of the people of Israel, who might have said:

18 Because he sent not the money, and the children, therefore is he lost.

19 So he sent the children, and the hundred talents: and he lied, and did not let Jonathan go.

20 And after this Tryphon entered within the country, to destroy it: and they went about by the way that leadeth to Ador: and Simon and his army marched to every place whithersoever they went.

21 And they that were in the castle, sent messengers to Tryphon, that he should make haste to come through the desert, and send them victuals.

22 And Tryphon made ready all his horsemen to come that night: but there fell a very great snow, and he came not into the country of Galaad.

23 And when he approached to Bas-cama, he slew Jonathan and his sons there.

24 And Tryphon returned, and went into his own country.

25 And Simon sent, and took the bones of Jonathan his brother, and buried them in Modin, in the city of his fathers.

26 And all Israel bewailed him with great lamentation: and they mourned for him many days.

27 And Simon built over the sepulchre of his father and of his brethren, a building lofty to the sight, of polished stone behind and before:

28 And he set up seven pyramids one against another for his father and his mother, and his four brethren:

29 And round about these he set great pillars: and upon the pillars arms for a perpetual memory: and by the arms ships carved, which might be seen by all that sailed on the sea.

30 This is the sepulchre that he made in Modin even unto this day.

31 But Tryphon when he was upon a journey with the young king Antiochus, treacherously slew him.

32 And he reigned in his place, and put on the crown of Asia: and brought great evils upon the land.

33 And Simon built up the strong holds of Judea, fortifying them with high towers, and great walls, and gates, and bars: and he stored up victuals in the fortresses.

34 And Simon chose men and sent to king Demetrius, to the end that he should grant an immunity to the land: for all that Tryphon did was to spoil.

35 And king Demetrius in answer to this request, wrote a letter in this manner:

36 King Demetrius to Simon the high priest, and friend of kings, and to the ancients, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting.

37 The golden crown, and the palm, which you sent, we have received: and we are ready to make a firm peace with you, and to write to the king's chief officers to release you the things that we have released.

38 For all that we have decreed in your favour, shall stand in force. The strong holds that you have built, shall be your own.

39 And as for any oversight or fault committed unto this day, we forgive it, and the crown which you owed: and if any other thing were taxed in Jerusalem, now let it not be taxed.

40 And if any of you be fit to be enrolled among ours, let them be enrolled, and let there be peace between us.

CHAP. 13. Ver. 20. Simon and his army marched to every place whithersoever they went: that is, whithersoever Tryphon and his horsemen went in order to oppose them.

41 ^aIn the year one hundred and seventy the yoke of the Gentiles was taken off from Israel.

42 And the people of Israel began to write in the instruments, and public records, The first year under Simon the high priest, the great captain and prince of the Jews.

43 In those days Simon besieged Gaza, and camped round about it, and he made engines, and set them to the city, and he struck one tower, and took it.

44 And they that were within the engine leaped into the city: and there was a great uproar in the city.

45 And they that were in the city went up with their wives and children upon the wall, with their garments rent, and they cried with a loud voice, beseeching Simon to grant them peace.

46 And they said: Deal not with us according to our evil deeds, but according to thy mercy.

47 And Simon being moved, did not destroy them: but yet he cast them out of the city, and cleansed the houses wherein there had been idols, and then he entered into it with hymns, blessing the Lord.

48 And having cast out of it all uncleanness, he placed in it men that should observe the law: and he fortified it, and made it his habitation.

49 But they that were in the castle of Jerusalem were hindered from going out and coming into the country, and from buying and selling: and they were straitened with hunger, and many of them perished through famine.

50 And they cried to Simon for peace, and he granted it to them: and he cast them out from thence, and cleansed the castle from uncleannesses.

51 ^bAnd they entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month, in the year one hundred and seventy-one, with thanksgiving, and branches of palm trees, and harps, and cymbals and psalteries, and hymns, and canticles, because the great enemy was destroyed out of Israel.

52 And he ordained that these days should be kept every year with gladness.

53 And he fortified the mountain of the temple that was near the castle, and he dwelt there himself, and they that were with him.

54 And Simon saw that John his son was a valiant man for war: and he made him captain of all the forces: and he dwelt in Gazara.

CHAPTER 14

Demetrius is taken by the king of Persia. Judea flourishes under the government of Simon.

IN ^cthe year one hundred and seventy-two, king Demetrius assembled his army, and went into Media to get him succours to fight against Tryphon.

2 And Arsaces the king of Persia and Media heard that Demetrius was entered within his borders, and he sent one of his princes to take him alive, and bring him to him.

3 And he went and defeated the army of Demetrius: and took him, and brought him to Arsaces, and he put him into custody.

4 And all the land of Juda was at rest all the days of Simon, and he sought the good of his nation: and his power, and his glory pleased them well all his days.

5 And with all his glory he took Joppe for a haven, and made an entrance to the isles of the sea.

6 And he enlarged the bounds of his nation, and made himself master of the country.

7 And he gathered together a great number of captives, and had the dominion of Gazara, and of Bethsura, and of the castle: and took away all uncleanness out of it and there was none that resisted him.

8 And every man tilled his land with peace: and the land of Juda yielded her increase, and the trees of the fields their fruit.

9 The ancient men sat all in the streets, and treated together of the good things of the land, and the young men put on them glory, and the robes of war.

10 And he provided victuals for the cities, and he appointed that they should be furnished with ammunition, so that the fame of his glory was renowned even to the end of the earth.

11 He made peace in the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy.

12 And every man sat under his vine,

^a B. C. 143.

^b B. C. 142.—^c B. C. 141.

and under his fig tree: and there was none to make them afraid.

13 There was none left in the land to fight against them: kings were discomfited in those days.

14 And he strengthened all those of his people that were brought low, and he sought the law, and took away every unjust and wicked man.

15 He glorified the sanctuary, and multiplied the vessels of the holy places.

16 And it was heard at Rome, and as far as Sparta, that Jonathan was dead: and they were very sorry.

17 But when they heard that Simon his brother was made high priest in his place, and was possessed of all the country, and the cities therein:

18 They wrote to him in tables of brass, to renew the friendship and alliance which they had made with Judas, and with Jonathan his brethren.

19 And they were read before the assembly in Jerusalem. And this is the copy of the letters that the Spartans sent.

20 The princes and the cities of the Spartans to Simon the high priest, and to the ancients, and the priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews their brethren, greeting.

21 The ambassadors that were sent to our people, have told us of your glory, and honour, and joy: and we rejoice at their coming.

22 And we registered what was said by them in the councils of the people in this manner: Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, ambassadors of the Jews, came to us to renew the former friendship with us.

23 And it pleased the people to receive the men honourably, and to put a copy of their words in the public records, to be a memorial to the people of the Spartans. And we have written a copy of them to Simon the high priest.

24 And after this Simon sent Numenius to Rome, with a great shield of gold of the weight of a thousand pounds, to confirm the league with them. And when the people of Rome had heard 25 These words, they said: What thanks shall we give to Simon, and his sons?

26 For he hath restored his brethren, and hath driven away in fight the enemies of Israel from them: and they decreed him liberty, and registered it in tables of brass, and set it upon pillars in mount Sion.

27 And this is a copy of the writing: The eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the year ^done hundred and seventy-two, being the third year under Simon the high priest at Asaramel,

28 In a great assembly of the priests, and of the people, and the princes of the nation, and the ancients of the country, these things were notified: Forasmuch as there have often been wars in our country,

29 And Simon the son of Mathathias of the children of Jarib, and his brethren have put themselves in danger, and resisted the enemies of their nation, for the maintenance of their holy places, and the law: and have raised their nation to great glory.

30 And Jonathan gathered together his nation, and was made their high priest, and he was laid to his people.

31 And their enemies desired to tread down and destroy their country, and to stretch forth their hands against their holy places.

32 Then Simon resisted and fought for his nation, and laid out much of his money, and armed the valiant men of his nation, and gave them wages:

33 And he fortified the cities of Judea, and Bethsura that lieth in the borders of Judea, where the armour of the enemies was before: and he placed there a garrison of Jews.

34 And he fortified Joppe which lieth by the sea: and Gazara, which bordereth upon Azotus, wherein the enemies dwelt before, and he placed Jews here: and furnished them with all things convenient for their reparation.

35 And the people seeing the acts of Simon, and to what glory he meant to bring his nation, made him their prince, and high priest, because he had done all these things, and for the justice, and faith, which he kept to his nation, and for that he sought by all means to advance his people.

36 And in his days things prospered in his hands, so that the heathens were taken away out of their country, and they also that were in the city of David in Jerusalem in the castle, out of which they issued forth, and profaned all places round about the sanctuary, and did much evil to its purity.

37 And he placed therein Jews for the defence of the country, and of the city, and he raised up the walls of Jerusalem.

38 And king Demetrius confirmed him in the high priesthood.

39 According to these things he made him his friend, and glorified him with great glory.

40 For he had heard that the Romans had called the Jews their friends, and confederates, and brethren, and that they had received Simon's ambassadors with honour:

41 And that the Jews, and their priests, had consented that he should be their prince, and high priest for ever, till there should arise a faithful prophet:

42 And that he should be chief over them, and that he should have the charge of the sanctuary, and that he should appoint rulers over their works, and over the country, and over the armour, and over the strong holds.

43 And that he should have care of the holy places: and that he should be obeyed by all, and that all the writings in the country should be made in his name: and that he should be clothed with purple, and gold:

44 And that it should not be lawful for any of the people, or of the priests, to disannul any of these things, or to gainsay his words, or to call together an assembly in the country without him: or to be clothed with purple, or to wear a buckle of gold:

45 And whosoever shall do otherwise, or shall make void any of these things shall be punished.

46 And it pleased all the people to establish Simon, and to do according to these words.

47 And Simon accepted thereof, and was well pleased to execute the office of the high priesthood, and to be captain, and prince of the nation of the Jews, and of the priests, and to be chief over all.

48 And they commanded that this writing should be put in tables of brass, and that they should be set up within the compass of the sanctuary, in a conspicuous place:

49 And that a copy thereof should be put in the treasury, that Simon and his sons may have it.

CHAPTER 15

Antiochus son of Demetrius honours Simon. The Romans write to divers nations in favour of the Jews. Antiochus quarrels with Simon, and sends troops to annoy him.

AND ^e king Antiochus the son of Demetrius sent letters from the isles of the sea to Simon the priest, and prince of the nation of the Jews, and to all the people:

2 And the contents were these: King Antiochus to Simon the high priest, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting.

3 Forasmuch as certain pestilent men have usurped the kingdom of our fathers, and my purpose is to challenge the kingdom, and to restore it to its former estate: and I have chosen a great army, and have built ships of war.

4 And I design to go through the country that I may take revenge of them that have destroyed our country, and that have made many cities desolate in my realm.

5 Now therefore I confirm unto thee all the oblations which all the kings before me remitted to thee, and what other gifts soever they remitted to thee:

6 And I give thee leave to coin thy own money in thy country:

7 And let Jerusalem be holy and free, and all the armour that hath been made, and the fortresses which thou hast built, and which thou keepest in thy hands, let them remain to thee.

8 And all that is due to the king, and what should be the king's hereafter, from this present and for ever, is forgiven thee.

9 And when we shall have recovered our kingdom, we will glorify thee, and thy nation, and the temple with great glory, so that your glory shall be made manifest in all the earth.

10 In the year one hundred and seventy-four ^f Antiochus entered into the land of his fathers, and all the forces assembled to him, so that few were left with Tryphon.

11 And king Antiochus pursued after him, and he fled along by the sea coast and came to Dora.

12 For he perceived that evils were gathered together upon him, and his troops had forsaken him.

13 And Antiochus camped above Dora with a hundred and twenty thousand men of war, and eight thousand horsemen:

14 And he invested the city, and the ships drew near by sea: and they annoyed the city by land, and by sea, and suffered none to come in, or to go out.

15 And Numenius, and they that had been with him, came from the city of Rome, having letters written to the kings, and countries, the contents whereof were these:

16 Lucius the consul of the Romans, to king Ptolemee, greeting.

17 The ambassadors of the Jews our friends came to us, to renew the former friendship and alliance, being sent from Simon the high priest, and the people of the Jews.

18 And they brought also a shield of gold of a thousand pounds.

19 It hath seemed good therefore to us to write to the kings, and countries, that they should do them no harm, nor fight against them, their cities, or countries: and that they should give no aid to them that fight against them.

20 And it hath seemed good to us to receive the shield of them.

21 If therefore any pestilent men are fled out of their country to you, deliver them to Simon the high priest, that he may punish them according to their law.

22 These same things were written to king Demetrius, and to Attalus, and to Ariarathes, and to Arsaces, 23 And to all the countries; and to Lampsacus, and to the Spartans, and to Delus, and Myndus, and Sicyon, and Caria, and Samus, and Pamphylia, and Lycia, and Alicarnassus, and Cos, and Side, and Aradus, and Rhodes, and Phase-lis, and Gortyna, and Gnidus, and Cyprus, and Cyrene.

24 And they wrote a copy thereof to Simon the high priest, and to the people of the Jews.

25 But king Antiochus moved his camp to Dora the second time, assaulting it continually, and making engines: and he shut up Tryphon, that he could not go out.

26 And Simon sent to him two thousand chosen men to aid him, silver also, and gold, and abundance of furniture.

27 And he would not receive them, but broke all the covenant that he had made with him before, and alienated himself from him.

28 And he sent to him Athenobius one of his friends, to treat with him, saying: You hold Joppe, and Gazara, and the castle that is in Jerusalem, which are cities of my kingdom:

29 Their borders you have wasted, and you have made great havock in the land, and have got the dominion of many places in my kingdom.

30 Now therefore deliver up the cities that you have taken, and the tributes of the places whereof you have gotten the dominion without the borders of Judea.

31 But if not, give me for them five hundred talents of silver, and for the havock that you have made, and the tributes of the cities other five hundred talents: or else we will come and fight against you.

32 So Athenobius the king's friend came to Jerusalem, and saw the glory of Simon and his magnificence in gold, and silver, and his great equipage, and he was astonished, and told him the king's words.

33 And Simon answered him, and said to him: We have neither taken other men's land, neither do we hold that which is other men's: but the inheritance of our fathers, which was for some time unjustly possessed by our enemies.

34 But we having opportunity claim the inheritance of our fathers.

35 And as to thy complaints concerning Joppe and Gazara, they did great harm to the people, and to our country: yet for these we will give a hundred talents. And Athenobius answered him not a word:

36 But returning in a rage to the king, made report to him of these words, and of the glory of Simon, and of all that he

CHAP. 15. Ver. 16. Ptolemee. Surnamed Phys-con, brother and successor to Philometor.

Ver. 22. Attalus, &c. Attalus was king of Per-gamus; Ariarathes was king of Cappadocia; and Arsaces was king of the Parthians.

had seen, and the king was exceeding angry.

37 And Tryphon fled away by ship to Orthosias.

38 And the king appointed Cendebeus captain of the sea coast, and gave him an army of footmen and horsemen.

39 And he commanded him to march with his army towards Judea: and he commanded him to build up Gedor, and to fortify the gates of the city, and to war against the people. But the king himself pursued after Tryphon.

40 And Cendebeus came to Jamnia, and began to provoke the people, and to ravage Judea, and to take the people prisoners, and to kill, and to build Gedor.

41 And he placed there horsemen, and an army: that they might issue forth, and make incursions upon the ways of Judea, as the king had commanded him.

CHAPTER 16

The sons of Simon defeat the troops of Antiochus. Simon with two of his sons are treacherously murdered by Ptolemee his son in law.

THEN John came up from Gazara, and told Simon his father what Cendebeus had done against their people.

2 And Simon called his two eldest sons, Judas and John, and said to them: I and my brethren, and my father's house, have fought against the enemies of Israel from our youth even to this day: and things have prospered so well in our hands that we have delivered Israel oftentimes.

3 And now I am old, but be you instead of me, and my brethren, and go out, and fight for our nation: and the help from heaven be with you.

4 Then he chose out of the country twenty thousand fighting men, and horsemen, and they went forth against Cendebeus: and they rested in Modin.

5 And they arose in the morning, and went into the plain: and behold a very great army of footmen and horsemen came against them, and there was a running river between them.

6 And he and his people pitched their camp over against them, and he saw that the people were afraid to go over the river, so he went over first: then the men seeing him, passed over after him.

7 And he divided the people, and set the horsemen in the midst of the footmen: but the horsemen of the enemies were very numerous.

8 And they sounded the holy trumpets: and Cendebeus and his army were put to flight: and there fell many of them wounded, and the rest fled into the strong hold.

9 At that time Judas John's brother was wounded: but John pursued after them, till he came to Cedron, which he had built:

10 And they fled even to the towers that were in the fields of Azotus, and he burnt them with fire. And there fell of them two thousand men, and he returned into Judea in peace.

11 Now Ptolemee the son of Abobus was appointed captain in the plain of Jericho, and he had abundance of silver and gold, 12 For he was son in law of the high priest.

13 And his heart was lifted up, and he designed to make himself master of the country, and he purposed treachery against Simon, and his sons, to destroy them.

14 Now Simon, as he was going through the cities that were in the country of Judea, and taking care for the good ordering of them, went down to Jericho, he and Mathathias and Judas his sons, in the year ^h one hundred and seventy-seven, the eleventh month: the same is the month Sabath.

15 And the son of Abobus received them deceitfully into a little fortress, that is called Doch which he had built: and he made them a great feast, and hid men there.

16 And when Simon and his sons had drunk plentifully, Ptolemee and his men rose up and took their weapons, and entered into the banqueting place, and slew him, and his two sons, and some of his servants.

17 And he committed a great treachery in Israel, and rendered evil for good.

18 And Ptolemee wrote these things, h B. C. 135.

CHAP. 16. Ver. 1. John. He was afterwards surnamed Hircanus, and succeeded his father in both his dignities of high priest and prince. He conquered the Edomites, and obliged them to a conformity with the Jews in religion; and destroyed the schismatical temple of the Samaritans.

Ver. 6. He. Viz., John.

Ver. 9. Cedron. Otherwise called Gedor, the city that Cendebeus was fortifying.

and sent to the king that he should send him an army to aid him, and he would deliver him the country, and their cities, and tributes.

19 And he sent others to Gazara to kill John: and to the tribunes he sent letters to come to him, and that he would give them silver, and gold, and gifts.

20 And he sent others to take Jerusalem, and the mountain of the temple.

21 Now one running before, told John in Gazara, that his father and his brethren were slain, and that he hath sent men to kill thee also.

22 But when he heard it he was exceedingly afraid: and he apprehended the men that came to kill him, and he put them to death: for he knew that they sought to make him away.

23 And as concerning the rest of the acts of John, and his wars, and the worthy deeds, which he bravely achieved, and the building of the walls, which he made, and the things that he did:

24 Behold these are written in the book of the days of his priesthood, from the time that he was made high priest after his father.

THE SECOND BOOK OF MACHABEES

This second book of MACHABEES is not a continuation of the history contained in the first: nor does it come down so low as the first does: but relates many of the same facts more at large, and adds other remarkable particulars, omitted in the first book, relating to the state of the Jews, as well before as under the persecution of ANTIOCHUS. The author, who is not the same with that of the first book, has given (as we learn from chap. 2. 20, &c.) a short abstract of what JASON of Cyrene had written in the five volumes, concerning JUDAS and his brethren. He wrote in Greek, and begins with two letters, sent by the Jews of Jerusalem to their brethren in Egypt.

CHAPTER 1

Letters of the Jews of Jerusalem to them that were in Egypt. They give thanks for their delivery from Antiochus: and exhort their brethren to keep the feast of the dedication of the altar, and of the miraculous fire.

TO the brethren the Jews that are throughout Egypt, the brethren, the Jews that are in Jerusalem, and in the land of Judea, send health, and good peace.

2 May God be gracious to you, and remember his covenant that he made with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants:

3 And give you all a heart to worship him, and to do his will with a great heart, and a willing mind.

4 May he open your heart in his law, and in his commandments, and send you peace.

5 May he hear your prayers, and be reconciled unto you, and never forsake you in the evil time.

6 And now here we are praying for you.

7 When Demetrius reigned, in the year j one hundred and sixty-nine, we Jews wrote to you, in the trouble, and violence, that came upon us in those years, after Jason withdrew himself from the holy land, and from the kingdom.

8 They burnt the gate, and shed innocent blood: then we prayed to the Lord, and were heard, and we offered sacrifices, and fine flour, and lighted the lamps, and set forth the loaves.

9 And now celebrate ye the days of Scenopagia in the month of Casleu.

10 In the year k one hundred and eighty-eight, the people that is at Jerusalem, and in Judea, and the senate, and Judas, to Aristobolus, the preceptor of king Ptolemee, who is of the stock of the anointed priests, and to the Jews that are in Egypt, health and welfare.

j B. C. 143.—k B. C. 125.

CHAP. 1. Ver. 9. Scenopagia. Viz., the Encenia, or feast of the dedication of the altar called here

Scenopagia, or feast of tabernacles, from being celebrated with the like solemnity.

11 Having been delivered by God out of great dangers, we give him great thanks, forasmuch as we have been in war with such a king.

12 For he made numbers of men swarm out of Persia that have fought against us, and the holy city.

13 For when the leader himself was in Persia, and with him a very great army, he fell in the temple of Nanea, being deceived by the counsel of the priests of Nanea.

14 For Antiochus, with his friends, came to the place as though he would marry her, and that he might receive great sums of money under the title of a dowry.

15 And when the priests of Nanea had set it forth, and he with a small company had entered into the compass of the temple, they shut the temple,

16 When Antiochus was come in: and opening a secret entrance of the temple, they cast stones and slew the leader, and them that were with him, and hewed them in pieces, and cutting off their heads they threw them forth.

17 Blessed be God in all things, who hath delivered up the wicked.

18 Therefore whereas we purpose to keep the purification of the temple on the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu, we thought it necessary to signify it to you: that you also may keep the day of Scenopegia, and the day of the fire, that was given when Nehemias offered sacrifice, after the temple and the altar was built.

19 For when our fathers were led into Persia, the priests that then were worshippers of God took privately the fire from the altar, and hid it in a valley where there was a deep pit without water, and there they kept it safe, so that the place was unknown to all men.

20 But when many years had passed, and it pleased God that Nehemias should be sent by the king of Persia, he sent some of the posterity of those priests that had hid it, to seek for the fire: and as they told us, they found no fire, but thick water.

21 Then he bade them draw it up, and bring it to him: and the priest Nehemias commanded the sacrifices that were laid on, to be sprinkled with the same water, both the wood, and the things that were laid upon it.

22 And when this was done, and the time came that the sun shone out, which before was in a cloud, there was a great fire kindled, so that all wondered.

23 And all the priests made prayer, while the sacrifice was consuming, Jonathan beginning, and the rest answering.

24 And the prayer of Nehemias was after this manner: O Lord God, Creator of all things, dreadful and strong, just and merciful, who alone art the good king,

25 Who alone art gracious, who alone art just, and almighty, and eternal, who deliverest Israel from all evil, who didst choose the fathers and didst sanctify them:

26 Receive the sacrifice for all thy people Israel, and preserve thy own portion, and sanctify it.

27 Gather together our scattered people, deliver them that are slaves to the Gentiles, and look upon them that are despised and abhorred: that the Gentiles may know that thou art our God.

28 Punish them that oppress us, and that treat us injuriously with pride.

29 Establish thy people in thy holy place, ¹as Moses hath spoken.

30 And the priests sung hymns till the sacrifice was consumed.

31 And when the sacrifice was consumed, Nehemias commanded the water that was left to be poured out upon the great stones.

32 Which being done, there was kindled a flame from them: but it was consumed by the light that shined from the altar.

33 And when this matter became public, it was told to the king of Persia, that in the place where the priests that were led away, had hid the fire, there appeared

¹ Deut. 30. 3 and 5; Infra 2. 18.

Ver. 11. Such a king. Viz., Antiochus Sidetes, who began to make war upon the Jews, whilst Simon was yet alive. 1 Mac. 15. 39. And afterwards besieged Jerusalem under John Hircanus. So that the Judas here mentioned, ver. 10, is not Judas Machabeus, who was dead long before the year 188 of the kingdom of the Greeks, for he died in the year 146 of that epoch, (see above, 1 Mac. chap. 2., ver.

70, also the note on chap. 1., ver. 2,) but either Judas the eldest son of John Hircanus, or Judas the Essene, renowned for the gift of prophecy, who flourished about that time.

Ver. 13. Nanea. A Persian goddess, which some have taken for Diana, others for Venus.

Ver. 19. Persia. Babylonia, called here Persia, from being afterwards a part of the Persian empire.

water, with which Nehemias and they that were with him had purified the sacrifices.

34 And the king considering, and diligently examining the matter, made a temple for it, that he might prove what had happened.

35 And when he had proved it, he gave the priests many goods, and divers presents, and he took and distributed them to them with his own hand.

36 And Nehemias called this place Nephthar, which is interpreted purification. But many call it Nephi.

CHAPTER 2

A continuation of the second letter. Of Jeremias' hiding the ark at the time of the captivity. The author's preface.

NOW it is found in the descriptions of Jeremias the prophet, that he commanded them that went into captivity, to take the fire, as it hath been signified, and how he gave charge to them that were carried away into captivity.

2 And how he gave them the law that they should not forget the commandments of the Lord, and that they should not err in their minds, seeing the idols of gold, and silver, and the ornaments of them.

3 And with other such like speeches, he exhorted them that they would not remove the law from their heart.

4 It was also contained in the same writing, how the prophet, being warned by God, commanded that the tabernacle and the ark should accompany him, till he came forth to the mountain ^m where Moses went up, and saw the inheritance of God.

5 And when Jeremias came thither he found a hollow cave: and he carried in thither the tabernacle, and the ark, and the altar of incense, and so stopped the door.

6 Then some of them that followed him, came up to mark the place: but they could not find it.

7 And when Jeremias perceived it, he blamed them, saying: The place shall be unknown, till God gather together the congregation of the people, and receive them to mercy.

8 And then the Lord will shew these things, and the majesty of the Lord shall appear, and there shall be a cloud as it was also shewed to Moses, ⁿ and he shewed it when Solomon prayed that the place might be sanctified to the great God.

9 For he treated wisdom in a magnificent manner: and like a wise man, he offered the sacrifice of the dedication, and of the finishing of the temple.

10 ^o And as Moses prayed to the Lord, and fire came down from heaven, and consumed the holocaust: ^p so Solomon also prayed, and fire came down from heaven and consumed the holocaust.

11 And Moses said: ^q Because the sin offering was not eaten, it was consumed.

12 So Solomon also celebrated the dedication eight days.

13 And these same things were set down in the memoirs and commentaries of Nehemias: and how he made a library, and gathered together out of the countries, the books both of the prophets, and of David, and the epistles of the kings, and concerning the holy gifts.

14 And in like manner Judas also gathered together all such things as were lost by the war we had, and they are in our possession.

15 Wherefore if you want these things, send some that may fetch them to you.

16 As we are then about to celebrate the purification, we have written unto you: and you shall do well, if you keep the same days.

17 And we hope that God who hath delivered his people, and hath rendered to all the inheritance, and the kingdom, and the priesthood, and the sanctuary, 18 ^r As he promised in the law, will shortly have mercy upon us, and will gather us together from every land under heaven into the holy place.

19 For he hath delivered us out of great perils, and hath cleansed the place.

20 Now as concerning Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the purification of ^m Deut. 34. 1.—ⁿ 3 Kings 8. 11; 2 Par. 6. 14.

^o Lev. 9. 24.

^p 2 Par. 7. 1.—^q Lev. 10. 16 and 17.
^r Deut. 30. 3 and 5; Supra 1. 29.

Ver. 34. A temple. That is, an enclosure, or a wall round about the place where the fire was hid, to separate it from profane uses, to the end that it might be respected as a holy place.

CHAP. 2. Ver. 1. The descriptions. That is, the records or memoirs of Jeremias, a work that is now lost.

Ver. 16. The purification. That is, the feast of the purifying or cleansing of the temple.

the great temple, and the dedication of the altar:

21 As also the wars against Antiochus the Illustrious, and his son Eupator:

22 And the manifestations that came from heaven to them, that behaved themselves manfully on the behalf of the Jews, so that, being but a few, they made themselves masters of the whole country, and put to flight the barbarous multitude:

23 And recovered again the most renowned temple in all the world, and delivered the city, and restored the laws that were abolished, the Lord with all clemency shewing mercy to them.

24 And all such things as have been comprised in five books by Jason of Cyrene, we have attempted to abridge in one book.

25 For considering the multitude of books, and the difficulty that they find that desire to undertake the narrations of histories, because of the multitude of the matter,

26 We have taken care for those indeed that are willing to read, that it might be a pleasure of mind: and for the studious, that they may more easily commit to memory: and that all that read might receive profit.

27 And as to ourselves indeed, in undertaking this work of abridging, we have taken in hand no easy task, yea rather a business full of watching and sweat.

28 But as they that prepare a feast, and seek to satisfy the will of others: for the sake of many, we willingly undergo the labour.

29 Leaving to the authors the exact handling of every particular, and as for ourselves, according to the plan proposed, studying to be brief.

30 For as the master builder of a new house must have care of the whole building: but he that taketh care to paint it, must seek out fit things for the adorning of it: so must it be judged for us.

31 For to collect all that is to be known, to put the discourse in order, and curiously to discuss every particular point, is the duty of the author of a history:

32 But to pursue brevity of speech, and to avoid nice declarations of things, is to be granted to him that maketh an abridgment.

33 Here then we will begin the narration: let this be enough by way of a preface: for it is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.

CHAPTER 3

Heliodorus is sent by king Seleucus to take away the treasures deposited in the temple. He is struck by God, and healed by the prayers of the high priest.

THEREFORE when the holy city was inhabited with all peace, and the laws as yet were very well kept, because of the godliness of Onias the high priest, and the hatred his soul had of evil,

2 It came to pass that even the kings themselves, and the princes esteemed the place worthy of the highest honour, and glorified the temple with very great gifts:

3 So that Seleucus king of Asia allowed out of his revenues all the charges belonging to the ministry of the sacrifices.

4 But one Simon of the tribe of Benjamin, who was appointed overseer of the temple, strove in opposition to the high priest, to bring about some unjust thing in the city.

5 And when he could not overcome Onias he went to Apollonius the son of Tharseas, who at that time was governor of Celesyria and Phenicia:

6 And told him, that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of immense sums of money, and the common store was infinite, which did not belong to the account of the sacrifices: and that it was possible to bring all into the king's hands.

7 Now when Apollonius had given the king notice concerning the money that he was told of, he called for Heliodorus, who had the charge over his affairs, and sent him with commission to bring him the foresaid money.

8 So Heliodorus forthwith began his journey, under a colour of visiting the cities of Celesyria and Phenicia, but indeed to fulfil the king's purpose.

9 And when he was come to Jerusalem, and had been courteously received in the city by the high priest, he told him what having diligently attained to all things. Luke 1. ver. 3.

CHAP. 3. Ver. 3. Seleucus, son of Antiochus the Great, and elder brother of Antiochus Epiphanes, who reigned 187-175 B. C.

Ver. 27. No easy task, &c. The spirit of God, that assists the sacred penmen, does not exempt them from labour in seeking out the matter which they are to treat of, and the order and manner in which they are to deliver it. So St. Luke writ the gospel information had been given concerning the money: and declared the cause for which he was come: and asked if these things were so indeed.

10 Then the high priest told him that these were sums deposited, and provisions for the subsistence of the widows and the fatherless.

11 And that some part of that which wicked Simon had given intelligence of, belonged to Hircanus son of Tobias, a man of great dignity: and that the whole was four hundred talents of silver, and two hundred of gold:

12 But that to deceive them who had trusted to the place and temple which is honoured throughout the whole world, for the reverence and holiness of it, was a thing which could not by any means be done.

13 But he, by reason of the orders he had received from the king, said that by all means the money must be carried to the king.

14 So on the day he had appointed, Heliodorus entered in to order this matter. But there was no small terror throughout the whole city.

15 And the priests prostrated themselves before the altar in their priests' vestments, and called upon him from heaven, who made the law concerning things given to be kept, that he would preserve them safe, for them that had deposited them.

16 Now whosoever saw the countenance of the high priest, was wounded in heart: for his face, and the changing of his colour declared the inward sorrow of his mind.

17 For the man was so compassed with sadness and horror of the body, that it was manifest to them that beheld him, what sorrow he had in his heart.

18 Others also came flocking together out of their houses, praying and making public supplication, because the place was like to come into contempt.

19 And the women, girded with haircloth about their breasts, came together in the streets. And the virgins also that were shut up, came forth, some to Onias, and some to the walls, and others looked out of the windows.

20 And all holding up their hands towards heaven, made supplication.

21 For the expectation of the mixed multitude, and of the high priest who was in an agony, would have moved any one to pity.

22 And these indeed called upon almighty God, to preserve the things that had been committed to them, safe and sure for those that had committed them.

23 But Heliodorus executed that which he had resolved on, himself being present in the same place with his guard about the treasury.

24 But the spirit of the almighty God gave a great evidence of his presence, so that all that had presumed to obey him, falling down by the power of God, were struck with fainting and dread.

25 For there appeared to them a horse with a terrible rider upon him, adorned with a very rich covering: and he ran fiercely and struck Heliodorus with his fore feet, and he that sat upon him, seemed to have armour of gold.

26 Moreover there appeared two other young men beautiful and strong, bright and glorious, and in comely apparel: who stood by him, on either side, and scourged him without ceasing with many stripes.

27 And Heliodorus suddenly fell to the ground, and they took him up covered with great darkness, and having put him into a litter they carried him out.

28 So he that came with many servants, and all his guard into the aforesaid treasury, was carried out, no one being able to help him, the manifest power of God being known.

29 And he indeed by the power of God lay speechless, and without all hope of recovery.

30 But they praised the Lord because he had glorified his place: and the temple, that a little before was full of fear and trouble, when the almighty Lord appeared, was filled with joy and gladness.

31 Then some of the friends of Heliodorus forthwith begged of Onias, that he would call upon the most High to grant him his life, who was ready to give up the ghost.

32 So the high priest considering that the king might perhaps suspect that some mischief had been done to Heliodorus by the Jews, offered a sacrifice of health for the recovery of the man.

33 And when the high priest was praying, the same young men in the same clothing stood by Heliodorus, and said to him: Give thanks to Onias the priest: because for his sake the Lord hath granted thee life.

34 And thou having been scourged by God, declare unto all men the great works and the power of God. And having spoken thus, they appeared no more.

35 So Heliodorus after he had offered a sacrifice to God, and made great vows to him, that had granted him life, and given thanks to Onias, taking his troops with him, returned to the king.

36 And he testified to all men the works of the great God, which he had seen with his own eyes.

37 And when the king asked Heliodorus, who might be a fit man to be sent yet once more to Jerusalem, he said:

38 If thou hast any enemy or traitor to thy kingdom, send him thither, and thou shalt receive him again scourged, if so be he escape: for there is undoubtedly in that place a certain power of God.

39 For he that hath his dwelling in the heavens, is the visitor, and protector of that place, and he striketh and destroyeth them that come to do evil to it.

40 And the things concerning Heliodorus, and the keeping of the treasury fell out in this manner.

CHAPTER 4

Onias has recourse to the king. The ambition and wickedness of Jason and Menelaus. Onias is treacherously murdered.

BUT Simon, of whom we spoke before, who was the betrayer of the money, and of his country, spoke ill of Onias, as though he had incited Heliodorus to do these things, and had been the promoter of evils:

2 And he presumed to call him a traitor to the kingdom, who provided for the city, and defended his nation, and was zealous for the law of God.

3 But when the enmities proceeded so far, that murders also were committed by some of Simon's friends:

4 Onias considering the danger of this contention, and that Apollonius, who was the governor of Celesyria and Phenicia, was outrageous, which increased the malice of Simon, went to the king,

5 Not to be an accuser of his countrymen, but with a view to the common good of all the people.

6 For he saw that, except the king took care, it was impossible that matters should be settled in peace, or that Simon would cease from his folly.

7 But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus, who was called the Illustrious, had taken possession of the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias ambitiously sought the high priesthood:

8 ^s And went to the king, promising him three hundred and sixty talents of silver, and out of other revenues fourscore talents.

9 Besides this he promised also a hundred and fifty more, if he might have license to set him up a place for exercise, and a place for youth, and to entitle them, that were at Jerusalem, Antiochians.

10 Which when the king had granted, and he had gotten the rule into his hands, forthwith he began to bring over his countrymen to the fashion of the heathens.

11 And abolishing those things, which had been decreed of special favour by the kings in behalf of the Jews, by the means of John the father of that Eupolemus, who went ambassador to Rome to make amity and alliance, he disannulled the lawful ordinances of the citizens, and brought in fashions that were perverse.

12 For he had the boldness to set up, ^u under the very castle, a place of exercise, and to put all the choicest youths in brothel houses.

13 Now this was not the beginning, but an increase, and progress of heathenish and foreign manners, through the abominable and unheard of wickedness of Jason, that impious wretch and no priest.

14 Insomuch that the priests were not now occupied about the offices of the altar, but despising the temple and neglecting the sacrifices, hastened to be partakers of the games, and of the unlawful allowance thereof, and of the exercise of the discus.

15 And setting nought by the honours of their fathers, they esteemed the Grecian glories for the best:

16 For the sake of which they incurred a dangerous contention, and followed earnestly their ordinances, and in all things they coveted to be like them, who were their enemies and murderers.

^s B. C. 175.

^u 1 Mac. 1. 15.

17 For acting wickedly against the laws of God doth not pass unpunished: but this the time following will declare.

18 Now when the game that was used every fifth year was kept at Tyre, the king being present, 19 The wicked Jason sent from Jerusalem sinful men to carry three hundred didrachmas of silver for the sacrifice of Hercules; but the bearers thereof desired it might not be bestowed on the sacrifices, because it was not necessary, but might be deputed for other charges.

20 So the money was appointed by him that sent it to the sacrifice of Hercules: but because of them that carried it was employed for the making of galleys.

21 Now when Apollonius the son of Mnestheus was sent into Egypt to treat with the nobles of king Philometor, and Antiochus understood that he was wholly excluded from the affairs of the kingdom, consulting his own interest, he departed thence and came to Joppe, and from thence to Jerusalem:

22 Where he was received in a magnificent manner by Jason, and the city, and came in with torch lights, and with praises, and from thence he returned with his army into Phenicia.

23 Three years afterwards Jason sent Menelaus, brother of the aforesaid Simon, to carry money to the king, and to bring answers from him concerning certain necessary affairs.

24 But he being recommended to the king, when he had magnified the appearance of his power, got the high priesthood for himself, by offering more than Jason by three hundred talents of silver.

25 So having received the king's mandate, he returned bringing nothing worthy of the high priesthood: but having the mind of a cruel tyrant, and the rage of a savage beast.

26 Then Jason, who had undermined his own brother, being himself undermined, was driven out a fugitive into the country of the Ammonites.

27 So Menelaus got the principality: but as for the money he had promised to the king he took no care, when Sostratus the governor of the castle called for it.

28 For to him appertained the gathering of the taxes: wherefore they were both called before the king.

29 And Menelaus was removed from the priesthood, Lysimachus his brother succeeding: and Sostratus was made governor of the Cyprians.

30 When these things were in doing, it fell out that they of Tharsus and Mallos raised a sedition, because they were given for a gift to Antiochis, the king's concubine.

31 The king therefore went in all haste to appease them, leaving Andronicus, one of his nobles, for his deputy.

32 Then Menelaus supposing that he had found a convenient time, having stolen certain vessels of gold out of the temple, gave them to Andronicus, and others he had sold at Tyre, and in the neighbouring cities.

33 Which when Onias understood most certainly, he reprov'd him, keeping himself in a safe place at Antioch beside Daphne.

34 Whereupon Menelaus coming to Andronicus, desired him to kill Onias. And he went to Onias, and gave him his right hand with an oath, and (though he were suspected by him) persuaded him to come forth out of the sanctuary, and immediately slew him, without any regard to justice.

35 For which cause not only the Jews, but also the other nations, conceived indignation, and were much grieved for the unjust murder of so great a man.

36 And when the king was come back from the places of Cilicia, the Jews that were at Antioch, and also the Greeks went to him: complaining of the unjust murder of Onias.

37 Antiochus therefore was grieved in his mind for Onias, and being moved to pity, shed tears, remembering the sobriety and modesty of the deceased.

38 And being inflamed to anger, he commanded Andronicus to be stripped of his purple, and to be led about through all the city: and that in the same place wherein he had committed the impiety against Onias, the sacrilegious wretch should be put to death, the Lord repaying him his deserved punishment.

CHAPTER 5

39 Now when many sacrileges had been committed by Lysimachus in the temple by the counsel of Menelaus, and the rumour of it was spread abroad, the multitude gathered themselves together against Lysimachus, a great quantity of gold being already carried away.

40 Wherefore the multitude making an insurrection, and their minds being filled with anger, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men, and began to use violence, one Tyrannus being captain, a man far gone both in age, and in madness.

41 But when they perceived the attempt of Lysimachus, some caught up stones, some strong clubs: and some threw ashes upon Lysimachus, 42 And many of them were wounded, and some struck down to the ground, but all were put to flight: and as for the sacrilegious fellow himself, they slew him beside the treasury.

43 Now concerning these matters, an accusation was laid against Menelaus.

44 And when the king was come to Tyre, three men were sent from the ancients to plead the cause before him.

45 But Menelaus being convicted, promised Ptolemee to give him much money to persuade the king to favour him.

46 So Ptolemee went to the king in a certain court where he was, as it were to cool himself and brought him to be of another mind:

47 So Menelaus who was guilty of all the evil, was acquitted by him of the accusations: and those poor men, who, if they had pleaded their cause even before Scythians, should have been judged innocent, were condemned to death.

48 Thus they that prosecuted the cause for the city, and for the people, and the sacred vessels, did soon suffer unjust punishment.

49 Wherefore even the Tyrians being moved with indignation, were liberal towards their burial.

50 And so through the covetousness of them that were in power, Menelaus continued in authority, increasing in malice to the betraying of the citizens.

Wonderful signs are seen in the air. Jason's wickedness and end. Antiochus takes Jerusalem, and plunders the temple.

AT the same time Antiochus prepared for a second journey into Egypt.

2 And it came to pass that through the whole city of Jerusalem for the space of forty days there were seen horsemen running in the air, in gilded raiment, and armed with spears, like bands of soldiers.

3 And horses set in order by ranks, running one against another, with the shakings of shields, and a multitude of men in helmets, with drawn swords, and casting of darts, and glittering of golden armour, and of harnesses of all sorts.

4 Wherefore all men prayed that these prodigies might turn to good.

5 Now when there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had been dead, Jason taking with him no fewer than a thousand men, suddenly assaulted the city: and though the citizens ran together to the wall, the city at length was taken, and Menelaus fled into the castle.

6 But Jason slew his countrymen without mercy, not considering that prosperity against one's own kindred is a very great evil, thinking they had been enemies, and not citizens, whom he conquered.

7 Yet he did not get the principality, but received confusion at the end, for the reward of his treachery, and fled again into the country of the Ammonites.

8 At the last having been shut up by Aretas the king of the Arabians, in order for his destruction, flying from city to city, hated by all men, as a forsaker of the laws, and execrable, as an enemy of his country and countrymen, he was thrust out into Egypt:

9 And he that had driven many out of their country, perished in a strange land, going to Lacedemon, as if for kindred sake he should have refuge there:

10 But he that had cast out many unburied, was himself cast forth both unlamented and unburied, neither having foreign burial, nor being partaker of the sepulchre of his fathers.

11 Now when these things were done, the king suspected that the Jews would forsake the alliance: whereupon departing out of Egypt with a furious mind, he took the city by force of arms.

12 And commanded the soldiers to kill, and not to spare any that came in their way, and to go up into the houses to slay.

13 Thus there was a slaughter of young and old, a destruction of women and children, and killing of virgins and infants.

14 And there were slain in the space of three whole days fourscore thousand, forty thousand were made prisoners, and as many sold.

15 But this was not enough; he presumed also to enter into the temple, the most holy in all the world, Menelaus, that traitor to the laws, and to his country, being his guide.

16 And taking in his wicked hands the holy vessels, which were given by other kings and cities, for the ornament and the glory of the place, he unworthily handled and profaned them.

17 Thus Antiochus going astray in mind, did not consider that God was angry for a while, because of the sins of the inhabitants of the city: and therefore this contempt had happened to the place:

18 Otherwise had they not been involved in many sins, ^x as Heliodorus, who was sent by king Seleucus to rob the treasury, so this man also, as soon as he had come, had been forthwith scourged, and put back from his presumption.

19 But God did not choose the people for the place's sake, but the place for the people's sake.

20 And therefore the place also itself was made partaker of the evils of the people: but afterward shall communicate in the good things thereof, and as it was forsaken in the wrath of Almighty God, shall be exalted again with great glory, when the great Lord shall be reconciled.

21 So when Antiochus had taken away out of the temple a thousand and eight hundred talents, he went back in all haste to Antioch, thinking through pride, that he might now make the land navigable, and the sea passable on foot: such was the haughtiness of his mind.

22 He left also governors to afflict the people: at Jerusalem, Philip, a Phrygian by birth, but in manners more barbarous than he that set him there:

23 And in Gazarim, Andronicus and Menelaus, who bore a more heavy hand upon the citizens than the rest.

24 And whereas he was set against the Jews, he sent that hateful prince Apollonius with an army of two and twenty thousand men, commanding him to kill all that were of perfect age, and to sell the women and the younger sort.

25 Who when he was come to Jerusalem, pretending peace, rested till the holy day of the sabbath: and then the Jews keeping holiday, he commanded his men to take arms.

26 And he slew all that were come forth to see: and running through the city with armed men, he destroyed a very great multitude.

27 But Judas Machabeus, who was the tenth, had withdrawn himself into a desert place, and there lived amongst wild beasts in the mountains with his company: and they continued feeding on herbs, that they might not be partakers of the pollution.

CHAPTER 6

Antiochus commands the law to be abolished, sets up an idol in the temple, and persecutes the faithful. The martyrdom of Eleazar.

BUT not long after the king sent ^y a certain old man of Antioch, to compel the Jews to depart from the laws of their fathers and of God:

2 And to defile the temple that was in Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius: and that in Gazarim of Jupiter Hospitalis, according as they were that inhabited the place.

3 And very bad was this invasion of evils and grievous to all.

4 For the temple was full of the riot and revellings of the Gentiles: and of men lying with lewd women. And women thrust themselves of their accord into the holy places, and brought in things that were not lawful.

^x Supra 3. 35 and 27.

CHAP. 5. Ver. 27. Was the tenth. That is, he had nine others in his company.

CHAP. 6. Ver. 2. That in Gazarim. Viz., the temple of the Samaritans. And as they were originally strangers, the name of Hospitalis (which signifies of or belonging to strangers) was applicable to the idol set up in their temple.

^y B. C. 167.

5 The altar also was filled with unlawful things, which were forbidden by the laws.

6 And neither were the sabbaths kept, nor the solemn days of the fathers observed, neither did any man plainly profess himself to be a Jew.

7 But they were led by bitter constraint on the king's birthday to the sacrifices: and when the feast of Bacchus was kept, they were compelled to go about crowned with ivy in honour of Bacchus.

8 And there went out a decree into the neighbouring cities of the Gentiles, by the suggestion of the Ptolemeans, that they also should act in like manner against the Jews, to oblige them to sacrifice:

9 And whosoever would not conform themselves to the ways of the Gentiles, should be put to death: then was misery to be seen.

10 ^z For two women were accused to have circumcised their children: whom, when they had openly led about through the city with the infants hanging at their breasts, they threw down headlong from the walls.

11 And others that had met together in caves that were near, and were keeping the sabbath day privately, being discovered by Philip, were burnt with fire, because they made a conscience to help themselves with their hands, by reason of the religious observance of the day.

12 Now I beseech those that shall read this book, that they be not shocked at these calamities, but that they consider the things that happened, not as being for the destruction, but for the correction of our nation.

13 For it is a token of great goodness when sinners are not suffered to go on in their ways for a long time, but are presently punished.

14 For, not as with other nations (whom the Lord patiently expecteth, that when the day of judgment shall come, he may punish them in the fulness of their sins:)

15 Doth he also deal with us, so as to suffer our sins to come to their height, and then take vengeance on us.

16 And therefore he never withdraweth his mercy from us: but though he chastise his people with adversity, he forsaketh them not.

17 But let this suffice in a few words for a warning to the readers. And now we must come to the narration.

18 Eleazar one of the chief of the scribes, a man advanced in years, and of a comely countenance, was pressed to open his mouth to eat swine's flesh.

19 But he, choosing rather a most glorious death than a hateful life, went forward voluntarily to the torment.

20 And considering in what manner he was come to it, patiently bearing, he determined not to do any unlawful things for the love of life.

21 But they that stood by, being moved with wicked pity, for the old friendship they had with the man, taking him aside, desired that flesh might be brought, which it was lawful for him to eat, that he might make as if he had eaten, as the king had commanded of the flesh of the sacrifice:

22 That by so doing he might be delivered from death: and for the sake of their old friendship with the man they did him this courtesy.

23 But he began to consider the dignity of his age, and his ancient years, and the inbred honour of his grey head, and his good life and conversation from a child: and he answered without delay, according to the ordinances of the holy law made by God, saying, that he would rather be sent into the other world.

24 For it doth not become our age, said he, to dissemble: whereby many young persons might think that Eleazar, at the age of fourscore and ten years, was gone over to the life of the heathens:

25 And so they, through my dissimulation, and for a little time of a corruptible life, should be deceived, and hereby I should bring a stain and a curse upon my old age.

26 For though, for the present time, I should be delivered from the punishments of men, yet should I not escape the hand of the Almighty neither alive nor dead.

27 Wherefore by departing manfully out of this life, I shall shew myself worthy of my old age:

28 And I shall leave an example of fortitude to young men, with a ready mind

^z 1 Mac. 1. 63.

Ver. 11. Philip. The governor of Jerusalem.

Ver. 21. Wicked pity. Their pity was wicked, inasmuch as it suggested that wicked proposal of saving his life by dissimulation.

and constancy I suffer an honourable death, for the most venerable and most holy laws. And having spoken thus, he was forthwith carried to execution.

29 And they that led him, and had been a little before more mild, were changed to wrath for the words he had spoken, which they thought were uttered out of arrogance.

30 But when he was now ready to die with the stripes, he groaned, and said: O Lord, who hast the holy knowledge, thou knowest manifestly that whereas I might be delivered from death, I suffer grievous pains in body: but in soul am well content to suffer these things because I fear thee.

31 Thus did this man die, leaving not only to young men, but also to the whole nation, the memory of his death for an example of virtue and fortitude.

CHAPTER 7

The glorious martyrdom of the seven brethren and their mother.

IT ^acame to pass also, that seven brethren, together with their mother, were apprehended, and compelled by the king to eat swine's flesh against the law, for which end they were tormented with whips and scourges.

2 But one of them, who was the eldest, said thus: What wouldst thou ask, or learn of us? we are ready to die rather than to transgress the laws of God, received from our fathers.

3 Then the king being angry commanded fryingpans, and brazen caldrons to be made hot: which forthwith being heated,

4 He commanded to cut out the tongue of him that had spoken first: and the skin of his head being drawn off, to chop off also the extremities of his hands and feet, the rest of his brethren, and his mother, looking on.

5 And when he was now maimed in all parts, he commanded him, being yet alive, to be brought to the fire, and to be fried in the fryingpan: and while he was suffering therein long torments, the rest, together with the mother, exhorted one another to die manfully,

6 Saying: The Lord God will look upon the truth, and will take pleasure in us, ^bas Moses declared in the profession of the canticle: And in his servants he will take pleasure.

7 So when the first was dead after this manner, they brought the next to make him a mocking stock: and when they had pulled off the skin of his head with the hair, they asked him if he would eat, before he were punished throughout the whole body in every limb.

8 But he answered in his own language, and said: I will not do it. Wherefore he also in the next place, received the torments of the first:

9 And when he was at the last gasp, he said thus: Thou indeed, O most wicked man, destroyest us out of this present life: but the King of the world will raise us up, who die for his laws, in the resurrection of eternal life.

10 After him the third was made a mocking stock, and when he was required, he quickly put forth his tongue, and courageously stretched out his hands:

11 And said with confidence: These I have from heaven, but for the laws of God I now despise them: because I hope to receive them again from him.

12 So that the king, and they that were with him, wondered at the young man's courage, because he esteemed the torments as nothing.

13 And after he was thus dead, they tormented the fourth in the like manner.

14 And when he was now ready to die, he spoke thus: It is better, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God, to be raised up again by him: for, as to thee thou shalt have no resurrection unto life.

15 And when they had brought the fifth, they tormented him. But he looking upon the king, 16 Said: Whereas thou hast power among men, though thou art corruptible, thou dost what thou wilt: but think not that our nation is forsaken by God.

17 But stay patiently a while, and thou shalt see his great power, in what manner he will torment thee and thy seed.

18 After him they brought the sixth, and he being ready to die, spoke thus: Be not deceived without cause: for we suffer these things for ourselves, having sinned against our God, and things worthy of admiration are done to us:

^a B. C. 167.

^b Deut. 32. 36.

19 But do not think that thou shalt escape unpunished, for that thou hast attempted to fight against God.

20 Now the mother was to be admired above measure, and worthy to be remembered by good men, who beheld her seven sons slain in the space of one day, and bore it with a good courage, for the hope that she had in God:

21 And she bravely exhorted every one of them in her own language, being filled with wisdom: and joining a man's heart to a woman's thought,

22 She said to them: I know not how you were formed in my womb: for I neither gave you breath, nor soul, nor life, neither did I frame the limbs of every one of you.

23 But the Creator of the world, that formed the nativity of man, and that found out the origin of all, he will restore to you again in his mercy, both breath and life, as now you despise yourselves for the sake of his laws.

24 Now Antiochus, thinking himself despised, and withal despising the voice of the upbraider, when the youngest was yet alive, did not only exhort him by words, but also assured him with an oath, that he would make him a rich and a happy man, and, if he would turn from the laws of his fathers, would take him for a friend, and furnish him with things necessary.

25 But when the young man was not moved with these things, the king called the mother, and counselled her to deal with the young man to save his life.

26 And when he had exhorted her with many words, she promised that she would counsel her son.

27 So bending herself towards him, mocking the cruel tyrant, she said in her own language: My son, have pity upon me, that bore thee nine months in my womb, and gave thee suck three years, and nourished thee, and brought thee up unto this age.

28 I beseech thee, my son, look upon heaven and earth, and all that is in them: and consider that God made them out of nothing, and mankind also:

29 So thou shalt not fear this tormentor, but being made a worthy partner with thy brethren, receive death, that in that mercy I may receive thee again with thy brethren.

30 While she was yet speaking these words, the young man said: For whom do you stay? I will not obey the commandment of the king, but the commandment of the law, which was given us by Moses.

31 But thou that hast been the author of all mischief against the Hebrews, shalt not escape the hand of God.

32 For we suffer thus for our sins.

33 And though the Lord our God is angry with us a little while for our chastisement and correction: yet he will be reconciled again to his servants.

34 But thou, O wicked and of all men most flagitious, be not lifted up without cause with vain hopes, whilst thou art raging against his servants.

35 For thou hast not yet escaped the judgment of the almighty God, who beareth all things.

36 For my brethren, having now undergone a short pain, are under the covenant of eternal life: but thou by the judgment of God shall receive just punishment for thy pride.

37 But I, like my brethren, offer up my life and my body for the laws of our fathers: calling upon God to be speedily merciful to our nation, and that thou by torments and stripes mayst confess that he alone is God.

38 But in me and in my brethren the wrath of the Almighty, which hath justly been brought upon all our nation, shall cease.

39 Then the king being incensed with anger, raged against him more cruelly than all the rest, taking it grievously that he was mocked.

40 So this man also died undefiled, wholly trusting in the Lord.

41 And last of all after the sons the mother also was consumed.

42 But now there is enough said of the sacrifices, and of the excessive cruelties.

CHAPTER 8

Judas Machabeus gathering an army gains divers victories.

BUT ^c Judas Machabeus, and they that were with him, went privately into the towns: and calling together their kinsmen and friends, and taking unto them such as continued in the Jews' religion, they assembled six thousand men.

2 And they called upon the Lord that he would look upon his people that was trodden down by all, and would have pity on the temple, that was defiled by the wicked:

3 That he would have pity also upon the city that was destroyed, that was ready to be made even with the ground, and would hear the voice of the blood that cried to him:

4 That he would remember also the most unjust deaths of innocent children, and the blasphemies offered to his name, and would shew his indignation on this occasion.

5 Now when Machabeus had gathered a multitude, he could not be withstood by the heathens: for the wrath of the Lord was turned into mercy.

6 So coming unawares upon the towns and cities, he set them on fire, and taking possession of the most commodious places, he made no small slaughter of the enemies:

7 And especially in the nights he went upon these expeditions, and the fame of his valour was spread abroad every where.

8 Then Philip, seeing that the man gained ground by little and little, and that things for the most part succeeded prosperously with him, wrote to Ptolemee the governor of Celesyria and Phenicia, to send aid to the king's affairs.

9 And he with all speed sent Nicanor the son of Patroclus, one of his special friends, giving him no fewer than twenty thousand armed men of different nations, to root out the whole race of the Jews, joining also with him Gorgias, a good soldier, and of great experience in matters of war.

10 And Nicanor purposed to raise for the king the tribute of two thousand talents, that was to be given to the Romans, by making so much money of the captive Jews:

11 Wherefore he sent immediately to the cities upon the sea coast, to invite men together to buy up the Jewish slaves, promising that they should have ninety slaves for one talent, not reflecting on the vengeance, which was to follow him from the Almighty.

12 Now when Judas found that Nicanor was coming, he imparted to the Jews that were with him, that the enemy was at hand.

13 And some of them being afraid, and distrusting the justice of God, fled away:

14 Others sold all that they had left, and withal besought the Lord, that he would deliver them from the wicked Nicanor, who had sold them before he came near them:

15 And if not for their sakes, yet for the covenant that he had made with their fathers, and for the sake of his holy and glorious name that was invoked upon them.

16 But Machabeus calling together seven thousand that were with him, exhorted them not to be reconciled to the enemies, nor to fear the multitude of the enemies who came wrongfully against them, but to fight manfully:

17 Setting before their eyes the injury they had unjustly done the holy place, and also the injury they had done to the city, which had been shamefully abused, besides their destroying the ordinances of the fathers.

18 For, said he, they trust in their weapons, and in their boldness: but we trust in the Almighty Lord, who at a beck can utterly destroy both them that come against us, and the whole world.

19 Moreover he put them in mind also of the helps their fathers had received from God: and how under Sennacherib a hundred and eighty-five thousand had been destroyed.

20 And of the battle that they had e 4 Kings 19. 35; Tob. 1. 21;

Eccli. 48. 24; Isa. 37. 36; 1 Mac. 7. 41.

CHAP. 8. Ver. 8. Philip seeing, &c. The governor of Jerusalem found himself unable to contend with Judas, especially after the victories he had obtained over Apollonius and Seron. 1 Mac. 3.

Ver. 9. Twenty thousand. The whole number of the forces sent at that time into Judea, was 40,000 footmen, and 7000 horsemen. 1 Mac. 3. 30. But only 20,000 are here taken notice of, because there were no more with Nicanor at the time of the battle.

Ver. 16. Seven thousand. In the Greek it is six thousand. But then three thousand of them had no arms. 1 Mac. 4. 6.

Ver. 20. Galatians. That is, the Gauls, who having ravaged Italy and Greece, poured themselves in upon Asia in immense multitudes, where also they founded the kingdom of Galatia or Gallo Græcia.

fought against the Galatians in Babylonia, how they, being in all but six thousand, when it came to the point, and the Macedonians their companions were at a stand, slew a hundred and twenty thousand, because of the help they had from heaven, and for this they received many favours.

21 With these words they were greatly encouraged, and disposed even to die for the laws and their country.

22 So he appointed his brethren captains over each division of his army, Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathan, giving to each one fifteen hundred men.

23 And after the holy Book had been read to them by Esdras, and he had given them for a watchword, The help of God: himself leading the first band, he joined battle with Nicanor:

24 And the Almighty being their helper, they slew above nine thousand men: and having wounded and disabled the greater part of Nicanor's army, they obliged them to fly.

25 And they took the money of them that came to buy them, and they pursued them on every side.

26 But they came back for want of time: for it was the day before the sabbath: and therefore they did not continue the pursuit.

27 But when they had gathered together their arms and their spoils, they kept the sabbath: blessing the Lord who had delivered them that day, distilling the beginning of mercy upon them.

28 Then after the sabbath they divided the spoils to the feeble and the orphans, and the widows: and the rest they took for themselves and their servants.

29 When this was done, and they had all made a common supplication, they besought the merciful Lord to be reconciled to his servants unto the end.

30 Moreover they slew above twenty thousand of them that were with Timotheus and Bacchides who fought against them, and they made themselves masters of the high strong holds: and they divided amongst them many spoils, giving equal portions to the feeble, the fatherless and the widows, yea and the aged also.

Ver. 24. Above nine thousand. Viz., including the three thousand slain in the pursuit.

Ver. 35. Laying aside his garment of glory. That is, his splendid apparel, which he wore through 31 And when they had carefully gathered together their arms, they laid them all up in convenient places, and the residue of their spoils they carried to Jerusalem:

32 They slew also Philarches who was with Timotheus, a wicked man, who had many ways afflicted the Jews.

33 And when they kept the feast of the victory at Jerusalem, they burnt Callisthenes, that had set fire to the holy gates, who had taken refuge in a certain house, rendering to him a worthy reward for his impieties:

34 But as for that most wicked man Nicanor, who had brought a thousand merchants to the sale of the Jews,

35 Being through the help of the Lord brought down by them, of whom he had made no account, laying aside his garment of glory, fleeing through the midland country, he came alone to Antioch, being rendered very unhappy by the destruction of his army.

36 And he that had promised to levy the tribute for the Romans by the means of the captives of Jerusalem, now professed that the Jews had God for their protector, and therefore they could not be hurt, because they followed the laws appointed by him.

CHAPTER 9

The wretched end, and fruitless repentance of king Antiochus.

AT that time Antiochus returned with dishonour out of Persia.

2 For he had entered into the city called Persepolis, and attempted to rob the temple, and to oppress the city: but the multitude running together to arms, put them to flight: and so it fell out that Antiochus being put to flight returned with disgrace.

3 Now when he was come about Ecbatana, he received the news of what had happened to Nicanor and Timotheus.

4 And swelling with anger he thought to revenge upon the Jews the injury done by them that had put him to flight. And therefore he commanded his chariots to be driven, without stopping in his journey, the judgment of heaven urging him forward, because he had spoken so ostentation; he now throws it off, lest he should be known on his flight.

CHAP. 9. Ver. 2. Persepolis. Otherwise called Elymais.

proudly, that he would come to Jerusalem, and make it a common burying place of the Jews.

5 ¶ But the Lord the God of Israel, that seeth all things, struck him with an incurable and an invisible plague. For as soon as he had ended these words, a dreadful pain in his bowels came upon him, and bitter torments of the inner parts.

6 And indeed very justly, seeing he had tormented the bowels of others with many and new torments, albeit he by no means ceased from his malice.

7 Moreover being filled with pride, breathing out fire in his rage against the Jews, and commanding the matter to be hastened, it happened as he was going with violence that he fell from the chariot, so that his limbs were much pained by a grievous bruising of the body.

8 Thus he that seemed to himself to command even the waves of the sea, being proud above the condition of man, and to weigh the heights of the mountains in a balance, now being cast down to the ground, was carried in a litter, bearing witness to the manifest power of God in himself:

9 So that worms swarmed out of the body of this man, and whilst he lived in sorrow and pain, his flesh fell off, and the filthiness of his smell was noisome to the army.

10 And the man that thought a little before he could reach to the stars of heaven, no man could endure to carry, for the intolerable stench.

11 And by this means, being brought from his great pride, he began to come to the knowledge of himself, being admonished by the scourge of God, his pains increasing every moment.

12 And when he himself could not now abide his own stench, he spoke thus: It is just to be subject to God, and that a mortal man should not equal himself to God.

13 Then this wicked man prayed to the Lord, of whom he was not like to obtain mercy.

14 And the city, to which he was going in haste to lay it even with the ground, and to make it a common burying place, he now desireth to make free.

15 And the Jews whom he said he would not account worthy to be so much as buried, but would give them up to be devoured by the birds and wild beasts, and would utterly destroy them with their children, he now promiseth to make equal with the Athenians.

16 The holy temple also which before he had spoiled, he promiseth to adorn with goodly gifts, and to multiply the holy vessels, and allow out of his revenues the charges pertaining to the sacrifices.

17 Yea also, that he would become a Jew himself, and would go through every place of the earth, and declare the power of God.

18 But his pains not ceasing (for the just judgment of God was come upon him) despairing of life he wrote to the Jews in the manner of a supplication, a letter in these words:

19 To his very good subjects the Jews, Antiochus king and ruler wisheth much health and welfare, and happiness.

20 If you and your children are well, and if all matters go with you to your mind, we give very great thanks.

21 As for me, being infirm, but yet kindly remembering you, returning out of the places of Persia, and being taken with a grievous disease, I thought it necessary to take care for the common good:

22 Not distrusting my life, but having great hope to escape the sickness.

23 But considering that my father also, at what time g he led an army into the higher countries, appointed who should reign after him:

24 To the end that if any thing contrary to expectation should fall out, or any bad tidings should be brought, they that were in the countries, knowing to whom the whole government was left, might not be troubled.

25 Moreover, considering that neighbouring princes and borderers wait for opportunities, and expect what shall be the event, I have appointed my son Antiochus king, whom I often recommended to many of you, when I went into the higher provinces: and I have written to him what I have joined here below.

f 2 Par. 16. 9.

Ver. 13. Of whom he was not like to obtain mercy. Because his repentance was not for the offence committed against God: but barely on account of his present sufferings.

g B. C. 187-175.

26 I pray you therefore, and request of you, that remembering favours both public and private, you will every man of you continue to be faithful to me and to my son.

27 For I trust that he will behave with moderation and humanity, and following my intentions, will be gracious unto you.

28 Thus the murderer and blasphemer, being grievously struck, as himself had treated others, ^h died a miserable death in a strange country among the mountains.

29 But Philip that was brought up with him, carried away his body: and out of fear of the son of Antiochus, went into Egypt to Ptolemee Philometor.

CHAPTER 10

The purification of the temple and city. Other exploits of Judas. His victory over Timotheus.

BUT ⁱ Machabeus, and they that were with him, by the protection of the Lord, recovered the temple and the city again.

2 But he threw down the altars, which the heathens had set up in the streets, as also the temples of the idols.

3 And having purified the temple, they made another altar: and taking fire out of the fiery stones, they offered sacrifices after two years, and set forth incense, and lamps, and the loaves of proposition.

4 And when they had done these things, they besought the Lord, lying prostrate on the ground, that they might no more fall into such evils; but if they should at any time sin, that they might be chastised by him more gently, and not be delivered up to barbarians and blasphemous men.

5 Now upon the same day that the temple had been polluted by the strangers, on the very same day it was cleansed again, to wit, on the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu.

6 And they kept eight days with joy, after the manner of the feast of the tabernacles, remembering that not long before they had kept the feast of the tabernacles when they were in the mountains, and in dens like wild beasts.

7 Therefore they now carried boughs, and green branches, and palms for Him that had given them good success in cleansing his place.

8 And they ordained by a common statute, and decree, that all of the nation of the Jews should keep those days every year.

9 And this was the end of Antiochus that was called the Illustrious.

10 But now we will relate the acts of Eupator the son of that wicked Antiochus, abridging the account of the evils that happened in the wars.

11 For when he was come to the crown, he appointed over the affairs of his realm one Lysias, general of the army of Phenicia and Syria.

12 For Ptolemee that was called Macer, was determined to be strictly just to the Jews, and especially by reason of the wrong that had been done them, and to deal peaceably with them.

13 But being accused for this to Eupator by his friends, and being oftentimes called traitor, because he had left Cyprus which Philometor had committed to him, and coming over to Antiochus the Illustrious, had revolted also from him, he put an end to his life by poison.

14 But Gorgias, who was governor of the holds, taking with him the strangers, often fought against the Jews.

15 And the Jews that occupied the most commodious hold, received those that were driven out of Jerusalem, and attempted to make war.

16 Then they that were with Machabeus, beseeching the Lord by prayers to be their helper, made a strong attack upon the strong holds of the Idumeans:

17 And assaulting them with great force, won the holds, killed them that came in the way, and slew altogether no fewer than twenty thousand.

18 And whereas some were fled into very strong towers, having all manner of provision to sustain a siege, 19 Machabeus left Simon and Joseph, and Zacheus, and them that were with them in sufficient number to besiege them, and departed to those expeditions which urged more.

h B. C. 164.—i B. C. 164.

CHAP. 10. Ver. 15. The Jews, &c. He speaks of them that had fallen from their religion, and were enemies of their country, who joining with the Idu-means or Edomites, kept possession of the strong holds, and from thence annoyed their countrymen.

20 Now they that were with Simon, being led with covetousness, were persuaded for the sake of money by some that were in the towers: and taking seventy thousand didrachmas, let some of them escape.

21 But when it was told Machabeus what was done, he assembled the rulers of the people, and accused those men that they had sold their brethren for money, having let their adversaries escape.

22 So he put these traitors to death, and forthwith took the two towers.

23 And having good success in arms and in all things he took in hand, he slew more than twenty thousand in the two holds.

24 But Timotheus who before had been overcome by the Jews, having called together a multitude of foreign troops, and assembled horsemen out of Asia, came as though he would take Judea by force of arms.

25 But Machabeus and they that were with him, when he drew near, prayed to the Lord, sprinkling earth upon their heads and girding their loins with hair-cloth, 26 And lying prostrate at the foot of the altar, besought him to be merciful to them, and to be an enemy to their enemies, and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law saith.

27 And so after prayer taking their arms, they went forth further from the city, and when they were come very near the enemies they rested.

28 But as soon as the sun was risen both sides joined battle: the one part having with their valour the Lord for a surety of victory and success: but the other side making their rage their leader in battle.

29 But when they were in the heat of the engagement there appeared to the enemies from heaven five men upon horses, comely with golden bridles, conducting the Jews:

30 Two of whom took Machabeus between them, and covered him on every side with their arms, and kept him safe: but cast darts and fireballs against the enemy, so that they fell down, being both confounded with blindness, and filled with trouble.

j 1 Mac. 5. 6.

Ver. 37. Timotheus. This man, who was killed at the taking of Gazara, is different from that Timotheus who is mentioned in the fifth chapter of the 31 And there were slain twenty thousand five hundred, and six hundred horsemen.

32 But Timotheus fled into Gazara a strong hold, where Chereas was governor.

33 Then Machabeus, and they that were with him, cheerfully laid siege to the fortress four days.

34 But they that were within, trusting to the strength of the place, blasphemed exceedingly, and cast forth abominable words.

35 But when the fifth day appeared, twenty young men of them that were with Machabeus, inflamed in their minds because of the blasphemy, approached manfully to the wall, and pushing forward with fierce courage got up upon it.

36 Moreover others also getting up after them, went to set fire to the towers and the gates, and to burn the blasphemers alive.

37 And having for two days together pillaged and sacked the fortress, they killed Timotheus, who was found hid in a certain place: they slew also his brother Chereas, and Apollophanes.

38 And when this was done, they blessed the Lord with hymns and thanksgiving, who had done great things in Israel, and given them the victory.

CHAPTER 11

Lysias is overthrown by Judas. He sues for peace.

A SHORT ^ktime after this Lysias the king's lieutenant, and cousin, and who had chief charge over all the affairs, being greatly displeased with what had happened,

2 Gathered together fourscore thousand men, and all the horsemen, and came against the Jews, thinking to take the city, and make it a habitation of the Gentiles:

3 And to make a gain of the temple, as of the other temples of the Gentiles, and to set the high priesthood to sale every year:

4 Never considering the power of God, but puffed up in mind, and trusting in the multitude of his foot soldiers, and the thousands of his horsemen, and his fourscore elephants.

k B. C. 163.

first book of Machabees, and of whom there is mention in the following chapter.

5 So he came into Judea, and approaching to Bethsura, which was in a narrow place, the space of five furlongs from Jerusalem, he laid siege to that fortress.

6 But when Machabeus and they that were with him, understood that the strong holds were besieged, they and all the people besought the Lord with lamentations and tears, that he would send a good angel to save Israel.

7 Then Machabeus himself, first taking his arms, exhorted the rest to expose themselves together with him, to the danger, and to succour their brethren.

8 And when they were going forth together with a willing mind, there appeared at Jerusalem a horseman going before them in white clothing, with golden armour, shaking a spear.

9 Then they all together blessed the merciful Lord, and took great courage, being ready to break through not only men, but also the fiercest beasts, and walls of iron.

10 So they went on courageously, having a helper from heaven, and the Lord who shewed mercy to them.

11 And rushing violently upon the enemy, like lions, they slew of them eleven thousand footmen, and one thousand six hundred horsemen:

12 And put all the rest to flight: and many of them being wounded, escaped naked: yea and Lysias himself fled away shamefully, and escaped.

13 And as he was a man of understanding, considering with himself, the loss he had suffered, and perceiving that the Hebrews could not be overcome, because they relied upon the help of the Almighty God, he sent to them:

14 And promised that he would agree to all things that are just, and that he would persuade the king to be their friend.

15 Then Machabeus consented to the request of Lysias, providing for the common good in all things, and whatsoever Machabeus wrote to Lysias concerning the Jews, the king allowed of.

16 For there were letters written to the Jews from Lysias, to this effect: Lysias to the people of the Jews, greeting.

17 John and Abesalom who were sent from you, delivering your writings, requested that I would accomplish those things which were signified by them.

18 Therefore whatsoever things could be reported to the king I have represented to him: and he hath granted as much as the matter permitted.

19 If therefore you will keep yourselves loyal in affairs, hereafter also I will endeavour to be a means of your good.

20 But as concerning other particulars, I have given orders by word both to these, and to them that are sent by me, to commune with you.

21 Fare ye well. In the year one hundred and forty-eight, ¹ the four and twentieth day of the month of Dioscorus.

22 But the king's letter contained these words: King Antiochus to Lysias his brother, greeting.

23 Our father being translated amongst the gods, we are desirous that they that are in our realm should live quietly, and apply themselves diligently to their own concerns,

24 And we have heard that the Jews would not consent to my father to turn to the rites of the Greeks, but that they would keep to their own manner of living, and therefore that they request us to allow them to live after their own laws.

25 Wherefore being desirous that this nation also should be at rest, we have ordained and decreed, that the temple should be restored to them, and that they may live according to the custom of their ancestors.

26 Thou shalt do well therefore to send to them, and grant them peace, that our pleasure being known, they may be of good comfort, and look to their own affairs.

27 But the king's letter to the Jews was in this manner. King Antiochus to the senate of the Jews, and to the rest of the Jews, greeting.

28 If you are well, you are as we desire, we ourselves also are well.

29 Menelaus came to us, saying that you desired to come down to your countrymen, that are with us.

[B. C. 164.

CHAP. 11. Ver. 21. In the year 148. Viz., according to the computation followed by the Greeks; which was different from that of the Hebrews, followed by the writer of the first book of Machabees.

However, by this date, as well as by other circumstances, it appears that the expedition of Lysias, mentioned in this chapter, is different from that which is recorded, 1 Mac. 6.

30 We grant therefore a safe conduct to all that come and go, until the thirtieth day of the month of Xanthicus, 31 That the Jews may use their own kind of meats, and their own laws as before, and that none of them any manner of ways be molested for things which have been done by ignorance.

32 And we have sent also Menelaus to speak to you.

33 Fare ye well. In the year ^m one hundred and forty-eight, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

34 The Romans also sent them a letter, to this effect. Quintus Memmius, and Titus Manilius, ambassadors of the Romans, to the people of the Jews, greeting.

35 Whatsoever Lysias the king's cousin hath granted you, we also have granted.

36 But touching such things as he thought should be referred to the king, after you have diligently conferred among yourselves, send some one forthwith, that we may decree as it is convenient for you: for we are going to Antioch.

37 And therefore make haste to write back, that we may know of what mind you are.

38 Fare ye well. In the year one hundred and forty-eight, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

CHAPTER 12

The Jews are still molested by their neighbours. Judas gains divers victories over them. He orders sacrifice and prayers for the dead.

WHEN ⁿ these covenants were made, Lysias went to the king, and the Jews gave themselves to husbandry.

2 But they that were behind, namely, Timotheus and Apollonius the son of Genneus, also Hieronymus, and Demophon, and besides them Nicanor the governor of Cyprus, would not suffer them to live in peace and to be quiet.

3 The men of Joppe also were guilty of this kind of wickedness: they desired the Jews who dwelt among them to go with their wives and children into the boats, which they had prepared, as though they had no enmity to them.

4 Which when they had consented to, according to the common decree of the city, suspecting nothing, because of the peace: when they were gone forth into the deep, they drowned no fewer than two hundred of them.

5 But as soon as Judas heard of this cruelty done to his countrymen, he commanded the men that were with him: and after having called upon God the just judge,

6 He came against those murderers of his brethren, and set the haven on fire in the night, burnt the boats, and slew with the sword them that escaped from the fire.

7 And when he had done these things in this manner, he departed as if he would return again, and root out all the Joppites.

8 But when he understood that the men of Jamnia also designed to do in like manner to the Jews that dwelt among them,

9 He came upon the Jamnites also by night, and set the haven on fire with the ships, so that the light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem two hundred and forty furlongs off.

10 And when they were now gone from thence nine furlongs, and were marching towards Timotheus, five thousand footmen and five hundred horsemen of the Arabians set upon them.

11 And after a hard fight, in which by the help of God they got the victory, the rest of the Arabians being overcome, besought Judas for peace, promising to give him pastures, and to assist him in other things.

12 And Judas thinking that they might be profitable indeed in many things, promised them peace, and after having joined hands, they departed to their tents.

13 He also laid siege to a certain strong city, encompassed with bridges and walls, and inhabited by multitudes of different nations, the name of which is Casphin.

14 But they that were within it, trusting in the strength of the walls, and the provision of victuals, behaved in a more negligent manner, and provoked Judas with railing and blaspheming, and uttering such words as were not to be spoken.

15 But Machabeus calling upon the great Lord of the world, who without any rams or engines of war threw down the walls

^m B. C. 164.—ⁿ B. C. 163.

CHAP. 12. Ver. 15. Rams. That is, engines for battering walls, &c., which were used in sieges in those times.

of Jericho ^o in the time of Josue, fiercely assaulted the walls.

16 And having taken the city by the will of the Lord, he made an unspeakable slaughter, so that a pool adjoining of two furlongs broad seemed to run with the blood of the slain.

17 From thence they departed seven hundred and fifty furlongs, and came to Characa to the Jews that are called Tumbianites.

18 But as for Timotheus, they found him not in those places, for before he had dispatched any thing he went back, having left a very strong garrison in a certain hold:

19 But Dositheus, and Sosipater, who were captains with Machabeus, slew them that were left by Timotheus in the hold, to the number of ten thousand men.

20 And Machabeus having set in order about him six thousand men, and divided them by bands, went forth against Timotheus, who had with him a hundred and twenty thousand footmen, and two thousand five hundred horsemen.

21 Now when Timotheus had knowledge of the coming of Judas, he sent the women and children, and the other baggage before him into a fortress, called Carnion: for it was impregnable and hard to come at, by reason of the straitness of the places.

22 But when the first band of Judas came in sight, the enemies were struck with fear, by the presence of God, who seeth all things, and they were put to flight one from another, so that they were often thrown down by their own companions, and wounded with the strokes of their own swords.

23 But Judas was vehemently earnest in punishing the profane, of whom he slew thirty thousand men.

24 And Timotheus himself fell into the hands of the band of Dositheus and Sosipater, and with many prayers he besought them to let him go with his life, because he had the parents and brethren of many of the Jews, who, by his death, might happen to be deceived.

25 And when he had given his faith that he would restore them according to the agreement, they let him go without hurt, for the saving of their brethren.

26 Then Judas went away to Carnion, where he slew five and twenty thousand persons.

27 ^p And after he had put to flight and destroyed these, he removed his army to Ephron, a strong city, wherein there dwelt a multitude of divers nations: and stout young men standing upon the walls made a vigorous resistance: and in this place there were many engines of war, and a provision of darts.

28 But when they had invoked the Almighty, who with his power breaketh the strength of the enemies, they took the city; and slew five and twenty thousand of them that were within.

29 From thence they departed to Scythopolis, which lieth six hundred furlongs from Jerusalem.

30 But the Jews that were among the Scythopolitans testifying that they were used kindly by them, and that even in the times of their adversity they had treated them with humanity:

31 They gave them thanks exhorting them to be still friendly to their nation, and so they came to Jerusalem, the feast of the weeks being at hand.

32 And after Pentecost they marched against Gorgias the governor of Idumea.

33 And he came out with three thousand footmen, and four hundred horsemen.

34 And when they had joined battle, it happened that a few of the Jews were slain.

35 But Dositheus, a horseman, one of Bacenor's band, a valiant man, took hold of Gorgias: and when he would have taken him alive, a certain horseman of the Thracians came upon him, and cut off his shoulder: and so Gorgias escaped to Maresa.

36 But when they that were with Esdrin had fought long, and were weary, Judas called upon the Lord to be their helper, and leader of the battle:

37 Then beginning in his own language, and singing hymns with a loud voice, he put Gorgias' soldiers to flight.

38 So Judas having gathered together his army, came into the city Odollam: and when the seventh day came, they purified themselves according to the custom, and kept the sabbath in the same place.

^o Jos. 6. 20.

^p B. C. 163.

Ver. 29. Scythopolis. Formerly called Bethsan.

39 And the day following Judas came with his company, to take away the bodies of them that were slain, and to bury them with their kinsmen, in the sepulchres of their fathers.

40 And they found under the coats of the slain some of the donaries of the idols of Jamnia, which the law forbiddeth to the Jews: so that all plainly saw, that for this cause they were slain.

41 Then they all blessed the just judgment of the Lord, who had discovered the things that were hidden.

42 And so betaking themselves to prayers, they besought him, that the sin which had been committed might be forgotten. But the most valiant Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves from sin, forasmuch as they saw before their eyes what had happened, because of the sins of those that were slain.

43 And making a gathering, he sent twelve thousand drachms of silver to Jerusalem for sacrifice to be offered for the sins of the dead, thinking well and religiously concerning the resurrection,

44 (For if he had not hoped that they that were slain should rise again, it would have seemed superfluous and vain to pray for the dead,)

45 And because he considered that they who had fallen asleep with godliness, had great grace laid up for them.

46 It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from sins.

CHAPTER 13

Antiochus and Lysias again invade Judea. Menelaus is put to death. The king's great army is worsted twice. The peace is renewed.

IN the year one hundred and forty-nine, Judas understood that Antiochus

Eupator was coming with a multitude against Judea,

2 And with him Lysias the regent, who had charge over the affairs of the realm, having with him a hundred and ten thousand footmen, five thousand horsemen, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots armed with hooks.

3 Menelaus also joined himself with them: and with great deceitfulness besought Antiochus, not for the welfare of his country, but in hopes that he should be appointed chief ruler.

4 But the King of kings stirred up the mind of Antiochus against the sinner, and upon Lysias suggesting that he was the cause of all the evils, he commanded (as the custom is with them) that he should be apprehended and put to death in the same place.

5 Now there was in that place a tower fifty cubits high, having a heap of ashes on every side: this had a prospect steep down.

6 From thence he commanded the sacrilegious wretch to be thrown down into the ashes, all men thrusting him forward unto death.

7 And by such a law it happened that Menelaus the transgressor of the law was put to death: not having so much as burial in the earth.

8 And indeed very justly, for insomuch as he had committed many sins against the altar of God, the fire and ashes of which were holy: he was condemned to die in ashes.

9 But the king, with his mind full of rage, came on to shew himself worse to the Jews than his father was.

10 Which, when Judas understood, he commanded the people to call upon the Lord day and night, that as he had always done, so now also he would help them:

11 Because they were afraid to be deq B. C. 163.

Ver. 40. Of the donaries, &c. That is, of the votive offerings, which had been hung up in the temples of the idols, which they had taken away when they burnt the port of Jamnia, ver. 9, contrary to the prohibition of the law, Deut. 7. 25.

Ver. 45. With godliness. Judas hoped that these men who died fighting for the cause of God and religion, might find mercy: either because they might be excused from mortal sin by ignorance; or might have repented of their sin, at least at their death.

Ver. 46. It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead. Here is an evident and undeniable proof of the practice of praying for the dead under the old law, which was then strictly observed by the Jews, and consequently could not be introduced at that time by Judas, their chief and high priest, if it had not been always their custom.

CHAP. 13. Ver. 2. A hundred and ten thousand, &c. The difference between the numbers here set down, and those recorded, 1 Mac. 4., is easily accounted for; if we consider that such armies as these are liable to be at one time more numerous than at another; either by sending away large detachments, or being diminished by sickness; or increased by receiving fresh supplies of troops, according to different exigencies or occurrences.

prived of the law, and of their country, and of the holy temple: and that he would not suffer the people, that had of late taken breath for a little while, to be again in subjection to blasphemous nations.

12 So when they had all done this together, and had craved mercy of the Lord with weeping and fasting, lying prostrate on the ground for three days continually, Judas exhorted them to make themselves ready.

13 But he with the ancients determined, before the king should bring his army into Judea, and make himself master of the city, to go out, and to commit the event of the thing to the judgment of the Lord.

14 So committing all to God, the creator of the world, and having exhorted his people to fight manfully, and to stand up even to death for the laws, the temple, the city, their country, and citizens: he placed his army about Modin.

15 And having given his company for a watchword, The victory of God, with most valiant chosen young men, he set upon the king's quarter by night, and slew four thousand men in the camp, and the greatest of the elephants, with them that had been upon him, 16 And having filled the camp of the enemies with exceeding great fear and tumult, they went off with good success.

17 Now this was done at the break of day, by the protection and help of the Lord.

18 But the king having taken a taste of the hardiness of the Jews, attempted to take the strong places by policy:

19 And he marched with his army to Bethsura, which was a strong hold of the Jews: but he was repulsed, he failed, he lost his men.

20 Now Judas sent necessities to them that were within.

21 But Rhodocus, one of the Jews' army, disclosed the secrets to the enemies, so he was sought out, and taken up, and put in prison.

22 Again the king treated with them that were in Bethsura: gave his right hand: took theirs: and went away.

23 He fought with Judas: and was overcome. And when he understood that Philip, who had been left over the affairs, had rebelled at Antioch, he was in a consternation of mind, and entreating the Jews, and yielding to them, he swore to all things that seemed reasonable, and, being reconciled, offered sacrifices, honoured the temple, and left gifts.

24 He embraced Machabeus, and made him governor and prince from Ptolemais unto the Gerrenians.

25 But when he was come to Ptolemais, the men of that city were much displeased with the conditions of the peace, being angry for fear they should break the covenant.

26 Then Lysias went up to the judgment seat, and set forth the reason, and appeased the people, and returned to Antioch: and thus matters went with regard to the king's coming and his return.

CHAPTER 14

Demetrius challenges the kingdom. Alcimus applies to him to be made high priest: Nicanor is sent into Judea: his dealings with Judas: his threats. The history of Razias.

BUT ^rafter the space of three years Judas, and they that were with him, understood that Demetrius the son of Seleucus was come up with a great power, and a navy by the haven of Tripolis to places proper for his purpose.

2 And had made himself master of the countries against Antiochus, and his general Lysias.

3 Now one Alcimus, who had been chief priest, but had wilfully defiled himself in the time of mingling with the heathens, seeing that there was no safety for him, nor access to the altar,

4 Came to king Demetrius in the year ^sone hundred and fifty, presenting unto him a crown of gold, and a palm, and besides these, some boughs which seemed to belong to the temple. And that day indeed he held his peace.

^r B. C. 162.—^s B. C. 162.

CHAP. 14. Ver. 3. Now Alcimus, who had been chief priest. This Alcimus was of the stock of Aaron, but for his apostasy here mentioned was incapable of the high priesthood, but king Antiochus Eupator appointed him in place of the high priest, (see above, 1 Mac. chap. 7., ver. 9.) as Menelaus had been before him, set up by Antiochus, (above, chap.

4.,) yet neither of them were truly high priests; for the true high priesthood was amongst the Machabees, who were also of the stock of Aaron, and had strictly held their religion, and were ordained according to the rites commanded in the law of Moses.—Ibid. Mingling with the heathens; that is, in their idolatrous worship.

5 But having gotten a convenient time to further his madness, being called to counsel by Demetrius, and asked what the Jews relied upon, and what were their counsels,

6 He answered thereunto: They among the Jews that are called Assideans, of whom Judas Machabeus is captain, nourish wars, and raise seditions, and will not suffer the realm to be in peace.

7 For I also being deprived of my ancestors' glory (I mean of the high priesthood) am now come hither:

8 Principally indeed out of fidelity to the king's interest, but in the next place also to provide for the good of my countrymen: for all our nation suffereth much from the evil proceedings of those men.

9 Wherefore, O king, seeing thou knowest all these things, take care, I beseech thee, both of the country, and of our nation, according to thy humanity which is known to all men,

10 For as long as Judas liveth, it is not possible that the state should be quiet.

11 Now when this man had spoken to this effect, the rest also of the king's friends, who were enemies of Judas, incensed Demetrius against him.

12 And forthwith he sent Nicanor, the commander over the elephants, governor into Judea:

13 Giving him in charge, to take Judas himself: and disperse all them that were with him, and to make Alcimus the high priest of the great temple.

14 Then the Gentiles who had fled out of Judea from Judas, came to Nicanor by flocks, thinking the miseries and calamities of the Jews to be the welfare of their affairs.

15 Now when the Jews heard of Nicanor's coming, and that the nations were assembled against them, they cast earth upon their heads, and made supplication to him, who chose his people to keep them for ever, and who protected his portion by evident signs.

16 Then at the commandment of their captain, they forthwith removed from the place where they were, and went to the town of Dessau, to meet them.

17 Now Simon the brother of Judas had joined battle with Nicanor, but was frightened with the sudden coming of the adversaries.

18 Nevertheless Nicanor hearing of the valour of Judas' companions, and the greatness of courage with which they fought for their country, was afraid to try the matter by the sword.

19 Wherefore he sent Posidonius, and Theodotius, and Matthias before to present and receive the right hands.

20 And when there had been a consultation thereupon, and the captain had acquainted the multitude with it, they were all of one mind to consent to covenants.

21 So they appointed a day upon which they might commune together by themselves: and seats were brought out, and set for each one.

22 But Judas ordered men to be ready in convenient places, lest some mischief might be suddenly practised by the enemies: so they made an agreeable conference.

23 And Nicanor abode in Jerusalem, and did no wrong, but sent away the flocks of the multitudes that had been gathered together.

24 And Judas was always dear to him from the heart, and he was well affected to the man.

25 And he desired him to marry a wife, and to have children. So he married: he lived quietly, and they lived in common.

26 But Alcimus seeing the love they had one to another, and the covenants, came to Demetrius, and told him that Nicanor assented to the foreign interest, for that he meant to make Judas, who was a traitor to the kingdom, his successor.

27 Then the king being in a rage and provoked with this man's wicked accusations, wrote Nicanor, signifying, that he was greatly displeased with the covenant of friendship: and that he commanded him nevertheless to send Machabeus prisoner in all haste to Antioch.

28 When this was known, Nicanor was in a consternation, and took it grievously that he should make void the articles that were agreed upon, having received no injury from the man.

29 But because he could not oppose the king, he watched an opportunity to comply with the orders.

30 But when Machabeus perceived that Nicanor was more stern to him, and that when they met together as usual he behaved himself in a rough manner: and was sensible that this rough behaviour came not of good, he gathered together a few of his men, and hid himself from Nicanor.

31 But he finding himself notably prevented by the man, came to the great and holy temple: and commanded the priests that were offering the accustomed sacrifices, to deliver him the man.

32 And when they swore unto him, that they knew not where the man was whom he sought, he stretched out his hand to the temple,

33 And swore, saying: Unless you deliver Judas prisoner to me, I will lay this temple of God even with the ground, and will beat down the altar, and I will dedicate this temple to Bacchus.

34 And when he had spoken thus he departed. But the priests stretching forth their hands to heaven, called upon him that was ever the defender of their nation, saying in this manner:

35 Thou, O Lord of all things, who wantest nothing, wast pleased that the temple of thy habitation should be amongst us.

36 Therefore now, O Lord the holy of all holies, keep this house for ever undefiled which was lately cleansed.

37 Now Razias, one of the ancients of Jerusalem, was accused to Nicanor, a man that was a lover of the city, and of good report, who for his affection was called the father of the Jews.

38 This man, for a long time, had held fast his purpose of keeping himself pure in the Jews' religion, and was ready to expose his body and life, that he might persevere therein.

39 So Nicanor being willing to declare the hatred that he bore the Jews, sent five hundred soldiers to take him.

40 For he thought by insnaring him to hurt the Jews very much.

41 Now as the multitude sought to rush into his house, and to break open the door, and to set fire to it, when he was ready to be taken, he struck himself with his sword:

42 Choosing to die nobly rather than to fall into the hands of the wicked, and to suffer abuses unbecoming his noble birth.

43 But whereas through haste he missed of giving himself a sure wound, and the crowd was breaking into the doors, he ran boldly to the wall, and manfully threw himself down to the crowd:

44 But they quickly making room for his fall, he came upon the midst of the neck.

45 And as he had yet breath in him, being inflamed in mind he arose: and while his blood ran down with a great stream, and he was grievously wounded, he ran through the crowd:

46 And standing upon a steep rock, when he was now almost without blood, grasping his bowels with both hands, he cast them upon the throng, calling upon the Lord of life and spirit, to restore these to him again: and so he departed this life.

CHAPTER 15

Judas encouraged by a vision gains a glorious victory over Nicanor. The conclusion.

BUT ^twhen Nicanor understood that Judas was in the places of Samaria, he purposed to set upon him with all violence on the sabbath day.

2 And when the Jews that were constrained to follow him, said: Do not act so fiercely and barbarously, but give honour to the day that is sanctified: and reverence him that beholdeth all things:

3 That unhappy man asked, if there were a mighty One in heaven, that had commanded the sabbath day to be kept.

4 And when they answered: There is the living Lord himself in heaven, the mighty One, that commanded the seventh day to be kept,

5 Then he said: And I am mighty upon the earth, and I command to take arms, and to do the king's business. Nevertheless he prevailed not to accomplish his design.

6 So Nicanor being puffed up with exceeding great pride, thought to set up t B. C. 161. 1 Mac. 7. 26.

Ver. 41. He struck himself, &c. St. Augustine, (Epist. 61, ad Dulcitium, et lib. 2, cap. 23, ad Epist. 2 Gaud.) discussing this fact of Razias, says, that the holy scripture relates it, but doth not praise it, as to be admired or imitated, and that either it was not well done by him, or at least not proper in this time of grace.

Ver. 44. He came upon the midst of the neck. Venit per mediam cervicem. In the Greek it is κευεῶνα, which signifies a void place, where there is no building.

a public monument of victory over Judas.

7 But Machabeus ever trusted with all hope that God would help them.

8 And he exhorted his people not to fear the coming of the nations, but to remember the help they had before received from heaven, and now to hope for victory from the Almighty.

9 And speaking to them out of the law, and the prophets, and withal putting them in mind of the battles they had fought before, he made them more cheerful:

10 Then after he had encouraged them, he shewed withal the falsehood of the Gentiles, and their breach of oaths.

11 So he armed every one of them, not with defence of shield and spear, but with very good speeches and exhortations, and told them a dream worthy to be believed, whereby he rejoiced them all.

12 Now the vision was in this manner: Onias who had been high priest, a good and virtuous man, modest in his looks, gentle in his manners, and graceful in his speech, and who from a child was exercised in virtues, holding up his hands, prayed for all the people of the Jews:

13 After this there appeared also another man, admirable for age, and glory, and environed with great beauty and majesty:

14 Then Onias answering, said: This is a lover of his brethren, and of the people of Israel: this is he that prayeth much for the people, and for all the holy city, Jeremias the prophet of God.

15 Whereupon Jeremias stretched forth his right hand, and gave to Judas a sword of gold, saying:

16 Take this holy sword a gift from God, wherewith thou shalt overthrow the adversaries of my people Israel.

17 Thus being exhorted with the words of Judas, which were very good, and proper to stir up the courage, and strengthen the hearts of the young men, they resolved to fight, and to set upon them manfully: that valour might decide the matter, because the holy city and the temple were in danger.

18 For their concern was less for their wives, and children, and for their brethren, and kinsfolks: but their greatest and principal fear was for the holiness of the temple.

19 And they also that were in the city, had no little concern for them that were to be engaged in battle.

20 And now when all expected what judgment would be given, and the enemies were at hand, and the army was set in array, the beasts and the horsemen ranged in convenient places,

21 Machabeus considering the coming of the multitude, and the divers preparations of armour, and the fierceness of the beasts, stretching out his hands to heaven, called upon the Lord, that worketh wonders, who giveth victory to them that are worthy, not according to the power of their arms, but according as it seemeth good to him.

22 And in his prayer he said after this manner: "Thou, O Lord, who didst send thy angel in the time of Ezechias king of Juda, and didst kill a hundred and eighty-five thousand of the army of Sennacherib:

23 Send now also, O Lord of heaven, thy good angel before us, for the fear and dread of the greatness of thy arm, 24 That they may be afraid, who come with blasphemy against thy holy people. And thus he concluded his prayer.

25 But Nicanor, and they that were with him came forward, with trumpets and songs.

26 But Judas, and they that were with him, encountered them, calling upon God by prayers:

27 So fighting with their hands, but praying to the Lord with their hearts, they slew no less than five and thirty thousand, being greatly cheered with the presence of God.

28 And when the battle was over, and they were returning with joy, they understood that Nicanor was slain in his armour.

29 Then making a shout, and a great noise, they blessed the Almighty Lord in their own language.

30 And Judas, who was altogether ready, in body and mind, to die for his countrymen, commanded that Nicanor's head, and his hand with the shoulder should be cut off, and carried to Jerusalem.

31 And when he was come thither, having called together his countrymen, and the priests to the altar, he sent also for them that were in the castle,

32 And shewing them the head of Nicanor, and the wicked hand, which he had stretched out, with proud boasts, against the holy house of the Almighty God, 33 He commanded also, that the tongue of the wicked Nicanor, should be cut out and given by pieces to birds, and the hand of the furious man to be hanged up over against the temple.

34 Then all blessed the Lord of heaven, saying: Blessed be he that hath kept his own place undefiled.

35 And he hung up Nicanor's head in the top of the castle, that it might be an evident and manifest sign of the help of God.

36 And they all ordained by a common decree, by no means to let this day pass without solemnity:

37 But to celebrate the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, called, in the Syrian language, the day before Mardochias' day.

38 So these things being done with relation to Nicanor, and from that time the city being possessed by the Hebrews, I also will here make an end of my narration.

39 Which if I have done well, and as it becometh the history, it is what I desired: but if not so perfectly, it must be pardoned me.

40 For as it is hurtful to drink always wine, or always water, but pleasant to use sometimes the one, and sometimes the other: so if the speech be always nicely framed, it will not be grateful to the readers. But here it shall be ended.

CHAP. 15. Ver. 39. If not so perfectly, &c. This is not said with regard to the truth of the narration; but with regard to the style and manner of writing:

which in the sacred penmen is not always the most accurate. See St. Paul, 2 Cor. 11. 6.

An ornate, colorful floral border in shades of blue, red, yellow, and purple, featuring intricate scrollwork and star-like motifs, framing the left and top of the page.

THIS CERTIFIES THAT

and were united in

Holy Matrimony

on the _____ day of _____

in the year of our Lord 19 _____

at _____

by _____

Witness _____

Witness _____

Children's Record

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

Grandparents

GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Great-Grandparents

GREAT-GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Great-Great-Grandparents

GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____ Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____ Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____ Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____
Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held _____

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____ Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____ Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____ Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____
Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

IN OUR FAMILY'S HISTORY

IN OUR FAMILY'S HISTORY

THIS CERTIFIES THAT

and were united in

Holy Matrimony

on the _____ day of _____

in the year of our Lord 19 _____

at _____

by _____

Witness _____

Witness _____

Children's Record

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

NAME		NAME
DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH	DATE OF BIRTH	PLACE OF BIRTH
DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE	DATE OF MARRIAGE	PLACE OF MARRIAGE
TO		TO
DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL	DATE OF DEATH	PLACE OF BURIAL

Grandparents

GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Great-Grandparents

GREAT-GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Great-Great-Grandparents

GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Father's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH
GREAT-GREAT-GRANDMOTHER Mother's Side	DATE OF BIRTH	DATE OF DEATH

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____
Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held _____

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____
Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____
Port of Embarkation _____ Date _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Port of Debarkation _____ Date _____

BATTLES ENGAGED IN: _____ OPPOSING FORCES _____

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____
Name of Port _____ Name of Ship, etc. _____

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

Service Record

NAME _____

SERIAL NUMBER _____

ENTERED ARMED SERVICE _____ DATE _____ PLACE _____ RANK _____

BRANCH OF SERVICE _____

ORIGINAL UNIT ASSIGNMENT _____

POST, CAMP, OR RECEPTION CENTER _____

UNITED STATES DOMESTIC SERVICE

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____
Highest Rank Held

From _____ To _____

SERVED AS _____ AT CAMP _____

From _____ To _____

UNITED STATES FOREIGN SERVICE

LEFT UNITED STATES FROM _____

Port of Embarkation

Date

ARRIVED AT _____

Port of Debarkation

Date

BATTLES ENGAGED IN:

OPPOSING FORCES

Place _____ Date _____

Place _____ Date _____

RETURNED TO UNITED STATES ON _____ DATE _____ RANK _____

ARRIVED AT _____

Name of Port

Name of Ship, etc.

DISCHARGE

DISCHARGED AT _____ DATE _____

RANK _____

IN OUR FAMILY'S HISTORY

IN OUR FAMILY'S HISTORY

THE NEW TESTAMENT

OF OUR LORD AND SAVIOR JESUS CHRIST

TRANSLATED FROM THE LATIN VULGATE.
A REVISION OF THE CHALLONER-RHEIMS VERSION, EDITED BY CATHOLIC SCHOL-ARS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE EPISCOPAL COMMITTEE OF THE CONFRA-TERNITY OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

Books of The New Testament

PROPER ORDER

St. Matthew	1	1 Timothy	273
St. Mark	43	2 Timothy	279
St. Luke	70	Titus	283
St. John	114	Philemon	286
The Acts of the Apostles	148	To the Hebrews	287
St. Paul to the Romans	191	The Epistle of St. James	301
1 Corinthians	211	1 St. Peter	306
2 Corinthians	230	2 St. Peter	312
Galatians	242	1 St. John	316
Ephesians	249	2 St. John	321
Philippians	256	3 St. John	323
Colossians	261	St. Jude	324
1 Thessalonians	266	Apocalypse of
2 Thessalonians	271	St. John the Apostle	326

ALPHABETICAL ORDER

Acts of the Apostles (Acts) . . .	148	2 Corinthians (2 Cor)	230
James, St., Epistle of	301	Ephesians (Eph)	249
John, St.		Galatians (Gal)	242
Apocalypse (Apoc)	326	Hebrews (Heb)	287
1 Epistle (1 John)	316	Philemon (Phil)	286
2 Epistle (2 John)	321	Philippians (Philipp)	256
3 Epistle (3 John)	323	Romans (Rom)	191
Gospel	114	1 Thessalonians (1 Thess) . . .	266
Jude, St.	324	2 Thessalonians (2 Thess) . . .	271
Luke, St.	70	1 Timothy (1 Tim)	273
Mark, St.	43	2 Timothy (2 Tim)	279
Matthew, St. (Matt)	1	Titus	283
Paul, St.		Peter, St.
Colossians (Col)	261	1 Epistle (1 Peter)	306
1 Corinthians (1 Cor)	211	2 Epistle (2 Peter)	312

The text of the New Testament is reproduced by license of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Washington, D. C., the owner of the copyright of "The New Testament of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ -- a Revision of the Challoner-Rheims Version." Used with permission. All rights reserved.

Preface

“THE WORD OF THE LORD endures forever,” is the saying of a great prophet (Isa. 40, 8) and of the Prince of the Apostles (1 Pet. 1, 25).

In her belief in the divine authority and the perfect truth of the Bible, as being the inspired Word of God, the Catholic Church has never hesitated. Nor has the Church forgotten that this sacred Book was destined by its Author to convey His message to all His faithful servants of every place and time. Neither has she overlooked the fact that this message must lie sealed and silent to many of her children unless given them in their own language, at least by the voice of their pastors, if not by means of the written page.

Further, the Church has always realized that Holy Scripture was committed to her charge by virtue of its very origin and object. Like the Apostolic Tradition of Christ's teaching, the Bible, too, is a treasury of divine revelation. As such, it can have no rightful guardian and dispenser except that Church which Christ formed and commissioned to teach to all the world the truths revealed for man's salvation. There can be no graver crime than the least corruption of that eternal truth which Christ has brought us. The Church is, therefore, watchful over Holy Scripture; and not only over its message, but likewise over its written transmission.

In exercising this guardianship, the Church has given special sanction to that Latin version which, because of its common use for centuries, won the name of “Vulgate.” Her intention in this is primarily to declare which of many Latin versions is to be regarded as substantially accurate and safe in all matters of faith and morals. It was from this Latin text that most of the vernacular versions of Europe were made. It was also from this text that our first printed Catholic Bible in English was taken.

In 1560 the Catholic Church had been outlawed in England. The Catholics who remained in the country faced a particular danger to their faith from English versions of the Bible which altered the true meaning of the Scriptures. To meet this danger there was urgent need of a more faithful, a Catholic, version. This need was met by the “Rheims and Douay Version.” It was so called because the New Testament was printed at Rheims in 1582, and the Old Testament at Douay in 1609-10. It was the work of exiled English priests and educators, the chief of whom was Dr. Gregory Martin.

The Rheims-Douay remained the standard English version for Catholic use until near the time of the American Revolution. By this time the language had passed through many of those changes which are natural to all living tongues. It was Bishop Challoner, Vicar Apostolic of the London District, who saw the pressing need of an English version of the Bible more in keeping with the time. In spite of his heavy pastoral labors, he produced a new version of the entire Bible in English in 1750. Challoner regarded his work as merely a revision of the Rheims-Douay, as its title page shows. The Catholic version in English which is best known to us all, both in England and in America, is still practically that of Challoner. Other Catholic scholars sought to improve on his work, and some of our current editions are indebted to them as well; but Challoner's Bible has been the framework and the substance of our own down to the present time.

But, in its turn, Challoner's version has suffered loss of value because of progressive changes in our language. The consequent need of revision in which it stands has been recognized for a long time. Challoner's text was made the approved English version for Catholics in America by the Archbishop of Baltimore and the Bishops of the United States in 1810. The approbation was confirmed by the Hierarchy at the First Provincial Council of Baltimore (1829), but at the same time the emendation of the “Douay” text, as Challoner's was still described, was earnestly recommended. This matter of the improvement of Challoner's version came up again at the Ninth Provincial Council of Baltimore (1858). The Sacred Congregation de Propaganda Fide sanctioned in a particular way this desire for a better vernacular version, suggesting that it be entrusted to a group of theologians experienced in biblical studies.

Notwithstanding this encouragement to undertake a revision of the approved version, the closing decades of the last century, and the first of the present century, found the Church in America too much occupied with other concerns and not sufficiently equipped to attempt this work. Archbishop Kenrick undertook the great task of revising the entire Bible, but his work never met with general acceptance. The result was that we have continued to use editions of the English Bible which are, in language and substance, the text that Bishop Challoner gave us a hundred and ninety years ago.

The passage of time has neither lessened the weaknesses of this version nor done away with the demand for its improvement. In the meantime, however, the number of priests in America trained in the theological sciences, and notably in the specialized discipline of biblical studies, has greatly increased. Parallel to this growth there has been a marked increase of popular interest in the study of Holy Scripture. This progress has brought to light again the unsatisfactory condition of our vernacular version, it has reawakened the desire for a version accommodated to the needs of our time, and it has called attention to the fact that we now possess the adequate means to produce a worthy English text.

The English version which is presented in this volume is the answer of the Church in America to this need. Its preparation was requested and supervised by the Episcopal Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. The principles upon which it rests were submitted to the Secretary and to other members of the Biblical Commission at Rome, and received complete approval. It is the accomplishment of some twenty-seven Catholic biblical scholars, all men of training and experience in their particular field, who have devoted more than five years to the work. Many other scholars have had part in it, whether as special editors or as critics. It enjoys, therefore, in the first place the authority necessary in any serious attempt to meet the requirements of an improved Catholic version in English. And it claims a scholarship commensurate with that authority.

While new in many of its aspects, this text is not a new version, but a revision of the work done by Bishop Challoner. While that venerable text has lost a great deal of its value with the lapse of time, it retains much that is commendable. To produce the type of version required in our day, it was necessary to eliminate many of the characteristics of the older version, and even to change many of its familiar passages; but there was no reason for setting it aside entirely. In fact, this revised text can claim the advantage of preserving in an improved form the version to which English-speaking Catholics have become accustomed.

The English text now being presented retains as much as possible of the version it seeks to replace. And yet, in striving for expression that is modern, much of the general style of Challoner's work has been improved upon. Many terms found in his version are no longer current in the sense in which he used them. The close adherence to Latin sentence structure, so evident in his text, is not the usage of our time. Such modifications are inevitable. It may be stated, however, that only such alterations in the Challoner text have been made in the revised edition as were necessary to give a simple and clear modern version.

However, this present text is much more than an effort to bring the language of Challoner's version into conformity with modern English idiom. It is a revision in the sense that it goes back to the source upon which Challoner drew, and reconsiders in a thorough way the accurate rendering of the divine message in the language of our day.

Like both the Rheims and the Challoner versions, the revised text rests upon the Latin Vulgate. This has been made necessary by a desire to have the version available for liturgical use. The excellence of the Vulgate as an ancient interpretation of the New Testament is an added advantage. The Clementine edition of the Vulgate is the main source of this revision. The readings of the Clementine, however, have been improved in not a few instances by recourse to the witnesses for a more ancient text of the Vulgate. This tends to bring the text basic to the present version very close to the modern critical editions of the original Greek. Where the Latin text differs from the Greek in such a way as to affect the meaning, attention is called to the fact in the footnotes.

One immediate influence of the Vulgate will be observed in the spelling of proper names. The Latin form has been retained as more familiar to Catholics, and in some instances closer to the original pronunciation.

In addition to improving on Challoner's use of the Latin text, the revised version will show the results of a more thorough method of interpretation. The Latin text often reflects the peculiarities and idiom of its Semitic and Greek origin. In accordance with the rules of sound biblical interpretation, the present version takes this into account; and when the Latin text clearly supposes such elements, it renders them in the sense that is native to them.

In no case, however, has the Latin text been set aside in favor of the Greek. It can, therefore, be said that the present version is in every sense a translation of the Vulgate.

This revised version is presented with the confidence that it will advance the reading and appreciation of the New Testament. It is offered with the hope that it may awaken new interest in the Word of God, and that it may bring to God's children the manifold blessings of His Letter to them. At the same time, it is presented with the humble prayer that, as it has been prepared with all diligence and care, it may not interpret the divine message in any way except in the full sense intended by the Holy Spirit. It is He who has given it to us for our instruction, and that we may have hope. (Rom. 15, 4.)

The Four Gospels

THE LATIN word commonly used for Gospel is evangelium, a term derived from the Greek. In the New Testament it means the glad news of salvation, first brought to earth by the Son of God, and afterwards delivered by word of mouth to the world by the Apostles. About the end of the first century or the beginning of the second, this word was applied to the books containing this glad news, and their authors were called "evangelists." The English word to express this Latin evangelium is "Gospel," from the Anglo-Saxon godspel, an abbreviated form of goodspell, i. e., "good tidings."

Though many non-inspired, or apocryphal, gospels eventually made their appearance, from the earliest period of ecclesiastical history only four Gospels were recognized as inspired and canonical. They contain the Gospel in four forms, or as the oldest titles express it, the Gospel according to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. St. Irenæus, writing during the latter half of the second century, points out that our four Gospels were the only recognized ones: "It is not possible that the Gospels can be either more or fewer in number than they are." Origen tersely sums up the teaching of the Church for the first half of the third century when he says, "The Church has four Gospels, heretics have many more."

The four evangelists and their Gospels were believed to have been prefigured by the four living creatures mentioned in the vision of Ezekiel (1, 10). Explanations varied, but the opinion of St. Jerome is now the prevailing one. St. Matthew is symbolized by the "man," because he commences his Gospel with Christ's earthly ancestry and stresses His human and kingly character. St. Mark is represented by the "lion," because he starts his Gospel with St. John the Baptist, "the voice of one crying in the desert," and emphasizes the miraculous powers of the Savior. St. Luke is typified by the "ox," the animal of sacrifice, because he begins with the history of Zachary the priest offering sacrifice to God, and accentuates the universal priesthood of Christ. St. John is expressed by the "eagle," because from the very beginning of his Gospel he soars above the things of the earth and time and dwells upon the divine origin and nature of Jesus.

The titles prefixed to the four Gospels, though not original, are of early date. They are mentioned in the latter part of the second century in the churches of Lyons, Rome and Alexandria. Thus one can reasonably conclude that they were added to the Gospels during the first half of the second century. These titles indicate the human or secondary authors and not that the Gospels were written merely according to the preaching, mind or authority of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John.

Our present order of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John is chronological and sanctioned by tradition. The first three, though distinct in many ways, show a striking resemblance in content and form. They adopt a simple and convenient plan for the life of Jesus, the arrangement of which appears summarily in the preaching of St. Peter (Acts 10, 37-41): 1. His preparation for His ministry; 2. His preaching in Galilee; 3. His journey from Galilee to Jerusalem; 4. The last week in Jerusalem, together with His Passion, Death and Resurrection. Hence they are called the "Synoptists" and their writings the "Synoptic Gospels," because, whenever they are placed in parallel columns or are otherwise compared, they give us at a glance the same general view of our Lord's life. The fourth Gospel, on the contrary, written at the close of the first century, contains much new material, but in certain parts, either common or related to the Synoptic Gospels, St. John supplements them and thus prevents a false interpretation of their writings.

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ according to SAINT MATTHEW

ST. MATTHEW, one of the twelve Apostles, is the author of the first Gospel. This has been the constant tradition of the Church and is confirmed by the Gospel itself. He was the son of Alpheus and was called to be an Apostle while sitting in the tax-collector's place at Capharnaum. Before his conversion he was a publican, i.e., a tax-collector by profession. He is to be identified with the "Levi" of Mark and Luke. His apostolic activity was at first restricted to the communities of Palestine. Nothing definite is known about his later life. There is a tradition that points to Ethiopia as his field of labor; other traditions make mention of Parthia and Persia. It is likewise uncertain whether he died a natural death or received the crown of martyrdom. His feast is celebrated on September 21.

His Gospel was written to fill a sorely felt want for his fellow-countrymen, both believers and unbelievers. For the former it served as a token of his regard and as an encouragement in the trial to come, especially the danger of falling back to Judaism; for the latter it was designed to convince them that the Messiah had come in the Person of Jesus, our Lord, in whom all the promises of the messianic kingdom embracing all people had been fulfilled in a spiritual rather than in a carnal way: "My kingdom is not of this world." His Gospel, then, answered the question put by the disciples of St. John the Baptist, "Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?"

Writing for his countrymen of Palestine, St. Matthew composed his Gospel in his native Aramaic, the "Hebrew tongue" mentioned in the Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles. Soon afterwards, about the time of the persecution of Herod Agrippa I in 42 A.D., he took his departure for other lands. Another tradition places the composition of his Gospel either between the time of this departure and the Council of Jerusalem, i.e., between 42 A.D. and 50 A.D., or even later. Definitely, however, the Gospel itself, depicting the Holy City with its altar and temple as still existing, and without any reference to the fulfillment of our Lord's prophecy, shows that it was written before the destruction of the city by the Romans (70 A.D.), and this internal evidence confirms the early traditions.

The Gospel was soon translated into Greek—possibly during the lifetime of St. Matthew or a little later; certainly before the close of the first century. The original has been lost in the course of time. The Greek text, however, is in substantial conformity with the original. St. Matthew's Gospel, then, was the only book of the New Testament written in a language other than the Greek common to the people of the Empire.

Prelude:

The Coming of The Savior

CHAPTER 1

Genealogy of Jesus

THE BOOK of the origin of Jesus Christ, the Son of David, ^a the son of Abraham.

2 Abraham ^b begot Isaac, Isaac begot Jacob, Jacob begot Judas and his brethren.

3 Judas ^c begot Phares and Zara of Thamar, Phares begot Esron, Esron begot Aram.

4 And Aram begot Aminadab, ^d Aminadab begot Naasson, Naasson begot Salmon.

5 Salmon begot Booz of Rahab. Booz ^e begot Obed of Ruth, Obed begot Jesse, Jesse begot David the king.

6 ^f And David the king begot Solomon of the former wife of Urias.

a 1-17: Luke 3, 23-38.—b Gen. 21, 3; 25, 25; 29, 35.—c Gen. 38, 29f; Ruth 4, 18; 1 Par. 2, 4f.—d Num. 7, 12; Ruth 4, 20.—e Ruth 4, 21.—f 1 Kgs. 16, 1; 2 Kgs. 12, 24.

7 Solomon begot Roboam, g Roboam begot Abia, Abia begot Asa.

8 And Asa begot Josaphat, h Josaphat begot Joram, Joram begot Ozias.

9 And Ozias i begot Joatham, Joatham begot Achaz, Achaz begot Ezechias.

10 And Ezechias j begot Manasses, Manasses begot Amon, Amon begot Josias.

11 And Josias k begot Jechonias and his brethren at the time of the carrying away to Babylon.

12 And after the carrying away to Babylon Jechonias begot Salathiel, Salathiel begot Zorobabel.

13 And Zorobabel begot Abiud, Abiud begot Eliachim, Eliachim begot Azor.

14 And Azor begot Sadoc, Sadoc begot Achim, Achim begot Eliud.

15 And Eliud begot Eleazar, Eleazar begot Matthan, Matthan begot Jacob.

16 And Jacob begot Joseph, the husband of Mary, and of her was born Jesus who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David to the carrying away to Babylon fourteen generations; and from the carrying away to Babylon to Christ fourteen generations.

The Virgin Birth

18 Now the origin of Christ was in this wise. When Mary his mother had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came to-g 3 Kgs. 11, 43; 14, 31; 15, 8.—h 3 Kgs. 15, 24; 4 Kgs. 8, 16.—i 2 Par. 26, 23; 27, 9; 28, 27.—j 2 Par. 32, 33; 33, 20; 33, 25.—k 2 Par. 36, 1.—l 20f: Luke 1, 31. 35.—m Isa. 7, 14.—n Luke 2, 1-7.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. Jesus is the Greek and Latin form of the late Hebrew and Aramaic name Jeshua, meaning "The Lord is salvation." The name of the Hebrew leader Joshua also takes the Greek form Jesus in Acts 7, 45; Heb. 4, 8; Jude 5; in these our Savior is not the subject. Christ: in v. 17 and elsewhere, a title, from the Greek Christos, which translates the Hebrew Mashiah, "Anointed One," specially applied to the expected representative of God on earth. St. Matthew in v. 1 uses "Jesus Christ" as a proper name, as was customary in later Christian circles. Cf. John 1, 17; Phil. 2, 11.

Ver. 8. Joram begot Ozias: not directly, but with three generations intervening. Cf. 4 Kgs. 8, 24-26; 11, 12; 12, 1. 20f; 2 Par. 25, 25-26, 1.

Ver. 16. The genealogy is that of Joseph, the legal father of Jesus. Mary also belonged to the house of David. This is not affirmed in the Gospels, but it is presupposed by such texts as Rom. 1, 3; 2 Tim. 2, 8. It is also the affirmation of tradition. Thus St. Justin Martyr speaks of Mary as a "virgin of the race of David," in his "Dialogue with Trypho," XIII, 1.

Ver. 17. Fourteen generations: in the second series (7-11) if "Joachim" precedes Jechonias, as in some manuscripts, or if the latter is counted twice.

gether, she was found to be with child by the Holy Spirit.

19 But Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not wishing to expose her to reproach, was minded to put her away privately.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying, l "Do not be afraid, Joseph, son of David, to take to thee Mary thy wife, for that which is begotten in her is of the Holy Spirit.

21 And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shall call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins."

22 Now all this came to pass that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled.

23 *Behold, m the virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son; and they shall call his name Emmanuel; which is, interpreted, "God with us."*

24 So Joseph, arising from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had commanded him, and took unto him his wife.

25 And he did not know her till she brought forth her firstborn son. And he called his name Jesus.

CHAPTER 2

The Magi

Now when Jesus n was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of King Herod, behold, Magi came from the East to Jerusalem,

Ver. 19. Supposing only a natural explanation of her condition, Joseph, as just, might not proceed to marriage before the law, while his conviction of her innocence made him unwilling to expose her to reproach. Private divorce without a stated reason seemed the only solution; cf. Deut. 24, 1.

Ver. 23. This and many other citations from the Old Testament are set off in italics because of their importance.

Ver. 25. Till: the word may mark a point of time up to which a state, an action or inaction continues, without implying any change thereafter; see Ps. 109, 1; Matt. 12, 20; 1 Tim. 4, 13. Firstborn: does not imply that Mary ever bore another child. Among the Jews this title belonged to an only child (if a son) to mark his rights and duties under the Law [Ex. 13, 2; Num. 8, 17]. Popular language also applied it thus, as shown by the Greek inscription on a Hebrew tomb of this same period. Thus the apostolic doctrine of Mary's perpetual virginity is in no way denied by these words.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1-12. The first-fruits of the Gentiles seek the newborn king of the Jews, and pay Him honor as Christ and God.

2 saying, "Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the East and have come to worship him."

3 But when King Herod heard this, he was troubled, and so was all Jerusalem with him.

4 And gathering together all the chief priests and Scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ was to be born.

5 And they said to him, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 o And thou, Bethlehem, of the land of Juda, art by no means least among the princes of Juda; for from thee shall come forth a leader who shall rule my people Israel."

7 Then Herod summoned the Magi secretly, and carefully ascertained from them the time when the star had appeared to them.

8 And sending them to Bethlehem, he said, "Go and make careful inquiry concerning the child, and when you have found him, bring me word, that I too may go and worship him."

9 Now they, having heard the king, went their way. And behold, the star that they had seen in the East went before them, until it came and stood over the place where the child was.

10 And when they saw the star they rejoiced exceedingly.

11 And entering the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they worshipped him. And opening their treasures they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

12 And being warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they went back to their own country by another way.

The Flight into Egypt

13 But when they had departed, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph, saying, "Arise, and take the child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and remain there until I tell thee. For Herod will seek the child to destroy him."

14 So he arose, and took the child and his mother by night, and withdrew into Egypt,

Ver. 2. His star: perhaps a miraculously governed meteor, star or comet.
Chap. 3, Ver. 2. The kingdom of heaven: more

15 and remained there until the death of Herod; that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled, p Out of Egypt I called my son.

The Innocents

16 Then Herod, seeing that he had been tricked by the Magi, was exceedingly angry; and he sent and slew all the boys in Bethlehem and all its neighborhood who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had carefully ascertained from the Magi.

17 q Then was fulfilled what was spoken through Jeremias the prophet.

18 A voice was heard in Rama, weeping and loud lamentation; Rachel weeping for her children, and she would not be comforted, because they are no more.

The Return to Nazareth

19 But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt,

20 saying, "Arise, and take the child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel, for those who sought the child's life are dead."

21 So he arose and took the child and his mother, and went into the land of Israel.

22 But hearing that Archelaus was reigning in Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there; and being warned in a dream, he withdrew into the region of Galilee.

23 And he went and settled in a town called Nazareth; that there might be fulfilled what was spoken through the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

CHAPTER 3

John the Baptist

NOW in those days r John the Baptist came, preaching in the desert of Judea,

2 and saying, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

o Mich. 5, 2.—p Os. 11, 1.—q 17f: Jer. 31, 15.—r 1-12; Mark 1, 2-8; Luke 3, 2-18.

familiar to Jews, this is Matthew's usual expression for the "kingdom of God" found elsewhere in the New Testament. Cf. Dan. 2, 44; and 7, 13f.

3 For this is he who was spoken of through Isaias the prophet, when he said, s The voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths."

4 But John himself had a garment of camel's hair and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his food was locusts and wild honey.

5 Then there went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region about the Jordan;

6 and they were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, "Brood of vipers! who has shown you how to flee from the wrath to come?"

8 Bring forth therefore fruit befitting repentance,

9 and do not think to say within yourselves, t 'We have Abraham for our father'; for I say to you that God is able out of these stones to raise up children to Abraham.

10 For even now the axe is laid at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that is not bringing forth good fruit is to be cut down and thrown into the fire.

11 u I indeed baptize you with water, for repentance. But he who is coming after me is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to bear. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire.

12 His winnowing fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly clean out his threshing floor, and will gather his wheat into the barn; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire."

The Baptism of Jesus

13 v Then Jesus came from Galilee to John, at the Jordan, to be baptized by him.

14 And John was for hindering him, and said, "It is I who ought to be baptized by thee, and dost thou come to me?"

15 But Jesus answered and said to him, "Let it be so now, for so it becomes us to fulfill all justice." Then he permitted him.

16 And when Jesus had been baptized, he immediately came up from the water. And behold, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a dove and coming upon him.

17 And behold, a voice from the heavens said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

CHAPTER 4

The Temptation

THEN Jesus w was led into the desert by the Spirit, to be tempted by the devil.

2 And after fasting forty days and forty nights, he was hungry.

3 And the tempter came and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, command that these stones become loaves of bread."

4 But he answered and said, "It is written, x Not by bread alone does man live, but by every word that comes forth from the mouth of God."

5 Then the devil took him into the holy city and set him on the pinnacle of the temple,

6 and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, throw thyself down; for it is written, y He will give his angels charge concerning thee; and upon their hands they shall bear thee up, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

7 Jesus said to him, "It is written further, z Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

8 Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them.

9 And he said to him, "All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me."

10 Then Jesus said to him, "Begone, Satan! for it is written, a The Lord thy God shalt thou worship and him only shalt thou serve."

11 Then the devil left him; and behold, angels came and ministered to him.

II

Jesus in Capernaum

12 Now when he heard that John had been delivered up, b he withdrew into Galilee.

s Isa. 40, 3.—t John 8, 33, 39.—u John 1, 15, 24-28, v 13-17; Mark 1, 9-11; Luke 3, 21f; John 1, 31-34.—w 1-11; Mark 1, 12f; Luke 4, 1-13.—x Deut. 8, 3.—y Ps. 90, 11f.—z Deut. 6, 16.—a Deut. 6, 13.—b 12-17; Mark 1, 14f; Luke 4, 14, 31.

13 And leaving the town of Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capharnaum, which is by the sea, in the territory of Zabulon and Nephthalim;

14 that what was spoken through Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled:

15 c Land of Zabulon and land of Nephthalim, by the way to the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles:

16 The people who sat in darkness have seen a great light; and upon those who sat in the region and shadow of death, a light has arisen.

17 From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

The First Disciples Called

18 As he was walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw d two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and his brother Andrew, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishermen).

19 And he said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

20 And at once they left the nets, and followed him.

21 And going farther on, he saw two other brothers, James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John, in a boat with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them.

22 And immediately they left their nets and their father, and followed him.

Mission of Preaching and Miracles

23 And e Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every sickness among the people.

24 And his fame spread into all Syria; and they brought to him all the sick suffering from various diseases and torments, those possessed, and lunatics, and paralytics; and he cured them.

25 And large crowds f followed him from Galilee and Decapolis and Jerusalem and Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

c 15f: Isa. 9, 1f.—d 18-22: Mark 1, 16-20; Luke 5, 1-11.—e Mark 1, 39; Luke 4, 15, 44.—f Mark 3, 7; Luke 6, 17-19.—g 3-12: Luke 6, 20-23.—h Ps. 36,

III

CHAPTER 5

The Beatitudes

AND seeing the crowds, he went up the mountain. And when he was seated, his disciples came to him.

2 And opening his mouth he taught them, saying,

3 g "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 h Blessed are the meek, for they shall possess the earth.

5 i Blessed are they who mourn, for they shall be comforted.

6 Blessed are they who hunger and thirst for justice, for they shall be satisfied.

7 Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

8 j Blessed are the clean of heart, for they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called children of God.

10 k Blessed are they who suffer persecution for justice' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

11 Blessed are you when men reproach you, and persecute you, and, speaking falsely, say all manner of evil against you, for my sake.

12 Rejoice and exult, because your reward is great in heaven; for so did they persecute the prophets who were before you.

The Disciples Compared to Salt and Light

13 "You are the salt of the earth; l but if the salt loses its strength, what shall it be salted with? It is no longer of any use but to be thrown out and trodden underfoot by men.

14 You are the light of the world. A city set on a mountain cannot be hidden.

15 m Neither do men light a lamp and put it under the measure, but upon the lamp-stand, so as to give light to all in the house.

11.—i Isa. 61, 2f; Apoc. 21, 4.—j Pss. 23, 4; 72, 1.—k 1 Pet. 2, 20; 3, 14; 4, 14.—l Mark 9, 49; Luke 14, 34f.—m Mark 4, 21.

Chap. 5, Ver. 8. The clean of heart: those free from sin and single-hearted.

16 Even so let your light shine before men, in order that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.

The Old Law and the New

17 "Do not think that I have come to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I have not come to destroy, but to fulfill.

18 ⁿ For amen I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, not one jot or one tittle shall be lost from the Law till all things have been accomplished.

19 Therefore whoever does away with one of these least commandments, and so teaches men, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever carries them out and teaches them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

20 For I say to you that unless your justice exceeds that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven.

Against Anger

21 "You have heard that it was said to the ancients, ^o 'Thou shalt not kill'; and that whoever shall kill shall be liable to judgment.

22 But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment; and whoever says to his brother, 'Raca,' shall be liable to the Sanhedrin; and whoever says, 'Thou fool!', shall be liable to the fire of Gehenna.

23 Therefore, if thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother has anything against thee, 24 leave thy gift before the altar and go first to be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.

25 Come to terms ^p with thy opponent quickly while thou art with him on the way; lest thy opponent deliver thee to the judge, and the judge to the officer, and thou be cast into prison.

26 Amen I say to thee, thou wilt not come out from it until thou hast paid the last penny.

Chastity of Mind and Body

27 "You have heard that it was said to the ancients, ^q 'Thou shalt not commit adultery.'

28 But I say to you that anyone who so much as looks with lust at a woman has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

29 So if thy right eye ^r is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that one of thy members should perish than that thy whole body should be thrown into hell.

30 And if thy right hand is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that one of thy members should be lost than that thy whole body should go into hell.

Divorce

31 "It was said, moreover, ^s 'Whoever puts away his wife, let him give her a written notice of dismissal.'

32 But I say to you that everyone who puts away his wife, save on account of immorality, ^t causes her to commit adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away commits adultery.

Concerning Oaths

33 "Again, you have heard that it was said to the ancients, ^u 'Thou shalt not swear falsely, but fulfill thy oaths to the Lord.'

34 But I say to you not to swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God;

ⁿ Luke 16, 17.—^o Ex. 20, 13; Deut. 5, 17.—^p 25f: Luke 12, 58f.—^q Ex. 20, 14; Deut. 5, 18.—^r 29f: 18, 8f; Mark 9, 42, 46.—^s Matt. 19, 3-9; Deut.

Ver. 18. Amen: a Hebrew word meaning "firmly" or "surely," prefixed by Christ to statements of especial solemnity.

Ver. 21. To judgment: by the local court.

Ver. 22. Raca: means "empty-headed." Fool: seems to denote a rebel against God; cf. Ps. 13, 1. Gehenna: originally the "Valley of Hinnom," where the bodies of criminals were burnt after execution of sentence. In the New Testament the name is usually applied to hell.

Ver. 32. Cf. Matt. 19, 9. Unfaithfulness justifies separation from bed and board, but the bond of marriage remains unbroken. This truth is clear enough from the conclusion of this verse, and still clearer in Mark 10, 11; Luke 16, 18; Rom. 7, 2; 1 Cor. 7, 10f. 39.

35 Nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; v nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King.

36 Neither do thou swear by thy head, for thou canst not make one hair white or black.

37 But let your speech be, w 'Yes, yes'; 'No, no'; and whatever is beyond these comes from the evil one.

The New Law of Talion

38 "You have heard that it was said, x 'An eye for an eye,' and, 'A tooth for a tooth.'

39 But I say to you not to resist the evildoer y; on the contrary, if someone strike thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also;

40 and if anyone would go to law with thee and take thy tunic, let him take thy cloak as well;

41 and whoever forces thee to go for one mile, go with him two.

42 To him who asks of thee, give; z and from him who would borrow of thee, do not turn away.

The Love of Enemies

43 "You have heard that it was said, a 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and shalt hate thy enemy.'

44 But I say to you, love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who persecute and calumniate you, 45 so that you may be children of your Father in heaven, who makes his sun to rise on the good and the evil, and sends rain on the just and the unjust.

46 For if you love those that love you, what reward shall you have? Do not even the publicans do that?

47 And if you salute your brethren only, what are you doing more than others? Do not even the Gentiles do that?

48 You therefore are to be perfect, even as your heavenly Father is perfect.

v Isa. 66, 1.—w Jas. 5, 12.—x Lev. 24, 19f.—y 39-48: Luke 6, 27-36.—z Deut. 15, 7f.—a Lev. 19, 18.—b Luke 11, 2ff.

Ver. 44. Do good to those who hate you: wanting in the best Greek sources, as are also the words and calumniate. After love your enemies, some Greek and other ancient sources add, "bless those who curse you."

Chap. 6, Ver. 5. Though kneeling for prayer was not unknown among the Jews [3 Kgs. 8, 54; 19, 18;

CHAPTER 6

Purity of Intention

"TAKE HEED not to do your good before men, in order to be seen by them; otherwise you shall have no reward with your Father in heaven.

Almsgiving

2 "Therefore when thou givest alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and streets, in order that they may be honored by men. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward.

3 But when thou givest alms, do not let thy left hand know what thy right hand is doing,

4 so that thy alms may be given in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

Prayer

5 "Again, when you pray, you shall not be like the hypocrites, who love to pray standing in the synagogues and at the street corners, in order that they may be seen by men. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward.

6 But when thou prayest, go into thy room, and closing thy door, pray to thy Father in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

7 But in praying, do not multiply words, as the Gentiles do; for they think that by saying a great deal, they will be heard.

8 So do not be like them; for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.

9 In this manner therefore shall you pray:

b 'Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.

10 Thy kingdom come, thy will be done
on earth, as it is in heaven.

11 Give us this day our daily bread.

Dan. 6, 10; Luke 22, 41; Acts 9, 40], the common practice was to pray standing erect [1 Kgs. 1, 26; Mark 11, 25; Luke 18, 11].

Ver. 11. Daily: found in some codices of the Vulgate, for "super-substantial," and the Greek original of this word is translated "daily" in Luke 11, 3.

12 And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.

13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.^f

14 For ^c if you forgive men their offenses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you your offenses.

15 But if you do not forgive men, neither will your Father forgive you your offenses.

Fasting

16 "And when you fast do not look gloomy like the hypocrites, who disfigure their faces in order to appear to men as fasting. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward.

17 But thou, when thou dost fast, anoint thy head and wash thy face, 18 so that thou mayest not be seen fasting by men, but by thy Father, who is in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

True Riches

19 "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where rust and moth consume, ^d and where thieves break in and steal;

20 but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither rust nor moth consumes, nor thieves break in and steal.

21 For where thy treasure is, there also will thy heart be.

22 The lamp of the body is the eye. ^e If thy eye be sound, thy whole body will be full of light.

23 But if thy eye be evil, thy whole body will be full of darkness. Therefore if the light that is in thee is darkness, how great is the darkness itself!

24 No man can serve two masters; ^f for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will stand by the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.

Trust in God

25 "Therefore I say to you, do not be anxious for your life, ^g what you shall eat; nor yet for your body, what you shall put on. Is not the life a greater thing than the food, and the body than the clothing?

26 Look at the birds of the air: they do not sow, or reap, or gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are not you of much more value than they?

27 But which of you by being anxious about it can add to his stature a single cubit?

28 And as for clothing, why are you anxious? Consider how the lilies of the field grow; they neither toil nor spin, 29 yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.

30 But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which flourishes today but tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more you, O you of little faith!

31 "Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or, 'What shall we drink?' or, 'What are we to put on?'

32 (for after all these things the Gentiles seek); for your Father knows that you need all these things.

33 But seek first the kingdom of God and his justice, and all these things shall be given you besides.

34 Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow; for tomorrow will have anxieties of its own. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble.

CHAPTER 7

Avoiding Judgments

"DO NOT JUDGE, ^h that you may not be judged.

2 For with what judgment you judge, you shall be judged; and with what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you.

3 But why dost thou see the speck in thy brother's eye, ⁱ and yet dost not consider the beam in thy own eye?

4 Or how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Let me cast out the speck from thy eye'; and behold, there is a beam in thy own eye?

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam from thy own eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the speck from thy brother's eye.

^c Matt. 18, 35; Mark 11, 25.—^d Luke 12, 33.—^e Luke 11, 34-36.—^f Luke 16, 13.—^g 25-33: Luke 12, 22-31.—^h 1f: Mark 4, 24; Luke 6, 37f.—ⁱ 3-5: Luke 6, 41f.

Ver. 24. Mammon: worldly goods.

6 Do not give to dogs what is holy, neither cast your pearls before swine, or they will trample them under their feet and turn and tear you.

Power of Prayer

7 "Ask, and it shall be given you; i seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you.

8 For everyone who asks, receives; and he who seeks, finds; and to him who knocks, it shall be opened.

9 Or what man is there among you, who, if his son asks him for a loaf, will hand him a stone;

10 or if he asks for a fish, will hand him a serpent?

11 Therefore, if you, evil as you are, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

The Golden Rule

12 "Therefore all that you wish men to do to you, k even so do you also to them; for this is the Law and the Prophets.

Obstacles to Virtue

13 "Enter by the narrow gate.^{l} For wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and many there are who enter that way.

14 How narrow the gate and close the way that leads to life! And few there are who find it.

15 Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravenous wolves.

16 By their fruits you will know them. Do men gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles?

17 Even so, every good tree bears m good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit.

18 A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit.

19 Every tree n that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

20 Therefore, by their fruits you will know them.

21 Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he who does the will of my Father in heaven shall enter the kingdom of heaven.

22 Many will say to me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in thy name, and cast out devils in thy name, and work many miracles in thy name?'

23 And then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you. o Depart from me, you workers of iniquity!'

Conclusion of the Sermon

24 "Everyone therefore who hears these my words p and acts upon them, shall be likened to a wise man who built his house on rock.

25 And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, but it did not fall, because it was founded on rock.

26 And everyone who hears these my words and does not act upon them, shall be likened to a foolish man who built his house on sand.

27 And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell, and was utterly ruined."

Epilogue

28 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these words, that the crowds were astonished at his teaching;

29 for he was teaching them as one having authority, and not as their Scribes and Pharisees.

CHAPTER 8

A Leper

NOW when he had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him.

2 And behold, a leper came up and worshipped him, saying, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean."

3 And stretching forth his hand Jesus touched him, saying, "I will; be thou made clean." And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

j 7-11: Mark 11, 24; Luke 11, 9-13.—k Luke 6, 31.—l Luke 13, 24.—m Matt. 12, 33.—n Matt. 3, 10.—o Luke 13, 27; Pss. 6, 9; 118, 115.—p 24-27: Luke 6, 47-49.

4 And Jesus said to him, q "See thou tell no one; but go, r show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a witness to them."

The Centurion's Servant

5 Now s when he had entered Capernaum, there came to him a centurion who entreated him,

6 saying, "Lord, my servant is lying sick in the house, paralyzed, and is grievously afflicted."

7 Jesus said to him, "I will come and cure him."

8 But in answer the centurion said, "Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant will be healed."

9 For I too am a man subject to authority, and have soldiers subject to me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

10 And when Jesus heard this, he marvelled, and said to those who were following him, "Amen I say to you, I have not found such great faith in Israel."

11 And I tell you that many will come from the east and from the west, and will feast with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven,

12 but the children of the kingdom will be put forth into the darkness outside; t there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth."

13 Then Jesus said to the centurion, "Go thy way; as thou hast believed, so be it done to thee." And the servant was healed in that hour.

Peter's Mother-in-law

14 And u when Jesus had come into Peter's house, he saw Peter's mother-in-law lying in bed, sick with a fever.

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she rose and began to wait on them.

q 1-4: Mark 1, 40-44; Luke 5, 12-14; Matt. 9, 30; Mark 7, 36.—r 4b: Lev. 14, 2-32; Luke 17, 14.—s 5-13: Luke 7, 1-10.—t Matt. 22, 13; 24, 51;

Chap. 8, Ver. 10. He marvelled: does not mean that the centurion's faith surprised Him, but that it met with His admiring approval.

Other Miracles

16 Now when it was evening, they brought to him many who were possessed, and he cast out the spirits with a word, and cured all who were sick;

17 that what was spoken through Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled, who said, v He himself took up our infirmities, and bore the burden of our ills.

Sacrifice to Follow

Christ

18 But when Jesus saw great crowds about him, he gave orders to go across the sea.

19 Then a Scribe came and said to him, w "Master, I will follow thee wherever thou goest."

20 But Jesus said to him, "The foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head."

21 And another, who was one of his disciples, said to him, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father."

22 But Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and leave the dead to bury their own dead."

The Storm on the Lake

23 Then x he got into a boat, and his disciples followed him.

24 And behold, there arose a great storm on the sea, so that the boat was covered by the waves; but he was asleep.

25 So they came and woke him, saying, "Lord, save us! we are perishing!"

26 But he said to them, "Why are you fearful, O you of little faith?" Then he arose and rebuked the wind and the sea, and there came a great calm.

27 And the men marvelled, saying, "What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

25, 30.—u 14-16: Mark 1, 29-34; Luke 4, 38-41.—v Isa. 53, 4.—w 19-22: Luke 9, 57-60.—x 23-27: Mark 4, 35-40; Luke 8, 22-25.

Ver. 22. One called to be a disciple of Jesus must not allow even the care of his family to interfere. Cf. Luke 9, 60.

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa

28 Now ^y when he had come to the other side, to the country of the Gerasenes, there met him two men who were possessed, coming from the tombs, so exceedingly fierce that no one could pass by that way.

29 And behold, they cried out, saying, "What have we to do with thee, Son of God? Hast thou come here to torment us before the time?"

30 Now not far from them there was a herd of many swine, feeding.

31 And the devils kept entreating him, saying, "If thou cast us out, send us into the herd of swine."

32 And he said to them, "Go!" And they came out and entered into the swine; and behold, the whole herd rushed down the cliff into the sea, and perished in the water.

33 But the swineherds fled, and going away into the town, they reported everything, and what had befallen the men possessed by demons.

34 And behold, all the town came out to meet Jesus; and on seeing him they entreated him to depart from their district.

CHAPTER 9

A Paralytic at Capharnaum

AND ^z getting into a boat, he crossed over and came to his own town.

2 And behold, they brought to him a paralytic lying on a pallet. And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Take courage, son; thy sins are forgiven thee."

3 And behold, some of the Scribes said within themselves, "This man blasphemes."

4 And Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said, "Why do you harbor evil thoughts in your hearts?"

5 For which is easier, to say, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, and walk'?

6 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—then he said to the paralytic—"Arise, take up thy pallet and go to thy house."

7 And he arose, and went away to his house.

^y 28-34: Mark 5, 1-17; Luke 8, 26-37.—^z 1-8: Mark 2, 3-12; Luke 5, 18-26.—^a 9-13: Mark 2, 14-17; Luke 5, 27-32.—^b Luke 15, 2.—^c Os. 6; 6.—

8 But when the crowds saw it, they were struck with fear, and glorified God who had given such power to men.

The Call of Matthew

9 Now ^a as Jesus passed on from there, he saw a man named Matthew sitting in the tax-collector's place, and said to him, "Follow me." And he arose and followed him.

10 And it came to pass as he was at table in the house, that, behold, many publicans and sinners came to the table with Jesus and his disciples.

11 And the Pharisees ^b seeing it, said to his disciples, "Why does your master eat with publicans and sinners?"

12 But Jesus heard it, and said, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick.

13 But go, and learn what this means: ^c 'I desire mercy, and not sacrifice.' For I have come to call sinners, not the just."

The Question of Fasting

14 At ^d that time the disciples of John came to him, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees often fast, whereas thy disciples do not fast?"

15 And Jesus said to them, "Can the wedding guests mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then they will fast.

16 And no one puts a patch of raw cloth on an old garment, for the patch tears away from the garment, and a worse rent is made.

17 Nor do people pour new wine into old wine-skins, else the skins burst, the wine is spilt, and the skins are ruined. But they put new wine into fresh skins, and both are saved."

The Ruler's Daughter; the Woman with a Hemorrhage

18 As ^e he was saying this to them, behold, a ruler came up and worshipped him, saying, "My daughter has just now

^d 14-17: Mark 2, 18-22; Luke 5, 33-38.—^e 18-26: Mark 5, 22-43; Luke 8, 41-56.

Ver. 28. Gerasenes: many Greek manuscripts read "Gadarenes."

died; but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she will return to life."

19 And Jesus arose and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 Now a woman who for twelve years had been suffering from hemorrhage, came up behind him and touched the tassel of his cloak,

21 saying to herself, f "If I touch but his cloak I shall be saved."

22 But Jesus, turning and seeing her, said, "Take courage, daughter; thy faith has saved thee." And the woman was restored to health from that moment.

23 And when Jesus came to the ruler's house, and saw the flute players and the crowd making a din, he said, 24 "Begone, the girl is asleep, not dead." And they laughed him to scorn.

25 But when the crowd had been put out, he went in and took her by the hand; and the girl arose.

26 And the report of this spread throughout all that district.

Two Blind Men

27 Now as Jesus was passing on from there, two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, "Have pity on us, Son of David!"

28 And when he had reached the house, the blind men came to him. And Jesus said to them, "Do you believe that I can do this to you?" They answered him, "Yes, Lord."

29 Then he touched their eyes, saying, "Let it be done to you according to your faith."

30 And their eyes were opened. And Jesus strictly charged them, saying, "See that no one knows of this!"

31 But they went out and spread his fame abroad throughout all that district.

A Dumb Demoniac

32 Now as they were going out, g behold, there was brought to him a dumb man possessed by a devil.

33 And when the devil had been cast

f Matt. 14, 36.—g 32-34: Matt. 12, 22-24; Luke 11, 14f.—h Mark 6, 34; Ezech. 34, 5.—i Luke 10, 2.

Chap. 10, Ver. 2. First Simon, who is called Peter: primacy in the Church belongs to Peter: cf. Matt. 16, 17-19; Luke 22, 31f; John 21, 15-17.

Ver. 4. Cananean: the surname of Simon has no connection with the tribal name "Canaanite," but is out, the dumb man spoke; and the crowds marvelled, saying, "Never has the like been seen in Israel."

34 But the Pharisees said, "By the prince of devils he casts out devils."

The Mission of the Apostles

35 And Jesus was going about all the towns and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and curing every kind of disease and infirmity.

36 But seeing the crowds, he was moved with compassion for them, h because they were bewildered and dejected, like sheep without a shepherd.

37 Then he said to his disciples, i "The harvest indeed is great, but the laborers are few.

38 Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest."

CHAPTER 10

The Mission of the Apostles

THEN j having summoned his twelve disciples, he gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to cure every kind of disease and infirmity.

2 Now these are the names of the twelve apostles: k first Simon, who is called Peter, and his brother Andrew;

3 James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John; Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus;

4 Simon the Cananean, and Judas Iscariot, he who betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, having instructed them thus: "Do not go in the direction of the Gentiles, nor enter the towns of Samaritans;

6 but go rather l to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 And as you go, preach the message, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand!"

8 Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out devils. Freely you have received, freely give.

—j 1-15: Mark 6, 7-13; Luke 9, 1-5.—k 2-4: Mark 3, 14-19; Luke 6, 13-16; Acts 1, 13.—l Matt. 15, 24.

the Hebrew source of the Greek word for "zealot" [cf. Mark 3, 18; Luke 6, 15; Acts 1, 13], denoting a member of a class conspicuous in its opposition to foreign power.

Ver. 5. Towns: the Greek text has "a town."

9 Do not keep gold, or silver, or money in your girdles,

10 no wallet for your journey, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor staff; for the laborer deserves his living.

11 And whatever town or village you enter, inquire who in it is worthy; and stay there until you leave.

12 As you enter the house, salute it.

13 If then that house be worthy, your peace will come upon it; but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.

14 And whoever does not receive you, or listen to your words—go forth outside that house or town, and shake off the dust from your feet.

15 Amen I say to you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that town.

Opposition Foretold

16 "Behold, I am sending you forth like sheep in the midst of wolves. Be therefore wise as serpents, and guileless as doves.

17 But beware of men; for they will deliver you up to councils, and scourge you in their synagogues,

18 and you will be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a witness to them and to the Gentiles.

19 But when they deliver you up, do not be anxious how or what you are to speak; for what you are to speak will be given you in that hour.

20 For it is not you who are speaking, but the Spirit of your Father who speaks through you.

21 And brother will hand over brother to death, and the father his child; children will rise up against parents and put them to death.

22 And you will be hated m by all for my name's sake; but he who has persevered to the end will be saved.

23 When they persecute you in one town, flee to another. Amen I say to you, you will not have gone through the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

24 No disciple n is above his teacher, nor is the servant above his master.

25 It is enough for the disciple to be like his teacher, and for the servant to be like his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, o how much more those of his household!

26 Therefore do not be afraid of them. p For there is nothing concealed that will not be disclosed, and nothing hidden that will not be made known.

27 What I tell you in darkness, speak it in the light; and what you hear whispered, preach it on the housetops.

28 And do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. But rather be afraid of him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

29 Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And yet not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father's leave.

30 But as for you, the very hairs of your head are all numbered.

31 Therefore do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

32 Therefore, everyone who acknowledges me before men, I also will acknowledge him before my Father in heaven.

33 But whoever disowns me before men, q I in turn will disown him before my Father in heaven.

34 Do not think that I have come to send peace r upon the earth; I have come to bring a sword, not peace.

35 For I have come to set a man at variance with his father, s and a daughter with her mother, and a daughter-in-law with her mother-in-law;

36 and a man's enemies will be those of his own household.

37 He t who loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he who loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.

38 And he who does not take up his cross and follow me, is not worthy of me.

39 He who finds his life will lose it, u and he who loses his life for my sake, will find it.

m Matt. 24, 9, 13; John 16, 1f.—n Luke 6, 40; John 13, 16; 15, 20.—o Mark 3, 22.—p 26-33; Luke 12, 2-9; Luke 8, 17.—q Luke 9, 26.—r 34-36; Luke 12, 51-53.—s Mich. 7, 6.—t Luke 14, 26f.—u Mark 8, 35; Luke 9, 24; 17, 33; John 12, 25.

Ver. 9. Money: in the Greek, "brass."
Ver. 10. Staff: probably the cudgel used by shepherds for defense.

Ver. 12. After salute it, the words, "saying, Peace to this house," are added in many Greek and some Latin manuscripts.

40 He who receives you, receives me; and he who receives me, receives him who sent me.^v

41 He who receives a prophet because he is a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward; and he who receives a just man because he is a just man, shall receive a just man's reward.

42 And ^w whoever gives to one of these little ones but a cup of cold water to drink because he is a disciple, amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward."

CHAPTER 11

The Baptist's Deputation

Now it came to pass when Jesus had finished giving instructions to his twelve disciples, that he passed on from there to teach and preach in their towns.

2 But ^x when John had heard in prison of the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples

3 to say to him, "Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?"

4 And Jesus answering said to them, "Go and report to John what you have heard and seen:

5 the ^y blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise, the poor have the gospel preached to them.

6 And blessed is he who is not scandalized in me."

Christ's Witness Concerning John

7 Then, as they went away, Jesus began to say to the crowds concerning John, "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind?

8 But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Behold, those who wear soft garments are in the houses of kings.

9 But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet.

10 This is he of whom it is written, ^z Behold, I send my messenger before thy face,

^v Luke 10, 16; John 12, 44; 13, 20.—^w Matt. 25, 40; Mark 9, 40.—^x 2-19; Luke 7, 18-35.—^y Isa. 35, 5f; 61, 1.—^z Mark 1, 2; Mal. 3, 1.—^a Luke 16, 16.—

Ver. 41. To do anything for one of Christ's disciples is to do it for Christ. The union of Christ and the members of His mystical body is very close; in a way they are identified.

who shall make ready thy way before thee.

11 Amen I say to you, among those born of women there has not risen a greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.

12 But from the days of John the Baptist until now ^a the kingdom of heaven has been enduring violent assault, and the violent have been seizing it by force.

13 For all the Prophets and the Law have prophesied until John

14 And if you are willing to receive it, he is Elias who was to come.^b

15 He who has ears to hear, let him hear.

16 But to what shall I liken this generation? It is like children sitting in the market place,

17 who call to their companions, and say, 'We have piped to you, and you have not danced; we have sung dirges, and you have not mourned.'

18 For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, 'He has a devil!'

19 The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Behold a glutton and a wine-drinker, a friend of publicans and sinners!' And wisdom is justified by her children."

The Impenitent Towns

20 Then he began to reproach the towns in which most of his miracles were worked, because they had not repented.

21 ^c "Woe to thee, Corozain! woe to thee, Bethsaida! For if in Tyre and Sidon had been worked the miracles that have been worked in you, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

22 But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgment than for you.

23 And thou, Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted to heaven? Thou shalt be thrust down to hell! For if the miracles had been worked in Sodom that have been worked in thee, it would have remained to this day.

^b Matt. 17, 10-13; Luke 1, 17; Mal. 4, 5.—^c 20-24: Luke 0, 12-15.

Chap. 11, Ver. 2f. Sent two . . . to say: the Greek reads, "sending through his disciples, said."

Ver. 6. Scandalized in me: i.e., hindered from conceiving the truth concerning Christ.

Ver. 19. By her children: the Greek reads "by her works."

24 But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom on the day of judgment than for thee."

Jesus Draws Men Gently to Himself

25 At that time Jesus spoke and said, d "I praise thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and prudent, and didst reveal them to little ones.

26 Yes, Father, for such was thy good pleasure.

27 All things have been delivered to me by my Father; e and no one knows the Son except the Father; nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and him to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

28 Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest.

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me, for I am meek and humble of heart; f and you will find rest for your souls.

30 For my yoke g is easy, and my burden light."

CHAPTER 12

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath

AT THAT TIME h Jesus went through the standing grain on the Sabbath; and his disciples being hungry began to pluck ears of grain and to eat.

2 But the Pharisees, when they saw it, said to him, "Thy disciples are doing what it is not lawful for them to do on the Sabbath."

3 But he said to them, "Have you not read i what David did when he and those with him were hungry?

4 how he entered the house of God, and ate the loaves of proposition which neither he nor those with him could lawfully eat, but only the priests? j d 25-27: Luke 10, 21f; 1 Cor. 1, 26-29.—e John 3, 35; 6, 46; 7, 28; 8, 19; etc.—f Jer. 6, 16.—g 1 John 5, 3.—h 1-8: Mark 2, 23-28; Luke 6, 1-5.

Chap. 12, Ver. 8. Jesus does not make use of His sovereign power to abrogate the Sabbath Law, but He teaches that it should be interpreted in a reasonable way. Cf. Mark 2, 24-26 and notes.

Ver. 14. Cf. Mark 3, 6. The Pharisees combine with the Herodians to put Jesus to death.

Ver. 15-21. Jesus withdrew: He doubtless gave up synagogue preaching for a time. The prohibition

5 Or have you not read in the k Law, that on the Sabbath days the priests in the temple break the Sabbath and are guiltless?

6 But I tell you that one greater than the temple is here.

7 But if you knew what this means, 'I desire mercy, and not l sacrifice,' you would never have condemned the innocent;

8 for the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath."

A Man with a Withered Hand

9 And when he had passed on from that place he entered their synagogue.

10 And m behold, a man with a withered hand was there. And they asked him, saying, "Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbath?" that they might accuse him.

11 But he said to them, n "What man is there among you who, if he has a single sheep and it falls into a pit on the Sabbath, will not take hold of it and lift it out?

12 How much better is a man than a sheep! Therefore, it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath."

13 Then he said to the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth, and it was restored, as sound as the other.

14 But the Pharisees went out and took counsel against him, how they might do away with him.

The Mercy of Jesus

15 Then, knowing this, Jesus withdrew from the place; o and many followed him and he cured them all,

16 and warned them not to make him known;

17 that what was spoken through Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled, who said,

18 Behold, p my servant, whom I have

—i 1 Kgs. 21, 6.—j Lev. 24, 5-9.—k Num. 28, 9.—l Matt. 9, 13; Os. 6, 6.—m 9-14; Mark 3, 1-6; Luke 6, 6-11; 14, 3-5.—n Deut. 22, 4.—o Mark 3, 7-12.—p Isa. 42, 1-4.

against making known His miracles, usually to be accounted for by His desire to avoid the over-excitement which kept people from giving proper attention to His preaching, was probably due in this case to the wish of avoiding conflict with the Pharisees. His meekness recalls to St. Matthew the messianic prediction about the Servant of the Lord, in Isa. 42, 1-4.

chosen, my beloved in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my Spirit upon him, and he will declare judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He will not wrangle, nor cry aloud, neither will anyone hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed he will not break, and a smoking wick he will not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory;

21 and in his name will the Gentiles hope.

Blasphemy of the Pharisees

22 Then there was brought to him a possessed man who was blind and dumb; and he cured him so that he spoke and saw.^q

23 And all the crowds were amazed, and they said, "Can this be the Son of David?"

24 But the Pharisees, ^rhearing this, said, "This man does not cast out devils except by Beelzebub, the prince of devils."

25 And knowing their thoughts Jesus said to them, ^s"Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand.

26 And if Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then shall his kingdom stand?

27 And if I cast out devils by Beelzebub, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges.

28 But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you.

29 Or, how can anyone enter the strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man? Then he will plunder his house.

30 He who is not with me is against me,

^q 22-24: Luke 11, 14f.—^r Matt. 9, 32-34; Mark 3, 22.—^s 25-29; Mark 3, 23-27; Luke 11, 17-22.—^t Luke 11, 23.—^u 31f: Mark 3, 28-30; Luke 12,

Ver. 24. The Scribes who charged that our Lord's supernatural works were to be attributed to the devil were from Jerusalem, according to Mark 3, 22.

Ver. 23. The kingdom of God has come: the victory of Jesus over the demons indicated that He was the Messiah. The king was already gathering His people.

Ver. 32. The sin against the Holy Spirit is to ascribe to the devil the works of the Holy Spirit. One who thus attacks directly this source of all grace, rejects the source of salvation. It is morally impos^t and he who does not gather with me scatters.

31 Therefore I say to you, ^uthat every kind of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven to men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven.

32 And whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven him, either in this world or in the world to come.

33 Either make the tree good and its fruit good, ^vor make the tree bad and its fruit bad; for by the fruit the tree is known.

34 You brood of vipers, how can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.

35 The good man from his good treasure brings forth good things; and the evil man from his evil treasure brings forth evil things.

36 But I tell you, that of every idle word men speak, they shall give account on the day of judgment.

37 For by thy words thou wilt be justified, and by thy words thou wilt be condemned."

The Sign of Jonas

38 Then certain of the Scribes and Pharisees answered him, saying, "Master, we would see a sign from thee."

39 But he answered and said to them, "An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign, and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas the prophet.^w

40 For even as Jonas was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights, so will the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

10.—^v Luke 6, 43-45.—^w 39-42: Mark 8, 11f; Luke 11, 29-32; Matt. 16, 4; 1 Cor. 1, 22.

sible that he should ever meet the conditions for absolution.

Ver. 36. An idle word is one which profits neither the speaker nor the hearer. If the word is merely useless, its utterance is not seriously wrong.

Ver. 39. Jesus refuses a sign asked for by the incredulous, to be given under conditions fixed by themselves. He will, however, when the time has come, give them the sign of Jonas, that is, the Resurrection.

41 The men of x Nineve will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

42 The queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; y for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

43 z But when the unclean spirit has gone out of a man, he roams through dry places in search of rest, and finds none.

44 Then he says, 'I will return to my house which I left'; and when he has come to it, he finds the place unoccupied, swept and decorated.

45 Then he goes and takes with him seven other spirits more evil than himself, and they enter in and dwell there; a and the last state of that man becomes worse than the first. So shall it be with this evil generation also."

Jesus and His Brethren

46 While he was still speaking b to the crowds, his mother and his brethren were standing outside, seeking to speak to him.

47 And someone said to him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren are standing outside, seeking thee."

48 But he answered and said to him who told him, "Who is my mother and who are my brethren?"

49 And stretching forth his hand towards his disciples, he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren!

50 For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven, he is my brother and sister and mother."

CHAPTER 13

Parable of the Sower

ON THAT DAY Jesus left the house and was sitting by the water's edge.

2 And as c great crowds gathered about him, he got into a boat and sat down. And all the crowd stood on the shore.

3 And he spoke to them many things in parables, saying, "Behold, the sower went out to sow.

4 And as he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayside, and the birds came and ate them up.

5 And other seeds fell upon rocky ground, where they had not much earth; and they sprang up at once, because they had no depth of earth;

6 but when the sun rose they were scorched, and because they had no root they withered away.

7 And other seeds fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up and choked them.

8 And other seeds fell upon good ground, and yielded fruit, some a hundredfold, some sixtyfold, and some thirtyfold.

9 He who has ears to hear, let him hear!"

10 And the disciples came up and said to him, "Why dost thou speak to them in parables?"

11 And he answered and said, "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

12 For d to him who has shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away.

13 This is why I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear, neither do they understand.

14 In them is being fulfilled the prophecy of e Isaiah, who says, Hearing you will hear, but not understand; and seeing you will see, but not perceive.

15 For the heart of this people has been hardened, and with their ears they have been hard of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their mind, and be converted, and I heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see; f and your ears, for they hear.

17 For amen I say to you, many prophets and just men have longed to see what you see, and they have not seen it; and to x Jonas 3, 5.—y 3 Kgs. 10, 1-10.—z 43-45: Luke 11, 24-26.—a 2 Pet. 2, 20.—b 46-50: Mark 3, 31-35; Luke 8, 19-21.—c 1-15: Mark 4, 1-12; Luke 8, 4-10.—d Matt. 25, 29; Mark 4, 25; Luke 8, 18; 19, 26.—e Isa. 6, 9f; John 12, 40; Acts 28, 26; Rom. 11, 8.—f Luke 10, 23f.

hear what you hear, and they have not heard it.

18 Hear, therefore, the parable g of the sower.

19 When anyone hears the word of the kingdom, but does not understand it, the wicked one comes and snatches away what has been sown in his heart. This is he who was sown by the wayside.

20 And the one sown on rocky ground, that is he who hears the word and receives it immediately with joy;

21 yet he has no root in himself, but continues only for a time, and when trouble and persecution come because of the word, he at once falls away.

22 And the one sown among the thorns, that is he who listens to the word; but the care of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and it is made fruitless.

23 And the one sown upon good ground, that is he who hears the word and understands it; he bears fruit and yields in one case a hundredfold, in another sixtyfold, and in another thirtyfold."

The Weeds

24 Another parable h he set before them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field;

25 but while men were asleep, his enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and went away.

26 And when the blade sprang up and brought forth fruit, then the weeds appeared as well.

27 And the servants of the householder came and said to him, 'Sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy field? How then does it have weeds?'

28 He said to them, 'An enemy has done this.' And the servants said to him, 'Wilt thou have us go and gather them up?'

29 'No,' he said, 'lest in gathering the weeds you root up the wheat along with them.'

30 Let both grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will say to the reapers: Gather up the weeds first and bind them in bundles to burn; but gather the wheat into my barn.' "

The Mustard Seed and the Leaven

31 Another parable i he set before them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field.

32 This indeed is the smallest of all the seeds; but when it grows up it is larger than any herb and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and dwell in its branches."

33 He told them another parable: j "The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took and buried in three measures of flour, until all of it was leavened."

34 All these things Jesus spoke to the crowds in parables, and without parables he did not speak to them;

35 that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled, k I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things hidden since the foundation of the world.

Explanation of the Parable of the Weeds

36 Then he left the crowds and went into the house. l And his disciples came to him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field."

37 So answering them he said, "He who sows the good seed is the Son of Man.

38 The field is the world; the good seed, the sons of the kingdom; the weeds, the sons of the wicked one;

39 and the enemy who sowed them is the devil. m But the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels.

40 Therefore, just as the weeds are gathered up and burnt with fire, so will it be at the end of the world.

41 The Son of Man will send forth his angels, and they will gather out of his kingdom all scandals and those who work iniquity, 42 and cast them into the furnace of fire, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.

43 Then n the just will shine forth like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears to hear, let him hear.

g 18-23: Mark 4, 13-20; Luke 8, 11-15.—h Mark 4, 26.—i Mark 4, 30-32; Luke 13, 18f.—j Luke 13, 20f.—k Ps. 77, 2.—l Mark 4, 34.—m Apoc. 14, 15.—n Wisd. 3, 7; Dan. 12, 3.

The Treasure and the Pearl

44 "The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in a field; he who finds it hides it, and in his joy goes and sells all that he has and buys that field.

45 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls.

46 When he finds a single pearl of great price, he goes and sells all that he has and buys it.

Parable of the Net

47 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea that gathered in fish of every kind.

48 When it was filled, they hauled it out, and sitting down on the beach, they gathered the good fish into vessels, but threw away the bad.

49 So will it be at the end of the world. The angels will go out and separate the wicked from among the just,

50 and will cast them into the furnace of fire, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.

Conclusion

51 "Have you understood all these things?" They said to him, "Yes."

52 And he said to them, "So then, every Scribe instructed in the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who brings forth from his storeroom things new and old."

Jesus at Nazareth

53 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these parables, that he set out from that place.

54 And when he had come to his own country, ^o he began to teach them in their synagogues, so that they were astonished, and said, "How did this man come by this wisdom and these miracles?"

55 Is not this the carpenter's son? ^p Is not his mother called Mary, and his brethren James and Joseph and Simon and Jude?

56 And his sisters, are they not all with us? Then where did he get all this?"

^o 54-58: Mark 6, 1-6; Luke 4, 16-30.—^p John 6, 42.—^q 1-12: Mark 6, 14-29; Luke 9, 7-9.—^r Luke 3,

Ver. 57. The lowliness of Jesus and of His relatives proved to be a stumbling-block for the people of 57 And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, and in his own house."

58 And because of their unbelief, he did not work many miracles there.

CHAPTER 14

Death of the Baptist

AT THAT time ^a Herod the tetrarch heard about the fame of Jesus,

2 and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are working through him."

3 For Herod ^r had taken John, and bound him, and put him in prison, because of Herodias, his brother's wife.

4 For John had said to him, ^s "It is not lawful for thee to have her."

5 And he would have liked to put him to death, but he feared the people, ^t because they regarded him as a prophet.

6 But on Herod's birthday, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.

7 Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatever she might ask of him.

8 Then she, at her mother's prompting, said, "Give me here on a dish the head of John the Baptist."

9 And grieved as he was, the king, because of his oath and his guests, commanded it to be given.

10 He sent and had John beheaded in the prison.

11 And his head was brought on a dish and given to the girl, who carried it to her mother.

12 His disciples came, took away his body, and buried it. And they went and told Jesus.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

13 When Jesus heard this, he withdrew by boat to a desert place apart; ^u but the crowds heard of it and followed him on foot from the towns.

19f.—^s Lev. 18, 16; 20, 21.—^t Matt. 21, 26.—^u 13-21: Mark 6, 32-44; Luke 9, 10-17; John 6, 1-13.

Nazareth. He was much different from the Messias they expected.

14 And when he landed, he saw a large crowd, and out of compassion for them he cured their sick.

15 Now when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, "This is a desert place and the hour is already late; send the crowds away, so that they may go into the villages and buy themselves food."

16 But Jesus said to them, "They do not need to go away; you yourselves give them some food."

17 They answered him, "We have here only five loaves and two fishes."

18 He said to them, "Bring them here to me."

19 And when he had ordered the crowd to recline on the grass, he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds.

20 And all ate and were satisfied; and they gathered up what was left over, twelve baskets full of fragments.

21 Now the number of those who had eaten was five thousand men, without counting women and children.

Jesus Walks on the Water

22 And ^v immediately afterwards he made his disciples get into the boat and cross the sea ahead of him, while he dismissed the crowd.

23 And when he had dismissed the crowd, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. And when it was late, he was there alone, 24 but the boat was in the midst of the sea, buffeted by the waves, for the wind was against them.

25 But in the fourth watch of the night he came to them, walking upon the sea.

26 And they, seeing him walking upon the sea, were greatly alarmed, and exclaimed, "It is a ghost!" And they cried out for fear.

27 Then Jesus immediately spoke to them, saying, "Take courage; it is I, do not be afraid."

28 But Peter answered him and said, "Lord, if it is thou, bid me come to thee over the water."

29 And he said, "Come." Then Peter got out of the boat and walked on the water to come to Jesus.

30 But seeing the wind was strong, he was afraid; and as he began to sink he cried out, saying, "Lord, save me!"

31 And Jesus at once stretched forth his hand and took hold of him, saying to him, "O thou of little faith, why didst thou doubt?"

32 And when they got into the boat, the wind fell.

33 But they who were in the boat came and worshipped him, saying, "Truly thou art the Son of God."

Other Miracles

34 And crossing over, they came to the land at Genesar.^w

35 The inhabitants of that place, as soon as they recognized him, sent into that whole country, and brought to him all the sick, 36 and they entreated him to let them touch but the tassel of his cloak; and all who touched it were saved.

CHAPTER 15

Jesus and the Pharisees

THEN Scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem came to him, ^x saying,

2 "Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the ancients? For they do not wash their hands when they take food."

3 But he answered and said to them, "And why do you transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition?"

4 For God said, ^y 'Honor thy father and thy mother'; and, 'Let him who curses father or mother be put to death.'

5 But you say, 'Whoever shall say to his father or mother, "Any support thou mightest have had from me is dedicated to God,"

6 does not have to honor his father or his mother.' So you have made void the commandment of God by your tradition.

7 Hypocrites, well did Isaiah prophesy of you, saying,

^v 22-33: Mark 6, 45-51; John 6, 15-21.—^w 34-36; Mark 6, 53-56.—^x 1-20: Mark 7, 1-23.—^y Ex.

20, 12; 21, 17; Lev. 20, 9; Deut. 5, 16; Prov. 20, 20; Eph. 6, 2.

8 z This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me;

9 and in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrine the precepts of men."

10 Then he called the crowd to him, and said to them, "Hear, and understand.

11 What goes into the mouth does not defile a man; but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles a man."

12 Then his disciples came up and said to him, "Dost thou know that the Pharisees have taken offense at hearing this saying?"

13 But he answered and said, a "Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be rooted up.

14 Let them alone; b they are blind guides of blind men. But if a blind man guide a blind man, both fall into a pit."

15 But Peter spoke to him, saying, "Explain to us this parable."

16 And he said, "Are you also even yet without understanding?

17 Do you not realize that whatever enters the mouth passes into the belly and is cast out into the drain?

18 But the things that proceed out of the mouth come from the heart, and it is they that defile a man.

19 For out of the heart come evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, immorality, thefts, false witness, blasphemies.

20 These are the things that defile a man; but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile a man."

IV

The Canaanite Woman

21 And leaving there, c Jesus retired to the district of Tyre and Sidon.

22 And behold, a Canaanite woman came out of that territory and cried out to him, saying, "Have pity on me, O Lord, Son of David! My daughter is sorely beset by a devil."

23 He answered her not a word. And his disciples came up and besought him, z Isa. 29, 13.—a John 15, 1f.—b Luke 6, 39.—c 21-28; Mark 7, 24-30.—d Matt. 10, 6; John 10, 3.—

Chap. 15, Ver. 11. Jesus enunciates a principle which will eventually free Christians, not only from the rabbinical traditions, but from the law concerning clean and unclean food. The Apostles themselves did not know, until they received further revelation, saying, "Send her away, for she is crying after us."

24 But he answered and said, "I was not sent d except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

25 But she came and worshipped him, saying, "Lord, help me!"

26 He said in answer, "It is not fair to take the children's bread and to cast it to the dogs."

27 But she said, "Yes, Lord; for even the dogs eat of the crumbs that fall from their masters' table."

28 Then Jesus answered and said to her, "O woman, great is thy faith! Let it be done to thee as thou wilt." And her daughter was healed from that moment.

Jesus Heals the Suffering

29 And when Jesus had departed from there, he went along the sea of Galilee; and he went up the mountain and sat there.e

30 And great crowds f came to him, bringing with them the dumb, the blind, the lame, the maimed, and many others; and they set them down at his feet, and he cured them;

31 so that the crowds marvelled to see the dumb speak, the lame walk, and the blind see. And they glorified the God of Israel.

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand

32 Then Jesus called together his disciples and said, g "I have compassion on the crowd, for they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat; and I am unwilling to send them away fasting, lest they faint on the way."

33 And the disciples said to him, "But in a desert, where are we to get enough loaves to satisfy so great a crowd?"

34 Jesus said to them, "How many loaves have you?" And they said, "Seven, and a few little fishes."

35 And he bade the crowd recline on the ground.

e 29-31: Mark 7, 31-37.—f Isa. 35, 5f.—g 32-39: Mark 8, 1-10.

that they were freed from this law. Cf. Acts 10-11. Ver. 24. The departure of our Lord for the region of Tyre and Sidon begins a period in His life in which He devotes Himself chiefly to the instruction of the Apostles. Cf. Mark 9, 29f.

36 Then taking the seven loaves and the fishes, he gave thanks, broke them and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowd.

37 And they all ate and were satisfied; and they took up what was left of the fragments, seven full baskets.

38 Now those who had eaten were four thousand men, apart from children and women.

39 When he had dismissed the crowd, he got into the boat, and came into the district of Magedan.

CHAPTER 16

The Pharisees and Sadducees Ask a Sign

AND the Pharisees and Sadducees came to him to test him, ^h and they asked him to show them a sign from heaven.

2 But answering them he said, ⁱ "When it is evening you say, 'The weather will be fair, for the sky is red.'

3 And in the morning you say, 'It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and lowering.'

4 You know then how to read the face of the sky, but cannot read the signs of the times! ^j An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign, and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas." And he left them and went away.

The Leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees

5 And when his disciples crossed the sea, they found that they had forgotten to bring bread.

6 And he said to them, ^k "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees!"

^h 1-12: Mark 8, 11-21.—ⁱ Luke 12, 54.—^j Matt. 12, 39; Jonas 2, 1.—^k Luke 12, 1.—^l Matt. 14, 17;

Chap. 16, Ver. 16f. From the declaration that Peter's knowledge of the nature of Jesus was revealed by the Father, we may be sure that he was not speaking of adoptive sonship when he called Jesus the Son of the living God. For him the Messiahship is transcendent, the Messiah is divine.

Ver. 17. Bar-Jona: "son of Jona." Jona is most likely an abridged form of Johanan—John. Peter, in Greek Petros, is a masculine form from Petra, "rock." In Aramaic the name meaning "rock" is Kepha; in Greek it took on the form Kephas.

Ver. 18. In the Gospels the word Church is used only here and in Matt. 18, 17. In the Old Testament

7 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "We have brought no bread."

8 But Jesus knowing this, said, "You of little faith, why do you argue among yourselves that you have no bread?"

9 Do you not yet understand, nor remember the five loaves ^l among five thousand men, and how many baskets you took up?

10 ^m Nor the seven loaves among four thousand, and how many large baskets you took up?

11 Why do you not understand that it was not of bread I said to you, 'Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees'?"

12 Then they understood that he bade them beware not of the leaven of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Peter's Confession

13 Now Jesus, having come into the district of Cæsarea ⁿ Philippi, began to ask his disciples, saying, "Who do men say the Son of Man is?"

14 But they said, "Some say, John the Baptist; and others, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets."

15 He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?"

16 Simon Peter answered and said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."^o

17 Then Jesus answered and said, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood has not revealed this to thee, but my Father in heaven.

18 And I say to thee, ^p thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

John 6, 9.—^m Matt. 15, 34.—ⁿ 13-16: Mark 8, 27-29; Luke 9, 18-20.—^o John 6, 69f.—^p John 1, 42.

it designated the assembly of Israel. Here in speaking of His Church our Lord means a society of men united to serve God as He had taught them to do. Compared with an edifice, it is said to rest on a rock as did the house of the wise man of Matt. 7, 24. The rock was Peter. Of course the strength of the foundation comes from Christ.

The gates of hell: hostile, evil powers. Their aggressive force will struggle in vain against the Church. She shall never be overcome; she is indefectible. And since she has the office of teacher [cf. Matt. 28, 16-20], and since she would be overcome if error prevailed, she is infallible.

19 And I will give thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; q and whatever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."

20 Then he strictly charged his disciples to tell no one that he was Jesus the Christ.

Passion and Resurrection Foretold

21 From that time Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things r from the elders and Scribes and chief priests, and be put to death, and on the third day rise again.

22 And Peter taking him aside, began to chide him, saying, "Far be it from thee, O Lord; this will never happen to thee."

23 He turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, satan, thou art a scandal to me; for thou dost not mind the things of God, but those of men."

The Doctrine of the Cross

24 Then Jesus said to his disciples, "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.^s

25 For t he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake will find it.

26 For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but suffer the loss of his own soul? Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then u he will render to everyone according to his conduct.

28 Amen I say to you, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death, till they have seen the Son of Man coming in his kingdom."

q Isa. 22, 22; John 20, 23.—r 21-28; Mark 8, 31-39; Luke 9, 22-27.—s Matt. 10, 38f; Luke 14, 27.—t Luke 17, 33; John 12, 25.—u Acts 17, 31;

Ver. 19. Keys: a symbol of authority. Peter has the power to admit into the Church and to exclude therefrom. Nor is he merely the porter; he has complete power within the Church. "To bind and loose" seems to have been used by the Jews in the sense of to forbid or to permit; but Matt. 18, 18 as well as the present context requires a more comprehensive meaning. In heaven God ratifies the decisions which Peter makes on earth, in the name of Christ.

Ver. 20. Jesus still maintains the secret of His real character. On account of the prevalent views concern-

CHAPTER 17

Jesus Transfigured

NOW v after six days Jesus took Peter, James and his brother John, and led them up a high mountain by themselves, and was transfigured before them. And his face shone as the sun, and his garments became white as snow.

3 And behold, there appeared to them Moses and Elias talking together with him.

4 Then Peter addressed Jesus, saying, "Lord, it is good for us to be here. If thou wilt, let us set up three tents here, one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias."

5 As he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them, w and behold, a voice out of the cloud said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear him."

6 And on hearing it the disciples fell on their faces and were exceedingly afraid.

7 And Jesus came near and touched them, and said to them, "Arise, and do not be afraid."

8 But lifting up their eyes, they saw no one but Jesus only:

On the Coming of Elias

9 And as they were coming down from the mountain, x Jesus cautioned them, saying, "Tell the vision to no one, till the Son of Man has risen from the dead."

10 And the disciples asked him, saying, "Why then do the Scribes say that Elias must come first?"

11 But he answered and said, y "Elias indeed is to come and will restore all things.

12 But I say to you^z that Elias has come already, and they did not know him,

Rom. 2, 6.—v 1-8; Mark 9, 1-7; Luke 9, 28-36.—w Matt. 3, 17; 2 Pet. 1, 17.—x 9-13; Mark 9, 8-12; Luke 9, 36.—y Mal. 4, 5.—z Matt. 11, 14; 14, 3-10.

ing the Messiah and His kingdom, there was great danger that the people would think that He was to set up an earthly reign.

Ver. 28. This saying should not be regarded as closely connected with the preceding saying about the Lord's coming in glory. It is introduced in Mark 8, 39 by the formula, "He also said to them." Here there is question not of Jesus' coming in glory but of another coming which establishes His kingdom on earth, probably that of Pentecost.

but did to him whatever they wished. So also shall the Son of Man suffer at their hands."

13 Then the disciples understood that he had spoken to them of John the Baptist.

A Possessed Boy

14 And ^a when he had come to the crowd, a man approached him and threw himself on his knees before him, saying, "Lord, have pity on my son, for he is a lunatic, and suffers severely; for often he falls into the fire, and often into the water.

15 And I brought him to thy disciples, but they could not cure him."

16 Jesus answered and said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him here to me."

17 And Jesus rebuked him; and the devil went out of him; and from that moment the boy was cured.

18 Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could not we cast it out?"

19 He said to them, "Because of your little faith; for amen I say to you, ^b if you have faith like a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Remove from here'; and it will remove. And nothing will be impossible to you.

20 But this kind can be cast out only by prayer and fasting."

The Second Prediction of the Passion

21 Now while they were together in Galilee, Jesus said to them, ^c "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men, 22 and they will kill him; and on the third day he will rise again." And they were exceedingly sorry.

^a 14-20; Mark 9, 13-28; Luke 9, 37-43.—^b Matt. 21, 21f; Luke 17, 6.—^c 21f; Mark 9, 29-31; Luke 9, 44f; Matt. 20, 18.—^d 1-5; Mark 9, 32-36; Luke 9, 46-48.—^e Matt. 19, 14; John 3, 3, 5; 1 Cor. 14, 20.—^f Mark 9, 41; Luke 17, 1f.

Chap. 17, Ver. 19. The hyperbole seems to be traditional. Job says that God "has removed mountains." Job 9, 5; and in the Psalms we read that "the mountains shall be removed." Ps. 45, 3.

Ver. 24-26 Ex. 30, 13 required the paying of this tax for the temple. Our Lord as Son of God might

Paying the Temple Tax

23 And when they had come to Capharnaum, those who were collecting the didrachma came to Peter, and said, "Does your Master not pay the didrachma?"

24 He said, "Yes." But when he had entered the house, Jesus spoke first, saying, "What dost thou think, Simon? From whom do the kings of the earth receive tribute or customs; from their own sons, or from others?"

25 And he said, "From others." Jesus said to him, "The sons then are exempt.

26 But that we may not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook, and take the first fish that comes up. And opening its mouth thou wilt find a stater; take that and give it to them for me and for thee."

CHAPTER 18

Against Ambition

AT THAT HOUR ^d the disciples came to Jesus, saying "Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?"

2 And Jesus called a little child to him, set him in their midst,

3 and said, "Amen I say to you, unless you turn and become like little children, you will not enter into the kingdom of heaven.^e

4 Whoever, therefore, humbles himself as this little child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

Avoiding Scandal

5 "And whoever receives one such little child for my sake, receives me.

6 But ^f whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it were better for him to have a great millstone hung around his neck, and to be drowned in the depths of the sea.

7 Woe to the world because of scandals! For it must needs be that scandals come, but woe to the man through whom scandal does come!

claim exemption; He submits to the Law only to avoid scandal.

Chap. 18, Ver. 1-14. In the Church, our Lord's disciples must avoid scandal and practise humility; they must have zeal for the conversion of sinners.

8 And g if thy hand or thy foot is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off and cast it from thee! It is better for thee to enter life maimed or lame, than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the everlasting fire.

9 And if thy eye is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee! It is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, than, having two eyes, to be cast into hell-fire.

The Lost Sheep

10 "See that you do not despise one of these little ones; for I tell you, h their angels in heaven always behold the face of my Father in heaven.

11 For i the Son of Man came to save what was lost.

12 What do you think? j If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them stray, will he not leave the ninety-nine in the mountains, and go in search of the one that has strayed?

13 And if he happen to find it, amen I say to you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that did not go astray.

14 Even so, it is not the will of your Father in heaven that a single one of these little ones should perish.

Fraternal Correction

15 "But if thy brother sin against thee, go and show him his fault, between thee and him alone. If he listen to thee, thou hast won thy brother.k

16 But if he do not listen to thee, take with thee one or two more so that l on the word of two or three witnesses every word may be confirmed.

17 And m if he refuse to hear them, appeal to the Church, but if he refuse to hear even the Church, let him be to thee as the heathen and the publican.

18 Amen I say to you, n whatever you bind on earth shall be bound also in heaven; and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed also in heaven.

The Power of United Prayer

19 "I say to you further, that if two of you shall agree on earth about anything at all for which they ask, it shall be done for them by my Father in heaven.

20 For where two or three are gathered together for my sake, there am I in the midst of them."

The Unmerciful Servant

21 Then Peter came up to him and said, "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Up to seven times?" o

22 Jesus said to him, "I do not say to thee seven times, but seventy times seven.

23 This is why the kingdom of heaven is likened to a king who desired to settle accounts with his servants.

24 And when he had begun the settlement, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents.

25 And as he had no means of paying, his master ordered him to be sold, with his wife and children and all that he had, and payment to be made.

26 But the servant fell down and besought him, saying, 'Have patience with me and I will pay thee all!'

27 And moved with compassion, the master of that servant released him, and forgave him the debt.

28 But as that servant went out, he met one of his fellow-servants who owed him a hundred denarii, and he laid hold of him and throttled him, saying, 'Pay what thou owest.'

29 His fellow-servant therefore fell down and began to entreat him, saying, 'Have patience with me and I will pay thee all.'

30 But he would not; but went away and cast him into prison until he should pay what was due.

g 8f: Matt. 5, 30; Mark 9, 42-47.—h Ps. 33, 8.—i Luke 19, 10.—j 12-14: Luke 15, 4-7.—k Lev. 19, 17; Eccclus. 19, 13; Luke 17, 3; Jas. 5, 19.—l Deut.

19, 15; John 8, 17; 2 Cor. 13, 1; Heb. 10, 28.—m 1 Cor. 5, 9; 2 Thess. 3, 14.—n Matt. 16, 19; John 20, 23.—o Luke 17, 4.

Ver. 18. To the Apostles as a body is given a part of the power granted to Peter Matt. 16, 19. There will be no conflict of authority, since Peter is the head of the Church, including the Apostles, he alone having received "the keys of the kingdom of heaven."

Ver. 19f. Jesus is the center of the religious life of His followers.

Ver. 22. A sinner must be forgiven as often as he repents. The expression seventy times seven is for an indefinite number.

Ver. 24. Ten thousand talents.

Ver. 28. A hundred denarii.

31 His fellow-servants therefore, seeing what had happened, were very much saddened, and they went and informed their master of what had taken place.

32 Then his master called him, and said to him, 'Wicked servant! I forgave thee all the debt, because thou didst entreat me.

33 Shouldst not thou also have had pity on thy fellow-servant, even as I had pity on thee?'

34 And his master, being angry, handed him over to the torturers until he should pay all that was due to him.

35 So also my heavenly Father will do to you, ^p if you do not each forgive your brothers from your hearts."

V

CHAPTER 19

The Question of Divorce

AND IT CAME TO PASS when Jesus had brought these words to a close, that he departed from Galilee ^q and came to the district of Judea beyond the Jordan.

2 And great crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

3 And there came to him some Pharisees, testing him, and saying, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for any cause?"

4 But he answered and said to them, "Have you not read that the Creator, ^r from the beginning, made them male and female, and said,

5 For this cause ^s a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh?

6 Therefore now they are no longer two, but one flesh. What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

7 They said to him, ^t "Why then did Moses command to give a written notice of dismissal, and to put her away?"

^p Mark 11, 26.—^q 1-9: Mark 10, 1-12.—^r Gen. 1, 27.—^s Gen. 2, 24; 1 Cor. 6, 16; 7, 10; Eph. 5, 31.—^t Deut. 24, 1-4.—^u Matt. 5, 32; Luke 16, 18; 1 Cor.

Chap. 19, Ver. 1-9. Divorce is forbidden; cf. Matt. 5, 32.

Ver. 10-12. Continence practised in view of the kingdom of God is better than the married life.

Ver. 14. Many of the qualities which characterize children, such as docility, are necessary for admission into the kingdom of God.

Ver. 16. Jesus raises the mind of the young ruler to the One who is supremely good and the source of all goodness. He does not reveal to him that He Himself is God, but neither does He deny it. In the 8 He said to them, "Because Moses, by reason of the hardness of your heart, permitted you to put away your wives; but it was not so from the beginning.

9 And I say to you, that whoever puts away his wife, except for immorality,^u and marries another, commits adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away commits adultery."

10 His disciples said to him, "If the case of a man with his wife is so, it is not expedient to marry."

11 And he said, "Not all can accept this teaching; but those to whom it has been given.

12 For there are eunuchs who were born so from their mother's womb; and there are eunuchs who were made so by men; and there are eunuchs who have made themselves so for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let him accept it who can."

Jesus Blesses the Children

13 Little children ^v were brought to him then that he might lay his hands on them and pray; but the disciples rebuked them.

14 But Jesus said to them, ^w "Let the little children be, and do not hinder them from coming to me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

15 And when he had laid his hands on them, he departed from that place.

The Danger of Riches

16 And behold, ^x a certain man came to him and said, "Good Master, what good work shall I do to have eternal life?"

17 He said to him, "Why dost thou ask me about what is good? One there is who is good, and he is God. But if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments."

7, 11.—^v 13-15: Mark 10, 13-16; Luke 18, 15-17.—^w Matt. 18, 3.—^x 16-29: Mark 10, 17-30; Luke 18, 18-30.

parallel texts, Mark 10, 17 and Luke 18, 18, our Lord asks, "Why dost thou call me good?", which creates a theological difficulty not found in Matthew's Gospel: Jesus apparently disclaims being good and consequently being God. But He does not really disclaim goodness, even according to Mark and Luke; He simply takes into account the mind of the young man who has as yet no idea that Jesus is absolute goodness. Life: not the life of heaven only, but the life of grace here on earth.

18 He said to him, "Which?" And Jesus said, y Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness.

19 Honor thy father and mother. And, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

20 The young man said to him, "All these I have kept; what is yet wanting to me?"

21 Jesus said to him, "If thou wilt be perfect, go, sell what thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me."

22 But when the young man heard the saying, he went away sad, for he had great possessions.

23 But Jesus said to his disciples, "Amen I say to you, with difficulty will a rich man enter the kingdom of heaven."

24 And further I say to you, it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven."

25 The disciples, hearing this, were exceedingly astonished, and said, "Who then can be saved?"

26 And looking upon them, Jesus said to them, "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

27 Then Peter addressed him, saying, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee; what then shall we have?"

28 And Jesus said to them, "Amen I say to you that you who have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit on the throne of his glory, shall also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

29 And everyone who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall possess life everlasting.

30 But many who are first z now will be y Ex. 20, 12-16.—z Matt. 20, 16; Mark 10, 31; Luke 13, 30.

Ver. 24. Our Lord expresses in a paradoxical way the idea that it is very difficult for a rich man to be saved; v. 26 shows that it is not impossible with the help of God.

Ver. 29. A hundredfold: According to St. Jerome, spiritual goods.

Chap. 20, Ver. 1-16. The laborers in the vineyard all receive the same reward, a denarius. God is master of His gifts and His grace may make one who has served Him only for a short time as worthy of supernatural rewards as one who has borne the burden of the day and the heat. However, our Lord does not last, and many who are last now will be first.

CHAPTER 20

Parable of the Laborers in the Vineyard

"FOR the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard.

2 And having agreed with the laborers for a denarius a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And about the third hour, he went out and saw others standing in the market place idle;

4 and he said to them, 'Go you also into the vineyard, and I will give you whatever is just.'

5 So they went. And again he went out about the sixth, and about the ninth hour, and did as before.

6 But about the eleventh hour he went out and found others standing about, and he said to them, 'Why do you stand here all day idle?'

7 They said to him, 'Because no man has hired us.' He said to them, 'Go you also into the vineyard.'

8 But when evening had come, the owner of the vineyard said to his steward, 'Call the laborers, and pay them their wages, beginning from the last even to the first.'

9 Now when they of the eleventh hour came, they received each a denarius.

10 And when the first in their turn came, they thought that they would receive more; but they also received each his denarius.

11 And on receiving it, they began to murmur against the householder,

12 saying, 'These last have worked a single hour, and thou hast put them on a level with us, who have borne the burden of the day's heat.'

13 But answering one of them, he said, seem here to be speaking of the individual rewards of heaven. The parable refers to the call of the Gentiles to share in the spiritual privileges of Israel. Many are called, but few are chosen: the words appear to refer to the Jews, of whom relatively few came into the Church. According to the best authorities, the saying should not be here; it is taken from Matt. 22, 14.

Ver. 3. 5. 6. About the third . . . sixth . . . ninth . . . eleventh hour: i.e., about nine o'clock . . . noon . . . three . . . five o'clock.

'Friend, I do thee no injustice; didst thou not agree with me for a denarius?

14 Take what is thine and go; I choose to give to this last even as to thee.

15 Have I not a right to do what I choose? Or art thou envious because I am generous?

16 Even ^a so the last shall be first, and the first last; for many are called, but few are chosen."

The Third Prediction of the Passion

17 And as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them,

18 "Behold, ^b we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and the Scribes; and they will condemn him to death,

19 and will deliver him to the Gentiles to be mocked and scourged and crucified; and on the third day he will rise again."

The Mother of James and John

20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons; ^c and worshipping, she made a request of him.

21 He said to her, "What dost thou want?" She said to him, "Command that these my two sons may sit, one at thy right hand, and one at thy left hand, in thy kingdom."

22 But Jesus answered and said, "You do not know what you are asking for. Can you drink of the cup of which I am about to drink?" They said to him, "We can."

23 He said to them, "Of my cup you shall indeed drink; but as for sitting at my right hand and at my left, that is not mine to give you, but it belongs to those for whom it has been prepared by my Father."

24 And when the ten heard this, they were indignant at the two brothers.

25 But Jesus called them to him, and said, ^d "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them.

26 Not so is it among you. On the contrary, whoever wishes to become great among you shall be your servant;

27 and whoever wishes to be first among you shall be your slave;

28 even ^e as the Son of Man has not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

The Blind Men at Jericho

29 And ^f as they were leaving Jericho, a great crowd followed him.

30 And behold, two blind men sitting by the wayside heard that Jesus was passing by, and cried out, saying, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!"

31 And the crowd angrily tried to silence them. But they cried out all the louder, saying, "Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David!"

32 Then Jesus stopped, and called them, and said, "What will you have me do for you?"

33 They said to him, "Lord, that our eyes be opened."

34 And Jesus, moved with compassion for them, touched their eyes; and at once they received their sight, and followed him.

VI

CHAPTER 21

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

AND WHEN ^g they drew near to Jerusalem, and came to Bethphage, on the Mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples,

2 saying to them, "Go into the village opposite you, and immediately you will find an ass tied, and a colt with her; loose them and bring them to me.

3 And if anyone say anything to you, you shall say that the Lord has need of them, and immediately he will send them."

4 Now this was done that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled,

5 ^h Tell the daughter of Sion: Behold, thy king comes to thee, meek and seated upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of a beast of burden.

^a Matt. 19, 30; 22, 14; Mark 10, 31; Luke 13, 30.

^b 17-19: Mark 10, 32-34; Luke 18, 31-33.—^c 20-28: Mark 10, 35-45.—^d 25-28: Matt. 18, 1-4; Luke

Ver. 20-23. James and John shall partake of our Lord's chalice, that is of His suffering [cf. Matt. 26, 29]. But it does not belong to Him as the Messias, 22, 25-27.—^e Phil. 2, 7.—^f 29-34: Mark 10, 46-52; Luke 18, 35-43.—^g 1-9: Mark 11, 1-10; Luke 19, 29-38; John 12, 12-15.—^h Isa. 62, 11; Zach. 9, 9.

the envoy sent by the Father, to allot places in the kingdom. As God, His action in this matter is the same as that of the Father.

6 So the disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them.

7 And they brought the ass and the colt, laid their cloaks on them, and made him sit thereon.

8 And most of the crowd spread their cloaks upon the road, while others were cutting branches from the trees, and strewing them on the road.

9 And the crowds that went before him, and those that followed, kept crying out, saying, i Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!

10 And when he entered Jerusalem, all the city was thrown into commotion, saying, "Who is this?"

11 But the crowds kept on saying, "This is Jesus the prophet from Nazareth of Galilee."

Cleansing of the Temple

12 And j Jesus entered the temple of God, and cast out all those who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold the doves.

13 And he said to them, "It is written, k My house shall be called a house of prayer; but you have made it a den of thieves."

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them.

15 But the chief priests and the Scribes, seeing the wonderful deeds that he did, and the children crying out in the temple, and saying, "Hosanna to the Son of David," were indignant,

16 and said to him, l "Dost thou hear what these are saying?" And Jesus said to them, "Yes; have you never read, Out of the mouth of infants and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?"

17 And leaving them, he went out of the city to Bethany and he stayed there.

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree

18 Now in the morning, on his way back to the city, he felt hungry.

19 And m seeing a fig tree by the way-

Chap. 21, Ver. 9. Son of David: the title is clearly messianic; for the first time our Lord permits a public manifestation in honor of Himself as the Messiah. Hosanna: addressed to God, means "Save us, we pray." The word, however, seems to have been used as a joyous exclamation of welcome.

side, he came up to it, and found nothing on it but leaves; and he said to it, "May no fruit ever come from thee henceforward forever!" And immediately the fig tree withered up.

20 And upon seeing this the disciples marvelled, saying, "How did it come to wither up immediately?"

21 But Jesus answered and said to them, "Amen I say to you, if you have faith and do not waver, not only will you do what I have done to the fig tree, but even if you shall say to this mountain, 'Arise, and hurl thyself into the sea,' it shall be done.

22 And n all things whatever you ask for in prayer, believing, you shall receive."

The Authority of Jesus

23 And when he had come into the temple, the chief priests and elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, o "By what authority dost thou do these things? And who gave thee this authority?"

24 Jesus answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question, and if you answer me this, I in turn will tell you by what authority I do these things.

25 Whence was the baptism of John? from heaven, or from men?" But they began to argue among themselves, saying,

26 "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, 'Why then did you not believe him?' But if we say, 'From men,' we fear the people, p for all regard John as a prophet."

27 And they answered Jesus and said, "We do not know." Then he in turn said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

Parable of the Two Sons

28 "But what do you think? A man had two sons; and he came to the first i Ps. 117, 26.—j 12-16: Mark 11, 15-18; Luke 19, 45-47; John 2, 14-16; Deut. 14, 25.—k Isa. 56, 7; Jer. 7, 11.—l Ps. 8, 3.—m 18-22: Mark 11, 12-14. 20-24.—n Matt. 7, 7; 1 John 3, 22.—o 23-27: Mark 11, 27-33; Luke 20, 1-8.—p Matt. 14, 5.

Ver. 18f. The incident of the fig tree seems to be a parable in action. The tree was cursed because, despite fine external appearances, it bore no fruit. Cf. Luke 13, 6-9 on the sterile fig tree.

and said, 'Son, go and work today in my vineyard.'

29 But he answered and said, 'I will not'; but afterwards he regretted it and went.

30 And he came to the other and spoke in the same manner. And this one answered, 'I go, sir'; but he did not go.

31 Which of the two did the father's will?" They said, "The first." Jesus said to them, "Amen I say to you, the publicans and harlots are entering the kingdom of God before you.

32 For John came to you in the way of justice, and you did not believe him. But the publicans and the harlots believed him; whereas you, seeing it, did not even repent afterwards, that you might believe him.

Parable of the Vine-dressers

33 "Hear another parable. a There was a man, a householder, who planted a vineyard, and put a hedge about it, and dug a wine vat in it, and built a tower; then he let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad.

34 But when the fruit season drew near, he sent his servants to the vine-dressers to receive his fruits.

35 And the vine-dressers seized his servants, and beat one, killed another, and stoned another.

36 Again he sent another party of servants more numerous than the first; and they did the same to these.

37 Finally he sent his son to them, saying, 'They will respect my son.'

38 But the vine-dressers, on seeing the son, said among themselves, r 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and we shall have his inheritance.'

39 So they seized him, cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him.

40 When, therefore, the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those vine-dressers?"

41 They said to him, "He will utterly destroy those evil men, and will let out the vineyard to other vine-dressers, who will render to him the fruits in their seasons."

42 Jesus said to them, "Did you never read in the Scriptures, s The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone; by the Lord this has been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes?

43 Therefore I say to you, that the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and will be given to a people yielding its fruits.

44 And he who falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; but upon whomever it falls, it will grind him to powder."

45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they knew that he was speaking about them.

46 And though they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the people, because they regarded him as a prophet.

CHAPTER 22

The Marriage Feast

AND JESUS addressed them, and spoke to them again in parables,

2 saying, t "The kingdom of heaven is like a king who made a marriage feast for his son.

3 And he sent his servants to call in those invited to the marriage feast, but they would not come.

4 Again he sent out other servants, saying, 'Tell those who are invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and fatlings are killed, and everything is ready; come to the marriage feast.'

5 But they made light of it, and went off, one to his farm, and another to his business;

6 and the rest laid hold of his servants, treated them shamefully, and killed them.

7 But when the king heard of it, he was angry; and he sent his armies, destroyed those murderers, and burnt their city.

8 Then he said to his servants, 'The marriage feast indeed is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy;

a 33-46: Mark 12, 1-12; Luke 20, 9-19; Isa. 5, 1-7.—r Matt. 26, 4; 27, 1; John 11, 53.—s Ps. 117, 22; Isa. 28, 16; Rom. 9, 33; 1 Pet. 2, 7.—t 2-14: Luke 14, 16-24.

Ver. 37. The son of the householder represents the Son of God who will be put to death outside of Jerusalem.

Chap. 22, Ver. 1-14. Refers, like the parable of the vineyard, to the rejection of the Jews. A distinct thought is expressed in Matt. 22, 11-13, on the need of proper dispositions in the guests at the marriage feast. Many are called: cf. Matt. 20, 16.

9 go therefore to the crossroads, and invite to the marriage feast whomever you shall find.'

10 And his servants went out into the roads, and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; and the marriage feast was filled with guests.

11 Now the king went in to see the guests, and he saw there a man who had not on a wedding garment.

12 And he said to him, 'Friend, how didst thou come in here without a wedding garment?' But he was speechless.

13 Then the king said to the attendants, u 'Bind his hands and feet and cast him forth into the darkness outside, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.'

14 For many are called, but few are chosen."

Tribute to Caesar

15 Then the Pharisees v went and took counsel how they might trap him in his talk.

16 And they sent to him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, "Master, we know that thou art truthful, and that thou teachest the way of God in truth, and that thou carest naught for any man; for thou dost not regard the person of men.

17 Tell us, therefore, what dost thou think; Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar, or not?"

18 But Jesus, knowing their wickedness, said, "Why do you test me, you hypocrites?

19 Show me the coin of the tribute." So they offered him a denarius.

20 Then Jesus said to them, "Whose are this image and the inscription?"

21 They said to him, "Cæsar's." Then he said to them, w Render, therefore, to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's."

22 And hearing this they marvelled, and leaving him went off.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

23 On that same day some of the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, x came to him, and questioned him,

24 saying, "Master, Moses said, y 'If a man die without having a son, his brother shall marry the widow and raise up issue to his brother.'

25 Now there were among us seven brothers. And the first, after having married a wife, died, and having no issue, left his wife to his brother.

26 In like manner the second, and the third down to the seventh.

27 And last of all the woman also died.

28 At the resurrection, therefore, of which of the seven will she be the wife? For they all had her."

29 But Jesus answered and said to them, "You err because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God.

30 For at the resurrection they will neither marry nor be given in marriage, but will be as angels of God in heaven.

31 But as to the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, saying,

32 z I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living."

33 And when the crowds heard this, they marvelled at his teaching.

The Great Commandment

34 But the Pharisees, hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees, a gathered together.

35 And one of them, a doctor of the Law, putting him to the test, asked him,

36 "Master, which is the great commandment in the Law?"

37 Jesus said to him, b "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole mind.

38 This is the greatest and the first commandment.

39 And the second is like it, c Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

40 On these two commandments depend the whole Law and the Prophets."

u Matt. 8, 12; 13, 42; 20, 16; 25, 30.—v 15-22: Mark 12, 13-17; Luke 20, 20-26.—w Rom. 13, 7.—x 23-33: Mark 12, 18-27; Luke 20, 27-38; Acts 23, 8.—y Deut. 25, 5.—z Ex. 3, 6.—a 34 40: Mark 12, 28-34; Luke 10, 25. 3.—b Deut. 6, 5.—c Lev. 19, 18.

Ver 21. To recognize the currency of a ruler was to recognize his authority. Our Lord would have us respect the authority God gives to civil rulers.

The Son of David

41 Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus questioned them,

42 saying, d "What do you think of the Christ? Whose son is he?" They said to him, "David's."

43 He said to them, "How then does David in the Spirit call him Lord, saying, 44 e The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thy enemies thy footstool?

45 If David, therefore, calls him 'Lord,' how is he his son?"

46 And no one could answer him a word; neither did anyone dare from that day forth to ask him any more questions.

CHAPTER 23

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees

THEN JESUS spoke to the crowds and to his disciples,

2 saying, "The Scribes and the Pharisees have sat on the chair of Moses.

3 All things, therefore, that they command you, observe and do. But do not act according to their works; for they talk but do nothing.

4 f And they bind together heavy and oppressive burdens, and lay them on men's shoulders; but not with one finger of their own do they choose to move them.

5 In fact, all their works they do in order to be seen by men; g for they widen their phylacteries, and enlarge their tassels,

6 h and love the first places at suppers and the front seats in the synagogues,

7 and greetings in the market place, and to be called by men 'Rabbi.'

d 41-46: Mark 12, 35-37; Luke 20, 41-44.—e Ps. 109, 1.—f Luke 11, 46; Acts 15, 10.—g Ex. 13, 9; Deut. 6, 8; Num. 15, 38.—h Mark 12, 39; Luke 11,

Ver. 45. David's son is David's Lord: there is implied a claim to divinity.

Chap. 23, Ver. 2. The Jews, including our Lord's disciples, must conform to the Law of Moses for the time being, when it is proclaimed by the Scribes and Pharisees. The teaching of our Lord elsewhere makes it clear that His disciples need not comply with rabbinic tradition.

Ver. 4.—By their casuistry the Scribes and Pharisees exempt themselves from much that is burdensome to others.

Ver. 5. Phylacteries: little boxes containing Scripture texts which were bound to the forehead and left arm when the Jews were saying their prayers. A misinterpretation of the Law made them think they were 8 But do not you be called 'Rabbi'; i for one is your Master, and all you are brothers.

9 And call no one on earth your father; j for one is your Father, who is in heaven.

10 Neither be called masters; for one only is your Master, the Christ.

11 He who is greatest among you shall be your servant.

12 And whoever exalts himself shall be humbled, k and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted.

Woe to the Scribes and Pharisees

13 "But woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! l because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men. For you yourselves do not go in, nor do you allow those going in to enter.

14 [Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you devour the houses of widows, praying long prayers. For this you shall receive a greater judgment.]

15 Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you traverse sea and land to make one convert; and when he has become one, you make him twofold more a son of hell than yourselves.

16 Woe to you, blind guides, who say, 'Whoever swears by the temple, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gold of the temple, he is bound.'

17 You blind fools! for which is greater, the gold, or the temple which sanctifies the gold?

18 'And whoever swears by the altar, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gift that is upon it, he is bound.'

19 Blind ones! for which is greater, the gift, or the altar which sanctifies the gift?

20 Therefore he who swears by the altar

43.—i Jas. 3, 1.—j Mal. 1, 6.—k Luke 14, 11; 18, 14.—l Mark 12, 40; Luke 20, 47.

obliged to wear them. The fringes, tassels attached to the cloak, were prescribed by Num. 15, 37-41; Deut. 22, 12.

Ver. 7. Rabbi: means "my master."

Ver. 8-11. It would be blameworthy for Christians to give or receive such titles as "master," "father," "doctor," without recognizing that one is "father in Christ," that is, in union with and subordination to our Lord and to the Father.

Ver. 14. Apparently this verse did not belong to the original Gospel of St. Matthew. It is omitted by the better Greek and some Vulgate Manuscripts.

Ver. 16-22. Our Lord refutes rabbinic distinctions about the formulas of an oath.

swears by it, and by all things that are on it;

21 and he who swears by the temple swears by it, and by him who dwells in it.

22 And he who swears by heaven swears by the throne of God, and by him who sits upon it.

23 m Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you pay tithes on mint and anise and cummin, and have left undone the weightier matters of the Law, right judgment and mercy and faith. These things you ought to have done, while not leaving the others undone.

24 Blind guides, who strain out the gnat but swallow the camel!

25 Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but within they are full of robbery and uncleanness.

26 Thou blind Pharisee! clean first the inside of the cup and of the dish, that the outside too may be clean.

27 Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you are like whited sepulchres, which outwardly appear to men beautiful, but within are full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness.

28 So you also outwardly appear just to men, but within you are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! you who build the sepulchres of the prophets, and adorn the tombs of the just,

30 and say, 'If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have been their accomplices in the blood of the prophets.'

31 Thus you are witnesses against yourselves that you are the sons of those who killed the prophets.

32 You also fill up the measure of your fathers.

m Luke 11, 42.—n Matt. 3, 7; 12, 34.—o Gen. 4, 8; Heb. 11, 4; 2 Par. 24, 21f.—p 37-39: Luke 13, Ver. 23-28. The Pharisees, who were so strict about external observances, were not sufficiently concerned about the inner life.

Ver. 31-39. Persons are rewarded and punished only for their own actions; but the Pharisees shared in the dispositions of those who killed the prophets. They would persecute the Apostles and the other messengers of Christ. They would also associate themselves with the crime which Jerusalem would commit 33 n Serpents, brood of vipers, how are you to escape the judgment of hell?

34 Therefore, behold, I send you prophets, and wise men, and scribes; and some of them you will put to death, and crucify, and some you will scourge in your synagogues, and persecute from town to town;

35 that upon you may come all the just blood that has been shed on the earth, o from the blood of Abel the just unto the blood of Zacharias the son of Barachias, whom you killed between the temple and the altar.

36 Amen I say to you, all these things will come upon this generation.

37 p Jerusalem, Jerusalem! thou who killest the prophets, and stonest those who are sent to thee! How often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathers her young under her wings, but thou wouldst not!

38 Behold, your house is left to you desolate.

39 For I say to you, you shall not see me henceforth until you shall say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!'

CHAPTER 24

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World

AND q Jesus left the temple and was going away, when his disciples came forward to show him the buildings of the temple.

2 But he answered and said to them, "Do you see all these things? Amen I say to you, r there will not be left here one stone upon another that will not be thrown down."

3 And as he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately, saying, "Tell us, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the world?"

34f; 19, 41-44.—q 1-51; Mark 13, 1-37; Luke 21, 5-36.—r Luke 19, 44.

against the Savior. Their temple would be desolate, abandoned by God. The Jews would not see Christ henceforth until they should say, Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord. It is probably upon this saying that St. Paul [Rom. 11, 31] predicts the conversion of the Jewish nation.

Chap. 24, Ver. 2. Not only would the temple be abandoned by God, but it would be completely destroyed.

4 And in answer Jesus said to them, "Take care that no one leads you astray.

5 For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Christ,' and they will lead many astray.

6 For you shall hear of wars and rumors of wars. Take care that you do not be alarmed, for these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be pestilences and famines and earthquakes in various places.

8 But all these things are the beginnings of sorrows.

9 Then they will deliver you up to tribulation,^s and will put you to death; and you will be hated by all nations for my name's sake.

10 And then many will fall away, and will betray one another, and will hate one another.

11 And many false prophets will arise, and will lead many astray.

12 And because iniquity will abound, the charity of the many will grow cold.

13 But whoever perseveres to the end, he shall be saved.

14 And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world, for a witness to all nations; and then will come the end.

Destruction of Jerusalem

15 "Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation, which was spoken of by Daniel^t the prophet, standing in the holy place—let him who reads understand—

16 then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains;

^s Matt. 10, 17; John 15, 20; 16, 2.—^t Dan. 9, 27.—^u Luke 17, 23.—^v Luke 17, 37.—^w Isa. 13, 10; Ezech. 32, 7; Joel 3, 15.

Ver. 4-14. This passage probably refers not to the time which precedes the destruction of Jerusalem but to the whole period which precedes the Second Coming. That it will be of considerable duration is indicated by the statement that the Gospel will be preached to the whole world. Vv. 15-20 refer to the destruction of Jerusalem. The account of our Lord's discourse by St. Matthew (and St. Mark in a parallel passage) does not make it clear whether vv. 21-22 refer to Jerusalem or to the tribulation which precedes the Second Coming.

Ver. 15. The abomination of desolation: cf. Dan. 9, 27; 11, 31; 12, 11. In 1 Mach. 1, 57 an application of the prophecy is found in the setting up of a statue of Jupiter in the temple. The prophecy will be fulfilled a second time for Jerusalem but not necessarily in the 17 and let him who is on the housetop not go down to take anything from his house;

18 and let him who is in the field not turn back to take his cloak.

19 But woe to those who are with child, or have infants at the breast in those days!

20 But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on the Sabbath.

21 For then there will be great tribulation, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, nor will be.

22 And unless those days had been shortened, no living creature would be saved. But for the sake of the elect those days will be shortened.

The Signs of the Last Day

23 "Then^u if anyone say to you, 'Behold, here is the Christ,' or, 'There he is,' do not believe it.

24 For false christs and false prophets will arise, and will show great signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect.

25 Behold, I have told it to you beforehand.

26 If therefore they say to you, 'Behold, he is in the desert,' do not go forth; 'Behold, he is in the inner chambers,' do not believe it.

27 For as the lightning comes forth from the east and shines even to the west, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be.

28 Wherever^v the body is, there will the eagles be gathered together.

29 But^w immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, and the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of heaven will be shaken.

30 And then will appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven; and then will all same way. St. Luke sees "the abomination of desolation" in the army which surrounded and destroyed Jerusalem.

Ver. 19f. The flight from the doomed city would be particularly hard on mothers with child. Winter would make the flight very difficult. The Christians of Jerusalem, who would still be following the Jewish Law, would not feel free to take flight on a Sabbath.

Ver. 23-31. The description of the Second Coming is given partly in figurative words of Scripture, as in Isa. 13. The language is not all to be taken literally; but it is hard to say where the figure ends. The sign of the Son of Man is probably the cross.

Ver. 28. As birds of prey gather at the place where the body is, so will men be gathered to Christ for the judgment.

tribes of the earth mourn, x and they will see the Son of Man coming upon the clouds of heaven with great power and majesty.

31 And y he will send forth his angels with a trumpet and a great sound, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other.

Jerusalem's Impending Destruction

32 "Now from the fig tree learn this parable. When its branch is now tender, and the leaves break forth, you know that summer is near.

33 Even so, when you see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door.

34 Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished.

35 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness

36 "But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, but the Father only.

37 And as it was in the days of Noe, z even so will be the coming of the Son of Man.

38 For as in the days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage until the day when Noe entered the ark, 39 and they did not understand until the flood came and swept them all away; even so will be the coming of the Son of Man.

40 Then two men will be in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left.

41 Two women will be grinding at the millstone; one will be taken, and one will be left.

Exhortation to Vigilance

42 "Watch therefore, for you do not know at what hour your Lord is to come.

43 But of this be assured, that if the householder had known at what hour a the thief was coming, he would certainly have watched, and not have let his house be broken into.

44 Therefore you also must be ready, because at an hour that you do not expect, the Son of Man will come.

45 Who, dost thou think, is the faithful and prudent servant whom his master has set over his household to give them their food in due time?

46 Blessed b is that servant whom his master, when he comes, shall find so doing.

47 Amen I say to you, he will set him over all his goods.

48 But if that wicked servant says to himself, 'My master delays his coming,'

49 and begins to beat his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with drunkards,

50 the master of that servant will come on a day he does not expect, and in an hour he does not know, 51 and will cut him asunder and make him share the lot of the hypocrites. c There will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.

CHAPTER 25

Parable of the Ten Virgins

"THEN will the kingdom of heaven be like ten virgins d who took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom and the bride.

2 Five of them were foolish and five wise.

3 But the five foolish, when they took their lamps, took no oil with them,

4 while the wise did take oil in their vessels with the lamps.

5 Then as the bridegroom was long in coming, they all became drowsy and slept.

Thess. 5, 2.—b Apoc. 16, 15.—c Matt. 13, 42; 25, 30.—d Luke 12, 35f.

x Apoc. 1, 7.—y 1 Cor. 15, 52.—z Gen. 7, 7; Luke 17, 26.—a 43-51; Luke 12, 39-46; Mark 13, 33; 1

Ver. 32-36. This passage seems at first sight, on account of its immediately preceding context, to refer to the Second Coming as well as to the destruction of Jerusalem; and so the words of our Lord, This generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished, would promise the Second Coming before the death of many of those then living. But He does not actually make this promise, for He says explicitly that no one knows, not even Himself (with a knowledge He may communicate), when it will come. That day: in the Bible, this predicted day always refers to the day of judgment. This generation: may mean that the Jewish nation would survive to the end of the world. The expression does not always necessarily refer to contemporaries. And despite their position, the words may be referred to the destruction of Jerusalem. The signs announcing it would enable the Christians to flee, whereas the end of the world was to come suddenly and there would be no escape from the calamities which preceded it.

Chap. 25, Ver. 1. To meet the bridegroom: the additional words, and the bride, are wanting in the best manuscripts.

6 And at midnight a cry arose, 'Behold, the bridegroom is coming, go forth to meet him!'

7 Then all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps.

8 And the foolish said to the wise, 'Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.'

9 The wise answered, saying, 'Lest there may not be enough for us and for you, go rather to those who sell it, and buy some for yourselves.'

10 Now while they were gone to buy it, the bridegroom came; and those who were ready went in with him to the marriage feast, and the door was shut.

11 Finally there came also the other virgins, who said, 'Sir, sir, open the door for us!'

12 But he answered and said, 'Amen I say to you, I do not know you.'

13 Watch ^etherefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour.

Parable of the Talents

14 "For it is like a man going abroad, ^f who called his servants and handed over his goods to them.

15 And to one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to each according to his particular ability, and then he went on his journey.

16 And he who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and gained five more.

17 In like manner, he who had received the two gained two more.

18 But he who had received the one went away and dug in the earth and hid his master's money.

19 Then after a long time the master of those servants came and settled accounts with them.

20 And he who had received the five talents came and brought five other talents, saying, 'Master, thou didst hand over to me five talents; behold, I have gained five others in addition.'

21 His master said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many; enter into the joy of thy master.'

22 And he also who had received the two talents came and said, 'Master, thou didst hand over to me two talents; behold, I have gained two more.'

23 His master said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many; enter into the joy of thy master.'

24 But he who had received the one talent came and said, 'Master, I know that thou art a stern man; thou reapest where thou hast not sowed and gatherest where thou hast not winnowed;

25 and as I was afraid, I went away and hid thy talent in the earth; behold, thou hast what is thine.'

26 But his master answered and said to him, 'Wicked and slothful servant! thou didst know that I reap where I do not sow, and gather where I have not winnowed?

27 Thou shouldst therefore have entrusted my money to the bankers, and on my return I should have got back my own with interest.

28 Take away therefore the talent from him, and give it to him who has the ten talents.

29 For to everyone who has shall be given, and he shall have abundance; ^g but from him who does not have, even that which he seems to have shall be taken away.

30 But as for the unprofitable servant, cast him forth into the darkness outside, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.'

The Last Judgment

31 "But when the Son of Man shall come in his majesty, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory;

32 and before him will be gathered all the nations, and he will separate them one from another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats;

33 and he will set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then the king will say to those on his right hand, 'Come, blessed of my Father, take possession of the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world;

^e Mark 13, 33.—^f 14-30: Luke 19, 12-27.—^g Matt. 13, 12; Mark 4, 25; Luke 8, 18; 19, 26.

35 for ^h I was hungry and you gave me to eat; I was thirsty and you gave me to drink; I was a stranger and you took me in;

36 naked and you covered me; ⁱ sick and you visited me; I was in prison and you came to me.'

37 Then the just will answer him, saying, 'Lord, when did we see thee hungry, and feed thee; or thirsty, and give thee drink?

38 And when did we see thee a stranger, and take thee in; or naked, and clothe thee?

39 Or when did we see thee sick, or in prison, and come to thee?'

40 And answering the king will say to them, 'Amen I say to you, as long as you did it for one of these, the least of my brethren, you did it for me.'

41 Then he will say to those on his left hand, ^j 'Depart from me, accursed ones, into the everlasting fire which was prepared for the devil and his angels.

42 For I was hungry, and you did not give me to eat; I was thirsty and you gave me no drink;

43 I was a stranger and you did not take me in; naked, and you did not clothe me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit me.'

44 Then they also will answer and say, 'Lord, when did we see thee hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister to thee?'

45 Then he will answer them, saying, 'Amen I say to you, as long as you did not do it for one of these least ones, you did not do it for me.'

46 And ^k these will go into everlasting punishment, but the just into everlasting life."

II: THE PASSION DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. THE LAST SUPPER

CHAPTER 26

The Council

AND IT CAME TO PASS when Jesus had finished all these words, that he said to his disciples, Chap. 26, Ver. 2. Wednesday.

Ver. 6-13. The supper is that spoken of in John 12, 1-8, which took place six days before the Passover.

2 "You know that after two days the Passover will be here; ^l and the Son of Man will be delivered up to be crucified."

3 Then the chief priests and the elders of the people gathered together in the court of the high priest, who was called Caiphas,

4 and they took counsel together how they might seize Jesus by stealth and put him to death.

5 But they said, "Not on the feast, or there might be a riot among the people."

The Anointing at Bethany

6 Now when Jesus was in Bethany, ^m in the house of Simon the leper,

7 a woman came up to him with an alabaster jar of precious ointment, and she poured it on his head, as he reclined at table.

8 But when the disciples saw this, they were indignant, and said, "To what purpose is this waste?

9 for this might have been sold for much and given to the poor."

10 But Jesus, perceiving it, said to them, "Why do you trouble the woman? She has done me a good turn.

11 For the poor you have always with you, but you do not always have me.

12 For in pouring this ointment on my body, she has done it for my burial.

13 Amen I say to you, wherever in the whole world this gospel is preached, this also that she has done shall be told in memory of her."

The Betrayal

14 Then one of the Twelve, called Judas Iscariot, ⁿ went to the chief priests, 15 and said to them, "What are you willing to give me for delivering him to you?" But they assigned him thirty pieces of silver.

16 And from then on he sought out an opportunity to betray him.

^h Isa. 58, 7; Ezech. 18, 7.—ⁱ Eccclus. 7, 39.—^j Matt. 7, 23; Ps. 6, 9; Luke 13, 27.—^k Dan. 12, 2; John 5, 29.—^l 2-5: Mark 14, 1f; Luke 22, 1f; John 11, 47.—^m 6-13: Mark 14, 3-9; John 11, 2; 12, 1-8.—ⁿ 14-16: Mark 14, 10f; Luke 22, 3-6.

The evangelist places it here to bring together the narratives of the anointing and of the betrayal of Judas.

Preparation

17 Now o on the first day of the Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and said, "Where dost thou want us to prepare for thee to eat the passover?"

18 But Jesus said, "Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, 'The Master says, My time is near at hand; at thy house I am keeping the Passover with my disciples.'"

19 And the disciples did as Jesus bade them, and prepared the Passover.

The Betrayer

20 Now p when evening arrived, he reclined at table with the twelve disciples.

21 And while they were eating, he said, "Amen I say to you, one of you will betray me."

22 And being very much saddened they began each to say, "Is it I, Lord?"

23 But he answered and said, "He who dips his hand into the dish with me, he will betray me."

24 The Son of Man q indeed goes his way, as it is written of him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It were better for that man if he had not been born."

25 And Judas who betrayed him answered and said, "Is it I, Rabbi?" He said to him, "Thou hast said it."

The Holy Eucharist

26 And r while they were at supper, Jesus took bread, and blessed and broke, and gave it to his disciples, and said, "Take and eat; this is my body."

27 And taking a cup, he gave thanks and gave it to them, saying, "All of you drink of this;

28 s for this is my blood of the new covenant, which is being shed for many unto the forgiveness of sins.

29 But I say to you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it new with you in the kingdom of my Father."

o 17-19: Mark 14, 12-16; Luke 22, 7-13.—p 20-24: Mark 14, 17-21; Luke 22, 14, 21-23; John 13, 21-26.—q Ps. 40, 10.—r 26-29: Mark 14, 22-25; Luke 22, 18, 20; 1 Cor. 11, 23-25.—s Ex. 24, 8;

Peter's Denials Predicted

30 And t after reciting a hymn, they went out to Mount Olivet.

31 Then Jesus said to them, "You will all be scandalized this night because of me; for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered."

32 u But after I have risen, I will go before you into Galilee."

33 But Peter answered and said to him, "Even though all shall be scandalized because of thee, I will never be scandalized."

34 Jesus said to him, v "Amen I say to thee, this very night, before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times."

35 Peter said to him, "Even if I should have to die with thee, I will not deny thee!" And all the disciples said the same thing.

2. THE PASSION AND DEATH OF JESUS

The Agony in the Garden

36 Then Jesus came with them to a country place called w Gethsemani, and he said to his disciples, "Sit down here, while I go over yonder and pray."

37 And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and he began to be saddened and exceedingly troubled.

38 Then he said to them, "My soul is sad, even unto death. Wait here and watch with me."

39 And going forward a little, he fell prostrate and prayed, saying, "Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass away from me; yet not as I will, but as thou wilt."

40 Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter, "Could you not, then, watch one hour with me?"

41 Watch and pray, that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

42 Again a second time he went away and prayed, saying, "My Father, if this

Jer. 31, 31.—t 30-35: Mark 14, 26-31; Luke 22, 39; John 18, 1; Zach. 13, 7; John 16, 32.—u Mark 16, 7.—v Luke 22, 33f; John 13, 37f.—w 36-46: Mark 14, 32-42; Luke 22, 40-46.

Ver. 26. The Last Supper was on Thursday evening.

cup cannot pass away unless I drink it, thy will be done."

43 And he came again and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy.

44 And leaving them he went back again, and prayed a third time, saying the same words over.

45 Then he came to his disciples, and said to them, "Sleep on now, and take your rest! Behold, the hour is at hand when the Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of sinners.

46 Rise, let us go. Behold, he who betrays me is at hand."

Jesus Arrested

47 And while he was yet speaking, behold Judas, ^x one of the Twelve, came and with him a great crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and elders of the people.

48 Now his betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "Whomever I kiss, that is he; lay hold of him."

49 And he went straight up to Jesus and said, "Hail, Rabbi!" and kissed him.

50 And Jesus said to him, "Friend, for what purpose hast thou come?" Then they came forward and set hands on Jesus and took him.

51 And behold, one of those who were with Jesus reached out his hand, drew his sword, and struck the servant of the high priest, cutting off his ear.

52 Then Jesus said to him, "Put back thy sword into its place; ^y for all those who take the sword will perish by the sword.

53 Or dost thou suppose that I cannot entreat my Father, and he will even now furnish me with more than twelve legions of angels?

54 How then are the Scriptures to be fulfilled, ^z that thus it must take place?"

55 In that hour Jesus said to the crowds, "As against a robber you have come out, with swords and clubs, to seize me. I sat daily with you in the temple teaching, and you did not lay hands on me."

56 Now all this was done that the Scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples left him and fled.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin

57 Now those who had taken Jesus ^a led him away to Caiphas the high priest, where the Scribes and the elders had gathered together.

58 But Peter was following him at a distance, even to the courtyard of the high priest, and he went in and sat with the attendants to see the end.

59 Now the chief priests and all the Sanhedrin were seeking false witness against Jesus, that they might put him to death,

60 but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. But last of all two false witnesses came forward,

61 and said, ^b "This man said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to rebuild it after three days.'"

62 Then the high priest, standing up, said to him, "Dost thou make no answer to the things that these men prefer against thee?"

63 But Jesus kept silence. ^c And the high priest said to him, "I adjure thee by the living God that thou tell us whether thou art the Christ, the Son of God."

64 Jesus said to him, "Thou hast said it. Nevertheless, I say to you, ^d hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming upon the clouds of heaven."

65 Then the high priest tore his garments, saying, "He has blasphemed; what further need have we of witnesses? Behold, now you have heard the blasphemy.

66 What do you think?" And they answered and said, "He is liable to death."

67 Then they spat ^e in his face and buffeted him; while others struck his face with the palms of their hands,

68 saying, "Prophecy to us, O Christ! who is it that struck thee?"

Peter's Denial

69 Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard; ^f and a maidservant came up to him and said, "Thou also wast with Jesus the Galilean."

^x 47-56: Mark 14, 43-50; Luke 22, 47-53; John 18, 3-11.—^y Gen. 9, 6; Apoc. 13, 10.—^z Isa. 53, 7-10.—^a 57-68: Mark 14, 53-65; Luke 22, 54; John 18, 12-24.—^b John 2, 19.—^c 63-66: Luke 22, 67-71.

^d Matt. 16, 27; Rom. 14, 10.—^e Isa. 50, 6; Mark 14, 65; Luke 22, 63f.—^f 69-75: Mark 14, 66-72; Luke 22, 55-62; John 18, 16-18, 25-27.

Ver. 51. Cf. John 18, 10. The servant's name was Malchus; it was Peter who cut off his ear.

70 But he denied it before them all, saying, "I do not know what thou art saying."

71 And when he had gone out to the gateway, another maid saw him, and said to those who were there, "This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth."

72 And again he denied it with an oath, "I do not know the man!"

73 And after a little while the bystanders came up and said to Peter, "Surely thou also art one of them, for even thy speech betrays thee."

74 Then he began to curse and to swear that he did not know the man. And at that moment a cock crowed.

75 And Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said, "Before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times." And he went out and wept bitterly.

CHAPTER 27

The End of Judas

NOW WHEN morning came all the chief priests and the elders of the people took counsel together against Jesus in order to put him to death. g

2 And they bound him and led him away, h and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the procurator.

3 Then Judas, who betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders,

4 saying, "I have sinned in betraying innocent blood." But they said, "What is that to us? See to it thyself."

5 And he flung the pieces of silver into the temple, and withdrew; i and went away and hanged himself with a halter.

6 And the chief priests took the pieces of silver, and said, "It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, seeing that it is the price of blood."

7 And after they had consulted together, they bought with them the potter's field, as a burial place for strangers.

8 For this reason that field has been called even to this day, Haceldama, that is, the Field of Blood.

g Mark 15, 1; Luke 22, 66.—h Luke 23, 1; John 18, 28.—i Acts 1, 18f.—j Zach. 11, 12.—k 11-14: Mark 15, 2-5; Luke 23, 2 f; John 18, 29-38.—l 15-

9 Then what was spoken through Jeremias the prophet was fulfilled, i And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him who was priced, upon whom the children of Israel set a price;

10 and they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord directed me.

Jesus before Pilate

11 Now Jesus stood before the procurator, k and the procurator asked him, saying, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" Jesus said to him, "Thou sayest it."

12 And when he was accused by the chief priests and the elders, he made no answer.

13 Then Pilate said to him, "Dost thou not hear how many things they prefer against thee?"

14 But he did not answer him a single word, so that the procurator wondered exceedingly.

15 Now at festival time l the procurator used to release to the crowd a prisoner, whomever they would.

16 Now he had at that time a notorious prisoner called Barabbas.

17 Therefore, when they had gathered together, Pilate said, "Whom do you wish that I release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?"

18 For he knew that they had delivered him up out of envy.

19 Now, as he was sitting on the judgment-seat, his wife sent to him, saying, "Have nothing to do with that just man, for I have suffered many things in a dream today because of him."

20 m But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to destroy Jesus.

21 But the procurator addressed them, and said to them, "Which of the two do you wish that I release to you?" And they said, "Barabbas."

22 Pilate said to them, "What then am I to do with Jesus who is called Christ?"

23 They all said, "Let him be crucified!" The procurator said to them, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they kept crying

26: Mark 15, 6-15; Luke 23, 17-25; John 18, 39f.—m Acts 3, 14.

Chap. 27, Ver. 2. Upon the deposition of Archelaus in 6 A. D., Judea became a Roman province and was governed by a procurator. Pontius Pilate was procurator from 26 to 36 A. D.

out the more, saying, "Let him be crucified!"

24 Now Pilate, seeing that he was doing no good, but rather that a riot was breaking out, took water and washed his hands in sight of the crowd, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just man; see to it yourselves."

25 And all the people answered and said, "His blood be on us and on our children."

The Scourging and Crowning

26 Then he released to them Barabbas; but Jesus he scourged and delivered to them to be crucified.

27 Then the soldiers of the procurator took Jesus into the praetorium, ⁿ and gathered together about him the whole cohort.

28 And they stripped him and put on him a scarlet cloak;

29 and plaiting a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed into his right hand; and bending the knee before him they mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

30 And they spat on him, and took the reed and kept striking him on the head.

The Way of the Cross

31 And when they had mocked him, they took the cloak off him and put his own garments on him, and led him away to crucify him.

32 Now as they went out, they found a man of Cyrene named Simon; ^o him they forced to take up his cross.

33 And ^p they came to the place called Golgotha, that is, the Place of the Skull.

The Crucifixion

34 And they gave him wine to drink mixed with gall; but when he had tasted it, he would not drink.

35 And after they had crucified him, they divided his garments, casting lots, [to fulfill what was spoken through the ⁿ 27-31: Mark 15, 16-20; John 19, 2f; Ps. 21, 17.—^o Mark 15, 21; Luke 23, 26.—^p 33-51: Mark 15, 22-38; Luke 23, 32-38, 44-46; John 19, 17-19.

Ver. 35. To fulfill . . . cast lots: this is omitted in the better Greek and some Vulgate Manuscripts.

Ver. 46. The words of our Lord were a quotation prophet, ^q They divided my garments among them, and upon my vesture they cast lots.]

36 And sitting down they kept watch over him.

37 And they put above his head the charge against him, written, THIS IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then two robbers were crucified with him, one on his right hand and one on his left.

39 Now the passers-by were jeering at him, ^r shaking their heads,

40 and saying, ^s "Thou who destroyest the temple, and in three days buildest it up again, save thyself! If thou art the Son of God, come down from the cross!"

41 In like manner, the chief priests with the Scribes and the elders, mocking, said, 42 "He saved others, himself he cannot save! ^t If he is the King of Israel, let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe him.

43 He trusted in God; ^u let him deliver him now, if he wants him; for he said, 'I am the Son of God.' "

44 And the robbers also, who were crucified with him, reproached him in the same way.

The Death of Jesus

45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

46 But about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, ^v "Eli, Eli, lema sabacthani," that is, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

47 And some of the bystanders on hearing this said, "This man is calling Elias."

48 And immediately one of them ran and, taking a sponge, soaked it in common wine, put it on a reed and offered it to him to drink.

49 But the rest said, "Wait, let us see whether Elias is coming to save him."

50 But Jesus again cried out with a loud voice, and gave up his spirit.

23f. 28-30.—^q Ps. 21, 19.—^r Ps. 21, 8.—^s John 2, 19.—^t Wisd. 2, 18-20.—^u Ps. 21, 9.—^v Ps. 21, 2.

of Ps. 21, 2. Taken in their context they do not express anything like despair. They do, however, express a poignant sense of dereliction.

51 And w behold, the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom; and the earth quaked, and the rocks were rent,

52 and the tombs were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep arose;

53 and coming forth out of the tombs after his resurrection, they came into the holy city, and appeared to many.

54 Now when the centurion, x and those who were with him keeping guard over Jesus, saw the earthquake and the things that were happening, they were very much afraid, and they said, "Truly he was the Son of God."

55 And many women were there, looking on from a distance, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to him.

56 Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

The Burial

57 Now when it was evening, there came a certain rich man of Arimathea, y Joseph by name, who was himself a disciple of Jesus.

58 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate ordered the body to be given up.

59 And Joseph taking the body, wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 and laid it in his new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock. Then he rolled a large stone to the entrance of the tomb, and departed.

61 But Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the sepulchre.

Precautions of the Chief Priests

62 And the next day, which was the one after the Day of Preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees went in a body to Pilate,

63 saying, "Sir, we have remembered how that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, 'After three days I will rise again.'"

64 Give orders, therefore, that the sepulchre be guarded until the third day, or else his disciples may come and steal him away, and say to the people, 'He has risen from the dead'; and the last imposture will be worse than the first."

65 Pilate said to them, "You have a guard; go, guard it as well as you know how."

66 So they went and made the sepulchre secure, sealing the stone, and setting the guard.

3. THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS

CHAPTER 28

The Women at the Grave

NOW late in the night z of the Sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the sepulchre.

2 And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven, and drawing near rolled back the stone, and sat upon it.

3 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment like snow.

4 And for fear of him the guards were terrified, and became like dead men.

5 But the angel spoke and said to the women, "Do not be afraid; for I know that you seek Jesus, who was crucified.

6 He is not here, for he has risen even as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord was laid.

7 And go quickly, tell his disciples that he has risen; and behold, he goes before you into Galilee; there you shall see him. Behold, I have foretold it to you."

8 And they departed quickly from the tomb in fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples.

9 And behold, Jesus met them, saying, "Hail!" And they came up and embraced his feet and worshipped him.

10 Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid; go, take word to my brethren that they are to set out for Galilee; there they shall see me."

The Guards and the Chief Priests

11 Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and w 2 Par. 3, 14.—x 54-56; Mark 15, 39-41; Luke 23, 47-49.—y 57-61; Mark 15, 42-47; Luke 23, 50-56; John 19, 38-42.—z 1-8: Mark 16, 1-8; Luke 24, 1-10; John 20, 1.

Ver. 62. Preparation for the Sabbath.

reported to the chief priests all that had happened.

12 And when they had assembled with the elders, and had consulted together, they gave much money to the soldiers,

13 telling them, "Say, 'His disciples came by night and stole him while we were sleeping.'"

14 And if the procurator hears of this, we will persuade him and keep you out of trouble."

15 And they took the money, and did as they were instructed; and this story has been spread abroad among the Jews even to the present day.

a Mark 16, 15f.

Chap. 28, Ver. 16-20. St. Matthew's last words are the climax of his Gospel; Christ sends forth His Apostles to conquer the world and make all men His disciples.

Commission of the Apostles

16 But the eleven disciples went into Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had directed them to go.

17 And when they saw him they worshipped him; but some doubted.

18 And Jesus drew near and spoke to them, saying, "All power in heaven and on earth has been given to me.

19 Go, a therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit,

20 teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you; and behold, I am with you all days, even unto the consummation of the world."

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ according to SAINT MARK

THE SECOND GOSPEL was written by St. Mark who, in the New Testament, is sometimes called John Mark. Both he and his mother, Mary, were highly esteemed in the early Church, and his mother's house in Jerusalem served as a meeting place for Christians there. He was associated with St. Paul and St. Barnabas (who was Mark's cousin) on their missionary journey through the island of Cyprus. Later he accompanied St. Barnabas alone. We know also that he was in Rome with St. Peter and with St. Paul. Tradition ascribes to him the founding of the Church in Alexandria. His feast falls on the 25th of April.

It is historically certain that St. Mark wrote the second Gospel, that he wrote it in Rome sometime before the year 60 A.D., that he wrote it in Greek for the Gentile converts to Christianity. Tradition tells us that St. Mark was requested by the Romans to set down the teachings of St. Peter. This seems to be confirmed by the position which St. Peter has in this Gospel. In this way the second Gospel is a record of the life of Jesus as seen through the eyes of the Prince of the Apostles.

St. Mark's purpose is to show to the Romans that Jesus is the Savior, and that He is divine. To this end he attends more to the miracles of our Lord than to His sermons, giving only a few of the parables at length. The author, however, gives in some detail the events he narrates, and leaves the impression of an eyewitness. His language is simple, and yet earnest and full of charm.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

CHAPTER 1

John the Baptist

THE beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

2 As it is written in Isaiah the prophet, a Behold, I send my messenger before thee, b who shall prepare thy way,

3 c the voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths,"

4 there came John in the desert, baptizing and preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins.

5 And all the country of Judea went out to him, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

6 And John was clothed in camel's hair, with a leathern girdle about his loins, and he ate locusts and wild honey. And he preached, saying,

7 "One mightier than I is coming after me, the strap of whose sandals I am not worthy to stoop down and loose.

8 I have baptized you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit."

The Baptism of Jesus

9 And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. d

10 And immediately on coming up from the water he saw the heavens opened and the Spirit, as a dove, descending and remaining upon him.

11 And there came a voice from the heavens, e "Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased."

The Temptation

12 And immediately the Spirit f drove him forth into the desert.

a 2-8: Matt. 3, 1-11; Luke 3, 2-16; John 1, 19-33.—b Mal. 3, 1.—c Isa. 40, 3.—d 9-11: Matt. 3, 13-17; Luke 3, 21f; John 1, 32-34.—e Ps. 2, 7.—f 12f: Matt. 4, 1-11; Luke 4, 1-13.—g 14f: Matt. 4, 12-17;

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. Son of God: the Jews sometimes used the term figuratively of one standing in a special relationship to God. Hence when Jesus is called the Son of God in the Synoptic Gospels, it does not necessarily imply His divinity. However, it does imply the divinity of the Messiah here, since St. Mark 13 And he was in the desert forty days and forty nights, being tempted the while by Satan, and was with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered to him.

II

In Galilee

14 And after John had been delivered up, g Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God,

15 and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand. Repent and believe in the gospel."

The First Disciples Called

16 And passing along by the sea of Galilee, he h saw Simon and his brother Andrew, casting their nets into the sea (for they were fishermen).

17 And Jesus said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

18 And at once they left the nets, and followed him.

19 And going on a little farther, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John; they also were in their boat mending the nets.

20 Immediately he called them. And they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

21 And they entered Capharnaum. i And immediately on the Sabbath he went into the synagogue and began to teach them.

22 And they were astonished at his teaching; j for he was teaching them as one having authority, and not as the Scribes.

The Cure of a Demoniac

23 Now in their synagogue there was a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out,

24 saying, "What have we to do with thee, Jesus of Nazareth? Hast thou come believed in that divinity, and speaks here in his own name.

Luke 4, 14f; John 4, 43.—h 16-20: Matt. 4, 18-22; Luke 5, 2-11; John 1, 40-42.—i 21-28: Matt. 4, 13; Luke 4, 31-37.—j Matt. 7, 28f.

Ver. 22. Unlike the Pharisees, who quoted and explained the Law and oral tradition, Jesus taught with the authority of one who possessed the truth independently of human masters.

to destroy us? I know who thou art, the Holy One of God."

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Hold thy peace, and go out of the man."

26 And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying out with a loud voice, went out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, so that they inquired among themselves, saying, "What is this? What new doctrine is this? For with authority he commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him."

28 And rumor concerning him went forth immediately into all the region round about Galilee.

Peter's Mother-in-law

29 And as soon as they came out of the synagogue, ^k they, with James and John, came to the house of Simon and Andrew.

30 Now Simon's mother-in-law was keeping her bed sick with a fever, and they immediately told him about her.

31 And drawing near, he took her by the hand and raised her up; and the fever left her at once, and she began to wait on them.

Other Miracles

32 Now when it was evening, and the sun had set, they brought to him all who were ill and who were possessed.

33 And the whole town had gathered together at the door.

34 And he cured many who were afflicted with various diseases, and cast out many devils; and he did not permit them to speak, because they knew him.

35 And rising up long before daybreak, he went out and departed into a desert place, and there he prayed.

36 And Simon, and those who were with him, followed him.

37 And they found him and said to him, "They are all seeking thee."

38 And he said to them, "Let us go into the neighboring villages and towns, that there also I may preach. For this is why I have come."

39 And he was preaching in their synagogues, and throughout all Galilee, and casting out devils.

Ver. 29. The better Greek Manuscripts read: "He, with James and John, came," etc.

A Leper

40 And a leper came to him, ^l entreating him; and kneeling down he said, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean."

41 And Jesus, having compassion on him, stretched forth his hand and touched him, and said to him, "I will; be thou made clean."

42 And when he had spoken, immediately the leprosy left him, and he was made clean.

43 Then he strictly charged him, and immediately drove him away.

44 And he said to him, "See thou tell no one; but go, show thyself to the high priest, and offer for thy purification ^m the things that Moses commanded, for a witness to them."

45 But he went out, and began to publish and to spread abroad the fact, so that Jesus could no longer openly enter a town, but remained outside in desert places. And they kept coming to him from every direction.

CHAPTER 2

A Paralytic at Capharnaum

AND ⁿ after some days, he again entered Capharnaum

2 and it was reported that he was at home. And many gathered together, so that there was no longer room, not even around the door.

3 And he spoke the word to them. And they came, bringing to him a paralytic, carried by four.

4 And since they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they stripped off the roof where he was, and, having made an opening, they let down the pallet on which the paralytic was lying.

5 And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Son, thy sins are forgiven thee."

6 Now some of the Scribes were sitting there and reasoning in their hearts, ^k 29-34: Matt. 8, 14-16; Luke 4, 38-41.—^l 40-44: Matt. 8, 2-4; Luke 5, 12-14.—^m Lev. 14, 2-32.—ⁿ 1-12: Matt. 9, 2-8; Luke 5, 18-26.

Ver. 44. The Mosaic Law prescribed this showing to the priest and also an offering.

7 "Why does this man speak thus? He blasphemeth. ^o Who can forgive sins, but only God?"

8 And at once Jesus, knowing in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, said to them, "Why are you arguing these things in your hearts?"

9 Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, and take up thy pallet, and walk'?

10 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic—

11 "I say to thee, arise, take up thy pallet, and go to thy house."

12 And immediately he arose and, taking up his pallet, went forth in the sight of all, so that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, "Never did we see the like."

The Call of Levi

13 And he went forth again by the water's edge, and all the crowd kept coming to him, and he taught them.

14 ^p And as he was passing along, he saw Levi, the son of Alpheus, sitting in the tax-collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he arose and followed him.

15 And it came to pass as he was at table in Levi's house, that many publicans and sinners were at table with Jesus and his disciples, for there were many and they also followed him.

16 And the Scribes and the Pharisees, seeing that he ate with sinners and publicans, said to his disciples, "Why does your master eat and drink with publicans and sinners?"

17 And Jesus heard this, and said to them, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick. For I have not come to call the just, but sinners."

The Question of Fasting

18 And the disciples of John and the

^o Job 14, 4; Isa. 43, 25.—^p 14-17: Matt. 9, 9-13; Luke 5, 27-32.—^q 18-22: Matt. 9, 14-17; Luke 5,

Chap. 2, Ver. 24. The Pharisees insisted on an extreme observance of the Sabbath rest and condemned even necessary work on that day.

Ver. 26. Jesus here cites an incident from the life of King David [1 Kgs. 21, 6], when dire necessity compelled him to violate the letter of the Law [Lev. 24, 9]. The passage in Kings which tells of this inci-

Pharisees were fasting. And they came, and said to him, ^q "Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, whereas thy disciples do not fast?"

19 And Jesus said to them, "Can the wedding guests fast as long as the bridegroom is with them?"

20 As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day.

21 No one sews a patch of raw cloth on an old garment; else the new patch tears away from the old, and a worse rent is made.

22 And no one pours new wine into old wine-skins; else the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is spilt, and the skins will be ruined. But new wine must be put into fresh skins."

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath

23 And it came to pass again as he was going through the standing grain on the Sabbath, ^r that his disciples began, as they went along, to pluck the ears of grain.

24 But the Pharisees said to him, "Behold, why are they doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?"

25 And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and those who were with him were in need, and hungry?"

26 how he entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the loaves of proposition, ^s which he could not lawfully eat, but only the priests? and how he gave them to those who were with him?"

27 And he said to them, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.

28 Therefore the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath."

33-38.—^r 23-28: Matt. 12, 1-8; Luke 6, 1-5; Deut. 23, 25.—^s 1 Kgs. 21, 6; Lev. 24, 5-9.

dent names Achimelech as the high priest, whereas St. Mark says it took place under the high priest Abiathar. Abiathar was present and succeeded his father Achimelech shortly afterwards. His name occurs frequently in the history of David and was connected with David's in current synchronism.

CHAPTER 3

A Man with a Withered Hand

AND ^t again he entered the synagogue. And a man with a withered hand was there.

2 And they were watching him, whether he cured on the Sabbath, that they might accuse him.

3 And he said to the man with the withered hand, "Stand forth in the midst."

4 And he said to them, "Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good, or to do evil? to save a life, or to destroy it?" But they kept silence.

5 And looking round upon them with anger, and being grieved at the blindness of their hearts, he said to the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth, and his hand was restored.

6 But the Pharisees went out and immediately took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might do away with him.

The Mercy of Jesus

7 And ^u Jesus with his disciples withdrew to the sea; and there followed him a large crowd from Galilee and Judea,

8 and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond the Jordan. And of those about Tyre and Sidon, a large crowd, hearing what he was doing, came to him.

9 And he told his disciples to have a small boat in readiness for him, because of the crowd, lest they should throng him.

10 For he healed many, so that as many as had ailments were pressing upon him to touch him.

11 And the unclean spirits, whenever they beheld him, fell down before him and cried out, saying, 12 "Thou art the Son of God." And he charged them strictly not to make him known.

The Choice of the Twelve

13 And ^v going up a mountain, he called to him men of his own choosing, and they came to him.

Chap. 3, Ver. 6. The Herodians: Note the growing hatred of the Pharisees towards Jesus.

Ver. 21. Our Lord's relatives did not yet believe in Him [cf. John 7, 5]. However, it is not clear that 14 And he appointed twelve that they might be with him and that he might send them forth to preach.

15 To them he gave power to cure sicknesses and to cast out devils.

16 There were Simon, to whom he gave the name Peter;

17 and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (these he surnamed Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder);

18 and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Cananean, 19 and Judas Iscariot, he who betrayed him.

III

Blasphemy of the Scribes

20 And they came to the house, and again a crowd gathered so that they could not so much as take their food.

21 But when his own people had heard of it, they went out to lay hold of him, for they said, "He has gone mad."

22 And the Scribes who had come down from Jerusalem said, ^w "He has Beelzebub," and, "By the prince of devils he casts out devils."

23 And he called them together, and said to them in parables, "How can Satan cast out Satan?

24 And if a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house is divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan has risen up against himself, he is divided, and cannot stand, but is at an end.

27 But no one can enter the strong man's house and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man. Then he will plunder his house.

28 Amen I say to you, that all sins shall be forgiven to the sons of men, and the blasphemies wherewith they may blaspheme;

29 but whoever blasphemes against the ^t 1-6: Matt. 12, 9-14; Luke 6, 6-11.—^u Matt. 12, 15f; Luke 6, 17.—^v 13-19: Matt. 10, 1-4; Luke 6, 12-16.—^w 22-30: Matt. 12, 24-32; Luke 11, 15-22.

they said, "He has gone mad." The Greek text means, "He was beside himself." The Blessed Virgin was with them on this occasion (vv. 31-35), but she had no misconception of His nature and mission.

Holy Spirit never has forgiveness, but will be guilty of an everlasting sin."

30 For they said, "He has an unclean spirit."

Jesus and His Brethren

31 And ^x his mother and his brethren came, and standing outside, they sent to him, calling him.

32 Now a crowd was sitting about him, and they said to him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren are outside, seeking thee."

33 And he answered and said to them, "Who are my mother and my brethren?"

34 And looking round on those who were sitting about him, he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren."

35 For whoever does the will of God, he is my brother and sister and mother."

CHAPTER 4

Parable of the Sower

AND ^y again he began to teach by the water's edge. And as a great crowd gathered about him, he got into a boat and sat on board. And all the crowd remained on land facing the sea.

2 And he taught them many things in parables, and he said to them in his instruction,

3 "Hear! Behold, the sower went out to sow.

4 And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside, and the birds came and ate it up.

5 And other seed fell upon rocky ground, where it had not much earth; and it sprang up at once, because it had no depth of earth;

6 but when the sun rose it was scorched, and because it had no root it withered away.

7 And other seed fell among thorns;

^x 31-35: Matt. 12, 46-50; Luke 8, 19-21.—^y 1-12: Matt. 13, 1-15; Luke 8, 4-10.—^z Isa. 6, 9; John

Ver. 29. The sin against the Holy Spirit is to ascribe to the devil the works of the Holy Spirit. One who thus attacks directly this source of all grace, rejects the source of salvation. It is morally impossible that he should ever meet the conditions for absolution. Cf. note on Matt. 12, 32.

Ver. 31. Brethren: relatives of Jesus, not blood brothers. This wider use of the term was common among the Jews. Jesus does not disclaim the bonds of and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.

8 And other seed fell upon good ground, and yielded fruit that grew up, made increase and produced, one thirty, another sixty, and another a hundredfold."

9 Then he said, "He who has ears to hear, let him hear."

10 And when he was alone, those who were with him and the Twelve asked him about the parables.

11 And he said to them, "To you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God; but to those outside, all things are treated in parables, 12 that ^z Seeing they may see, but not perceive; and hearing they may hear, but not understand; lest perhaps at any time they should be converted, and their sins be forgiven them."

13 And he said to them, ^a "Do you not know this parable? How then will you understand all the parables?"

14 The sower sows the word.

15 And those by the wayside are they in whom the word is sown; as soon as they have heard, Satan at once comes and takes away the word that has been sown in their hearts.

16 And those likewise who are sown on the rocky ground are they who, when they have heard the word, receive it immediately with joy;

17 and they have no root in themselves, but continue only for a time; then, when trouble and persecution come because of the word, they at once fall away.

18 And those who are sown among the thorns are they who listen to the word;

19 but the cares of the world, ^b and the deceitfulness of riches, and the desires about other things, entering in, choke the word, and it is made fruitless.

20 And those who are sown upon good ground are they who hear the word, and welcome it, and yield fruit, one thirty, another sixty, and another a hundredfold."

12, 40; Acts 28, 26; Rom. 11, 8.—^a 13-20: Matt. 13, 18-23; Luke 8, 11-15.—^b 1 Tim. 6, 17.

physical relationship, but He seizes the opportunity to give a lesson on the greater dignity of spiritual relationship. Cf. Luke 11, 27f. St. Augustine says that Mary was more blessed in that she believed in Christ than in that she had given Him birth ("De virginibus," III).

Chap. 4, Ver. 12. God does not cause, but merely permits, such hardening of heart and blindness of soul.

Purpose of This Teaching

21 And he said to them, ^c "Is a lamp brought to be put under the measure, or under the couch? Is it not rather to be put upon the lamp-stand?"

22 For there is nothing hidden that will not be made ^d manifest; nor is anything concealed that will not come to light.

23 If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear."

24 And he said to them, ^e "Take heed what you hear. With what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you, and more shall be given to you.

25 For to him who has shall be given; ^f and from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away."

Seed Grows of Itself

26 And he said, "Thus is the kingdom of God, as though a man should cast seed into the earth, 27 then sleep and rise, night and day, and the seed should sprout and grow without his knowing it.

28 For of itself the earth bears the crop, first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear.

29 But when the fruit is ripe, immediately he puts in the sickle because the harvest has come."

The Mustard Seed

30 And he said, ^g "To what shall we liken the kingdom of God; or to what parable shall we compare it?

31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when sown upon the earth, is the smallest of all the seeds upon the earth;

32 yet when it is sown, it grows up and becomes larger than any herb, and puts out great branches, so that the birds of the air can dwell beneath its shade."

33 And in many such parables he spoke the word to them, according as they were able to understand it;

34 but without a parable he did not speak to them. But privately he explained all things to his disciples.

The Storm on the Lake

35 And he said to them on that day, when evening had come, ^h "Let us cross over to the other side."

36 And sending away the crowd, they took him just as he was, in the boat; and there were other boats with him.

37 And there arose a great squall, and the waves were beating into the boat, so that the boat was now filling.

38 And he himself was in the stern of the boat, on the cushion, asleep. And they woke him and said to him, "Master, does it not concern thee that we are perishing?"

39 Then rising up, he rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace, be still!" And the wind fell and there came a great calm.

40 And he said to them, "Why are you fearful? Are you still without faith?" And they feared exceedingly and said to one another, "Who, then, is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

CHAPTER 5

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa

AND ⁱ they came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes;

2 and as soon as he stepped out of the boat, there met him from the tombs a man with an unclean spirit.

3 This man lived in the tombs and no one could any longer bind him, even with chains;

4 for often he had been bound with fetters and chains, and he had rent the chains asunder and broken the fetters into pieces. And no one was able to control him.

5 And constantly, night and day, he was in the tombs and on the mountains, howling and gashing himself with stones.

6 And when he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and worshipped him,

7 and crying out with a loud voice, he said, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, do not torment me!"

^c 21-25: Matt. 5, 15; Luke 8, 16-18 11, 33.—^d Matt. 10, 26; Luke 12, 2.—^e Matt. 7, 2; Luke 6, 38.—^f Matt. 13, 12; Luke 19, 26.—^g 30-32: Matt.

13, 31f; Luke 13, 18f.—^h 35-40: Matt. 8, 18, 23-27; Luke 8, 22-25.—ⁱ 1-17: Matt. 8, 28-34; Luke 8, 26-37.

Ver. 37. Such sudden storms are frequent on the Sea of Galilee.

Chap. 5, Ver. 2. The dead were commonly buried in rock tombs outside the town. The outcasts of society, such as lepers and demoniacs, frequently sought shelter in them.

8 For he was saying to him, "Go out of the man, thou unclean spirit."

9 And he asked him, "What is thy name?" And he said to him, "My name is Legion, for we are many."

10 And he entreated him earnestly not to drive them out of the country.

11 Now a great herd of swine was there on the mountainside, feeding.

12 And the spirits kept entreating him, saying, "Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them."

13 And Jesus immediately gave them leave. And the unclean spirits came out and entered into the swine; and the herd, in number about two thousand, rushed down with great violence into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.

14 But the swineherds fled and reported it in the town and in the country; and people came out to see what had happened.

15 And they came to Jesus, and saw the man who had been afflicted by the devil, sitting clothed and in his right mind; and they were afraid.

16 And those who had seen it reported to them how it had happened to the possessed man, and about the swine.

17 And they began to entreat him to depart from their district.

18 And as Jesus was getting into the boat, the man who had been afflicted by the devil began to entreat him that he might remain with him.

19 And he did not allow him, but said to him, "Go home to thy relatives, and tell them all that the Lord has done for thee, and how he has had mercy on thee."

20 And he departed, and began to publish in the Decapolis all that Jesus had done for him. And all marvelled.

The Daughter of Jairus; the Woman with a Hemorrhage

21 And when Jesus had again crossed over in the boat to the other side, a great crowd gathered together to him; and he was at the water's edge.

22 And i there came one of the rulers of the synagogue named Jairus. And seeing Jesus, he fell at his feet,

23 and entreated him much saying, j 22-43: Matt. 9, 18-26; Luke 8, 41-56.—k Luke 7, 50.

"My daughter is at the point of death; come, lay thy hands upon her, that she may be saved and live."

24 And he went away with him, and a great crowd was following him and pressing upon him.

25 And there was a woman who for twelve years had had a hemorrhage, 26 and had suffered much at the hands of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and found no benefit, but rather grew worse.

27 Hearing about Jesus, she came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak.

28 For she said, "If I touch but his cloak, I shall be saved."

29 And at once the flow of her blood was dried up, and she felt in her body that she was healed of her affliction.

30 And Jesus, instantly perceiving in himself that power had gone forth from him, turned to the crowd, and said, "Who touched my cloak?"

31 And his disciples said to him, "Thou seest the crowd pressing upon thee, and dost thou say, 'Who touched me?'"

32 And he was looking round to see her who had done this.

33 But the woman, fearing and trembling, knowing what had happened within her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

34 But he said to her, k "Daughter, thy faith has saved thee. Go in peace, and be thou healed of thy affliction."

35 While he was yet speaking, there came some from the house of the ruler of the synagogue, saying, "Thy daughter is dead. Why dost thou trouble the Master further?"

36 But Jesus, having heard what was being said, said to the ruler of the synagogue, "Do not be afraid, only have faith."

37 And he allowed no one to follow him except Peter and James, and John the brother of James.

38 And they came to the house of the ruler of the synagogue and he saw a tumult, people weeping and wailing greatly.

39 And going in he said to them, "Why do you make this din, and weep? The girl is asleep, not dead."

40 And they laughed him to scorn. But he, putting them all out, took the father and mother of the girl and those who were with him, and entered in where the girl was lying.

41 And taking the girl by the hand, he said to her, "Talitha cumi," which is interpreted, "Girl, I say to thee, arise."

42 And the girl rose up immediately and began to walk; she was twelve years old. And they were utterly amazed.

43 And he charged them strictly that no one should know of it, and directed that something be given her to eat.

CHAPTER 6

Jesus at Nazareth

AND leaving that place, ^l he went into his own country, and his disciples followed him.

2 And when the Sabbath had come, he began to teach in the synagogue. And many, when they heard him, were astonished at his doctrine, saying, "Where did he get all this?" and, "What is this wisdom that is given to him?" and, "What mean such miracles wrought by his hands?"

3 Is not this the carpenter, ^m the son of Mary, the brother of James, Joseph, Jude, and Simon? And are not also his sisters here with us?" And they took offense at him.

4 And Jesus said to them, ⁿ "A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, and among his own kindred, and in his own house."

5 And he could not work any miracle there, beyond curing a few sick people by laying his hands upon them.

6 And he marvelled because of their unbelief.

The Mission of the Apostles

And he made a circuit of the villages, teaching.

7 ^o And he summoned the Twelve and began to send them forth two by two; and he gave them power over the unclean spirits.

8 And he instructed them to take noth-

^l 1-6: Matt. 13, 54-58; Luke 4, 16-30.—^m John 6, 42.—ⁿ John 4, 44.—^o 7-11: Matt. 10, 1. 5. 9-14; Luke 9, 1; 10, 4-11.—^p Acts 12, 8.—^q Acts 13,

Chap. 6, Ver. 3. The term "sister," like "brother," was used in a wide sense. Cf. note on Mark 3, 31. The son of Mary: designates the only son of a widow.

Ver. 8. The Apostles were to go forth without ordiing for their journey, but a staff only—no wallet, no bread, no money in their girdle;

9 but ^p to wear sandals, and not to put on two tunics.

10 And he said to them, "Wherever you enter into a house, stay there until you leave the place.

11 And whoever does not receive you, or listen to you—^q go forth from there, and shake off the dust from your feet for a witness against them."

12 And going forth, they preached that men should repent,

13 and they cast out many devils, and anointed with oil many sick people, and healed them.^r

Death of the Baptist

14 And King Herod ^s heard of him, for his name had become well known; and he kept saying, "John the Baptist has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are working through him."

15 But others were saying, "It is Elias." But others were saying, "It is a prophet, like one of the prophets."

16 But when Herod heard of this, he said, "It is John whom I beheaded; he has risen from the dead."

17 For ^t Herod himself had sent and taken John, and bound him in prison, because of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, whom he had married.

18 For John had said to Herod, ^u "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife."

19 But Herodias laid snares for him, and would have liked to put him to death, but she could not.

20 For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just and holy man, and protected him; and when he heard him talk, he did many things, and he liked to hear him.

21 And a favorable day came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet to the officials, tribunes and chief men of Galilee.

22 And Herodias' own daughter having come in and danced, she pleased Herod

51; 18, 6.—^r Jas. 5, 14.—^s 14-29: Matt. 14, 1-12; Luke 9, 7-9.—^t Luke 3, 19f.—^u Lev. 18, 16.

nary provisions, relying upon Providence and the hospitality of their countrymen.

Ver. 14. Jesus' activity had aroused intense speculation as to His identity.

and his guests. And the king said to the girl, "Ask of me what thou wilt, and I will give it to thee."

23 And he swore to her, "Whatever thou dost ask, I will give thee, even though it be the half of my kingdom."

24 Then she went out and said to her mother, "What am I to ask for?" And she said, "The head of John the Baptist."

25 And she came in at once with haste to the king, and asked, saying, "I want thee right away to give me on a dish the head of John the Baptist."

26 And grieved as he was, the king, because of his oath and his guests, was unwilling to displease her.

27 But sending an executioner, he commanded that his head be brought on a dish. Then he beheaded him in the prison, 28 and brought his head on a dish, and gave it to the girl, and the girl gave it to her mother.

29 His disciples, hearing of it, came and took away his body, and laid it in a tomb.

Return of the Disciples

30 And the apostles came together to meet Jesus and reported to him all that they had done and taught.

31 And he said to them, v "Come apart into a desert place and rest a while." For there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat.

32 And they got into the boat and went off to a desert place w apart.

33 And many saw them leaving and recognized them; and from all the towns they hurried on foot to the place, and got there ahead of them.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

34 And when he landed, x Jesus saw a large crowd, and had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. And he began to teach them many things.

35 Now when the day was far spent, his disciples came, saying, "This is a desert place and the hour is already late;

v Matt. 14, 13; Luke 9, 10.—w 32-40: Matt. 14, 13-21; Luke 9, 10-17; John 6, 1-13.—x Matt. 9, 36.—y 45-51: Matt. 14, 22-32; John 6, 15-21.

Ver. 26. Was unwilling to displease her: the Greek text probably means, 'would not break faith with her.'

36 send them away, so that they may go to the hamlets and villages round about and buy themselves food to eat."

37 But he answered and said to them, "You yourselves give them some food." And they said to him, "Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread and give them to eat?"

38 And he said to them, "How many loaves have you? Go and see." When they had found out, they said, "Five, and two fishes."

39 And he ordered them to make all the people recline in groups on the green grass.

40 And they reclined in groups of hundreds and of fifties.

41 And he took the five loaves and the two fishes and, looking up to heaven, blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people; and the two fishes he divided among them all.

42 And all ate and were satisfied;

43 and they gathered up what was left over, twelve baskets full of fragments, besides what was left over of the fishes.

44 Now those who had eaten were five thousand men.

Jesus Walks on the Water

45 And immediately afterwards y he made his disciples get into the boat and cross the sea ahead of him to Bethsaida, while he himself dismissed the crowd.

46 And when he had dismissed them, he went away to the mountain to pray.

47 And when it was late, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land.

48 And seeing them straining at the oars, for the wind was against them, about the fourth watch of the night he came to them, walking upon the sea, and he would have passed by them.

49 But they, seeing him walking upon the sea, thought it was a ghost, and cried out.

50 For they all saw him, and were troubled. Then he immediately spoke to them, and said to them, "Take courage; it is I, do not be afraid."

Ver. 33. Recognized them: the words can also mean, "realized where they were going."

Ver. 34. Many things: at some length, is implied.

51 And he got into the boat with them, and the wind fell. And they were utterly beside themselves with astonishment, 52 for they had not understood about the loaves, because their heart was blinded.

Other Miracles

53 And ^z crossing over, they came to the land at Genesareth and moored the boat.

54 And when they had gotten out of the boat, the people at once recognized him;

55 and they hurried through that whole country, and began to bring the sick on their pallets, wherever they heard he was.

56 And wherever he went, into village or hamlet or town, they laid the sick in the market places, and entreated him to let them touch but the tassel of his cloak; and as many as touched him were saved.

CHAPTER 7

Jesus and the Pharisees

AND ^a the Pharisees and some of the Scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered about him.

2 And when they saw that some of his disciples were eating bread with defiled (that is, unwashed) hands, they found fault.

3 For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat without frequent washing of hands, holding the tradition of the ancients.

4 And when they come from the market, they do not eat without washing first. And there have been handed down to them many other things to observe: washing of cups and pots, and brazen vessels and beds.

5 So the Pharisees and Scribes asked him, "Why do not thy disciples walk according to the tradition of the ancients, instead of eating bread with defiled hands?"

^z 53-56: Matt. 14, 34-36; John 6, 24f.—^a 1-30: Matt. 15, 1-28; Luke 11, 37-41.—^b Isa. 29, 13.—

Chap. 7, Ver. 3. It was characteristic of the Pharisees to insist on the binding force of traditional interpretations of the Law, which they termed the "traditions of the ancients," even at the expense of the Law itself. This resulted in frequent frustration of the Law and laid unbearable burdens upon the law-abiding Jew.

6 But answering he said to them, "Well did Isaias prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written, ^b This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me;

7 and in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrine the precepts of men.

8 For, letting go the commandment of God, you hold fast the tradition of men, the washing of pots and of cups; and many other things you do like to these."

9 And he said to them, "Well do you nullify the commandment of God, that you may keep your own tradition!"

10 For Moses said, ^c Honor thy father and thy mother; and, Let him who curses father or mother be put to death.

11 But you say, 'Let a man say to his father or his mother, "Any support thou mightest have had from me is Corban"' (that is, given to God).

12 And you do not allow him to do anything further for his father or mother.

13 You make void the commandment of God by your tradition, which you have handed down; and many such-like things you do."

14 Then he called the crowd to him again, and said to them, "Hear me, all of you, and understand.

15 There is nothing outside a man that, entering into him, can defile him; but the things that come out of a man, these are what defile a man.

16 If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear."

17 And when he had entered the house away from the crowd, his disciples began to ask him about the parable.

18 And he said to them, "Are you also, then, without understanding? Do you not realize that nothing from outside, by entering a man, can defile him?"

19 For it does not enter his heart, but his belly, and passes out into the drain." Thus he declared all foods clean.

20 "And," he said, "the things that come out of a man are what defile a man.

21 For from within, out of the heart of ^c Ex. 20, 12; 21, 17; Lev. 20, 9; Deut. 5, 16; Eph. 6, 2.

Ver. 11. Corban: a gift to God which could be put to no other use. A son could evade giving support to his parents by declaring Corban what might have been given them. Jesus here illustrates how the Pharisees' teaching frustrated the Law of Moses.

Ver. 19. The Mosaic Law prohibited certain foods and thereby declared them legally unclean.

men, come evil thoughts, adulteries, immorality, murders,

22 thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, shamelessness, jealousy, blasphemy, pride, foolishness.

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile a man."

IV

The Canaanite Woman

24 And he arose and departed from there for the district of Tyre and Sidon. And he entered a house, and wanted no one to know it, but he could not keep it secret.

25 For immediately a woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, on hearing of him, came in and fell down at his feet.

26 Now the woman was a Gentile, a Syrophœnician by birth. And she besought him to cast the devil out of her daughter.

27 But he said to her, "Let the children first have their fill, for it is not fair to take the children's bread and to cast it to the dogs."

28 But she answered and said to him, "Yes, Lord; for even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs."

29 And he said to her, "Because of this answer, go thy way; the devil has gone out of thy daughter."

30 And when she went to her house, she found the girl lying upon the bed, and the devil gone.

Healing of a Deaf-Mute

31 And ^d departing again from the district of Tyre, he came by way of Sidon to the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the district of Decapolis.

32 And ^e they brought to him one deaf and dumb, and entreated him to lay his hand upon him.

33 And taking him aside from the crowd, he put his fingers into the man's ears, and spitting, he touched his tongue.

34 And looking up to heaven, he sighed,

^d 31-37: Matt. 15, 29-31.—^e Matt. 9, 32; Luke 11, 14.—^f 1-10: Matt. 15, 32-39.

Ver. 27 Jesus repeatedly pointed out that the Messiah had come to bring the kingdom of God first to the children of Israel.

and said to him, "Ephpheta," that is, "Be thou opened."

35 And his ears were at once opened, and the bond of his tongue was loosed, and he began to speak correctly.

36 And he charged them to tell no one. But the more he charged them, so much the more did they continue to publish it.

37 And so much the more did they wonder, saying, "He has done all things well. He has made both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak."

CHAPTER 8

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand

IN THOSE ^f DAYS when again there was a great crowd, and they had nothing to eat, he called his disciples together and said to them,

2 "I have compassion on the crowd, for behold, they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat;

3 and if I send them away to their homes fasting, they will faint on the way, for some of them have come from a distance."

4 And his disciples answered him, "How will anyone be able to satisfy these with bread, here in a desert?"

5 He asked them, "How many loaves have you?" And they said, "Seven."

6 And he bade the crowd recline on the ground. Then taking the seven loaves, he gave thanks, broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they set them before the crowd.

7 And they had a few little fishes; and he blessed them, and ordered them to be distributed.

8 And they ate and were satisfied; and they took up what was left of the fragments, seven baskets.

9 Now those who had eaten were about four thousand. And he dismissed them.

The Pharisees Ask a Sign

10 And immediately getting into the boat with his disciples, he came into the district of Dalmanutha.

11 And ^g the Pharisees came forth, and began to dispute with him, demanding from him a sign from heaven, to test him.

12 And sighing deeply in spirit, he said, "Why does this generation demand a sign? Amen I say to you, a sign shall not be given to this generation."

The Leaven of the Pharisees

13 And he left them, and getting back into the boat, crossed the sea.

14 And they had forgotten to bring bread, and they had but one loaf with them in the boat.

15 And he began to charge them, saying, "Take heed; beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod!"

16 And they began to argue among themselves, saying, "We have no bread."

17 But Jesus knowing this, said to them, "Why do you argue because you have no bread? Do you not yet perceive, nor understand? Is your heart still blinded?"

18 Though you have eyes do you not see, and though you have ears do you not hear? And do you not remember?

19 ^h When I broke the five loaves among five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments did you take up?" They said to him, "Twelve."

20 "And when I broke the seven loaves among four thousand, how many large baskets of fragments did you take up?" They said, "Seven."

21 And he said to them, "How is it that you do not yet understand?"

A Blind Man at Bethsaida

22 And they came to Bethsaida and they brought him a blind man and entreated him to touch him.

23 And taking the blind man by the hand, he led him forth outside the village; and applying spittle to his eyes, he laid his hands upon him, and asked him if he saw anything.

24 And the man looked up, and said, "I

^g 11-21: Matt. 16, 1-12; Luke 11, 54.—^h Mark 6, 41; John 6, 11.—ⁱ 27-29: Matt. 16, 13-16; Luke 9, Chap. 8, Ver. 12. A sign shall not be given: the Pharisees asked a miraculous sign to confirm Jesus' mission, but He refused because of their obvious insincerity.

see men as though they were trees, but walking about."

25 Then again he laid his hands upon the man's eyes, and he began to see, and was restored so that he saw all things plainly.

26 And he sent him to his house, saying, "Go to thy house, and if thou enter the village, tell nobody."

Peter's Confession

27 And ⁱ Jesus and his disciples went out into the villages of Cæsarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, saying to them, "Who do men say that I am?"

28 They answered him, saying, "John the Baptist; others, Elias; and others, one of the prophets."

29 Then he said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered and said to him, "Thou art the Christ."

30 And he strictly charged them to say nothing about him to anyone.

Passion and Resurrection Foretold

31 And he began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things, ^j and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and Scribes, and be put to death, and after three days rise again.

32 And what he said he spoke openly. And Peter taking him aside, began to chide him.

33 But he, turning and seeing his disciples, rebuked Peter, saying, "Get behind me, satan, for thou dost not mind the things of God, but those of men."

The Doctrine of the Cross

34 And calling the crowd together with his disciples, he said to them, ^k "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

35 For he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake and for the gospel's sake will save it.

18-20.—^j 31-39: Matt. 16, 21-28; Luke 9, 22-27.—^k Matt. 10, 38f.

Ver. 29. Peter definitely proclaims his faith in Jesus as the Messiah. In a parallel passage St. Matthew reports him as saying, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

36 For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but suffer the loss of his own soul?

37 Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?

38 For ^l whoever is ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him will the Son of Man also be ashamed when he comes with the holy angels in the glory of his Father."

39 And he said to them, "Amen I say to you, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death, till they have seen the kingdom of God coming in power."

CHAPTER 9

Jesus Transfigured

NOW ^m after six days Jesus took Peter, James and John, and led them up a high mountain off by themselves, and was transfigured before them.

2 And his garments became shining, exceedingly white as snow, as no fuller on earth can whiten.

3 And there appeared to them Elias with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus.

4 And Peter addressed Jesus, saying, "Rabbi, it is good for us to be here. And let us set up three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias."

5 For he did not know what to say, for they were struck with fear.

6 And there came a cloud overshadowing them, and there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son; hear him."

7 And suddenly looking round, they no longer saw anyone with them but only Jesus.

On the Coming of Elias

8 And ⁿ as they were coming down from the mountain, he cautioned them to tell no one what they had seen, except when the Son of Man should have risen from the dead.

^l Matt. 10, 33.—^m 1-7: Matt. 17, 1-8; Luke 9, 28-36.—ⁿ 8-12: Matt. 17, 9-13.—^o Mal. 4, 5; Isa. 53, 3.—^p 13-28: Matt. 17, 14-20; Luke 9, 37-43.

Ver. 39. Who will not taste death, i.e., even in the lifetime of some of His listeners He will manifest the power of His kingdom.

9 And they kept what he said to themselves, discussing with one another what the words, "When he shall have risen from the dead," might mean.

10 And they asked him, saying, "Why then do the Pharisees and Scribes say that Elias must come first?"

11 But he answered and said to them, "Elias is to come first and will restore all things. But how then ^o is it written of the Son of Man, that he should suffer many things and be despised?

12 But I say to you that Elias has come, and they did to him whatever they wished, as it is written of him."

A Possessed Boy

13 And on coming to his disciples, he saw a great crowd around them, and the Scribes arguing with them.

14 And immediately all the crowd, on seeing him, were amazed and struck with fear, and running up, began to greet him.

15 And he asked them, "What are you arguing about among yourselves?"

16 And one of the crowd answering, said, ^p "Master, I have brought to thee my son, who has a dumb spirit;

17 and wherever it seizes him it throws him down, and he foams and grinds his teeth; and he is wasting away. And I told thy disciples to cast it out, but they could not."

18 And he answered and said to them, "O unbelieving generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him to me."

19 And they brought him to him; and the spirit, when it saw Jesus, immediately threw the boy into convulsions, and he fell down on the ground, and rolled about foaming at the mouth.

20 So he asked his father, "How long is it since this has come upon him?" And he said, "From his infancy.

21 Oftentimes it has thrown him into the fire and into the waters to destroy him. But if thou canst do anything, have compassion on us and help us."

22 But Jesus said to him, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him who believes."

Chap. 9, Ver. 11. Jesus refers to the Jewish tradition that Elias was to come as precursor of the messianic age, and explains that he has come in the person of the Baptist.

23 At once the father of the boy cried out, and said with tears, "I do believe; help my unbelief."

24 Now when Jesus saw that a crowd was rapidly gathering, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, "Thou deaf and dumb spirit, I command thee, go out of him and enter him no more."

25 And crying out and violently convulsing him, it went out of him, and he became like one dead, so that many said, "He is dead."

26 But Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him and he stood up.

27 And when he had come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, "Why could not we cast it out?"

28 And he said to them, "This kind can be cast out in no way except by prayer and fasting."

The Second Prediction of the Passion

29 And leaving that place, they were passing through Galilee, and he did not wish anyone to know it.

30 For he was teaching his disciples, and saying to them, q "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men, and they will kill him; and having been killed, he will rise again on the third day."

31 But they did not understand the saying, and were afraid to ask him.

Against Ambition and Envy

32 And they came to Capharnaum. When he was at home, he asked them, "What were you arguing about on the way?"

33 But they kept silence, for on the way they had discussed with one another r which of them was the greatest.

34 And sitting down, he called the Twelve and said to them, "If any man wishes to be first, he shall be last of all, and servant of all."

35 And he took a little child, and set him in their midst, and taking him into his arms, he said to them, 36 "Whoever receives one such little child for my sake, receives me; and whoever receives me, receives not me but him who sent me."

37 John s said to him, "Master, we saw a man who was not one of our followers casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him."

38 But Jesus said, "Do not forbid him, t because there is no one who shall work a miracle in my name, and forthwith be able to speak ill of me.

39 For he who is not against you is for you.

40 For u whoever gives you a cup of water to drink in my name, because you are Christ's, amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward.

Avoiding Scandal

41 "And v whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it were better for him if a great millstone were hung about his neck, and he were thrown into the sea.

42 If w thy hand is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off! It is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than, having two hands, to go into hell, into the unquenchable fire,

43 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.' x

44 And if thy foot is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off! It is better for thee to enter into life everlasting lame, than, having two feet, to be cast into the hell of unquenchable fire,

45 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.'

46 And if thy eye is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out! It is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than, having two eyes, to be cast into hellfire,

47 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.'

48 For y everyone shall be salted with fire, and every victim shall be salted.

49 Salt is good; z but if the salt becomes insipid, what shall you season it with? Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another."

q 29-31: Matt. 17, 21f; Luke 9, 44f.—r 32-36: Matt. 18, 1-5; Luke 9, 46-48.—s 37-40: Luke 9, 49f.—t 1 Cor. 12, 3.—u Matt. 10, 42.—v Matt. 18, 6; Luke 17, 2.—w Matt. 5, 30; 18, 8.—x Isa. 66, 24.—y Lev. 2, 13.—z Matt. 5, 13; Luke 14, 34f.

Ver. 42. . . . cut it off: no sacrifice, however painful it may be, is too great if one may save his soul thereby.

Ver. 43. 45. These verses are wanting in the best Greek codices, but the text concerning the sufferings of the damned is found in v. 47. It is a quotation taken from Isa. 66, 24.

V

CHAPTER 10

The Question of Divorce

AND leaving that place, ^a he came to the district of Judea beyond the Jordan, and crowds again flocked to him. And as had been his custom, he again began to teach them.

2 And some Pharisees coming up asked him, testing him, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife?"

3 But he answered and said to them, "What did Moses command you?"

4 They said, "Moses permitted us to write a notice of dismissal, ^b and to put her away."

5 But Jesus said to them, "By reason of the hardness of your heart he wrote you that commandment.

6 But from the beginning of creation ^c God made them male and female.

7 'For this cause ^d a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife,

8 and the two shall become one flesh.' Therefore now they are no longer two, but one flesh.

9 What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

10 And in the house, his disciples again asked him concerning this.

11 And he said to them, "Whoever puts away his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her;

12 and if the wife puts away her husband, and marries another, ^e she commits adultery."

Jesus Blesses the Children

13 And they were bringing little children to him ^f that he might touch them; but the disciples rebuked those who brought them.

14 But when Jesus saw them, he was indignant, and said to them, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder

^a 1-12: Matt. 19, 1-9.—^b Deut. 24, 1-4.—^c Gen. 1, 27.—^d Gen. 2, 24; 1 Cor. 6, 16; Eph. 5, 31.—^e 1 Cor. 7, 10f.—^f 13-16: Matt. 19, 13-15; Luke 18, Chap. 10, Ver. 4. Moses permitted us . . . to put her away: the Mosaic Law permitted divorce for certain causes. In the verses immediately following here, Jesus abrogates divorce and declares the indissolubility of marriage.

them, for of such is the kingdom of God.

15 Amen I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God as a little child will not enter into it."

16 And he put his arms about them, and laying his hands upon them, he began to bless them.

The Danger of Riches

17 And as he was going forth on his journey, a certain man running up fell upon his knees before him, and asked him, ^g "Good Master, what shall I do to gain eternal life?"

18 But Jesus said to him, "Why dost thou call me good? No one is good but only God.

19 Thou knowest the ^h commandments: Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Thou shalt not defraud. Honor thy father and mother."

20 And he answered and said, "Master, all these I have kept ever since I was a child."

21 And Jesus, looking upon him, loved him, and said to him, "One thing is lacking to thee; go, sell whatever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me."

22 But his face fell at the saying, and he went away sad, for he had great possessions.

23 And Jesus looking round, said to his disciples, "With what difficulty will they who have riches enter the kingdom of God!"

24 But the disciples were amazed at his word. But Jesus again addressed them, saying, "Children, with what difficulty will they who trust in riches enter the kingdom of God!"

25 It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

26 But they were astonished the more, saying among themselves, "Who then can be saved?"

15-17.—^g 17-30: Matt. 19, 16-29; Luke 18, 18-30.—^h Ex. 20, 12-16.

Ver. 25. It is easier . . .: Jesus again speaks figuratively. He does not condemn riches as essentially evil. A rich man who is detached from his riches may be saved, with the grace of God; cf. Ver. 27.

27 And looking upon them, Jesus said, "With men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God."

28 Peter began to say to him, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee."

29 Answering, Jesus said, "Amen I say to you, there is no one who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands, for my sake and for the gospel's sake, 30 who shall not receive now in the present time a hundredfold as much, houses, and brothers, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands—along with persecutions, and in the age to come life everlasting.

31 But i many who are first now will be last, and many who are last now will be first."

The Third Prediction of the Passion

32 They were now on their way, going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus was walking on in front of them, and they were in dismay, and those who followed were afraid. j And again taking the Twelve, he began to tell them what would happen to him, saying,

33 "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and the Scribes; and they will condemn him to death, and will deliver him to the Gentiles;

34 and they will mock him, and spit upon him, and scourge him, and put him to death; and on the third day he will rise again."

Ambition of James and John

35 And k James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came to him, saying, "Master, we want thee to do for us whatever we ask."

36 But he said to them, "What do you want me to do for you?"

37 And they said, "Grant to us that we may sit, one at thy right hand and the other at thy left hand, in thy glory."

38 But Jesus said to them, "You do not know what you are asking for. Can you drink of the cup of which I drink, or be baptized with the baptism with which I am to be baptized?"

39 And they said to him, "We can." And Jesus said to them, "Of the cup that I drink, you shall drink; and with the baptism with which I am to be baptized, you shall be baptized;

40 but as for sitting at my right hand or at my left, that is not mine to give, but it belongs to those for whom it has been prepared."

41 And when the ten heard this, they were at first indignant at James and John.

42 But Jesus called them and said to them, l "You know that those who are regarded as rulers among the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them.

43 But it is not so among you. On the contrary, whoever wishes to become great shall be your servant;

44 and whoever wishes to be first among you shall be the slave of all;

45 for the Son of Man also has not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

The Blind Bartimeus

46 And m they came to Jericho. And as he was leaving Jericho with his disciples and a very great crowd, Bartimeus, a blind man, the son of Timeus, was sitting by the wayside, begging.

47 And hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out and say, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

48 And many angrily tried to silence him. But he cried out all the louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!"

49 Then Jesus stopped and commanded that he should be called. And they called the blind man and said to him, "Take courage. Get up, he is calling thee."

50 And throwing off his cloak, he sprang to his feet and came to him.

51 And Jesus addressed him, saying, "What wouldst thou have me do for thee?" And the blind man said to him, "Rabboni, that I may see."

i Matt. 19, 30.—j 32-34: Matt. 20, 17-19; Luke 18, 31-33.—k 35-45: Matt. 20, 20-28.—l 42-45:

Luke 22, 25-27.—m 46-52: Matt. 20, 29-34; Luke 18, 35-43.

Ver. 29. Relatives are not to be a stumbling-block to salvation. But Jesus does not teach the complete severance of the bonds of physical relationship; cf. Mark 3, 31.

Ver. 39. The sons of Zebedee had not yet grasped the spiritual nature of the kingdom of God.

52 And Jesus said to him, "Go thy way, thy faith has saved thee." And at once he received his sight, and followed him along the road.

VI

CHAPTER 11

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

AND ⁿ when they drew near to Jerusalem and to Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples,

2 and said to them, "Go into the village opposite you, and immediately on entering it you will find a colt tied, upon which no man has yet sat; loose it, and bring it.

3 And if anyone say to you, 'What are you doing?' you shall say that the Lord has need of it, and immediately he will send it here."

4 And they went their way and found a colt tied at a door outside in the street, and they loosed it.

5 And some of the bystanders said to them, "What are you doing, loosing the colt?"

6 But they answered them as Jesus had told them to do, and they let them go.

7 And they brought the colt to Jesus, and threw their cloaks over it, and he sat upon it.

8 And many spread their cloaks upon the road, while others were cutting branches from the trees, and strewing them on the road.

9 And those who went before him, and those who followed, kept crying out, saying,

10 o Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Blessed is the kingdom of our father David that comes! Hosanna in the highest!

11 And ^p he went into Jerusalem, into the temple. And when he had looked round upon all things, then, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the Twelve.

ⁿ 1-10: Matt. 21, 1-9; Luke 19, 29-38; John 12, 12-15.—^o Ps. 117, 26.—^p Matt. 21, 10. 17.—^q 12-14: Matt. 21, 18f; Luke 13, 6-9.—^r 15-18: Matt.

Chap. 11, Ver. 14. The fig tree was a symbol of the Jewish nation which, though rich in foliage, bore no fruit. Cf. Matt. 21, 18.

Ver. 15. Selling and buying: had to do with the

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree

12 And ^a the next day, after they had left Bethany, he felt hungry.

13 And seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see if he might find anything on it. But when he came up to it, he found nothing but leaves; for it was not the season for figs.

14 Then he spoke to it saying, "May no one ever eat fruit of thee henceforward forever." And his disciples heard.

Cleansing of the Temple

15 And ^r they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple, and began to cast out those who were selling and buying in the temple; and he overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold the doves.

16 He would not allow anyone to carry a vessel through the temple.

17 And he began to teach, saying to them, "Is it not written, s My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations? But you have made it a den of thieves."

18 And the chief priests and the Scribes heard it, and they sought a way to destroy him; for they were afraid of him, because all the crowd were astonished at his teaching.

19 And when it was evening he went out of the city.

20 And ^t as they passed by in the morning, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots.

21 And Peter, remembering, said to him, "Rabbi, behold, the fig tree that thou didst curse is withered up."

22 But Jesus answered and said to them, "Have faith in God.

23 Amen I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, 'Arise, and hurl thyself into the sea,' and does not waver in his heart, but believes that whatever he says will be done, it shall be done for him.

21, 12-16; Luke 19, 45-47; John 2, 14-16.—^s Isa. 56, 7; Jer. 7, 11.—^t 20-24: Matt. 21, 20-22.

necessities of the temple worship; in themselves they were not evil, but they had taken on features which were entirely incompatible with the sacredness of the place.

24 Therefore ^u I say to you, all things whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you shall receive, and they shall come to you.

25 And ^v when you stand up to pray, forgive whatever you have against anyone, that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your offenses.

26 But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive you your offenses."

The Authority of Jesus

27 And ^w they came back to Jerusalem. And as he was walking in the temple, the chief priests and the Scribes and the elders came to him,

28 and said to him, "By what authority dost thou do these things?" and, "Who gave thee this authority to do these things?"

29 But Jesus answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question, and answer me; then I will tell you by what authority I do these things.

30 Was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men? Answer me."

31 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?'"

32 But if we say, 'From men'"—they feared the people; for all regarded John as really a prophet.

33 And they answered Jesus and said, "We do not know." And Jesus answering, said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

CHAPTER 12

Parable of the Vine-dressers

AND ^x he began to speak to them in parables. "A man planted a vineyard, and put a hedge about it, and dug a wine vat, and built a tower; then he let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad.

2 And at the proper time he sent a servant to the vine-dressers to receive from the vine-dressers some of the fruit of the vineyard;

3 but they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed.

4 And again he sent another servant to them; but this one they wounded in the head and treated shamefully.

5 And again he sent another, and him they killed, and many others; beating some, and killing some.

6 Now he still had one left, a beloved son; and him he sent to them last of all, saying, 'They will respect my son.'

7 But the vine-dressers said to one another, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.'

8 So they seized him and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard.

9 What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the vine-dressers, and will give the vineyard to others.

10 And have you not read this Scripture: ^y The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone;

11 by the Lord this has been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes?"

12 And they sought to lay hands on him, but they feared the crowd; for they knew that he had aimed this parable at them. And leaving him, they went their way.

Tribute to Cæsar

13 And ^z they sent to him certain of the Pharisees and Herodians, that they might trap him in his talk.

14 And they came and said to him, "Master, we know that thou art truthful, and that thou carest naught for any man; for thou dost not regard the person of men, but dost teach the way of God in truth. Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar; or shall we not give it?"

15 But knowing their craftiness, he said to them, "Why do you test me? Bring me a denarius to look at."

16 So they brought one. Then he said to them, "Whose are this image and the inscription?" They said to him, "Cæsar's."

17 And Jesus answered and said to ^u Matt. 7, 7; John 14, 13.—^v Matt. 6, 14; 18, 35.—^w 27-33: Matt. 21, 23-27; Luke 20, 1-8.—^x 1-12: Matt. 21, 33-46; Luke 20, 9-19; Isa. 5, 1-7;

Jer. 2, 21.—^y 10f: Ps. 117, 22f; Isa. 28, 16.—^z 13-27: Matt. 22, 15-32; Luke 20, 20-38.

Ver. 26. This verse is not found in critical editions of the Greek text. It has penetrated into this place from Matt. 6, 15.

Chap. 12, Ver. 1-12. God is the landowner of the parable. He had sent His prophets, and lastly His Son, to the vine-dressers, the Jews.

them, ^a "Render, therefore, to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's." And they marvelled at him.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

18 And there came to him Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, and they began to question him, saying,

19 "Master, Moses has written for us that ^b 'if a man's brother die, leaving a wife but no children, his brother shall take the widow and raise up issue to his brother.'

20 Now there were seven brothers. And the first took a wife, and dying, left no issue.

21 And the second took her, and died, without leaving issue either; and the third likewise.

22 And the seven took her in the same way, and left no issue. Last of all the woman also died.

23 At the resurrection, therefore, when they rise, of which of them will she be wife? For the seven had her as wife."

24 And Jesus answered and said to them, "Is not this why you err—because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God?

25 For when they rise from the dead, they will neither marry nor be given in marriage, but are as angels in heaven.

26 But as to the dead rising, have you not read in the book of Moses about the Bush, how God spoke to him, saying, ^c I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?

27 He is not the God of the dead, but of the living. You are therefore entirely wrong."

The Great Commandment

28 And ^d one of the Scribes came forward who had heard them disputing together; and seeing that he had answered them well, he asked him which was the first commandment of all.

29 But Jesus answered him, "The first commandment of all is, ^e Hear, O Israel! The Lord our God is one God;

30 and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole mind, and with thy whole strength. This is the first commandment.

31 And the second is like it, ^f Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is no other commandment greater than these."

32 And the Scribe said to him, "Well answered, Master, thou hast said truly that he is one and that there is no other besides him;

33 and that he should be loved with the whole heart, and with the whole understanding, and with the whole soul, and with one's whole strength; and that to love one's neighbor as oneself is a greater thing than all holocausts and sacrifices."

34 And Jesus, seeing that he had answered wisely, said to him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." And no one after that ventured to ask him questions.

The Son of David

35 And ^g while Jesus was teaching in the temple, he addressed them, saying, "How do the Scribes say that the Christ is the Son of David?

36 For David himself says, by the Holy Spirit, ^h The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thy enemies thy footstool.

37 David himself, therefore, calls him 'Lord'; how, then, is he his son?" And the mass of the common people liked to hear him.

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees

38 And ⁱ in the course of his teaching he said to them, "Beware of the Scribes, who like to walk about in long robes, and to be greeted in the market place,

39 and to have the front seats in the synagogues and the first places at suppers;

40 who devour the houses of the widows, making pretense of long prayers. These shall receive a heavier sentence."

^a Rom. 13, 7.—^b Deut. 25, 5.—^c Ex. 3, 6.—^d 28-34; Matt. 22, 34-40.—^e 29f: Deut. 6, 4f.—^f Lev. 19, 18; Rom. 13, 9; Gal. 5, 14; Jas. 2, 8.—^g 35-37:

Matt. 22, 41-45; Luke 20, 41-44.—^h Ps. 109, 1.—ⁱ 38-40; Matt. 23, 1-14; Luke 11, 43; 20, 45-47.

Ver. 19. This law is called the Levirate marriage.

The Widow's Mite

41 And j Jesus sat down opposite the treasury, and observed how the crowd were putting money into the treasury; and many rich people were putting in large sums.

42 And there came one poor widow, and she put in two mites, which make a quadrans.

43 And he called his disciples together, and said to them, "Amen I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who have been putting money into the treasury.

44 For they all have put in out of their abundance; but she out of her want has put in all that she had—all that she had to live on."

CHAPTER 13

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World

AND k as he was going out of the temple, one of his disciples said to him, "Master, look, what wonderful stones and buildings!"

2 And Jesus answered and said to him, "Dost thou see all these great buildings? There will not be left one stone upon another that will not be thrown down."

3 And as he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately,

4 "Tell us, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign when all these things will begin to come to pass?"

5 And in answer Jesus began to say to them, l "Take care that no one leads you astray.

6 For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am he'; and they will lead many astray.

7 But when you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed; for they must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

8 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be earthquakes in various places, and famines. These things are the beginning of sorrows.

9 But be on your guard. For they will deliver you up to councils, and you will be beaten in synagogues, and you will stand before governors and kings for my sake, for a witness to them.

10 And the gospel must first be preached to all the nations.

11 And m when they lead you away to deliver you up, do not be anxious beforehand what you are to speak; but speak whatever is given you in that hour. For it is not you who are speaking, but the Holy Spirit.

12 And brother will hand over brother to death, and the father his child; children will rise up against parents and put them to death.

13 And you will be hated by all for my name's sake; but he who has persevered to the end will be saved.

Destruction of Jerusalem

14 "And when you see the abomination of desolation, n standing where it ought not—let him who reads understand—then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains;

15 and let him who is on the housetop not go down and enter to take anything from his house;

16 and let him who is in the field not turn back to take his cloak.

17 But woe to those who are with child, or have infants at the breast in those days!

18 But pray that these things may not happen in winter.

19 For in those days will be tribulations, such as have not been from the beginning of the creation which God created until now, nor will be.

20 And unless the Lord had shortened the days, no living creature would be saved. But for the sake of the elect whom he has chosen, he has shortened the days.

The Signs of the Last Day

21 "And then, if anyone say to you, 'Behold, here is the Christ; behold, there he is,' do not believe it.

j 41-44: Luke 21, 1-4.—k 1-37: Matt. 24, 1-51; Luke 21, 5-36.—l Eph. 5, 6; 2 Thess. 2, 3.—m 11-13: Matt. 10, 19-22; Luke 12, 11f.—n Dan. 9, 27.

Chap. 13, Ver. 2-37. This long prophecy deals with both the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of the world. The elements of the prophecy are so intermingled that it is difficult at times to determine to which cataclysm Jesus refers.

22 For false christs and false prophets will arise, and will show signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect.

23 Be on your guard, therefore; behold, I have told you all things beforehand.

24 But ^oin those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light,

25 and the stars of heaven will be falling, and the powers that are in heaven will be shaken.

26 And then they will see the Son of Man coming upon clouds with great power and majesty.

27 And then he will send forth his angels, and will gather his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost parts of heaven.

Jerusalem's Impending Destruction

28 "Now from the fig tree learn this parable. When its branch is now tender, and the leaves break forth, you know that summer is near.

29 Even so, when you see these things coming to pass, know that it is near, even at the door.

30 Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished.

31 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness

32 "But of that day or hour no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father only.

33 Take heed, watch and pray, for you do not know when the time is:

34 just as a man, ^pwhen he leaves home to journey abroad, puts his servants in charge, to each his work, and gives orders to the porter to keep watch.

35 Watch, therefore, for you do not know when the master of the house is coming, in the evening, or at midnight, or at cockcrow, or early in the morning;

36 lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping.

37 And what I say to you, I say to all, 'Watch.' "

^o Isa. 13, 10; Ezech. 32, 7; Joel 2, 10.—^p 34f: Matt. 25, 14-30; Luke 12, 36-40; 19, 12-27.—^q 1f:

Chap. 14, Ver. 2. Not on the feast: the crowds of pilgrims were sometimes great enough to double the normal population of the Holy City.

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

CHAPTER 14

1. THE LAST SUPPER

The Council

NOW it was two days ^qbefore the Passover and the feast of the Unleavened Bread; the chief priests and the Scribes were seeking how they might seize him by stealth and put him to death;

2 for they said, "Not on the feast, or there might be a riot among the people."

The Anointing at Bethany

3 And ^rwhen he was at Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, and was reclining at table, there came a woman with an alabaster jar of ointment, genuine nard of great value; and breaking the alabaster jar, she poured it on his head.

4 But there were some who were indignant among themselves, and said, "To what purpose has this waste of the ointment been made?"

5 for this ointment might have been sold for more than three hundred denarii, and given to the poor." And they grumbled at her.

6 But Jesus said, "Let her be. Why do you trouble her? She has done me a good turn.

7 For the poor you have always with you, and whenever you want you can do good to them; but you do not always have me.

8 She has done what she could; she has anointed my body in preparation for burial.

9 Amen I say to you, wherever in the whole world this gospel is preached, this also that she has done shall be told in memory of her."

The Betrayal

10 And Judas Iscariot, ^sone of the Twelve, went to the chief priests to betray him to them.

Matt. 26, 2-5; Luke 22, 1f.—^r 3-9: Matt. 26, 6-13; John 12, 1-8.—^s 10f: Matt. 26, 14-16; Luke 22, 3-6.

11 And they, when they heard it, were glad, and promised to give him money. And he sought out an opportunity to betray him.

Preparation

12 And on the first day of the Unleavened Bread, ^t when it was customary for them to sacrifice the passover, the disciples said to him, "Where dost thou want us to go and prepare for thee to eat the passover?"

13 And he sent two of his disciples, and said to them, "Go into the city, and there will meet you a man carrying a pitcher of water; follow him.

14 And wherever he enters, say to the master of the house, "The Master says, "Where is my guest chamber, that I may eat the passover there with my disciples?"

15 And he will show you a large upper room furnished; there make ready for us."

16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found just as he had told them; and they prepared the passover.

The Betrayer

17 Now when evening arrived, ^u he came with the Twelve.

18 And while they were at the table eating, Jesus said, "Amen I say to you, one of you will betray me—one who is eating with me."

19 But they began to be sad, and to say to him one by one, "Is it I?"

20 But he said to them, "It is one of the Twelve, who dips into the dish with me.

21 The Son of Man indeed goes his way, ^v as it is written of him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It were better for that man if he had not been born."

The Holy Eucharist

22 And ^w while they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessing it, he broke and gave it to them, and said, "Take; this is my body."

23 And taking a cup and giving thanks, he gave it to them, and they all drank of it;

24 and he said to them, "This is my blood of the new covenant, which is being shed for many.

25 Amen I say to you, that I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it new in the kingdom of God."

Peter's Denials Predicted

26 And ^x after reciting a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

27 And Jesus said to them, ^y "You will all be scandalized this night; for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.

28 But after I have risen, I will go before you into Galilee."

29 But Peter said to him, "Even though all shall be scandalized, yet not I."

30 Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to thee, today, this very night, before a cock crows twice, thou wilt deny me three times."

31 But he went on speaking more vehemently, "Even if I should have to die with thee, I will not deny thee!" And they all said the same thing.

2. THE PASSION AND DEATH OF JESUS

The Agony in the Garden

32 And they came ^z to a country place called Gethsemani, and he said to his disciples, "Sit down here, while I pray."

33 And he took with him Peter and James and John, and he began to feel dread and to be exceedingly troubled.

34 And he said to them, "My soul is sad, even unto death. Wait here and watch."

35 And going forward a little, he fell on the ground, and began to pray that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him;

36 and he said, "Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee. Remove this cup from me; yet not what I will, but what thou wilt."

^t 12-16: Matt. 26, 17-19; Luke 22, 7-13.—^u 17-21: Matt. 26, 20-24; Luke 22, 14. 21-23; John 13, 21-26.—^v Ps. 40, 10; Acts 1, 16.—^w 22-25: Matt. 26, 26-29; Luke 22, 19f; 1 Cor. 11, 23-25.—

^x 26-31: Matt. 26, 30-35; Luke 22, 31-34.—^y John 16, 32; Zach. 13, 7.—^z 32-42: Matt. 26, 36-46; Luke 22, 40-46.

37 Then he came and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter, "Simon, dost thou sleep? Couldst thou not watch one hour?"

38 Watch and pray, that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

39 And again he went away and prayed, saying the same words over.

40 And he came again and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. And they did not know what answer to make to him.

41 And he came the third time, and said to them, "Sleep on now, and take your rest! It is enough; the hour has come. Behold, the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

42 Rise, let us go. Behold, he who will betray me is at hand."

Jesus Arrested

43 And a while he was yet speaking, Judas Iscariot, one of the Twelve, came and with him a great crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the Scribes and the elders.

44 Now his betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "Whomever I kiss, that is he; lay hold of him, and lead him safely away."

45 And when he came, he went straight up to him, and said, "Rabbi!" and kissed him.

46 And they seized him and held him.

47 But one of the bystanders drew his sword, and struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus, addressing them, said, "As against a robber you have come out, with swords and clubs, to seize me.

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and you did not lay hands on me. But it is so that the Scriptures may be fulfilled."

50 Then all his disciples left him and fled.

51 And a certain young man was following him, having a linen cloth wrapped about his naked body, and they seized him.

52 But leaving the linen cloth behind, he fled away from them naked.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin

53 And b they led Jesus away to the high priest; and all the priests and the Scribes and the elders gathered together.

54 But Peter followed him at a distance, even to the courtyard of the high priest, and was sitting with the attendants at the fire and warming himself.

55 Now the chief priests and all the Sanhedrin were seeking witness against Jesus, that they might put him to death, but they found none.

56 For while many bore false witness against him, their evidence did not agree.

57 And some stood up and bore false witness against him, saying,

58 "We ourselves have heard him say, c 'I will destroy this temple built by hands, and after three days I will build another, not built by hands.' "

59 And even then their evidence did not agree.

60 Then the high priest, standing up in their midst, asked Jesus, saying, "Dost thou make no answer to the things that these men prefer against thee?"

61 But he kept silence, and made no answer. Again the high priest began to ask him, and said to him, "Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed One?"

62 And Jesus said to him, d "I am. And you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming with the clouds of heaven."

63 But the high priest tore his garments and said, "What further need have we of witnesses?"

64 You have heard the blasphemy. What do you think?" And they all condemned him as liable to death.

65 And some began to spit on him, and to blindfold him, and to buffet him, and to say to him, "Prophecy." And the attendants struck him with blows of their hands.

a 43-50: Matt. 26, 47-56; Luke 22, 47-53; John 18, 3-11.—b 53-65: Matt. 26, 57-68; Luke 22, 54, 63-65; John 18, 12f.—c John 2, 19.—d Matt. 24, 30.

Ver. 53. Jesus was first cited before the Sanhedrin, the highest ecclesiastical and civil court of the Jews. Here He was unjustly condemned for blasphemy, but the court could not execute the death penalty. Hence Jesus was sent to Pilate, who alone had the power to inflict it.

Peter's Denial

66 And e while Peter was below in the courtyard, there came one of the maid-servants of the high priest;

67 and seeing Peter warming himself, she looked closely at him and said, "Thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth."

68 But he denied it, saying, "I neither know nor understand what thou art saying." And he went outside into the vestibule; and the cock crowed.

69 And the maidservant, seeing him again, began to say to the bystanders, "This is one of them."

70 But again he denied it. And after a little while the bystanders again said to Peter, "Surely thou art one of them, for thou art also a Galilean."

71 But he began to curse and to swear: "I do not know this man you are talking about."

72 And at that moment a cock crowed a second time. f And Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said to him, "Before a cock crows twice, thou wilt deny me three times." And he began to weep.

CHAPTER 15

Jesus before Pilate

AND g as soon as it was morning, the chief priests held a consultation with the elders, the Scribes and the whole Sanhedrin. And they bound Jesus and led him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

2 And h Pilate asked him, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" And he answered him and said, "Thou sayest it."

3 And the chief priests accused him of many things.

4 And Pilate again asked him, saying, "Hast thou no answer to make? Behold how many things they accuse thee of."

5 But Jesus made no further answer, so that Pilate wondered.

6 Now i at festival time he used to release to them one of the prisoners, whom-ever they had petitioned for.

7 Now there was a man called Barabbas imprisoned with some rioters, one who in the riot had committed murder.

8 And the crowd came up, and began to ask that he do for them as he was wont.

9 But Pilate addressed them, saying, "Do you wish that I release to you the king of the Jews?"

10 For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him up out of envy.

11 But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas for them instead.

12 But Pilate again spoke and said to them, "What then do you want me to do to the king of the Jews?"

13 But they cried out again, "Crucify him!"

14 But Pilate said to them, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they kept crying out the more, "Crucify him!"

The Scourging and Crowning

15 So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released to them Barabbas; but Jesus he scourged and delivered to be crucified.

16 Now j the soldiers led him away into the courtyard of the prætorium, and they called together the whole cohort.

17 And they clothed him in purple, and plaiting a crown of thorns, they put it upon him,

18 and began to greet him, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

19 And they kept striking him on the head with a reed, and spitting upon him; and bending their knees, they did homage to him.

The Way of the Cross

20 And when they had mocked him, they took the purple off him and put his own garments on him, and led him out to crucify him.

21 And k they forced a certain passer-by, Simon of Cyrene, coming from the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to take up his cross.

22 And l they brought him to the place called Golgotha, which translated, is the Place of the Skull.

e 66-72: Matt. 26, 69-75; Luke 22, 55-62; John 18, 16-18, 25-27.—f John 13, 38.—g Matt. 27, 1f; Luke 22, 66; John 18, 28.—h 2-5: Matt. 27, 11-14; Luke 23, 2f; John 18, 29-38.—i 6-15: Matt. 27, 15-26; Luke 23, 17-25; John 18, 39f.—j 16-20: Matt. 27, 27-31; John 19, 2f.—k Matt. 27, 32; Luke 23, 26.—l 22-38: Matt. 27, 33-51; Luke 23, 32-46; John 19, 17-19.

The Crucifixion

23 And they gave him wine to drink mixed with myrrh; but he did not take it.

24 Then they crucified him, and divided his garments, casting lots for them to see what each should take.

25 Now it was the third hour and they crucified him.

26 And the inscription bearing the charge against him was, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

27 And they crucified two robbers with him, one on his right hand and one on his left.

28 And the Scripture was fulfilled, which says, m And he was reckoned among the wicked.

29 And n the passers-by were jeering at him, shaking their heads, and saying, "Aha, thou who destroyest the temple, and in three days buildest it up again;

30 come down from the cross, and save thyself!"

31 In like manner, the chief priests with the Scribes said in mockery to one another, "He saved others, himself he cannot save!"

32 Let the Christ, the King of Israel, come down now from the cross, that we may see and believe." And they who were crucified with him reproached him.

The Death of Jesus

33 And when the sixth hour came, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, o "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabacthani?" which, translated, is, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

35 And some of the bystanders on hearing this said, "Behold, he is calling Elias."

36 But someone ran, soaked a sponge in common wine, put it on a reed and offered it to him to drink, saying, "Wait, let us see whether Elias is coming to take him down."

37 But Jesus cried out with a loud voice, and expired.

38 And the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom.

m Isa. 53, 12.—n John 2, 19.—o Ps. 21, 2.—p 39-41: Matt. 27, 54-56; Luke 23, 47-49.—q Luke 8, 2.—r 42-47: Matt. 27, 57-61; Luke 23, 50-56;

39 Now p when the centurion, who stood facing him, saw how he had thus cried out and expired, he said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

40 And q some women were also there, looking on from a distance. Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James the Less and of Joseph, and Salome.

41 These used to accompany him and minister to him when he was in Galilee—besides many other women who had come with him to Jerusalem.

The Burial

42 Now r when it was evening, as it was the Day of Preparation, that is, the eve of the Sabbath, 43 there came Joseph of Arimathea, a councillor of high rank, who was himself looking for the kingdom of God. And he went in boldly to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus.

44 But Pilate wondered whether he had already died. And sending for the centurion, he asked him whether he was already dead.

45 And when he learned from the centurion that he was, he granted the body to Joseph.

46 And Joseph bought a linen cloth, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb which had been hewn out of a rock. Then he rolled a stone to the entrance of the tomb.

47 But Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph were looking on and saw where he was laid.

3. THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS

CHAPTER 16

The Women at the Grave

AND when the Sabbath was past, s Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought spices, that they might go and anoint him.

2 And very early on the first day of the week, they came to the tomb, when the sun had just risen.

John 19, 38-42.—s 1-8: Matt. 28, 1-8; Luke 24, 1-10; John 20, 1-10.

3 And they were saying to one another, "Who will roll the stone back from the entrance of the tomb for us?"

4 And looking up they saw that the stone had been rolled back, for it was very large.

5 But on entering the tomb, ^t they saw a young man sitting at the right side, clothed in a white robe, and they were amazed.

6 He said to them, "Do not be terrified. You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has risen, he is not here. Behold the place where they laid him.

7 But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he goes before you into Galilee; there you shall see him, ^u as he told you."

8 And they departed and fled from the tomb, for trembling and fear had seized them; and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.

Apparitions of Jesus

9 Now ^v when he had risen from the dead early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

10 She went and brought word to those who had been with him, as they were mourning and weeping.

11 And they, hearing that he was alive and had been seen ^y by her, did not believe it.

12 After ^w this he was manifested in another form to two of them, as they were walking on their way into the country.

13 And they went and brought word to the rest, and even then they did not believe.

Commission of the Apostles

14 At length he appeared to the Eleven as they were at table; and he upbraided them for their lack of faith and hardness of heart, in that they had not believed those who had seen him after he had risen.

15 And he said to them, "Go into the whole world and preach the gospel to every creature.

16 He who believes and is baptized shall be saved, but he who does not believe shall be condemned.

17 And these signs shall attend those who believe: in my name they shall cast out devils; ^x they shall speak in new tongues;

18 they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands upon the sick and they shall get well."

4. THE ASCENSION OF JESUS

19 So then the Lord, ^y after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven, and sits at the right hand of God.

20 But they went forth and preached everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the preaching by the signs that followed. Amen.

^t John 20, 11.—^u Mark 14, 28.—^v John 20, 16.—^w Luke 24, 13-31.—^x Acts 2, 4.—^y Luke 24, 50-53.

Chap. 16, Ver. 20. Followed: signs not only followed, but endorsed and established, the truth of their preaching.

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ according to SAINT LUKE

ST. LUKE was born at Antioch, Syria, according to the Church historian Eusebius. He was a Gentile by birth (Col. 4, 10-14) and a physician by profession (Col. 4, 14). According to a legend of the sixth century he was also a painter.

He was one of the earliest converts to the faith and later became the missionary companion of St. Paul, whom he accompanied on part of the second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16, 10-17; 20, 5-21, 17), and attended during the Cæsarean (Acts 24, 23) and Roman captivity (Acts 27-28; Col. 4, 14). Little is known with certainty of his subsequent life.

The unanimous tradition of the Church ascribes the third Gospel to St. Luke. Allusions to and citations from the Gospel are most frequent in early Christian writings, and even heretics made diligent use of this inspired book. The Gospel itself shows that its author was a person of literary powers, a physician and a companion of St. Paul.

This Gospel was written before the destruction of Jerusalem, 70 A.D., for it does not refer to the fulfilment of Christ's prophecy. Since the Acts of the Apostles closes its narrative with the year 63 or 64 A.D., the Gospel of St. Luke, his first book, must have been written prior to 63 A.D.

Little is known with certainty about the place of composition. Some of the ancient authors suggest Achaia (Greece); some of the manuscripts mention Alexandria or Macedonia; while modern writers also defend Cæsarea, Ephesus or Rome.

The Gospel is addressed to a certain Theophilus, a man of conspicuous rank or office. Indirectly, however, this Sacred Writing was intended for the Gentile converts. The purpose of the Gospel is clearly indicated in the prologue (1, 1-4). These converts from paganism had received instruction before Baptism. St. Luke wishes now to give them a deeper and more accurate knowledge of the truths of their religion, and at the same time to show them on what a firm basis their faith is founded. There are some characteristic features that are accentuated more by St. Luke than by the other evangelists. Many of these show the influence of St. Paul. The theme of the universality of salvation can be considered as running through the Gospel. Divine forgiveness and salvation are offered to all. The Gospel also sharply contrasts the position of pagan and Jewish womanhood, and presents many types of womanhood to its readers. The subject of prayer is also stressed. Not only does the evangelist record more frequently than the others Christ as an example of prayer, but also His instructions on prayer. As an artist St. Luke shows his skill in portraying living characters and he has remained an inspiration to painters for centuries. As a historian he is comparable with the great Greek and Latin writers.

In his Gospel there is a steady movement of events from Nazareth to Jerusalem, whereas in the Acts it is from Jerusalem to Rome.

Prologue

CHAPTER 1

INASMUCH as many have undertaken to draw up a narrative concerning the things that have been fulfilled among us,
2 even as they who from the beginning a 1-4: Acts 1, 1.

were eyewitnesses and ministers of the word have handed them down to us,

3 I also have determined, after following up all things carefully from the very first, to write for thee, most excellent Theophilus, an orderly account,

4 that thou mayest understand the certainty of the words in which thou hast been instructed.

Prelude:

The Coming of The Savior

Annunciation of the Baptist

5 In the days of Herod, king of Judea, there was a certain priest named Zachary, ^b of the course of Abia; and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth.

6 Both were just before God, walking blamelessly in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord.

7 But they had no son, for Elizabeth was barren; and they were both advanced in years.

8 Now it came to pass, while he was officiating in the order of his course as priest before God,

9 according to the custom of the priest's office, that he was chosen by lot to enter the temple of the Lord to burn ^c incense.

10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying outside at the hour of incense.

11 And there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right of the altar of incense.

12 And Zachary, seeing him, was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zachary, for thy petition has been heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be great before the Lord; he shall drink no wine or strong drink, and shall be filled with the Holy Spirit even from his mother's womb.

16 And he shall bring back to the Lord their God many of the children of Israel,

17 and he shall himself go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, ^d to turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the incredulous to the wisdom of the just; to prepare for the Lord a perfect people."

18 And Zachary said to the angel, "How shall I know this? For I am an old man and my wife is advanced in years."

19 And the angel answered and said to him, "I am Gabriel, who stand in the presence of God; and I have been sent to speak to thee and to bring thee this good news.

20 And behold, thou shalt be dumb and unable to speak until the day when these things come to pass, because thou hast not believed my words, which will be fulfilled in their proper time."

21 And the people were waiting for Zachary, and they wondered at his tarrying so long in the temple.

22 But when he did come out he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the temple. And he kept making signs to them, but he remained dumb.

23 And it came to pass, when the days of his service were completed, that he departed to his own house.

24 Now after these days Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she secluded herself for five months, saying,

25 "Thus has the Lord dealt with me in the days when he deigned to take away my reproach among men."

Annunciation of the Savior

26 Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee called Nazareth, 27 to a virgin betrothed to a man named Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And when the angel had come to her, he said, "Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee. Blessed art thou among women."

29 When she had heard him she was troubled at his word, and kept pondering what manner of greeting this might be.

30 And the angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for thou hast found grace with God.

31 ^e Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb and shalt bring forth a son; and thou shalt call his name Jesus.

^b 1 Par. 24, 10.—^c Ex. 30, 7; Lev. 16, 17.—^d Matt. 11, 14; Mal. 4, 6.—^e Isa. 7, 14.

Chap. 1, Ver. 9. It was customary for the priestly class whose week it was to serve in the temple, to cast lots daily for the performance of the various functions. To offer incense upon the altar in the holy place was considered a singular privilege.

Ver. 25. Among the Jews childlessness was considered a reproach.

Ver. 28. Blessed art thou among women: omitted in some notable Manuscripts. It is rightly placed on the lips of Elizabeth in v. 42.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give him the throne of David his father, and f he shall be king over the house of Jacob forever;

33 and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

34 But Mary said to the angel, "How shall this happen, since I do not know man?"

35 And the angel answered and said to her, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; and therefore the Holy One to be born shall be called the Son of God.

36 And behold, Elizabeth thy kinswoman also has conceived a son in her old age, and she who was called barren is now in her sixth month;

37 for nothing shall be impossible with God."

38 But Mary said, "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it done to me according to thy word." And the angel departed from her.

The Visitation

39 Now in those days Mary arose and went with haste into the hill country, to a town of Juda.

40 And she entered the house of Zachary and saluted Elizabeth.

41 And it came to pass, when Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary, that the babe in her womb leapt. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit, 42 and cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Blessed art thou among women and blessed is the fruit of thy womb!

43 And how have I deserved that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For behold, the moment that the sound of thy greeting came to my ears, the babe in my womb leapt for joy.

45 And blessed is she who has believed, because the things promised her by the Lord shall be accomplished."

f Dan. 7, 14, 27; Mich. 4, 7.—g 46-53: 1 Kgs. 2, 1-10.—h Ps. 112, 6.—i Ps. 102, 17.—j Ps. 32, 10;

Ver. 34. Mary did not doubt, as did Zachary, that the angel's words would be fulfilled, but prudently inquired how this would be accomplished, since she had firmly resolved to remain a virgin. The angel explained to her that her conception would be produced by the Holy Spirit and the power of the Most High.

46 And Mary said, g "My soul magnifies the Lord,

47 and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior;

48 because he has regarded the lowliness h of his handmaid; for, behold, henceforth all generations shall call me blessed;

49 because he who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is his name;

50 and his mercy is from i generation to generation on those who fear him.

51 He has shown might with his arm, j he has scattered the proud in the conceit of their heart.

52 He has put down the mighty from their thrones, k and has exalted the lowly.

53 He has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich l he has sent away empty.

54 He has given help to Israel, m his servant, mindful of his mercy—

55 Even as he spoke to our fathers—to Abraham n and to his posterity forever."

56 And Mary remained with her about three months and returned to her own house.

Birth of the Baptist

57 Now Elizabeth's time was fulfilled that she should be delivered, and she brought forth a son.

58 And her neighbors and kinsfolk heard that the Lord had magnified his mercy towards her, and they rejoiced with her.

59 And it came to pass on the eighth day, that they came to circumcise the child, and they were going to call him by his father's name, Zachary.

60 And his mother answered and said, "Not so, but he shall be called John."

61 And they said to her, "There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name."

62 And they kept inquiring by signs of his father what he would have him called.

63 And asking for a writing-tablet he wrote the words, "John is his name." And they all marvelled.

Isa. 51, 9.—k Ps. 74, 8.—l Ps. 33, 11.—m Ps. 97, 3; Isa. 41, 8f.—n Gen. 17, 9; Ps. 131, 11.

Ver. 46-55. In this canticle, the Magnificat, Mary praises the mercy of God in the work of the Incarnation (Ver. 46-50), His power, displayed throughout the history of the chosen people (Ver. 51-53), and His fidelity to His promises concerning the Messiah (Ver. 54f.).

64 And immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue loosed, and he began to speak, blessing God.

65 And fear came on all their neighbors; and all these things were spoken abroad in all the hill country of Judea.

66 And all who heard them laid them up in their heart, saying, "What then will this child be?" For the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And Zachary his father was filled with the Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying,

68 "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, because he has visited and wrought redemption o for his people,

69 and has raised up a horn p of salvation for us, in the house of David his servant,

70 as he promised through the mouth of his holy ones, q the prophets from of old;

71 salvation from our enemies, and from the hand r of all who hate us,

72 to show mercy to our forefathers and to be mindful of his holy covenant,

73 of the oath s that he swore to Abraham our father, that he would grant us,

74 that, delivered from the hand of our enemies, we should serve him without fear,

75 in holiness and justice before him all our days.

76 And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Most High, for thou shalt go t before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways,

77 to give to his people knowledge of salvation u through forgiveness of their sins,

78 because of the loving-kindness of our God, wherewith v the Orient from on high has visited us,

79 to shine on those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, w to guide our feet into the way of peace."

o Ps. 73, 12.—p Ps. 131, 17.—q Jer. 23, 6; 30, 10.—r Ps. 105, 10.—s Gen. 22, 16; Jer. 31, 33.—t Mal.

Ver. 68-79. In his canticle, the Benedictus, Zachary expresses his thanks to God for sending the Messiah (Ver. 68-75), and his joy for the sublime mission of his son (Ver. 76-79).

Ver. 69. A horn of salvation: i.e., a powerful and mighty Savior. The horn was a symbol of power and strength.

Ver. 78. The Orient: Just as the natural sun rises over the earth and dissipates darkness, so too the spiritual sun, Jesus Christ, has come to dispel the darkness of error and sin. In the Old Testament He 80 And the child grew and became strong in spirit; and was in the deserts until the day of his manifestation to Israel.

CHAPTER 2

The Birth of Jesus

NOW it came to pass in those days, that a decree went forth from Cæsar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken.

2 This first census took place while Cyrinus was governor of Syria.

3 And all were going, each to his own town, to register.

4 And Joseph also went from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem x—because he was of the house and family of David—

5 to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

6 And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

The Shepherds at the Crib

8 And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round about them, and they feared exceedingly.

10 And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people;

11 for today in the town of David a

3, 1.—u Mal. 4, 5.—v Zach. 3, 8; Mal. 4, 2.—w Isa. 9, 2.—x Mich. 5, 2; Matt. 2, 6.

is referred to as the rising light [Isa. 9, 1f], and in St. John's Gospel He is declared to be the light of the world [John 9, 5].

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. Besides this census, St. Luke mentions another [Acts 5, 37] which took place 5-6 A.D., immediately after the deposition of Archelaus.

Ver. 5. Apparently Mary, who at this time was married to St. Joseph, was also obliged to be registered.

Ver. 7. Cf. Matt. 1, 25.

Savior has been born to you, who is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign to you: you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying,

14 "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

15 And it came to pass, when the angels had departed from them into heaven, that the shepherds were saying to one another, "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has come to pass, which the Lord has made known to us."

16 So they went with haste, and they found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger.

17 And when they had seen, they understood what had been told them concerning this child.

18 And all who heard marvelled at the things told them by the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept in mind all these things, pondering them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen, even as it was spoken to them.

Circumcision and Presentation

21 And when eight days were fulfilled for his circumcision, his name was called Jesus, ^y the name given him by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of her purification ^z were fulfilled according to the Law of Moses, they took him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord—

23 as it is written ^a in the Law of the Lord, Every male that opens the womb shall be called holy to the Lord—

24 and to offer a sacrifice according to what is said ^b in the Law of the Lord, "a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons."

25 And behold, there was in Jerusalem a man named Simeon, and this man was ^y Luke 1, 31; Gen. 17, 12; Lev. 12, 3; Matt. 1, 21.—^z Lev. 12, 2-6.—^a Ex. 13, 2.—^b Lev. 12, 8.—^c Isa. 8, 14; Rom. 9, 33; 1 Pet. 2, 7.

Ver. 22. According to the Mosaic Law [Lev. 12, 3ff], a mother was unclean for seven days after the birth of a son and then had to remain at home for another thirty-three days.

just and devout, looking for the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him.

26 And it had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he should not see death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord.

27 And he came by inspiration of the Spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the Law,

28 he also received him into his arms and blessed God, saying,

29 "Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word, in peace;

30 because my eyes have seen thy salvation,

31 which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples:

32 a light of revelation to the Gentiles, and a glory for thy people Israel."

33 And his father and mother were marvelling at the things spoken concerning him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary his mother, ^c "Behold, this child is destined for the fall and for the rise of many in Israel, and for a sign that shall be contradicted.

35 And thy own soul a sword shall pierce, that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed."

36 There was also Anna, a prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser. She was of a great age, having lived with her husband seven years from her maidenhood, 37 and by herself as a widow to eighty-four years. She never left the temple, with fastings and prayers worshipping night and day.

38 And coming up at that very hour, she began to give praise to the Lord, and spoke of him to all who were awaiting the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 And when they had fulfilled all things prescribed in the Law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, into their own town of Nazareth.

40 And the child grew and became strong. He was full of wisdom and the grace of God was upon him.

birth of a son and then had to remain at home for another thirty-three days.

The Child Jesus in the Temple

41 And his parents were wont to go every year to Jerusalem ^d at the Feast of the Passover.

42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem according to the custom of the feast.

43 And after they had fulfilled the days, when they were returning, the boy Jesus remained in Jerusalem, and his parents did not know it.

44 But thinking that he was in the caravan, they had come a day's journey before it occurred to them to look for him among their relatives and acquaintances.

45 And not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem in search of him.

46 And it came to pass after three days, that they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions.

47 And all who were listening to him were amazed at his understanding and his answers.

48 And when they saw him, they were astonished. And his mother said to him, "Son, why hast thou done so to us? Behold, in sorrow thy father and I have been seeking thee."

49 And he said to them, "How is it that you sought me? Did you not know that I must be about my Father's business?"

50 And they did not understand the word that he spoke to them.

51 And he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject to them; and his mother kept all these things carefully in her heart.

52 And Jesus advanced in wisdom and age and grace before God and men.

^d Ex. 23, 15; Deut. 16, 1-3.—^e 3-10: Matt. 3, 1-10; Mark 1, 2-6.—^f Isa. 40, 3-5; John 1, 23.—^g Jas. 2, 15; 1 John 3, 17.

Ver. 42. With the completion of his thirteenth year a young Jew became "a son of the Law" and was obliged to the observance of the entire Law. Jewish parents familiarized their sons with the major duties of the Law a year or two before this obligation began.

Ver. 52. As God, our Lord has infinite knowledge; as man, He had from the beginning the greatest possible infused knowledge and also the beatific vision. His human mind, however, could advance in experimental knowledge, which is only acquired through the medium of mental faculties and bodily senses.

Chap. 3, Ver. 3. The baptism of John was not a sacrament, but a symbol of repentance, by which the recipient expressed his sorrow for his sins and his desire for internal purification. Thus he was prepared for the true remission of his sins.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

CHAPTER 3

John the Baptist

NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, when Pontius Pilate was procurator of Judea, and Herod tetrarch of Galilee, and Philip his brother tetrarch of the district of Iturea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene,

2 during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiphas, the word of God came to John, the son of Zachary, in the desert.

3 And ^e he went into all the region about the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins,

4 as it is written in the book of the words of Isaias the prophet, ^f The voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and the crooked ways shall be made straight, and the rough ways smooth;

6 and all mankind shall see the salvation of God."

7 He said therefore to the crowds that went out to be baptized by him, "Brood of vipers! who has shown you how to flee from the wrath to come?"

8 Bring forth therefore fruits befitting repentance, and do not begin to say, 'We have Abraham for our father'; for I say to you that God is able out of these stones to raise up children to Abraham.

9 For even now the axe is laid at the root of the trees; every tree, therefore, that is not bringing forth fruit is to be cut down and thrown into the fire."

10 And the crowds asked him, saying, "What then are we to do?"

11 And he answered and said to them, ^g "Let him who has two tunics share with him who has none; and let him who has food do likewise."

12 And publicans also came to be baptized, and they said to him, "Master, what are we to do?"

13 But he said to them, "Exact no more than what has been appointed you."

14 And soldiers also asked him, saying, "And we—what are we to do?" And he said to them, "Plunder no one, accuse no one falsely, and be content with your pay."

15 Now as the people were in expectation, and all were wondering in their hearts about John, ^h whether perhaps he might be the Christ, 16 John addressed them, saying to all, ⁱ "I indeed baptize you with water. But one mightier than I is coming, the strap of whose sandals I am not worthy to loose. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire.

17 His winnowing fan ^j is in his hand, and he will clean out his threshing floor, and will gather the wheat into his barn; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire."

18 So with many different exhortations he kept on preaching the gospel to the people.

19 But Herod the tetrarch, ^k being reproved by him concerning Herodias, his brother's wife, and concerning all the evil things that Herod had done, 20 crowned all this by shutting up John in prison.

The Baptism of Jesus

21 Now ^l it came to pass when all the people had been baptized, Jesus also having been baptized and being in prayer, that heaven was opened,

22 and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form as a dove, and a voice came from heaven, ^m "Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased."

^h 15-18: Matt. 3, 11f; Mark 1, 7f; John 1, 19-27. —ⁱ Acts 1, 5; 11, 16. —^j Matt. 3, 12. —^k Matt. 14, 3; Mark 6, 17f. —^l 21f: Matt. 3, 13-17; Mark 1, 9-11; John 1, 32-34. —^m Luke 9, 35; 2 Pet. 1, 17. —ⁿ 23-38: Matt. 1, 1-17. —^o 1 Par. 3, 17. —^p 2 Kgs. 5, 14. —^q 1 Par. 2, 1-15. —^r Gen. 29, 35. —^s 34-38: Gen. 5, 3-31; 11, 10-26.

Ver. 16. The Messiah will baptize with the Holy Spirit and with fire; cf. Mal. 3, 2. His action, symbolized by purifying fire, will be more penetrating and powerful than that of John.

Ver. 17. Here Jesus is described in His capacity as judge. In this verse fire does not symbolize an agent of purification, as in v. 16, but rather a destructive agency.

Genealogy of Jesus

23 And Jesus himself, when he began his work, was about thirty years of age, being— as was supposed—the son of Joseph, ⁿ the son of Heli, the son of Matthat,

24 the son of Levi, the son of Melchi, the son of Janne, the son of Joseph,

25 the son of Matthatias, the son of Amos, the son of Naum, the son of Esli, the son of Nagge,

26 the son of Maath, the son of Mattathias, the son of Semei, the son of Josech, the son of Joda,

27 the son of Joanna, the son of Resa, the son of Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, ^o the son of Neri,

28 the son of Melchi, the son of Addi, the son of Cosam, the son of Elmadam, the son of Her,

29 the son of Jesus, the son of Eliezer, the son of Jorim, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi,

30 the son of Simeon, the son of Judas, the son of Joseph, the son of Jona, the son of Eliachim,

31 the son of Melea, the son of Menna, the son of Matthata, the son of Nathan, ^p the son of David,

32 the son ^q of Jesse, the son of Obed, the son of Booz, the son of Salmon, the son of Naasson,

33 the son of Aminadab, the son of Aram, the son of Esron, the son of Phares, the son of Judas, ^r

34 the son ^s of Jacob, the son of Isaac, the son of Abraham, the son of Thare, the son of Nachor,

35 the son of Seruch, the son of Ragau, the son of Phalec, the son of Eber, the son of Sale,

36 the son of Cainan, the son of Arphaxad, the son of Sem, the son of Noe, the son of Lamech,

37 the son of Mathusale, the son of Enoch, the son of Jared, the son of Malaleel, the son of Cainan, 38 the son of Enos, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, who was of God.

Ver. 23-38. In St. Matthew the genealogy descends from Abraham to Jesus, whereas in St. Luke it ascends from Jesus to Adam. Both evangelists give the genealogy of St. Joseph, but according to different relationships.

CHAPTER 4

The Temptation

NOW Jesus, ^t full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit about the desert

2 for forty days, being tempted the while by the devil. And he ate nothing those days; and when they were completed he was hungry.

3 And the devil said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, command that this stone become a loaf of bread."

4 And Jesus answered him, "It is written, ^u Not by bread alone shall man live, but by every word of God."

5 And the devil led him up, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And he said to him, "To thee will I give all this power and their glory; for to me they have been delivered, and to whomever I will I give them.

7 Therefore if thou wilt worship before me, the whole shall be thine."

8 And Jesus answered and said to him, "It is written, ^v The Lord thy God shalt thou worship, and him only shalt thou serve."

9 Then he led him to Jerusalem and set him on the pinnacle of the temple and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, throw thyself down from here;

10 for it is written, ^w He will give his angels charge concerning thee, to preserve thee;

11 and, Upon their hands they shall bear thee up, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

12 And Jesus answered and said to him, "It is said, ^x Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

13 And when the devil had tried every temptation, he departed from him for a while.

II

Jesus at Nazareth

14 And Jesus returned ^y in the power of the Spirit into Galilee; and the fame of him went out through the whole country.

15 And he taught in their synagogues, and was honored by all.

16 And he came to Nazareth, ^z where he had been brought up; and according to his custom, he entered the synagogue on the Sabbath and stood up to read.

17 And the volume of Isaias the prophet was handed to him. And after he opened the volume, he found the place where it was written,

18 ^a The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because he has anointed me; to bring good news to the poor he has sent me, 19 to proclaim to the captives release, and sight to the blind; to set at liberty the oppressed, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of recompense.

20 And closing the volume, he gave it back to the attendant and sat down. And the eyes of all in the synagogue were gazing on him.

21 But he began to say to them, "To-day this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing."

22 And all bore him witness, and marvelled at the words of grace that came from his mouth. And they said, "Is not this Joseph's son?"

23 And he said to them, "You will surely quote me this proverb, 'Physician, cure thyself! Whatever things we have heard of as done in Capharnaum, do here also in thy own country!'"

24 But he said, "Amen I say to you, no prophet is acceptable in his own country.

25 In truth I say to you, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elias, when heaven was shut up for three years and six months, and a great famine came over all the land;

26 and to none of them was Elias sent, but rather to a widowed woman ^b in Sarepta of Sidon.

27 And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and not one of them was cleansed, ^c but only Naaman the Syrian."

28 And all in the synagogue, as they heard these things, were filled with wrath.

29 And they rose up and put him forth out of the town, and led him to the brow

^t 1-13: Matt. 4, 1-11; Mark 1, 12f. — ^u Deut. 8, 3. — ^v Deut. 6, 13; 10, 20. — ^w Ps. 90, 11. — ^x Deut. 6, 16. — ^y Matt. 4, 12; Mark 1, 14; John 4, 45. — ^z 16-30: Matt. 13, 54-58; Mark 6, 1-6. — ^a Isa. 61, 1f. — ^b 3 Kgs. 17, 9. — ^c 4 Kgs. 5, 14.

of the hill, on which their town was built, that they might throw him down headlong.

30 But he, passing through their midst, went his way.

31 And ^d he went down to Capharnaum, a town of Galilee. And there he was teaching them on the Sabbath.

32 And they were astonished at his teaching, for his word was with authority.

The Cure of a Demoniac

33 Now in the synagogue there was a man possessed by an unclean devil, and he cried out with a loud voice,

34 saying, "Let us alone! What have we to do with thee, Jesus of Nazareth? Hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee, who thou art, the Holy One of God."

35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Hold thy peace, and go out of him." And when the devil had thrown him down into the midst, he went out of him, without harming him at all.

36 And amazement came upon all, and they discussed it with one another, saying, "What is this word? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and they come out."

37 And rumor concerning him went forth into every place of the region roundabout.

Peter's Mother-in-law

38 But he rose from the synagogue and entered Simon's house. ^e Now Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a great fever, and they besought him for her.

39 And standing over her he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and she rose at once and began to wait on them.

Other Miracles

40 Now when the sun was setting, all who had persons sick with various diseases brought them to him. And he laid his hands upon each of them and cured them.

41 And devils also came forth from many, crying out and saying, "Thou art the Son of God." And he rebuked them, and did not permit them to speak, because they knew that he was the Christ.

42 Now when it was day, he went out and departed into a desert place. ^f And the crowds were seeking after him, and they came to him, and tried to detain him, that he might not depart from them.

43 But he said to them, "To the other towns also I must proclaim the kingdom of God, for this is why I have been sent."

44 And he was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee.

CHAPTER 5

The First Disciples Called

NOW ^g it came to pass, while the crowds were pressing upon him to hear the word of God, that he was standing by Lake Genesareth.

2 And he saw two boats moored by the lake, but the fishermen had left them and were washing their nets.

3 And getting into one of the boats, the one that was Simon's, he asked him to put out a little from the land. And sitting down, he began to teach the crowds from the boat.

4 But when he had ceased speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into the deep, and lower your nets for a catch."

5 And Simon answered and said to him, "Master, the whole night through we have toiled and have taken nothing; but at thy word I will lower the net."

6 And when they had done so, they enclosed a great number of fishes, but their net was breaking.

7 And they beckoned to their comrades in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink.

8 But when Simon Peter saw this, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord."

9 For he and all who were with him were amazed at the catch of fish they had made;

10 and so were also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; henceforth thou shalt catch men."

^d 31-37: Matt. 4, 13; 7, 28f; Mark 1, 21-28.—
^e 38-41: Matt. 8, 14-16; Mark 1, 29-34.—^f 42f:

Mark 1, 35-38.—^g 1-11: Matt. 4, 18-22; Mark 1, 16-20.

11 And when they had brought their boats to land, they left all and followed him.

A Leper

12 And it came to pass, ^h while he was in one of the towns, that, behold, there was a man full of leprosy. And when he saw Jesus he fell on his face and besought him, saying, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean."

13 And stretching forth his hand he touched him, saying, "I will; be thou made clean." And immediately the leprosy left him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man, but, ⁱ "Go, show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift for thy purification, as Moses commanded, for a witness to them."

15 But so much the more the tidings spread concerning him, and great crowds gathered together to hear him and to be cured of their sicknesses.

16 But he himself was in retirement in the desert, and in prayer.

17 And it came to pass ^j on one of the days, that he sat teaching. And there were Pharisees and teachers of the Law sitting by, who had come out of every village of Galilee and Judea and out of Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

A Paralytic at Capharnaum

18 And behold, some men were carrying upon a pallet a man who was paralyzed, and they were trying to bring him in and to lay him before him.

19 And as they found no way of bringing him in, because of the crowd, they went up onto the roof and lowered him through the tiles, with his pallet, into the midst before Jesus.

20 And seeing their faith, he said, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee."

21 And the Scribes and Pharisees began to argue, saying, "Who is this man who speaks blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God only?"

Chap. 5, Ver. 14. Through this offering the people knew that the leper had been declared cleansed by the priest and could communicate again with them.

Ver. 34f. Jesus is the bridegroom [cf. John 3, 29], and His wedding guests (literally, children of 'he

22 But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, answered and said to them, "Why are you arguing in your hearts?"

23 Which is easier, to say, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise and walk'?

24 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic—"I say to thee, arise, take up thy pallet and go to thy house."

25 And immediately he arose before them, took up what he had been lying on and went away to his house, glorifying God.

26 And astonishment seized upon them all, and they glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, "We have seen wonderful things today."

The Call of Levi

27 And ^k after this he went forth; and he saw a publican, named Levi, sitting in the tax-collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me."

28 And leaving all things, he arose and followed him.

29 And Levi gave a great feast for him at his house; and there was a great gathering of publicans and of others, who were at the table with them.

30 And the Pharisees and their Scribes were grumbling, saying to his disciples, "Why do you eat and drink with publicans and sinners?"

31 And Jesus answered and said to them, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick.

32 I have not come to call the just, but sinners, to repentance."

The Question of Fasting

33 Now they said to him, "Why do the disciples of John fast often and make supplications, and likewise those of the Pharisees, whereas thy disciples eat and drink?"

34 He said to them, "Can you make the bridegroom) are His disciples. It is repugnant to Jewish custom to think of fasting and mourning during the period of the wedding festivities. But when He is taken away from them, then His disciples will fittingly fast and mourn.

^h 12-14: Matt. 8, 2-4; Mark 1, 40-44.—ⁱ Lev. 14, 2-32.—^j 17-26: Matt. 9, 1-8; Mark 2, 1-12.—^k 27-38: Matt. 9, 9-17; Mark 2, 14-22.

wedding guests fast as long as the bridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come—and when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, then they will fast in those days.”

36 And he spoke a parable also to them, “No one puts a patch from a new garment on an old garment; else not only does he tear the new one, but the patch from the new garment does not match the old.

37 And no one pours new wine into old wineskins; else the new wine will burst the skins, and will be spilt itself, and the skins ruined.

38 But new wine must be put into fresh skins, and both are saved.

39 And no man after drinking old wine immediately desires new; for he says, ‘The old is better.’”

CHAPTER 6

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath

NOW ^lit came to pass on the second first Sabbath, that he was going through standing grain, and his disciples were plucking and eating the ears of grain, rubbing them with their hands.

2 But some of the Pharisees said to them, “Why are you doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?”

3 And Jesus answered and said to them, “Have you not, then, read what David did when he and those with him were hungry?

4 how ^m he entered the house of God, and took, ate, and gave to those who were with him, the loaves of proposition, which no one may lawfully eat except the priests?”

5 And he said to them, “The Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath.”

A Man with a Withered Hand

6 And ⁿit came to pass on another Sabbath, that he entered the synagogue and taught. And a man was there and his right hand was withered.

^l 1-5: Matt. 12, 1-8; Mark 2, 23-28.—^m 1 Kgs. 21, 6.—ⁿ 6-11: Matt. 12, 9-14; Mark 3, 1-6.—^o 12-16: Matt. 10, 1-4; Mark 3, 13-19.

Ver. 36-39. In these two similes Jesus refers to the differences between the old dispensation, which was coming to an end, and the new order, which was foretold by the prophets and which He began to establish. These two orders are incompatible and cannot be made to match.

7 And the Scribes and the Pharisees were watching whether he cured on the Sabbath, that they might find how to accuse him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and he said to the man with the withered hand, “Arise and stand forth in the midst.” And he arose and stood forth.

9 But Jesus said to them, “I ask you, is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good, or to do evil? to save a life, or to destroy it?”

10 And having looked around upon them all, he said to the man, “Stretch forth thy hand.” And he stretched it forth, and his hand was restored.

11 But they were filled with fury, and began to discuss among themselves what they should do to Jesus.

The Choice of the Twelve

12 Now ^o it came to pass in those days, that he went out to the mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

13 And when day broke, he summoned his disciples; and from these he chose twelve (whom he also named apostles):

14 Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew;

15 Matthew and Thomas; James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called the Zealot;

16 Jude the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, who turned traitor.

III

The Sermon on the Mount: The Scene

17 And coming down with them, he took his stand on a level stretch, with a crowd of his disciples, and a great multitude of people from all Judea and Jerusalem, and the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, 18 who came to listen to him and to be healed of their diseases. And those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured.

19 And all the crowd were trying to touch him, for power went forth from him and healed all.

Ver. 38. And both are saved: missing in the better Greek Manuscripts.

Chap. 6, Ver. 1. The second first Sabbath: missing in some of the better Greek Manuscripts. Its meaning is not known.

The Beatitudes and Woes

20 p And he lifted up his eyes to his disciples, and said, "Blessed are you poor, for yours is the kingdom of God.

21 Blessed are you who hunger now, for you shall be satisfied. Blessed are you who weep now, for you shall laugh.

22 Blessed shall you be when men hate you, and when they shut you out, and reproach you, and reject your name as evil, because of the Son of Man.

23 Rejoice on that day and exult, for behold your reward is great in heaven. For in the selfsame manner their fathers used to treat the prophets.

24 q But woe to you rich! for you are now having your comfort.

25 r Woe to you who are filled! for you shall hunger. Woe to you who laugh now! for you shall mourn and weep.

26 Woe to you when all men speak well of you! In the selfsame manner their fathers used to treat the prophets.

The Rules of Charity

27 "But I say to you who are listening: s Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you.

28 Bless those who curse you, pray for those who calumniate you.

29 And to him who strikes thee on the one cheek, offer the other also; t and from him who takes away thy cloak, do not withhold thy tunic either.

30 Give to everyone who asks of thee, and from him who takes away thy goods, ask no return.

31 And even as you wish men to do to you, u so also do you to them.

32 And v if you love those who love you, what merit have you? For even sinners love those who love them.

33 And if you do good to those who do good to you, what merit have you? For even sinners do that.

34 And w if you lend to those from whom you hope to receive in return, what merit have you? For even sinners lend to sinners that they may get back as much in return.

35 But love your enemies, and do good, and lend, not hoping for any return, and your reward shall be great, and you shall be children of the Most High, for he is kind towards the ungrateful and evil.

36 Be merciful, therefore, even as your Father is merciful.

37 Do not judge, and you shall not be judged; x do not condemn, and you shall not be condemned. Forgive, and you shall be forgiven;

38 give, and it shall be given to you; y good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, shall they pour into your lap. For with what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you."

Self-examination

39 And he spoke a parable also to them, "Can a blind man guide a blind man? Will not both fall into a pit?

40 No disciple is above his teacher; z but when perfected, everyone will be like his teacher.

41 But why dost thou see the speck in thy brother's eye, a and yet dost not consider the beam in thy own eye?

42 And how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Brother, let me cast out the speck from thy eye,' while thou thyself dost not see the beam in thy own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam from thy own eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the speck from thy brother's eye.

43 For b there is no good tree that bears bad fruit, nor is there a bad tree that bears good fruit.

44 For every tree is known by its fruit. For from thorns men do not gather figs, neither from a bramble do they harvest grapes.

45 The good man from the good treasure of his heart brings forth that which is good; and the evil man from the evil treasure brings forth that which is evil. For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.

p 20-23: Matt. 5, 2-12.—q Amos 6, 1; Eccclus. 31, 8.—r Isa. 65, 13f.—s Matt. 5, 44.—t 29f: Matt. 5, 39-42; 1 Cor. 6, 7.—u Tob. 4, 16; Matt. 7, 12.—v Matt. 5, 46.—w Deut. 15, 8; Matt. 5, 42.—x 37f:

Matt. 7, 1f.—y Mark 4, 24.—z Matt. 10, 24; John 13, 16.—a 41f: Matt. 7, 3-5.—b 43-45: Matt. 7, 16-18.

Ver. 26. The prophets alluded to are the false prophets, as is evident from the Greek text.

Conclusion of the Sermon

46 "But c why do you call me, 'Lord, Lord,' and not practise the things that I say?

47 Everyone d who comes to me and hears my words and acts upon them, I will show you what he is like:

48 he is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid a foundation upon rock. And when a flood came, the stream broke against that house and could not shake it; because it was founded on rock.

49 But he who has heard my words and has not acted upon them is like a man who built his house upon the ground without a foundation; against which the stream broke and straightway it fell in, and great was the wreck of that house."

CHAPTER 7

The Centurion's Servant

WHEN e he had finished all his discourse in the hearing of the people, he entered Capernaum.

2 Now a servant of a certain centurion, to whom he was dear, was sick to the point of death.

3 And the centurion, hearing of Jesus, sent to him elders of the Jews, beseeching him to come and save his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they entreated him earnestly, saying to him, "He is worthy that thou shouldst do this for him,

5 for he loves our nation and himself has built us our synagogue."

6 So Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to say to him, "Lord, do not trouble thyself, for I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof;

7 this is why I did not think myself worthy to come to thee. But say the word, and my servant will be healed.

8 For I too am a man subject to authority, and have soldiers subject to me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to c Matt. 7, 21; Rom. 2, 13; Jas. 1, 22.—d 47-49: Matt. 7, 24-27.—e 1-10: Matt. 8, 5-13.—f Luke 24, 19; John 4, 19.—g 18-35: Matt. 11, 2-19.

Chap. 7, Ver. 19. The Baptist asked this question for the benefit of his disciples and the people. He another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

9 Now when Jesus heard this, he marvelled, and turning to the crowd that followed him, said, "Amen I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such great faith."

10 And when the messengers returned to the house, they found the servant in good health who had been ill.

The Widow's Son

11 And it came to pass soon afterwards, that he went to a town called Naim; and his disciples and a large crowd went with him.

12 And as he drew near the gate of the town, behold, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow; and a large gathering from the town was with her.

13 And the Lord, seeing her, had compassion on her, and said to her, "Do not weep."

14 And he went up and touched the stretcher; and the bearers stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say to thee, arise."

15 And he who was dead, sat up, and began to speak. And he gave him to his mother.

16 But fear seized upon all, and they began to glorify God, saying, f "A great prophet has risen among us," and "God has visited his people."

17 And this report concerning him went forth throughout the whole of Judea, and all the country roundabout.

The Baptist's Deputation

18 And g John's disciples brought him word of all these things.

19 And John summoned two of his disciples and sent them to the Lord, saying, "Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?"

20 And when the men had come to him, they said, "John the Baptist has sent us to thee, saying, 'Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?'"

21 In that very hour he cured many of diseases, afflictions and evil spirits, and to many who were blind he granted sight.

22 And he answered and said to them, wished to convince them fully that Jesus was the Messias.

"Go and report to John what you have heard and seen: ^h the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise, the poor have the gospel preached to them.

23 And blessed is he who is not scandalized in me."

Christ's Witness Concerning John

24 Then, as the messengers of John left, he began to say to the crowds concerning John, "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind?

25 But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Behold, those who wear fine clothes and live in luxury are in the houses of kings.

26 But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet.

27 This is he of whom it is written, i Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall make ready thy way before thee.

28 I say to you, among those born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he."

29 And when they had heard him, all the people and the publicans justified God, having been baptized with the baptism of John.

30 But the Pharisees and the lawyers, not having been baptized by him, brought to naught God's purpose concerning themselves.

The Stubborn Children

31 "To what then shall I liken the men of this generation? And what are they like?

32 They are like children sitting in the market place, calling to one another and saying, 'We have piped to you, and you have not danced; we have sung dirges, and you have not wept.'

^h Isa. 35, 5.—ⁱ Mal. 3, 1; Isa. 40, 3.—^j Matt. 3, 4; Mark 1, 6.—^k 37-39: Matt. 26, 6-13; Mark 14, 3-9; John 12, 1-8.

Ver. 29. Justified God: acknowledged in their baptism the mercy of God manifest in the Baptist's preaching.

Ver. 35. The Pharisees and the lawyers were dissatisfied with the greater austerity of John as well as the more ordinary conduct of Jesus, who ate and 33 For ⁱ John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He has a devil.'

34 The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and you say, 'Behold a man who is a glutton, and a wine-drinker, a friend of publicans and sinners!'

35 And wisdom is justified by all her children."

The Penitent Woman

36 Now one of the Pharisees asked him to dine with him; so he went into the house of the Pharisee and reclined at table.

37 And behold, ^k a woman in the town who was a sinner, upon learning that he was at table in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster jar of ointment;

38 and standing behind him at his feet, she began to bathe his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with ointment.

39 Now when the Pharisee, who had invited him, saw it, he said to himself, "This man, were he a prophet, would surely know who and what manner of woman this is who is touching him, for she is a sinner."

40 And Jesus answered and said to him, "Simon, I have something to say to thee." And he said, "Master, speak."

41 "A certain money-lender had two debtors; the one owed five hundred denarii, the other fifty.

42 As they had no means of paying, he forgave them both. Which of them, therefore, will love him more?"

43 Simon answered and said, "He, I suppose, to whom he forgave more." And he said to him, "Thou hast judged rightly."

44 And turning to the woman, he said to Simon, "Dost thou see this woman? I came into thy house; thou gavest me no water for my feet; but she has bathed my feet with tears, and has wiped them with her hair.

45 Thou gavest me no kiss; but she, from the moment she entered, has not ceased to kiss my feet.

drank with sinners and publicans. Yet those who followed either John or Jesus found true wisdom or a divine plan in their different methods.

Ver. 45. The reading of the better Greek Manuscripts is: "from the moment I entered."

46 Thou didst not anoint my head with oil; but she has anointed my feet with ointment.

47 Wherefore I say to thee, her sins, many as they are, shall be forgiven her, because she has loved much. But he to whom little is forgiven, loves little."

48 And he said to her, ^l "Thy sins are forgiven."

49 And they who were at table with him began to say within themselves, "Who is this man, who even forgives sins?"

50 But he said to the woman, "Thy faith has saved thee; go in peace."

CHAPTER 8

The Ministering Women

AND it came to pass afterwards, that he was journeying through towns and villages, preaching and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom of God. And with him were the Twelve,

2 and certain women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: ^m Mary, who is called the Magdalene, from whom seven devils had gone out,

3 and Joanna, the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, who used to provide for them out of their means.

Parable of the Sower

4 Now ⁿ when a very great crowd was gathering together and men from every town were resorting to him, he said in a parable:

5 "The sower went out to sow his seed. And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside and was trodden under foot, and the birds of the air ate it up.

6 And other seed fell upon the rock, and as soon as it had sprung up it withered away, because it had no moisture.

7 And other seed fell among thorns,

^l Matt. 9, 2.—^m Mark 15, 40; 16, 9.—ⁿ 4-8: Matt. 13, 2-9; Mark 4, 1-9.—^o 9-15: Matt. 13, 10-23; Mark 4, 10-20.—^p Isa. 6, 9f; John 12, 40; Acts 28,

Ver. 47. The parable appears at first sight to imply that the woman loved much because of the greatness of the sin remitted; but our Lord's words at the end indicate rather that her love was the cause of her pardon.

Chap. 8, Ver. 10. To the followers of Jesus, full knowledge of the sublime mysteries of the messianic and the thorns sprang up with it and choked it.

8 And other seed fell upon good ground, and sprang up and yielded fruit a hundredfold." As he said these things he cried out, "He who has ears to hear, let him hear!"

9 But his disciples then began to ask him what this parable ^o meant.

10 He said to them, ^p "To you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God, but to the rest in parables, that 'Seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand.'

11 Now the parable is this: the seed is the word of God.

12 And those by the wayside are they who have heard; then the devil comes and takes away the word from their heart, that they may not believe and be saved.

13 Now those upon the rock are they who, when they have heard, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, but believe for a while, and in time of temptation fall away.

14 And that which fell among the thorns, these are they who have heard, and as they go their way are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and their fruit does not ripen.

15 But that upon good ground, these are they who, with a right and good heart, having heard the word, hold it fast, and bear fruit in patience.

Purpose of This Teaching

16 "Now ^q no one, when he has lighted a lamp, covers it with a vessel, or puts it under a couch, but he puts it upon a lamp-stand, that they who enter may see the light.

17 For ^r there is nothing hidden that will not be made manifest; nor anything concealed that will not be known and come to light.

18 Take heed, therefore, how you hear ^s for to him who has shall be given; and 26; Rom. 11, 8.—^q 16-18: Matt. 5, 15; Mark 4 21-25.—^r Matt. 10, 26.—^s Matt. 13, 12.

kingdom is given, whereas the others, such as the Pharisees, Scribes and great masses of incredulous people, must be content with the figurative discourse.

Ver. 17. Jesus admonishes His disciples that the truths of salvation, which He had privately explained to them, must be made known to the world.

from him who does not have, even what he thinks he has shall be taken away."

Jesus and His Brethren

19 Now ^this mother and brethren came to him; and they could not get to him because of the crowd.

20 And it was told him, "Thy mother and thy brethren are standing outside, wishing to see thee."

21 But he answered and said to them, "My mother and my brethren are they who hear the word of God, and act upon it."

The Storm on the Lake

22 Now ^uit came to pass on one of those days, that he and his disciples got into a boat, and he said to them, "Let us cross over to the other side of the lake." And they put out to sea.

23 But as they were sailing, he fell asleep. And a squall swept down upon the lake, and they were filling and were in peril.

24 So they came and woke him, saying, "Master, we are perishing." Then he arose and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water; and they ceased, and there came a calm.

25 And he said to them, "Where is your faith?" But they were afraid, and marvelled, saying to one another, "Who, then, is this, that he commands even the winds and the sea, and they obey him?"

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa

26 And they sailed to the country of the Gerasenes, ^vwhich is opposite Galilee.

27 Now when he landed, there met him a certain man who for a long time was possessed by a devil, and wore no clothes, and lived in the tombs, not in a house.

28 And when he saw Jesus, he fell down before him, and crying out with a loud voice said, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I pray thee, do not torment me."

29 For he was charging the unclean

^t 19-21: Matt. 12, 46-50; Mark 3, 31-35.—^u 22-25: Matt. 8, 23-27; Mark 4, 35-40.—^v 26-37:

Ver. 21. Spiritual relationship is more noble and higher than carnal relationship. In this spiritual relationship, His Blessed Mother shared more perfectly than any other creature.

Ver. 32f. He granted the devils permission to enter spirit to go forth from the man. For many times it had laid hold of him; and he was bound with chains and fetters, and kept under guard, but he would break the bonds asunder, and be driven by the devil into the deserts.

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, "What is thy name?" And he said, "Legion," because many devils had entered into him.

31 And they entreated him not to command them to depart into the abyss.

32 Now a herd of many swine was there, feeding on the mountain-side. And they kept entreating him to give them leave to enter into them. And he gave them leave.

33 And the devils came out from the man and entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff into the lake and were drowned.

34 And when the swineherds saw what had happened, they fled and reported it in the town and in the country;

35 and people came out to see what had happened. And they came to Jesus, and found the man from whom the devils had gone out sitting at his feet, clothed and in his right mind; and they were afraid.

36 And those also who had seen it reported to them how he had been saved from Legion.

37 And all the people of the Gerasene district besought him to depart from them; for they were seized with great fear.

And he got into a boat and went back.

38 But the man ^wfrom whom the devils had gone out prayed him that he might remain with him. But Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 "Return to thy house, and tell all that God has done for thee." And he departed, publishing throughout the whole town all that Jesus had done for him.

The Daughter of Jairus; the Woman with a Hemorrhage

40 Now it came to pass when Jesus had returned, that the crowd welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him.

Matt. 8, 28-34; Mark 5, 1-17.—^w 38f: Mark 5, 18-20.

the swine, thereby showing His Apostles the reality of demoniac possession and expulsion, the power of Satan as well as the dependence of the devil upon the permissive will of God and upon His own superior power.

41 And behold, there came a man named Jairus, ^x and he was a ruler of the synagogue; and falling at the feet of Jesus, he entreated him to come to his house, 42 for he had an only daughter about twelve years of age, and she was dying.

And it happened as he went that he was pressed upon by the crowds.

43 And a certain woman who for twelve years had had a hemorrhage, and had spent all her means on physicians, but could not be cured by anyone,

44 came up behind him and touched the tassel of his cloak; and at once her hemorrhage ceased.

45 And Jesus said, "Who touched me?" But as all were denying it, Peter, and those who were with him, said, "Master, the crowds throng and press upon thee, and dost thou say, 'Who touched me?'"

46 But Jesus said, "Someone touched me; for I perceived that power had gone forth from me."

47 But the woman, seeing that she had not escaped notice, came up trembling, and falling down at his feet, declared in the presence of all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been healed instantly.

48 And he said to her, "Daughter, thy faith has saved thee; go in peace."

49 While he was yet speaking, there came one from the house of the ruler of the synagogue, saying to him, "Thy daughter is dead; do not trouble him."

50 But Jesus on hearing this word answered the father of the girl, "Do not be afraid; only have faith and she shall be saved."

51 And when he came to the house, he allowed no one to enter with him, except Peter and James and John, and the girl's father and mother.

52 And all were weeping and mourning for her. But he said, "Do not weep; she is asleep, not dead."

53 And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead.

54 But he, taking her by the hand, cried out, saying, "Girl, arise!"

55 And her spirit returned, and she rose up immediately. And he directed that something be given her to eat.

56 And her parents were amazed, but he charged them to tell no one what had happened.

CHAPTER 9

The Mission of the Apostles

THEN ^y having summoned the twelve apostles, he gave them power and authority over all the devils, and to cure diseases.

2 And he sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

3 And he said to them, ^z "Take nothing for your journey, neither staff, nor wallet, nor bread, nor money; neither have two tunics.

4 And whatever house you enter, stay there, and do not leave the place.

5 And whoever does not receive you—go forth from that town, and shake off even the dust ^a from your feet for a witness against them."

6 And going forth, they went about from village to village, preaching the gospel and working cures everywhere.

7 Now ^b Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was being done by him, and was much perplexed, because it was said

8 by some, "John has risen from the dead"; and by some, "Elias has appeared"; and by others, "One of the prophets of old has risen again."

9 But Herod said, "John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?" And he endeavored to see him.

10 And the apostles ^c on their return reported to him all that they had done. And taking them with him, he withdrew apart to a desert place, which belongs to Bethsaida.

11 But the crowds on learning it followed him. And he welcomed them, and spoke to them of the kingdom of God, and those in need of cure he healed.

^x 41-56: Matt. 9, 18-26; Mark 5, 22-43.—^y Matt. 10, 1; Mark 3, 13.—^z 3-5: Matt. 10, 9-14; Mark 6, 8-11.—^a Acts 13, 51.—^b 7-9: Matt. 14, 1f;

Mark 6, 14-16.—^c 10-17: Matt. 14, 13-21; Mark 6, 30-44; John 6, 1-13.

Chap. 9, Ver. 4. "Thence depart" is the reading in the Greek (i.e., leave that house where you were enjoying hospitality).

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

12 Now the day began to decline; and the Twelve came up and said to him, "Send the crowds away, so that they may go into the villages and farms roundabout and find lodging and provisions, for we are in a desert place here."

13 But he said to them, "You yourselves give them some food." And they said, "We have not more than five loaves and two fishes, unless we are to go and buy food for all this crowd."

14 For there were about five thousand men present.

Then he said to his disciples, "Make them recline in groups of fifties."

15 And they did so, and made them all recline.

16 And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, blessed them and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the crowds.

17 And all ate and were satisfied; and what was left over to them was gathered up, twelve baskets of fragments.

IV

Peter's Confession; Passion and Resurrection Foretold

18 And it came to pass ^d as he was praying in private, that his disciples also were with him, and he asked them, saying, "Who do the crowds say that I am?"

19 And they answered and said, "John the Baptist; and others, Elias; and others, that one of the ancient prophets has risen again."

20 And he said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Simon Peter answered and said, "The Christ of God."

21 But he strictly charged them, and commanded them not to tell this to anyone,

22 saying, ^e "The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and Scribes, and be put to death, and on the third day rise again."

^d 18-20: Matt. 16, 13-16; Mark 8, 27-29.—^e 22-27: Matt. 16, 21-28; Mark 8, 31-39.—^f Matt. 10, 38.

Ver. 21. Before His Passion, Death and Resurrection, Jesus wished no open manifestation of His dig-

The Doctrine of the Cross

23 And he said to all, ^f "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.

24 For he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake will save it.

25 For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but ruin or lose himself?

26 For whoever is ashamed of me and my words, of him will the Son of Man be ashamed when he comes in his glory and that of the Father and of the holy angels.

27 But I say to you truly, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death, till they have seen the kingdom of God."

Jesus Transfigured

28 Now it came to pass ^g about eight days after these words, that he took Peter, James and John and went up the mountain to pray.

29 And as he prayed, the appearance of his countenance was changed, and his raiment became a radiant white.

30 And behold, two men were talking with him. And these were Moses and Elias, 31 who, appearing in glory, spoke of his death, which he was about to fulfill in Jerusalem.

32 Now Peter and his companions were heavy with sleep. But when they were fully awake, they saw his glory and the two men who were standing with him.

33 And it came to pass as they were parting from him, that Peter said to Jesus, "Master, it is good for us to be here. And let us set up three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias," not knowing what he said.

34 But as he was speaking thus, there came a cloud and overshadowed them; and they were afraid as they entered the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, ^h "This is my beloved Son; hear him."

—^g 28-36: Matt. 17, 1-8; Mark 9, 2-8.—^h 2 Pet. 1, 17.

nity, to preclude all hopes of a temporal messianic kingdom.

36 And after the voice had passed, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silence and told no one at that time any of these things that they had seen.

A Possessed Boy

37 Now it came to pass i on the following day, when they came down from the mountain, that a large crowd met him.

38 And behold, a man from the crowd cried out, saying, "Master, I pray thee to look at my son, for he is my only child;

39 and behold, a spirit seizes him and he suddenly cries out; and it throws him down and convulses him so that he foams, and bruising him sorely, it scarcely leaves him.

40 And I prayed thy disciples to cast it out, but they could not."

41 But Jesus answered and said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you and put up with you? Bring thy son here to me."

42 And as he was yet coming near, the devil cast him down and threw him into convulsions.

43 But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and healed the boy, and restored him to his father.

44 And all were astounded at the majesty of God.

The Second Prediction of the Passion

But while all marvelled at all the things that he was doing, he said to his disciples, i "Store up these words in your minds: the Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men."

45 But they did not understand this saying, and it was hidden from them, that they might not perceive it; and they were afraid to ask him about this saying.

Against Ambition and Envy

46 Now a discussion k arose among them, which of them was the greatest.

47 But Jesus, knowing the reasoning of their heart, took a little child and set him at his side, i 37-43: Matt. 17, 14-18; Mark 9, 14-27.—j 44f: Matt. 17, 21f; Mark 9, 30f.—k 46-48: Matt.

Ver. 53. The Samaritans contended that their temple on Mount Garizim was the only legitimate place for worship and were hostile to anyone going to the temple of Jerusalem to worship.

48 and said to them, "Whoever receives this little child for my sake, receives me; and whoever receives me, receives him who sent me. For he who is the least among you, he is the greatest."

49 But John answered and said, "Master, we saw a man casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him, because he does not follow with us."

50 And Jesus said to him, "Do not forbid him; for he who is not against you is for you."

V

The Unfriendly Samaritans

51 Now it came to pass, when the days had come for him to be taken up, that he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem,

52 and sent messengers before him. And they went and entered a Samaritan town to make ready for him, 53 and they did not receive him, because his face was set for Jerusalem.

54 But when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, "Lord, wilt thou that we bid fire come down from heaven and consume them?"

55 But he turned and rebuked them, saying, "You do not know of what manner of spirit you are;

56 for the Son of Man m did not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." And they went to another village.

Sacrifice to Follow Christ

57 And it came to pass n as they went on their journey, that a man said to him, "I will follow thee wherever thou goest."

58 And Jesus said to him, "The foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head."

59 And he said to another, "Follow me." But he said, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father."

60 But Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their dead, but do thou go and proclaim the kingdom of God."

18, 1-5; Mark 9, 33-36.—l 49f: Mark 9, 37. 40.—m John 3, 17.—n 57-60: Matt. 8, 19-22.

Ver. 55f. Saying, "You do not know . . . to save them": missing in the best Greek Manuscripts and some Latin Manuscripts.

61 And another said, "I will follow thee, Lord; but let me first bid farewell to those at home."

62 Jesus said to him, "No one, having put his hand to the plow and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

CHAPTER 10

The Seventy-two Disciples

NOW after this the Lord appointed seventy-two others, and sent them forth two by two before him into every town and place where he himself was about to come.

2 And he said to them, o "The harvest indeed is great, but the laborers are few. Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest.

3 Go. p Behold, I send you forth as lambs in the midst of wolves.

4 Carry q neither purse, nor wallet, nor sandals, and greet no one on the way.

5 Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!'

6 And if a son of peace be there, your peace will rest upon him; but if not, it will return to you.

7 And remain in the same house, eating and drinking what they have; r for the laborer deserves his wages. Do not go from house to house.

8 And whatever town you enter, and they receive you, eat what is set before you,

9 and cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God is at hand for you.'

10 But whatever town you enter, and they do not receive you—go out into its streets and say,

11 'Even s the dust from your town that cleaves to us we shake off against you; yet know this, that the kingdom of God is at hand.'

12 I say to you, that it will be more

o Matt. 9, 37f.—p Matt. 10, 16.—q 4-11: Luke 9, 1-5; 4 Kgs. 4, 29.—r Deut. 24, 14; Matt. 10, 10; 1 Tim. 5, 18.—s Acts 13, 51.—t 13-15: Matt. 11, 21-

Ver. 62. Undivided attention is required of the disciples of Jesus.

Chap. 10, Ver. 4. The disciples are not to spend much unnecessary time in long oriental salutations, but are rather to devote themselves without delay and distraction to their higher calling.

tolerable for Sodom in that day than for that town.

The Impenitent Towns

13 "Woe t to thee, Corozain! woe to thee, Bethsaida! For if in Tyre and Sidon had been worked the miracles that have been worked in you, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.

14 But it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you.

15 And thou, Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted to heaven? Thou shalt be thrust down to hell.

16 He who hears you, hears me; u and he who rejects you, rejects me; and he who rejects me, rejects him who sent me."

Return of the Disciples

17 Now the seventy-two returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject to us in thy name."

18 But he said to them, "I was watching Satan fall as lightning from heaven.

19 Behold, I have given you power to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and over all the might of the enemy; and nothing shall hurt you.

20 But do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you; rejoice rather in this, that your names are written in heaven."

Jesus Draws Men Gently to Himself

21 In that very hour v he rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, "I praise thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and prudent, and didst reveal them to little ones. Yes, Father, for such was thy good pleasure.

22 All things have been delivered to me by my Father; and no one knows who the 23.—u Matt. 10, 40; John 13, 20.—v 21f: Matt. 11, 25-27.

Ver. 21f. The truths of the kingdom of God are hidden from the worldly-wise and prudent, but revealed to the spiritually humble and docile. The uniqueness of Christ's Sonship (i.e., His equal power and perfection with the Father) is among these revealed truths.

Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and him to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

23 And turning to his disciples he said, w "Blessed are the eyes that see what you see!

24 For I say to you, many prophets and kings have desired to see what you see, and they have not seen it; and to hear what you hear, and they have not heard it."

*The Great Commandment:
The Good Samaritan*

25 And behold, x a certain lawyer got up to test him, saying, "Master, what must I do to gain eternal life?"

26 But he said to him, "What is written in the Law? How dost thou read?"

27 He answered and said, y Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole strength, and with thy whole mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.

28 And he said to him, "Thou hast answered rightly; do this and thou shalt live."

29 But he, wishing to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

30 Jesus answered, "A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell in with robbers, who after both stripping him and beating him went their way, leaving him half-dead.

31 But, as it happened, a certain priest was going down the same way, and when he saw him, he passed by.

32 And likewise a Levite also, when he was near the place and saw him, passed by.

33 But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed came upon him, and seeing him, was moved with compassion.

34 And he went up to him and bound up his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. And setting him on his own beast, he brought him to an inn and took care of him.

35 And the next day he took out two w 23f: Matt. 13, 16f.—x 25-28: Matt. 22, 34-39; Mark 12, 28-34.—y Deut. 6, 5; Lev. 19, 18.—z 2-4: Matt. 6, 9-13.

Ver. 23. "He said privately" is the reading of the better Greek Manuscripts.

Ver. 37. Every man is our neighbor.

Ver. 42. And yet only one thing is needful: the reading of some notable Greek Manuscripts is: "Few things are needed or only one."

denarii and gave them to the innkeeper and said, "Take care of him; and whatever more thou spendest, I, on my way back, will repay thee."

36 Which of these three, in thy opinion, proved himself neighbor to him who fell among the robbers?"

37 And he said, "He who took pity on him." And Jesus said to him, "Go and do thou also in like manner."

Martha and Mary

38 Now it came to pass as they were on their journey, that he entered a certain village; and a woman named Martha welcomed him to her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, who also seated herself at the Lord's feet, and listened to his word.

40 But Martha was busy about much serving. And she came up and said, "Lord, is it no concern of thine that my sister has left me to serve alone? Tell her therefore to help me."

41 But the Lord answered and said to her, "Martha, Martha, thou art anxious and troubled about many things;

42 and yet only one thing is needful. Mary has chosen the best part, and it will not be taken away from her."

CHAPTER 11

Lessons on Prayer

AND it came to pass as he was praying in a certain place, that when he ceased, one of his disciples said to him, "Lord, teach us to pray, even as John also taught his disciples."

2 And he said to them, z "When you pray, say: 'Father, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come!

3 Give us this day our daily bread,

4 and forgive us our sins, for we also forgive everyone who is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation.'"

5 And he said to them, "Which of you shall have a friend and shall go to him in the middle of the night and say to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves,

Chap. 11, Ver. 1-4. Luke gives only five petitions of the Our Father, whereas there are seven in the first Gospel.

Ver. 5-13. Our prayers must be said with confidence and perseverance.

6 for a friend of mine has just come to me from a journey, and I have nothing to set before him';

7 and he from within should answer and say, 'Do not disturb me; the door is now shut, and my children and I are in bed; I cannot get up and give to thee'?

8 I say to you, although he will not get up and give to him because he is his friend, yet because of his persistence he will get up and give him all he needs.

9 And I say to you, a ask, and it shall be given to you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you.

10 For everyone who asks receives; and he who seeks finds; and to him who knocks it shall be opened.

11 But if one of you asks his father for a loaf, will he hand him a stone? or for a fish, will he for a fish hand him a serpent?

12 or if he asks for an egg, will he hand him a scorpion?

13 Therefore, if you, evil as you are, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Good Spirit to those who ask him!"

Blasphemy of the Pharisees

14 And b he was casting out a devil, and the same was dumb; and when he had cast out the devil, the dumb man spoke. And the crowds marvelled.

15 But some of them said, "By Beelzebub, the prince of devils, he casts out devils."

16 And others, to test him, demanded from him a sign from heaven.

17 But he, seeing their thoughts, said to them: c "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and house will fall upon house.

18 If, then, Satan also is divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? Because you say that I cast out devils by Beelzebub.

19 Now, if I cast out devils by Beelzebub, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges.

20 But if I cast out devils by the finger of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you.

21 When the strong man, fully armed, guards his courtyard, his property is undisturbed.

22 But if a stronger than he attacks and overcomes him, he will take away all his weapons that he relied upon, and will divide his spoils.

23 He who is not with me is against me; and he who does not gather with me scatters.

24 When the unclean spirit has gone out of a man, he roams through waterless places in search of rest; and finding none, he says, 'I will return to my house which I left.'

25 And when he has come to it, he finds the place swept.

26 Then he goes and takes seven other spirits more evil than himself, and they enter in and dwell there; and the last state of that man becomes worse than the first."

The Praise of Mary

27 Now it came to pass as he was saying these things, that a certain woman from the crowd lifted up her voice and said to him, "Blessed is the womb that bore thee, and the breasts that nursed thee."

28 But he said, "Rather, blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it."

The Sign of Jonas

29 And as the crowds were gathering together, he began to say, d "This generation is an evil generation: it demands a sign, and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas.

30 For even as Jonas was a sign to the Ninevites, so will also the Son of Man be to this generation.

31 The e queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with the men of this gen-

—d 29-32: Matt. 12, 38-42; Mark 8, 11f.—e 3 Kgs. 10, 1.

a 9-13: Matt. 7, 7-11; Mark 11, 24; John 14, 13; Jas. 1, 5.—b 14f: Matt. 9, 32-34; 12, 22-24; Mark 3, 22.—c 17-22: Matt. 12, 25-29; Mark 3, 23-27.

Ver. 13. Good Spirit: the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 19. The "children" of the Pharisees are their disciples. They taught them formulas and practices to cast out devils.

Ver. 24-26. Jesus warns that a devil cast out may return with reinforcements, to an individual or to a society; here there is a warning to those who are rejecting Him. He uses a parable to present the idea: the impure spirit is like a robber who goes into the desert, etc.

eration and will condemn them; for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

32 The men of Nineve will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; i for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

A Lesson from a Lamp

33 "No one lights a lamp g and puts it in a cellar or even under the measure, but upon the lamp-stand, that they who enter in may see the light.

34 The h lamp of thy body is thy eye. If thy eye be sound, thy whole body will be full of light. But if it be evil, thy body also will be full of darkness.

35 Take care, therefore, that the light that is in thee is not darkness.

36 If, then, thy whole body is full of light, having no part in darkness, it will all be illumined, as when a bright lamp illumines thee."

Denunciation of the Pharisees

37 Now after he had spoken, a Pharisee asked him to dine with him. And he went in and reclined at table.

38 But the Pharisee began to ponder and ask himself why he had not washed before dinner.

39 But the Lord said to him, i "Now you Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but within you are full of robbery and wickedness.

40 Foolish ones! did not he who made the outside make the inside too?

41 Nevertheless, give that which remains as alms; and behold, all things are clean to you.

42 But woe to you Pharisees! because you pay tithes on mint and rue and every herb, and disregard justice and the love of God. But these things you ought to have done, while not leaving the others undone.

43 Woe to you Pharisees! because you love the front seats in the synagogues and greetings in the market place.

44 Woe to you! i because you are like hidden tombs, over which men walk unaware."

Denunciation of the Lawyers

45 But one of the lawyers, answering, said to him, "Master, in saying these things, thou insultest us also."

46 But he said, k "Woe to you lawyers also! because you load men with oppressive burdens and you yourselves with one of your fingers do not touch the burdens.

47 Woe to you! for you build the tombs of the prophets, whereas your fathers killed them.

48 So then you are witnesses and approve the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them, and you build their tombs.

49 For this reason also the wisdom of God has said, l 'I will send them prophets and apostles; and some of them they will put to death and persecute,

50 that the blood of all the prophets that has been shed from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation,

51 from m the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, who was slain between the altar and the temple.' Yes, I say to you, it shall be required of this generation.

52 Woe to you lawyers! because you have taken away the key of knowledge; you have not entered yourselves and those who were entering you have hindered."

53 After he had said these things to them, the Pharisees and the lawyers began to press him hard and to provoke him to speak on many things, 54 setting traps for him and plotting to seize upon something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

f Jonas 3, 5.—g Matt. 5, 15; Mark 4, 21.—h 34f: Matt. 6, 22f.—i Matt. 23, 25.—j Luke 20, 46; Matt.

Ver. 36. A soul completely illuminated by the truths proposed by Jesus has no further need of a special sign to recognize truth and goodness.

Ver. 41. Worldly possessions should be used for good purposes; the hearts of the Pharisees as well as their vessels will be clean, if they use them so.

23, 6; Mark 12, 38.—k Matt. 23, 4.—l 49-51: Matt. 23, 34-36.—m Gen. 4, 8; 2 Par. 24, 20-22.

Ver. 49. The wisdom of God: i.e., God's counsels or the manifestation of His divine wisdom.

Ver. 52. The key of knowledge: i.e., the key that opens the door to knowledge.

Ver. 53. After he had said these things to them: the reading in the better Greek Manuscripts is: "And after he had departed from there."

CHAPTER 12

The Leaven of the Pharisees

NOW when immense crowds had gathered together, so that they were treading on one another, he began to say to his disciples, ⁿ "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy."

2 But there is nothing ^o concealed that will not be disclosed, and nothing hidden that will not be made known.

3 For what you have said in darkness will be said in the light; and what you have whispered in the inner chambers will be preached on the housetops.

Encouragement in Persecution

4 "But I say to you, my friends: Do not be afraid of those who kill the body, and after that have nothing more that they can do.

5 But I will show you whom you shall be afraid of; be afraid of him who, after he has killed, has power to cast into hell.

6 Yes, I say to you, be afraid of him. Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings? And yet not one of them is forgotten before God.

7 Yes, the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Therefore do not be afraid, you are of more value than many sparrows.

8 And I say to you, ^p everyone who acknowledges me before men, him will the Son of Man also acknowledge before the angels of God.

9 But whoever disowns me before men will be disowned before the angels of God.

10 And ^q everyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but to him who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven.

11 And when they bring you before the synagogues and the magistrates and the authorities, do not be anxious how or wherewith you shall defend yourselves, or what you shall say,

12 For the Holy Spirit will teach you in that very hour what you ought to say."

ⁿ Matt. 16, 6; Mark 8, 15.—^o 2-9: Matt. 10, 26-33; Mark 4, 22.—^p Mark 8, 38; 2 Tim. 2, 12.—^q

Chap. 12, Ver. 14. St. Ambrose has well said in commenting upon this passage: "He rightly refuses

A Warning against Avarice

13 Now one out of the crowd said to him, "Master, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me."

14 But he said to him, "Man, who has appointed me a judge or arbitrator over you?"

15 And he said to them, "Take heed and guard yourselves from all covetousness, for a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions."

16 But he spoke a parable to them, saying, "The land of a certain rich man brought forth abundant crops.

17 And he began to take thought within himself, saying, 'What shall I do, for I have no room to store my crops?'

18 And he said, 'I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store up all my grain and my goods.'

19 And I will say to my soul, ^r Soul, thou hast many good things laid up for many years; take thy ease, eat, drink, be merry.'

20 But God said to him, 'Thou fool, this night do they demand thy soul of thee; and the things that thou hast provided, whose will they be?'

21 So is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich as regards God."

Trust in God

22 But he said to his disciples, ^s "Therefore I say to you, do not be anxious for your life, what you shall eat; nor yet for your body, what you shall put on.

23 The life is a greater thing than the food, and the body than the clothing.

24 Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storeroom nor barn; yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than they!

25 But which of you by being anxious about it can add to his stature a single cubit?

26 Therefore if you are not able to do even a very little thing, why are you anxious concerning the rest?

Matt. 12, 31f; Mark 3, 28f.—^r Ecclus. 11, 19.—^s 22-31: Matt. 6, 25-33; Ps. 54, 23; 1 Pet. 5, 7.

to settle earthly differences who has come to reveal heavenly secrets."

27 Consider how the lilies grow; they neither toil nor spin, yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.

28 But if God so clothes the grass which flourishes in the field today but tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more you, O you of little faith!

29 And as for you, do not seek what you shall eat, or what you shall drink; and do not exalt yourselves

30 (for after all these things the nations of the world seek); but your Father knows that you need these things.

31 But seek the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be given you besides.

32 Do not be afraid, little flock, for it has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom.

33 Sell ^t what you have and give alms. Make for yourselves purses that do not grow old, a treasure unfailing in heaven, where neither thief draws near nor moth destroys.

34 For where your treasure is, there also will your heart be.

The Watchful Servants

35 "Let your loins be girt about and your lamps burning,

36 and you yourselves like men waiting for their master's return ^u from the wedding; so that when he comes and knocks they may straightway open to him.

37 Blessed are those servants whom the master, on his return, shall find watching. Amen I say to you, he will gird himself, and will make them recline at table, and will come and serve them.

38 And if he comes in the second watch, and if in the third, and finds them so, blessed are those servants!

39 But ^v of this be assured, that if the householder had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would certainly have watched, and not have let his house be broken into.

40 You also must be ready, ^w because at an hour that you do not expect, the Son of Man is coming."

^t Matt. 6, 20; 19, 21.—^u 36-38: Mark 13, 34f.—^v Matt. 24, 43.—^w Apoc. 16, 15.—^x 42-46: Matt. 24, 45-51.—^y 51-53: Matt. 10, 34f.

Ver. 49f. The image of fire refers to the purifying and cleansing power which the gospel, through the grace of the Holy Spirit, will exercise upon mankind.

41 And Peter said to him, "Lord, dost thou speak this parable for us or for all alike?"

Exhortation to Vigilance

42 And the Lord said, ^x "Who, dost thou think, is the faithful and prudent steward whom the master will set over his household to give them their ration of grain in due time?

43 Blessed is that servant whom his master, when he comes, shall find so doing.

44 Truly I say to you, he will set him over all his goods.

45 But if that servant says to himself, 'My master delays his coming,' and begins to beat the menservants and the maids, and to eat and drink, and to get drunk, 46 the master of that servant will come on a day he does not expect, and in an hour he does not know, and will cut him asunder and make him share the lot of the unfaithful.

47 But that servant who knew his master's will, and did not make ready for him and did not act according to his will, will be beaten with many stripes.

48 Whereas he who did not know it, but did things deserving of stripes, will be beaten with few. But of everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required; and of him to whom they have entrusted much, they will demand the more.

The Necessity of Struggle

49 "I have come to cast fire upon the earth, and what will I but that it be kindled?

50 But I have a baptism to be baptized with; and how distressed I am until it is accomplished!

51 Do ^y you think that I came to give peace upon the earth? No, I tell you, but division.

52 For henceforth in one house five will be divided, three against two, and two against three.

53 They will be divided, father against son and son against his father; mother against daughter and daughter against

But this power is effective only through Jesus' Passion and Death.

the mother; mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."

Time for Reconciliation

54 And he said also to the crowds, ^z "When you see a cloud rising in the west, you say at once, 'A shower is coming,' and so it comes to pass.

55 And when you see the south wind blow, you say, 'There will be a scorching heat,' and so it comes to pass.

56 You hypocrites! you know how to judge the face of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that you do not judge this time?

57 But why even of yourselves do you not judge what is right?

58 And ^awhen thou art going with thy opponent to the ruler, take pains to be quit of him on the way; lest he deliver thee to the judge, and the judge to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison.

59 I say to thee, thou wilt not come out from it until thou hast paid the very last mite."

CHAPTER 13

The Necessity of Repentance

NOW there came at that very time some who brought him word about the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And he answered and said to them, "Do you think that these Galileans were worse sinners than all the other Galileans, because they have suffered such things?

3 I tell you, no; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same manner.

4 Or those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloe fell and killed them: do you think that they were more guilty than all the other dwellers in Jerusalem?

5 I tell you, no; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same manner."

A Barren Fig Tree

6 And he spoke this parable: "A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came seeking fruit thereon, and found none.

7 And he said to the vine-dresser, 'Behold, for three years now I have come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and I find none. Cut it down, therefore; why does it still encumber the ground?'

8 But he answered him and said, 'Sir, let it alone this year too, till I dig around it and manure it.

9 Perhaps it may bear fruit; but if not, then afterwards thou shalt cut it down.' "

A Stooped Woman

10 Now he was teaching in one of their synagogues on the Sabbath.

11 And behold, there was a woman who for eighteen years had had a sickness caused by a spirit; and she was bent over and utterly unable to look upwards.

12 When Jesus saw her, he called her to him and said to her, "Woman, thou art delivered from thy infirmity."

13 And he laid his hands upon her, and instantly she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 But the ruler of the synagogue, indignant that Jesus had cured on the Sabbath, addressed the crowd, saying, "There are six days in which one ought to work; on these therefore come and be cured, and not on the Sabbath."

15 But the Lord answered him and said, "Hypocrites! does not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or ass from the manger, and lead it forth to water?

16 And this woman, daughter of Abraham as she is, whom Satan has bound, lo, for eighteen years, ought not she to be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath?"

17 And as he said these things, all his adversaries were put to shame; and the entire crowd rejoiced at all the glorious things that were done by him.

The Mustard Seed

18 He said therefore, ^b "What is the kingdom of God like, and to what shall I liken it?

19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and cast into his own garden; and it grew and became a large tree, and the birds of the air dwelt in its branches."

^z Matt. 16, 2f.—^a Matt. 5, 25.—^b 18f: Matt. 13, 31f; Mark 4, 30-32.

The Leaven

20 And again he said, ^c "To what shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and buried in three measures of flour, until all of it was leavened."

The Narrow Gate

22 And he passed on through towns and villages, teaching and making his way towards Jerusalem.

23 But someone said to him, "Lord, are only a few to be saved?"

But he said to them,

24 "Strive ^d to enter by the narrow gate; for many, I tell you, will seek to enter and will not be able.

25 But ^e when the master of the house has entered and shut the door, you will begin to stand outside and knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, open for us!' And he shall say to you in answer, 'I do not know where you are from.'

26 Then you shall begin to say, 'We ate and drank in thy presence, and thou didst teach in our streets.'

27 And he shall say to you, ^f 'I do not know where you are from. Depart from me, all you workers of iniquity.'

28 There will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth, when you shall see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, but you yourselves cast forth outside.

29 And they will come from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, and will feast in the kingdom of God.

30 And behold, there are those last who will be first, ^g and there are those first who will be last."

Jesus and Herod

31 On that same day certain Pharisees came up, saying to him, "Depart and be

^c 20f: Matt. 13, 33.—^d Matt. 7, 13.—^e Matt. 25, 10-12.—^f Ps. 6, 9; Matt. 7, 23; 25, 41.—^g Matt. 19, 30; 20, 16; Mark 10, 31.—^h 34f: Matt. 23, 37-39.

Chap. 13, Ver. 30. Many Gentiles will be called to salvation and take the place destined for the chosen people of Israel.

on thy way, for Herod wants to kill thee."

32 And he said to them, "Go and say to that fox, 'Behold, I cast out devils and perform cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I am to end my course.

33 Nevertheless, I must go my way to-day and tomorrow and the next day, for it cannot be that a prophet perish outside Jerusalem.'

34 Jerusalem, ^h Jerusalem, thou who killest the prophets, and stonest those who are sent to thee! how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathers her young under her wings, but thou wouldst not!

35 Behold, your house is left to you. And I say to you, you shall not see me until the time comes when you shall say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!' "

CHAPTER 14

A Man with Dropsy

AND it came to pass, when he entered the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees on the Sabbath to take food, that they watched him.

2 And behold, there was a certain man before him who had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus asked the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, "Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbath?"

4 But they remained silent. And he took and healed him and let him go.

5 Then addressing them, he said, "Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fall into a pit, and will not immediately draw him up on the Sabbath?"

6 And they could give him no answer to these things.

The Last Seat

7 But he also spoke a parable to those invited, observing how they were choosing the first places at table, and he said to them,

8 "When thou art invited to a wedding feast, do not recline in the first place, lest perhaps one more distinguished than thou have been invited by him,

9 and he who invited thee and him come and say to thee, 'Make room for this man'; and then thou begin with shame to take the last place.

10 But when thou art invited, go and recline in the last place; that when he who invited thee comes in, he may say to thee, i 'Friend, go up higher!' Then thou wilt be honored in the presence of all who are at table with thee.

11 For j everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, and he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Poor Guests

12 But he also said to him who had invited him, "When thou givest a dinner or a supper, do not invite thy friends, or thy brethren, or thy relatives, or thy rich neighbors, lest perhaps they also invite thee in return, and a recompense be made to thee.

13 But k when thou givest a feast, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind;

14 and blessed shalt thou be, because they have nothing to repay thee with; for thou shalt be repaid at the resurrection of the just."

Parable of a Great Supper

15 Now when one of those who were at table with him had heard this, he said to him, "Blessed is he who shall feast in the kingdom of God."

16 But he said to him, l "A certain man gave a great supper, and he invited many.

17 And he sent his servant at supper time to tell those invited to come, for everything is now ready.

18 And they all with one accord began to excuse themselves. The first said to him, 'I have bought a farm, and I must go out and see it; I pray thee hold me excused.'

19 And another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am on my way to try them; I pray thee hold me excused.'

20 And another said, 'I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.'

21 And the servant returned, and reported these things to his master. Then the master of the house was angry and said to his servant, 'Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in here the poor, and the crippled, and the blind, and the lame.'

22 And the servant said, 'Sir, thy order has been carried out, and still there is room.'

23 Then the master said to the servant, 'Go out into the highways and hedges, and make them come in, so that my house may be filled.

24 For I tell you that none of those who were invited shall taste of my supper.' "

Following of Christ

25 Now great crowds were going along with him. And he turned and said to them, 26 "If anyone comes to me m and does not hate his father and mother, and wife and children, and brothers and sisters, yes, and even his own life, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And he who does not carry his cross and follow me, n cannot be my disciple.

28 For which of you, wishing to build a tower, does not sit down first and calculate the outlays that are necessary, whether he has the means to complete it?

29 Lest, after he has laid the foundation and is not able to finish, all who behold begin to mock him,

30 saying, 'This man began to build and was not able to finish!'

31 Or what king setting out to engage in battle with another king, does not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand men to meet him who with twenty thousand is coming against him?

32 Or else, whilst the other is yet at a distance, he sends a delegation and asks the terms of peace.

33 So, therefore, every one of you who does not renounce all that he possesses, cannot be my disciple.

34 Salt is good; but if even the salt loses its strength, what shall it be seasoned with?^o i Prov. 25, 6f.—j Luke 18, 14; Matt 23, 12.—k Tob. 4, 7; Prov. 3, 9.—l 16-24; Matt. 22, 2-14.—

m Matt. 10, 37.—n Matt. 10, 38; 16, 24; Mark 8, 34.—o Matt. 5, 13; Mark 9, 49.

Chap. 14, Ver. 26. Hate: i.e., love less. Jesus does not command us to have a feeling of hatred towards our relatives, but teaches that we should pay no attention to their requests if these are detrimental to our spiritual welfare.

35 It is fit neither for the land nor for the manure heap, but must be thrown out. He who has ears to hear, let him hear."

CHAPTER 15

The Lost Sheep

NOW the publicans and sinners were drawing near to him to listen to him.

2 And the Pharisees and the Scribes murmured, saying, "This man welcomes sinners and eats with them."

3 But he spoke to them this p parable, saying,

4 "What man of you having a hundred sheep, and losing one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the desert, and go after that which is lost, until he finds it?

5 And when he has found it, he lays it upon his shoulders rejoicing.

6 And on coming home he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found my sheep that was lost.'

7 I say to you that, even so, there will be joy in heaven over one sinner who repents, more than over ninety-nine just who have no need of repentance.

The Lost Coin

8 "Or what woman, having ten drachmas, if she loses one drachma, does not light a lamp and sweep the house and search carefully until she finds it?

9 And when she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found the drachma that I had lost.'

10 Even so, I say to you, there will be joy among the angels of God over one sinner who repents."

The Prodigal Son

11 And he said, "A certain man had two sons.

12 And the younger of them said to his father, 'Father, give me the share of the property that falls to me.' And he divided his means between them.

13 And not many days later, the younger son gathered up all his wealth, and took his journey into a far country; and there he squandered his fortune in loose living.

14 And after he had spent all, there came a grievous famine over that country, and he began himself to suffer want.

15 And he went and joined one of the citizens of that country, who sent him to his farm to feed swine.

16 And he longed to fill himself with the pods that the swine were eating, but no one offered to give them to him.

17 But when he came to himself, he said, 'How many hired men in my father's house have bread in abundance, while I am perishing here with hunger!

18 I will get up and go to my father, and will say to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee.

19 I am no longer worthy to be called thy son; make me as one of thy hired men.'

20 And he arose and went to his father.

But while he was yet a long way off, his father saw him and was moved with compassion, and ran and fell upon his neck and kissed him.

21 And the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee. I am no longer worthy to be called thy son.'

22 But the father said to his servants, 'Fetch quickly the best robe and put it on him, and give him a ring for his finger and sandals for his feet;

23 and bring out the fattened calf and kill it, and let us eat and make merry;

24 because this my son was dead, and has come to life again; he was lost, and is found.' And they began to make merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field; and as he came and drew near to the house, he heard music and dancing.

26 And calling one of the servants he inquired what this meant.

27 And he said to him, 'Thy brother has come, and thy father has killed the fattened calf, because he has got him back safe.'

28 But he was angered and would not go in.

His father, therefore, came out and began to entreat him.

29 But he answered and said to his father, 'Behold, these many years I have been serving thee, and have never transgressed one of thy commands; and yet thou hast never given me a kid that I might make merry with my friends.

30 But when this thy son comes, who has devoured his means with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fattened calf.'

31 But he said to him, 'Son, thou art always with me, and all that is mine is thine;

32 but we were bound to make merry and rejoice, for this thy brother was dead, and has come to life; he was lost, and is found.' "

CHAPTER 16

The Unjust Steward

AND he said also to his disciples, "There was a certain rich man who had a steward, who was reported to him as squandering his possessions.

2 And he called him and said to him, 'What is this that I hear of thee? Make an accounting of thy stewardship, for thou canst be steward no longer.'

3 And the steward said within himself, 'What shall I do, seeing that my master is taking away the stewardship from me? To dig I am not able; to beg I am ashamed.

4 I know what I shall do, that when I am removed from my stewardship they may receive me into their houses.'

5 And he summoned each of his master's debtors and said to the first, 'How much dost thou owe my master?'

6 And he said, 'A hundred jars of oil.' He said to him, 'Take thy bond and sit down at once and write fifty.'

7 Then he said to another, 'How much dost thou owe?' He said, 'A hundred kors of wheat.' He said to him, 'Take thy bond and write eighty.'

8 And the master commended the unjust steward, in that he had acted prudently; for the children of this world, in relation to their own generation, are more prudent than the children of the light.

9 And I say to you, make friends for yourselves with the mammon of wickedness, so that when you fail they may receive you into the everlasting dwellings.

10 He who is faithful in a very little

Chap. 16, Ver. 6. A hundred jars (Hebrew baths) of oil.

Ver. 8. The unjust behavior of the steward is not commended, but the master admires his worldly wisdom in providing for his future.

thing is faithful also in much; and he who is unjust in a very little thing is unjust also in much.

11 Therefore, if in the case of the wicked mammon you have not proved faithful, who will entrust to you what is true?

12 And if in the case of what belongs to another you have not proved faithful, who will give you what is your own?

13 No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will stand by the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon."

Pretenses of the Pharisees

14 Now the Pharisees, who were fond of money, were listening to all these things, and they began to sneer at him.

15 And he said to them, "You are they who declare yourselves just in the sight of men, but God knows your heart; for that which is exalted in the sight of men is an abomination before God.

16 Until John came, there were the Law and the Prophets; since then the kingdom of God is being preached, and everyone is forcing his way into it.

17 Yet it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one tittle of the Law to fail.

18 Everyone who puts away his wife and marries another commits adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away from her husband commits adultery.

The Rich Man and Lazarus

19 "There was a certain rich man who used to clothe himself in purple and fine linen, and who feasted every day in splendid fashion.

20 And there was a certain poor man, named Lazarus, who lay at his gate, covered with sores,

21 and longing to be filled with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table;

q Matt. 6, 24.—r Matt. 11, 12f.—s Matt. 5, 32; Mark 10, 11f; 1 Cor. 7, 10.

Ver. 9. The Greek reading is, "when it shall fail." Mammon of wickedness: riches, which often lead men to sin. The disciples of Jesus during their short span of life are to use their wealth to relieve the poor and needy.

even the dogs would come and lick his sores.

22 And it came to pass that the poor man died and was borne away by the angels into Abraham's bosom; but the rich man also died and was buried in hell.

23 And lifting up his eyes, being in torments, he saw Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And he cried out and said, 'Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.'

25 But Abraham said to him, 'Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime hast received good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now here he is comforted whereas thou art tormented.'

26 And besides all that, between us and you a great gulf is fixed, so that they who wish to pass over from this side to you cannot, and they cannot cross from your side to us.'

27 And he said, 'Then, father, I beseech thee to send him to my father's house,

28 for I have five brothers, that he may testify to them, lest they too come into this place of torments.'

29 And Abraham said to him, 'They have Moses and the Prophets: let them hearken to them.'

30 But he answered, 'No, father Abraham, but if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent.'

31 But he said to him, 'If they do not hearken to Moses and the Prophets, they will not believe even if someone rises from the dead.' "

CHAPTER 17

Avoiding Scandal

AND he said to his disciples, t "It is impossible that scandals should not come; but woe to him through whom they come!

2 It were better for him if a millstone were hung about his neck and he were t Matt. 18, 7; Mark 9, 41.—u Lev. 19, 17; Eccus. 19, 13; Matt. 18, 15.—v Matt. 17, 19; Mark 11, 23.—w Lev. 13, 2-17.

Ver. 22f. The reading in the Greek is: "and the rich man also died and was buried. And in hell he raised his eyes," etc.

thrown into the sea, than that he should cause one of these little ones to sin.

Forgiveness of Injuries

3 "Take heed to yourselves. u If thy brother sin, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him.

4 And if seven times in the day he sin against thee, and seven times in the day turn back to thee, saying, 'I repent,' forgive him."

Efficacy of Faith

5 And the apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith."

6 And the Lord answered, v "If you have faith even like a mustard seed, you will say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted and be planted in the sea,' and it will obey you.

The Unprofitable Servant

7 "But which of you is there, having a servant plowing or tending sheep, who will say to him on his return from the field, 'Come at once and recline at table!'

8 But will he not say to him, 'Prepare my supper, and gird thyself and serve me till I have eaten and drunk; and afterwards thou thyself shalt eat and drink?'

9 Does he thank that servant for doing what he commanded him?

10 I do not think so. Even so you also, when you have done everything that was commanded you, say, 'We are unprofitable servants; we have done what it was our duty to do.' "

Ten Lepers

11 And it came to pass as he was going to Jerusalem, that he was passing between Samaria and Galilee.

12 And as he was entering a certain village, there met him ten lepers, who stood afar off

13 and lifted up their voice, crying, "Jesus, master, have pity on us."

14 And when he saw them he said, w "Go, show yourselves to the priests."

And it came to pass as they were on their way, that they were made clean.

15 But one of them, seeing that he was made clean, returned, with a loud voice glorifying God, 16 and he fell on his face at his feet, giving thanks; and he was a Samaritan.

17 But Jesus answered and said, "Were not the ten made clean? But where are the nine?"

18 Has no one been found to return and give glory to God except this foreigner?"

19 And he said to him, "Arise, go thy way, for thy faith has saved thee."

Coming of the Kingdom of God

20 And on being asked by the Pharisees, "When is the kingdom of God coming?" he answered and said to them, "The kingdom of God comes unawares.

21 Neither will they say, 'Behold, here it is,' or 'Behold, there it is.' For behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

22 But he said to the disciples, "The days will come when you will long to see one day of the Son of Man, and will not see it.

23 And x they will say to you, 'Behold, here he is; behold, there he is.' Do not go, nor follow after them.

24 For as the lightning when it lightens flashes from one end of the sky to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day.

25 But first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation.

26 And as it came to pass in the days of Noe, y even so will it be in the days of the Son of Man.

27 They were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day when Noe entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all.

28 Or as it came to pass in the days of Lot: they were eating and drinking, they were buying and selling, they were planting and building;

29 but z on the day that Lot went out from Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all.

x Matt. 24, 23; Mark 13, 21.—y Gen. 7, 7; Matt. 24, 37.—z Gen. 19, 15-24.—a Luke 9, 24; Matt. 10, 39; Mark 8, 35; John 12, 25.—b Matt. 24, 40f; 1

30 In the same wise will it be on the day that the Son of Man is revealed.

31 In that hour let him who is on the housetop and his goods in the house, not go down to take them away; and likewise let him who is in the field not turn back.

32 Remember Lot's wife.

33 Whoever a tries to save his life will lose it; and whoever loses it will preserve it.

34 I say to you, on that night there will be b two on one bed; one will be taken, and the other will be left.

35 Two women will be grinding together; one will be taken, and the other will be left. Two men will be in the field; one will be taken, and the other will be left."

36 And they answered and said to him, "Where, Lord?"

37 He said to them, "Wherever the body is, there will the eagles be gathered together."

CHAPTER 18

The Godless Judge

AND he also told them c a parable—that they must always pray and not lose heart—

2 saying, "There was a judge in a certain town who did not fear God and did not respect man.

3 Now there was a certain widow in that town, and she kept coming to him, saying, 'Do me justice against my adversary.'

4 And he would not for a long time. But afterwards he said within himself, 'Although I do not fear God, nor even respect man,

5 yet because this widow bothers me, I will do her justice, lest by her continual coming she finally wear me out.' "

6 And the Lord said, "Hear what the unjust judge says;

7 and will not God avenge his elect, who cry to him day and night? And will he be slow to act in their case?"

Thess. 4, 15.—c Luke 11, 5-8; Eccus. 18, 22; 1 Thess. 5, 17.

Ver. 35. Two men . . . will be left: not found in the better Greek Manuscripts. It doubtless comes from Matt. 24, 40.

Chap. 17, Ver. 21. Within you: i.e., in the midst of you and within your power to reach through faith, justice and love. It has already begun and the Pharisees might recognize it if they had eyes to see and ears to hear. The Messiah is already reigning.

8 I tell you that he will avenge them quickly. Yet when the Son of Man comes, will he find, do you think, faith on the earth?"

The Pharisee and the Publican

9 But he spoke this parable also to some who trusted in themselves as being just and despised others.

10 "Two men went up to the temple to pray, the one a Pharisee and the other a publican.

11 The Pharisee stood and began to pray thus within himself: 'O God, I thank thee that I am not like the rest of men, robbers, dishonest, adulterers, or even like this publican.

12 I fast twice a week; I pay tithes of all that I possess.'

13 But the publican, standing afar off, would not so much as lift up his eyes to heaven, but kept striking his breast, saying, 'O God, be merciful to me the sinner!'

14 I tell you, this man went back to his home justified rather than the other; ^d for everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, and he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Jesus Blesses the Children

15 Now ^e they were bringing the babes also to him that he might touch them; but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

16 But Jesus called them together and said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for of such is the kingdom of God.

17 Amen I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God as a little child will not enter into it."

The Danger of Riches

18 And ^f a certain ruler asked him, saying, "Good Master, what shall I do to gain eternal life?"

19 But Jesus said to him, "Why dost thou call me good? No one is good but only God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments: ^g Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Honor thy father and mother."

21 And he said, "All these I have kept ever since I was a child."

22 But when Jesus heard this, he said to him, "One thing is still lacking to thee; sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me."

23 When he heard these things, he was much grieved, for he was very rich.

24 But Jesus, seeing him become sad, said, "With what difficulty will they who have riches enter the kingdom of God!

25 For it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

26 And they who heard it said, "Who then can be saved?"

27 He said to them, "Things that are impossible with men are possible with God."

28 And Peter said, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee."

29 And he said to them, "Amen I say to you, there is no one who has left house, or parents, or brothers, or wife, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God,

30 who shall not receive much more in the present time, and in the age to come life everlasting."

The Third Prediction of the Passion

31 But Jesus taking to himself the Twelve said to them, ^h "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all things that have been written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man will be accomplished.

32 For he will be delivered to the Gentiles, and will be mocked and scourged and spit upon;

33 and after they have scourged him, they will put him to death; and on the third day he will rise again."

34 And they understood none of these things and this saying was hidden from them, neither did they get to know the things that were being said.

^d Luke 14, 11; Matt. 23, 12.—^e 15-17: Matt. 19, 13-15; Mark 10, 13-16.—^f 18-30: Luke 10, 25-28;

Matt. 19, 16-29; Mark 10, 17-30.—^g Ex. 20, 12-16.—^h 31-34: Matt. 20, 17-19; Mark 10, 32-34.

VI

A Blind Man at Jericho

35 Now it came to pass ⁱ as he drew near to Jericho, that a certain blind man was sitting by the wayside, begging;

36 but hearing a crowd passing by, he inquired what this might be.

37 And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

38 And he cried out, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

39 And they who went in front angrily tried to silence him. But he cried out all the louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!"

40 Then Jesus stopped and commanded that he should be brought to him. And when he drew near, he asked him,

41 saying, "What wouldst thou have me do for thee?" And he said, "Lord, that I may see."

42 And Jesus said to him, "Receive thy sight, thy faith has saved thee."

43 And at once he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God. And all the people upon seeing it gave praise to God.

CHAPTER 19

Zacchæus the Publican

AND he entered and was passing through Jericho.

2 And behold there was a man named Zacchæus; and he was a leading publican, and he was rich.

3 And he was trying to see Jesus, who he was, but could not, on account of the crowd, because he was small of stature.

4 So he ran on ahead and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him, for he was going to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up and saw him, and said to him, "Zacchæus, make haste and come down; for I must stay in thy house today."

6 And he made haste and came down, and welcomed him joyfully.

7 And upon seeing it all began to murmur, saying, "He has gone to be the guest of a man who is a sinner."

8 But Zacchæus stood and said to the Lord, "Behold, Lord, I give one-half of my possessions to the poor, and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I restore it fourfold."

9 Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, since he, too, is a son of Abraham."

10 For ⁱ the Son of Man came to seek and to save what was lost."

Parable of the Gold Pieces

11 Now as they were listening to these things, he went on to speak a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately.

12 He said therefore, ^k "A certain nobleman went into a far country to obtain for himself a kingdom and then return."

13 And having summoned ten of his servants, he gave them ten gold pieces and said to them, "Trade till I come."

14 But his citizens hated him; and they sent a delegation after him to say, 'We do not wish this man to be king over us.'

15 And it came to pass when he had returned, after receiving the kingdom, that he ordered the servants to whom he had given the money to be called to him in order that he might learn how much each one had made by trading.

16 And the first came, saying, 'Lord, thy gold piece has earned ten gold pieces.'

17 And he said to him, 'Well done, good servant; because thou hast been faithful in a very little, thou shalt have authority over ten towns.'

18 Then the second came, saying, 'Lord, thy gold piece has made five gold pieces.'

19 And he said to him, 'Be thou also over five towns.'

20 And another came, saying, 'Lord, behold thy gold piece, which I have kept laid up in a napkin; ⁱ 35-43: Matt. 20, 29-34; Mark 10, 46-52.—^j Matt. 18, 11.—^k Matt. 25, 14.

Chap. 19, Ver. 11-27. Not only the crowds but also the disciples thought Jesus would immediately establish in Jerusalem the temporal messianic kingdom and proclaim His royalty publicly. Through this parable Jesus intimated that considerable time would elapse before the establishment of the glorious phase of His kingdom. In the meantime His disciples should work for Him, and thus prepare for the judgment.

Ver. 16. Gold piece: literally mna. (approximately $32.00.)

21 for I feared thee, because thou art a stern man. Thou takest up what thou didst not lay down, and thou reapest what thou didst not sow.'

22 He said to him, 'Out of thy own mouth I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I am a stern man, taking up what I did not lay down and reaping what I did not sow.'

23 Why, then, didst thou not put my money in a bank, so that I on my return might have gotten it with interest?'

24 And he said to the bystanders, 'Take away the gold piece from him, and give it to him who has the ten gold pieces.'

25 But they said to him, 'Lord, he has ten gold pieces.'

26 I say to you ^lthat to everyone who has shall be given; but from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away.

27 But as for these my enemies, who did not want me to be king over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence."

28 And when he had said these things, he went ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

29 And it came to pass, ^mwhen he drew near to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mountain called Olivet, that he sent two of his disciples, 30 saying, "Go into the village opposite; on entering it you will find a colt of an ass tied, upon which no man ever yet sat; loose it and bring it.

31 And if anyone ask you, 'Why are you loosing it?' you shall answer him thus, 'Because the Lord has need of it.'"

32 And they who were sent went away and found the colt standing, even as he had told them.

33 And as they were loosing the colt, its owners said to them, "Why are you loosing the colt?"

34 And they replied, "Because the Lord has need of it."

35 And they brought it to Jesus, and throwing their cloaks over the colt they set Jesus on it.

36 And as he went, they kept spreading their cloaks upon the road.

37 And when he was drawing near, being by now at the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole company of the disciples began to rejoice and to praise God with a loud voice for all the miracles that they had seen,

38 saying, "Blessed is he who comes as king, in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest!"

39 And some of the Pharisees from the crowds said to him, "Master, rebuke thy disciples."

40 He said to them, "I tell you that if these keep silence, the stones will cry out."

41 And when he drew near and saw the city, ⁿhe wept over it, saying,

42 "If thou hadst known, in this thy day, even thou, the things that are for thy peace! But now they are hidden from thy eyes.

43 For days will come upon thee when thy enemies will throw up a rampart about thee, and surround thee and shut thee in on every side, 44 and will dash thee to the ground and thy children within thee, ^oand will not leave in thee one stone upon another, because thou hast not known the time of thy visitation."

Cleansing of the Temple

45 And ^phe entered the temple, and began to cast out those who were selling and buying in it,

46 saying to them, "It is written, ^q*My house is a house of prayer*, but you have made it a den of thieves."

47 And he was teaching daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the Scribes and the leading men of the people sought to destroy him;

48 but they found nothing that they could do to him, for all the people hung upon his words.

^l Luke 8, 18; Matt. 13, 12; 25, 29; Mark 4, 25.—
^m 29-38: Matt. 21, 1-9; Mark 11, 1-10; John 12, 12-15.—ⁿ 41-44: Luke 13, 34f; 23, 28-31.—^o Luke

21, 6; Matt. 24, 2; Mark 13, 2.—^p 45f: Matt. 21, 12f; Mark 11, 15-17; John 2, 14-16.—^q Isa. 56, 7;
Jer. 7, 11.

CHAPTER 20

The Authority of Jesus

AND ^r it came to pass on one of the days, as he was teaching the people in the temple and preaching the gospel, that the chief priests and Scribes together with the elders came up

2 and spoke to him, saying, "Tell us, by what authority dost thou do these things? Or who is it that gave thee this authority?"

3 But he answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question. Answer me:

4 was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men?"

5 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?'"

6 But if we say, 'From men,' all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a prophet."

7 And they answered that they did not know whence it was.

8 Then Jesus said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

Parable of the Vine-dressers

9 But he began to speak to the people this parable: ^s "A man planted a vineyard, and let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad for a long time.

10 And at the proper time he sent a servant to the vine-dressers, that they might give him part of the fruit of the vineyard; but they beat him and sent him away empty-handed.

11 And he sent yet a second servant; but him also they beat, and treated shamefully and sent away empty-handed.

12 And he sent yet a third; but him also they wounded and cast out.

13 But the owner of the vineyard said, 'What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps when they see him, they will respect him.'

14 But the vine-dressers, on seeing him, argued with one another, saying, 'This is the heir; let us kill him, that the inheritance may become ours.'

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard and killed him. What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do to them?

16 He will come and destroy those vine-dressers, and will give the vineyard to others."

Upon hearing this, they said to him, "By no means."

17 But he looked on them and said, "What then is this that is written, ^t The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone?

18 Everyone who falls upon that stone will be broken to pieces; but upon whom-ever it falls, it will grind him to powder."

19 And the chief priests and the Scribes sought to lay hands on him that very hour, but they feared the people; for they knew that he had aimed this parable at them.

Tribute to Cæsar

20 So watching their ^u opportunity, they sent forth spies, who should pretend to be just men, that they might trap him in his talk and deliver him up to the ruling power and to the authority of the procurator.

21 And they asked him, saying, "Master, we know that thou speakest and teachest rightly, and showest no favor to any, but teachest the way of God in truth.

22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Cæsar, or not?"

23 But knowing their craftiness, he said to them, "Why do you test me?"

24 Show me a denarius. Whose image and inscription does it bear?" Answering they said, "Cæsar's."

25 And he said to them, ^v "Render, therefore, to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's."

26 And they could not take hold of what he said before the people; and marvelling at his answer, they kept silence.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

27 Now there came to him certain of the Sadducees, who say that there is no resurrection, and they questioned him,

28 saying, "Master, Moses has written

^r 1-8: Matt. 21, 23-27; Mark 11, 27-33.—^s 9-19: Matt. 21, 33-46; Mark 12, 1-12; Isa. 5, 1; Jer. 2, 21.

—^t Ps. 117, 22; Isa. 28, 16.—^u 20-38: Matt. 22, 15-32; Mark 12, 13-27.—^v Rom. 13, 7.

for us: w 'If a man's brother die, having a wife, and he be childless, his brother shall take the widow and raise up issue to his brother.'

29 Now there were seven brothers. And the first took a wife and died childless.

30 And the next took her and he also died childless.

31 Then the third took her; and in like manner all seven, and they died without leaving children.

32 Last of all the woman also died.

33 At the resurrection, therefore, of which of them will she be wife? For the seven had her as wife."

34 And Jesus said to them, "The children of this world marry and are given in marriage.

35 But those who shall be accounted worthy of that world and of the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor take wives.

36 For neither shall they be able to die any more, for they are equal to the angels, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection.

37 But that the dead rise, even Moses showed in the passage about the Bush, x when he calls the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

38 Now he is not the God of the dead, but of the living, for all live to him."

39 And certain of the Scribes answered and said, "Master, thou hast said well."

40 And they did not dare to question him any further.

The Son of David

41 But he said to them, y "How do they say that the Christ is the Son of David?

42 For David himself says in the Book of Psalms, The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, 43 till I make thy enemies thy footstool.

44 David therefore calls him 'Lord'; how, then, is he his son?"

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees

45 And in the hearing of all the people he said z to his disciples,

46 "Beware of the Scribes, who like to walk about in long robes, and love greetings in the market place, and front seats in the synagogues and first places at suppers;

47 who devour the houses of the widows, making pretense of long prayers. These shall receive a heavier sentence."

CHAPTER 21

The Widow's Mite

BUT a looking up he saw the rich who were putting their gifts into the treasury.

2 And he saw also a certain poor widow putting in two mites.

3 And he said, "Truly I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all.

4 For all these out of their abundance have put in as gifts to God; but she out of her want has put in all that she had to live on."

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World

5 And as some were saying of the temple that it was adorned with beautiful stones and offerings, he said,

6 "As for these things that you behold, b the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another that will not be thrown down."

7 And they asked him, saying, "Master, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign when these things will begin to come to pass?"

8 And he said, "Take care not to be led astray. For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am he,' and, 'The time is at hand.' Do not, therefore, go after them.

9 But when you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; these things must first come to pass, but the end will not be at once."

10 Then he said to them, "Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom;

w Deut. 25, 5.—x Ex. 3, 6, 15f.—y 41-44: Ps. 109, 1; Matt. 22, 41-45; Mark 12, 35-37.—z 45-47: Luke 11, 43; Matt. 23, 1-12; Mark 12, 38-40.—a

1-4; Mark 12, 41-44.—b 5-36: Matt. 24, 1-51; Mark 13, 1-37; Luke 19, 43f.

11 and there will be great earthquakes in various places, and pestilences and famines, and there will be terrors and great signs from heaven.

12 But before all these things they will arrest ^c you and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues and prisons, dragging you before kings and governors for my name's sake.

13 It shall lead to your bearing witness.

14 Resolve therefore in your hearts not to meditate beforehand how you are to make your defense.

15 For I myself will give you utterance and wisdom, which all your adversaries will not be able to resist or gainsay.

16 But you will be delivered up by your parents and brothers and relatives and friends; and some of you they will put to death.

17 And you will be hated by all for my name's sake;

18 yet not a hair of your head shall perish.

19 By your patience you will win your souls.

Destruction of Jerusalem

20 "And ^d when you see Jerusalem being surrounded by an army, then know that her desolation is at hand.

21 Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let those who are in her midst go out, and let those who are in the country not enter her.

22 For these are days of vengeance, that all things that are written may be fulfilled.

23 But woe to those who are with child, or have infants at the breast in those days! For there will be great distress over the land, and wrath upon this people.

24 And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led away as captives to all the nations. And Jerusalem will be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the times of the nations be fulfilled.

The Signs of the Last Day

25 "And there will be signs ^e in the sun and moon and stars, and upon the earth distress of nations bewildered by the roaring of sea and waves;

26 men fainting for fear and for expectation of the things that are coming on the world; for the powers of heaven will be shaken.

27 And then they will see the Son of Man coming upon a cloud with great power and majesty.

28 But when these things begin to come to pass, look up, and lift up your heads, / because your redemption is at hand."

Jerusalem's Impending Destruction

29 And he spoke to them a parable. "Behold the fig tree, and all the trees.

30 When they now put forth their buds, you know that summer is near.

31 Even so, when you see these things coming to pass, know that the kingdom of God is near.

32 Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all things have been accomplished.

33 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness

34 "But take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be overburdened with self-indulgence and drunkenness and the cares of this life, and that day come upon you suddenly

35 as a snare. For come it will upon all who dwell on the face of all the earth.

36 Watch, then, praying at all times, that you may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that are to be, and to stand before the Son of Man."

37 Now in the daytime he was teaching in the temple; but as for the nights, he would go out and pass them on the mountain called Olivet.

38 And all the people came to him early in the morning in the temple, to hear him.

^c 12-19: Luke 12, 11f; Matt. 10, 17-22.—^d Dan. 9, 27.—^e Isa. 13, 10; Ezech. 32, 7; Joel 3, 15.—^f Rom. 8, 23.

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. THE LAST SUPPER

CHAPTER 22

The Council and the Betrayal

NOW ^g the feast of the Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was drawing near;

2 and the chief priests and the Scribes were seeking how they might put him to death, for they feared the people.

3 But Satan ^h entered into Judas, surnamed Iscariot, one of the Twelve.

4 And he went away and discussed with the chief priests and the captains, how he might betray him to them.

5 And they were glad, and agreed to give him money.

6 He accordingly promised, and sought out an opportunity to betray him without a disturbance.

Preparation

7 Now ⁱ the day of the Unleavened Bread came, on which the passover had to be sacrificed.

8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare for us the passover that we may eat it."

9 But they said, "Where dost thou want us to prepare it?"

10 And he said to them, "Behold, on your entering the city, there will meet you a man carrying a pitcher of water; follow him into the house into which he goes.

11 And you shall say to the master of the house, 'The Master says to thee, "Where is the guest chamber, that I may eat the passover there with my disciples?"'

12 And he will show you a large upper room furnished; there make ready."

13 And they went, and found just as he had told them; and they prepared the passover.

^g 1f: Matt. 26, 2-5; Mark 14, 1f.—^h 3-6; Matt. 26, 14-16; Mark 14, 10f.—ⁱ 7-13: Matt. 26, 17-19; Mark 14, 12-16.—^j 19f: Matt. 26, 26-28; Mark 14, 22-24; 1 Cor. 11, 23-25.—^k 21-23: Matt. 26, 21-

Chap. 22, Ver. 16-18. Jesus twice asserts that this is His last Passover with them on earth, and points out that it will have its perfect fulfillment in the Church triumphant in heaven.

Ver. 20. In regard to the words of the consecration of the cup, Matthew and Mark follow one formula,

The Holy Eucharist

14 And when the hour had come, he reclined at table, and the twelve apostles with him.

15 And he said to them, "I have greatly desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer;

16 for I say to you that I will eat of it no more, until it has been fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

17 And having taken a cup, he gave thanks and said, "Take this and share it among you;

18 for I say to you that I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God comes."

19 And ^j having taken bread, he gave thanks and broke, and gave it to them, saying, "This is my body, which is being given for you; do this in remembrance of me."

20 In like manner he took also the cup after the supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which shall be shed for you.

The Betrayer

21 "But behold, ^k the hand of him who betrays me is with me on the table.

22 For the Son of Man indeed goes his way, ^l as it has been determined; yet woe to that man by whom he will be betrayed."

23 And they began to inquire among themselves which of them it might be that was about to do this.

Contention among the Apostles

24 Now there arose also a dispute among them, which of them was reputed to be the greatest.

25 But he said to them, ^m "The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them, and they who exercise authority over them are called Benefactors.

24; Mark 14, 18-21; John 13, 21-26.—^l Ps. 40, 9.—^m 25-27: Matt. 18, 1-4; 20, 25-28; Mark 10, 42-45.

whereas Luke and Paul follow another. The meaning, however, is substantially the same. Which shall be shed for you: in the Vulgate, whereas the present, "Which is being shed for you," is found in the Greek.

26 But not so with you. On the contrary, let him who is greatest among you become as the youngest, and him who is the chief as the servant.

27 For which is the greater, he who reclines at table, or he who serves? Is it not he who reclines? But I am in your midst as he who serves.

28 But you are they who have continued with me in my trials.

29 And I appoint to you a kingdom, even as my Father has appointed to me,

30 that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom; and you shall sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

Peter's Denials Predicted

31 And the Lord said, "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan has desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat.

32 But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith may not fail; and do thou, when once thou hast turned again, strengthen thy brethren."

33 But he said to him, "Lord, with thee I am ready to go both to prison and to death!"

34 But he said, ⁿ "I tell thee, Peter, a cock will not crow this day, until thou hast denied three times that thou knowest me."

And he said to them,

35 "When ^o I sent you forth without purse or wallet or sandals, did you lack anything?"

36 And they said, "Nothing." Then he said to them, "But now, let him who has a purse take it, and likewise a wallet; and let him who has no sword sell his tunic and buy one.

37 For I say to you that this which is written must yet be fulfilled in me, ^p And he was reckoned among the wicked. For that which concerns me is at its end."

38 And they said, "Lord, behold, here are two swords." And he said to them, "Enough."

ⁿ Matt. 26, 33-35; Mark 14, 29-31.—^o Matt. 10, 9.—^p Isa. 53, 12.—^q Matt. 26, 36; Mark 14, 32; John 18, 1.—^r Matt. 26, 39; Mark 14, 35.—^s 47-53: Matt. 26, 47-56; Mark 14, 43-50; John 18, 3-11.

Ver. 32. Just as Jesus prays for Peter and thus strengthens him in his faith, so Peter is to strengthen all the Apostles and faithful. Cf. Matt. 16, 16; John 21, 15-17.

Ver. 36. The Apostles must be prepared through spiritual weapons to meet all sorts of dangers, trials and hardships.

2. THE PASSION AND DEATH OF JESUS

The Agony in the Garden

39 And he came out ^q and went, according to his custom, to the Mount of Olives, and the disciples also followed him.

40 But when he was at the place, he said to them, "Pray, that you may not enter into temptation."

41 And ^r he himself withdrew from them about a stone's throw, and kneeling down, he began to pray,

42 saying, "Father, if thou art willing, remove this cup from me; yet not my will but thine be done."

43 And there appeared to him an angel from heaven to strengthen him. And falling into an agony he prayed the more earnestly.

44 And his sweat became as drops of blood running down upon the ground.

45 And rising from prayer he came to the disciples, and found them sleeping for sorrow.

46 And he said to them, "Why do you sleep? Rise and pray, that you may not enter into temptation."

Jesus Arrested

47 And ^s while he was yet speaking, behold, a crowd came; and he who was called Judas, one of the Twelve, was going before them, and he drew near to Jesus to kiss him.

48 But Jesus said to him, "Judas, dost thou betray the Son of Man with a kiss?"

49 But when they who were about him saw what would follow, they said to him, "Lord, shall we strike with the sword?"

50 And one of them struck the servant of the high priest and cut off his right ear.

51 But Jesus answered and said, "Bear with them thus far." And he touched his ear and healed him.

52 But Jesus said to the chief priests and captains of the temple and elders, who had come against him, "As against a robber have you come out, with swords and clubs.

53 When I was daily with you in the temple, you did not stretch forth your hands against me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness."

Peter's Denial

54 Now t having seized him, they led him away to the high priest's house; but Peter was following at a distance.

55 And u when they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard, and were seated together, Peter was in their midst.

56 But a certain maidservant saw him sitting at the blaze, and after gazing upon him she said, "This man too was with him."

57 But he denied him, saying, "Woman, I do not know him."

58 And after a little while someone else saw him and said, "Thou, too, art one of them." But Peter said, "Man, I am not."

59 And about an hour later another insisted, saying, "Surely this man, too, was with him, for he also is a Galilean."

60 But Peter said, "Man, I do not know what thou sayest." And at that moment, while he was yet speaking, a cock crowed.

61 And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, v "Before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times."

62 And Peter went out and wept bitterly.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin

63 And the men who had him in custody began to mock him and beat him. w

64 And they blindfolded him, and kept striking his face and asking him, saying, "Prophecy, who is it that struck thee?"

65 And many other things they kept saying against him, reviling him.

66 And x as soon as day broke, the elders of the people and the chief priests and Scribes gathered together; and they led him away into their Sanhedrin, saying, "If thou art the Christ, tell us." y

67 And he said to them, "If I tell you, you will not believe me;

68 and if I question you, you will not answer me, or let me go.

69 But henceforth, the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God."

t Matt. 26, 57; Mark 14, 53; John 18, 24.—u 55-62: Matt. 26, 69-75; Mark 14, 66-72; John 18, 16-18; 25-27.—v Matt. 26, 34; Mark 14, 30; John 13, 38.—w 63f: Matt. 26, 67f; Mark 14, 65.—x 66-

70 And they all said, "Art thou, then, the Son of God?" He answered, "You yourselves say that I am."

71 And they said, "What further need have we of witness? For we have heard it ourselves from his own mouth."

CHAPTER 23

Jesus before Pilate

AND the whole assemblage rose, and took him before Pilate.

2 And they began to accuse him, saying, "We have found this man perverting our nation, z and forbidding the payment of taxes to Cæsar, and saying that he is Christ a king."

3 So Pilate zz asked him, saying, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" And he answered him and said, "Thou sayest it."

4 And Pilate said to the chief priests and to the crowds, "I find no guilt in this man."

5 But they persisted, saying, "He is stirring up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, and beginning from Galilee even to this place."

6 But Pilate, hearing Galilee, asked whether the man was a Galilean.

7 And learning that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him back to Herod, who likewise was in Jerusalem in those days.

Jesus before Herod

8 Now when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceedingly glad; for he had been a long time desirous to see him, because he had heard so much about him, and he was hoping to see some miracle done by him.

9 Now he put many questions to him, but he made him no answer.

10 Now the chief priests and Scribes were standing by, vehemently accusing him.

11 But Herod, with his soldiery, treated him with contempt and mocked him, arraying him in a bright robe, and sent him back to Pilate.

71: Matt. 26, 63-66; Mark 14, 61-64; John 18, 19-21.—y Matt. 27, 1; Mark 15, 1; John 18, 28.—z Matt. 22, 21; Mark 12, 17.—zz Matt. 27, 11; Mark 15, 2; John 18, 33.

12 And Herod and Pilate became friends that very day; whereas previously they had been at enmity with each other.

Jesus Again before Pilate

13 And Pilate called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people,

14 and said to them, a "You have brought before me this man, as one who perverts the people; and behold, I upon examining him in your presence have found no guilt in this man as touching those things of which you accuse him.

15 Neither has Herod; for I sent you back to him, and behold, nothing deserving of death has been committed by him.

16 I will therefore chastise him and release him."

17 Now at festival time it was necessary for him to release to them one prisoner.

18 But the whole mob cried out together, saying, b "Away with this man, and release to us Barabbas!"—

19 one who had been thrown into prison for a certain riot that had occurred in the city, and for murder.

20 But Pilate spoke to them again, wishing to release Jesus.

21 But they kept shouting, saying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!"

22 And he said to them a third time, "Why, what evil has this man done? I find no crime deserving of death in him. I will therefore chastise him and release him."

23 But they persisted with loud cries, demanding that he should be crucified; and their cries prevailed.

24 And Pilate pronounced sentence that what they asked for should be done.

25 So he released to them him who for murder and riot had been put in prison, for whom they were asking; but Jesus he delivered to their will.

The Way of the Cross

26 And c as they led him away, they laid hold of a certain Simon of Cyrene, coming from the country, and upon him they laid the cross to bear it after Jesus.

27 Now there was following him a great crowd of the people, and of women, who were bewailing and lamenting him.

28 But Jesus turning to them said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children.

29 For behold, days are coming in which men will say, 'Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and breasts that never nursed.'

30 Then they will begin to say to the mountains, d 'Fall upon us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us!'

31 For if in the case of green wood they do these things, what is to happen in the case of the dry?"

32 Now there were also two other malefactors led to execution with him.

The Crucifixion

33 And e when they came to the place called the Skull, they crucified him there, and the robbers, one on his right hand and the other on his left.

34 And Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing." Now in dividing his garments, they cast lots.

35 And the people stood looking on; and the rulers with them kept sneering at him, saying, "He saved others, let him save himself, if he is the Christ, the chosen one of God."

36 And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him and offering him common wine,

37 and saying, "If thou art the King of the Jews, save thyself!"

38 And there was also an inscription written over him in Greek and Latin and Hebrew letters, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 Now one of those robbers who were hanged was abusing him, saying, "If thou art the Christ, save thyself and us!"

40 But the other in answer rebuked him and said, "Dost not even thou fear God, seeing that thou art under the same sentence?"

41 And we indeed justly, for we are receiving what our deeds deserved; but this man has done nothing wrong."

a John 18, 38; 19, 4.—b 18-25; Matt. 27, 16-26; Mark 15, 7-15; John 18, 40.—c Matt. 27, 32; Mark 15, 21.—d Isa. 2, 19; Os. 10, 8; Apoc. 6, 16.—e Matt. 27, 33; Mark 15, 22; John 19, 17.

Chap. 23, Ver 15. The better Greek and some Vulgate Manuscripts have, "for he sent him back to us."

42 And he said to Jesus, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

43 And Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to thee, this day thou shalt be with me in paradise."

The Death of Jesus

44 It was now about the sixth hour, and there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

45 And the sun was darkened, and the curtain of the temple was torn in the middle.

46 And Jesus cried out with a loud voice and said, t "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." And having said this, he expired.

47 Now when the centurion saw what had happened, he glorified God, saying, "Truly this was a just man."

48 And all the crowd that collected for the sight, when they beheld what things had happened, began to return beating their breasts.

49 But all his acquaintances, and the women who had followed him from Galilee, were standing at a distance looking on.

The Burial

50 And behold, g there was a man named Joseph, a councillor, a good and just man—

51 he had not been party to their plan of action—of Arimathea, a town of Judea, who was himself looking for the kingdom of God.

52 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus.

53 And he took him down, and wrapped him in a linen cloth, and laid him in a rock-hewn tomb where no one had ever yet been laid.

54 And it was Preparation Day, and the Sabbath was drawing on.

55 And the women who had come with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the tomb, and how his body was laid.

56 And they went back and prepared

i Ps. 30, 6.—g 50-56: Matt. 27, 57-61; Mark 15, 42-47; John 19, 38-42.—h 1-10: Matt. 28, 1-8;

Ver. 43. Paradise: i.e., the abode of the just souls under the old dispensation, who were waiting in limbo for the coming of the Messiah to lead them to heaven.

spices and ointments. And on the Sabbath they rested, in accordance with the commandment.

3. THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS

CHAPTER 24

The Women at the Grave

BUT h on the first day of the week at early dawn, they came to the tomb, taking the spices that they had prepared,

2 and they found the stone rolled back from the tomb.

3 But on entering, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus.

4 And it came to pass, while they were wondering what to make of this, that, behold, two men stood by them in dazzling raiment.

5 And when the women were struck with fear and bowed their faces to the ground, they said to them, "Why do you seek the living one among the dead?"

6 He is not here, but has risen. Remember how he spoke to you while he was yet in Galilee,

7 saying that i the Son of Man must be betrayed into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise."

8 And they remembered his words.

9 And having returned from the tomb, they reported all these things to the Eleven, and to all the rest.

10 Now, it was Mary Magdalene and Joanna and Mary, the mother of James, and the other women who were with them, who were telling these things to the apostles.

11 But this tale seemed to them to be nonsense, and they did not believe the women.

12 But Peter arose and ran to the tomb; and stooping down, he saw the linen cloths laid there; and he went away wondering to himself at what had come to pass.

Emmaus

13 And behold, j two of them were going that very day to a village named Em-

Mark 16, 1-8; John 20, 1.—i Luke 9, 22; Matt. 16, 21; 17, 21f; Mark 9, 30.—j Mark 16, 12f.

Chap. 24, Ver. 13. Sixty stadia: about seven miles from Jerusalem. The Codex Sinaiticus (fourth century) and a small number of Greek and Latin Manuscripts have "one hundred and sixty stadia."

maus, which is sixty stadia from Jerusalem.

14 And they were talking to each other about all these things that had happened.

15 And it came to pass, while they were conversing and arguing together, that Jesus himself also drew near and went along with them;

16 but their eyes were held, that they should not recognize him.

17 And he said to them, "What words are these that you are exchanging as you walk and are sad?"

18 But one of them, named Cleophas, answered and said to him, "Art thou the only stranger in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?"

19 And he said to them, "What things?"

And they said to him, "Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, mighty in work and word before God and all the people;

20 and how our chief priests and rulers delivered him up to be sentenced to death, and crucified him.

21 But we were hoping that it was he who should redeem Israel. Yes, and besides all this, today is the third day since these things came to pass.

22 And moreover, certain women of our company, who were at the tomb before it was light, astounded us, 23 and not finding his body, they came, saying that they had also seen a vision of angels, who said that he is alive.

24 So some of our company went to the tomb, and found it even as the women had said, but him they did not see."

25 But he said to them, "O foolish ones and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken!

26 Did not the Christ have to suffer these things before entering into his glory?"

27 And beginning then with Moses and with all the Prophets, he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things referring to himself.

28 And they drew near to the village to which they were going, and he acted as though he were going on.

29 And they urged him, saying, "Stay with us, for it is getting towards evening, and the day is now far spent." And he went in with them.

30 And it came to pass when he reclined at table with them, that he took the bread and blessed and broke and began handing it to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight.

32 And they said to each other, "Was not our heart burning within us while he was speaking on the road and explaining to us the Scriptures?"

33 And rising up that very hour, they returned to Jerusalem, where they found the Eleven gathered together and those who were with them,

34 saying, "The Lord has risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon."

35 And they themselves began to relate what had happened on the journey, and how they recognized him in the breaking of the bread.

Jesus Appears to the Eleven

36 Now k while they were talking of these things, Jesus stood in their midst, and said to them, "Peace to you! It is I. do not be afraid."

37 But they were startled and panic-stricken, and thought that they saw a spirit.

38 And he said to them, "Why are you disturbed, and why do doubts arise in your hearts?"

39 See my hands and feet, that it is I myself. Feel me and see; for a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have."

40 And having said this, he showed them his hands and his feet.

41 But as they still disbelieved and marvelled for joy, he said, "Have you anything here to eat?"

42 And they offered him a piece of broiled fish and a honeycomb.

43 And when he had eaten in their presence, he took what remained and gave it to them.

The Last Instructions of Jesus

44 And he said to them, "These are the words which I spoke to you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulk Mark 16, 14; John 20, 19.

ST. JOHN

filled that are written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning me."

45 Then he opened their minds, that they might understand the Scriptures.

46 And he said to them, ¹"Thus it is written; and thus the Christ should suffer, and should rise again from the dead on the third day;

47 and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name to all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem.

48 And ^myou yourselves are witnesses of these things.

49 And ⁿI send forth upon you the promise of my Father. But wait here in the city, until you are clothed with power from on high."

4. THE ASCENSION OF JESUS

50 Now he led them out ^otowards Bethany, and he lifted up his hands and blessed them.

51 And it came to pass as he blessed them, that he parted from them and was carried up into heaven.

52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy.

53 And they were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

¹ Ps. 18, 6.—^m Acts 1, 8. 22.—ⁿ John 14, 26.—^o Mark 16, 19; Acts 1, 4-14.

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ according to SAINT JOHN

ST. JOHN, "the disciple whom Jesus loved," was the last to write his Gospel. He was a young man when first called to the apostolate and lived to an advanced old age. At Ephesus, where he lived till about the year 100 A.D., he wrote the Gospel at the request of the Elders.

John and James were the sons of Zebedee, of the town of Bethsaida. They were fishermen by trade. They had attached themselves as disciples to John the Baptist, and from him learned that Jesus was the Messiah. They were among the first whom Jesus invited to follow Him, and later were called to be with Him permanently. They were among the chosen Twelve. With Peter, they were permitted to share some of the more hidden experiences of their Master.

John was particularly intimate with Jesus, as his title of "beloved disciple" and his position at the Last Supper clearly show. To him our Lord entrusted the care of the Blessed Virgin. We do not wonder, therefore, that he was able to reach such spiritual heights in his Gospel, or that tradition has assigned to him the symbol of the eagle.

The purpose of the Gospel is stated in 20, 31: "... that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in his name." To establish this truth, the evangelist recounts certain of our Lord's miracles, and the teachings which were associated with them. He assumes that his readers know the Synoptic Gospels, and in some points completes their narrative. But all other possible motives of the Gospel are subordinate to his main theme, which he unfolds with convincing force.

Prologue
CHAPTER 1

The Word in Himself

IN THE beginning a was the Word, and the Word was with God; and the Word was God.

2 He was in the beginning with God.

3 All things were b made through him, and without him was made nothing that has been made.

4 In him was life, c and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light shines in the darkness; and the darkness d grasped it not.

The Word's Mission

6 There was a man, e one sent from God, whose name was John.

7 This man came as a witness, to bear witness concerning the light, that all might believe through him.

8 He was not himself the light, but was to bear witness to the light.

9 It was the true light that enlightens every man who comes into the world.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made through him, and the world knew him not.

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

12 But to as many as received him he gave the power of becoming sons f of God; to those who believe in his name:

13 Who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of g God.

The Word Incarnate

14 And the Word h was made flesh, and dwelt among us. And we saw his glory—

a 1ff: Prov. 8, 22-30; Gen. 1, 1; Apoc. 19, 13; 1 John 1, 1f.—b 1 Cor. 8, 6.—c John 5, 26.—d John 3, 19.—e 6f: Matt. 3, 1.—f Gal. 3, 26.—g John 3, 5f.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. In this prologue to his Gospel, St. John indicates that he is about to give an exposition of the divine nature and mission of Jesus. To represent His eternal existence with the Father, St. John employs the term Word. It is so used only by St. John [1, 1, 14; 1 John 1, 1; Apoc. 19, 13], and designates the Son as a kind of intellectual emanation from the Father (St. Thomas). He enjoys the divine nature and yet is distinct from the Father. It was this eternal divine Person who became man in order to reveal God to us, and to accomplish our redemption.

Ver. 5. Light is God's revelation and grace; Darkness is man's sinful nature. Shines: i.e., is always in the world, in both the past and the present. Grasped: this may refer to man's failure to appreciate the light. Cf. John 1, 10. The Greek term can convey the idea of the darkness not restraining the light.

glory as of the only-begotten of the Father—full of grace and of truth.

15 John bore i witness concerning him, and cried, "This was he of whom I said, 'He who is to come after me has been set above me, because he was before me.'"

16 And of his fullness we have all received, grace for grace.

17 For the Law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.

18 No one has at any time seen God. The only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he has revealed him.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

The Witness of John the Baptist

19 And this is the witness of John, when the Jews sent to him from Jerusalem priests and Levites to ask him, "Who art thou?"

20 And he acknowledged and did not deny; and he acknowledged, "I am not the Christ."

21 And they asked him, "What then? Art thou Elias?" And he said, "I am not." "Art thou the Prophet?" And he answered, "No."

22 They therefore said to him, "Who art thou? that we may give an answer to those who sent us. What hast thou to say of thyself?"

23 He said, i I am the voice of one crying in the desert, "Make straight the way of the Lord," as said Isaias the prophet.

—h 1 John 1, 1ff.—i John 1, 19-34; 3, 22-30.—j Isa. 40, 3; Matt. 3, 3.

Ver. 14. Dwelt: the Greek term has the meaning "he pitched his tent among us." Grace: the fullness of the supernatural life. Truth: the fullness of divine wisdom and knowledge. Grace and Truth are often used in the Old Testament as qualities of the divine nature, and have the meaning of "loving-kindness" and "fidelity." Here they modify "glory."

Ver. 16. Grace for grace: a continuous flow of graces from Christ to man, with implication of increasing abundance.

Ver. 20. This denial is essential to the nature of the Baptist's testimony. The negative and positive statement of it is a Semitic manner of emphasis.

Ver. 21. Elias . . . Prophet: the expected Messiah was known as "the Prophet," from Deut. 18, 18. Elias was generally looked for as His precursor.

24 And they who had been sent were from among the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said to him, "Why, then, dost thou baptize, if thou art not the Christ, nor Elias, nor the Prophet?"

26 John said to them in answer, ^k "I baptize with water; but in the midst of you there has stood one whom you do not know.

27 He it is who is to come after me, who has been set above me, the strap of whose sandal I am not worthy to loose."

28 These things took place at Bethany, beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 The next day John saw Jesus coming to him, and he said, "Behold, the lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!

30 This is he of whom I said, 'After me there comes one who has been set above me, because he was before me.'

31 And I did not know him. But that he may be known to Israel, for this reason have I come baptizing with water."

32 And John bore witness, saying, ^l "I beheld the Spirit descending as a dove from heaven, and it abode upon him.

33 And I did not know him. But he who sent me to baptize with water said to me, 'He upon whom thou wilt see the Spirit descending, and abiding upon him, he it is who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.'

34 And I have seen and have borne witness that this is the Son of God."

The First Disciples

35 Again the next day John was standing there, and two of his disciples.

36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked by, he said, "Behold the lamb of God!"

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 But Jesus turned round, and seeing them following him, said to them, "What is it you seek?" They said to him, "Rabbi (which interpreted means Master), where dwellest thou?"

39 He said to them, "Come and see." They came and saw where he was staying; and they stayed with him that day. It was about the tenth hour.

40 Now Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, was one of the two who had heard John and had followed him.

41 He found first his brother Simon and said to him, "We have found the Messiah ^m (which interpreted is Christ)."

42 And he led him to Jesus. But Jesus, looking upon him, said, ⁿ "Thou art Simon, the son of John; thou shalt be called Cephas (which interpreted is Peter)."

43 The next day he was about to leave for Galilee, and he found Philip. And Jesus said to him, "Follow me."

44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the town of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip found Nathanael, and said to him, "We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and the Prophets wrote, Jesus the son of Joseph of Nazareth."

46 And Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see."

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and said of him, "Behold a true Israelite in whom there is no guile!"

48 Nathanael said to him, "Whence knowest thou me?" Jesus answered and said to him, "Before Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee."

49 Nathanael answered him and said, ^o "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art King of Israel."

50 Answering, Jesus said to him, "Because I said to thee that I saw thee under the fig tree, thou dost believe. Greater things than these shalt thou see."

51 And he said to him, "Amen, amen, I say to you, you shall see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

^k Luke 3, 16.—^l Matt. 3, 16.—^m John 4, 25; Ps. 2, 2.—ⁿ Matt. 16, 18.—^o John 6, 70; 11, 27.

Ver. 24. The Pharisees may have constituted another group than John's first questioners.

Ver. 28. Bethany: note that this was "beyond the Jordan," and is not to be confused with Bethany near Jerusalem, the home of Martha and Mary.

Ver. 37. Two disciples: from v. 40 we know that one of these was Andrew. The other was John the Evangelist, who thus generally hides his identity throughout the Gospel.

Ver. 41. The Messiah: in Greek Christos means "the Anointed One." It was under this name that the expected Redeemer was known from the prophecies in Isa. 61, 1; Dan. 9, 21.

Ver. 42. Cephas: in Aramaic this name means "rock," in Greek Petros. For the significance of this change of name cf. Matt. 4, 18; 16, 18.

CHAPTER 2

The Marriage Feast at Cana

AND on the third day a marriage took place at Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.

2 Now Jesus too was invited to the marriage, and also his disciples.

3 And the wine having run short, the mother of Jesus said to him, "They have no wine."

4 And Jesus said to her, "What wouldst thou have me do, woman? My hour has not yet come."

5 His mother said to the attendants, "Do whatever he tells you."

6 Now six stone water-jars were placed there, after the Jewish manner of purification, each holding two or three measures.

7 Jesus said to them, "Fill the jars with water." And they filled them to the brim.

8 And Jesus said to them, "Draw out now, and take to the chief steward." And they took it to him.

9 Now when the chief steward had tasted the water after it had become wine, not knowing whence it was (though the attendants who had drawn the water knew), the chief steward called the bridegroom,

10 and said to him, "Every man at first sets forth the good wine, and when they have drunk freely, then that which is poorer. But thou hast kept the good wine until now."

11 This first of his signs Jesus worked at Cana of Galilee: and he manifested his glory, and his disciples believed in him.

12 After this p he went down to Capernaum, he and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples. And they stayed there but a few days.

p John 7, 3, 10; Matt. 12, 46.—q 13-25: Matt. 21, 12-17; Mark 11, 15-19; Luke 19, 45-48.—r Ps. 68, 10.—s Matt. 26, 61.—t John 14, 26.—u Matt. 9, 4.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. The third day: probably from the call of Nathanael. Cana: probably in Lower Galilee, some five miles north and east of Nazareth.

Ver. 4. What wouldst thou have me do: literally, "What to me and to thee," is an expression which can vary in meaning with its context, and with the speaker's tone of voice. It occurs several times in the Old and New Testaments, practically always implying dissent. Though there may be some disagreement in it even here, the circumstances show that it was not a rebuke. Woman: an honorable address in the language spoken by our Lord. My hour: could be said of any critical period in one's life. Here it is used of the opening of Christ's public ministry, or of that ministry as a whole.

Cleansing of the Temple

13 Now q the Passover of the Jews was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

14 And he found in the temple men selling oxen, sheep and doves, and money-changers at their tables.

15 And making a kind of whip of cords, he drove them all out of the temple, also the sheep and oxen, and he poured out the money of the changers and overturned the tables.

16 And to them who were selling the doves he said, "Take these things away, and do not make the house of my Father a house of business."

17 And his disciples remembered that it is written, r The zeal for thy house has eaten me up.

18 The Jews therefore answered and said to him, "What sign dost thou show us, seeing that thou dost these things?"

19 In answer Jesus said to them, s "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

20 The Jews therefore said, "Forty-six years has this temple been in building, and wilt thou raise it up in three days?"

21 But he was speaking of the temple of his body.

22 When, accordingly, he had risen from the dead, t his disciples remembered that he had said this, and they believed the Scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

23 Now when he was at Jerusalem for the feast of the Passover, many believed in his name, seeing the signs that he was working.

24 But Jesus did not trust himself to them, in that he knew all men,

25 and because u he had no need that anyone should bear witness concerning man, for he himself knew what was in man.

Ver. 11. Signs: St. John speaks always of Christ's miracles as "signs" or "works." We retain the term "sign," but it is to be understood in the same sense as "miracle" in the Synoptic Gospels.

Ver. 18. The Jews: here, as generally in the Gospel of St. John, are the officials of Judaism. They held authority in such matters as are here described, and they asked a sign of Christ in justification of His apparent usurpation of that authority.

Ver. 23-25. The faith of those attracted to Christ was imperfect, and He knew it. Hence He did not reveal Himself to them (Chrysostom), or admit them to a more intimate understanding of His teaching and Person. The conversation with Nicodemus grows out of this situation.

CHAPTER 3

Nicodemus

NOW ^vthere was a certain man among the Pharisees, Nicodemus by name, a ruler of the Jews.

2 This man came to Jesus at night, and said to him, "Rabbi, we know that thou hast come a teacher from God, for no one can work these signs that thou workest unless God be with him."

3 Jesus answered and said to him, ^w"Amen, amen, I say to thee, unless a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

4 Nicodemus said to him, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born again?"

5 Jesus answered, "Amen, amen, I say to thee, unless a man be born again of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

7 Do not wonder that I said to thee, 'You must be born again.'

8 The wind blows where it will, and thou hearest its sound but dost not know where it comes from or where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit."

9 Nicodemus answered and said to him, "How can these things be?"

10 Answering him, Jesus said, "Thou art a teacher in Israel and dost not know these things?

11 Amen, amen, I say to thee, we speak of what we know, and we bear witness to what we have seen; and our witness you do not receive.

12 If I have spoken of earthly things to you, and you do not believe, how will ^v John 7, 50; 19, 39.—^w John 1, 13; 1 Pet. 1, 23.—^x Num. 21, 9.—^y 1 John 4, 9; Rom. 5, 8.—^z Matt. 4, 12; 14, 3.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Ruler: i.e., a leader in the community; perhaps also a member of the Sanhedrin. Cf. John 7, 50f.

Ver. 5. The word "Holy" is added to Spirit in the Clementine Vulgate.

Ver. 8. This brief parable indicates to Nicodemus that there are mysteries even in familiar natural forces. Hence he need not be surprised if the truths of the supernatural order appear mysterious.

Ver. 13. Who is in heaven: these words are wanting in the best Greek codices. The thought is in accord you believe if I speak to you of heavenly things?

13 And no one has ascended into heaven except him who has descended from heaven: the Son of Man who is in heaven.

14 And ^xas Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up,

15 that those who believe in him may not perish, but may have life everlasting."

16 For ^yGod so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, that those who believe in him may not perish, but may have life everlasting.

17 For God did not send his Son into the world in order to judge the world, but that the world might be saved through him.

18 He who believes in him is not judged; but he who does not believe is already judged, because he does not believe in the name of the only-begotten Son of God.

19 Now this is the judgment: The light has come into the world, yet men have loved the darkness rather than the light, for their works were evil.

20 For everyone who does evil hates the light, and does not come to the light, that his deeds may not be exposed.

21 But he who does the truth comes to the light that his deeds may be made manifest, for they have been performed in God.

The Witness of John the Baptist

22 After these things Jesus and his disciples came into the land of Judea, and he stayed there with them and baptized.

23 Now John was also baptizing in Aenon, near Salim, for there was much water there. And the people came and were baptized.

24 For ^zJohn had not yet been put into prison.

25 Now there arose a discussion about purification between some of John's disciples and the Jews.

with John 1, 18: Christ's Incarnation did not remove Him from the presence of the Father.

Ver. 16-21. These verses most probably contain the reflections of the evangelist.

Ver. 17. To judge: here in the sense of "to punish."

Ver. 23. Aenon: located in the Jordan valley, some eight miles south of Scythopolis.

Ver. 25. . . . and the Jews: the Greek text prefers "with a Jew." St. Augustine says that the Jews by preferring Christ's baptism to that of John angered the latter's disciples.

26 And they came to John and said to him, "Rabbi, he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, to whom thou hast borne witness, behold he baptizes and all are coming to him."

27 John answered and said, "No one can receive anything unless it is given to him from heaven.

28 You yourselves bear me witness ^a that I said, 'I am not the Christ but have been sent before him.'

29 He who has the bride is the bridegroom; but the friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices exceedingly at the voice of the bridegroom. This my joy, therefore, is made full.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease."

31 He who comes from above is over all. He who is from the earth belongs to earth, and of the earth he speaks. He who comes from heaven is over all.

32 And he bears witness to that which he has seen and heard, and his witness no one receives.

33 He who receives his witness has set his seal on this, that God is true.

34 For he whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for not by measure does God give the Spirit.

35 The Father loves the Son, and has given all things into his hands.

36 He who believes in the Son has everlasting life; he who is unbelieving towards the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God rests upon him.

CHAPTER 4

The Samaritan Woman

WHEN, therefore, Jesus knew that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John—

2 although Jesus himself did not baptize, but his disciples—

3 he left Judea and went again into Galilee.

4 Now he had to pass through Samaria.

5 He came, ^b accordingly, to a town of Samaria called Sichar, near the field that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, wearied as he was from the journey, was sitting at the well. It was about the sixth hour.

7 There came a Samaritan woman to draw water.

Jesus said to her, "Give me to drink";

8 for his disciples had gone away into the town to buy food.

9 The Samaritan woman therefore said to him, "How is it that thou, although thou art a Jew, ^c dost ask drink of me, who am a Samaritan woman?" For Jews do not associate with Samaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said to her, "If thou didst know the gift of God, and who it is who says to thee, 'Give me to drink,' thou, perhaps, wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water."

11 The woman said to him, "Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Whence then hast thou living water?"

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob who gave us the well, and drank from it, himself, and his sons, and his flocks?"

13 In answer Jesus said to her, "Everyone who drinks of this water will thirst again. He, however, who drinks of the water that I will give him shall never thirst;

14 but the water that I will give him shall become in him a fountain of water, springing up unto life everlasting."

15 The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water that I may not thirst, or come here to draw."

16 Jesus said to her, "Go, call thy husband and come here."

17 The woman answered and said, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "Thou hast said well, 'I have no husband,'

18 for thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband. In this thou hast spoken truly."

19 The woman said to him, "Sir, I see that thou art a prophet.

20 Our fathers worshipped on this mountain, ^d but you say that at Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship."

21 Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe

^a John 1, 20. 23. 27.—^b Gen. 48, 22; Jos. 24, 32.—^c Eccles. 50, 27f; Matt. 10, 5.—^d Deut. 12, 5.

Ver. 31-36. These verses most probably contain the reflections of the evangelist.

Chap. 4, Ver. 4f. The ordinary route from Judea to Galilee passed through Samaria. Sichar: probably the present Askar, about one mile east of Sichem. Cf. Gen. 33, 19; 48, 22.

me, the hour is coming when neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem will you worship the Father.

22 You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews.

23 But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth. For the Father also seeks such to worship him.

24 God is spirit, and they who worship him must worship in spirit and in truth."

25 The woman said to him, "I know that Messiah is coming (who is called Christ), and when he comes he will tell us all things."

26 Jesus said to her, "I who speak with thee am he."

27 And at this point his disciples came; and they wondered that he was speaking with a woman. Yet no one said, "What dost thou seek?" or, "Why dost thou speak with her?"

28 The woman therefore left her water-jar and went away into the town, and said to the people,

29 "Come and see a man who has told me all that I have ever done. Can he be the Christ?"

30 They went forth from the town and came to meet him.

31 Meanwhile, his disciples besought him, saying, "Rabbi, eat."

32 But he said to them, "I have food to eat of which you do not know."

33 The disciples therefore said to one another, "Has someone brought him something to eat?"

34 Jesus said to them, "My food is to do the will of him who sent me, to accomplish his work.

35 Do you not say, 'There are yet four months, and then comes the harvest'? Well, I say to you, lift up your eyes and behold that the fields are already white for the harvest.

36 And he who reaps receives a wage,

^e Matt. 4, 12.—^f Matt. 13, 57.—^g John 2, 1-9.

Ver. 23. In spirit and in truth: not merely with the external observances of Jews and Samaritans, but internally and according to God's will. Such to worship him: God desires as His worshippers those who have this internal disposition.

Ver. 25. Messias: the Samaritans also expected the Anointed One, who is here given the name as proper to Him.

and gathers fruit unto life everlasting, so that the sower and the reaper may rejoice together.

37 For herein is the proverb true, 'One sows, another reaps.'

38 I have sent you to reap that on which you have not labored. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labors."

39 Now many of the Samaritans of that town believed in him because of the word of the woman who bore witness, "He told me all that I have ever done."

40 When, therefore, the Samaritans had come to him, they besought him to stay there; and he stayed two days.

41 And far more believed because of his word.

42 And they said to the woman, "We no longer believe because of what thou hast said, for we have heard for ourselves and we know that this is in truth the Savior of the world."

43 Now ^e after two days he departed from that place and went into Galilee, 44 for ^f Jesus himself bore witness that a prophet receives no honor in his own country.

45 When, therefore, he had come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all that he had done in Jerusalem during the feast, for they also had gone to the feast.

The Official's Son

46 He came again, therefore, to Cana of Galilee, ^g where he had made the water wine. And there was a certain royal official whose son was lying sick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea into Galilee, he went to him and besought him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.

48 Jesus therefore said to him, "Unless you see signs and wonders, you do not believe."

49 The royal official said to him, "Sir, come down before my child dies."

Ver. 27. The Jewish doctors of the Law would seldom speak to women, even to their wives, in public.

Ver. 36-38. Under this agricultural figure Christ illustrates the whole plan of His mission. The sowers were God's earlier messengers, as Moses and the prophets. The one who sows for this harvest is Christ. The reapers are the Apostles. In this spiritual harvest both sowers and reapers will rejoice together.

50 Jesus said to him, "Go thy way, thy son lives."

The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and departed.

51 But even as he was now going down, his servants met him and brought word saying that his son lived.

52 He asked of them therefore the hour in which he had got better. And they told him, "Yesterday, at the seventh hour, the fever left him."

53 The father knew then that it was at that very hour in which Jesus had said to him, "Thy son lives." And he himself believed, and his whole household.

54 This was a second sign that Jesus worked when coming from Judea into Galilee.

II

CHAPTER 5*

The Cure at the Pool of Bethsaida

AFTER this there was a feast ^h of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem, by the Sheepgate, a pool called in Hebrew Bethsaida, having five porticoes.

3 In these were lying a great multitude of the sick, blind, lame, and those with shrivelled limbs, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel of the Lord used to come down at certain times into the pool, and the water was troubled. And the first to go down into the pool after the troubling of the water was cured of whatever infirmity he had.

5 Now a certain man was there who had been thirty-eight years under his infirmity.

6 When Jesus saw him lying there, and knew that he had been in this state a long time, he said to him, "Dost thou want to get well?"

7 The sick man answered him, "Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred; for while I am coming, another steps down before me."

8 Jesus said to him, ⁱ "Rise, take up thy pallet and walk."

9 And at once the man was cured. And he took up his pallet and began to walk. Now that day was a Sabbath.

10 The Jews therefore said to him who had been healed, "It is the Sabbath; thou art not allowed to take up thy pallet."

11 He answered them, "He who made me well said to me, 'Take up thy pallet and walk.'"

12 They asked him then, "Who is the man who said to thee, 'Take up thy pallet and walk'?"

13 But the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had quietly gone away, since there was a crowd in the place.

14 Afterwards Jesus found him in the temple, and said to him, "Behold, thou art cured. Sin no more, lest something worse befall thee."

15 The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had healed him.

16 And ^j this is why the Jews kept persecuting Jesus, because he did such things on the Sabbath.

17 Jesus, however, answered them, "My Father works even until now, and I work."

18 This, then, is why the Jews were the more anxious to put him to death; ^k because he not only broke the Sabbath, but also called God his own Father, making himself equal to God.

Christ's Claim to Divinity

19 In answer therefore Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of himself, but only what he sees the Father doing. For whatever he does, this the Son also does in like manner.

20 For the Father loves the Son, and shows him all that he himself does. And ^h John 6, 4.—ⁱ Matt. 9, 6.—^j John 7, 23; 9, 16.—^k John 7, 1, 30; 10, 33.

* Some authors hold that originally the order of these chapters was 4, 6, 5, 7. The main reason for this opinion is that the scene of 4 and 6 is Galilee; while that of 5 and 7 is Judea. The Manuscript evidence supports the existing order.

Chap. 5, Ver. 1. A feast of the Jews: some Greek Manuscripts read "the feast," i.e., probably the Passover. For the significance of this verse in determining the duration of Christ's public ministry, cf. Commentary.

Ver. 3b-4 are wanting from many Greek Manuscripts. The wording varies even in the codices of the Vulgate. Still the text was known in the second century, and is otherwise well attested. It seems supposed in v. 7.

greater works than these he will show him, that you may wonder.

21 For ^las the Father raises the dead and gives them life, even so the Son also gives life to whom he will.

22 For neither does the Father judge any man, but all judgment he has given to the Son, 23 that all men may honor the Son even as they honor the Father. He who does not honor the Son, does not honor the Father who sent him.

24 Amen, amen, I say to you, he who hears my word, and believes him who sent me, has life everlasting, and does not come to judgment, but has passed from death to life.

25 Amen, amen, I say to you, the hour is coming, and now is here, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear shall live.

26 For as the Father has life in himself, even so he has given to the Son also to have life in himself;

27 and he has granted him power to render judgment, because he is Son of Man.

28 Do not wonder at this, for the hour is coming in which all who are in the tombs shall hear the voice of the Son of God.

29 And they who have done good shall come forth unto resurrection of life; but they who have done evil unto resurrection of judgment.

30 Of myself I can do nothing. As I hear, I judge, and my judgment is just because I seek not my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

Justification of Christ's Claims

31 "If I bear witness concerning myself, my witness is not true.

32 There is another who bears witness concerning me, and I know that the witness that he bears concerning me is true.

33 You have sent to John, and he has borne witness ^m to the truth.

34 I however do not receive the witness of man, but I say these things that you may be saved.

35 He was the lamp, burning and shining; and you desired to rejoice for a while in his light.

36 The witness, however, that I have is greater than that of John. For the works which the Father has given me to accomplish, these very works that I do, bear witness to me, that the Father has sent me.

37 And the Father himself, who has sent me, has borne witness ⁿ to me. But you have never heard his voice, or seen his face.

38 And you have not his word abiding in you, since you do not believe him whom he has sent.

39 You search the Scriptures, because in them you think that you have life everlasting. And it is they that bear witness to me, 40 yet you are not willing to come to me that you may have life.

41 I do not receive glory from men.

42 But I know that you have not the love of God in you.

43 I have come in the name of my Father, and you do not receive me. If another come in his own name, him you will receive.

44 How can you believe who receive glory from one another, ^o and do not seek the glory which is from the only God?

45 Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father. There is one who accuses you, Moses, in whom you hope.

46 For if you believed Moses you would believe me also, ^p for he wrote of me.

47 But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?"

CHAPTER 6

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

AFTER ^qthis Jesus went away to the other side of the sea of Galilee, which is that of Tiberias.

2 And there followed him a great crowd, because they witnessed the signs he worked on those who were sick.

3 Jesus therefore went up the mountain, and sat there with his disciples.

4 Now the Passover, the feast ^r of the Jews, was near.

^l 1 Kgs. 2, 6; Wisd. 16, 13f.—^m John 1, 19ff.
—ⁿ Deut. 4, 12, 15.—^o John 12, 43.—^p John 1, 45;

Luke 24, 44.—^q 1-15: Matt. 14, 13-21; Mark 6, 31-44; Luke 9, 10-17.—^r John 2, 13; 11, 55; 5, 1.

5 When, therefore, Jesus had lifted up his eyes and seen that a very great crowd had come to him, he said to Philip, "Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?"

6 But he said this to try him, for he himself knew what he would do.

7 Philip answered him, "Two hundred denarii worth of bread is not enough for them, that each one may receive a little."

8 One of his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, said to him,

9 "There is a young boy here who has five barley loaves and two fishes; but what are these among so many?"

10 Jesus then said, "Make the people recline."

Now there was much grass in the place.

The men therefore reclined, in number about five thousand.

11 Jesus then took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, distributed them to those reclining; and likewise the fishes, as much as they wished.

12 But when they were filled, he said to his disciples, "Gather the fragments that are left over, lest they be wasted."

13 They therefore gathered them up; and they filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves left over by those who had eaten.

14 When the people, therefore, had seen the sign which Jesus had worked, they said, "This is indeed the Prophet who is to come into the world."

15 So when Jesus perceived that they would come to take him by force and make him king,^s he fled again to the mountain, himself alone.

Jesus Walks on the Water

16 Now when evening had come, his disciples went down to the sea.

17 And getting into a boat, they went across the sea towards Capharnaum. And it was already dark, but Jesus had not come to them.

18 Now the sea was rising, because a strong wind was blowing.

19 But after they had rowed some twenty-five or thirty stadia, they beheld Jesus walking upon the sea, and drawing near to the boat; and they were frightened.

20 But he said to them, "It is I, do not be afraid."

21 They desired therefore to take him into the boat; and immediately the boat was at the land towards which they were going.

The Discourse on the Eucharist

22 The next day, the crowd which had remained on the other side of the sea observed that there had been but one boat at that place, and that Jesus had not gone into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had departed alone.

23 But other boats from Tiberias came near the place where they had eaten the bread, when the Lord gave thanks.

24 When therefore the crowd perceived that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they themselves got into the boats and came to Capharnaum, seeking Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, "Rabbi, when didst thou come here?"

26 Jesus answered them and said, "Amen, amen, I say to you, you seek me, not because you have seen signs, but because you have eaten of the loaves and have been filled.

27 Do not labor for the food that perishes, but for that which endures unto life everlasting, which the Son of Man will give you. For upon him the Father, God himself, has set his seal."

28 They said therefore to him, "What are we to do that we may perform the works of God?"

29 In answer Jesus said to them, "This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent."

30 They said therefore to him, "What sign, then, dost thou, that we may see and believe thee? What work dost thou perform?"

31 Our fathers ate the manna in the desert, even as it is written, ^t*Bread from heaven he gave them to eat.*"

32 Jesus then said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, Moses did not give you the bread from heaven, but my Father gives you the true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is that which comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

^s John 12, 12ff; 18, 36.—^t Ex. 16, 15f; Ps. 77, 25f; 1 Cor. 10, 3.

34 They said therefore to him, "Lord, give us always this bread."

35 But Jesus said to them, ^u "I am the bread of life. He who comes to me shall not hunger, and he who believes in me shall never thirst.

36 But I have told you that you have seen me and you do not believe.

37 All that the Father gives to me shall come to me, and him who comes to me I will not cast out.

38 For I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

39 Now this is the will of him who sent me, ^v the Father, that I should lose nothing of what he has given me, but that I should raise it up on the last day.

40 For this is the will of my Father who sent me, that whoever beholds the Son, and believes in him, shall have everlasting life, and I will raise him up on the last day."

41 The Jews therefore murmured about him because he had said, "I am the bread that has come down from heaven."

42 And they kept saying, "Is this not Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How, then, does he say, 'I have come down from heaven'?"

43 In answer therefore Jesus said to them, "Do not murmur among yourselves.

44 No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draw him, and I will raise him up on the last day.

45 It is written in the Prophets, ^w And they all shall be taught of God. Everyone who has listened to the Father, and has learned, comes to me;

46 not that anyone has seen the Father except him who is from God, he has seen the Father.

47 Amen, amen, I say to you, he who believes in me has life everlasting.

48 I am the bread of life.

49 Your fathers ate the manna in the desert, and have died.

50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that if anyone eat of it he will not die.

51 I am the living bread that has come down from heaven.

52 If anyone eat of this bread he shall live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh for the life of the world."

53 The Jews on that account argued with one another, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?"

54 Jesus therefore said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you.

55 He who eats my flesh and drinks my blood has life everlasting and I will raise him up on the last day.

56 For my flesh is food indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

57 He who eats my flesh, and drinks my blood, abides in me and I in him.

58 As the living Father has sent me, and as I live because of the Father, so he who eats me, he also shall live because of me.

59 This is the bread that has come down from heaven; not as your fathers ate the manna, and died. He who eats this bread shall live forever."

60 These things he said when teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum.

61 Many of his disciples therefore, when they heard this, said, "This is a hard saying. Who can listen to it?"

62 But Jesus, knowing in himself that his disciples were murmuring at this, said to them, "Does this scandalize you?"

63 What then if you should see the Son of Man ascending where he was before?

64 It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh profits nothing. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life.

65 But there are some among you who do not believe." For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were who did not believe, and who it was who should betray ^x him.

66 And he said, "This is why I have said to you, 'No one can come to me unless he is enabled to do so by my Father.'"

67 From this time many of his disciples turned back and no longer went about with him.

68 Jesus therefore said to the Twelve, "Do you also wish to go away?"

69 Simon Peter therefore answered,

^u John 6, 41, 48f. 51; 4, 14; 7, 37.—^v John 6, 40. 44. 55; 11, 24.—^w Isa. 54, 13; Jer. 31, 33f. —^x John 13, 11.

^y "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast words of everlasting life, 70 and we have come to believe and to know that thou art the Christ, the Son of God."

71 Jesus answered them, ^z "Have I not chosen you, the Twelve? Yet one of you is a devil."

72 Now he was speaking of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon; for he it was, though one of the Twelve, who would betray him.

III

CHAPTER 7

Jesus Goes Secretly to the Feast of Tabernacles

NOW after these things ^a Jesus went about in Galilee, for he did not wish to go about in Judea because the Jews were seeking to put him to death.

2 Now the ^b Jewish feast of Tabernacles was at hand.

3 His brethren therefore said to him, "Leave here and go into Judea that thy disciples also may see the works that thou dost;

4 for no one does a thing in secret if he wants to be publicly known. If thou dost these things, manifest thyself to the world."

5 For not even his brethren believed in him.

6 Jesus therefore said to them, "My time has not yet come, but your time is always at hand.

7 The world ^c cannot hate you, but it hates me because I bear witness concerning it, that its works are evil.

8 As for you, go up to the feast, but I do not go up to this feast, for my time is not yet fulfilled."

9 When he had said these things he stayed on in Galilee.

10 But as soon as his brethren had gone up to the feast, then he also went up, not publicly, but as it were privately.

11 The Jews therefore were looking for him at the feast, and were saying, "Where is he?"

12 And there was much whispered comment among the crowd concerning him. For some were saying, "He is a good man." But others were saying, "No, rather he seduces the crowd."

13 Yet for fear of the Jews ^d no one spoke openly of him.

14 When, however, the feast was already half over, Jesus went up into the temple and began to teach.

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, "How does this man come by learning, since he has not studied?"

The Source of Christ's Teachings

16 Jesus answered them and said, "My teaching is not my own, but his who sent me.

17 If anyone desires to do his will, he will know of the teaching whether it is from God, or whether I speak on my own authority.

18 He who speaks on his own authority seeks his own glory. But he who seeks the glory of the one who sent him is truthful, and there is no injustice in him.

19 Did not Moses give you the Law, and none of you observes the Law?

20 Why ^e do you seek to put me to death?" The crowd answered and said, "Thou hast a devil. Who seeks to put thee to death?"

21 Jesus answered and said to them, "One work I did and you all wonder.

22 For this reason Moses gave you the circumcision"—not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers—"and on a Sabbath you circumcise a man.

^y 69f: John 11, 27; Matt. 16, 16.—^z John 13, 18; 15, 16.—^a John 5, 18; 8, 37. 40.—^b Lev. 23, 34.—

^c John 15, 18; 3, 19.—^d John 9, 22; 12, 42; 19, 38.—^e John 8, 48, 52; 10, 20.

Chap. 6, Ver. 70. The Son of God: many Greek Manuscripts read: "the Holy One of God." Matt. 16, 16 may have influenced the Latin here. The title in the Greek text is messianic, and in this sense also we should take the reading of the Vulgate.

Chap. 7, Ver. 14. The feast of Tabernacles lasted eight days. This appearance of Christ in the temple would then be on the 4th or 5th day.

Ver. 15. They knew that Jesus had not been enrolled as a disciple of one of the great rabbis, and they could not imagine where else He could attain such knowledge as was manifest in His preaching.

Ver. 21. One work: the cure of the sick man at the pool of Bethesda. Cf. John 5, 1-18.

Ver. 22. Circumcision was established as a sign of the covenant made with Abraham. Moses, however, provided the laws which governed it. When the recipient was a Jew, the Jews interpreted these laws as permitting circumcision, and all things necessary thereto, on the Sabbath.

23 If f a man receives circumcision on a Sabbath, that the Law of Moses may not be broken, are you indignant with me because I made a whole man well on a Sabbath?

24 Judge not by appearances but give just judgment."

Christ's Origin

25 Some therefore of the people of Jerusalem were saying, "Is not this the man they seek to kill?

26 And behold, he speaks openly and they say nothing to him. Can it be that the rulers have really come to know that this is the Christ?

27 Yet we know where this man is from; but when the Christ comes, no one will know where he is from."

28 Jesus therefore, while teaching in the temple, cried out and said, "You both know me, and know where I am from. Yet I have not come of myself, but he is true who has sent me, whom you do not know.

29 I know him because I am from him, and he has sent me."

30 They wanted therefore to seize him, but no one laid hands on him because his hour had not yet come.

31 Many of the people, however, believed in him, and they kept saying, g "When the Christ comes will he work more signs than this man works?"

32 The Pharisees heard the crowd whispering these things about him, and the rulers and Pharisees sent attendants to seize him.

33 Jesus then said, h "Yet a little while I am with you, and then I go to him who sent me.

34 You will seek me and will not find me; i and where I am you cannot come."

35 The Jews therefore said among themselves, "Where is he going that we shall not find him? Will he go to those dispersed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

36 What is this statement that he has made, 'You will seek me and will not find me, and where I am you cannot come'?"

37 Now on the last, the great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, "If anyone thirst, let him come to me and drink.

38 He who believes in me, as the Scripture says, j From within him there shall flow rivers of living water."

39 He said this, however, of the Spirit k whom they who believed in him were to receive; for the Spirit had not yet been given, since Jesus had not yet been glorified.

40 Some of the crowd, therefore, when they had heard these words, said, "This is truly the Prophet."

41 Others said, l "This is the Christ." Some, however, said,

42 "Can the Christ come from Galilee? Does not the Scripture say that it is of the offspring of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David lived, that the Christ is to come?"

43 So there arose a division among the crowd because of him.

44 And some of them wanted to seize him, but no one laid hands on him.

45 The attendants therefore came to the chief priests and Pharisees; and these said to them, "Why have you not brought him?"

46 The attendants answered, "Never has man spoken as this man."

47 The Pharisees then answered them, "Have you also been led astray?

48 Has any one of the rulers believed in him, or any of the Pharisees?

49 But this crowd, which does not know the Law, is accursed."

50 Nicodemus, m he who had come to him at night, who was one of them, said to them,

51 "Does our Law judge a man unless it first give him a hearing, n and know what he does?"

52 They answered and said to him, "Art thou also a Galilean? Search the Scriptures and see that out of Galilee arises no prophet."

f John 5, 2-9, 16.—g John 8, 30; 10, 42; 11, 45.—h John 13, 33.—i John 8, 21; 13, 33. 36.—j John 4, 10, 14; Isa. 12, 3; 58, 11; Ezech. 47, 1, 12.—k John

Ver. 28. You both know me: the Jews knew Christ as Jesus from Nazareth. His real character and mission they did not as yet know.

16, 7.—l John 7, 52; 1, 46; 2 Kgs. 7, 12; Ps. 88, 4f; Mich. 5, 2.—m John 3, 1f.—n Deut. 1, 16f; 13, 14; 19, 15.

Ver. 32. Rulers: the Greek text has "chief priests." Still these, as members of the Sanhedrin, may be called "rulers."

53 And they returned each one to his own house.

CHAPTER 8

The Adulteress

BUT Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. 2 And at daybreak he came again into the temple, and all the people came to him; and sitting down he began to teach them.

3 Now the Scribes and Pharisees brought a woman caught in adultery, and setting her in the midst, 4 said to him, "Master, this woman has just now been caught in adultery.

5 And in the Law Moses commanded us to stone such persons. What, therefore, dost thou say?"

6 Now they were saying this to test him, in order that they might be able to accuse him. But Jesus, stooping down, began to write with his finger on the ground.

7 But when they continued asking him, he raised himself and said to them, ^p "Let him who is without sin among you be the first to cast a stone at her."

8 And again stooping down, he began to write on the ground.

9 But hearing this, they went away, one by one, beginning with the eldest. And Jesus remained alone, with the woman standing in the midst.

10 And Jesus, raising himself, said to her, "Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned thee?"

11 She said, "No one, Lord." Then Jesus said, "Neither will I condemn thee. Go thy way, and from now on sin ^q no more."

The Light of the World

12 Again, therefore, Jesus spoke to them, saying, ^r "I am the light of the world. He who follows me does not walk

^o 3-5: Lev. 20, 10; Deut. 22, 22-24.—^p Deut. 17, 7.—^q John 5, 14.—^r John 1, 5, 9; 9, 15; 12, 46.—^s

Ver. 53—Chap. 8, 11. This passage is wanting in many Greek Manuscripts; in some others it is found in chapter 21. It is well supported in both the Old Latin and Vulgate Manuscripts. There is no doubt of its right to be included among the Sacred Writings.

Chap. 8, Ver. 6. 8. . . . began to write on the ground: this was probably a sign of Christ's want of interest in their question.

Ver. 20. Treasury: a room off the Court of the Women in the temple.

in the darkness, but will have the light of life."

13 The Pharisees therefore said to him, "Thou bearest witness to thyself. Thy witness is not true."

14 Jesus answered and said to them, "Even if I bear witness to myself, my witness is true, because I know where I came from and where I go. But you do not know where I came from or where I go.

15 You judge according to the flesh; I judge no one.

16 And even if I do judge, my judgment is true, because I am not alone, but with me is he who sent me, the Father.

17 And in your Law it is written ^s that the witness of two persons is true.

18 It is I who bear witness to myself, and he who sent me, the Father, bears witness to me."

19 They therefore said to him, "Where is thy father?" Jesus answered, "You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would then know my Father also."

20 Jesus spoke these words in the treasury, while teaching in the temple. ^t And no one seized him, because his hour had not yet come.

The Son of God

21 Again, ^u therefore, Jesus said to them, "I go, and you will seek me, and in your sin you will die. Where I go you cannot come."

22 The Jews therefore kept saying, "Will he kill himself, since he says, 'Where I go you cannot come'?"

23 And he said to them, ^v "You are from below, I am from above. You are of this world, I am not of this world.

24 Therefore I said to you that you will die in your sins; for if you do not believe that I am he, you will die in your sin."

25 They therefore said to him, "Who

Deut. 17, 6; 19, 15.—^t John 7, 30; Mark 12, 41.—^u John 7, 34; 13, 33.—^v John 3, 31.

Ver. 24. I am he: i.e., the Messiah.

Ver. 25. Why do I . . .: The Clementine Vulgate reads, "I am the beginning, I who speak with you." The reading adopted here is that of the critical Vulgate, which agrees better with the Greek. The Greek text is also taken to mean, "Even that which I tell you from the beginning": or, "I am indeed that which I tell you."

art thou?" Jesus said to them, "Why do I speak to you at all!

26 I have many things to speak and to judge concerning you; but he who sent me is true, and the things that I heard from him, these I speak in the world."

27 And they did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father.

28 Jesus therefore said to them,^w"When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am he, and that of myself I do nothing: but that I preach only what the Father has taught me.

29 And he who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone, because I do always the things that are pleasing to him."

30 When ^x he was speaking these things, many believed in him.

The Children of Abraham

31 Jesus therefore said to the Jews who had come to believe in him, "If you abide in my word, you shall be my disciples indeed, 32 and you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

33 They answered him, "We are the children of Abraham,^y and we have never yet been slaves to anyone. How sayest thou, 'You shall be free'?"

34 Jesus answered them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, everyone who commits sin is a slave of sin.

35 But the slave does not abide in the house forever; the son abides there forever.

36 If therefore the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed.

37 I know that you are the children of Abraham; but you seek to kill me because my word takes no hold among you.

38 I speak what I have seen with the Father; and you do what you have seen with your father."

39 They answered and said to him, "Abraham is our father." Jesus said to them, "If you are the children of Abraham, do the works of Abraham.

40 But as it is, you are seeking to kill me, one who has spoken the truth to you which I have heard from God. That is not what Abraham did.

41 You are doing the works of your father." They therefore said to him, "We have not been born of fornication; we have one Father, God."

42 Jesus therefore said to them, "If God were your Father, you would surely love me. For from God I came forth and have come; for neither have I come of myself, but he sent me.

43 Why do you not understand my speech? Because you cannot listen to my word.

44 The father ^z from whom you are is the devil, and the desires of your father it is your will to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and has not stood in the truth because there is no truth in him. When he tells a lie he speaks from his very nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies.

45 But because I speak the truth you do not believe me.

46 Which of you can convict me of sin? If I speak the truth, why do you not believe me?

47 He who is of God hears the words of God. The reason why you do not hear is that you are not of God."

Christ and Abraham

48 The Jews therefore in answer said to him, "Are we not right in saying that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?"

49 Jesus answered, "I have not a devil, but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me.

50 Yet I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks and who judges.

51 Amen, amen, ^a I say to you, if anyone keep my word, he will never see death."

52 The Jews therefore said, "Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets, and thou sayest, ^w John 3, 14; 12, 32.—^x John 7, 31.—^y Ver. 33, 37 & 39: Matt. 3, 9.—^z 1 John 3, 8-12.—^a John 5, 24; 6, 40, 47; 11, 25.

Ver. 33. This objection is characteristic of the officials of Judaism. Hence St. Augustine observes that its authors were "not they who had already believed, but they in the crowd who were not yet believing."

Ver. 40. Cf. Gen. 18. Abraham listened with all respect to the angels who were sent to him.

Ver. 44. Literally: "You are from the father, the devil." He is described as the father of lies. They also are strangers to the truth revealed to them by Christ, and in this is made evident their relationship to the devil.

'If anyone keep my word he will never taste death.'

53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? And the prophets are dead. Whom dost thou make thyself?"

54 Jesus answered, "If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, of whom you say that he is your God.

55 And you do not know him, ^b but I know him. And if I say that I do not know him, I shall be like you, a liar. But I know him, and I keep his word.

56 Abraham your father rejoiced that he was to see my day. He saw it and was glad."

57 The Jews therefore said to him, "Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?"

58 Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, ^c before Abraham came to be, I am."

59 They therefore took up stones to cast at him; but Jesus hid himself, and went out from the temple.

CHAPTER 9

The Man Born Blind

AND as he was passing by, he saw a man blind from birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, "Rabbi, who has sinned, this man or his parents, that he should be born blind?"

3 Jesus answered, "Neither has this man sinned, nor his parents, but the works ^d of God were to be made manifest in him.

4 I must do the works of him who sent me ^e while it is day; night is coming, when no one can work.

5 As long as I am in the world I am the light of the world."

6 When he had said these things, he spat ^f on the ground and made clay with the spittle, and spread the clay over his eyes,

7 and said to him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloe (which is interpreted 'sent')." So he went away, and washed, and returned seeing.

8 The neighbors therefore and they who were wont to see him before as a beggar, began saying, "Is not this he who used to sit and beg?" Some said, "It is he."

9 But others said, "By no means, he only resembles him." Yet the man declared, "I am he."

10 They therefore said to him, "How were thy eyes opened?"

11 He answered, "The man who is called Jesus made clay and anointed my eyes, and said to me, 'Go to the pool of Siloe and wash.' And I went and washed, and I see."

12 And they said to him, "Where is he?" He said, "I do not know."

13 They took him who had been blind to the Pharisees.

14 Now it was a Sabbath on which Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes.

15 Again, therefore, the Pharisees asked him how he received his sight. But he said to them, "He put clay upon my eyes, and I washed, and I see."

16 Therefore some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, for he does not keep the Sabbath." But others said, "How can a man who is a sinner work these signs?" And there was a division among them.

17 Again therefore they said to the blind man, "What dost thou say of him who opened thy eyes?" But he said, "He is a prophet."

18 The Jews therefore did not believe of him that he had been blind and had got his sight, until they called the parents of the one who had gained his sight,

19 and questioned them, saying, "Is this your son, of whom you say that he was born blind? How then does he now see?"

20 His parents answered them and said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind;

21 but how he now sees we do not know,

^b John 7, 28f.—^c John 8, 24-28; 17, 5. 24.—^d John 11, 4.—^e John 11, 9; 12, 35.—^f Mark 7, 33; 8, 23.

Ver. 56. He saw it: Abraham can be said to have seen Christ's day either in faith and prophetic vision, or from his place in limbo when Christ was born.

Ver. 58. I am: the use of the present emphasizes His eternal existence. Further, cf. Ex. 3, 14.

Chap. 9, Ver. 2f. Some rabbis held that an unborn child could sin. All were agreed that the sins of a parent could be visited upon the child. Hence the question. But in this case neither is true. God permitted this evil, resulting from natural and by no means unusual causes, in order to manifest His divine power.

or who opened his eyes we ourselves do not know. Ask him; he is of age, let him speak for himself."

22 These things g his parents said because they feared the Jews. For already the Jews had agreed that if anyone were to confess him to be the Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue.

23 This is why his parents said, "He is of age; question him."

24 They therefore called a second time the man who had been blind, and said to him, "Give glory to God! We ourselves know that this man is a sinner."

25 He therefore said, "Whether he is a sinner, I do not know. One thing I do know, that whereas I was blind, now I see."

26 They therefore said to him, "What did he do to thee? How did he open thy eyes?"

27 He answered them, "I have told you already, and you have heard. Why would you hear again? Would you also become his disciples?"

28 They heaped abuse on him therefore, and said, "Thou art his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses.

29 We know that God spoke to Moses; but as for this man, we do not know where he is from."

30 In answer the man said to them, "Why, herein is the marvel, that you do not know where he is from, and yet he opened my eyes.

31 Now we know that God does not hear sinners; but if anyone is a worshipper of God, and does his will, him he hears.

32 Not from the beginning of the world has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a man born blind.

33 If this man were not from God, he could do nothing."

34 They answered and said to him, h "Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us?" And they turned him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had turned him out, and when he had found him, said

g John 7, 13.—h John 9, 2. 22.—i Matt. 13, 13-15.—j Matt. 23, 26.

Ver. 27. And you have heard: the Greek text reads, "and you heard not." The sense is the same in the context: You heard but did not heed.

Ver. 32. Not from the beginning of the world: a Semitic idiom conveying an emphatic "never."

to him, "Dost thou believe in the Son of God?"

36 He answered and said, "Who is he, Lord, that I may believe in him?"

37 And Jesus said to him, "Thou hast both seen him, and he it is who speaks with thee."

38 And he said, "I believe, Lord." And falling down, he worshipped him.

39 And Jesus said, i "For judgment have I come into this world, that they who do not see may see, and they who see may become blind."

40 And j some of the Pharisees who were with him heard this, and they said to him, "Are we also blind?"

41 Jesus said to them, "If you were blind, you would not have sin. But now that you say, 'We see,' your sin remains."

CHAPTER 10

The Good Shepherd

“A MEN, AMEN, I say to you, he who enters not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbs up another way, is a thief and a robber.

2 But he who enters by the door is shepherd of the sheep.

3 To this man the gatekeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them forth.

4 And when he has let out his own sheep, he goes before them; and the sheep follow him because they know his voice.

5 But a stranger they will not follow, but will flee from him, because they do not know the voice of strangers."

6 This parable Jesus spoke to them, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

7 Again, therefore, Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All whoever have come are thieves and robbers; but the sheep have not heard them.

9 I am the door. If anyone enter by me he shall be safe, and shall go in and out, and shall find pastures.

Chap. 10, Ver. 8. The Greek text reads, "all who have come before me." This can refer to pretenders, e.g., Judas the Galilean, or to the Scribes and Pharisees, who taught largely their own doctrine.

Ver. 9. Shall be safe: i.e., shall go about in safety.

10 The k thief comes only to steal, and slay, and destroy. I came that they may have life, and have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for his sheep.

12 But the hireling, who is not a shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and flees. And the wolf snatches and scatters the sheep;

13 but the hireling flees because he is a hireling, and has no concern for the sheep.

14 I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me,

15 even as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for my sheep.

16 And other sheep I have that are not of this fold. Them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold and l one shepherd.

17 For this reason the Father loves me, m because I lay down my life that I may take it up again.

18 No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have the power n to lay it down, and I have the power to take it up again. Such is the command I have received from my Father."

19 Again o there arose a division among the Jews because of these words.

20 Many of them were saying, "He has a devil and is mad. Why do you listen to him?"

21 Others were saying, "These are not the words of one who has a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?"

At the Feast of the Dedication

22 Now p there took place at Jerusalem the feast of the Dedication; and it was winter.

k 8. 10. 12f: Ezech. 34.—l Ezech. 34, 23; 37, 24.—m Phil. 2, 8f.—n John 5, 26; 19, 11.—o 19f: John 7, 20, 43; 8, 48.—p 1 Mach. 4, 54. 59.—q Acts 3, 11; 5, 12.—r John 10, 38; 5, 36.—s 26f: John 8, 47.—

Ver. 16. One fold: the Greek text has "one flock." This is a better reading, although the sense remains the same: the union of Jew and Gentile in Christ's Church.

Ver. 23. Solomon's portico: a covered walk along the eastern side of the court which surrounded the temple.

Ver. 24. Literally: "How long dost thou take away our soul?" i.e., leave us in uncertainty, suspense.

Ver. 29. What . . . is greater than all: this gift may 23 And q Jesus was walking in the temple, in Solomon's portico.

24 The Jews therefore gathered round him, and said to him, "How long dost thou keep us in suspense? If thou art the Christ, tell us openly."

25 Jesus answered them, r "I tell you and you do not believe. The works that I do in the name of my Father, these bear witness concerning me.

26 But s you do not believe because you are not of my sheep.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me.

28 And t I give them everlasting life; and they shall never perish, neither shall anyone snatch them out of my hand.

29 What my Father has given me is greater than all, and no one is able to snatch anything out of the hand of my Father.

30 I and u the Father are one."

31 The v Jews therefore took up stones to stone him.

32 Jesus answered them, "Many good works have I shown you from my Father. For which of these works do you stone me?"

33 The Jews answered him, w "Not for a good work do we stone thee, but for blasphemy, and because thou, being a man, makest thyself God."

34 Jesus answered them, x "Is it not written in your Law, I said you are gods?"

35 If he called them gods to whom the word of God was addressed (and the Scripture cannot be broken), 36 do you say of him y whom the Father has made holy and sent into the world, 'Thou blasphemest,' because I said, 'I am the Son of God'?

37 If I do not perform the works of my Father, do not believe me.

38 But z if I do perform them, and if you are not willing to believe me, believe t 28f: Deut. 32, 39.—u John 8, 19; 12, 45; 14, 9; 17, 11. 22.—v John 8, 59.—w John 5, 18; 19, 7.—x John 12, 34; 15, 25.—y John 5, 18.—z John 14, 10-12. 20; 17, 21-23.

have been Christ's power, the work of redemption, or the flock itself. Generally, however, it is understood to be Christ's divine nature. It is taken in the sense by the Lateran Council.

Ver. 34ff. Cf. Ps. 81, 6. The judges who administered the Law were called gods, because they represented God. If they, merely men, and so often unfaithful to their duties, as in Ps. 81, could enjoy this title, how much more right to it has He who was made holy, i.e., especially set aside for God's work!

the works, that you may know and believe that the Father is in me and I in the Father."

39 They sought therefore to seize him; and he went forth out of their hands.

Jesus in Perea

40 And a again he went away beyond the Jordan, to the place where John was at first baptizing; and there he stayed.

41 And many came to him; and they were saying, "John indeed worked no sign.

42 All things, however, that John said of this man were true." And many believed in him.

CHAPTER 11

The Raising of Lazarus

NOW b a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha.

2 Now c it was Mary who anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet dry with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.

3 The sisters therefore sent to him, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick."

4 But when Jesus heard this, he said to them, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that through it the Son of God may be glorified."

5 Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister Mary, and Lazarus.

6 So when he heard that he was sick, he remained two more days in the same place.

7 Then afterwards he said to his disciples, "Let us go again into Judea."

8 The disciples said to him, d "Rabbi, just now the Jews were seeking to stone thee; and dost thou go there again?"

9 Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours in the day? If a man walks in the day, he does not stumble, because he sees the light of this world.

10 But e if he walks in the night, he stumbles, because the light is not in him."

11 These things he spoke, and after this he said to them, "Lazarus, our friend, sleeps. But I go that I may wake him from sleep."

12 His disciples therefore said, "Lord, if he sleeps, he will be safe."

13 Now Jesus had spoken of his death, but they thought he was speaking of the repose of sleep.

14 So then Jesus said to them plainly, "Lazarus is dead;

15 and I rejoice on your account that I was not there, that you may believe. But let us go to him."

16 Thomas, f who is called the Twin, said therefore to his fellow-disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

17 Jesus therefore came and found him already four days in the tomb.

18 Now Bethany was close to Jerusalem, some fifteen stadia distant.

19 And many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, to comfort them on account of their brother.

20 When, therefore, Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him. But Mary remained at home.

21 Martha therefore said to Jesus, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother would not have died.

22 But even now I know that whatever thou shalt ask of God, God will give it to thee."

23 Jesus said to her, "Thy brother shall rise."

24 Martha said to him, g "I know that he will rise at the resurrection, on the last day."

25 Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in me, even if he die, shall live;

26 and whoever lives and believes in me, shall never die. Dost thou believe this?"

27 She said to him, h "Yes, Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, who hast come into the world."

28 And when she had said this, she went away and quietly called Mary her sister, saying, "The Master is here and calls thee."

29 As soon as she heard this, she rose quickly and came to him,

30 for Jesus had not yet come into the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him.

a John 1, 28.—b Luke 10, 38f.—c John 12, 3.—d John 8, 59; 10, 31.—e John 12, 35; 1 John 2, 10.

Chap. 11, Ver. 9f. The Jewish day was from sunrise to sunset, and was divided into twelve hours. This brief parable conveys the thought that in the —f John 14, 5; 20, 24ff; 21, 2.—g John 5, 29.—h John 6, 70.

divine plan Christ was safe until the hour appointed for His Passion.

31 When, therefore, the Jews, who were with her in the house and were comforting her, saw Mary rise up quickly and go out, they followed her, saying, "She is going to the tomb to weep there."

32 When, therefore, Mary came where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell at his feet, and said to him, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother would not have died."

33 When, therefore, Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who had come with her weeping, he groaned in spirit and was troubled,

34 and said, "Where have you laid him?" They said to him, "Lord, come and see."

35 And Jesus i wept.

36 The Jews therefore said, "See how he loved him."

37 But some of them said, "Could not he who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that this man should not die?"

38 Jesus therefore, again groaning in himself, came to the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone was laid against it.

39 Jesus said, "Take away the stone." Martha, the sister of him who was dead, said to him, "Lord, by this time he is already decayed, for he is dead four days."

40 Jesus said to her, "Have I not told thee that if thou believe thou shalt behold the glory of God?"

41 They therefore removed the stone. And Jesus, raising his eyes, said, "Father, I give thee thanks that thou hast heard me.

42 Yet I knew that thou always heardest me; j but because of the people who stand round, I spoke, that they may believe that thou hast sent me."

43 When he had said this, he cried out with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth!"

44 And at once he who had been dead came forth, bound feet and hands with bandages, and his face was tied up with i Luke 19, 41.—j John 12, 30.—k John 18, 13f; Luke 3, 2.—l 51f: John 10, 15f.—m John 2, 13; 5, 1; 6, 4; 18, 28.

Ver. 33. Groaned in spirit and was troubled: the Greek terms signify a deep emotion, like anger or indignation, controlled with a great effort. Cf. v. 38.

Ver. 47. What are we doing? A rhetorical way of saying that they were doing nothing.

Ver. 48. Our place and our nation: i.e., the temple of Jerusalem, and the Jewish people.

a cloth. Jesus said to them, "Unbind him, and let him go."

The Council

45 Many therefore of the Jews who had come to Mary, and had seen what he did, believed in him.

46 But some of them went away to the Pharisees, and told them the things that Jesus had done.

47 The chief priests and the Pharisees therefore gathered together a council, and said, "What are we doing? for this man is working many signs.

48 If we let him alone as he is, all will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and our nation."

49 But one of them, Caiphas, k being high priest that year, said to them, "You know nothing at all;

50 nor do you reflect that it is expedient for us that one man die for the people, instead of the whole nation perishing."

51 This, however, he said not of himself; but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus was to die for the nation; l

52 and not only for the nation, but that he might gather into one the children of God who were scattered abroad.

53 So from that day forth their plan was to put him to death.

Jesus in Ephrem

54 Jesus therefore no longer went about openly among the Jews, but withdrew to the district near the desert, to a town called Ephrem; and there he stayed with his disciples.

55 Now the Passover m of the Jews was at hand; and many from the country went up to Jerusalem before the Passover, in order to purify themselves.

56 And they were looking for Jesus. And as they stood in the temple they were saying to one another, "What do you think, that he is not coming to the feast?" But the chief priests and Pharisees had given orders that, if anyone knew where he was, he should report it, so that they might seize him.

Ver. 51. Although Caiphas saw only the present, temporal significance of his words, he was led to make the statement by God who intended the higher sense. It was not necessary that Caiphas realize the prophetic character of his counsel.

Ver. 54. Ephrem: a village in the northeast corner of Judea, some five miles east of Bethel.

CHAPTER 12

The Anointing at Bethany

JESUS ⁿ therefore, six days before the Passover, came to Bethany where Lazarus, whom Jesus had raised to life, ^o had died.

2 And they made him a supper there; and Martha served, while Lazarus was one of those reclining at table with him.

3 Mary therefore took a pound of ointment, genuine nard of great value, and anointed ^p the feet of Jesus, and with her hair wiped his feet dry. And the house was filled with the odor of the ointment.

4 Then one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, he who was about to betray him, said,

5 "Why was this ointment not sold for three hundred denarii, and given to the poor?"

6 Now he said this, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and holding the purse, used to take what was put in it.

7 Jesus therefore said, "Let her be—that she may keep it for the day of my burial.

8 For the poor you have always with you, but you do not always have me."

9 Now the great crowd of the Jews learned that he was there; and they came, not only because of Jesus, but that they might see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 But the chief priests planned to put Lazarus to death also.

11 For on his account many of the Jews began to leave them and to believe in Jesus.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

12 Now ^a the next day, the great crowd which had come to the feast, when they ⁿ 1-11: Matt. 26, 6-13; Mark 14, 3-9.—^o if: John 11, 1; Luke 10, 38ff.—^p John 11, 2.—^q 12-19: Matt. 21, 1-11; Mark 11, 1-11; Luke 19, 29-45.—

Chap. 12, Ver. 7. . . . that she may keep: the sentence is elliptical. Various suggestions have been made for its completion. "She did not sell it that she may keep it . . ." The sense seems to be: "this is not a prodigal expenditure of the precious ointment, but an anointing in preparation for my burial."

Ver. 13. Branches of palms were usually brought up from Jericho for use as decorations during the feast.

heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem,

13 took the branches of palms and went forth to meet him. And they cried out, ^r "Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord, the king of Israel!"

14 And Jesus found a young ass, and sat upon it, as it is written,

15 ^s Fear not, daughter of Sion; behold, thy king comes, sitting upon the colt of an ass.

16 These things ^t his disciples did not at first understand. But when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about him, and that they had done these things to him.

17 The crowd therefore, which was with him when he called Lazarus from the tomb and raised him from the dead, bore witness to him.

18 And the reason why the crowd also went to meet him was that they heard that he had worked this sign.

19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, "Do you see that we avail nothing? Behold the entire world has gone after him!"

Last Words of Jesus to the People

20 Now there were certain Gentiles among those who had gone up to worship on the feast.

21 These ^u therefore approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and asked him, saying, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus."

22 Philip ^v came and told Andrew; again, Andrew and Philip spoke to Jesus.

23 But Jesus answered them, ^w "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified.

24 Amen, amen, I say to you, unless the grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, ^r Ps. 117, 26.—^s 14f: Zach. 9, 9.—^t John 2, 22.—^u John 1, 43ff.—^v John 1, 40.—^w John 14, 19.

Ver. 17f. From the words they were chanting, it was evident that the people recognized Christ as the Messiah.

Ver. 19. Can be read with more force: "You see that we avail nothing . . ."

Ver. 23ff. These words were not addressed to the Gentiles.

25 it remains alone. But if it dies, it brings forth much fruit. He who loves his life, loses it; and he who hates his life in this world, keeps it unto life everlasting.

26 If x anyone serves me, let him follow me; and where I am there also shall my servant be. If anyone serves me, my Father will honor him.

27 Now my soul is troubled. And what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour! No, this is why I came to this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name!" There came therefore a voice from heaven, "I have both glorified it, and I will glorify it again."

29 Then the crowd which was standing round and had heard, said that it had thundered. Others said, "An angel has spoken to him."

30 Jesus answered and said, y "Not for me did this voice come, but for you.

31 Now z is the judgment of the world; now will the prince of the world be cast out.

32 And I, a if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all things to myself."

33 Now he said this signifying by what death he was to die.

34 The crowd answered him, b "We have heard from the Law that the Christ abides forever. And how canst thou say, 'The Son of Man must be lifted up'? Who is this Son of Man?"

35 Jesus therefore said to them, c "Yet a little while the light is among you. Walk while you have the light, that darkness may not overtake you. He who walks in the darkness does not know where he goes.

36 While you have the light, believe in the light, that you may become sons of light."

These things Jesus spoke, and he went away and hid himself from them.

Incredulity

37 Now though he had worked so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in him;

38 that the word which the prophet Isaias spoke might be fulfilled, d Lord, who has believed our report, and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?

39 This is why they could not believe, because Isaias said again. e

40 He has blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts; lest they see with their eyes, and understand with their mind, and be converted, and I heal them.

41 Isaias f said these things when he saw his glory and spoke of him.

42 And yet, g even among the rulers, many believed in him; but because of the Pharisees they did not acknowledge it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue.

43 For h they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God.

44 But Jesus cried out, and said, i "He who believes in me, believes not in me but in him who sent me.

45 And j he who sees me, sees him who sent me.

46 I have come a light into the world, that whoever believes in me may not remain in the darkness.

47 And k if anyone hears my words, and does not keep them, it is not I who judge him; for I have not come to judge the world, but to save the world.

48 He l who rejects me, and does not accept my words, has one to condemn him. The word that I have spoken will condemn him on the last day.

49 For m I have not spoken on my own authority, but he who sent me, the Father, has commanded me what I should say, and what I should declare.

50 And n I know that his commandment is everlasting life. The things, therefore, that I speak, I speak as the Father has bidden me."

x John 14, 3; 17, 24.—y John 11, 42.—z John 14, 30; 16, 11.—a John 3, 14; 8, 28.—b Pss. 88, 5; 109, 4; Isa. 9, 7; Dan. 7, 14.—c John 8, 12; 9, 4f.—d Isa. 53, 1; Rom. 10, 16.—e Isa. 6, 9f; Matt. 13, 14f.—f

Isa. 6, 1ff.—g John 9, 22.—h John 5, 44.—i John 13, 20; 14, 1.—j John 14, 9.—k John 3, 17; 8, 15.—l John 3, 16; Luke 10, 16.—m John 14, 31; 15, 10.—n John 8, 26, 28.

Ver. 27. Troubled: this emotion is human fear and sadness, occasioned by the impending Passion. St. Thomas calls this scene a brief anticipation of the Agony in the Garden.

Ver. 39. They could not believe: faith is a gift of God which often cannot be received because of an obstacle which man puts in its way. The obstacle here is their obstinacy. Isaias had foretold this. Cf. Isa. 6, 9f.

Ver. 43. Cf. John 5, 44. They preferred rather the approval of man than to render due glory to God.

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. THE LAST SUPPER

CHAPTER 13

The Washing of the Feet

BEFORE the feast of the Passover, Jesus, knowing that the hour had come for him to pass out of this world to the Father, having loved his own who were in the world, loved them to the end.

2 And during the supper, the devil having already put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, to betray him, Jesus,

3 knowing p that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he had come forth from God and was going to God,

4 rose from the supper and laid aside his garments, and taking a towel girded himself.

5 Then he poured water into the basin and began to wash the feet of the disciples, and to dry them with the towel with which he was girded.

6 He came, then to Simon Peter. And Peter said to him, "Lord, dost thou wash my feet?"

7 Jesus answered and said to him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter."

8 Peter said to him, "Thou shalt never wash my feet!" Jesus answered him, "If I do not wash thee, thou shalt have no part with me."

9 Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head!"

10 Jesus said to him, "He q who has bathed needs only to wash, and he is clean all over. And you are clean, but not all."

o 1-2: John 7, 30; 8, 20; 12, 1; 6, 71; 17, 12. —p John 3, 35; 17, 2; 11, 27. —q John 15, 3. —r John 6, 65. 71f. —s Matt. 23, 8, 10. —t Matt. 10, 24. —u Ps. 40, 10. —v John 8, 24; 14, 29. —w Matt. 10, 40. —x

Chap. 13, Ver. 2. During the supper: or, "When the supper was finished." Both readings are well attested, but the context shows that the meal was at least resumed. Cf. vv. 12, 16.

Ver. 10. Needs only to wash: the words "his feet" are added here in some Manuscripts. If we retain them, the sense is: He who has bathed, on returning home needs only to wash the dust from his feet. Or 11 For r he knew who it was that would betray him. This is why he said, "You are not all clean."

12 Now after he had washed their feet and put on his garments, when he had reclined again, he said to them, "Do you know what I have done to you?"

13 You s call me Master and Lord, and you say well, for so I am.

14 If, therefore, I the Lord and Master have washed your feet, you also ought to wash the feet of one another.

15 For I have given you an example, that as I have done to you, so you also should do.

16 Amen, amen, t I say to you, no servant is greater than his master, nor is one who is sent greater than he who sent him.

17 If you know these things, blessed shall you be if you do them.

18 I do not speak of you all. I know whom I have chosen; but that the Scripture may be fulfilled, u He who eats bread with me has lifted up his heel against me.

19 I tell you now v before it comes to pass, that when it has come to pass you may believe that I am he.

20 Amen, amen, w I say to you, he who receives anyone I send, receives me; and he who receives me, receives him who sent me."

The Betrayer

21 When Jesus had said these things he was troubled in spirit, and said solemnly, x "Amen, amen, I say to you, one of you will betray me."

22 The disciples therefore looked at one another, uncertain of whom he was speaking.

23 Now one of his disciples y he whom Jesus loved, was reclining at Jesus' bosom.

24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, and said to him, "Who is it of whom he speaks?"

25 He therefore, leaning back upon the 21-30: Matt. 26, 21-25; Mark 14, 18-21; Luke 22, 21-23; John 11, 33; 12, 27. —y John 19, 26; 20, 2; 21, 7, 20.

it might also mean that the liturgical and social requirements are satisfied with this partial bathing.

Ver. 21. Troubled: sadness at seeing one of the chosen disciples ready to commit this enormity.

Ver. 23. At Jesus' bosom: John reclined at the right of Jesus. He thus had only to lean back and his head rested on our Lord's breast. This fact is often mentioned as evidence that John was "the beloved disciple."

bosom of Jesus, said to him, "Lord, who is it?"

26 Jesus answered, "It is he for whom I shall dip the bread, and give it to him." And when he had dipped the bread, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

27 And after the morsel, Satan entered into him. And Jesus said to him, ^z"What thou dost, do quickly."

28 But none of those at the table understood why he said this to him.

29 For some thought that because Judas held the purse, Jesus had said to him, "Buy the things we need for the feast"; or that ^ahe should give something to the poor.

30 When, therefore, he had received the morsel, he went out quickly. Now it was night.

The New Commandment

31 When, therefore, he had gone out, Jesus said, "Now is the Son of Man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If ^bGod is glorified in him, God will also glorify him in himself, and will glorify him at once.

33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. ^cYou will seek me, and, as I said to the Jews, 'Where I go you cannot come,' so to you also I say it now.

34 A ^dnew commandment I give you that you love one another: that as I have loved you, you also love one another.

35 By this will all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Peter's Denials Predicted

36 Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where art thou going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going ^ethou canst not follow me now, but thou shalt follow later."

37 Peter said to him, "Why can I not follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thee."

38 Jesus answered him, "Wilt thou lay down thy life for me? Amen, amen, I say to thee, the cock will not crow ^fbefore thou dost deny me thrice."

^z Luke, 22, 3.—^a John 12, 5f.—^b John 17, 1-5.—^c John 7, 33; 8, 21.—^d John 15, 12f. 17.—^e 36-38: Matt. 26, 31-35; Mark 14, 27-31; Luke 22, 31-34;

Ver. 27. Satan entered into him: Judas now gave himself entirely into the power of Satan (St. Thomas). It probably marks a definite decision on the part of Judas to carry out the betrayal of his Master at once.

CHAPTER 14

A Word of Comfort

“LET not your heart be ^gtroubled. You believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house there are many mansions. Were it not so, I should have told you, because I go to prepare a place for you.

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I am coming again, and I will take you to myself; that where I am, there you also may be.

4 And where I go you know, and the way you know."

5 Thomas said to him, "Lord, we do not know where thou art going, and how can we know the way?"

6 Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father but through me.

7 If you had known me, you would also have known my Father. And henceforth you do know him, and you have seen him."

8 Philip said to him, "Lord, show us the Father and it is enough for us."

9 Jesus said to him, ^h"Have I been so long a time with you, and you have not known me? Philip, he who sees me sees also the Father. How canst thou say, 'Show us the Father'?"

10 Dost thou not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me? The words that I speak to you I speak not on my own authority. But the Father dwelling in me, it is he who does the works.

11 Do you believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me?

12 Otherwise believe because of the works ⁱthemselves. Amen, amen, I say to you, he who believes in me, the works that I do he also shall do, and greater than these he shall do, because I am going to the Father.

13 And whatever you ask in my name, ^jthat I will do, in order that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

John 7, 34; 21, 18f.—^f John 18, 27.—^g John 14, 27.—^h John 8, 19; 12, 45.—ⁱ John 8, 28; 12, 49.—^j John 15, 7, 16; 16, 23f.

Chap. 14, Ver. 7. If you had known me: the meaning is rather encouragement than censure. Their present imperfect knowledge will later be elevated to a better understanding.

14 If you ask me anything in my name, I will do it.

15 If k you love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will ask the Father and he will give you another Advocate to dwell^l with you forever,

17 the Spirit of truth^m whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you shall know him, because he will dwell with you, and be in you.

18 I will not leave you orphans; I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while and the world no longer sees me. But you see me, for I live and you shall live.

20 In n that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

21 He who has my commandments and keeps them, he it is who loves me. But he who loves me will be loved by my Father, and I will love him and manifest myself to him."

22 Judas, not the Iscariot, said to him, "Lord, how is it that thou art about to manifest thyself to us, and not to the world?"

23 Jesus answered and said to him, "If anyone love me, he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our abode with him.

24 He who does not love me does not keep my words. And the word that you have heard is not mine, but the Father's who sent me.

25 These things I have spoken to you while yet dwelling with you.

26 But the Advocate, the o Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring to your mind whatever I have said to you.

27 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give to you; not as the world gives do I give to you. Do not let your heart be troubled, or be afraid.

k John 15, 10.—l John 14, 26; 15, 26; 16, 7.—m John 16, 13.—n John 15, 4-7; 17, 21-23.—o John 28 You have heard me say to you, 'I go away and I am coming to you.' If you loved me, you would indeed rejoice that I am going to the Father, for the Father is greater than I.

29 And now p I have told you before it comes to pass, that when it has come to pass you may believe.

30 I will no longer speak much with you, for the prince of the world q is coming, and in me he has nothing.

31 But he comes that the world may know that I love the Father, and that I do as the Father has commanded me. Arise, let us go from here."

CHAPTER 15

Union with Christ

"I AM the true vine, and my Father is the vine-dresser.

2 Every branch in me that bears no fruit he will take away; and every branch that bears fruit he will cleanse, that it may bear more fruit.

3 You are already clean because of the word that I have spoken to you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself unless it remain on the vine, so neither can you unless you abide in me.

5 I am the vine, you are the branches.^r He who abides in me, and I in him, he bears much fruit; for without me you can do nothing.

6 If anyone does not abide in me, he shall be cast outside as the branch and wither; and they shall gather them up and cast them into the fire,^s and they shall burn.

7 If you abide in me, and if my words abide in you, ask whatever you will^t and it shall be done to you.

8 In this is my Father glorified, that you may bear very much fruit, and become my disciples.

16, 13.—p John 13, 19; 16, 4.—q John 12, 31.—r 2 Cor. 3, 5.—s Matt. 3, 10.—t John 15, 16; 14, 13.

Ver. 16. Advocate: or Paraclete. The latter is a Greek term which is better rendered into English by Advocate or Intercessor. Cf. 1 John 2, 1. The function of the One thus designated is protection, assistance, defense. The thought of Consoler is not wanting from the context (St. Thomas, St. Jerome, St. Augustine).

Ver. 19. But you see me: i.e., the world will not see me, but you will see me.

Ver. 30f. In me he has nothing: i.e., he has no claim on me or power over me. The success of the powers of darkness in the death of Christ was only apparent. This was permitted to show Christ's perfect correspondence with the will of the Father. On this rested His triumph over sin and death.

9 As the Father has loved me, I also have loved you.^u Abide in my love.

10 If you keep my commandments you will abide in my love, ^vas I also have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things I have spoken to you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full.

12 This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you.

13 Greater love than this no one has, that one lay down his life for his friends.

14 You are my friends if you do the things I command you.

15 No longer do I call you servants, because the servant does not know what his master does. But I have called you friends, because all things that I have heard from my Father I have made known to you.

16 You have not chosen me, ^wbut I have chosen you, and have appointed you that you should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatever you ask the Father in my name he may give you.

17 These things I command you, that you may love one another.

The World's Hatred

18 ^x"If the world hates you, know that it has hated me before you.

19 If you were of the world,^y the world would love what is its own. But because you are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hates you.

20 Remember the word that I have spoken to you: ^zNo servant is greater than his master. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also; if they have kept my word, they will keep yours also.

21 But all these things they will do to you for my name's sake,^a because they do not know him who sent me.

^u John 17, 23.—^v John 8, 29; 14, 15.—^w John 6, 71; 13, 18.—^x John 7, 7.—^y 1 John 4, 5.—^z John 13, 16.—^a John 16, 3; Matt. 5, 11; Acts 5, 41; 1 Pet. 4, 13ff.—^b John 5, 23; 1 John 2, 23.—^c John 3, 2; 7, Ver. 22. Cf. John 12, 39. Christ had made a special effort to prove His mission to the Jews. They were guilty in a special way when they refused this favor.

Ver. 24f. The sentence is elliptical. Their hatred was permitted that the prophecy might be fulfilled.

22 If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin. But now they have no excuse for their sin.

23 He ^bwho hates me hates my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them works such as no one else has done, they would have no sin. But now they have seen,^c and have hated both me and my Father;

25 but that the word written in their Law may be fulfilled, ^d*They have hated me without cause.*

26 But ^ewhen the Advocate has come, whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who proceeds from the Father, he will bear witness concerning me.

27 And you also bear witness,^f because from the beginning you are with me."

CHAPTER 16

Persecution Predicted

"THESE THINGS I have spoken to you that you may not be scandalized.

2 They ^gwill expel you from the synagogues. Yes, the hour is coming for everyone who kills you to think that he is offering worship to God.

3 And these things they will do because they have not known the Father nor me.

4 But ^hthese things I have spoken to you, that when the time for them has come you may remember that I told you. These things, however, I did not tell you from the beginning, because I was with you.

The Role of the Advocate

5 "And now I am going to him who sent me, and no one of you asks me, 'Where art thou going?'

6 But because I have spoken to you these things, sorrow has filled your heart.

7 But I speak the truth to you; it is expedient for you that I depart. For if I do not go, the Advocate ⁱ will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you.

31; 9, 32.—^d Pss. 34, 19; 68, 5.—^e John 14, 26.—^f Luke 24, 48; Luke 1, 2; Acts 1, 8.—^g John 9, 22; 12, 42.—^h John 13, 19; 14, 29.

Chap. 16, Ver. 5. Cf. John 12, 36; 14, 5. 28. The question had already been asked, but not under the present circumstances. Christ sought to evoke the thought of His return to the Father as consolation in their sadness over His departure.

8 And when he has come he will convict the world of sin, and of justice, and of judgment:

9 of sin, because they do not believe in me;

10 of justice, because I go to the Father, and you will see me no more;

11 and of judgment, because the prince of this world has already been judged.

12 Many things yet I have to say to you, but you cannot bear them now.

13 But when he, the Spirit of truth, ^j has come, he will teach you all the truth. For he will not speak on his own authority, but whatever he will hear he will speak, and the things that are to come he will declare to you.

14 He will glorify me, because he will receive of what is mine and declare it to you.

15 All things that the Father has are mine. ^k That is why I have said that he will receive of what is mine, and will declare it to you.

16 A little while and you shall see me no longer; and again a little while and you shall see me, because I go to the Father."

17 Some of his disciples therefore said to one another, "What is this he says to us, 'A little while and you shall not see me, and again a little while and you shall see me'; and, 'I go to the Father'?"

18 They kept saying therefore, "What is this 'little while' of which he speaks? We do not know what he is saying."

19 But Jesus knew that they wanted to ask him, and he said to them, "You inquire about this among yourselves because I said, 'A little while and you shall not see me, and again a little while and you shall see me.'

20 Amen, amen, I say to you, that you shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice; and you shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman about to give birth ^l has sorrow, because her hour has come. But when she has brought forth the child, she no longer remembers the anguish for her joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And you therefore have sorrow now; but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no one shall take from you.

23 And in that day you shall ask me nothing. ^m Amen, amen, I say to you, if you ask the Father anything in my name, he will give it to you.

24 Hitherto you have not asked anything in my name. Ask, and you shall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 These things I have spoken to you in parables. The hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in parables, but will speak to you plainly of the Father.

26 In that day you shall ask in my name; and I do not say to you that I will ask the Father for you, 27 for the Father himself loves you because you have loved me, and have believed that I came forth from God.

28 I came forth from the Father and have come into the world. Again I leave the world and go to the Father."

29 His disciples said to him, "Behold, now thou speakest plainly, and utterest no parable.

30 Now we know that thou knowest all things, and dost not need ⁿ that anyone should question thee. For this reason we believe that thou camest forth from God."

31 Jesus answered them, "Do you now believe?

32 Behold, ^o the hour is coming, and has already come, for you to be scattered, each one to his own house, and to leave me alone. But I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

33 These things I have spoken to you that in me you may have peace. ^p In the world you will have affliction. But take courage, I have overcome the world."

ⁱ John 14, 16, 26ff.—^j John 14, 26.—^k John 17, 10.—^l Isa. 26, 17.—^m John 14, 13f. 20.—ⁿ John 2, 24f.—^o Zach. 13, 7; Matt. 26, 31.—^p John 14, 27.

Ver. 8. Convict: bring conviction relative to these truths. Cf. John 3, 20, where the term is rendered "expose."

Ver. 25. Parables: the parable or proverb, in Hebrew called Mashal, was a simile used to illustrate higher truths. There was some obscurity in all parables. For the present Christ's words were above the understanding of the Apostles.

Ver. 30f. For this reason: now that our Lord speaks more plainly, they understand better, and also believe. But He hastens to warn them that their faith is to be put to further test.

CHAPTER 17

Christ's Priestly Prayer for Unity

THESE THINGS Jesus spoke; and raising his eyes to heaven, he said, ^q "Father, the hour has come! Glorify thy Son, that thy Son may glorify thee,

2 even ^r as thou hast given him power over all flesh, in order that to all thou hast given him he may give everlasting life.

3 Now this is everlasting life, that they may know thee, the only true God, and him whom thou hast sent, Jesus Christ.

4 I have glorified thee on earth; I have accomplished the work that thou hast given me to do.

5 And now do thou, Father, glorify me with thyself, with the glory that I had with thee before the world existed.

6 I have manifested thy name to the men whom thou hast given me out of the world. They were thine, and thou hast given them to me, and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have learnt that whatever thou hast given me is from thee;

8 because the words that thou hast given me I have given to them. And they have received them, and have known of a truth that I came forth from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9 I pray ^s for them; not for the world do I pray, but for those whom thou hast given me, because they are thine;

10 and all things that are mine are thine, ^t and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

11 And I am no longer in the world, but these are in the world, and I am coming to thee. Holy Father, keep in thy name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one even as we are.

12 While I was with them, I kept them

^q John 11, 41; 13, 31.—^r John 3, 35; Matt. 11, 27; 28, 18.—^s John 17, 2. 6; 10, 29.—^t John 16, 15.—^u John 18, 9; 2 Thess. 2, 3; Pss. 40, 10; 108,

Chap. 17, Ver. 2. Christ glorifies the Father by faithfully accomplishing His mission. But He also glorifies Him in another way: by raising man to a state in which he also can glorify God both here and in heaven. To this end the Father has given power over all men to the Son, to open for them a way to eternal life.

Ver. 19. Sanctify myself: by offering Himself as a victim to be immolated. That they also may be sanc- in thy name. ^u Those whom thou hast given me I guarded; and not one of them perished except the son of perdition, in order that the Scripture might be fulfilled.

13 But now I am coming to thee; and these things I speak in the world, in order that they may have my joy made full in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world has hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I do not pray that thou take them out of the world, but that thou keep them from evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them in the truth. Thy word is truth.

18 Even as thou hast sent me into the world, ^v so I also have sent them into the world.

19 And for them I sanctify myself, that they also may be sanctified in truth.

20 Yet not for these only do I pray, but for those also who through their word are to believe in me, 21 that all may be one, even as thou, Father, in me and I in thee; ^w that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory that thou hast given me, I have given to them, that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them and thou in me; that they may be perfected in unity, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and that thou hast loved them even as thou hast loved me.

24 Father, I will that where I am they also whom thou hast given me may be with me; ^x in order that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me, because thou hast loved me before the creation of the world.

8.—^v John 20, 21.—^w John 14, 10f. 20.—^x John 12, 26; 14, 3.

tified: that they also may be set aside for God's work. In truth: i.e., "in contrast to all human purpose"; or for that truth which is to be the object of their mission, as it is of Christ's.

Ver. 22. Glory: cf. John 1, 12. 14. What Christ conferred upon His disciples was something of the divine nature, a further aspect of the principle of unity.

25 Just Father, the world has not known thee, but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me.

26 And I have made known to them thy name, and will make it known, in order that the love with which thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them."

2. THE PASSION AND DEATH OF JESUS

CHAPTER 18

Jesus Arrested

AFTER saying these things, ^y Jesus went forth with his disciples beyond the torrent of Cedron, where there was a garden into which he and his disciples entered.^z

2 Now Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, since Jesus had often met there together with his disciples.

3 Judas, then, taking the cohort, and attendants from the chief priests and Pharisees, came there with lanterns, and torches, and weapons.

4 Jesus therefore knowing all that was to come upon him, ^a went forth and said to them, "Whom do you seek?"

5 They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus said to them, "I am he." Now Judas, who betrayed him, was also standing with them.

6 When, therefore, he said to them, "I am he," they drew back and fell to the ground.

7 So he asked them again, "Whom do you seek?" And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth."

8 Jesus answered, "I have told you that I am he. If, therefore, you seek me, let these go their way."

9 That the word which he said might be fulfilled, ^b "Of those whom thou hast given me, I have not lost one."

10 Simon Peter therefore, having a sword, drew it and struck the servant of the high priest and cut off his right ear. Now the servant's name was Malchus.

^y 1-11: Matt. 26, 47-56; Mark 14, 43-52; Luke 22, 47-53.—^z 2 Kgs. 15, 23.—^a John 13, 1; 19, 28.—^b John 17, 12.—^c 12-27: Matt. 26, 57-75; Mark

11 Jesus therefore said to Peter, "Put up thy sword into the scabbard. Shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?"

Peter's Denial

12 The cohort therefore and the tribune and the attendants of the Jews seized Jesus and bound him.

13 And they brought him to Annas first, for he was the father-in-law of Caiphas, who was the high priest that year.

14 Now it was Caiphas ^d who had given the counsel to the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

15 But Simon Peter ^e was following Jesus, and so was another disciple. Now that disciple was known to the high priest, and he entered with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest.

16 But Peter was standing outside at the gate. So the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the portress, and brought Peter in.

17 The maid, who was portress, said therefore to Peter, "Art thou also one of this man's disciples?" He said, "I am not."

18 Now the servants and attendants were standing at a coal fire and warming themselves, for it was cold. And Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself.

19 The high priest therefore questioned Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his teaching.

20 Jesus answered him, "I have spoken openly ^f to the world; I have always taught in the synagogue and in the temple, where all the Jews gather, and in secret I have said nothing.

21 Why dost thou question me? Question those who have heard what I spoke to them; behold, these know what I have said."

22 Now when he had said these things, one of the attendants who was standing by struck ^g Jesus a blow, saying, "Is that 14, 53-72; Luke 22, 54-62.—^d John 11, 49f.—^e John 20, 3; Acts 3, 1.—^f John 7, 26; Matt. 10, 27.—^g John, 19, 3.

Chap. 18, Ver. 3. . . . the cohort: a military division of some 500 to 600 men. The term was also used for any part of the cohort stationed in Jerusalem during the feasts.

Ver. 13. Annas had been high priest and, although deposed, still wielded great influence. He was deeply interested in this affair. It is conjectured that he occupied the same residence as Caiphas. The inquisition described in vv. 19-24, and the denials of Peter, are to be associated with the trial conducted by Caiphas.

the way thou dost answer the high priest?"

23 Jesus answered him, "If I have spoken ill, bear witness to the evil; but if well, why dost thou strike me?"

24 And Annas sent him bound to Caiphas, the high priest.

25 But Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They therefore said to him, "Art thou also one of his disciples?" He denied it, and said, "I am not."

26 One of the servants of the high priest, a relative of him whose ear Peter had cut off, said, "Did I not see thee in the garden with him?"

27 Again, therefore, Peter denied it; and at that moment a cock crowed.

Jesus before Pilate

28 They therefore ^h led Jesus from Caiphas to the prætorium. Now it was early morning, and they themselves did not enter the prætorium, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover.

29 Pilate therefore went outside to them, and said, "What accusation do you bring against this man?"

30 They said to him in answer, "If he were not a criminal we should not have handed him over to thee."

31 Pilate therefore said to them, "Take him yourselves and judge him according to your law." The Jews, then, said to him, "It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death."

32 This ⁱ was in fulfilment of what Jesus had said, indicating the manner of his death.

33 Pilate therefore again entered into the prætorium, and he summoned Jesus, and said to him, "Art thou the king of the Jews?"

34 Jesus answered, "Dost thou say this of thyself, or have others told thee of me?"

35 Pilate answered, "Am I a Jew? Thy own people and the chief priests have delivered thee ^j to me. What hast thou done?"

^h 28-40: Matt. 27, 1f. 11-25; Mark 15, 1-15; Luke 23, 1-5. 13-25; John 11, 55.—ⁱ John 3, 14; 8, 28; 12, 32f.—^j John 18, 28.—^k John 8, 47; 10, 26f.

Ver. 24. If the preceding inquisition was conducted before Annas, then St. John omits the trial of Christ as narrated by the Synoptics.

36 Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, my followers would have fought that I might not be delivered to the Jews. But, as it is, my kingdom is not from here."

37 Pilate therefore said to him, "Thou art then a king?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest it; I am a king. This is why I was born, and why I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth ^k hears my voice."

38 Pilate said to him, "What is truth?"

And when he had said this, he went outside to the Jews again, and said to them, "I find no guilt in him."

39 But you have a custom that I should release someone to you at the Passover. Do you wish, therefore, that I release to you the king of the Jews?"

40 They all therefore cried out again, "Not this man, but Barabbas!" Now Barabbas was a robber.

CHAPTER 19

The Scourging and Crowning

PILATE, then, ^l took Jesus and had him scourged.

2 And the soldiers, plaiting a crown of thorns, put it upon his head, and arrayed him in a purple cloak.

3 And they kept coming to him and saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" and striking ^m him.

4 Pilate therefore again went outside and said to them, "Behold, ⁿ I bring him out to you, that you may know that I find no guilt in him."

5 Jesus therefore came forth, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak. And he said to them, "Behold, the man!"

6 ^o When, therefore, the chief priests and the attendants saw him, they cried out, saying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and crucify him, for I find no guilt in him."

7 The Jews answered him, ^p "We have a Law, and according to that Law he must ^l 1-16: Matt. 27, 26-31; Mark 15, 15-20; Luke 23, 13-25.—^m John 18, 22.—ⁿ John 19, 6; 18, 38.—^o John 19, 15; 18, 31.—^p John 10, 33; Lev. 24, 16.

Ver. 38. What is truth?: the question reflects the speculative skepticism of the time.

die, because he has made himself Son of God."

8 Now when Pilate heard this statement, he feared the more.

9 And he again went back into the prætorium, and said to Jesus, q "Where art thou from?" But Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Pilate therefore said to him, "Dost thou not speak to me? Dost thou not know that I have power to crucify thee, and that I have power to release thee?"

11 Jesus answered, "Thou wouldst have no power at all over me were it not given thee from above. Therefore, he who betrayed me to thee has the greater sin."

12 And from then on Pilate was looking for a way to release him. But the Jews cried out, saying, "If thou release this man, thou art no friend of Cæsar; for everyone who makes himself king r sets himself against Cæsar."

13 Pilate therefore, when he heard these words, brought Jesus outside, and sat down on the judgment-seat, at a place called Lithostrotos, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 Now it was s the Preparation Day for the Passover, about the sixth hour. And he said to the Jews, "Behold, your king!"

15 But they cried out, "Away with him! Away with him! t Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Shall I crucify your king?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king but Cæsar."

16 Then he handed him over to them to be crucified. And so they took Jesus and led him away.

The Crucifixion

17 And u bearing the cross for himself, he went forth to the place called the Skull, in Hebrew, Golgotha,

18 where they crucified him, and with q John 18, 33; Isa. 53, 7.—r Acts 17, 7.—s John 19, 31, 42; 18, 28.—t John 19, 6.—u 17-24: Matt. 27, 31-56; Mark 15, 20-41; Luke 23, 26-49.—v

Chap. 19, Ver. 11. Has the greater sin: in condemning Christ, Pilate was guilty of a sin against justice. Caiphas, however, sinned against both religion and justice. Pilate's offense was modified by his great fear and weakness. Caiphas shared the malice of the Jewish officials. Some hold the reference is to Judas.

Ver. 13. Judgment-seat: a rostrum or curule chair from which such sentences were officially pronounced. Lithostrotos: a stone pavement which, from Gabbatha (an elevated or cleared space), we may judge was a courtyard outside the prætorium.

him two others, one on each side and Jesus in the center.

19 And Pilate also wrote an inscription and had it put on the cross. And there was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 Many of the Jews therefore read this inscription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, in Greek and in Latin.

21 The chief priests of the Jews said therefore to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but, 'He said, I am the King of the Jews.'"

22 Pilate answered, "What I have written, I have written."

23 The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified him, took his garments and made of them four parts, to each soldier a part, and also the tunic. Now the tunic was without seam, woven in one piece from the top.

24 They therefore said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but let us cast lots for it, to see whose it shall be." That the Scripture might be fulfilled which says, v They divided my garments among them; and for my vesture they cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

The Death of Jesus

25 Now there were standing by the cross of Jesus his mother and his mother's sister, Mary of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When w Jesus, therefore, saw his mother and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he said to his mother, "Woman, behold, thy son."

27 Then he said to the disciple, "Behold, thy mother." And from that hour the disciple took her into his home.

28 After this Jesus, x knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the

Ps. 21, 19.—w John 13, 23; 2, 4.—x John 13, 3; 18, 4; Pss. 21, 16; 68, 22.

Ver. 14. Preparation Day: the day before the Passover or before the Sabbath. Sixth hour: i.e., about noon.

Ver. 17. And bearing the cross for himself: this was according to custom. From Matt. 27, 32 (and parallels) we learn that soon after setting out on the Way of the Cross Christ had to receive help. The Skull: the sense also of Golgotha, so called because of the shape of the rock, according to a common opinion.

Ver. 22. I have written: i.e., will remain written.

Scripture might be fulfilled, said, "I thirst."

29 Now there was standing there a vessel full of common wine; and having put a sponge soaked with the wine on a stalk of hyssop, they put it to his mouth.

30 Therefore, when Jesus had taken the wine, ^y he said, "It is consummated!" And bowing his head, he gave up his spirit.

The Burial

31 The Jews therefore, since it was the Preparation Day, in order that the bodies might not remain upon the cross ^z on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a solemn day), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 The soldiers therefore came and broke the legs of the first, and of the other, who had been crucified with him.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs;

34 but one of the soldiers opened his side with a lance, and immediately there came out ^a blood and water.

35 And he who saw it has borne witness, ^b and his witness is true; and he knows that he tells the truth, that you also may believe.

36 For these things came to pass that the Scripture might be fulfilled, ^c Not a bone of him shall you break.

37 And again another Scripture says, ^d They shall look upon him whom they have pierced.

38 Now ^e after these things Joseph of Arimathea, because he was a disciple of Jesus (although for fear of the Jews a secret one), besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus. And Pilate gave permission. He came, therefore, and took away the body of Jesus.

^y John 19, 28.—^z Deut. 21, 23; Ex. 12, 16.—^a 1 John 5, 6.—^b 1 John 1, 1-3; John 20, 31; 21, 24.—^c Ex. 12, 46; Num. 9, 12; Ps. 33, 21.—^d Zach. 12, 10; Apoc. 1, 7.—^e 38-42; Matt. 27, 57-61; Mark

Ver. 31. That their legs might be broken: this practice, known as the crurifragium, was a painful method of causing death. It was used when there was any reason for hastening the death of the crucified.

Ver. 34. Opened his side: the Greek text has "pierced." Blood and water: this phenomenon was considered a miracle by Origen. The Fathers generally see in it a deeper meaning: the sacred mysteries issu-

39 And there also came Nicodemus (^f who at first had come to Jesus by night), bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, in weight about a hundred pounds.

40 They therefore took the body of Jesus and wrapped it in linen cloths with the spices, after the Jewish manner of preparing for burial.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid.

42 There, accordingly, because of the Preparation Day of the Jews, for the tomb was close at hand, they laid Jesus.

3. THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS

CHAPTER 20

Mary Magdalene

NOW ^g on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene came early to the tomb, while it was still dark, and she saw the stone taken away from the tomb.

2 She ran therefore and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved, ^h and said to them, "They have taken the Lord from the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him."

3 Peter therefore went out, and the other disciple, and they went to the tomb.

4 The two were running together, and the other disciple ran on before, faster than Peter, and came first to the tomb.

5 And stooping down he saw the linen cloths ⁱ lying there, yet he did not enter.

6 Simon Peter therefore came following him, and he went into the tomb, and saw the linen cloths lying there,

7 and the handkerchief which had been about his head, not lying with the linen cloths, but folded in a place by itself.

15, 42-47; Luke 23, 50-55.—^f John 3, 1f.—^g 1-18; Matt. 28, 1-10; Mark 16, 1-8; Luke 24, 1-11; John 19, 25; 11, 39.—^h John 13, 23.—ⁱ John 19, 40.

ing from the side of Christ, the birth of the Church as Eve was taken from the side of Adam, etc. The fact may be explained naturally as the effect of the piercing of the pericardial sinus. Still it is generally accepted as miraculous.

Ver. 39. Myrrh and aloes: the first is an odorous resin, the other a scented wood. They were employed as ingredients in the ointment. A hundred pounds: about 70 pounds in our system of weights.

8 Then the other disciple also went in, who had come first to the tomb. And he saw and believed;

9 for as yet they did not understand the Scripture, that he must rise from j the dead.

10 The disciples therefore went away again to their home.

11 But Mary was standing outside weeping at the tomb. So, as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the tomb, 12 and saw two angels in white sitting, one at the head and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had been laid.

13 They said to her, "Woman, why art thou weeping?" She said to them, "Because they have taken away my Lord, k and I do not know where they have laid him."

14 When she had said this she turned round and beheld Jesus standing there, l and she did not know that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus said to her, "Woman, why art thou weeping? Whom dost thou seek?" She, thinking that he was the gardener, said to him, "Sir, if thou hast removed him, tell me where thou hast laid him and I will take him away."

16 Jesus said to her, "Mary!" Turning, she said to him, m "Rabboni!" (that is to say, Master).

17 Jesus said to her, "Do not touch me, for I have not yet ascended to my Father, but go to my brethren n and say to them, 'I ascend to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God.'"

18 Mary Magdalene came, and announced to the disciples, "I have seen the Lord, and these things he said to me."

The Disciples

19 When o it was late that same day, the first of the week, though the doors where the disciples gathered had been closed for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst and said to them, "Peace be to you!"

20 And when he had said this, he j Acts 2, 25ff; 1 Cor. 15, 4.—k John 20, 2.—l John 21, 4.—m John 1, 38.—n Heb. 2, 11.—o 19-23: Mark 16, 14; Luke 24, 36-43; John 20, 26; 7, 13.—

Chap. 20, Ver. 17. Do not touch me: in her joy Mary had cast herself at Christ's feet, embracing them in her reverent affection. But he tells her not showed them his hands and his side. The disciples therefore rejoiced at the sight of the Lord.

21 He therefore said to them again, "Peace be to you! As the Father has sent me, p I also send you."

22 When he had said this, he breathed upon them, and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit;

23 whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

Thomas

24 Now Thomas, q one of the Twelve, called the Twin, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said to him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the place of the nails, and put my hand into his side, r I will not believe."

26 And after eight days, his disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, the doors being closed, and stood in their midst, and said, "Peace be to you!"

27 Then he said to Thomas, "Bring here thy finger, and see my hands; and bring here thy hand, and put it into my side; and be not unbelieving, but believing."

28 Thomas answered and said to him, "My Lord and my God!"

29 Jesus said to him, "Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they who have not seen, and yet have believed."

The Evangelist's Epilogue

30 Many other signs s also Jesus worked in the sight of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

31 But these are written t that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in his name.

p John 17, 18.—q John 11, 16; 14, 5.—r John 19, 34.—s John 21, 25.—t 1 John 5, 13.

to delay thus, "but go, tell my brethren," etc. The reference to the Ascension is parenthetical.

CHAPTER 21

The Manifestation in Galilee

AFTER these things, Jesus manifested himself ^u again at the sea of Tiberias. Now he manifested himself in this way.

2 There were together Simon Peter and Thomas, called the Twin, and ^vNathanael, from Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We also are going with thee." And they went out and got into the boat. And that night they caught nothing.

4 But when day was breaking, Jesus stood on the beach; yet the disciples did not know that it was Jesus.

5 Then Jesus said to them, "Young men, have you any fish?" They answered him, "No."

6 He said to them, "Cast the net to the right of the boat and you will find them." They cast therefore, and now they were unable to draw it up for the great number of fishes.

7 The disciple whom Jesus loved said therefore to Peter, "It is the Lord." Simon Peter therefore, hearing that it was the Lord, girt his tunic about him, for he was stripped, ^w and threw himself into the sea.

8 But the other disciples came with the boat (for they were not far from land, only about two hundred cubits off), dragging the net full of fishes.

9 When, therefore, they had landed, they saw a fire ready, and a fish laid upon it, and bread.

10 Jesus said to them, "Bring here some of the fishes that you caught just now."

11 Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net onto the land full of large fishes, one hundred and fifty-three in number. And though there were so many, the net was not torn.

12 Jesus said to them, "Come and breakfast." And none of those reclining dared ask him, "Who art thou?" knowing that it was the Lord.

13 And Jesus came and took the bread, and gave it to them, and likewise the fish.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after he had risen from the dead.

The Primacy of Peter

15 When, therefore, they had breakfasted, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me more than these do?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my lambs."

16 He said to him a second time, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my lambs."

17 A third time he said to him, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me?" Peter was grieved because he said to him for the third time, "Dost thou love me?" And he said to him, "Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my sheep."

18 Amen, amen, I say to thee, when thou wast young thou didst gird thyself and walk where thou wouldst. But when thou art old thou wilt stretch forth thy hands, and another will gird thee, and lead thee where thou wouldst not."

19 Now ^x this he said to signify by what manner of death he should glorify God. And having spoken thus, he said to him, "Follow me."

20 Turning round, Peter saw following them the disciple whom Jesus loved, ^y the one who, at the supper, had leaned back upon his breast and said, "Lord, who is it that will betray thee?"

21 Peter therefore, seeing him, said to Jesus, "Lord, and what of this man?"

^u John 20, 19. 26.—^v John 1, 45; 2, 1.—^w 1 Kgs. 19, 24; Isa. 20, 2.—^x John 13, 36.—^y John 13, 23, 25.

Chap. 21, Ver. 7. Tunic: a garment worn over another garment. The Greek term was used of a tradesman's apron. Stripped: i.e., divested of this outer garment.

Ver. 12. The Greek text, and some Manuscripts of the Vulgate, read: "And none of the disciples." The sense is not altered, since only the disciples are here in question.

22 Jesus said to him, "If I wish him to remain until I come, what is it to thee? Do thou follow me."

23 This saying therefore went abroad among the brethren, that that disciple was not to die. But Jesus had not said to him, "He is not to die"; but rather, "If I wish him to remain until I come, what is it to thee?"

^z John 15, 27; 19, 35.—^a John 20, 30.

Ver. 24. And we know: the plural is probably St. John speaking for himself and the Christian community. In John 1, 14. 16 he also associates others with 24 This is the disciple who bears witness^z concerning these things, and who has written these things, and we know that his witness is true.

Second Epilogue

25 There are, however, ^a many other things that Jesus did; but if every one of these should be written, not even the world itself, I think, could hold the books that would have to be written. Amen.

himself. It is not the editorial "we." Some think that it is the elders of Ephesus attesting the veracity of the Gospel, but this is less likely.

ACTS of the APOSTLES

THIS BOOK was written about 63 A.D. by St. Luke, the author of the third Gospel. It ends with the statement that St. Paul preached in Rome for two years while still under arrest. St. Luke had been with him on the voyage from Palestine to Rome, since the account of this voyage is given in the first person plural, and he was still with him, as is clear from the Epistle to Philemon, when the Apostle was confident of soon being released. From this final statement it appears that the book dates from the close of the two years' imprisonment (63 A.D.), but before St. Paul's acquittal.

Beginning with our Lord's farewell instructions to the Apostles just before His Ascension, it first narrates the chief events in the history of the infant Church up to about the year 42, when St. Peter definitely departed from Palestine. A feature of the latter part of this period was the new policy of preaching the Gospel to the Gentiles. From this point the Acts traces the spread of the Church, principally through the missionary journeys of St. Paul, and closes with a short account of his labors in Rome. In this way it covers a period of about thirty-five years from the Ascension to the second year of St. Paul's imprisonment. Keeping to the main course of events as showing the growth of the Church, it is silent about the internal development of the churches after their establishment; many of these internal details are recorded in the Epistles of St. Paul, but without in any way contradicting the general facts given by St. Luke.

The Acts is a necessary and beautiful supplement to the history of the Gospels, describing with great accuracy and literary charm the fulfillment of our Lord's promise to send the Holy Spirit to sanctify and guide His Church, and so it has aptly been called the Gospel of the Holy Spirit.

Prelude

CHAPTER 1

The Ascension

IN THE former book, O Theophilus, I spoke of all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning

2 until the day on which he was taken up, after he had given commandments through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen.

3 To them also he showed himself alive after his passion by many proofs, during forty days appearing to them and speaking of the kingdom of God.

4 And while eating with them,^a he charged them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, "of which you have heard," said he, "by my mouth;

5 for John indeed baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence."

6 They therefore who had come together began to ask him, saying, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?"

7 But he said to them, "It is not for you to know the times or dates which the Father has fixed by his own authority;

8 but ^byou shall receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you, and you shall be witnesses for me in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and even to the very ends of the earth."

9 And when he had said this, he was lifted up before their eyes, and a cloud took him out of their sight.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. As the comparison here is merely between the Gospel of St. Luke and the Acts, the Greek "first" is translated by "former."

Ver. 3. Proofs: the apparitions of our Lord, together with His words and actions, which served to establish the reality of His Resurrection. Speaking: in Greek, "speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God"; these instructions were a direct preparation for their work in establishing and guiding the Church.

Ver. 4. Eating: in some Manuscripts and translations, "being assembled together." Promise: the Holy Spirit who had been promised to them.

Ver. 5. You shall be baptized: not the sacrament of Baptism, which they had already undoubtedly received, but the fuller outpouring of the Holy Spirit on Pentecost.

10 And while they were gazing up to heaven as he went, behold, two men stood by them in white garments,

11 and said to them, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up to heaven? This Jesus who has been taken up from you into heaven, shall come in the same way as you have seen him going up to heaven."

12 Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey.

13 And when they had entered the city, they mounted to the upper room where were staying Peter and John, James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon the Zealot, and Jude the brother of James.

14 All these with one mind continued steadfastly in prayer with the women and Mary, the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

Matthias Chosen

15 In those days Peter stood up in the midst of the brethren (now the number of persons met together was about a hundred and twenty), and he said,

16 "Brethren, the Scripture must be fulfilled ^cwhich the Holy Spirit declared before by the mouth of David concerning Judas, who was the guide of those who arrested Jesus;

17 inasmuch as he had been numbered among us and was allotted his share in this ministry.

18 And he indeed bought a field with the price of his iniquity and, being hanged,

^a Luke 24, 49; John 14, 26; Matt. 3, 11; Mark 1, 8; Luke 3, 16; John 1, 26.—^b Acts 2, 2; Luke 24, 48.—^c Ps. 40, 10; John 13, 18.

Ver. 6. They: the persons of v. 4; after eating with them, our Lord led them towards the place of the Ascension on Mount Olivet [Luke 24, 50]. Restore: they are thinking only of the external splendor and power of the ancient political kingdom, according to some Catholic writers. But it is altogether likely that the Apostles at this time had a more spiritual view of the kingdom, though this view was still imperfect.

Ver. 7. The answer indicates that the kingdom they had asked about was that of which He was the King.

Ver. 10. Two men: angels in human form.

Ver. 11. In the same way: on the clouds.

Ver. 12. Sabbath day's journey: about two-thirds of a mile.

Ver. 13. The relationship of James and Alphaeus, and of Jude and James, is not indicated in the text.

Ver. 14. Brethren: relatives, probably cousins.

burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that the field came to be called in their language Haceldama, that is, the Field of Blood.

20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, d Let their habitation become desolate and let there be none to dwell in it. And, His ministry let another take.

21 Therefore, of these men who have been in our company all the time that the Lord Jesus moved among us,

22 from John's baptism until the day that he was taken up from us, of these one must become a witness with us of his resurrection."

23 And they put forward two: Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed and said, "Thou, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all, show which of these two thou hast chosen

25 to take the place in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas fell away to go to his own place."

26 And they drew lots between them, and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

I: THE CHURCH IN PALESTINE AND SYRIA

1. GROWTH OF THE CHURCH IN JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 2

Descent of the Holy Spirit

AND when the days of Pentecost were drawing to a close, they were all together in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a violent wind blowing, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting.

Ver. 18f. May be a parenthesis inserted in the speech by St. Luke; the explanation of the word "Haceldama" would not have been necessary for St. Peter's hearers. Judas hanged himself [Matt. 27, 5] and then fell to the ground when the rope or branch broke. Being hanged: in Greek, "having fallen forward"; or perhaps, "having swollen up."

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. Days: in Greek, "day"; the feast of Pentecost was celebrated on the last day of the period of fifty days after the Passover. The feast began at sunset of what we call the previous day.

3 And there appeared to them parted tongues as of fire, which settled upon each of them.

4 e And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in foreign tongues, even as the Holy Spirit prompted them to speak.

5 Now there were staying at Jerusalem devout Jews from every nation under heaven.

6 And when this sound was heard, the multitude gathered and were bewildered in mind, because each heard them speaking in his own language.

7 But they were all amazed and marvelled, saying, "Behold are not all these that are speaking Galileans?"

8 And how have we heard each his own language in which he was born?

9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and inhabitants of Mesopotamia, Judea, and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,

10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and visitors from Rome,

11 Jews also and proselytes, Cretans and Arabians, we have heard them speaking in our own languages of the wonderful works of God."

12 And all were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, "What does this mean?"

13 But others said in mockery, "They are full of new wine."

Peter's Discourse

14 But Peter, standing up with the Eleven, lifted up his voice and spoke out to them: "Men of Judea and all you who dwell in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and give ear to my words.

15 These men are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only the third hour of the day.

d Pss. 68, 26; 108, 8.—e Acts 1, 8; 11, 16; 19, 6; John 7, 9.

Ver. 3. Parted tongues: in Greek, "tongues distributing themselves," as from a central source.

Ver. 4. Foreign tongues: languages unknown to the speakers. Literally, "different tongues," i.e., different from their own speech.

Ver. 6. Sound: that of v. 2, "as of a violent wind." Language: in Greek, "in his own dialect."

Ver. 11. Works of God: they uttered exclamations of joyful praise, not words of instruction.

Ver. 15. Third hour: nine in the morning, since the hours were counted from sunrise at about six.

16 But this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel:

17 And it shall come to pass in the last days, says the Lord, that I will pour forth of my Spirit upon all flesh and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams.

18 And moreover upon my servants and upon my handmaids in those days will I pour forth of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy.

19 And I will show wonders in the heavens above and signs on the earth beneath, blood and fire and vapor of smoke.

20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the day of the Lord comes, the great and manifest day.

21 And it shall come to pass that whosoever calls upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved.

22 Men of Israel, hear these words. Jesus of Nazareth was a man approved by God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did through him in the midst of you, as you yourselves know.

23 Him, when delivered up by the settled purpose and foreknowledge of God, you have crucified and slain by the hands of wicked men.

24 But God has raised him up, having loosed the sorrows of hell, because it was not possible that he should be held fast by it.

25 For David says with reference to him, h I saw the Lord before me always, because he is at my right hand, lest I be moved.

26 This is why my heart has made merry and my tongue has rejoiced; moreover my flesh also will rest in hope, f Isa. 44, 3; Joel 2, 28.—g Rom. 10, 13.—h Ps. 15, 8.—i 3 Kgs. 2, 10.—j Ps. 131, 11.—k Acts 13, 35; Ps. 15, 10.—l Ps. 109, 1.

Ver. 23. Crucified: according to the Greek and most Latin Manuscripts, affligentes, "fastening to (the cross)." The affligentes ("afflicting") of our Clementine Latin Bible appears to be a corruption of affigentes, attested not only by the original text but by good Latin texts.

Ver. 24. Hell: limbo, where the souls of the just awaited the redemption; in Greek, "death." In both readings the thought is of all that makes death grievous, beginning with the state of separation of soul and body.

Ver. 33. Exalted: at the Ascension, when the sacred humanity received its full glorification in 27 because thou wilt not abandon my soul to hell, neither wilt thou let thy Holy One undergo decay.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou wilt fill me with joy in thy presence.

29 Brethren, let me say to you freely of the patriarch David i that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this very day.

30 Therefore, since he was a prophet and knew that God i 'had sworn to him with an oath that of the fruit of his loins one should sit upon his throne,'

31 he, foreseeing it, spoke of the resurrection of the Christ. k For neither was he abandoned to hell, nor did his flesh undergo decay.

32 This Jesus God has raised up, and we are all witnesses of it.

33 Therefore, exalted by the right hand of God, and receiving from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured forth this Spirit which you see and hear.

34 For David did not ascend into heaven, but he says himself, l The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, 35 until I make thy enemies thy footstool.

36 Therefore, let all the house of Israel know most assuredly that God has made both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom you crucified."

The Result

37 Now on hearing this they were pierced to the heart and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Brethren, what shall we do?"

38 But Peter said to them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.

39 For to you is the promise and to your children and to all who are far off, heaven. Promise: the Holy Spirit as promised. As man Christ, now in heavenly glory, receives the fulfillment of the promise concerning the sending of the Holy Spirit. Christ sends the Holy Spirit and this effusion of the Spirit brought about what was heard and seen.

Ver. 36. Made: manifestly proved the divinity of our Lord and His office as Messiah. By the Resurrection and Ascension Jesus enters on the perfect glory belonging to Him and is proved to be the Son of God and the Messiah (Christ).

Ver. 39. Far off: the Gentiles; the Church is universal.

even to all whom the Lord our God calls to himself."

40 And with very many other words he bore witness, and exhorted them, saying, "Save yourselves from this perverse generation."

41 Now they who received his word were baptized, and there were added that day about three thousand souls.

Fervor of the Early Church

42 And they continued steadfastly in the teaching of the apostles and in the communion of the breaking of the bread and in the prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul; many wonders also and signs were done by means of the apostles in Jerusalem, and great fear came upon all.

44 And all who believed were together and held all things in common,

45 and would sell their possessions and goods and distribute them among all according as anyone had need.

46 And continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread in their houses, they took their food with gladness and simplicity of heart, 47 praising God and being in favor with all the people. And day by day the Lord added to their company such as were to be saved.

CHAPTER 3

A Lame Beggar

NOW Peter and John were going up into the temple at the ninth hour of prayer.

2 And a certain man who had been lame from his mother's womb, was being carried by, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple called the Beautiful, that he might ask alms of those going into the temple.

3 And he, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked for an alms.

4 But Peter, gazing upon him with John, said, "Look at us."

5 And he looked at them earnestly, hoping to receive something from them.

6 But Peter said, "Silver and gold I have none; but what I have, that I give thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, arise and walk."

7 And taking him by the right hand, he raised him up, and immediately his feet and ankles became strong.

8 And leaping up, he stood and began to walk, and went with them into the temple, walking and leaping and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God.

10 And they recognized him as the man who used to sit for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple, and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

11 Now as he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran to them in the portico called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

Peter's Discourse

12 But when Peter saw it, he said to the people: "Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by any power or holiness of our own we had made this man walk?"

13 The God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his Son Jesus, whom you indeed delivered up and dis-

Ver. 42. Communion, etc.: in Greek, "in the fellowship" (the Church as a distinct society), "in the breaking of bread" (the Eucharist). In the prayers: certain prayers said in common or already taught them by the Apostles; a liturgy was developing.

Ver. 44. In common: all were ready to help the needy and, as occasion demanded, they even sold their possessions to do so; this spirit of fraternal charity is widely different from modern Communism.

Ver. 46. The temple: there was to be no sudden break with the past, but the disciples had their own sacrifice, the Eucharist, in their houses where they also took their evening meal beforehand, as our Lord did at the institution of the Eucharist. Some take "breaking bread" in the sense of an ordinary meal, and not, as in v. 42, in the sense of the Eucharist.

Ver. 47. Day by day, etc., literally, "increased daily together those who were being saved"; in Greek, "added the saved day by day together," i.e., daily joined new converts to the community of Christians.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Ninth hour: about three in the afternoon, the time of the evening sacrifice.

Ver. 2. Beautiful: probably the gate from the Court of the Gentiles to the Court of the Women.

Ver. 11. Solomon's: the colonnade running along the eastern side of the temple.

Ver. 12. Holiness: the Clementine Vulgate reads "ability."

Ver. 13. Son: the Greek word may mean either "son" or "servant"; "servant" is probably intended here because of the reference in v. 18 to the "suffering servant" of Isa. 53, i.e., the Messiah.

Events in the Life of Christ Interpreted by the Old Masters

THESE PICTURES are examples of Christian art during a period extending from the 15th century almost to the present day. They are by painters of the early Italian Renaissance, of 16th century Holland and Flanders, of 19th century England and Germany, and of 18th and 19th century Denmark. Many pictures in this group are by Carl Bloch, most of them from a series on the life of Christ which he did for the Oratory of Frederiksborg Castle, in Denmark. The total representation by Danish artists testifies to the continuing vigor of religious inspiration in Danish art. All the pictures are examples of the inspiration of the New Testament for artists throughout many centuries and throughout the Christian world.

But the pictures tell only a fraction of the story. The full story is to be found in the four Gospels — in the words Jesus spoke, in the message unfolded by His teaching, and in the effect of those words and of that message in New Testament times and in all the succeeding centuries. As Jesus prophesied, His words have not passed away. They continue to stir men's minds and hearts; they continue to challenge men to seek the abundance of a truly religious life. The picture of that life is contained in His message.

CAMERA CLIX

Adoration of the Shepherds, Landesmuseum, Hanover
Abraham Bloemaert (1564?-1651?), Dutch School

Luke 2:16 "So they went with haste, and they found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger."

CAMERA CLIX

Adoration of the Kings, Musée des Beaux Arts, Strasbourg
Master of the Half Figures (identity unknown), Flemish School, early 16th century

Mat. 2:11 "And entering the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they worshipped him."

Jesus among the Doctors in the Temple, Doria-Pamphili Gallery, Rome
Lodovico Mazzolini (1480?-1530?), Italian School

Luke 2:47 "And all who were listening to him were amazed at his understanding and his answers."

Christ's Temptation, Frederiksborg Castle, Denmark
Carl Bloch (1834-1890), Danish School

Mark 1:13 "And he was in the desert forty days and forty nights, being tempted the while by Satan."

CAMERA CLIX

Jesus Calling His First Disciples, Soro Amts Museum, Denmark
Christian Dalgaard (1824-1907), Danish School

Mat. 4:19 "And he said to them, 'Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.'"

Sermon on the Mount, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Mat. 5:7 "And opening his mouth he taught them, saying, . . ."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Bidding His Disciples to Preach the Kingdom of God, Castle Chapel, Celle, Germany
Marten de Vos (1532-1603), Flemish School

Mat. 10:7 "And as you go, preach the message, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand!'"

CAMERA CLIX

The Woman of Samaria, City Museum and Art Gallery, Birmingham
William Dyce (1806-1864), British (Scottish) School

John 4:7 "There came a Samaritan woman to draw water. Jesus said to her, 'Give me to drink!'"

CAMERA CLIX

Christ at the Pool of Bethesda, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

John 5:8 "Jesus said to him, 'Rise, take up thy pallet and walk.'"

Christ Consoling the Oppressed, Landskrone Church, Skaane, Sweden
Carl Bloch

Mat. 11:28 "Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Preaching from a Boat, Church of the Holy Ghost, Copenhagen
Adam Mueller (1811-1844), Danish School

Mark 4:1 "And again he began to teach by the water's edge."

CAMERA CLIN

Christ and the Woman of Canaan, Academy, Venice
Palma il Vecchio [The Elder] (1480-1528), Italian School

Mat. 15:25 "But she came and worshipped him, saying, 'Lord, help me!'"

CAMERA CLIX

Transfiguration, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Mat. 17:2 "And was transfigured before them. And his face shone as the sun, and his garments became white as snow."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Visiting Martha and Mary, Alslev Church, Denmark
Frederick Ludwig Storch (1805-1883), Danish School

Luke 10:39 "And she had a sister called Mary, who also seated herself at the Lord's feet, and listened to his word."

CAMERA CLIX

Suffer Little Children to Come unto Me, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Mat. 19:14 "But Jesus said to them, 'Let the little children be, and do not hinder them from coming to me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven.'"

CAMERA CLIX

Christ and the Sinful Woman, Alsted Church, Denmark
Anton Dorph (1831-1914), Danish School

John 8:11 "Then Jesus said, 'Neither will I condemn thee. Go thy way, and from now on sin no more.'"

Christ's Entrance into Jerusalem, Städtisches Museum, Wuppertal
Eduard von Gebhardt (1838-1925), German School

Mat. 21:8 "And most of the crowd spread their cloaks upon the road, while others were cutting branches from the trees, and strewing them on the road."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Chasing the Moneylenders from the Temple, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Mat. 21:12 "And Jesus entered the temple of God, and cast out all those who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money-changers."

CAMERA CLIX

Render unto Caesar, Copenhagen Gallery
Anton Dorph

Mat. 22:21 "Then he said to them, 'Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's.'"

CAMERA CLIX

The Last Supper, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Mat. 26:20 "Now when evening arrived, he reclined at table with the twelve disciples."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Washing the Feet of His Disciples, Lyderslev Church, Denmark
Jörgen Roed (1808-1888), Danish School

John 13:5 "And began to wash the feet of the disciples, and to dry them with the towel."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ in Gethsemane, Taastrup Church, Denmark
Henrik Olrik (1830-1890), Danish School

Mark 14:25 "And going forward a little, he fell on the ground, and began to pray that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him."

CAMERA CLIX

Peter's Denial, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

John 18:27 "Again, therefore, Peter denied it; and at that moment a cock crowed."

Crucifixion, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

Luke 23:33 "And when they came to the place called the Skull, they crucified him there"

CAMERA CLIX

Entombment, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch

John 19:41-42 "...and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid. There they laid Jesus."

CAMERA CUTX

Resurrection, Slaglille Church, Denmark
Constantin Hansen (1804-1880), Danish School

Mat. 28:8-9 "...and ran to tell his disciples. And behold, Jesus met them, saying, Peace!"

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Appearing to Mary Magdalene as a Gardener, Louvre, Paris
Lorenzo di Credi (1459?-1537), Italian School

John 20:15 "She, thinking that he was the gardener, said to him, 'Sir, if thou hast removed him, tell me where thou hast laid him and I will take him away.'"

CAMERA CLIX

The Walk to Emmaus, Egeskov Church, Denmark
Constantin Hansen

Luke 24:15 "And it came to pass, while they were conversing and arguing together, that Jesus himself also drew near and went along with them."

CAMERA CLIX

The Supper at Emmaus, Loderup Church, Skaane, Sweden
Carl Bloch

Luke 24:30 "And it came to pass when he reclined at table with them, that he took the bread and blessed and broke and began handing it to them."

CAMERA CLIX

The Doubting Thomas, Uggerløse Church, Denmark
Carl Bloch

John 20:28 "Thomas answered and said to him, 'My Lord and my God!'"

CAMERA CLIX

The Ascension, Helligaandshuset Church, Denmark
Hendrik Krock (1671-1738), Danish School

Mark 16:19 "So then the Lord, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven, and sits at the right hand of God."

owned before the face of Pilate, when he had decided that he should be released.

14 But ^m you disowned the Holy and Just One, and asked that a murderer should be granted to you;

15 but the author of life you killed, whom God has raised up from the dead; whereof we are witnesses.

16 And it is his name, by means of faith in his name, that has made strong this man whom you behold and recognize; moreover it is the faith that comes through Jesus that has given him the perfect health you all see.

17 And now, brethren, I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers.

18 But in this way God fulfilled what he had announced beforehand by the mouth of all the prophets, namely, that his Christ should suffer.

19 Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out

20 in order that, when the times of refreshment shall come from the presence of the Lord, he may send him who has been preached to you, Jesus Christ.

21 For heaven indeed must receive him until the times of the restoration of all things, of which God has spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets who have been from of old.

22 For Moses said, ⁿ the Lord your God shall raise up to you a prophet from among your brethren, as he raised up me; to him you shall hearken in all things that he shall speak to you.

23 And it shall be that every soul that will not hearken to that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.

24 And all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel onwards, have also announced these days.

25 You are the children of the prophets and of the covenant that God made with your fathers, saying to Abraham, ^o And in thy offspring shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

26 To you first God, raising up his Son, has sent him to bless you, that everyone may turn from his wickedness."

CHAPTER 4

Arrest and Release of Peter and John

NOW while they were speaking to the people, the priests and the officer of the temple and the Sadducees came upon them,

2 being grieved because they were teaching the people and proclaiming in the case of Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

3 And they set hands upon them and placed them in custody till the next day; for it was already evening.

4 But many of those who had heard the word believed, and the number of the men came to be five thousand.

5 Now it came to pass on the morrow that their rulers and elders and Scribes were gathered together in Jerusalem

6 with Annas, the high priest, and Caiphas and John and Alexander and as many as belonged to the high-priestly family.

7 And setting them in the midst, they began to inquire, "By what authority or in what name have you done this?"

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders,

9 if we are on trial today about a good work done to a cripple, as to how this man has been cured,

^m Matt. 27, 20; Mark 15, 11; Luke 23, 18; John 18, 40.—ⁿ Deut. 18, 15.—^o Gen. 12, 3.

"brethren, you shall hear him as you hear me."

Ver. 26. Son: the Greek word may mean either "son" or "servant"; "servant" is probably intended here because of the reference in v. 18 to the "suffering servant" of Isa. 53, i.e., the Messiah.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. The officer: a priest, next in dignity to the high priest, who had general charge of the temple. Most of the priests were Sadducees, one of whose doctrines was a denial of the resurrection of the dead.

Ver. 6. Annas, though deposed by the Romans in favor of his son-in-law Caiphas, was still head of the high-priestly family and was probably looked upon by the Jews as the true high priest since, according to the Law, the office was held for life.

Ver. 16. Faith in Christ (in the name of Christ) is the true explanation of the miracle.

Ver. 18. All the prophets: the prophets as a group. The suffering is most fully described in Ps. 21 and in Isa. 53.

Ver. 20. In order that, etc.: in Greek, "in order that times of refreshment may come from the presence of the Lord and he may send the Christ appointed beforehand for you, Jesus." The times of refreshment are the same as the times of the restoration in the next verse. Cf. 2 Pet. 3, 11-13.

Ver. 22. As he raised up me, or "like me": both Christ and Moses were mediators between God and man; on the superiority of Christ to Moses as mediator see Heb. 3, 1-6. Some Vulgate Manuscripts read:

10 be it known to all of you and to all the people of Israel that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, whom God has raised from the dead, even in this name does he stand here before you, sound.

11 This is p The stone that was rejected by you, the builders, which has become the corner stone.

12 Neither is there salvation in any other. For there is no other name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved."

13 Now seeing the boldness of Peter and John, and finding that they were uneducated and ordinary men, they began to marvel, and to recognize them as having been with Jesus.

14 And seeing the man who had been cured standing with them, they could say nothing in reply.

15 So they ordered them to withdraw from the council chamber; and they conferred together, 16 saying, "What shall we do with these men? For that indeed an evident miracle has been done by them is manifest to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it.

17 But lest it spread further among the people, let us warn them to speak no more about this name to any man."

18 And summoning them, they charged them not to speak or to teach at all in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered and said to them, "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, decide for yourselves.

20 For we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard."

21 But they, after threatening them, let them go, not finding any way of punishing them, because of the people; for all were glorifying what had come to pass.

22 For the man upon whom this miraculous cure had been done was more than forty years old.

Ver. 13. Uneducated and ordinary: not trained in the rabbinical traditions, and having no authority to teach.

Ver. 21. Glorifying, etc.: in Greek, "glorifying God on account of what had come to pass." In Latin, literally, "glorifying what had been done in that which had come to pass."

Ver. 32. In common: as in Acts 2, 44, while they still held private property, all were ready to use it

Thanksgiving

23 Now after their dismissal, they came to their companions and reported all that the chief priests and the elders had said to them.

24 But they, when they heard it, lifted up their voice with one accord to God and said, "Lord, it is thou who didst make heaven and earth and the sea and all that is in them, 25 who didst say by the Holy Spirit through the mouth of our father David, thy servant, q Why did the Gentiles rage and the peoples plan vain things?

26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers assembled together against the Lord and against his Christ.

27 For of a truth there assembled together in this city against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, Herod and Pontius Pilate with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, 28 to do what thy hand and thy counsel decreed to be done.

29 And now, Lord, take note of their threats, and grant to thy servants to speak thy word with all boldness,

30 while thou stretchest forth thy hand to cures and signs and wonders to be wrought by the name of thy holy servant Jesus."

31 And when they had prayed, the place where they had assembled was shaken, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and spoke the word of God with boldness.

Manner of Life of Christians

32 Now the multitude of the believers were of one heart and one soul, and not one of them said that anything he possessed was his own, but they had all things in common.

33 And with great power the apostles gave testimony to the resurrection of p Ps. 117, 22; Isa. 28, 16; Matt. 21, 42; Mark 12, 10; Luke 20, 17; Rom. 9, 33; 1 Pet. 2, 7.—q Ps. 2, 1.

for those in want, and the more fervent went to the extent of selling their possessions in whole or in part and turning over the proceeds to a fund for the poor. That this latter practice was not obligatory or general, even in Jerusalem, is clear from the special mention of Barnabas in v. 36, and from Acts 5, 4, where Ananias is reminded that he need not have sold his land, and that, if he did, he need not have given the money to the Apostles.

Jesus Christ our Lord; and great grace was in them all.

34 Nor was there anyone among them in want. For those who owned lands or houses would sell them and bring the price of what they sold 35 and lay it at the feet of the apostles, and distribution was made to each, according as any one had need.

36 Now Joseph, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas (which is translated Son of Consolation), a Levite and a native of Cyprus, 37 sold the field that he had, and brought the price and laid it at the feet of the apostles.

CHAPTER 5

Ananias and Sapphira

A MAN named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a piece of land

2 and by fraud kept back part of the price of the land, with the connivance of his wife, and bringing a part only, laid it at the feet of the apostles.

3 But Peter said, "Ananias, why has Satan tempted thy heart, that thou shouldst lie to the Holy Spirit and by fraud keep back part of the price of the land?

4 While it yet remained, did it not remain thine; and after it was sold, was not the money at thy disposal? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thy heart? Thou hast not lied to men, but to God."

5 And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down and expired. And great fear came upon all who heard of it.

6 And the young men got up and removed him and, carrying him out, buried him.

7 About three hours later his wife, not knowing what had happened, came in.

8 And Peter said to her, "Tell me, did you sell the land for so much?" And she said, "Yes, for so much."

9 And Peter said to her, "Why have you agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? Behold the feet of those who have buried thy husband are at the door, and they will carry thee out."

10 And she fell down immediately at his feet and expired. And the young men, coming in, found her dead, and carrying her out they buried her beside her husband.

11 And great fear came upon the whole church and upon all who heard of this.

Miracles

12 Now by the hands of the apostles many signs and wonders were done among the people. And with one accord they all would meet in Solomon's portico;

13 but of the rest, no one dared to associate with them, yet the people made much of them.

14 And the multitude of men and women who believed in the Lord increased still more,

15 so that they carried the sick into the streets and laid them on beds and pallets that, when Peter passed, his shadow at least might fall on some of them.

16 And there came also multitudes from the towns near Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those troubled with unclean spirits, and they were all cured.

Arrest of the Apostles

17 But the high priest rose up, and all those who were with him (that is, the party of the Sadducees), and being filled with jealousy

18 seized the apostles and put them in the public prison.

19 But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison and led them out, and said,

20 "Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life."

21 And when they heard this, they went into the temple about daybreak and began to teach.

But the chief priest and his party came and they called together the Sanhedrin and all the elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came and, opening the prison, did not find them there, they returned and reported,

Chap. 5, Ver. 6. Removed him: the Greek reads, "wrapped him up."

Ver. 13. The rest, the people: refer to the same persons, i.e., those not converted. They were afraid of the Jewish authorities.

Ver. 22. And, opening, etc.: in Greek, "they did not find them in the prison and, returning, they reported, saying."

23 saying, "The prison indeed we found securely locked, and the guards standing before the doors, but on opening it we found no one inside."

24 Now when the officer of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were much perplexed concerning them as to what might come of this.

25 But someone came and told them, "Behold, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people."

26 Then the captain went off with the officers and brought them without violence, for they feared the people lest they should be stoned.

27 And having brought them, they set them before the Sanhedrin. And the high priest questioned them,

28 saying, "We strictly charged you not to teach in this name, and behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and want to bring this man's blood upon us."

29 But Peter and the apostles answered and said, "We must obey God rather than men.

30 The God of our fathers raised Jesus, whom you put to death, hanging him on a tree.

31 Him God exalted with his right hand to be Prince and Savior, to grant repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins.

32 And we are witnesses of these things, and so is the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to all who obey him."

33 But they, when they heard this, were cut to the heart and wanted to slay them.

34 But there stood up one in the Sanhedrin, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the Law respected by all the people, and he ordered that the men be put outside for a little while.

35 And he said to them, "Men of Israel, take care what you are about to do to these men.

36 For some time ago there rose up Theodas, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him; but he was slain, and all his followers were dispersed and he was brought to nothing.

37 After him rose up Judas the Galilean in the days of the census and drew some people after him; he too perished, and all his followers were scattered abroad.

38 So now I say to you, keep away from these men and let them alone. For if this plan or work is of men, it will be overthrown;

39 but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow it. Else perhaps you may find yourselves fighting even against God."

And they agreed with him,

40 and, calling in the apostles and having them scourged, they charged them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and then let them go.

41 So they departed from the presence of the Sanhedrin, rejoicing that they had been counted worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus.

42 And they did not for a single day cease teaching and preaching in the temple and from house to house the good news of Jesus as the Christ.

CHAPTER 6

The Deacons

NOW in those days, as the number of the disciples was increasing, there arose a murmuring among the Hellenists against the Hebrews that their widows were being neglected in the daily ministration.

2 So the Twelve called together the multitude of the disciples and said, "It is not desirable that we should forsake the word of God and serve at tables.

3 Therefore, brethren, select from among you seven men of good reputation, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, that we may put them in charge of this work.

4 But we will devote ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the word."

5 And the plan met the approval of the whole multitude, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte from Antioch.

Ver. 31. Prince: in Greek, "Author"; Christ is the Author or Founder of salvation.

Chap. 6, Ver. 1. Hellenists: Jews from outside Palestine who spoke Greek. The Latin uses one term for the Greek terms Hellenistae and Hellenes; the latter were Gentiles.

6 These they set before the apostles, and after they had prayed they laid their hands upon them.

7 And the word of the Lord continued to spread, and the number of the disciples increased rapidly in Jerusalem; a large number also of the priests accepted the faith.

Stephen's Arrest

8 Now Stephen, full of grace and power, was working great wonders and signs among the people.

9 But there arose some from the synagogue which is called that of the Freedmen, and of the Cyrenians and of the Alexandrians and of those from Cilicia and the province of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 And they were not able to withstand the wisdom and the Spirit who spoke.

11 Then they bribed men to say they had heard him speaking blasphemous words against Moses and against God.

12 And they stirred up the people and the elders and the Scribes, and, running together, they seized him and brought him to the Sanhedrin.

13 And they brought forward false witnesses to say, "This man never ceases speaking words against the Holy Place and the Law;

14 for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and will change the traditions which Moses handed down to us."

15 Then all who sat in the Sanhedrin, gazing upon him, saw his face as though it were the face of an angel.

CHAPTER 7

Stephen's Discourse: the Patriarchs

AND the high priest said, "Are these things so?"

2 Then he said, "Brethren and fathers, hear. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran,

3 and said to him, r 'Go forth from thy country and from thy kindred, and come into the land that I will show thee.'

4 Then he went forth from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. From there, after the death of his father, God removed him into this land where you now dwell.

5 And he gave him no property in it, not even a foot of land, but he promised 'to give it for a possession to him and to his offspring after him,' when as yet he had no son.

6 And God said, s His offspring shall sojourn in a strange country, and they shall enslave and oppress them four hundred years.

7 And the nation to which they have been in bondage, I will judge, said God, and afterwards they shall go forth and shall worship me in this place.

8 And t he gave him the covenant of circumcision, and so he begot Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac begot Jacob, and Jacob the twelve patriarchs.

Joseph

9 "Out of jealousy the patriarchs u sold Joseph into Egypt, but God was with him

10 and rescued him from all his tribulations, v and gave him favor and wisdom 'in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he made him governor over Egypt and over all his household.'

11 Now there came a famine over all Egypt and Canaan, and great tribulation, and our fathers found no food.

12 But w when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our fathers there a first time, 13 and x on their second visit Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and his family became known to Pharaoh.

14 And Joseph sent for his father Jacob and all his kindred, seventy-five souls in all.

15 And y Jacob went down to Egypt, and he and our fathers died

16 and were taken to Sichem and laid in the tomb z which Abraham bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hemor, the son of Sichem.

r Gen. 12, 1.—s Gen. 15, 3.—t Gen. 17, 10; 21, 2, 4; 25, 24-26; 29, 32; 35, 22.—u Gen. 37, 28.—v Gen.

41, 37.—w Gen. 42, 2.—x Gen. 45, 3.—y Gen. 46, 5; 49, 32.—z Gen. 23, 16; 50, 13; Jos. 24, 32.

Ver. 10. Who spoke: in Greek, "with which he spoke."

Chap. 7, Ver. 16. Son of Sichem: in Greek, "in Sichem."

Moses

17 "Now when the time of the promise drew near that God had made to Abraham, ^athe people increased and multiplied in Egypt

18 till 'another king arose in Egypt who knew nothing of Joseph.'

19 He dealt craftily with our race and oppressed our fathers by forcing them to expose their infants so that they might not live.

20 At ^bthis time Moses was born, and he was acceptable to God; he was nourished three months in his father's house, 21 and when he was exposed, Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son.

22 And Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and he was mighty in his words and in his deeds.

23 And when he was forty years old, it occurred to him to visit his brethren, the children of Israel.

24 And ^cwhen he had seen one of them being imposed upon, he defended him and, striking down the Egyptian, he avenged him who was being ill-treated.

25 Now, he thought that the brethren understood that by his hand God was giving them deliverance; but they did not understand.

26 The next day ^dhe came across them fighting and he tried to reconcile them in peace, saying, 'Men, you are brethren; why do you injure each other?'

27 But the man who was wronging his neighbor thrust him aside, saying, 'Who has appointed thee ruler and judge over us?'

28 Dost thou mean to kill me as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday?'

29 At those words Moses fled, and lived for a time in the land of Madian, where he begot two sons.

30 When forty years had passed, ^ethere appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai an angel in a flame of fire in a bush.

31 But when Moses saw it, he marvelled at the sight; but as he drew near to look, there came the voice of the Lord, saying, 32 'I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob.' And Moses trembled and did not dare to look.

33 Then the Lord said to him, 'Remove the sandals from thy feet, for the place where thou art standing is holy ground.

34 I have seen all the oppression of my people in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and I have come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee to Egypt.'

35 This Moses whom they disowned, saying, 'Who has made thee ruler and judge?'—him God sent to be ruler and redeemer, with the help of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

36 This is he who led them out, ^fworking wonders and signs in the land of Egypt and in the Red Sea and in the desert, forty years.

37 This is the Moses who said to the children of Israel, ^g'God will raise up to you a prophet from among your brethren, as he raised up me; to him shall you hearken.'

38 This is he ^hwho was in the assembly in the wilderness with the angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, and he received the words of life to give to us.

39 But our fathers would not obey him, but thrust him aside and in their hearts turned back to Egypt,

40 saying to Aaron, ⁱ'Make us gods to go before us. As for this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.'

41 And they made a calf in those days and offered sacrifice to the idol and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 But God turned and gave them up to serve the host of heaven, even as it is written in the book of the Prophets: j Did you offer victims and sacrifices to me for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel?

43 Why, you took up with you the tabernacle of Moloch and the star of your god Rempham, images that you made to worship. And I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

^a Ex. 1, 7.—^b Ex. 2, 2; Heb. 11, 23.—^c Ex. 2, 12.—^d Ex. 2, 13.—^e Ex. 3, 2.—^f Ex. 7-14; 16, 1.—

^g Deut. 18, 15.—^h Ex. 19, 3.—ⁱ Ex. 32, 1.—^j Amos 5, 25.

Ver. 37. As he raised up me; or, "like me." Some Vulgate codices read: ". . . your own brethren; him shall you hear, as you hear me."

The Temple

44 "Our fathers had in the desert the tent of the testimony, as God arranged when he ^k told Moses to make it according to the model that he had seen.

45 This tent ^l also our fathers inherited, and they brought it here with them when under Josue they took possession of the territory of the Gentiles that God drove out before our fathers; and it remained down to the time of David.

46 He found favor before God ^m and asked that he might find a dwelling place for the God of Jacob.

47 But Solomon ⁿ built him a house.

48 Yet not in houses made by hands ^o does the Most High dwell, even as the prophet says, 49 p The heaven is my throne, and the earth a footstool for my feet. What house will you build me, says the Lord, or what shall be the place of my resting?

50 Did not my hand make all this?

Conclusion

51 "Stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ear, you always oppose the Holy Spirit; as your fathers did, so you do also.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? And they killed those who foretold the coming of the Just One, of whom you have now been the betrayers and murderers, 53 you who received the Law as an ordinance of angels and did not keep it."

Stephen's Martyrdom

54 Now as they heard these things, they were cut to the heart and gnashed their teeth at him.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Spirit, looked up to heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God;

56 and he said, "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God."

Ver. 44. The preceding part refutes the charge of having spoken against Moses; Stephen now takes up the charge of having spoken against the temple.

Ver. 60. He fell asleep: he died.

Chap. 8, Ver. 5. Philip: one of the seven deacons named in Acts 6, 5.

57 But they cried out with a loud voice and stopped their ears and rushed upon him all together.

58 And they cast him out of the city and stoned him. And the witnesses laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.

59 And while they were stoning Stephen he prayed and said, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

60 And falling on his knees, he cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Lord, do not lay this sin against them." And with these words he fell asleep. And Saul approved of his death.

CHAPTER 8

Persecution

NOW there broke out on that day a great persecution against the Church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered abroad throughout the land of Judea and Samaria.

2 And devout men took care of Stephen's burial and made great lamentation over him.

3 But Saul was harassing the Church; entering house after house, and dragging out men and women, he committed them to prison.

2. THE CHURCH IN JUDEA
AND SAMARIA*Samaria*

4 Now those who were scattered abroad went about preaching the word.

5 And Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached the Christ to them.

6 And the crowds with one accord gave heed to what was said by Philip, listening to him and seeing the miracles that he worked.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with a loud voice, went out of many possessed per^k Ex. 25, 40.—^l Jos. 3, 14; Heb. 8, 9.—^m 1 Kgs. 16, 13; Ps. 131, 5.—ⁿ 3 Kgs. 6, 1; 1 Par. 17, 12.—^o Acts 17, 24.—^p Isa. 66, 1.

Ver. 7. Unclean spirits, etc.: in both Latin and Greek the possessed persons are the subject of the verb 'went out,' the literal translation of the Greek is, "For many of those having unclean spirits, crying with a loud voice, went out."

sons, and many paralytics and cripples were cured.

8 So there was great joy in that city.

9 Now a man named Simon had previously been practising sorcery in that city and astounding the people of Samaria, claiming to be someone great;

10 and all from least to greatest listened to him, saying, "This man is the power of God, which is called great."

11 And they gave heed to him because for a long time he had bewitched them with his sorceries.

12 But when they believed Philip as he preached the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 And Simon also himself believed, and after his baptism attached himself to Philip; and at sight of the signs and exceedingly great miracles being wrought, he was amazed.

14 Now when the apostles in Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent to them Peter and John.

15 On their arrival they prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Spirit;

16 for as yet he had not come upon any of them, but they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

17 Then they laid their hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit.

18 But when Simon saw that the Holy Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them money,

19 saying, "Give me also this power, so that anyone on whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit."

But Peter said to him,

20 "Thy money go to destruction with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God could be purchased with money.

21 Thou hast no part or lot in this matter; for thy heart is not right before God.

22 Repent therefore of this wickedness of thine and pray to God, that perhaps this thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee;

23 for I see thou art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity."

24 But Simon answered, "Do you pray for me to the Lord, that nothing of what you have said may happen to me."

25 So they, after bearing witness and preaching the gospel of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel to many Samaritan villages.

An Ethiopian

26 But an angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying, "Arise and go south to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza." (This road is desert.)

27 And he arose and went. And behold, an Ethiopian, a eunuch, a minister of Candace, queen of Ethiopia, who was in charge of all her treasures, had come to Jerusalem to worship

28 and was returning, sitting in his carriage and reading the prophet Isaias.

29 And the Spirit said to Philip, "Go near and keep close to this carriage."

30 And Philip, running up, heard him reading the prophet Isaias, and he said, "Dost thou then understand what thou art reading?"

31 But he said, "Why, how can I, unless someone shows me?" And he asked Philip to get up and sit with him.

32 Now the passage of Scripture which he was reading was this: q He was led like a sheep to slaughter; and just as a lamb dumb before its shearer, so did he not open his mouth.

33 In humiliation his judgment was denied him; who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip and said, "I pray thee, of whom is the prophet saying this? Of himself or of someone else?"

q Isa. 53, 7.

Ver. 12. As he preached: in Greek, "preaching of the kingdom of God and of the name of Jesus Christ."

Ver. 15. Holy Spirit: they had received the Holy Spirit in Baptism, but not in the fullness with which He is imparted in Confirmation. Being only a deacon, Philip could not administer Confirmation.

Ver. 20f. Peter shows his horror of the sin in order to lead Simon to repentance.

Ver. 26. Is desert: i.e., an uncultivated region, "the desert route." The words in parentheses may also have been spoken by the angel.

Ver. 27. This description leaves us in doubt as to whether he was a Gentile or a Jew.

35 Then Philip opened his mouth and, beginning from this Scripture, preached Jesus to him.

36 And as they went along the road, they came to some water; and the eunuch said, "See, here is water; what is there to prevent my being baptized?"

37 [And Philip said, "If thou dost believe with all thy heart, thou mayest." And he answered, and said, "I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God."]

38 And he ordered the carriage to stop; and both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, and he baptized him.

39 But when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord took Philip away, and the eunuch saw him no more, but he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found in Azotus, and passing through he preached the gospel to all the cities till he came to Cæsarea.

CHAPTER 9

The Vision of Saul

BUT Saul,^r still breathing threats of slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest

2 and asked him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus, that if he found any men or women belonging to this Way, he might bring them in bonds to Jerusalem.

3 And ^sas he went on his journey, it came to pass that he drew near to Damascus, when suddenly a light from heaven shone round about him;

4 and falling to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me?"

5 And he said, "Who art thou, Lord?" And he said, "I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting. [It is hard for thee to kick against the goad.]"

6 And he, trembling and amazed, said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?"

Ver. 37. Omitted in the best Greek and Vulgate Manuscripts, and by other authorities.

Ver. 40. Was found: or, "found himself."

Chap. 9, Ver. 2. This Way: in Greek, "the Way," used for Christianity.

Ver. 5f. It is hard . . . said to him: these words are not in the Greek nor in the best Latin Manuscripts.

And the Lord said to him,] "Arise and go into the city, and it will be told thee what thou must do."

7 Now the men who journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing indeed the voice, but seeing no one.

8 And Saul arose from the ground, but when his eyes were opened, he could see nothing. And leading him by the hand, they brought him into Damascus.

9 And for three days he could not see, and he neither ate nor drank.

Saul's Baptism

10 Now there was in Damascus a certain disciple named Ananias, and the Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias." And he said, "Here I am, Lord."

11 And the Lord said to him, "Arise and go to the street called Straight and ask at the house of Judas for a man of Tarsus named Saul. For behold, he is praying."

12 (And he saw a man named Ananias come in and lay his hands upon him that he might recover his sight.)

13 But Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much evil he has done to thy saints in Jerusalem.

14 And here too he has authority from the high priests to arrest all who invoke thy name."

15 But the Lord said to him, "Go, for this man is a chosen vessel to me, to carry my name among nations and kings and the children of Israel.

16 For I will show him how much he must suffer for my name."

17 So Ananias departed and entered the house, and laying his hands upon him, he said, "Brother Saul, the Lord has sent me—Jesus, who appeared to thee on thy journey—that thou mayest recover thy sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit."

18 And straightway there fell from his

^r Gal. 1, 13.—^s Acts 22, 6; 1 Cor. 15, 8; 2 Cor. 12, 2.

The addition doubtless comes in part from Acts 22, 10 and 26, 14.

Ver. 12. This parenthesis describes a vision which St. Paul had while our Lord was speaking to Ananias.

Ver. 13. Saints: those separated from other men and united to Christ. They are sanctified by the presence in Him of the Holy Spirit.

eyes something like scales, and he recovered his sight, and arose, and was baptized.

19 And after taking some food, he regained his strength.

Saul's Zeal

Now for some days he joined the disciples in Damascus,

20 and straightway in the synagogues he began to preach that Jesus is the Son of God.

21 And all who heard him were amazed and said, "Is not this he who used to make havoc in Jerusalem of those who called upon this name, and who has come here for the purpose of taking them in bonds to the chief priests?"

22 But Saul grew all the stronger and confounded the Jews who were living in Damascus, proving that this is the Christ.

23 But as time passed on, the Jews made a plot to kill him.

24 But their plot became known to Saul. † They were even guarding the gates both day and night in order to kill him;

25 but his disciples took him by night and let him down over the wall, lowering him in a basket.

26 Now on his arrival at Jerusalem he tried to join the disciples, and they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple.

27 But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles, and he told them how on his journey he had seen the Lord, that the Lord had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had acted boldly in the name of Jesus.

28 And he moved freely among them in Jerusalem, acting boldly in the name of the Lord;

29 he also spoke and disputed with the Hellenists; but they sought to kill him.

30 When the brethren got to know this, they took him down to Cæsarea and sent him away to Tarsus.

Peter Visits the Churches

31 Now throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria the Church was in peace and was being built up, walking in fear of the Lord, and it was filled with the consolation of the Holy Spirit.

† 2 Cor. 11, 32.

32 And it came to pass that Peter, while visiting all the saints, came to those living at Lydda.

33 And he found there a certain man named Aeneas who had kept his bed eight years, being a paralytic.

34 And Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals thee; get up and make thy bed." And straightway he got up.

35 And all who lived at Lydda and in Sharon saw him, and they turned to the Lord.

36 Now at Joppa there was a certain disciple named Tabitha (which is translated Dorcas); this woman had devoted herself to good works and acts of charity.

37 But it happened that at this time she fell ill and died; and they washed her, and laid her in an upper room.

38 And as Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, hearing that Peter was there, sent two men to him with the request, "Come on to us without delay."

39 And Peter arose and went with them, and on his arrival they took him to the upper room. And all the widows stood about him weeping and showing him the tunics and cloaks which Dorcas used to make for them.

40 But Peter, putting them all out, knelt down and prayed; and turning to the body, he said, "Tabitha, arise." And she opened her eyes and, seeing Peter, she sat up.

41 Then Peter gave her his hand and raised her up; and calling the saints and the widows, he gave her back to them alive.

42 And it became known all over Joppa, and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass that he stayed some time in Joppa at the house of one Simon, a tanner.

3. SPREAD OF THE CHURCH TO THE GENTILES

CHAPTER 10

Cornelius: the Visions

Now there was in Cæsarea a man named Cornelius, a centurion of the cohort called Italian;

Ver. 36. Dorcas: means "gazelle."

2 he was devout and God-fearing, as was all his household, giving much alms to the people and praying to God continually.

3 About the ninth hour of the day he saw distinctly in a vision an angel of God come in to him and say to him, "Cornelius."

4 And he, gazing at him in terror, said, "What is it, Lord?" And he said to him, "Thy prayers and thy alms have gone up and been remembered in the sight of God.

5 And now send men to Joppa and fetch one Simon, surnamed Peter;

6 he is lodging with Simon, a tanner who has a house by the seaside."

7 When the angel who was speaking to him had departed, he called two of his servants, and a God-fearing soldier from among his personal attendants,

8 and after telling them the whole story sent them to Joppa.

9 Now the next day, while they were still on their journey and were just drawing near to the city, Peter went up to the roof to pray, about the sixth hour;

10 but he got very hungry, and wanted something to eat. But while they were getting it ready, he fell into an ecstasy,

11 and saw heaven standing open and a certain vessel coming down like a great sheet, let down by the four corners from heaven to the earth;

12 and in it were all the four-footed beasts and creeping things of the earth, and birds of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, "Arise, Peter, kill and eat."

14 But Peter said, "Far be it from me, Lord, for never did I eat anything common or unclean."

15 And there came a voice a second time to him, "What God has cleansed, do not thou call common."

16 Now this happened three times, and straightway the vessel was taken up into heaven.

17 Now while Peter was still wondering as to what the vision he had had might mean, behold, the men sent by Cornelius stood at the door, inquiring for Simon's house;

18 and they called out to ask whether Simon, surnamed Peter, was staying there.

19 But while Peter was pondering over the vision, the Spirit said to him, "Behold, three men are looking for thee.

20 Arise, therefore, go down and depart with them without any hesitation, for I have sent them."

21 So Peter went down to the men and said, "Behold, I am the man you are asking for; what is the reason for your coming?"

22 And they said, "Cornelius, a centurion, a just and God-fearing man, to whom the whole nation of the Jews bear witness, has been directed by a holy angel to fetch thee to his house and to hear words from thee."

23 So he invited them in and entertained them.

Peter Meets Cornelius

24 And the next day he arose and started off with them, and certain of the brethren from Joppa accompanied him. The following day he reached Cæsarea. Now Cornelius was waiting for them, having invited in his relatives and his intimate friends.

25 And as Peter entered, Cornelius met him and, falling at his feet, made obeisance to him.

26 But Peter raised him up, saying, "Get up, I myself also am a man."

27 And as he talked with him, he went in and found many assembled,

28 and he said to them, "You know it is not permissible for a Jew to associate with a foreigner or to visit him; but God has shown me that I should not call any man common or unclean;

29 therefore I came without hesitation when I was sent for. I ask, therefore, why you have sent for me."

30 And Cornelius said, "Three days ago, at this very hour, I was praying in my house at the ninth hour, and behold, a

Chap. 10, Ver. 2. God-fearing: worshipping the true God of the Jews, but without adopting the full burden of the Mosaic Law.

Ver. 4. Gone up . . . God: gone up to please God, like the smoke of the sacrifice, which was called a "memorial" [Lev. 2, 9].

Ver. 6. "He will tell thee what to do" is added in the Clementine Vulgate.

Ver. 15. The distinction made by the Mosaic Law between clean and unclean food is no longer to hold good.

Ver. 30. Three days ago: literally, "this is now the fourth day."

man stood before me in shining garments, and said,

31 'Cornelius, thy prayer has been heard and thy alms have been remembered in the sight of God.

32 Send therefore to Joppa and call Simon, surnamed Peter; he is lodging in the house of Simon, a tanner, by the sea.'

33 Immediately therefore I sent to thee, and thou hast very kindly come. Now, therefore, we are all present in thy sight to hear whatever has been commanded thee by the Lord."

Peter's Discourse

34 But Peter began, and said, "Now I really understand ^u that God is not a respecter of persons, 35 but in every nation he who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him.

36 He sent his word to the children of Israel, preaching peace through Jesus Christ (who is Lord of all).

37 You know what took place throughout Judea; ^v for he began in Galilee after the baptism preached by John:

38 how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power, and he went about doing good and healing all who were in the power of the devil; for God was with him.

39 And we are witnesses of all that he did in the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem; and yet they killed him, hanging him on a tree.

40 But God raised him on the third day and caused him to be plainly seen, 41 not by all the people, but by witnesses designated beforehand by God, that is, by us, who ate and drank with him after he had risen from the dead.

42 And he charged us to preach to the people and to testify that he it is who has been appointed by God to be judge of the living and of the dead.

43 To him ^w all the prophets bear witness, that through his name all who believe in him may receive forgiveness of sins."

^u Deut. 10, 17; 2 Par. 19, 7; Job 34, 19; Wisd. 6, 8; Eccclus. 35, 15; Rom. 2, 11; Gal. 2, 6; Eph. 6, 9;

Ver. 33. In thy sight: in Greek, "in the sight of God."

The Baptism

44 While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit came upon all who were listening to his message.

45 And the faithful of the circumcision, who had come with Peter, were amazed, because on the Gentiles also the grace of the Holy Spirit had been poured forth;

46 for they heard them speaking in tongues and magnifying God.

47 Then Peter answered, "Can anyone refuse the water to baptize these, seeing that they have received the Holy Spirit just as we did?"

48 And he ordered them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they besought him to stay on there a few days.

CHAPTER 11

Explanation at Jerusalem

Now the apostles and the brethren all over Judea heard that the Gentiles also had received the word of God.

2 But when Peter went up to Jerusalem, they of the circumcision found fault with him,

3 saying, "Why didst thou visit men uncircumcised and eat with them?"

4 Then Peter began to explain the matter to them in order, saying,

5 "I was praying in the city of Joppa and while in ecstasy I had a vision, a certain vessel coming down something like a great sheet, let down from heaven by its four corners, and it came right down to me.

6 And gazing upon it, I began to observe, and I saw the four-footed creatures of the earth, and the wild beasts and the creeping things, and the birds of the air.

7 And I also heard a voice saying to me, 'Arise, Peter, kill and eat.'

8 And I said, 'By no means, Lord, for nothing common or unclean has ever entered my mouth.'

9 But the voice answered a second time, 'What God has cleansed, do not thou call common.'

Col. 3, 25; 1 Pet. 1, 17.—^v Luke 4, 14.—^w Jer. 31, 34; Mich. 7, 18.

Ver. 46. In tongues: as on Pentecost in chapter 2.

10 This happened three times, and then it was all drawn up back into heaven.

11 And behold, immediately three men came to the house where I was, having been sent from Cæsarea to me;

12 and the Spirit bade me not to hesitate to go with them. And these six brethren also went with me, and we entered the man's house.

13 And he told us how he had seen the angel in his house stand and say to him, 'Send to Joppa and fetch Simon, surnamed Peter;

14 he will speak to thee words by which thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy household.'

15 But when I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, just as it did upon us at the beginning.

16 And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said, ^x 'John indeed baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.'

17 Therefore, if God gave to them the same grace as he gave to us who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I should be able to interfere with God?"

18 On hearing this they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, "Therefore to the Gentiles also God has given repentance unto life."

The Converts at Antioch

19 Now those who had been dispersed by the persecution that had broken out over Stephen, went all the way to Phœnicia and Cyprus and Antioch, speaking the word to none except to Jews only.

20 But some of them were Cyprians and Cyreneans, who on reaching Antioch began to speak to the Greeks also, preaching the Lord Jesus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned to the Lord.

22 And news concerning them came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas as far as Antioch.

23 Now when he came and saw the grace of God, he rejoiced and exhorted them all to continue in the Lord with steadfast heart;

24 for he was a good man and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. And a great multitude was added to the Lord.

25 And he went forth to Tarsus to look for Saul, and on finding him he brought him to Antioch.

26 And for a whole year they took part in the meetings of the church and taught a great multitude. And it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called "Christians."

27 Now in those days some prophets from Jerusalem came down to Antioch, 28 and one of them named Agabus got up and revealed through the Spirit that there would be a great famine all over the world. The famine occurred in the reign of Claudius.

29 So the disciples, each according to his means, determined to send relief to the brethren dwelling in Judea.

30 And this they did, sending it to the presbyters by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

CONCLUSION: PERSECUTION OF THE CHURCH BY HEROD AGRIPPA

CHAPTER 12

Peter in Prison

NOW at this time Herod the king set hands on certain members of the Church to persecute them.

2 He killed James the brother of John with the sword,

3 and seeing that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also, during the days of the Unleavened Bread.

4 After arresting him he cast him into prison, committing the custody of him to four guards of soldiers, four in each guard, intending to bring him forth to the people after the Passover.

5 So Peter was being kept in the pris-

^x Acts 1, 5; 19, 4; Matt. 3, 11.

and in the rest of Acts, and in many of the Epistles, it designates the priests who held office as rulers of the early Church. "Presbyter" also distinguishes these priests from the Jewish "elders."

Chap. 12, Ver. 1. At this time: in Greek, "about that time." Herod: Herod Agrippa I, who ruled over Judea from 41 A. D. till his death in 44 A. D.

Ver. 3. Days of the Unleavened Bread: the seven days following the paschal supper.

Chap. 11, Ver. 20. To the Greeks: having heard of the conversion of Cornelius and his household. Though many Greek Manuscripts read "Hellenists" here, the context shows that Gentiles are meant, for the Jews referred to in v. 19 were Hellenists, i.e., Jews living outside Palestine.

Ver. 28. Claudius: Roman emperor 41-54 A.D.

Ver. 30. Presbyters: literally, "elders." This is the term from which our "priest" is derived. But here on; but prayer was being made to God for him by the Church without ceasing.

His Deliverance

6 Now when Herod was about to bring him forth, that same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and outside the door sentries guarded the prison.

7 And behold, an angel of the Lord stood beside him, and a light shone in the room; and he struck Peter on the side and woke him, saying, "Get up quickly." The chains dropped from his hands.

8 And the angel said to him, "Gird thyself and put on thy sandals." And he did so; and he said to him, "Wrap thy cloak about thee and follow me."

9 And he followed him out, without knowing that what was being done by the angel was real, for he thought he was having a vision.

10 They passed through the first and second guard and came to the iron gate that leads into the city; and this opened to them of its own accord. And they went out, and passed on through one street, and straightway the angel left him.

11 Then Peter came to himself, and he said, "Now I know for certain that the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from the power of Herod and from all that the Jewish people were expecting."

12 When he realized his situation, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where many had gathered together and were praying.

13 When he knocked at the outer door, a maid named Rhoda came to answer it.

14 And as soon as she recognized Peter's voice, in her joy she did not open the gate, but ran in and announced that Peter was standing before the gate.

15 But they said to her, "Thou art mad." But she insisted that it was so. Then they said, "It is his angel."

16 But Peter continued knocking; and when they opened, they saw him and were amazed.

y Acts 11, 29.

Ver. 15. Angel: guardian angel.

Ver. 17. James: called "the brother of the Lord," i.e., one of His near relatives, and also "James the 17 But he motioned to them with his hand to be quiet, and related how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, "Tell this to James and to the brethren." And he departed, and went to another place.

Herod Punished

18 Now when morning came, there was no little stir among the soldiers as to what had become of Peter.

19 When Herod had searched for him and had not found him, he examined the guards and ordered them to be put to death; then he went down from Judea to Cæsarea and stayed there.

20 Now he was very angry with the Tyrians and Sidonians; but they came to him in a body and, having won over Blastus, the king's chamberlain, they asked for peace, because their country depended on him for its food supply.

21 So a day was fixed and on it Herod, arrayed in kingly apparel, sat in the judgment-seat and began to address them.

22 And the people shouted, "It is the voice of a god, and not of a man."

23 But immediately an angel of the Lord struck him down, because he had not given the honor to God; and he was eaten by worms, and died.

24 But the word of the Lord continued to grow and spread.

25 Now Barnabas and Saul, when they had fulfilled their mission,^y returned from Jerusalem, taking with them John, who was surnamed Mark.

II: THE CHURCH
IN ASIA MINOR AND EUROPE
THE MISSIONARY JOURNEYS
OF ST. PAUL

1. FIRST MISSIONARY JOURNEY

CHAPTER 13

Antioch

NOW in the church at Antioch there were prophets and teachers, among whom were Barnabas and Simon, called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Mana-hen the foster-brother of Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.

Less." Another place: undoubtedly outside Herod's jurisdiction.

2 And as they were ministering to the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for me Saul and Barnabas unto the work to which I have called them."

3 Then, having fasted and prayed and laid their hands upon them, they let them go.

Cyprus

4 So they, sent forth by the Holy Spirit, went to Seleucia and from there sailed to Cyprus.

5 On their arrival at Salamis they began to preach the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews; and they had also John as assistant.

6 They went, passing through the whole island as far as Paphos, and there they came across a Jewish magician and false prophet named Bar-Jesus,

7 who was attached to the proconsul Sergius Paulus, a man of discernment. He sent for Barnabas and Saul, and sought to hear the word of God;

8 but Elymas, the sorcerer (for so his name is translated), opposed them, trying to turn away the proconsul from the faith.

9 But Saul (also called Paul), filled with the Holy Spirit, gazed at him

10 and said, "O full of all guile and of all deceit, son of the devil, enemy of all justice, wilt thou not cease to make crooked the straight ways of the Lord?"

11 And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a time." And instantly there fell upon him a mist of darkness, and he groped about for someone to lead him by the hand.

^z Ex. 1, 1; 13, 21f.—^a Ex. 16, 3.—^b Jos. 14, 2.—^c Judg. 3, 9.—^d 3 Kgs. 8, 5; 9, 16; 10, 1.—^e 1 Kgs. 16, 13; Ps. 88, 21.

Chap. 13, Ver. 1. Simon: or Simeon. Herod: Herod Antipas, who beheaded John the Baptist and mocked our Lord during the Passion.

In the Greek, Barnabas, Simon and Lucius are grouped together; Manahen and Saul are in a second group. The former are perhaps the prophets, the latter the teachers.

Ver. 2. Ministering: in some form of public worship, probably the Mass. From the Greek word used here comes our "liturgy."

Ver. 3. Laid their hands upon them: consecrating them as bishops, or (more probably) giving them merely a special blessing for the new work.

Ver. 5. John: St. Mark.

Ver. 6. Bar-Jesus: a patronymic, "Bar" meaning "son of," as in Barnabas. "Jesus" is another form of 12 Then the proconsul, seeing what had happened, believed and was astonished at the Lord's teaching.

Antioch in Pisidia

13 Putting to sea from Paphos, Paul and his companions came to Perge in Pamphylia; but John left them and returned to Jerusalem.

14 But they passed through Perge and reached the Pisidian Antioch; and entering the synagogue on the Sabbath, they sat down.

15 After the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent to them, saying, "Brethren, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, speak."

Paul's Discourse

16 Then Paul arose, and motioning with his hand for silence, said, "Israelites and you who fear God, hearken.

17 The God of the people of Israel chose our fathers and exalted the people when they were sojourners in the land of Egypt, and with uplifted arm led them forth out of it.

18 And ^a for a period of forty years he bore with their ways in the desert,

19 and after destroying seven nations in the land of Canaan, ^b he divided their land among them by lot

20 after about four hundred and fifty years. ^c After that he gave them judges, until the time of Samuel the prophet.

21 Then they demanded ^d a king, and God gave them Saul, the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for forty years.

22 And removing him, ^e he raised up David to be their king, and to him he bore

"Josue." His proper name was "Elymas," meaning "sorcerer" or "magician." Cf. v. 8.

Ver. 9. Saul: a Jewish name. He may have adopted the Roman name "Paul" either at this time or earlier, for use among the Gentiles.

Ver. 12. Believed: became a Christian in all likelihood. It is not probable that St. Luke would use the word "believed" of mere intellectual assent not followed by Baptism; on the other hand, he speaks at times of those who believe and are certainly baptized, without mentioning the latter fact.

Ver. 14. Passed through Perge: in Greek, "passed through from Perge."

Ver. 18. Bore with their ways: the Greek may also give the meaning, "bore them like a nurse" or "fed them."

witness and said, 'I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after my heart, who will do all that I desire.'

23 From his offspring, God f according to promise brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus;

24 John having first preached g before his coming a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And when John was coming to the end of his career, he would say, h 'I am not he whom you suppose me to be; but behold, there comes one after me, the sandals of whose feet I am not worthy to loose.'

26 Brethren, children of the race of Abraham, and all among you who fear God, to you the word of this salvation has been sent.

27 For the inhabitants of Jerusalem and its rulers, not knowing him and the utterances of the prophets which are read every Sabbath, fulfilled them by sentencing him;

28 and though they found no ground for putting him to death, i they asked of Pilate permission to kill him.

29 And when they had carried out all that had been written concerning him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb.

30 But j God raised him from the dead on the third day; and he was seen during many days by those 31 who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem; and they are now witnesses for him to the people.

32 So we now bring you the good news that the promise made to our fathers, 33 God has fulfilled to our children, in raising up Jesus, as also it is written in the second Psalm, k Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee.

34 And to show that he has raised him up from the dead, never again to return to decay, he has said thus, l I will give you the holy and sure promises of David.

35 Because he says also in another Psalm, m Thou wilt not let thy Holy One undergo decay.

36 For David, after he had in his own generation served God's purposes, fell asleepⁿ and was laid among his fathers and did undergo decay;

37 but he whom God raised to life did not undergo it.

38 Be it known therefore to you, brethren, that through him forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you,

39 and in him everyone who believes is acquitted of all the things of which you could not be acquitted by the Law of Moses.

40 Beware, therefore, that what is said in the Prophets may not prove true of you,

41 o Behold, you despisers, then wonder and perish, because I work a work in your days, a work which you will not believe, if anyone relates it to you."

42 Now as they were going out, the people asked to have all this said to them on the following Sabbath.

43 And after the synagogue had broken up, many of the Jews and the worshipping converts went away with Paul and Barnabas, and they talked with them and urged them to hold fast to the grace of God.

44 And the next Sabbath almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of the Lord.

45 But on seeing the crowds, the Jews were filled with jealousy and contradicted what was said by Paul, and blasphemed.

46 Then Paul and Barnabas spoke out plainly: "It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken to you first, but since you reject it and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we now turn to the Gentiles.

47 For so the Lord has commanded us, p I have set thee for a light to the Gentiles, to be a means of salvation to the very ends of the earth."

48 On hearing this the Gentiles were delighted, and glorified the word of the Lord, and all who were destined for eternal life believed.

49 And the word of the Lord spread throughout the whole country.

50 But the Jews incited the worshipping women of rank and the chief men of the city, and stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas and drove them from their district.

f Isa. 11, 1.—g Matt. 3, 1; Mark 1, 4; Luke 3, 3.—h Matt. 3, 11; Mark 1, 7; John 1, 20.—i Matt. 27, 20, 23; Mark 15, 13; Luke 23, 21, 23; John 19, 15.—j Matt. 28; Mark 16; Luke 24; John 20.—k Ps. 2, 7.—l Isa. 55, 3.—m Ps. 15, 10.—n 3 Kgs. 2, 10.—o Hab. 1, 5.—p Isa. 49, 6.

51 But they shook off ^athe dust of their feet in protest against them and went to Iconium.

52 And the disciples continued to be filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

CHAPTER 14

Iconium

NOW it came to pass at Iconium that they went in the same way into the synagogue of the Jews and so spoke that a great multitude of Jews and of Greeks believed.

2 But the disbelieving Jews stirred up and poisoned the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren.

3 They stayed a long time, therefore, acting fearlessly in the Lord, who gave testimony to the word of his grace by permitting signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the people of the city were divided, some siding with the Jews and some with the apostles.

5 But when there was a movement on the part of the Gentiles and of the Jews with their rulers to insult and stone them,

6 hearing of it, they escaped to the Lycaonian cities, Lystra and Derbe, and the whole country round about, and there they went on preaching the gospel.

Lystra

7 And in Lystra a certain man used to sit whose feet were crippled. He had been lame from his very birth, and had never been able to walk.

8 He listened to Paul as he spoke; when Paul, gazing at him and seeing that he had faith to be cured, 9 said with a loud voice, "Stand up-right on thy feet." And he sprang up and began to walk.

10 Then the crowds, seeing what Paul had done, lifted up their voice saying in the Lycaonian language, "The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men."

11 And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercury, because he was the chief speaker.

12 And the priest of the Jupiter that stood at the entrance to the city brought oxen and garlands to the gateways, and with the people would have offered sacrifice.

13 But on hearing of this, the apostles Barnabas and Paul rushed into the crowd, tearing their clothes, 14 and shouting, "Men, why are you doing this? We also are mortals, human beings like you, bringing to you the good news that you should turn from these vain things to the living God ^rwho made heaven and earth and the sea and all things that are in them.

15 In the generations that are past he let all the nations follow their own ways;

16 and yet he did not leave himself without testimony, bestowing blessings, giving rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling your hearts with food and gladness."

17 And even with these words they could hardly restrain the crowds from offering sacrifice to them.

18 But some Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium; and after winning over the crowds, they stoned Paul and dragged him outside the city, thinking that he was dead.

19 But the disciples gathered round him and he got up and re-entered the city.

Derbe; the Return

The next day he set out with Barnabas for Derbe.

20 After preaching the gospel to that city and teaching many, they returned to Lystra and Iconium and Antioch, 21 reassuring the disciples and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and reminding them that through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God.

22 And when they had appointed presbyters for them in each church, with prayer and fasting, they commended them to the Lord in whom they had believed.

23 Crossing Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia,

24 and after speaking the word of the Lord in Perge they went down to Attalia.

^a Matt. 10, 14; Mark 6, 11; Luke 9, 5.—^r Ps. 145, 6; Apoc. 14, 7.

Chap. 14, Ver. 12. Of the Jupiter, etc.: of the temple of Jupiter which stood just outside the city walls. To the gateways: of the temple or of the city.

25 and ^sfrom there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had first been entrusted to the grace of God for the work which they had now finished.

26 On their arrival they called the church together and reported all that God had done with them, and how he had opened to the Gentiles a door of faith.

27 And they stayed no little time with the disciples.

CHAPTER 15

Dissension at Antioch

BUT some came down from Judea and began to teach the brethren, saying, "Unless you be circumcised^t after the manner of Moses, you cannot be saved."

2 And when no little objection was made against them by Paul and Barnabas, they decided that Paul and Barnabas and certain others of them should go up to the apostles and presbyters at Jerusalem about this question.

3 So they, sent on their way by the church, passed through Phœnicia and Samaria, relating the conversion of the Gentiles, and they caused great rejoicing among all the brethren.

4 On arriving at Jerusalem they were welcomed by the church and the apostles and the presbyters and they proclaimed all that God had done with them.

5 But some of the Pharisees' sect, who had accepted the faith, got up and said, "They must be circumcised and also told to observe the Law of Moses."

Peter's Decision

6 So the apostles and the presbyters had a meeting to look into this matter.

7 And after a long debate, Peter got up and said to them, ^u"Brethren, you know that in early days God made choice among us, that through my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel and believe.

^s Acts 13, 1.—^t Gal. 5, 2.—^u Acts 10, 20.—^v Acts 10, 45.—^w Amos 9, 11.—^x Isa. 45, 21.

Chap. 15, Ver. 2. Certain others of them: another reading gives, "some of the other side," as it is in the Clementine Vulgate.

Ver. 10. Which neither . . . to bear? St. Peter refers to the Law as interpreted by the rabbis who had added countless restrictions.

Ver. 20. Idolatry and immorality were so wide-

8 And God, who knows the heart, bore witness by ^v giving them the Holy Spirit just as he did to us;

9 and he made no distinction between us and them, but cleansed their hearts by faith.

10 Why then do you now try to test God by putting on the neck of the disciples a yoke which neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear?

11 But we believe that we are saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they are."

12 Then the whole meeting quieted down and listened while Barnabas and Paul told of the great signs and wonders that God had done among the Gentiles through them.

Advice from James

13 After these had finished speaking, James made this answer, saying, "Brethren, listen to me.

14 Simon has told how God first visited the Gentiles to take from among them a people to bear his name.

15 And with this the words of the prophets agree, as it is written,

16 After these things I will return and will rebuild the tabernacle of David which has fallen down, and the ruins thereof I will rebuild, and I will set it up;

17 that the rest of mankind may seek after the Lord, and all the nations upon whom my name is invoked, says the Lord, who does these things.

18 To the Lord ^x was his own work known from the beginning of the world.

19 Therefore my judgment is not to disquiet those who from among the Gentiles are turning to the Lord;

20 but to send them written instructions to abstain from anything that has been contaminated by idols and from immorality and from anything strangled and from blood.

21 For Moses for generations past has had his preachers in every city in the synagogues, where he is read aloud every Sabbath."

spread among the pagans that a special warning was felt necessary for the new converts.

Ver. 21. The Jews of the Dispersion, well instructed in the Mosaic Law, would find it hard to associate with those who did not observe it strictly on these points at least.

The Decision

22 Then the apostles and the presbyters with the whole church decided to select representatives and to send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. These were Judas, surnamed Barsabbas, and Silas, leading men among the brethren.

23 They were bearers of the following letter:

"The brethren who are apostles and presbyters send greeting to the brethren of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia.

24 As we have heard that some of our number have disturbed you with their teaching, unsettling your minds, persons to whom we had given no instruction,

25 we have decided, being assembled together, to select representatives and send them to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul:

26 men who have pledged their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves also by word of mouth will give you the same message.

28 For the Holy Spirit and we have decided to lay no further burden upon you but this indispensable one,

29 that you abstain from things sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled and from immorality; keep yourselves from these things, and you will get on well. Farewell."

30 So the delegates went down to Antioch and, gathering the community together, they delivered the letter.

31 And they, having read it, were delighted with the encouragement it gave them.

32 As Judas and Silas were themselves prophets, they exhorted the brethren with many words and strengthened them.

33 After spending some time there, they were let go by the brethren with a greeting to those who had sent them.

34 [Silas however decided to stay there, and so Judas departed alone for Jerusalem.]

35 But Paul and Barnabas stayed on in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others.

2. SECOND MISSIONARY JOURNEY

Paul and Barnabas Separate

36 Now some time after Paul said to Barnabas, "Let us return and visit the brethren in all the cities where we have preached the word of the Lord, to see how they are doing."

37 But Barnabas wanted to take with them John also, who was surnamed Mark.

38 But Paul asked that he, inasmuch as he had deserted them in Pamphylia instead of going on with them to their work, should not again be taken along.

39 And a sharp contention sprang up so that they separated from each other, and Barnabas took Mark and sailed for Cyprus.

40 But Paul chose Silas and set out, the brethren commending him to the grace of the Lord;

41 and he travelled through Syria and Cilicia, and strengthened the churches [and commanded them to keep the precepts of the apostles and presbyters].

CHAPTER 16

Timothy

AND he reached Derbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple was there named Timothy, son of a believing Jewess, but of a Gentile father.

2 And he was highly thought of by the brethren in Lystra and Iconium.

3 This man, Paul wished to go forth with him, and he took and circumcised him on account of the Jews who were in those parts, for they all knew that his father was a Gentile.

4 And as they passed through the cities, they delivered to the brethren for their observance the decisions arrived at by the apostles and presbyters in Jerusalem.

5 So the churches grew stronger and stronger in the faith and increased in numbers daily.

Ver. 34. Not in the Greek, or in the best codices of the Vulgate.

Ver. 41. And commanded . . . presbyters: not in the Greek, or in many good codices of the Vulgate.

Departure for Macedonia

6 Passing through Phrygia and the Galatian country, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in the province of Asia.

7 And when they came to Mysia, they tried to get into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not permit them;

8 so passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas.

9 And Paul had a vision one night; a Macedonian was standing, appealing to him and saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

10 As soon as he had the vision, straightway we made efforts to set out for Macedonia, being sure that God had called us to preach the gospel to them.

Preaching at Philippi

11 So sailing from Troas, we ran a straight course to Samothrace, and the next day to Neapolis,

12 and thence to Philippi, the principal city of a part of Macedonia, a Roman colony. We stayed some days in this city;

13 and on the Sabbath we went outside the gate to the bank of the river, where there seemed to be a place of prayer. And we sat down and spoke to the women who had gathered there.

14 And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple from the city of Thyatira, who worshipped God, was listening; and the Lord touched her heart to give heed to what was being said by Paul.

15 And when she and her household had been baptized, she appealed to us and said, "If you have judged me to be a believer in the Lord, come into my house and stay there." And she insisted upon our coming.

A Possessed Girl

16 Now it came to pass as we were going to the place of prayer that a girl met us who possessed a divining spirit

Chap. 16, Ver. 6. In the Greek, the prohibition is before the journey through Phrygia and Galatia: "they passed through Phrygia and the Galatian country, after having been forbidden"; etc.

Ver. 7. To Mysia: in Greek, "over against Mysia"; they were travelling north towards Bithynia, with Mysia to the west of them.

Ver. 10. We: St. Luke is now accompanying the Apostle.

and brought her masters much profit by soothsaying.

17 She followed Paul and ourselves and kept crying out, saying, "These men are servants of the most high God and they proclaim to you a way of salvation."

18 This she did for many days; until Paul, being very much grieved, turned and said to the spirit, "I order thee in the name of Jesus Christ to go out of her." And it went out that very moment.

Arrest of Paul and Silas

19 But on seeing that their hope of profit was gone, her masters seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the market place to the rulers;

20 and bringing them to the magistrates, they said, "These men are making a great disturbance in our city; they are Jews,

21 and are advocating practices which it is against the law for us to adopt or observe, since we are Romans."

22 And the people joined in the attack against them; and the magistrates tore off their clothes and ordered them to be beaten with rods;

23 and after inflicting many lashes upon them they cast them into prison, charging the jailer to keep them safely.

24 On receiving such orders, he cast them into the inner prison and fastened their feet in the stocks.

25 But at midnight Paul and Silas were praying, singing the praises of God, and the prisoners were listening to them;

26 and suddenly there was such a great earthquake that the foundations of the prison were shaken. And at once all the doors flew open, and everyone's chains were unfastened.

27 And the jailer, roused out of sleep and seeing that the doors of the prison were open, drew his sword and was about to kill himself, thinking that the prisoners had escaped.

y 2 Cor. 11, 25; Phil. 1, 13; 1 Thess. 2, 2.

Ver. 12. The principal city, etc.: variously translated according to different Greek readings, "the foremost city of a district of Macedonia," "the first city of the district of Macedonia," "the first city of this part of Macedonia."

Ver. 16. In Greek mythology Apollo destroyed Python, a serpent that was giving forth oracles at Delphi; the priestess of Apollo kept up this practice of divining in his shrine there.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here."

29 Then calling for a light, he ran in and trembling for fear fell down before Paul and Silas;

30 and bringing them out, he said, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

31 And they said, "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved, and thy household."

32 And they spoke the word of the Lord to him and to all who were in his household.

33 And he took them at that very hour of the night and washed their wounds; and he and all his family were baptized immediately.

34 And taking them into his house, he set food before them, and rejoiced with all his household over his faith in God.

Freedom

35 But when day came, the magistrates sent the lictors with the instructions, "Let these men go."

36 And the jailer reported these words to Paul: "The magistrates have sent word that you are to be released; now therefore come forth and go in peace."

37 But Paul said to them, "They have beaten us publicly and without trial, although we are Romans, and have cast us into prison; and now are they going to put us out secretly? By no means, but let them come themselves

38 and take us out." The lictors reported these words to the magistrates, and on hearing that they were Romans they were alarmed

39 and came and appealed to them; and taking them out, besought them to leave the city.

40 And leaving the prison they went to Lydia's house, and after seeing the brethren and encouraging them, they departed.

CHAPTER 17

Thessalonica

NOW after passing through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews.

2 And Paul, as was his custom, went in to them and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures;

3 explaining and showing that the Christ had to suffer and rise from the dead, and that this is the Christ, even Jesus, whom I preach to you.

4 And some of them believed and joined Paul and Silas, along with a large number of the worshipping Greeks and of the Gentiles, and not a few women of rank.

5 But the Jews, moved with jealousy, took certain base loafers, and forming a mob, set the city in an uproar. They attacked Jason's house and sought to bring them out to the people;

6 but not finding them, they dragged Jason and certain brethren before the magistrates of the city, shouting, "These men who are setting the world in an uproar have come here too,

7 and Jason has taken them in; and they are all acting contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying that there is another king, Jesus."

8 And they stirred up the people and the magistrates of the city who heard this;

9 and they accepted bail from Jason and the rest and then let them go.

Beræa

10 But the brethren straightway sent Paul and Silas away by night to Beræa, and on their arrival there they went into the synagogue of the Jews.

11 Now these were of a nobler character than those of Thessalonica and they received the word with great eagerness, studying the Scriptures every day to see whether these things were so.

12 Many of them became believers, and so did no small number of prominent Gentiles, women and men.

13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica found out that in Beræa too the word of God had been preached by Paul, they came there also to stir up and excite the multitude.

14 Then straightway the brethren sent forth Paul to go as far as the sea, while Silas and Timothy remained there.

15 But those who escorted Paul took him as far as Athens, and receiving instructions from him to Silas and Timothy to rejoin him as soon as possible, they set out.

Athens

16 Now while Paul was waiting for them at Athens, he was exasperated to see how the city was wholly given to idolatry.

17 He had discussions therefore in the synagogue with the Jews and those who worshipped God, and in the market place every day with those who were there.

18 And some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers debated with him; and some said, "What is this babbler trying to say?" But others,

"He seems to be a herald of strange gods," because he proclaimed to them Jesus and the resurrection.

19 And they took him and brought him to the Areopagus, saying, "May we know just what is this new doctrine which thou teachest?"

20 For thou bringest some strange things to our ears; we wish therefore to know what these things mean."

21 (Now all the Athenians and the visitors there from abroad used to spend all their leisure telling or listening to something new.)

Paul's Discourse

22 Then Paul stood up in the midst of the Areopagus, and said, "Men of Athens, I see that in every respect you are extremely religious.

23 For as I was going about and observing objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription: 'To the Unknown God.' What therefore you worship in ignorance, that I proclaim to you.

24 God, ^z who made the world and all that is in it, since he is Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell in temples built by hands;

25 neither is he served by human hands

^z Acts 7, 48; Gen. 1, 1.

Ver. 19. Areopagus: the hill of Ares (Mars), where the council called the "Areopagus" held its meetings.

Ver. 21. New: not so much mere "news" as novel theories and opinions.

Ver. 22. Religious: honoring a multitude of gods. There seems to be a touch of sarcasm in this.

as though he were in need of anything, since it is he who gives to all men life and breath and all things.

26 And from one man he has created the whole human race and made them live all over the face of the earth, determining their appointed times and the boundaries of their lands;

27 that they should seek God, and perhaps grope after him and find him, though he is not far from any one of us.

28 For in him we live and move and have our being, as indeed some of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.

29 If therefore we are the offspring of God, we ought not to imagine that the Divinity is like to gold or silver or stone, to an image graven by human art and thought.

30 The times of this ignorance God has, it is true, overlooked, but now he calls upon all men everywhere to repent;

31 inasmuch as he has fixed a day on which he will judge the world with justice by a Man whom he has appointed, and whom he has guaranteed to all by raising him from the dead."

32 Now when they heard of a resurrection of the dead, some began to sneer, but others said, "We will hear thee again on this matter."

33 So Paul went forth from among them.

34 Certain persons however joined him and became believers; among them were Dionysius the Areopagite and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

CHAPTER 18

Corinth

AFTER this he departed from Athens and came to Corinth.

2 And there he found a certain Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul visited them

Ver. 23. Unknown God: any god whom they might otherwise have neglected. St. Paul takes the expression and applies it to the true God whom in fact they did not know.

Ver. 24. Does not dwell: is not confined to.

3 and, as he was of the same trade, he stayed with them and he set to work; for they were tent-makers by trade.

4 And he would preach in the synagogue every Sabbath, [bringing in the name of the Lord Jesus] and try to convince Jews and Greeks.

5 But when Silas and Timothy came from Macedonia, Paul was wholly occupied with the word, emphatically assuring the Jews that Jesus is the Christ.

6 But as they contradicted him and blasphemed, he shook his garments in protest and said to them, "Your blood be upon your own heads; I am innocent of it. Henceforth I will go to the Gentiles."

7 And he departed from there, and went into the house of a man named Titus Justus, a worshipper of God; his house adjoined the synagogue.

8 But Crispus, the president of the synagogue, believed in the Lord and so did all his household, and many of the Corinthians heard Paul, and believed, and were baptized.

9 And one night the Lord said to Paul in a vision, "Do not fear, but speak and do not keep silence;

10 because I am with thee, and no one shall attack thee or injure thee, for I have many people in this city."

11 So he settled there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

Gallio

12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a concerted attack upon Paul and took him before the tribunal,

13 saying, "This fellow is persuading men to worship God contrary to the Law."

14 But as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, "If there were some question of misdemeanor or serious crime, O Jews, I should with reason bear with you.

15 But if these are questions of doctrine and of titles and of your Law, look to it yourselves; I have no wish to decide such matters."

^a Acts 21, 24; Num. 6, 18.

16 And he drove them from the tribunal.

17 Then they all seized Sosthenes, the president of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal; but Gallio paid no attention to it.

Return to Antioch

18 But Paul, after staying there some time longer, took leave of the brethren and sailed for Syria with Priscilla and Aquila; at Cenchrae he had his head shaved,^a because of a vow he had made.

19 He arrived at Ephesus and there he left them; but he himself entered the synagogue and had a discussion with the Jews.

20 But when they besought him to stay some time longer, he did not consent,

21 but bade them farewell, saying, "I will come back to you, God willing." He put to sea from Ephesus, 22 and landing at Cæsarea, he went up to Jerusalem to pay his respects to the church and then went down to Antioch.

3. THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY

Return to Ephesus

23 After spending some time there he departed, and travelled through the Galatian country and Phrygia in turn, strengthening all the disciples.

24 Now a certain Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria, came to Ephesus. He was an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures.

25 He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord, and being fervent in spirit, used to speak and teach carefully whatever had to do with Jesus, though he knew of John's baptism only.

26 This man therefore began to speak confidently in the synagogue, and on hearing him Priscilla and Aquila took him home and expounded the Way of God to him more precisely.

27 And as he wanted to go to Achaia, the brethren encouraged him and wrote

Chap. 18, Ver. 4. Bringing in . . . Jesus: not in the Greek, and lacking in some Vulgate codices.

Ver. 18. At Cenchrae . . . made: Cenchrae was the eastern port of Corinth. St. Paul had taken a Nazirite vow [cf. Num. 6, 1-21] which bound him to abstain from the fruit of the vine and to let his hair grow during the period of the vow. Perhaps this period covered the time of his stay in Corinth and was now over; the sacrifices for the ending of the vow could be offered only in Jerusalem [cf. Acts 21, 24].

Ver. 22. The church: at Jerusalem.

Ver. 27. Believed: the Greek adds "by the grace," i.e., by his learning and eloquence.

to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival there he was of great service to those who had believed, 28 for he vigorously refuted the Jews in public and showed from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Christ.

CHAPTER 19

Return to Ephesus

NOW it was while Apollos was in Corinth that Paul, after passing through the upper districts, came to Ephesus and found certain disciples;

2 and he said to them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" But they said to him, "We have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit."

3 And he said, "How then were you baptized?" They said, "With John's baptism."

4 Then Paul said, ^b"John baptized the people with a baptism of repentance, telling them to believe in him who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus."

5 On hearing this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus;

6 and when Paul laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they began to speak in tongues and to prophesy.

7 There were about twelve men in all.

8 Now for three months he used to go to the synagogue and speak confidently, holding discussions and trying to persuade them about the kingdom of God.

9 But when some were obstinate and refused to believe, speaking evil of the Way before the community, he left them and withdrew his disciples from them, and held daily discussions in the school of one Tyrannus.

10 Now this went on for two years, so that all who lived in the province of Asia, both Jews and Gentiles, heard the word of the Lord.

11 And God worked more than the usual miracles by the hand of Paul;

12 so that even handkerchiefs and aprons were carried from his body to the sick, and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out.

13 But certain of the itinerant Jews, exorcists, also attempted to invoke the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits in them, saying, "I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul preaches."

14 And a certain Sceva, a Jewish high priest, had seven sons who were doing this.

15 But the evil spirit answered and said to them, "Jesus I acknowledge, and Paul I know, but who are you?"

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was sprang at them and overpowered them both with such violence that they fled from that house tattered and bruised.

17 And this became known to all the Jews and Gentiles living in Ephesus, and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus came to be held in high honor.

18 And many of those who believed kept coming, and openly confessed their practices.

19 And many who had practised magical arts collected their books and burnt them publicly; and they reckoned up the prices of them, and found the sum to be fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 Thus mightily did the word of the Lord spread and prevail.

21 After all this, Paul resolved in the Spirit to pass through Macedonia and Achaia and to go to Jerusalem, saying, "After I have been there, I must also see Rome."

22 So he sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed on for a while in the province of Asia.

23 Now at that time there arose no small commotion about the Way.

24 For a silversmith named Demetrius, by making silver shrines of Diana, brought no small gain to the craftsmen;

25 and these he got together, along with workmen of like occupation, and said, "Men, you know that our wealth comes from this trade;

26 and you see and hear that not only at Ephesus, but almost over the whole province of Asia, this man Paul has per-

^b Acts 1, 5; 11, 16; Matt. 3, 11.

Chap. 19, Ver. 14. Jewish high priest: must mean here, of a high-priestly family.

Ver. 16. Them both: perhaps only two of the seven were actively engaged on this occasion. It is not unlikely, however, that the word here translated "both" may have meant "all" in the Greek of St. Luke's time.

Ver. 19. Their books: containing magical formulae.

suaded and turned away numbers of people, saying, 'Gods made by human hands are not gods at all.'

27 And there is danger, not only that this business of ours will be discredited, but also that the temple of the great Diana will be regarded as nothing, and even the magnificence of her whom all Asia and the world worship will be on the decline."

28 On hearing this they were filled with wrath and cried out, saying, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

29 And the city was filled with confusion, and they rushed by a common impulse into the theatre, dragging along the Macedonians Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's fellow-travellers.

30 But when Paul wanted to go before the people, the disciples would not let him;

31 and some of the Asiarchs who were friends of his, sent to him and begged him not to venture into the theatre.

32 Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing and some another; for the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had gathered together.

33 Then some of the crowd called upon Alexander, as the Jews were pushing him forward; and Alexander, motioning with his hand for silence, wanted to give an explanation to the people.

34 But as soon as they saw that he was a Jew, they all with one voice for about two hours shouted, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

35 But when the town clerk had quieted the crowd, he said, "Men of Ephesus, what man indeed is there who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great Diana and of Jupiter's offspring?"

36 Since therefore this is undeniable, you ought to be calm and do nothing rash.

37 For you have brought these men here who are neither guilty of sacrilege nor blasphemers of your goddess.

38 Therefore, if Demetrius and the craftsmen with him have a complaint against anyone, court days are kept and there are proconsuls; let them take action against one another.

39 And if you require anything further, it shall be settled in the lawful assembly.

40 For we are even in danger of being accused of riot over today's uproar, since there is no culprit whom we can hold liable for this disorderly gathering." And with these words he dismissed the assembly.

CHAPTER 20

Macedonia and Greece

NOW when the tumult had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples and encouraged them; then he took leave of them and started for Macedonia.

2 After travelling through those parts and giving them much encouragement, he came to Greece.

3 When he had spent three months there and was about to sail for Syria, a plot was laid against him by the Jews; so he resolved to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him Sopater of Berea, the son of Pyrrhus; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy; and of the province of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 These, having gone in advance, waited for us at Troas;

6 but we ourselves sailed from Philippi after the days of the Unleavened Bread, and five days later joined them at Troas, and there we stayed seven days.

Troas

7 And on the first day of the week, when we had met for the breaking of bread, Paul addressed them, as he was to leave the next morning, and he prolonged his address until midnight.

8 Now there were many lamps in the upper room where we had assembled.

9 And a young man named Eutychus,

Ver. 29. Theatre: the large open-air assembly place.
Ver. 31. Asiarchs: officers in charge of the religious feasts and of certain other matters in the province of Asia.

Ver. 35. Town clerk: the chief local official. Jupiter's offspring: in Greek, literally, "the thing fallen from heaven," probably referring to the crude statue of the goddess which was supposed to have fallen from the sky.

Ver. 40. Accused: by the Roman authorities. The Greek text reads, "there being not a single reason that we shall be able to give for this gathering."

Chap. 20, Ver. 7. The first day of the week: Sunday had replaced the Sabbath (Saturday) as the day of worship. Breaking of bread: the Holy Eucharist, celebrated in the evening.

who was sitting at the window, was overcome with drowsiness and, as Paul addressed them at great length, he went fast asleep and fell down from the third story to the ground and was picked up dead.

10 Paul went down to him and laid himself upon him, and embracing him, said, "Do not be alarmed, life is still in him."

11 Then he went up and broke bread and ate, and having spoken to them a good while, even till daybreak, he departed.

12 And they took away the boy alive and were not a little comforted.

13 But we went on board the ship and sailed for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there. That was the arrangement he had made, as he intended to travel there by land.

14 So when he met us at Assos, we took him on board and came to Mitylene.

15 Sailing from there, we arrived on the following day off Chios; the next day we made Samos, and the day after we reached Miletus.

16 For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, lest he should be delayed in the province of Asia; for he was hastening to be in Jerusalem, if it were possible for him, by the day of Pentecost.

Discourse at Miletus

17 From Miletus, however, he sent to Ephesus for the presbyters of the church;

18 and when they had come to him and were assembled, he said to them:

"You know in what manner I have lived with you all the time since the first day that I came into the province of Asia,

19 serving the Lord with all humility and with tears and in trials that befell me because of the plots of the Jews;

20 how I have kept back nothing that was for your good, but have declared it to you and taught you in public and from house to house,

21 urging Jews and Gentiles to turn to God in repentance and to believe in our Lord Jesus Christ.

22 And now, behold, I am going to Jerusalem, compelled by the Spirit, not knowing what will happen to me there;

23 except that in every city the Holy Spirit warns me, saying that imprisonment and persecution are awaiting me.

24 But I fear none of these, nor do I count my life more precious than myself, if only I may accomplish my course and the ministry that I have received from the Lord Jesus, to bear witness to the gospel of the grace of God.

25 And now, behold, I know that you all, among whom I went about preaching the kingdom of God, will see my face no longer.

26 Therefore I call you to witness this day that I am innocent of the blood of all;

27 for I have not shrunk from declaring to you the whole counsel of God.

28 Take heed to yourselves and to the whole flock in which the Holy Spirit has placed you as bishops, to rule the Church of God, which he has purchased with his own blood.

29 I know that after my departure fierce wolves will get in among you, and will not spare the flock.

30 And from among your own selves men will rise speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after them.

31 Watch, therefore, and remember that for three years night and day I did not cease with tears to admonish every one of you.

32 And now I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, who is able to build up and to give the inheritance among all the sanctified.

33 I have coveted no one's silver or gold or apparel.

34 You yourselves know ^c that these hands of mine have provided for my needs and those of my companions.

35 In all things I have shown you that by so toiling you ought to help the weak and remember the word of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' "

^c 1 Cor. 4, 12; 2 Thess. 3, 8.

Ver. 18. And were assembled: not in the Greek.

Ver. 21. Christ: not in the Greek.

Ver. 24. But I fear none of these: not in the Greek. Nor do I count, etc.: in Greek, "But I do not hold my life in any account as being dear to me."

Ver. 25. It seems probable from 1 Tim. 1, 3 and 2 Tim. 4, 20 that St. Paul did visit Ephesus again. His anticipation may not have been stated as a certainty. Even if it were, the fact of his having made the statement is beyond question.

36 Having said this, he knelt down and prayed with them all.

37 And there was much weeping among them all and they fell on Paul's neck and kissed him, 38 being grieved most of all at his saying that they would no longer see his face. And they escorted him to the ship.

CHAPTER 21

Tyre

AND when we had parted from them and had set sail, we made a straight course and came to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.

2 There we found a ship crossing over to Phœnicia, and we went on board and set sail.

3 After sighting Cyprus and leaving it to the left, we sailed for Syria and landed at Tyre, for there the ship was to unload her cargo.

4 Having looked up the disciples, we stayed there seven days. And they told Paul through the Spirit not to go to Jerusalem.

5 But when our time was up we left there and went on, and all of them with their wives and children escorted us till we were out of the city; and we knelt down on the shore and prayed.

6 And having said farewell to one another, we went on board the ship and they returned home.

Ptolemais and Cæsarea

7 After completing the voyage from Tyre, we landed at Ptolemais where we greeted the brethren and spent a day with them.

8 The next day we departed and came to Cæsarea, where ^d we went to the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven, and stayed with him.

9 He had four daughters, virgins, who had the gift of prophecy.

10 And while we were staying on there for some days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet named Agabus.

11 Coming to us, and taking Paul's girdle, he bound his own feet and hands, and said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit: The man whose girdle this is, the Jews will bind like this at Jerusalem, and they will deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles."

12 On hearing this, we ourselves and the people there begged him not to go to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered and said, "What do you mean by weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound but even to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus."

14 And when we could not persuade him, we acquiesced and said, "The Lord's will be done."

15 After this we made our preparations and went our way to Jerusalem.

16 And some of the disciples from Cæsarea went with us, taking with them Mnason, a Cypriot, an early disciple, whose guests we were to be.

4. IMPRISONMENT IN PALESTINE

Jerusalem

17 On our arrival at Jerusalem the brethren gave us a hearty welcome.

18 On the next day Paul went with us to James, and all the presbyters came in.

19 After greeting them, he related in detail what God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry.

20 They praised God when they heard it and they said to him, "Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of believers there are among the Jews, all of them zealous upholders of the Law.

21 Now, they have heard about thee that thou dost teach the Jews who live among the Gentiles to depart from Moses, telling them they should not circumcise their children nor observe the customs.

22 What then? The multitude is sure to assemble, for they will hear that thou hast come.

23 So do what we tell thee. We have four men who are under a vow;

24 take them and sanctify thyself along with them, and pay for them ^e that they may shave their heads; and all will know

^d Acts 6, 5.—^e Acts 18, 18; Num. 6, 18.

Ver. 8. Seven: cf. chapters 6 and 8.

Ver. 18. James: the same as in Acts 12, 17 and 15, 13.

Chap. 21, Ver. 4. Told: a warning about the danger ahead; having learnt this through the Holy Spirit, they naturally entreated St. Paul not to proceed; cf. v. 12.

that what they have heard of thee is false, but that thou thyself also observest the Law.

25 But as for the Gentile believers, ^f we ourselves have written our decision that they abstain from idol offerings and from blood and from what is strangled and from immorality."

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day after being purified along with them he entered the temple and announced the completion of the days of purification, when the sacrifice would be offered for each of them.

Paul's Arrest

27 But when the seven days were almost over, the Jews from the province of Asia, seeing him in the temple, stirred up all the people and seized him, shouting,

28 "Men of Israel, help. This is the man who teaches all men everywhere against the people and the Law and this place, and moreover he has brought Gentiles also into the temple and has desecrated this holy place."

29 For they had seen Trophimus the Ephesian in the city with him and they supposed that Paul had taken him into the temple.

30 And the whole city was thrown into confusion, and the people ran together, and seizing Paul, they proceeded to drag him out of the temple; whereupon the doors were immediately shut.

31 They were trying to kill him, when news reached the tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in a tumult.

32 And he, immediately taking soldiers and centurions, ran down to them; and when they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul.

33 Then the tribune came up and seized him and ordered him to be bound with two chains, and inquired who he was and what he had been doing.

34 Some in the crowd shouted one thing, and some another, and as he could not learn anything certain on account of the tumult, he ordered him to be taken into the barracks.

35 And when he came to the steps, he was actually being carried by the soldiers owing to the violence of the crowd;

36 for the mass of the people followed, shouting, "Away with him!"

37 And as Paul was about to be taken into the barracks, he said to the tribune, "May I say something to thee?" He said, "Dost thou know Greek?"

38 Art not thou the Egyptian who recently stirred up to sedition and led out into the desert the four thousand assassins?"

39 But Paul said to him, "I am a Jew from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of no insignificant city. But I beg thee, give me leave to speak to the people."

40 He gave him leave, and Paul, standing on the steps, motioned with his hand to the people and when they had become quiet he addressed them in Hebrew, saying:

CHAPTER 22

Discourse to the People

"BRETHREN and fathers, listen to what I have to say to you in my defense."

2 And when they heard him speak to them in Hebrew, they became even more quiet.

3 And he said: "I am a Jew, and I was born at Tarsus in Cilicia, but was brought up here in this city, a pupil of Gamaliel, and instructed according to the strict acceptance of the Law of our fathers. I was zealous for the Law just as all of you are today.

4 And I persecuted this Way even to the death,^g binding and committing to prisons both men and women,

5 as the high priest can bear me witness, and all the elders.^h In fact I received letters from them to the brethren in Damascus, and I was on my way to arrest those who were there and bring them back to Jerusalem for punishment.

6 And it came to pass that, as I was on my way and approaching Damascus, ^f Acts 15, 20, 29.—^g Acts 8, 3.—^h Acts 9, 2.

Ver. 38. Assassins: an organization whose members carried daggers under their cloaks to stab their enemies.

Ver. 40. Hebrew: i.e., Aramaic, the language of the Jews at that time.

Chap. 22, Ver. 3. Zealous for the Law: in Greek, "zealous for God."

Ver. 4. Way: the Christian manner of life.

suddenly about noon there shone round about me a great light from heaven;

7 and I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me?'

8 And I answered, 'Who art thou, Lord?' And he said to me, 'I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou art persecuting.'

9 And my companions saw indeed the light, but they did not hear the voice of him who was speaking to me.

10 And I said, 'What shall I do, Lord?' And the Lord said to me, 'Get up and go into Damascus, and there thou shalt be told of all that thou art destined to do.'

11 And as I could not see because of the dazzling light, my companions had to lead me by the hand, and so I reached Damascus.

12 Now one Ananias, an observer of the Law, respected by all the Jews who lived there, 13 came to me and, standing beside me, said to me, 'Brother Saul, regain thy sight.' And instantly I looked at him.

14 And he said, 'The God of our fathers has appointed thee beforehand to learn his will and to see the Just One and to hear a voice from his mouth;

15 for thou shalt be his witness before all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

16 And now why dost thou delay? Get up and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on his name.'

17 And it came to pass that, when I had returned to Jerusalem and was praying in the temple, I was in an ecstasy

18 and saw him as he said to me, 'Make haste and go quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.'

19 And I said, 'Lord, they themselves know that I used to imprison and beat in one synagogue after another those who believed in thee;

20 and when the blood of Stephen, thy witness, was shed, I was standing by and approved it, and took charge of the garments of those who killed him.'

21 And he said to me, 'Go, for to the Gentiles far away I will send thee.'

i Acts 8, 3.—j Acts 7, 58.

Ver. 13. Looked at: the Greek verb may have this meaning, but it may also mean "to recover one's sight." In the second sentence it may include both

Paul's Citizenship

22 Now, till he said this they were listening to him, but then they lifted up their voice and shouted, "Away from the earth with such a one! for it is not right that he should live."

23 And as they were shouting and throwing off their garments and casting dust into the air, 24 the tribune ordered him to be taken into the barracks and to be scourged and tortured that he might find out why they shouted so against him.

25 But when they had bound him with the straps, Paul said to the centurion who was standing by, "Is it legal for you to scourge a Roman, and that without a trial?"

26 When the centurion heard this, he went to the tribune and reported, saying, "What art thou about to do? This man is a Roman citizen."

27 Then the tribune came and said to him, "Tell me, art thou a Roman?" And he said, "Yes."

28 And the tribune answered, "I obtained this citizenship at a great price." And Paul said, "But I am a citizen by birth."

29 At once therefore those who had been going to torture him left him; and the tribune himself was alarmed to find that Paul was a Roman citizen, and that he had bound him.

30 The next day, as he wished to find out the real reason why he was accused by the Jews, he loosed him and ordered the priests and all the Sanhedrin to assemble; and taking Paul forth, he placed him in front of them.

CHAPTER 23

The Sanhedrin

THEN Paul, looking steadily at the Sanhedrin, said, "Brethren, I have conducted myself before God with a perfectly good conscience up to this day."

2 But the high priest Ananias ordered meanings, "I recovered my sight and looked up at him."

Chap. 23, Ver. 2. Ananias: high priest 47-59 A.D.

those who were standing by him to strike him on the mouth.

3 Then Paul said to him, "God will strike thee, thou whitewashed wall. Dost thou sit there to try me by the Law, and in violation of the Law order me to be struck?"

4 But the bystanders said, "Dost thou insult God's high priest?"

5 And Paul said, "I did not know, brethren, that he was the high priest; for it is written, k Thou shalt not speak evil of a ruler of thy people."

6 Then Paul, knowing that part of them were Sadducees and part of them Pharisees, cried out in the Sanhedrin, "Brethren, l I am a Pharisee, the son of Pharisees; it is about the hope and the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial."

7 And when he said that, there arose a dispute between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the multitude was divided.

8 For the Sadducees m say that there is no resurrection, and that there are no angels or spirits, whereas the Pharisees believe in both.

9 So there was a great uproar, and some of the Pharisees got up and began to insist, saying, "We find no evil in this man; what if a spirit has really spoken to him, or an angel?"

10 And as the dispute was becoming violent, the tribune, fearing lest Paul should be torn to pieces by them, ordered the soldiers to come down and take him by force from among them and bring him into the barracks.

11 But on the following night the Lord stood by him and said, "Be steadfast; for just as thou hast borne witness to me in Jerusalem, bear witness in Rome also."

A Conspiracy

12 Now when day broke, some Jews assembled and bound themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 There were more than forty that had made this conspiracy;

14 and they went to the chief priests and the elders and said, "We have bound ourselves under a great curse to taste nothing until we have killed Paul.

15 Now therefore do you, with the Sanhedrin, suggest to the tribune that he bring him to you as though you mean to look into his case more carefully; but we are ready to kill him before he gets here."

16 Now the son of Paul's sister heard of the ambush, and he came and entered the barracks and told Paul.

17 Paul called one of the centurions to him and said, "Take this young man to the tribune, for he has something to report to him."

18 So he took him and brought him to the tribune and said, "The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to thee, for he has something to say to thee."

19 So the tribune took him by the hand, and going aside with him, asked him, "What is it that thou hast to tell me?"

20 And he said, "The Jews have agreed to ask thee to bring Paul to the Sanhedrin tomorrow, on the plea that they intend to have a more thorough investigation made into his case.

21 But do not believe them; for more than forty of them are lying in wait for him, having bound themselves under a curse not to eat or drink until they have killed him; and they are now ready, only waiting for thy promise."

To Cæsarea

22 The tribune therefore let the young man go, charging him not to divulge to anyone that he had given him this information.

23 Then he called two centurions and said to them, "Get ready by the third hour of the night two hundred soldiers to go as far as Cæsarea, and seventy cavalry and two hundred spearmen;

24 and provide beasts to mount Paul and take him in safety to Felix the governor."

k Ex. 22, 28.—l Phil. 3, 5.—m Matt. 22, 23.

Ver. 3. Whitewashed wall: with a thin coating of white hiding its ugliness; or perhaps in the sense of "the whited sepulchres" of Matt. 23, 27.

Ver. 6. The hope: for the coming of the Messias.

Ver. 8. Both: the Pharisees believed both in a resurrection and in the existence of spiritual beings.

Ver. 9. Some of the Pharisees: in Greek "some of the Scribes of the party of the Pharisees."

25 [For he was afraid that the Jews might seize him by force and kill him, and he himself should afterwards be slandered, as though he intended to receive money.]

26 And he wrote a letter in these terms: "Claudius Lysias to His Excellency Felix the governor, greeting.

27 Whereas this man had been seized by the Jews and was on the point of being killed by them, I came on them with the troops and rescued him, having learnt that he was a Roman.

28 And wishing to know what charge they had preferred against him, I took him down into their Sanhedrin.

29 I found him accused about questions of their Law, but not of any crime deserving of death or imprisonment.

30 And when I was told of an ambush which they had prepared for him, I sent him to thee, directing his accusers also to state the case before thee. Farewell."

31 So the soldiers, in accordance with their instructions, took Paul and conducted him by night to Antipatris;

32 and the next day they returned to the barracks, leaving the cavalry to go on with him.

33 When they reached Cæsarea, they delivered the letter to the governor and also handed Paul over to him.

34 On reading it he asked from what province he was; and learning that he was from Cilicia, 35 "I will hear thee," he said, "when thy accusers have come." And he ordered him to be kept in Herod's palace.

CHAPTER 24

The Accusation

NOW five days later the high priest Ananias came down with some of the elders and one Tertullus, an attorney; and they presented their case against Paul before the governor.

2 When Paul had been summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

"Whereas we live in much peace

Ver. 25. Not in the Greek, and given in only a few Vulgate codices.

Chap. 24, Ver. 5. Sedition of the: not in the Greek.

Ver. 6ff. And wished . . . to come to thee: neither through thee, and whereas many reforms are in progress by thy foresight,

3 we always and everywhere receive them, most excellent Felix, with all thankfulness.

4 But not to detain thee too long, I entreat thee to be kind enough to grant us a brief hearing.

5 We have found this man a pest, and a promoter of seditions among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ring-leader of the sedition of the Nazarene sect.

6 He even tried to desecrate the temple, but we caught him [and wished to judge him according to our Law.

7 But Lysias, the tribune, came upon us and with great violence took him away out of our hands,

8 ordering his accusers to come to thee]. By examining him thyself, thou wilt be able to discover all these things we charge him with."

9 And the Jews also supported the charge, saying that this was so.

The Defense

10 Then when the governor nodded to him to speak, Paul answered, "As I know that for many years thou hast been a judge for this nation, I shall answer for myself with good courage.

11 For thou canst take as certain that it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem;

12 and neither in the temple did they find me disputing with anyone or creating a disturbance among the people, nor in the synagogues,

13 nor about the city; neither can they prove to thee the charges that they now make against me.

14 But this I admit to thee, that according to the Way, which they call a sect, so I serve the God of my fathers; believing all things that are written in the Law and the Prophets,

15 having a hope in God which these men themselves also look for, that there is to be a resurrection of the just and unjust;

16 and in this I too strive always to in the Greek nor in the more notable Vulgate codices.

Ver. 15. A hope: the resurrection.

Ver. 16. In this: in this expectation and all that it implies for the conduct of life.

have a clear conscience before God and before men.

17 Now after several years I came to bring alms to my nation and to offer sacrifice and fulfill vows;

18 in which ⁿ they found me engaged in the temple, after having been purified, with no crowd or disturbance at all.

19 But there were some Jews from the province of Asia, who ought to have been here before thee and to have presented their charges, if they had any, against me;

20 or else let these men themselves say what they found wrong in me when I stood before the Sanhedrin,

21 unless it be for the one thing I shouted out as I stood among them, ^o 'It is about the resurrection of the dead that I am being judged by you this day.' "

The Prisoner

22 Felix, however, having precise information about the Way, adjourned the trial, saying, "When Lysias the tribune comes down, I will decide your case."

23 And he instructed the centurion to keep Paul in custody but to allow him some liberty, and not to prevent any of his friends from looking after him.

24 Now some days later, Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was a Jewess, and sent for Paul and heard what he had to say about the faith in Christ Jesus.

25 But as he talked of justice and chastity and the judgment to come, Felix became alarmed and answered, "For the present go thy way; but when I get an opportunity, I will send for thee."

26 At the same time he was hoping that money would be given him by Paul, and for this reason he would send for him often and talk with him.

27 But after two years Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and as he wanted to ingratiate himself with the Jews, Felix left Paul in prison.

ⁿ Acts 21, 26.—^o Acts 23, 6.

Ver. 17. And fulfill vows: not in the Greek. The sacrifices would be those required at the expiration of his Nazirite vow.

Chap. 25, Ver. 11. Appeal to Caesar: when a Roman citizen under trial appealed to the emperor, the case passed out of the jurisdiction of all other magistrates.

CHAPTER 25

Festus

FESTUS accordingly entered his province, and three days afterwards he went up from Cæsarea to Jerusalem.

2 And the chief priests and Jewish leaders presented their charges against Paul, and begged him,

3 asking it as a favor against Paul, that he would have him fetched to Jerusalem. Meanwhile they were laying an ambush to kill him on the way.

4 But Festus answered that Paul was being kept in custody at Cæsarea and that he himself would be going there shortly.

5 "Let, therefore, your influential men go down with me," he said, "and if there is anything wrong with the man, let them present charges against him."

6 After staying among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Cæsarea, and the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and ordered Paul brought in.

7 And when he was fetched, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem surrounded him and brought many serious charges against him, which they were unable to prove.

8 Paul said in his own defense, "Neither against the Law of the Jews nor against the temple nor against Cæsar have I committed any offense."

9 But Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, answered Paul and said, "Art thou willing to go up to Jerusalem and be tried there before me on these charges?"

10 But Paul said, "I am standing at the tribunal of Cæsar; there I ought to be tried. To Jews I have done no wrong, as thou thyself very well knowest.

11 For if I have done any wrong or committed a crime deserving of death, I do not refuse to die. But if there is no ground to their charges against me, no one can give me up to them; I appeal to Cæsar."

12 Then Festus, after conferring with the council, answered, "Thou hast appealed to Cæsar; to Cæsar thou shalt go."

Agrippa

13 And after an interval of some days, King Agrippa and Bernice came to Cæsarea to pay their respects to Festus.

14 And as they were staying there several days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, "There is a certain man left a prisoner by Felix,

15 and when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and elders of the Jews presented their case against him, and asked for his conviction.

16 But I told them that Romans are not accustomed to give any man up before the accused has met his accusers face to face and has been given a chance to defend himself against the charges.

17 Therefore, when they had assembled here, I lost no time, but on the following day took my seat on the tribunal and ordered the man to be brought in.

18 But when his accusers got up, they did not charge him with any of the crimes that I had expected.

19 But they had against him certain questions about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but who Paul affirmed was alive.

20 Being at a loss as to how to investigate such matters, I asked him if he was willing to go to Jerusalem and be tried on these charges there.

21 But when Paul entered an appeal to have his case reserved for the decision of Augustus, I ordered him kept in custody till I could send him to Cæsar."

22 And Agrippa said to Festus, "I myself also could have wished to hear the man." "Tomorrow," said he, "thou shalt hear him."

23 So the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp and entered the audience hall with the tribunes and principal men of the city, and by order of Festus Paul was brought in.

24 And Festus said, "King Agrippa and all men here present with us, you see this man about whom the whole multitude of the Jews pleaded with me at Jerusalem and here, insisting and crying out that he ought not to live any longer.

25 But I, for my part, found that he had done nothing deserving of death. But as he himself made the appeal, I decided to send him to Augustus.

26 Still I have nothing definite to write to my lord about him. So I have brought him forth before you, and especially before thee, King Agrippa, that after an examination of him has been made I may have something to put in writing.

27 For it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner without stating the charges against him."

CHAPTER 26

Paul's Discourse

THEN Agrippa said to Paul, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself." Then Paul stretched forth his hand, and began his defense.

2 "I think myself fortunate, King Agrippa, that I am to defend myself to-day before thee against all the accusations of the Jews,

3 especially as thou art well acquainted with all the Jewish customs and controversies; I beg thee therefore to listen to me with patience.

4 My life, then, from my youth up, the early part of which was spent among my own nation and at Jerusalem, all the Jews know;

5 for they have long known me, if only they are willing to give evidence, that according to the strictest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee.

6 And now for the hope in the promise made by God to our fathers I am standing trial;

7 to which promise our twelve tribes hope to attain as they worship night and day; and it is about this hope, O king, that I am accused by the Jews.

8 Why is it deemed incredible with you if God does raise the dead?

9 And I then thought it my duty to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth.

10 And this I did in Jerusalem; and many of the saints I shut up in prison, p Acts 8, 3.

Ver. 13. Agrippa: Herod Agrippa II, son of the Herod mentioned in Acts 12, 1ff.

Ver. 21. Augustus: a title used for the emperors from the time of Augustus himself, who reigned from 27 B. C. to 14 A. D.

having received authority from the chief priests to do so; and when they were put to death, I cast my vote against them;

11 and oftentimes in all the synagogues I punished them and tried to force them to blaspheme; and in my extreme rage against them I even pursued them to foreign cities.

12 But while I was journeying on this business to Damascus^q with authority and permission from the chief priests, 13 at midday, O king, I saw on the way a light from heaven brighter than the sunshine round about me and my companions.

14 We all fell to the ground, and I heard a voice saying to me in Hebrew, 'Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me? It is hard for thee to kick against the goad.'

15 And I said, 'Who art thou, Lord?' And the Lord said, 'I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting.'

16 But rise and stand upon thy feet; for I have appeared to thee for this purpose, to appoint thee to be a minister and a witness to what thou hast seen, and to the visions thou shalt have of me;

17 delivering thee from the people and from the nations, to whom I am now sending thee,

18 to open their eyes that they may turn from darkness to light and from the dominion of Satan to God; that they may receive forgiveness of sins and an inheritance among those sanctified by faith in me.'

19 Therefore, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision;

20 but first ^r to the people of Damascus and Jerusalem, and then all over Judea and to the Gentiles, I set about declaring that they should repent and turn to God, doing works befitting their repentance.

21 This is why the Jews seized me in the temple ^s and tried to kill me.

22 But aided to this day by the help of God, I stand here to testify to both high and low, saying nothing beyond what the prophets and Moses said would come to pass:

23 that the Christ was to suffer, that he first by his resurrection from the dead was to proclaim light to the people and to the Gentiles."

The Result

24 While he was saying this in his defense, Festus said with a loud voice, "Paul, thou art mad; thy great learning is driving thee to madness."

25 "I am not mad, excellent Festus," said Paul, "but I speak words of sober truth.

26 For the king knows about these things and to him also I speak without hesitation. For I am sure that none of these things escaped him; for none of them happened in a corner.

27 Dost thou believe the prophets, King Agrippa? I know that thou dost."

28 But Agrippa said to Paul, "In a short while thou wouldst persuade me to become a Christian."

29 And Paul answered, "I would to God that, whether it be long or short, not only thou but also all who hear me today might become such as I am, except for these chains."

30 Then the king arose and the governor and Bernice, and those who had sat with them;

31 and after withdrawing they kept talking the matter over together, saying, "This man has done nothing to deserve death or imprisonment."

32 And Agrippa said to Festus, "This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed to Cæsar."

5. IMPRISONMENT IN ROME

CHAPTER 27

Departure for Rome

NOW when it was decided that he should sail for Italy, and that Paul, with the other prisoners, should be turned over to a centurion named Julius, of the Augustan cohort, ^q Acts 9, 2.—^r Acts 13, 14.—^s Acts 21, 31.

Chap. 26, Ver. 14. It is hard, etc.: a proverb; oxen were driven by goads, and kicking only made the goading more painful. The grace of God was prodding St. Paul in a similar way.

Ver. 28. Agrippa speaks ironically. The Greek can also mean, "In a short time thou believest thou hast made me a Christian"; or, "Thou thinkest it a small matter to make me a Christian."

Chap. 27, Ver. 1. He should sail: in Greek, "we should sail."

2 we went on board t a ship of Adrumythium which was bound for the ports of the province of Asia, and set sail; Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica, being one of our party.

3 The next day we reached Sidon and Julius treated Paul kindly, allowing him to go to his friends and receive attention.

4 And putting to sea from there, we passed under the lee of Cyprus, as the winds were against us,

5 and sailing over the sea that lies off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we reached Myra in Lycia.

6 There the centurion found a ship of Alexandria bound for Italy and put us on board her.

7 For many days we made slow progress and had difficulty in arriving off Cnidus. Then as the wind kept us from going on, we sailed under the lee of Crete off Salmone,

8 and coasting along it with difficulty we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the town of Thalassa.

9 But as much time had been spent and navigation was now unsafe, for the Fast was already over, Paul began to admonish them,

10 saying to them, "Men, I see that this voyage is threatening to bring disaster and heavy loss, not only to the cargo and the ship, but to our lives also."

11 But the centurion gave more heed to the pilot and the captain than to what Paul had to say;

12 and as the harbor was unsuitable for wintering in, the majority favored sailing from there to try whether they could get to Phœnis, a harbor in Crete facing southwest and northwest, to winter there.

13 So when a light south wind sprang up, thinking they had secured their object, they weighed anchor and ran close along the coast of Crete.

A Storm

14 But not long afterwards a violent wind called Euroaquilo burst against it;

15 and when the ship was caught in it

t 2 Cor. 11, 25.

Ver. 5. Myra: the Vulgate reads "Lystra."

Ver. 8. Thalassa: in Greek, "Lasea."

Ver. 9. The Fast: of the Day of Atonement, about September 15. Navigation was considered dangerous after the middle of September.

and could not face the wind, we gave way and were driven along.

16 We ran under the lee of a small island called Cauda, where we managed with difficulty to secure the boat;

17 after hoisting it on board, they used supports to undergird the ship, and as they were afraid of being driven on the Syrtis quicksands, they lowered the mainsail and so were driven along.

18 As we were being tossed about by the violence of the storm, the next day they threw some of the cargo overboard;

19 and on the third day with their own hands they threw the ship's gear overboard.

20 As neither sun nor stars were visible for many days and no small storm was raging, all hope of our being saved was in consequence given up.

21 Then, when they had eaten nothing for a long time, Paul got up in the midst of them and said, "Men, you should indeed have listened to me and not have sailed from Crete, thus sparing yourselves this disaster and loss.

22 And now I beg you to be of good cheer, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship.

23 For last night an angel of the God I belong to and serve, stood by me,

24 saying, 'Do not be afraid, Paul; thou must stand before Cæsar; and behold, God has granted thee all who are sailing with thee.'

25 So, men, be of good cheer; for I have faith in God that it will be as it has been told me.

26 But we are to reach a certain island."

Shipwreck

27 It was the fourteenth night, and we were sailing in the Adria, when about midnight the sailors began to suspect that they were drawing near to some land.

28 On taking soundings, they found twenty fathoms, and a little further on they found fifteen;

29 then fearing that we might go on the rocks, they dropped four anchors from the stern and longed for daylight.

Ver. 13. Weighed anchor: in Latin, "loosed from Asson," the Greek noun being taken as a proper name.

Ver. 14. Euroaquilo: a "northeaster."

30 But as the sailors were trying to escape from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea, pretending that they were going to cast anchors from the bow.

31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men remain in the ship, you cannot be saved."

32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and let her drift off.

33 And when it began to grow light, Paul begged them all to take food, saying, "This is the fourteenth day that you have been constantly on the watch and fasting, without taking anything to eat.

34 So I beg you to take some food for your safety; for not a hair from the head of any one of you shall perish."

35 With these words he took bread and gave thanks to God before them all and broke it and began to eat.

36 Then all became more cheerful and took food themselves.

37 Now, we were in all two hundred and seventy-six souls on board.

38 And after eating their fill, they proceeded to lighten the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

39 When day broke they could not make out the land; but they noticed a bay with a beach, and they proposed to run the ship ashore there if they could.

40 So they slipped the anchors and committed themselves to the sea, at the same time unlash the fastenings of the rudders; and hoisting the foresail to the breeze, they made for the beach.

41 But we struck a place open to two seas, and they ran the ship aground. The prow stuck fast and remained immovable, but the stern began to break up under the violence of the sea.

42 Now the soldiers planned to kill the prisoners lest any of them should swim ashore and escape,

43 but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, put a stop to their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and get to land,

44 and they brought the rest in, some on planks and others on various pieces from the ship. And so it came to pass that all got safely to land.

CHAPTER 28

Malta

AFTER our escape we learned that the island was called Malta.

2 And the natives showed us no little kindness, for they kindled a fire and refreshed us all because of the rain that had set in, and the cold.

3 Now Paul gathered a bundle of sticks and laid them on the fire, when a viper came out because of the heat and fastened on his hand.

4 When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "Surely this man is a murderer, for though he has escaped the sea, Justice does not let him live."

5 But he shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm.

6 Now they were expecting that he would swell up and suddenly fall down and die; but after waiting a long time and seeing no harm come to him, they changed their minds and said that he was a god.

7 Now in the vicinity there were estates belonging to the head man of the island, whose name was Publius, and he received us and entertained us hospitably for three days.

8 And it happened that the father of Publius was laid up with fever and dysentery; but Paul went in, and after praying and laying his hands on him, he healed him.

9 After this all the sick on the island came and were cured;

10 and they honored us with many marks of honor, and when we sailed, they provided us with such things as we needed.

To Rome

11 We set sail after three months in an Alexandrian ship with the Twins on her figurehead, which had wintered at the island.

Ver. 40. The Greek reads, "So they slipped the anchors and left them in the sea." This fits the context better.

Chap. 28, Ver. 4. Justice: or Vengeance, as pursuing criminals, was a familiar goddess among Greeks and Romans, and the natives here speak of it as a goddess.

Ver. 11. The Twins: on its prow the ship carried the images of Castor and Pollux, the patrons of sailors.

12 We put in at Syracuse, and stayed there three days.

13 Then, following the coast, we reached Rhegium; and one day later a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we arrived at Puteoli, 14 where we found brethren and were entreated to stay with them seven days; and so we came to Rome.

15 And the brethren there, having had news of us, came as far as the Market of Appius and the Three Taverns; and when Paul saw them, he gave thanks to God and took courage.

16 On our arrival at Rome, Paul was given permission to live by himself with a soldier to guard him.

At Rome

17 Three days later he called together the leading Jews, and when they had assembled he said to them, "Brethren, although I have done nothing against the people or against the customs of our fathers, yet I was handed over to the Romans as a prisoner from Jerusalem.

18 After an examination they were ready to release me, since I was innocent of any crime that deserved death;

19 but as the Jews objected, I was forced to appeal to Cæsar—not that I had any charge to bring against my nation. This, then, is why I asked to see you and speak with you.

20 For it is because of the hope of Israel that I am wearing this chain."

21 But they said to him, "We ourselves have received no letters about thee from Judea, and none of the brethren, upon arrival, has reported or spoken any evil of thee.

22 But we want to hear from thee what thy views are; for as regards this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against."

23 So they fixed a day, and very many came to him at his lodging; and to them he explained the matter, bearing witness to the kingdom of God and trying from morning till evening to convince them concerning Jesus from the Law of Moses and from the Prophets.

24 And some believed what was said; and some disbelieved;

25 and as they could not agree among themselves, they began to depart, when Paul added this one word: "Well did the Holy Spirit speak through Isaias the prophet to our fathers, 26 saying, "Go to this people and say: With the ear you will hear and will not understand; and seeing you will see and will not perceive.

27 For the heart of this people has been hardened, and with their ears they have been hard of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest perhaps they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and I heal them.

28 Be it known to you therefore that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles, and they will listen to it."

29 [When he had said this, the Jews departed, having much argument among themselves.]

30 And for two full years he remained in his own hired lodging; and he welcomed all who came to him, 31 preaching the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and unhindered. Amen.

u Isa. 6, 9; Matt. 13, 14; Mark 4, 12; Luke 8, 10; John 12, 40; Rom. 11, 8.

Ver. 25. Our: in Greek "your."

Ver. 29. Not in the Greek, and in only a few codices of the Vulgate.

The Life and Epistles of ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL was born at Tarsus, Cilicia, of Jewish parents who were descended from the tribe of Benjamin (Acts 9, 11; 21, 39; 22, 3). He was a Roman citizen from birth (Acts 22, 27f). As he was "a young man" at the stoning of St. Stephen (Acts 7, 58) and calls himself "an old man" when writing to Philemon (v. 9), about the year 63, we may conclude that he was born around the beginning of the Christian era.

In his youth Paul acquired a threefold education. First, he learned the Greek language in his Tarsian environment, as is evident from his later skill in writing his Epistles. Secondly, his father probably initiated him into his own trade, which was that of tent-making, and thus Paul during his apostolic labors was able to defray the cost of his food and lodging by the work of his own hands (Acts 18, 3; 1 Cor. 4, 12; 1 Thess. 2, 9; 2 Thess. 3, 8). Thirdly, in his father's house at Tarsus his education was strongly Pharisaic (Acts 23, 6). To complete his schooling Paul was sent to Jerusalem, where he sat at the feet of the learned Gamaliel and was educated in the strict observance of the ancestral Law (Acts 22, 3). Here he also acquired a good knowledge of exegesis and was trained in the practice of disputation. As a convinced and zealous Pharisee he returned to Tarsus before the public life of Christ opened in Palestine, for he never refers to personal acquaintance with Christ during the Savior's mortal life.

Some time after the death of our Lord Paul returned to Palestine. His profound conviction and emotional character made his zeal develop into a religious fanaticism against the infant Church. He took part in the stoning of the first martyr, St. Stephen, and in the fierce persecution of the Christians that followed.

Entrusted with a formal mission from the high priest, he departed for Damascus to arrest the Christians there and bring them bound to Jerusalem. As he was nearing Damascus, about noon, a light from heaven suddenly blazed round him. Jesus with His glorified body appeared to him and addressed him, turning him away from his apparently successful career. An immediate transformation was wrought in the soul of Paul. He was suddenly converted to the Christian faith and arose an Apostle (Acts 9, 3-19; 22, 6-16; 26, 12-18).

He remained some days in Damascus after his Baptism (Acts 9, 10-19), and then went to Arabia (Gal. 1, 17), possibly for a year or two, to prepare himself for his future missionary activity. Having returned to Damascus, he stayed there for a time, preaching in the synagogues, that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. For this he incurred the hatred of the Jews, and had to flee from the city (Acts 9, 23-25; 2 Cor. 11, 32f). He then went to Jerusalem to see Peter (Gal. 1, 18), to pay his homage to the head of the Church. Later he went back to his native Tarsus (Acts 9, 30) and began to evangelize his own province (Gal. 1, 21) until called by Barnabas to Antioch (Acts 11, 25). After one year, on the occasion of a famine, both Barnabas and Paul were sent with alms to the poor Christian community at Jerusalem (Acts 11, 27-30). Having fulfilled their mission, they returned to Antioch (Acts 12, 25).

Soon after this Paul and Barnabas made the first missionary journey (44 /45-49 /50 A.D.), visiting the island of Cyprus, then Pamphylia, Pisidia and Lycaonia, all in Asia Minor, and establishing churches at Pisidian, Antioch, Iconium, Lystra and Derbe (Acts 13-14).

After the Apostolic Council of Jerusalem Paul, accompanied by Silas and later also by Timothy and Luke, made his second missionary journey (50-52 /53 A.D.), first revisiting the churches previously established by him in Asia Minor and then passing through Galatia (Acts 16, 6). At Troas, a vision of a Macedonian was had by Paul, which impressed him as a call from God to evangelize Macedonia. He accordingly sailed for Europe, and preached the Gospel in Philippi, Thessalonica, Berea, Athens and Corinth. Then he returned to Antioch by way of Ephesus and Jerusalem (Acts 15, 36-18, 22).

On his third missionary journey (53/54-58 A.D.) Paul visited nearly the same regions as on the second, but made Ephesus, where he remained nearly three years, the center of his missionary activity. He laid plans also for another missionary journey, intending to leave Jerusalem for Rome and Spain. But persecutions by the Jews hindered him from accomplishing his purpose. After two years of imprisonment at Cæsarea he finally reached Rome, where he was kept another two years in chains (Acts 18, 23—28, 31).

The Acts of the Apostles gives us no further information on the life of the Apostle. We gather, however, from the Pastoral Epistles and from tradition that at the end of the two years St. Paul was released from his Roman imprisonment, and then travelled to Spain (Rom. 15, 24, 28), later to the East again, and then back to Rome, where he was imprisoned a second time, and in the year 67 was beheaded.

St. Paul's untiring interest in and paternal affection for the various churches established by him have given us fourteen canonical Epistles. It is, however, quite certain that he wrote other letters which are no longer extant.

These Epistles are not arranged in our Bible according to chronological order. In the first place are given the Epistles addressed to communities, according to the relative dignity of the church receiving the Epistle, and the length of the subject-matter; in the second place we have those addressed to individuals; and finally, the Epistle to the Hebrews.

All of the Epistles were written in Greek. Though St. Paul on occasion could speak that language with grace, he did not strive after literary elegance in his compositions. Because of the pressure of his work and cares, he usually dictated his Epistles and wrote the final salutation with his own hand (Rom. 16, 22; 1 Cor. 16, 21; Gal. 6, 11; 2 Thess. 3, 17). At times his thoughts are so overflowing and forceful that the rules of grammar and style are neglected. As a consequence, a mode of expression or an entire sentence is now and then difficult or obscure for us (2 Pet. 3, 16).

And yet, in spite of these grammatical faults and irregularities of style, no one can read the Epistles of St. Paul without being amazed at his natural eloquence. St. Jerome remarks that the words of the Apostle Paul seem to him like peals of thunder. His mental acumen and depth of feeling impart to his language loftiness, amazing power and beauty.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the ROMANS

ST. PAUL'S EPISTLE to the Romans is given the position of honor at the head of all the New Testament Epistles. It was written at Corinth during the winter 57-58 A.D., at the close of St. Paul's third missionary journey, prior to his voyage to Jerusalem, where at the instigation of his bitter Jewish adversaries he was to be arrested and afterwards held prisoner for several years. This date for the composition of the Epistle is arrived at by comparing the circumstances and persons to which it alludes with those at Corinth during St. Paul's sojourn there at the close of his third missionary journey.

St. Paul during this period of his missionary activity had rather thoroughly covered the territory in the eastern world, and was looking for new fields to evangelize in the West. He purposed, accordingly, after visiting Jerusalem, to journey to Spain, stopping en route at Rome. In this letter he wished to inform the Romans of his intended visit and to set before them the fruits of his meditations on the great religious question of the day, justification by faith and the relation of this new system of salvation to the Mosaic religion. Although he had previously dealt briefly with the question in the Epistle to the Galatians, St. Paul had not thus far had the opportunity of fully developing in writing his doctrine on this point. But now wishing to introduce himself to the Romans, he seized the opportunity of setting forth a lengthy statement and defense of his doctrine, not only for the Romans but also for the various Christian communities throughout the world.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, the servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God,

2 which he had promised beforehand through his prophets in the holy Scriptures,

3 concerning his Son who was born to him according to the flesh of the offspring of David;

4 who was foreordained Son of God by an act of power in keeping with the holiness of his spirit, by resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord,

5 through whom we have received the grace of apostleship to bring about obedience to faith among all the nations for his name's sake;

6 among whom are you also called to be Jesus Christ's—

7 to all God's beloved who are in Rome, called to be saints: grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Commendation and Desire to Visit Them

8 First I give thanks to my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is proclaimed all over the world.

9 For God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son, how unceasingly I make mention of you, 10 always imploring in my prayers that somehow I may at last by God's will come to you after a safe journey.

11 For I long to see you that I may impart some spiritual grace unto you to strengthen you,

12 that is, that among you I may be

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. 9. 16. In vv. 2 and 9, "gospel" means the work of evangelizing or preaching the gospel. In v. 16 it means the whole economy of salvation in Christ, doctrine and sacramental system included.

Ver. 4. Foreordained: in the Greek, "constituted" or "manifested." Jesus Christ was from all eternity the real Son of God according to His divine nature. When He became man, the glory of this nature was hidden away from men in the human nature which He had assumed. "He emptied himself" of that divine glory, in the words of St. Paul [Phil. 2, 7]. But from the moment of His Resurrection the process of His comforted together with you by that faith which is common to us both, yours and mine.

Why He Wishes to Visit Them

13 Now I would not, brethren, have you ignorant, that I have often intended to come to see you (and have been hindered until now) that I may produce some results among you also, as well as among the rest of the Gentiles.

14 To Greeks and to foreigners, to learned and unlearned, I am debtor:

15 so, for my part, I am ready to preach the gospel to you also who are at Rome.

Theme of the Epistle

16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone who believes, to Jew first and then to Greek.

17 For in it the justice of God is revealed, from faith unto faith, as it is written, a He who is just lives by faith.

I: DOCTRINAL
THE GOSPEL: THE POWER OF
GOD FOR THE SALVATION OF ALL WHO BELIEVE

1. HUMANITY WITHOUT CHRIST

The Pagans Adore Idols

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of those men who in wickedness hold back the truth of God, 19 seeing that what may be known about God is manifest to them. For God has manifested it to them.

20 For since the creation of the world his invisible attributes are clearly seen—a Hab. 2, 4; Gal. 3, 11; Heb. 10, 38.

glorification in His human nature was begun, and culminated in His Ascension into heaven, where at the right hand of God the Father He was constituted (manifested) Son of God in power in that very human nature in which, during His sojourn on earth. He had appeared to men weak and lowly. Jesus Christ our Lord: these words are in apposition with his Son, at the beginning of v. 3.

Ver. 17. The justice of God: the real, intrinsic holiness and justice that God imparts to man, transforming him from a sinner into a son of God by adoption, and an heir to heaven.

his everlasting power also and divinity—being understood through the things that are made. And so they are without excuse, 21 seeing that, although they knew God, they did not glorify him as God or give thanks, but became vain in their reasonings, and their senseless minds have been darkened.

22 For while professing to be wise, they have become fools,

23 and they have changed the glory of the incorruptible God^b for an image made like to corruptible man and to birds and four-footed beasts and creeping things.

Punishment of Idolaters

24 Therefore God has given them up in the lustful desires of their heart^c to uncleanness, so that they dishonor their own bodies among themselves—

25 they who exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator who is blessed forever, amen.

26 For this cause God has given them up to shameful lusts; for their women have exchanged the natural use for that which is against nature, 27 and in like manner the men also, having abandoned the natural use of the woman, have burned in their lusts one towards another, men with men doing shameless things and receiving in themselves the fitting recompense of their perversity.

28 And as they have resolved against possessing the knowledge of God, God has given them up to a reprobate sense, so that they do what is not fitting,

29 being filled with all iniquity, malice, immorality, avarice, wickedness; being full of envy, murder, contention, deceit, malignity; being whisperers,

30 detractors, hateful to God, irreverent, proud, haughty, plotters of evil; disobedient to parents, 31 foolish, dissolute, without affection, without fidelity, without mercy.

32 Although they have known the ordinance of God, they have not understood that those who practise such things are deserving of death. And not only do they do these things, but they applaud others doing them.

CHAPTER 2

All Will Be Rewarded or Punished

WHEREFORE, thou art inexcusable, O man, whoever thou art who judgest. For wherein thou judgest another, thou dost condemn thyself. For thou who judgest dost the same things thyself.

2 And we know that the judgment of God is according to truth against those who do such things.

3 But dost thou think, O man who judgest those who do such things and dost the same thyself, that thou wilt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or dost thou despise the riches of his goodness and patience and long-suffering? Dost thou not know that the goodness of God is meant to lead thee to repentance?

5 But according to thy hardness and unrepentant heart, thou dost treasure up to thyself wrath on the day of wrath and of the revelation of the just judgment of God,

6 who will render to every man according to his works.

7 Life eternal indeed he will give to those who by patience in good works seek glory and honor and immortality;

8 but wrath and indignation to those who are contentious, and who do not submit to the truth but assent to iniquity.

9 Tribulation and anguish shall be visited upon the soul of every man who works evil; of Jew first and then of Greek.

10 But glory and honor and peace shall be awarded to everyone who does good, to Jew first and then to Greek.

11 Because with God there is no respect of persons.

b Ps. 105, 20.—c Gal. 5, 19; Eph. 4, 19; etc.

Ver. 29. Immortality: not in the Greek.

Ver. 30. Hateful to God: in the Greek, rather "hating God."

Ver. 31. Without fidelity: wanting in most Greek Manuscripts.

Ver. 24. God has given them up: as St. Thomas Aquinas says, not by impelling them to evil, but by deserting them. He justly withdrew His grace from them in punishment of their idolatry, and being thus abandoned by God, men followed the bent of fallen nature, and fell into the degradation of unnatural vice.

Gentiles to Be Judged by the Natural Law

12 For whoever have sinned without the Law, will perish without the Law; and whoever have sinned under the Law, will be judged by the Law.

13 For it is not they who hear the Law that are just in the sight of God; but it is they who follow the Law that will be justified.

14 When the Gentiles who have no law do by nature what the Law prescribes, these having no law are a law unto themselves.

15 They show the work of the Law written in their hearts. Their conscience bears witness to them, even when conflicting thoughts accuse or defend them.

16 This will take place on the day when, according to my gospel, God will judge the hidden secrets of men through Jesus Christ.

The Jews Transgress the Law

17 But if thou art called "Jew," and dost rely upon the Law, and dost glory in God,

18 and dost know his will, and dost approve the better things, being informed by the Law,

19 thou art confident that thou art a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness,

20 an instructor of the unwise, a teacher of children, having in the Law the pattern of knowledge and of truth.

21 Thou therefore who teachest another, dost thou not teach thyself? Thou who preachest that men should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou who sayest that men should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? Thou who dost abominate idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?

23 Thou who dost glory in the Law, d Matt. 7, 21.—e Isa. 52, 5; Ezech. 36, 20.—f Pss. 115, 11; 50, 4.

Chap. 2, Ver. 12. In this verse, as in the whole passage, the Mosaic Law is probably meant.

Ver. 19. Thou art confident: the Latin text by omitting "and" of the Greek text before this clause, makes it an apodosis, whereas in the Greek there is a series of suppositions without an apodosis, and the sentence remains uncompleted.

Ver. 22. Commit sacrilege: a literal translation of the Vulgate; the corresponding Greek word is generally rendered "pillage temples."

dost thou dishonor God by transgressing the Law?

24 For the name of God, as it is written, is blasphemed through you among the Gentiles.

True Circumcision

25 Circumcision, indeed, profits if thou keep the Law; but if thou be a transgressor of the Law, thy circumcision has become uncircumcision.

26 Therefore if the uncircumcised keep the precepts of the Law, will not his uncircumcision be reckoned as circumcision?

27 And he who is by nature uncircumcised, if he fulfill the Law, will judge thee who with the letter and circumcision art a transgressor of the Law.

28 For he is not a Jew who is so outwardly; nor is that circumcision which is so outwardly in the flesh;

29 but he is a Jew who is so inwardly, and circumcision is a matter of the heart in the spirit, not in the letter. His praise is not from men but from God.

CHAPTER 3

Objections Answered

WHAT advantage then remains to the Jew, or what is the use of circumcision?

2 Much in every respect. First, indeed, because the oracles of God were entrusted to them.

3 For what if some of them have not believed? Will their unbelief make void the fidelity of God? By no means!

4 For God is true, and every man is a liar, as it is written, That thou mayest be justified in thy words, and mayest be victorious when thou art judged.

5 But if our wickedness shows forth the justice of God, what shall we say? Is God unjust who inflicts punishment? (I speak after a purely human manner.)

Ver. 29. Circumcision of the heart means the uprooting of vices and evil tendencies from the heart.

Chap. 3, Ver. 4. For God is true: the Greek has, "let God be true." Every man is a liar: in comparison with God who is Truth itself, every man is essentially unreliable, and may at any time intentionally or unintentionally fall into error.

6 By no means! Otherwise, how is God to judge the world?

7 But if through my lie the truth of God has abounded unto his glory, why am I also still judged as a sinner?

8 And why should we not, as some calumniously accuse us of teaching, do evil that good may come from it? The condemnation of such is just.

The Scriptures Attest Universal Sin

9 What then? Are we better off than they? Not at all. For we have argued that Jews and Greeks are all under sin,

10 as it is written, g There is not one just man;

11 there is none who understands; there is none who seeks after God.

12 All have gone astray together; they have become worthless. There is none who does good, no, not even one.

13 Their h throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have dealt deceitfully. The venom of asps is beneath their lips;

14 their mouth i is full of cursing and bitterness.

15 Their feet i are swift to shed blood;

16 destruction and misery are in their ways.

17 And the path of peace they have not known.

18 There is no fear of God k before their eyes.

This Concerns the Jews

19 Now we know that whatever the Law says, it is speaking to those who are under the Law; in order that every mouth may be shut, and the whole world may be made subject to God.

20 For by the works of the Law no human being shall be justified before him, for through law comes the recognition of sin.

2. SALVATION THROUGH FAITH IN CHRIST

Justice Comes through Faith in Christ

21 But now the justice of God has been made manifest independently of the Law, being attested by the Law and the Prophets;

22 the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ upon all who believe. For there is no distinction, 23 as all have sinned and have need of the glory of God.

24 They are justified freely by his grace through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus,

25 whom God has set forth as a propitiation by his blood through faith, to manifest his justice, 26 God in his patience remitting former sins; to manifest his justice at the present time, so that he himself is just, and makes just him who has faith in Jesus.

Justification Excludes Boasting

27 Where then is thy boasting? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? No, but by the law of faith.

28 For we reckon that a man is justified by faith independently of the works of the Law.

29 Is God the God of the Jews only, and not of the Gentiles also? Indeed of the Gentiles also.

30 For there is but one God who will justify the circumcised by faith, and the uncircumcised through the same faith.

31 Do we therefore through faith destroy the Law? By no means! Rather we establish the Law.

CHAPTER 4

Abraham Justified by Faith

WHAT then shall we say that Abraham, our father according to the flesh, acquired?

which He imparts to the soul to make it really, intrinsically pleasing and holy in His sight. The necessary condition for obtaining the infusion of this divine gift is faith, not a bare speculative faith, but a practical faith which through the love of God effects the observance of the commandments and the performance of other good works.

Ver. 22. Upon all: the Greek has, "unto all."

Ver. 26. Remitting: the Greek has, "his passing over."

g 10-12: Pss. 13, 1-3; 52, 2-4.—h Pss. 5, 11; 139, 4.—i Ps. 9, 7.—j 15-17: Isa. 59, 7; Prov. 1, 16.—k Ps. 35, 2.

Ver. 20. It does not follow from St. Paul's statement that no man is justified by the works of the Law, that good works are not necessary for salvation. The justification of which St. Paul here speaks is the infusion of sanctifying grace which alone renders a person supernaturally pleasing in the sight of God. This cannot be obtained either by the observance of the Law or by any other work of unregenerate man.

Ver. 21. The justice of God through faith is not that holiness whereby God is just, but that grace

2 For if Abraham was justified by works, he has reason to boast, but not before God.

3 For what does the Scripture say? ¹ "Abraham believed God and it was credited to him as justice."

4 Now to him who works, the reward is not credited as a favor but as something due.

5 But to him who does not work, but believes in him who justifies the impious, his faith is credited to him as justice.

6 Thus David declares the blessedness of the man to whom God credits justice without works:

7 Blessed ^m are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered;

8 blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not credit sin.

Justified before Circumcision

9 Does this blessedness hold good, then, only for the circumcised, or also for the uncircumcised? For we say that unto Abraham faith was credited as justice.

10 How then was it credited? When he was in the state of circumcision or in that of uncircumcision? Not in circumcision but in uncircumcision.

11 And he received the sign of circumcision ⁿ as the seal of the justice of faith which he had while uncircumcised, in order that he may be the father of all who, while uncircumcised, believed, that to them also it may be credited as justice;

12 and the father of the circumcised, not of those merely who are circumcised, but also of those who follow in the steps of the faith that was our father Abraham's while yet uncircumcised.

¹ Gen. 15, 6.—^m 7f: Ps. 31, 1f.—ⁿ Gen. 17, 10f.—^o Gen. 17, 5.—^p Gen. 15, 5.

Chap. 4, Ver. 3. We should distinguish between justification and salvation. We cannot be saved without good works, and accordingly St. Paul repeatedly insists on the necessity of avoiding sin and doing good. But justification, that is, the infusion of sanctifying grace, cannot be merited by us; it is an entirely gratuitous gift of God.

Ver. 5. Credited to him as justice: when God, who is infinite truth, credits something to man, it is equivalent to saying that He imparts it really to man; for there is no make-believe with God. The Clementine Vulgate adds: "According to the plan of God's grace."

Not Justified by the Works of the Law

13 For not through the Law but through the justice of faith was the promise made to Abraham and to his posterity that he should be heir of the world.

14 For if they who are of the Law are heirs, faith is made empty, the promise is made void.

15 For the Law works wrath; for where there is no law, neither is there transgression.

16 Therefore the promise was the outcome of faith, that it might be a favor, in order that it might be secure for all the offspring, not only for those who are of the Law, but also for those who are of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all;

17 as it is written, ^o I have appointed thee the father of many nations. He is our father in the sight of God, whom he believed, who gives life to the dead and calls things that are not as though they were.

The Strength of His Faith

18 Abraham hoping against hope believed, so that he became the father of many nations, according to what was said, ^p So shall thy offspring be.

19 And without weakening in faith, he considered his own deadened body (for he was almost a hundred years old) and the deadened womb of Sara;

20 and yet in view of the promise of God, he did not waver through unbelief but was strengthened in faith, giving glory to God,

21 being fully aware that whatever God has promised he is able also to perform.

22 Therefore it was credited to him as justice.

Ver. 7f. Forgiven, covered, not credit: varying expressions, all indicative of the same idea, namely, that the guilt of sins is really removed from the soul by God.

Ver. 9. Hold good . . . only: not in the Greek.

Ver. 15. The Law works wrath: a law simply indicates the line of conduct to be followed. It does not impart the strength of will to fulfill its precepts. Of itself then it becomes an occasion of wrath, in that if its precepts are violated, the lawgiver is provoked to anger and inflicts punishment on the transgressor.

The Model of Our Faith

23 Now not for his sake only was it written that "It was credited to him,"

24 but for the sake of us also, to whom it will be credited if we believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, 25 who τ was delivered up for our sins, and rose again for our justification.

3. THE SUPERABUNDANCE OF THIS JUSTIFICATION

CHAPTER 5

Christ's Death Assures Us Hope and Peace

HAVING been justified therefore by faith, let us have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ,

2 through whom we also have access by faith unto that grace in which we stand, and exult in the hope of the glory of the sons of God.

3 And not only this, but we exult in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation works out endurance,

4 and endurance tried virtue, and tried virtue hope.

5 And hope τ does not disappoint, because the charity of God is poured forth in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who has been given to us.

6 For why did Christ, at the set time, die for the wicked when as yet we were weak?

7 For scarcely in behalf of a just man does one die; yet perhaps one might bring himself to die for a good man.

8 But God commends his charity towards us, because when as yet we were sinners,

9 Christ died for us.

q — Isa. 53, 6, 12; 1 Cor. 15, 45; 1 Pet. 1, 3.—
 r Ps. 22, 6.

Chap. 5, Ver. 2. Of the sons: not in the Greek.
Ver. 6. The Greek text reads: "For yet Christ, when as yet we were weak, at the set time died for the wicked."

Ver. 8. Commends: the Greek has "proves."

Ver. 12. Through one man: Adam, the moral head of the human race. The sin of which St. Paul speaks is original sin. All have sinned: general statements such as this are to be understood with their obvious exceptions, and also with exceptions that can be established from other sources of revealed truth. Thus, obviously, Jesus Christ is an exception to this gen-

Christ's Death Assures Our Salvation

Much more now that we are justified by his blood, shall we be saved through him from the wrath.

10 For if when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, having been reconciled, shall we be saved by his life.

11 And not this only, but we exult also in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

In Adam All Have Sinned

12 Therefore as through one man sin entered into the world and through sin death, and thus death has passed unto all men because all have sinned—

13 for until the Law sin was in the world, but sin is not imputed when there is no law;

14 yet death reigned from Adam until Moses even over those who did not sin after the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a figure of him who was to come.

Grace and Life Superabound through Christ

15 But not like the offense is the gift. For if by the offense of the one the many died, much more has the grace of God, and the gift in the grace of the one man Jesus Christ, abounded unto the many.

16 Nor is the gift as it was in the case of one man's sin, for the judgment was from one man unto condemnation, but grace is from many offenses unto justification.

17 For if by reason of the one man's offense death reigned through the one man, much more will they who receive the abundance of the grace and of the gift of eral statement. The Church, the official interpreter of the Scriptures, teaches us also that in view of the future merits of Christ, His Blessed Mother was preserved from original sin.

Ver. 13. Sin is not imputed when there is no law: there was sin against the law of nature during the period between Adam and Moses, but the sins committed before the Law were not imputed as a cause of death, when the condition was not expressed. Yet all, even infants, underwent death. It must be then because all mankind shared some way in the sin of Adam.

justice reign in life through the one Jesus Christ.

18 Therefore as from the offense of the one man the result was unto condemnation to all men, so from the justice of the one the result is unto justification of life to all men.

19 For ^s just as by the disobedience of the one man the many were constituted sinners, so also by the obedience of the one the many will be constituted just.

Purpose of the Law

20 Now the Law intervened that the offense might abound. But where the offense has abounded, grace has abounded yet more;

21 so that as sin has reigned unto death, so also grace may reign by justice unto life everlasting through Jesus Christ our Lord.

4. JUSTIFICATION AND THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 6

Christians Dead to Sin

WHAT then shall we say? Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound?

2 By no means! For how shall we who are dead to sin still live in it?

3 Do you not know that all we who have been baptized into Christ Jesus have been baptized into his death?

4 For ^t we were buried with him by means of Baptism into death, in order that, just as Christ has arisen from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we also may walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been united with him in the likeness of his death, we shall be so in the likeness of his resurrection also.

6 For we know that our old self has been crucified with him, in order that the body of sin may be destroyed, that we may no longer be slaves to sin;

Chap. 6, Ver. 3. St. Paul alludes to the manner in which Baptism was ordinarily conferred in the primitive Church, by immersion. The descent into the water is suggestive of the descent of the body into the grave, and the ascent is suggestive of the resurrection to a new life. St. Paul obviously sees more than a mere symbol in the rite of Baptism. As a result of it we are incorporated into Christ's mystical body and live a new life.

7 for he who is dead is acquitted of sin.

8 But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live together with Christ;

9 for we know that Christ, having risen from the dead, dies now no more, death shall no longer have dominion over him.

10 For the death that he died, he died to sin once for all, but the life that he lives, he lives unto God.

11 Thus do you consider yourselves also as dead to sin, but alive to God in Christ Jesus.

The Reign of Sin

12 Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body so that you obey its lusts.

13 And do not yield ^u your members to sin as weapons of iniquity, but present yourselves to God as those who have come to life from the dead and your members as weapons of justice for God;

14 for sin shall not have dominion over you, since you are not under the Law but under grace.

Slavery to Sin

15 What then? Are we to sin because we are not under the Law but under grace? By no means!

16 Do you not know ^v that to whom you offer yourselves as slaves for obedience, to him whom you obey you are the slaves, whether to sin unto death or to obedience unto justice?

17 But thanks be to God that you who were the slaves of sin have now obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine into which you have been delivered, 18 and having been set free from sin, you have become the slaves of justice.

19 I speak in a human way because of the weakness of your flesh; for as you yielded your members as slaves of un-

^s Phil. 2, 8f.—^t Gal. 3, 27; Col. 2, 12.—^u Col. 3, 5.—^v John 8, 34.

Ver. 6. The body of sin: some, with St. John Chrysostom, take this expression to indicate sin in general, and others understand it of the body inasmuch as it is subject to concupiscence and is the instrument of sin. As such it is destroyed, i.e., reduced to impotence, so that we are no longer slaves to its evil inclinations.

Ver. 17. Into which you have been delivered: i.e., "in which you have been instructed."

cleanness and iniquity unto iniquity, so now yield your members as slaves of justice unto sanctification.

20 For when you were the slaves of sin, you were free as regards justice.

21 But what fruit had you then from those things of which you are now ashamed? For the end of these things is death.

22 But now set free from sin and become slaves to God, you have your fruit unto sanctification, and as your end, life everlasting.

23 For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is life everlasting in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAPTER 7

Christians Freed from the Law

DO YOU NOT KNOW, brethren (for I speak to those who know law), that the Law has dominion over a man as long as he lives?

2 For w the married woman is bound by the Law while her husband is alive; but if her husband die, she is set free from the law of the husband.

3 Therefore while her husband is alive, she will be called an adulteress if she be with another man; but if her husband dies, she is set free from the law of the husband, so that she is not an adulteress if she has been with another man.

4 Therefore, my brethren, you also, through the body of Christ, have been made to die to the Law, so as to belong to another who has risen from the dead, in order that we may bring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were in the flesh the sinful passions, which were aroused by the w 1 Cor. 7, 39.—x Ex. 20, 17; Deut. 5, 21.

Chap. 7, Ver. 2. The Greek reads: "The married woman is bound by the law to her living husband."

Ver. 3. Of the husband: not in the Greek.

Ver. 4. St. Paul lays down the general principle that death severs the marriage bond. The Christian has died mystically by reason of his union through Baptism with Jesus Christ. But since the death was only mystical and not real, the Christian still lives and can enter a new union with Christ, and produce spiritual fruit. St. Thomas Aquinas says: "It is evident that through the death by which we die with Christ, the obligation of the Old Law ceases."

Ver. 5. When we were in the flesh: deprived of the grace of God which comes from union with Christ through Baptism. The sinful passions: i.e., evil inclinations which incite to sin. These evil inclinations Law, were at work in our members so that they brought forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we have been set free from the Law, having died to that by which we were held down, so that we may serve in a new spirit and not according to the outworn letter.

The Law the Occasion of Sin

7 What shall we say then? Is the Law sin? By no means! Yet I did not know sin save through the Law. For I had not known lust unless the Law had said, x "Thou shalt not lust."

8 But sin, having thus found an occasion, worked in me by means of the commandment all manner of lust, for without the Law sin was dead.

9 Once upon a time I was living without law, but when the commandment came, sin revived,

10 and I died, and the commandment that was unto life was discovered in my case to be unto death.

11 For sin, having taken occasion from the commandment, deceived me, and through it killed me.

12 So that the Law indeed is holy and the commandment holy and just and good.

Sin the Cause of Death

13 Did then that which is good become death to me? By no means! But sin, that it might be manifest as sin, worked death for me through that which is good, in order that sin by reason of the commandment might become immeasurably sinful.

14 For we know that the Law is spiritual but I am carnal, sold into the power of sin.

15 For I do not understand what I do, for it is not what I wish that I do, but what I hate, that I do.

were aroused by the Law. Prohibition whets desire.

Ver. 7. I did not know sin save through the Law: St. John Chrysostom says that St. Paul here means that a thorough and complete knowledge of sin comes only through law.

Ver. 8. Without the Law sin was dead: i.e., sin was comparatively weak. The restraint which prohibitive laws put on liberty stirred it up to rebellion, and thus in law sin found a powerful ally.

Ver. 15. Here St. Paul vividly depicts the inner struggle which goes on in all human beings between the lower, sensual nature, and the higher aspirations of the soul. He concludes by saying that the higher aspirations gain victory through the grace of God merited for mankind by Jesus Christ.

16 But if I do what I do not wish, I admit that the Law is good.

17 Now therefore it is no longer I who do it, but the sin that dwells in me.

18 For I know that in me, that is, in my flesh, no good dwells, because to wish is within my power, but I do not find the strength to accomplish what is good.

19 For I do not the good that I wish, but the evil that I do not wish, that I perform.

20 Now if I do what I do not wish, it is no longer I who do it, but the sin that dwells in me.

21 Therefore, when I wish to do good I discover this law, namely, that evil is at hand for me.

22 For I am delighted with the law of God according to the inner man, 23 but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind and making me prisoner to the law of sin that is in my members.

Deliverance Due to the Grace of God

24 Unhappy man that I am! Who will deliver me from the body of this death?

25 The grace of God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Therefore I myself with my mind serve the law of God, but with my flesh the law of sin.

CHAPTER 8

The Faithful Need Fear No Condemnation

THERE is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, who do not walk according to the flesh.

2 For the law of the Spirit of the life in Christ Jesus has delivered me from the law of sin and of death.

3 For ^y what was impossible to the Law, in that it was weak because of the flesh, God has made good. By sending his Son in the likeness of sinful flesh as a sin-offering, he has condemned sin in the flesh,

4 in order that the requirements of the Law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the spirit.

Ver. 25. The Greek here reads: "Thanks be to God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Flesh and the Spirit

5 Now they who are according to the flesh mind the things of the flesh, but they who are according to the spirit mind the things of the spirit.

6 For the inclination of the flesh is death, but the inclination of the spirit, life and peace.

7 For the wisdom of the flesh is hostile to God, for it is not subject to the law of God, nor can it be.

8 And they who are carnal cannot please God.

9 You, however, are not carnal but spiritual, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you. But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to Christ.

10 But if Christ is in you, the body, it is true, is dead by reason of sin, but the spirit is life by reason of justification.

11 But if the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, then he who raised Jesus Christ from the dead will also bring to life your mortal bodies because of his Spirit who dwells in you.

A Solemn Warning

12 Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, that we should live according to the flesh,

13 for if you live according to the flesh you will die; but if by the spirit you put to death the deeds of the flesh, you will live.

The Faithful Sons of God

14 For whoever are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

15 Now ^z you have not received a spirit of bondage so as to be again in fear, but you have received a spirit of adoption as sons, by virtue of which we cry, "Abba! Father!"

16 The Spirit himself gives testimony to our spirit that we are sons of God.

^y Acts 15, 10; Heb. 9, 15.—^z 2 Tim. 1, 7; Gal. 4, 5.

Chap. 8, Ver. 1. Who do not walk according to the flesh: not in the Greek.

Ver. 2. Me: the Greek has "thee."

17 But if we are sons, we are heirs also: heirs indeed of God and joint heirs with Christ, provided, however, we suffer with him that we may also be glorified with him.

Yearning of All Creation

18 For I reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that will be revealed in us.

19 For the eager longing of creation awaits the revelation of the sons of God.

20 For creation was made subject to vanity—not by its own will but by reason of him who made it subject—in hope, 21 because creation itself also will be delivered from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the sons of God.

22 For we know that all creation groans and travails in pain until now.

Yearning of Human Beings

23 And not only it, but we ourselves also who have the first-fruits of the Spirit—we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption as sons, the redemption of our body.

24 For in hope were we saved. But hope that is seen is not hope. For how can a man hope for what he sees?

25 But if we hope for what we do not see, we wait for it with patience.

The Holy Spirit Aids Us

26 But in like manner the Spirit also helps our weakness. For we do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit himself pleads for us with unutterable groanings.

27 And he who searches the hearts a 33f: Isa. 50, 8f.—b Ps. 43, 22.

Ver. 16. The testimony of the Spirit does not give us absolute assurance of our eternal salvation, and such is not the idea St. Paul intended to convey, for elsewhere he counsels us to "work out our salvation in fear and trembling" [Phil. 2, 12]; and he warns us, "He who thinks himself to stand must take heed lest he fall" [1 Cor. 10, 12]. Gives testimony to our spirit: the Greek has, "Gives testimony with our spirit."

Ver. 18-23. St. Paul in this passage, in a mystical, poetical conception, thinks of the whole world as groaning in subjection to vanity, that is, to corruption, change and death, as a result of man's fall, and yearning to share in the glorification of the sons of God at the end of time. St. Peter tells us that there "will be a new heaven and a new earth" [2 Pet. 3, 13]. St. John in vision "saw a new heaven and a new earth" [Apoc. 21, 1].

Ver. 28. The Greek text reads: "... he [God] makes all things work together unto the good..."

Ver. 29f. The glorification here spoken of is that of grace. Cf. Rom. 3, 23; Eph. 1, 6; 3, 16. So says St. John Chrysostom.

God's Designs

28 Now we know that for those who love God all things work together unto good, for those who, according to his purpose, are saints through his call.

29 For those whom he has foreknown he has also predestined to become conformed to the image of his Son, that he should be the firstborn among many brethren.

30 And those whom he has predestined, them he has also called; and those whom he has called, them he has also justified, and those whom he has justified, them he has also glorified.

Unshakable Hope in God

31 What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who is against us?

32 He who has not spared even his own Son but has delivered him for us all, how can he fail to grant us also all things with him?

33 Who shall make accusation against the elect of God? It is God who justifies! a 34 Who shall condemn? It is Christ Jesus who died; yes, and rose again, he who is at the right hand of God, who also intercedes for us!

Indomitable Love of Christ

35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or hunger, or nakedness, or danger, or the sword?

36 Even as it is written, b For thy sake we are put to death all the day long. We are regarded as sheep for the slaughter.

37 But in all these things we overcome because of him who has loved us.

38 For I am sure that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, 39 nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature will be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

5. THE PROBLEM OF THE REJECTION OF ISRAEL

CHAPTER 9

Paul Grieves for the Jews

I SPEAK the truth in Christ, I do not lie, my conscience bearing me witness in the Holy Spirit,

2 that I have great sadness and continuous sorrow in my heart.

3 For I could wish to be anathema myself from Christ for the sake of my brethren who are my kinsmen according to the flesh;

4 who are Israelites, who have the adoption as sons, and the glory and the covenants and the legislation and the worship and the promises;

5 who have the fathers, and from whom is the Christ according to the flesh, who is, over all things, God blessed forever, amen.

God's Election Depends on His Free Choice

6 It is not that the word of God has failed. For they are not all Israelites who are sprung from Israel;

7 nor because they are the descendants of Abraham, are they all his children; but

Chap. 9, Ver. 3. Anathema . . . from Christ: i.e., to be eternally separated from Christ. So great was St. Paul's longing for the salvation of his own kinsmen that he would make any possible sacrifice to that end, even to the extent of being separated from Christ, if it were permissible to entertain such a desire. That these words are merely an emphatic way of declaring his great devotion to his people and that they are not to be taken literally is evident from what St. Paul has said above, 8, 38.

Ver. 6-12. St. Paul here teaches that the true Israelite is not merely the one who is physically descended from Abraham, but the one who has been the recipient of the divine promises, which God lavishes on whom He will, independently of personal merit.

Ver. 10. The Clementine Vulgate reads: "Who conceived at once."

Ver. 13. The hatred towards Esau here attributed to God may be explained in the sense of "loving less," in accord with a common Hebrew idiom.

c Through Isaac shall thy posterity bear thy name.

8 That is to say, they are not sons of God who are the children of the flesh, but it is the children of promise who are reckoned as posterity.

9 For this is a word of promise: d "About this time I will come and Sara shall have a son."

10 And not she only; e but also Rebecca, who conceived by one man, Isaac our father;

11 for before the children had yet been born, or had done aught of good or evil, in order that the selective purpose of God might stand,

12 depending not on deeds, but on him who calls, it was said to her, "The elder shall serve the younger";

13 as it is written, f "Jacob I have loved, but Esau I have hated."

God Is Not Unjust

14 What then shall we say? Is there injustice with God? By no means!

15 For he says to Moses, g "I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will show pity to whom I will show pity."

16 So then there is question not of him who wills nor of him who runs, but of God showing mercy.

17 For the Scripture says to Pharaoh, h "For this very purpose I have raised thee up that I may show in thee my power, and that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth."

18 Therefore i he has mercy on whom he will, and whom he will he hardens.

c Gen. 21, 12.—d Gen. 18, 10.—e 10-12; Gen. 25, 23f.—f Mal. 1-2.—g Ex. 33, 19.—h Ex. 9, 16.—i Ex. 7, 3.

Ver. 14. The question here under consideration is the call to the faith, and not predestination to glory. The efficacious call to the faith is a pure gratuity on God's part; man cannot merit it. No one deserves it for "all have sinned and have need of the glory of God." Cf. Rom. 3, 23.

Ver. 16. Not of him who wills: the primary and ultimate factor in man's destiny is the activity of God's grace, which of course does not exclude man's co-operation.

Ver. 17. For this very purpose: it is not to be understood that God's primary and express purpose in creating Pharaoh was to make a sinner out of him. But God raised him up to rule the Egyptian people, and, foreseeing that Pharaoh would abuse grace and fall into sin, God decreed to use Pharaoh according to his demerits for the further manifestation of His own divine attributes and for the realization of the designs of His all-wise providence.

Ver. 18 He hardens: i.e., by withdrawing divine grace in punishment of demerits.

His Power and Glory

19 Thou sayest to me: Why then does he still find fault? For who resists his will?

20 O man, i who art thou to reply to God? Does the object moulded say to him who moulded it: Why hast thou made me thus?

21 Or is not the potter master of his clay, to make from the same mass one vessel for honorable, another for ignoble use?

22 But what if God, wishing to show his wrath and to make known his power, endured with much patience vessels of wrath, ready for destruction,

23 that he might show the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy, which he has prepared unto glory—

24 even us whom he has called not only from among the Jews but also from among the Gentiles?

Witness of the Old Testament

25 As he says in Osee, k A people not mine I will call my people, and an unbeloved, beloved, and her who had not obtained mercy, one who has obtained mercy.

26 And l it shall be in the place where it was said to them: you are not my people; there they shall be called sons of the living God.

27 And Isaias m cries out concerning Israel, Though the number of the children of Israel are as the sands of the sea, the remnant shall be saved.

28 For the Lord fulfills his word speedily in justice, because a speedy word will the Lord accomplish on earth.

j 20f: Isa. 29, 16; 45, 9; Jer. 18, 6; Wisd. 15, 7; 2 Tim. 2, 20.—k Os. 2, 24f.—l Os. 1, 10.—m 27f:

Ver. 19. Thou sayest: the Greek has, "Thou wilt say."

Ver. 20. Does . . . say: the Greek has, "Will . . . say."

Ver. 21. St. John Chrysostom says, "St. Paul here so speaks not by way of denying free will but to show to what extent we are to submit to God. For we should be no more ready to demand reasons from God than the clay vessel" (Hom. 16 on Romans).

Ver. 25. And an unbeloved, beloved: wanting in most Vulgate codices, though present in the Greek and the Clementine Vulgate. To this the Vulgate added from Os. 2, 25 the clause: "And her who had not. . . ."

Chap. 10, Ver. 3. Justice of God: the holiness

29 And as Isaias foretold, n Unless the Lord of Hosts had left us a posterity, we should have become as Sodom and should have been like Gomorrah.

Jews' Refusal to Believe

30 What then shall we say? That the Gentiles who were not pursuing justice have secured justice, but a justice that is from faith;

31 but Israel, by pursuing a law of justice, has not attained to the law of justice.

32 And why? Because they sought it not from faith, but as it were from works. For they stumbled at the stumbling-stone, 33 as it is written, o Behold I lay in Sion a stumbling-stone and rock of scandal: and whoever believes in him shall not be disappointed.

CHAPTER 10

Ignorance of the Justice of God

BRETHREN, my heart's desire and my prayer to God is in their behalf unto their salvation.

2 For I bear them witness that they have zeal for God, but not according to knowledge;

3 for, ignorant of the justice of God and seeking to establish their own, they have not submitted to the justice of God.

4 For Christ is the consummation of the Law unto justice for everyone who believes.

This Justice Comes through Faith

5 For Moses wrote that the man who does that justice which is of the Law p shall live by it.

Isa. 10, 22f.—n Isa. 1, 9.—o Isa. 28, 16; 1 Pet. 2, 6.—p Lev. 18, 5; Ezech. 20, 11; Gal. 3, 12.

which God imparts to the soul through Christ and the Church. The Jews rejected this and sought to acquire holiness rather through the prescriptions of the Mosaic Law.

Ver. 5-13. St. Paul here seeks to establish the ease with which this justice of the Christian dispensation may be acquired, in contrast to the system which prevailed under the Mosaic dispensation. According to this latter, one had to observe the Law—not an easy thing as St. Paul has shown above in chapter 7. In the Christian dispensation there is no need of attempting the impossible, like ascending into heaven to bring Christ down, or descending into the abyss to bring Him up from the dead. Christ has already come and has arisen from the dead.

6 But the justice that is of faith says, q "Do not say in thy heart: Who shall ascend into heaven?" (that is, to bring down Christ);

7 "or, Who shall descend into the abyss?" (that is, to bring up Christ from the dead).

8 But what does it say? "The word is near thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart" (that is, the word of faith, which we preach).

9 For if thou confess with thy mouth that Jesus is the Lord, and believe in thy heart that God has raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

10 For with the heart a man believes unto justice, and with the mouth profession of faith is made unto salvation.

11 For the Scripture says, r "Whoever believes in him shall not be disappointed."

12 For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for there is the same Lord of all, rich towards all who call upon him.

13 "For s whoever calls upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Refusal to Believe the Gospel

14 How then are they to call upon him in whom they have not believed? But how are they to believe him whom they have not heard? And how are they to hear, if no one preaches?

15 And how are men to preach unless they be sent? As it is written, t How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the gospel of peace; of those who bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But all did not obey the gospel. For Isaias says, u Lord, who has believed our report?

17 Faith then depends on hearing, and hearing on the word of Christ.

18 But I say: Have they not heard? Yes, indeed, v Their voice has gone forth into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world.

q 6-9: Deut. 30, 12-14.—r Isa. 28, 16.—s Joel 2, 32; Acts 2, 21.—t Isa. 52, 7.—u Isa. 53, 1.—v Ps. 18, 5.—w Deut. 32, 21.—x 20f: Isa. 65, 1f.—y 1f:

Ver. 15. Who preach the gospel of peace: wanting in the Greek text.

Chap. 11, Ver. 3. Just as in the time of Elias there was a small remnant who persevered in their fidelity to God, so likewise when St. Paul wrote this Epistle, although the Jewish nation as a whole had refused to believe, there were not a few converts to 19 But I say: Has not Israel known? First of all, Moses says, w I will provoke you to jealousy of those who are not a nation; I will stir you to anger against a senseless nation.

20 Then Isaias dares to say, x I was found by those who did not seek me; I appeared openly to those who made no inquiry of me.

21 But to Israel he says, All the day long I stretched out my hand to a people unbelieving and contradicting.

CHAPTER 11

A Remnant of the Jews Will Be Saved

I SAY THEN: Has God cast off his people? By no means! For I also am an Israelite of the posterity of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. y

2 God has not cast off his people whom he foreknew. Or do you not know what the Scripture says in the account of Elias, how he lodges complaint with God against Israel?

3 Lord, z they have slain thy prophets, they have razed thy altars; and I only am left, and they are seeking my life.

4 But what does the divine answer say to him? a I have left for myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed their knees to Baal.

5 Even so, then, at the present time there is a remnant left, selected out of grace.

6 And if out of grace, then not in virtue of works; otherwise grace is no longer grace.

Witness of the Scriptures

7 What then? What Israel was seeking after, that it has not obtained; but the chosen have obtained it, and the rest have been blinded,

8 as it is written, b God has given them a spirit of stupor until this present day,

1 Kgs. 12, 22.—z 3 Kgs. 19, 10.—a 3 Kgs. 19, 18.—b Isa. 29, 10; Deut. 29, 4; Matt. 13, 14.

Christianity. St. Paul insists, however, that their call to the faith was due to the free choice of God, and not to the merit of their works.

Ver. 8. God has given them, etc.: i.e., by permitting them, in punishment of their pride and hypocrisy, to be blinded to the truth of the Christian revelation.

eyes that they may not see, and ears that they may not hear.

9 And David says, c Let their table become a snare and a trap and a stumbling-block and a recompense unto them;

10 let their eyes be darkened that they may not see, and let them bow their backs always.

Israel's Fall, the Gentiles' Salvation

11 I say then: have they so stumbled as to fall? By no means! But by their offense salvation has come to the Gentiles,d that they may be jealous of them.

12 Now if their offense is the riches of the world, and their decline the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their full number!

The Gentiles Must Be Humble

13 For I say to you Gentiles: As long, indeed, as I am an apostle of the Gentiles, I will honor my ministry, 14 in the hope that I may provoke to jealousy those who are my flesh, and may save some of them.

15 For if the rejection of them is the reconciliation of the world, what will the reception of them be but life from the dead?

16 Now if the first handful of the dough is holy, so also is the lump of dough; and if the root is holy, so also are the branches.

17 But if some of the branches have been broken off, and if thou, being a wild olive, art grafted in their place, and hast become a partaker of the stem and fatness of the olive tree, 18 do not boast against the branches. But if thou dost boast, still it is not thou that supportest the stem, but the stem thee.

19 Thou wilt say, then, "Branches were broken off that I might be grafted in."

20 True, but they were broken off bec 9f: Ps. 68, 22f.—d Deut. 32, 21.—e Prov. 3, 7.—f 26f: Isa. 59, 20f.—g Isa. 27, 9; Jer. 31, 33f.

Ver. 11. Jealous: must be understood here in a good sense.

Ver. 29. The gifts and the call of God are without repentance: this statement must be understood, in the light of the context, of the gifts mentioned in Rom. 9, 4, especially of the gift of being the chosen people. The Jews remain the people of God's pre-cause of unbelief, whereas thou by faith standest. Be not high-minded, but fear.

21 For if God has not spared the natural branches, perhaps he may not spare thee either.

22 See, then, the goodness and the severity of God: his severity towards those who have fallen, but the goodness of God towards thee if thou abidest in his goodness; otherwise thou also wilt be cut off.

Israel Can Yet Be Saved

23 And they also, if they do not continue in unbelief, will be grafted in; for God is able to graft them back.

24 For if thou hast been cut off from the wild olive tree which is natural to thee, and contrary to nature, hast been grafted into the cultivated olive tree, how much more shall these, the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree!

Israel's Final Conversion

25 For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant of this mystery, e lest you should be wise in your own conceits, that a partial blindness only has befallen Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles should enter,

26 and thus all Israel should be saved, as it is written, f There will come out of Sion the deliverer and he will turn away impiety from Jacob;

27 and this is my covenant with them, when I shall take away g their sins.

28 In view of the gospel, they are enemies for your sake; but in view of the divine choice, they are most dear for the sake of the fathers.

29 For the gifts and the call of God are without repentance.

Ultimate Triumph of God's Mercy

30 For as you also at one time did not believe God, but now have obtained mercy by reason of their unbelief,

31 so they too have not now believed dilection, and will eventually be converted and saved.

Ver. 30. Believe...unbelief: in the Greek, "obeyed... disobedience."

Ver. 31. The Greek reads: "So also now they have not obeyed by occasion of your (obtaining) mercy in order that they may later obtain mercy."

by reason of the mercy shown you, that they too may obtain mercy.

32 For God has shut up all in unbelief, that he may have mercy upon all.

God's Ways Unsearchable

33 Oh, the depth of the riches of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are his judgments and how unsearchable his ways!

34 For h Who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counsellor?

35 Or who has first given to him, that recompense should be made him?

36 For from him and through him and unto him are all things. To him be the glory forever, amen.

II: MORAL

THE DUTIES OF CHRISTIANS

CHAPTER 12

Conclusion of the Foregoing

I EXHORT YOU therefore, brethren, by the mercy of God, to present your bodies as a sacrifice, living, holy, pleasing to God—your spiritual service.

2 And be not conformed to this world, but be transformed in the newness of your mind, that you may discern what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God.

Humility and Concord

3 By the grace that has been given to me, I say to each one among you: let no one rate himself more than he ought, but let him rate himself according to moderation, and according as God has apportioned to each one the measure of faith.

4 For just as in one body we have many members, yet all the members have not the same function,

5 so we, the many, are one body in Christ, but severally members one of another.

6 But we have gifts differing according to the grace that has been given us, such as prophecy, to be used according to the proportion of faith;

7 or ministry, in ministering; or he who teaches, in teaching;

8 he who exhorts, in exhorting; he who gives, in simplicity; he who presides, with carefulness; he who shows mercy, with cheerfulness.

Fraternal Charity

9 Let love be without pretense. Hate i what is evil, hold to what is good.

10 Love one another with fraternal charity, anticipating one another with honor.

11 Be not slothful in zeal; be fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, 12 rejoicing in hope. Be patient in tribulation, persevering in prayer.

13 Share the needs of the saints, practising hospitality.

14 Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse.

15 Rejoice with those who rejoice; weep with those who weep.

16 Be of one mind towards one another. Do not set your mind on high things but condescend to the lowly. i Be not wise in your own conceits.

17 To no man render evil for evil, but provide good things k not only in the sight of God, but also in the sight of all men.

h 34f: Isa. 40, 13; Job 41, 11; Wisd. 9, 13.—i Amos 5, 15.—j Prov. 3, 7.—k Prov. 3, 4.

Ver. 32. Unbelief: the Greek has "disobedience." Chap. 12, Ver. 1. As a sacrifice: we should daily put to death or mortify the lusts of the flesh and wholly dedicate our bodies to the divine service in accord with the requirements of the Christian laws of right living. Spiritual service: worship such as the nature of God and the nature of man require, which consists in the submission of one's body and its inclinations to the law of God.

Ver. 3. Each must take as a rule of his estimation of himself, and as his role in the Church, the measure of the faith he has received. Faith: seems here to mean the charismatic gifts granted to the believer.

Ver. 6. Prophecy: a supernatural gift in virtue of which the recipient is given an insight into the hidden truths beyond the power of human reason. This gift is to be exercised according to the proportion of faith, that is, as says St. Thomas, "not in vain, but that the faith may be confirmed by it; not against the faith."

Ver. 7. Ministry: a general term which includes various functions such as teaching, the distribution of alms, etc.

Ver. 8. Exhorts: distinct from teaching, this term designates probably the function of comforting and consoling the afflicted. He who gives: refers to one who gives alms. He who shows mercy: indicates the individual who feels real sympathy for the poor and afflicted and personally ministers to their needs.

Ver. 17. Not only in the sight of God, but . . .: not in the Greek.

18 If it be possible, as far as in you lies, be at peace with all men.

19 Do not avenge yourselves, ¹ beloved, but give place to the wrath, for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord.

20 But ^m If thy enemy is hungry, give him food; if he is thirsty, give him drink; for by so doing thou wilt heap coals of fire upon his head.

21 Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

CHAPTER 13

Obedience

LET ⁿ everyone be subject to the higher authorities, for there exists no authority except from God, and those who exist have been appointed by God.

2 Therefore he who resists the authority resists the ordinance of God; and they that resist bring on themselves condemnation.

3 For rulers are a terror not to the good work but to the evil. Dost thou wish, then, not to fear the authority? Do what is good and thou wilt have praise from it.

4 For it is God's minister to thee for good. But if thou dost what is evil, fear, for not without reason does it carry the sword. For it is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who does evil.

5 Wherefore you must needs be subject, not only because of the wrath, but also for conscience' sake.

6 For this is also why you pay tribute, for they are the ministers of God, serving unto this very end.

7 Render ^o to all men whatever is their due; tribute to whom tribute is due; taxes to whom taxes are due; fear to whom fear is due; honor to whom honor is due.

¹ Deut. 32, 35.—^m Prov. 25, 21f.—ⁿ Wisd. 6, 4.—^o Matt. 22, 21.—^p Ex. 20, 13-17; Deut. 5, 17-21; Lev. 19, 18; Gal. 5, 14.—^q Gal. 5, 16; 1 Pet. 2, 11.

Ver. 20. Heap coals of fire upon his head: i.e., overwhelm one's enemy with kindness. The coals of fire seem to mean shame and remorse. The purpose of the Christian is to bring his enemy to repentance and better conduct. The same obscure figure occurs in Prov. 25, 22.

Chap. 13, Ver. 9. The Clementine Vulgate, following a few codices, adds, "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

Charity a Social Duty

8 Owe no man anything except to love one another; for he who loves his neighbor has fulfilled the Law.^p

9 For ^p Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet; and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this saying, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

10 Love does no evil to a neighbor. Love therefore is the fulfillment of the Law.

The Spirit of Christ

11 And this do, understanding the time, for it is now the hour for us to rise from sleep, because now our salvation is nearer than when we came to believe.

12 The night is far advanced; the day is at hand. Let us therefore lay aside the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light.

13 Let us walk becomingly as in the day, not in revelry and drunkenness, not in debauchery and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy.

14 But ^q put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and as for the flesh, take no thought for its lusts.

CHAPTER 14

Mutual Forbearance

BUT him who is weak in faith, receive, without disputes about opinions.

2 For one believes that he may eat all things; but he who is weak, let him eat vegetables.

3 Let not him who eats despise him who does not eat, and let not him who does not eat judge him who eats; for God has received him.

4 Who art thou to judge another's servant? To his own lord he stands or falls; but he will stand, for God is able to make him stand.

Chap. 14, Ver. 1. Weak in faith: those who had an erroneous conscience concerning the implications of the Christian teaching, especially concerning certain foods. The strong in faith are those who are better instructed and understand that no food is of itself unclean and forbidden. St. Paul in this chapter exhorts the strong to bear with and refrain from scandalizing the weak, and the weak to refrain from condemning the strong. Judgment is to be left to our Lord, before whose tribunal all men must appear.

5 For one esteems one day above another; another esteems every day alike. Let everyone be convinced in his own mind.

6 He who regards the day, regards it for the Lord; and he who eats, eats for the Lord, for he gives thanks to God. And he who does not eat, abstains for the Lord, and gives thanks to God.

7 For none of us lives to himself, and none dies to himself;

8 for if we live, we live to the Lord, or if we die, we die to the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we are the Lord's.

9 For to this end Christ died and rose again, that he might be Lord both of the dead and of the living.

10 But thou, why dost thou judge thy brother? Or thou, why dost thou despise thy brother? For we shall all stand at the judgment-seat of God;

11 for it is written, r As I live, says the Lord, to me every knee shall bend, and every tongue shall give praise to God.

Charity and Peace

12 Therefore every one of us will render an account for himself to God.

13 Therefore let us no longer judge one another, but rather judge this, that you should not put a stumbling-block or a hindrance in your brother's way.

14 I know and am confident in the Lord Jesus that nothing is of itself unclean; but to him who regards anything as unclean, to him it is unclean.

15 If, then, thy brother is grieved because of thy food, no longer dost thou walk according to charity. Do not with thy food destroy him for whom Christ died.

16 Let not, then, our good be reviled.

17 For the kingdom of God does not consist in food and drink, but in justice and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit;

18 for he who in this way serves Christ pleases God and is approved by men.

19 Let us, then, follow after the things that make for peace, and let us safeguard the things that make for mutual edification.

20 Do not for the sake of food s destroy the work of God! All things indeed are clean; but a thing is evil for the man who eats through scandal.

21 It is good not to eat meat and not to drink wine, nor to do anything by which thy brother is offended or scandalized or weakened.

22 Thou hast faith. Keep it to thyself before God. Blessed is he who does not condemn himself by what he approves.

23 But he who hesitates, if he eats, is condemned, because it is not from faith; for all that is not from faith is sin.

CHAPTER 15

Self-Denial and Patience

NOW WE, the strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.

2 Let every one of you please his neighbor by doing good, for his edification;

3 for Christ did not please himself, but as it is written, t The reproaches of those who reproach thee have fallen upon me.

4 For whatever things have been written have been written for our instruction, that through the patience and the consolation afforded by the Scriptures we may have hope.

5 May then the God of patience and of comfort grant you to be of one mind towards one another according to Jesus Christ;

6 that, one in spirit, you may with one mouth glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Mercy

7 Wherefore receive one another, even as Christ has received you to the honor of God.

8 For I say that Christ Jesus has been a minister of the circumcision in order to r Isa. 45, 23f; Phil. 2, 10.—s 20f: 1 Cor. 8, 11-13; 10, 28f.—t Ps. 68, 10.

Ver. 16. Our good: the Greek says more probably: "your good," i.e., what is good or right in itself in your actions.

Ver. 20. The sense seems to be: "A man who, by eating, gives scandal." Others understand: "Who eats under the influence of scandal."

Ver. 22f. Faith: here means conscience enlightened by faith.

Chap. 15, Ver. 2. Every one of you: the Greek has, "every one of us."

show God's fidelity in confirming the promises made to our fathers,

9 but that the Gentiles glorify God because of his mercy, as it is written, "Therefore will I praise thee among the Gentiles, and will sing to thy name."

10 And again he says, Rejoice, you Gentiles, with his people.

11 And again, "Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles; and sing his praises, all you peoples."

12 And again Isaias says, "There shall be the root of Jesse, and he who shall arise to rule the Gentiles . . . in him the Gentiles shall hope."

13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that you may abound in hope and in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Conclusion

PERSONAL EXPLANATIONS AND GREETINGS

Apostle of the Gentiles

14 Now I for my part, my brethren, am convinced with regard to you that you yourselves are full of love, filled with all knowledge, so that you are able to admonish one another.

15 But I have written to you rather boldly here and there, brethren—as it were to refresh your memory—because of the grace that has been given me by God, 16 that I should be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles; sanctifying the Gospel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles may become acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Spirit.

17 I have therefore this boast in Christ Jesus as regards the work of God.

18 For I do not make bold to mention anything but what Christ has wrought through me to bring about the obedience of the Gentiles, by word and deed,

19 with mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Holy Spirit, so that from ^u Ps. 17, 50; 2 Kgs. 22, 50.—^v Ps. 116, 1.—^w Isa. 11, 10.—^x Isa. 52, 15.—^y 1 Cor. 16, 1.

Ver. 12. He who shall arise: the Greek has, "he who arises."

Ver. 16. Minister . . . sanctifying the gospel of God: St. Paul here uses the metaphorical language of sacrifice. The text here probably means: performing priestly functions by means of the gospel. This priestly ministration results in the oblation of the

Jerusalem round about as far as Illyricum I have completed the evangelization of Christ.

20 But I have not preached this gospel where Christ has already been named, lest I might build on another man's foundation; but even as it is written,

21 They who have not been told of him shall see, and they who have not heard shall understand.

St. Paul's Plans

22 This is why I was hindered these many times from coming to you.

23 But now, having no more work in these parts, and having had for many years a great desire to come to you,

24 when I set out for Spain I hope to see you as I pass through (and by you to be sped on my way there), having first enjoyed being with you for a while.

25 Now, however, I will set out for Jerusalem to minister to the saints.

26 For Macedonia and Achaia have thought it well to make a contribution for the poor among the ^y saints at Jerusalem.

27 So it has pleased them, and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual blessings, they should also minister to them in material things.

28 Therefore, when I have completed this, and have delivered to them the proceeds, I will set out by way of you for Spain.

29 And I know that when I come to you, I shall come with the fullness of Christ's blessing.

Request for Prayers

30 Now I exhort you, brethren, through our Lord Jesus Christ, and through the charity of the Spirit, that you help me by your prayers to God for me,

31 that I may be delivered from the unbelievers in Judea, and that the offering of my service may be acceptable to the saints in Jerusalem;

32 that I may come to you in joy, by Gentiles, which is acceptable to God because it has been sanctified by the Holy Spirit, who dwells in the faithful.

Ver. 22. The Clementine Vulgate adds: "and I have been hindered till now," probably taken from Rom. 1, 13. The Greek has nothing that corresponds to it.

the will of God, and may be refreshed with you.

33 Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAPTER 16

Commendation of Phœbe

BUT I commend to you Phœbe, our sister, who is in the ministry of the church at Cenchræ,

2 that you may receive her in the Lord as becomes saints, and that you may assist her in whatever business she may have need of you. For she too has assisted many, including myself.

Greetings to Individuals

3 Greet ^z Prisca and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus,

4 who for my life have risked their own necks. To them not only I give thanks but also all the churches of the Gentiles.

5 Greet also the church that is in their house. Greet my beloved Epænetus, who is the first-fruits of Asia to Christ.

6 Greet Mary who has labored much among you.

7 Greet Andronicus and Junias, my kinsmen and my fellow-prisoners, who are distinguished among the apostles, who also were in Christ before me.

8 Greet Ampliatius, beloved to me in the Lord.

9 Greet Urbanus, our helper in Christ, and my beloved Stachys.

10 Greet Apelles, approved in Christ.

11 Greet the members of Aristobulus' household. Greet Herodion, my kinsman. Greet the members of Narcissus' household who are in the Lord.

12 Greet Tryphæna and Tryphosa who labor in the Lord. Greet the beloved Persis who has labored much in the Lord.

13 Greet Rufus, the elect in the Lord, and her who is his mother and mine.

14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren who are with them.

15 Greet Philologus and Julia, Nereus

^z Acts 18, 2. 26.

and his sister, and Olympias, and all the saints who are with them.

16 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ greet you.

Warning to Troublemakers

17 Now I exhort you, brethren, that you watch those who cause dissensions and scandals contrary to the doctrine that you have learned, and avoid them.

18 For such do not serve Christ our Lord but their own belly, and by smooth words and flattery deceive the hearts of the simple.

19 For your submission to the faith has been published everywhere. I rejoice therefore over you. Yet I would have you wise as to what is good, and guileless as to what is evil.

20 But the God of peace will speedily crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Greetings from Corinth

21 Timothy, my fellow-laborer, greets you, and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen.

22 I, Tertius, who have written this epistle, greet you in the Lord.

23 Gaius, my host, and the host of the whole church, greets you. Erastus, the city treasurer, and Quartus, our brother, greet you.

24 [May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, amen.]

Doxology

25 Now to him who is able to strengthen you in accordance with my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which has been kept in silence from eternal ages,

26 which is manifested now through the writings of the prophets according to the precept of the eternal God, and made known to all the Gentiles to bring about obedience to faith—

27 to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, be honor forever and ever. Amen.

Chap. 16, Ver. 24. Not found in the best codices of the Vulgate.

The First Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the CORINTHIANS

CORINTH was a Roman colony built upon the remains of an old Greek city. At the time of the Apostles it was materially prosperous and morally corrupt.

On his second missionary journey, Paul preached about two years in Corinth, first to the Jews in the synagogue and then to the Gentiles in the house of Titus Justus (Acts 18, 1-18). After his disappointment in the use of a philosophical approach to Christianity at Athens (Acts 17, 15ff), Paul used at Corinth a simpler presentation of his doctrine. According to the divine promise (Acts 18, 9f), he made many converts, but suffered much from the hostility of the Jews. He left for Ephesus some time after Gallio became proconsul of Achaia, i.e., about 52 A.D.

It is quite probable that St. Paul wrote an Epistle to the Corinthians prior to the two that we now possess (1 Cor. 5, 9). The Epistle called St. Paul's First to the Corinthians was occasioned by the visit to Ephesus of members of the Corinthian church (1 Cor. 1, 11; 16, 12, 17). St. Paul, who had meanwhile returned to Antioch and undertaken his third missionary journey, learned from these messengers of certain disorders in the church at Corinth. Questions were also proposed by the neophytes to their spiritual father for solution. To correct those disorders and to answer these questions, St. Paul wrote this masterly Epistle.

From 1 Cor. 16, 5-8 it is clear that the letter was written at Ephesus some time before Pentecost, probably in the beginning of the year 57 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, called by the will of God to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, and Sosthenes our brother,

2 to the church of God at Corinth, to you who have been sanctified in Christ Jesus and called to be saints with all who call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place—their Lord as well as ours.

3 Grace be to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Gifts of God

4 I give thanks to my God always concerning you for the grace of God ^a which was given you in Christ Jesus,

5 because in everything you have been enriched in him, in all utterance and in all knowledge;

6 even as the witness to the Christ has been made so firm in you

7 that you lack no grace, while awaiting the appearance ^b of our Lord Jesus Christ,

8 who will also keep you secure unto the end, ^c unimpeachable in the day of the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 God is trustworthy, by him you have been called into fellowship ^d with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

I: PARTY SPIRIT

Nature of the Division

10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you all say the same thing; and that there be no dissensions among you, but that you but unsolicited attachment to one or other of the Apostles and preachers. This was detrimental to perfect Christian unity.

^a 2 Cor. 8, 7. 9.—^b Luke 17, 30; 2 Thess. 1, 7; Titus 2, 13.—^c 1 Thess. 5, 23.—^d 1 John 1, 3.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. Probably the Sosthenes of Acts 18, 17.

Ver. 10f. These divisions were neither heretical nor schismatic but petty cliques based on particular be perfectly united in one mind ^e and in one judgment.

11 For I have been informed about you, my brethren, by those of the house of Chloe, that there are strifes among you.

12 Now this is what I mean: each of you says, I am of Paul, or I am of Apollos, or I am of Cephas, or I am of Christ.

13 Has Christ been divided up? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?

14 I thank God that I baptized none of you but ^f Crispus and Gaius, 15 lest anyone should say that you were baptized in my name.

16 I baptized also the household of Stephanas.^g I am not aware of having baptized anyone else.

Salvation Not by Wisdom of Words

17 For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the gospel, ^h not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ be made void.

18 For the doctrine of the cross is foolishness to those who perish, but to those who are saved, that is, to us, ⁱ it is the power of God.

19 For it is written, ^j I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the prudence of the prudent I will reject.

20 Where ^k is the "wise man"? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputant of this world? Has not God turned to foolishness the "wisdom" of this world?

21 For ^l since, in God's wisdom, the world did not come to know God by "wisdom," it pleased God, by the foolishness of our preaching, to save those who believe.

22 For ^m the Jews ask for signs, and the Greeks look for "wisdom";

23 but we, for our part, preach a crucified Christ—to the Jews indeed, a stumbling-block and to the Gentiles foolishness, 24 but ⁿ to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God.

25 For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

Their Case an Example

26 For consider your own call, brethren; that there were not many wise according to the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble.

27 But ^o the foolish things of the world has God chosen to put to shame the "wise," and the weak things of the world has God chosen to put to shame the strong,

28 and the base things of the world and the despised has God chosen, and the things that are not, to bring to naught the things that are;

29 lest any flesh should pride itself before him.

30 From him ^p you are in Christ Jesus, who has become for us God-given wisdom, and justice, and sanctification, and redemption;

31 so that, just as it is written, ^q "Let him who takes pride, take pride in the Lord."

CHAPTER 2

Paul's Method of Preaching

AND I, brethren, when I came to you, ^r did not come with pretentious speech or wisdom, announcing unto you the witness to Christ.

2 For I determined not to know anything among you, except Jesus Christ's and him crucified.

3 And ^t I was with you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling.

^m Matt. 12, 38; 16, 1; John 4, 48; Acts 17, 18. 32.—ⁿ 1 Cor. 1, 18; Col. 2, 3.—^o Ps. 8, 2.—^p 2 Cor. 5, 21; John 17, 19.—^q Jer. 9, 23f.—^r 1 Cor. 1, 17.—^s Gal. 6, 14.—^t Acts 18, 1-18; 2 Cor. 10, 1.

^e Phil. 2, 2; 3, 16.—^f Acts 18, 8; 19, 29; Rom. 16, 23.—^g 1 Cor. 16, 15. 17.—^h 1 Cor. 2, 4; 2 Cor. 10, 10.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 2, 14; Rom. 1, 16.—^j Isa. 29, 14.—^k Isa. 19, 12; 33, 18.—^l Matt. 11, 25; Luke 8, 12.—

Ver. 12. Apollos: friend and fellow-worker of St. Paul [cf. 1 Cor. 3, 4-8; 16, 12], eloquently evangelized Corinth after Paul had prepared the way [Acts 18, 24-28]. Cephas: Aramaic name. ("Rock") of Peter; it is not necessarily implied that Peter labored in Corinth. I am of Christ: Some consider this as the slogan of a fourth party, a reaction to attachment to a particular man. Others take the words as the cry of St. Paul, a slogan suggested to all.

Ver. 17. Not . . . to baptize: as his principal office: Like Christ [John 4, 2] and Peter [Acts 10, 48], Paul usually left the baptismal rite to others. Wisdom of words: eloquence.

Ver. 21. Wisdom, foolishness: from the Greek viewpoint.

Ver. 22. Signs: i.e., miracles.

Ver. 26. Your own call: yourselves at the time of your call.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. Witness to Christ: the Greek has "witness to God." The gospel is the witness of God to Christ and of Christ to God.

Ver. 1ff. Cf. note on wisdom of words, 1 Cor. 1, 17.

4 And my speech and my preaching were not in the persuasive words of wisdom, but in the demonstration of the Spirit^u and of power,

5 that your faith might rest, not on the wisdom of men, but on the power of God.

True Wisdom

6 Wisdom, however, we speak among those who are mature, yet not a wisdom of this world nor of the rulers of this world, who are passing away.

7 But we speak the wisdom of God,^v mysterious, hidden, which God foreordained before the world unto our glory,

8 a wisdom which none of the rulers of this world has known; ^w for had they known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory.

9 But, as it is written, Eye has not seen nor ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, what things God has prepared for those who love him.

10 But to us God has revealed them through his Spirit.^x For the Spirit searches all things, even the deep things of God.

11 For who among men knows the things of a man save the spirit of the man which is in him? Even so, the things of God no one knows but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the spirit that is from God, that we may know the things that have been given us by God.

13 These ^y things we also speak, not in words taught by human wisdom, but in the learning of the Spirit, combining spiritual with spiritual.

14 But the sensual man does not perceive the things that are of the ^z Spirit

^u 1 Thess. 1, 5.—^v Rom. 16, 25f.—^w Col. 1, 26.—^x Matt. 13, 11; John 14, 26; 16, 13.—^y 1 Cor. 1, 4.—^z 1 Cor. 2, 6.—^a Rom. 11, 34; Wisd. 9, 13; Isa.

Ver. 6. Those who are mature: i.e., sufficiently prepared to receive it. The rulers of this world: interpreted as intellectual and political leaders among men, or as devils. The two interpretations can be harmonized. The devil is called the ruler of this world by Christ in John 12, 31; 14, 30; 16, 11.

Ver. 7. Mysterious, hidden: cf. Col. 1, 25-27; the mystery of redemption, hidden from eternity, revealed in Christ.

Ver. 8. Rulers of this world: cf. v. 6. Christ was put to death by intellectual and political leaders, not without diabolical influence. Effecting Christ's death was unwise for man because unjust, unwise for the devil because it ruined his power. Lord of glory: a title given to God.

Ver. 9. A free citation of Isa. 64, 4. Possessed of God, for it is foolishness to him and he cannot understand, because it is examined spiritually.

15 But the spiritual man judges all things, and he himself is judged by no man.

16 For ^a "who has known the mind of the Lord, that he might instruct him?" But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAPTER 3

They Cannot Receive Full Doctrine

AND I, brethren, could not speak to you as to spiritual men but only as carnal, as to little ones in Christ.

2 I fed ^b you with milk, not with solid food, for you were not yet ready for it. Nor are you now ready for it, for you are still carnal.

3 For since there are jealousy and strife among you,^c are you not carnal, and walking as mere men?

4 For whenever one says, "I am of Paul," but another, "I am of Apollos," ^d are you not mere men?

The Office of God's Ministers

5 What then is Apollos? What indeed is Paul? They are the servants of him whom you have believed—servants according as God has given to each to serve.

6 I have ^e planted, Apollos watered, but God has given the growth.

7 So then neither he who plants is anything, nor he who waters, but God who gives the growth.

8 Now he who plants and he who waters are one, yet each will receive his own reward according to his labor.

40, 13.—^b Heb. 5, 12f; John 16, 12.—^c 1 Cor. 1, 10ff.—^d 1 Cor. 1, 12.—^e Acts 18, 4. 8. 11; 18, 24. 27.

already through grace, but completely in heaven.

Ver. 11. The things of a man: i.e., the thoughts that pass through a man's mind.

Ver. 13. Combining spiritual with spiritual: may mean explaining spiritual subjects to spiritual men, or using spiritual instruction for spiritual subjects, or judging spiritual things according to spiritual standards.

Ver. 15. The spiritual man can judge things both of nature and of the spirit, but the spirituality of a spiritual man cannot be judged by a merely natural man, who does not possess the spirit.

Chap. 3, Ver. 2. Milk: elementary doctrine. Solid food: more advanced teaching.

Ver. 8. Are one: equal fellow-workers in the service of God.

9 For we are God's helpers, you are God's tillage, i God's building.

Their Responsibility and Reward

10 According to the grace of God which has been given to me, as a wise builder, I laid the foundation, and another builds thereon. But let everyone take care how he builds thereon.

11 For other foundation no one can lay, but that which has been laid, which is Christ Jesus.

12 But if g anyone builds upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw—

13 the work of each will be made manifest, for the day of the Lord will declare it, since the day is to be revealed h in fire. The fire will assay the quality of everyone's work:

14 if his work abides which he has built thereon, he will receive rewards;

15 if his work burns he will lose his reward, but himself will be saved, yet so as through fire.

16 Do you not know i that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?

17 If anyone destroys the temple of God, him will God destroy; for holy is the temple of God, and this temple you are.

Pride Not to Be Taken in Man

18 Let no one deceive himself. If any one of you thinks himself wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may come to be wise.

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, j "I will catch the wise in their craftiness."

20 And again, k "The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are empty."

21 Therefore let no one take pride in men.

i Eph. 2, 20.—g 1 Pet. 2, 4-6.—h 1 Cor. 4, 5.—j 1 Cor. 6, 19; 2 Cor. 6, 16; Eph. 2, 21.—k Job 5, 13.—k Ps. 93, 11.—l 2 Cor. 4, 5. 15.—m Titus 1,

Ver. 13. The day of the Lord: the day of judgment. Most Greek Manuscripts have only "the day."

Ver. 15. Lose his reward: he will lose the special reward of preaching but will be saved if his conscience is otherwise clear. The teaching of this verse implies the teaching of Christian tradition on purgatory. If the venial offenses of preachers are punished on the last day, similarly other venial sins will be punished after the particular judgment.

Ver. 21. Pride in men: because of some connection with a talented teacher or apostle.

22 For all things are yours, l whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas; or the world, or life, or death; or things present, or things to come—all are yours,

23 and you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

CHAPTER 4

Ministers of Gospel Judged by Christ

LET a man so account us, m as servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God.

2 Now n here it is required in stewards that a man be found trustworthy.

3 But with me it is a very small matter to be judged by you or by man's tribunal. Nay I do not even judge my own self.

4 For I have nothing on my conscience, yet I am not thereby justified; o but he who judges me is the Lord.

5 Therefore, pass no judgment before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the things hidden in darkness and make manifest the counsels of hearts; p and then everyone will have his praise from God.

Corinthians Contrasted with Apostles

6 Now, brethren, I have applied these things to myself and Apollos by way of illustration for your sakes, that in our case you may learn not to be puffed up q one against the other over a third party, transgressing what is written.

7 For who singles thee out? Or what hast thou that thou hast not received? And if thou hast received it, why dost thou boast as if thou hadst not received it?

8 You are already filled! You are already made rich! r Without us you reign!

7.—n Matt. 24, 25.—o Ps. 142, 2; Eccclus. 7, 5; Prov. 21, 2.—p 1 Cor. 3, 13.—q Rom. 12, 3.—r Apoc. 3, 17, 21.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. Mysteries: includes doctrines and rites the excellence of which is God's secret, surpassing human understanding.

Ver. 6. What is written: may refer to transgressing what Paul has just written concerning the causes of dissension, or the teaching of the Old Testament in such passages as those quoted in 1 Cor. 1, 19, 31; 3, 19f.

Ver. 8-13. Paul ironically contrasts the self-satisfaction of the Corinthians with the humble condition of the Apostles, still in the midst of sufferings.

And would that you did reign, that we too might reign with you!

9 For I think God has set forth us the apostles last of all,^s as men doomed to death, seeing that we have been made a spectacle to the world, and to angels, and to men.

10 We ^tare fools for Christ, but you are wise in Christ! We are weak, but you are strong! You are honored, but we are without honor!

11 To this very hour we hunger and thirst,^u and we are naked and buffeted, and have no fixed abode.

12 and ^vwe toil, working with our own hands. We are reviled and we bless, we are persecuted and we bear with it, 13 we are maligned and we entreat, we have become as the refuse of this world, the offscouring of all, even until now!

14 I write these things not to put you to shame, but to admonish you as my dearest children.

15 For although ^wyou have ten thousand tutors in Christ, yet you have not many fathers. For in Christ Jesus, through the gospel, did I beget you.

16 Therefore, I beg you, ^xbe imitators of me, as I am of Christ.

17 For this very reason ^yI have sent to you Timothy, who is my dearest son and faithful in the Lord. He will remind you of my ways, which are in Christ Jesus, even as I teach everywhere in every church.

18 Now some are puffed up, as if I were not coming to you.

19 But ^zI shall come to you shortly, if the Lord is willing, and I shall learn the power of those who are puffed up, not the promises.

20 For the kingdom of God ^ais not in word, but in power.

21 What is your wish? Shall I come to you with a rod, or in love and in the spirit of meekness?

^s Rom. 8, 36; Heb. 10, 33.—^t 2 Cor. 13, 9.—^u 2 Cor. 11, 23-27.—^v Acts 18, 3; 20, 34; 1 Thess. 2, 9.—^w Gal. 4, 19.—^x 1 Cor. 11, 1.—^y Acts 19, 22; Phil. 2, 20.—^z Acts 18, 21.—^a 1 Cor. 2, 4; 1 Thess.

Ver. 15. The tutor, i.e., "pedagogue," the slave, often not much loved, who accompanied the youth to and from his real teacher.

Chap. 5, Ver. 1. Immorality: literally "fornication"; the word used generally of impurity, including unnatural vice.

Ver. 3ff. St. Paul indicates to the Corinthian church the action they should already have taken. To deliver such a one over to Satan: implies a) excommunica-

II. MORAL DISORDERS

1. THE INCESTUOUS MAN

CHAPTER 5

Action to Be Taken

IT is actually reported^b that there is immorality among you, and such immorality as is not found even among the Gentiles, that a man should have his father's wife.

2 And you are puffed up, and have not rather mourned so that he who has done this deed might be put away from your midst.

3 I indeed, ^cabsent in body but present in spirit, have already, as though present, passed judgment

4 in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ on the one who has so acted—you and my spirit gathered together with the power ^dof our Lord Jesus—

5 to deliver ^esuch a one over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that his spirit may be saved in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

6 Your boasting is unseemly. Do you not know that a little leaven ferments the whole lump?

7 Purge out the old leaven,^f that you may be a new dough, as you really are without leaven. For Christ, our Passover, has been sacrificed.

8 Therefore let us keep festival, not with the old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Punishment by Excommunication

9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate with the immoral ^g—

10 not meaning, of course, the immoral

1, 5.—^b Lev. 18, 7f; Deut. 22, 30.—^c Col. 2, 5.—^d Matt. 16, 19; 18, 18.—^e 2 Cor. 13, 10; 1 Tim. 1, 20.—^f Ex. 12, 21; 13, 7; Isa. 53, 7; 1 Pet. 1, 19.—^g 2 Thess. 3, 14.

tion, b) trials, even physical, without the normal aids of the Church against Satan. The destruction of the flesh: the destruction of sinful tendencies.

Ver. 6-8. Fermentation was considered as a kind of corruption. Therefore leaven was removed from Jewish houses for the observance of the Passover to symbolize removal of sin, the corruption of the soul. Cf. Ex. 12, 15ff. The comparison was probably suggested to St. Paul by the nearness of Easter, which replaced the Passover among Christians.

of this world, or the covetous, or the greedy, or idolators; otherwise you would have to leave the world.

11 But now I write to you not to associate^h with one who is called a brother, if he is immoral, or covetous, or an idolator, or evil-tongued, or a drunkard, or greedy; with such a one not even to take food.

12 For what have I to do with judging those outside? Is it not those inside whom you judge?

13 For those outside God will judge. i "Expel the wicked man from your midst."

2. LAWSUITS BEFORE PAGANS

CHAPTER 6

Public Litigation

DARE any of you, having a matter against another, bring your case to be judged before the unjust and not before the saints?

2 Do you not know that the saints will judgeⁱ the world? And if the world will be judged by you, are you unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Do you not know that we shall judge angels? How much more worldly things!

4 If, therefore, you have cases about worldly matters to be judged, appoint those who are rated as nothing in the Church to judge.

5 To shame you I say it. Can it be that there is not one wise man among you competent to settle a case in his brother's matter?

6 But brother goes to law with brother and that before unbelievers.

7 Nay, ^kto begin with, it is altogether a defect in you that you have lawsuits one with another. Why not rather suffer wrong? Why not rather be defrauded?

8 But you yourselves do wrong and defraud, and that to your brethren.

9 Or do you not know ^lthat the unjust

^h Matt. 18, 17; 2 Thess. 3, 6; 2 John 10.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 13, 5; Deut. 22, 24.—^j Dan. 7, 22; Apoc. 3, 21.—^k Matt. 5, 39.—^l Gal. 5, 19ff; Eph. 5, 5.—^m Titus

Chap. 6, Ver. 2. The elect will adopt the sentence of Christ their head and pronounce sentence with Him. Cf. Wisd. 3, 8; Jude 6.

Ver. 4. Cf. Matt. 11, 11 for the advantage of even the least in the kingdom of heaven. This verse is spoken sarcastically; Paul's real advice, to pick those especially fitted, is implied in v. 5.

will not possess the kingdom of God? Do not err; neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers, 10 nor the effeminate, nor sodomites, nor thieves, nor the covetous, nor drunkards, nor the evil-tongued, nor the greedy will possess the kingdom of God.

11 And ^msuch were some of you, but you have been washed, you have been sanctified, you have been justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God.

3. THE EVIL OF IMMORALITY

Sacredness of the Body

12 All things are lawful for me,ⁿ but not all things are expedient. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of anyone.

13 Food for the belly and the belly for food, but God will destroy both the one and the other. Now the body is not for ^oimmorality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

14 Now ^pGod has raised up the Lord and will also raise us up by his power.

15 Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ and make them members of a harlot? By no means!

16 Or do you not know that he who cleaves to a harlot, becomes one body with her? ^q"For the two," it says, "shall be one flesh."

17 But he who cleaves to the Lord is one spirit ^rwith him.

18 Flee immorality. Every sin that a man commits is outside the body, but the immoral man sins against his own body.

19 Or do you not know ^sthat your members are the temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God, and that you are not your own?

20 For ^tyou have been bought at a great price. Glorify God and bear him in your body.

3, 3-7.—ⁿ 1 Cor. 10, 23.—^o 1 Thess. 4, 3ff.—^p 2 Cor. 4, 14.—^q Gen. 2, 24.—^r Eph. 5, 30; 2 Cor. 3, 17.—^s 1 Cor. 3, 16.—^t 1 Cor. 7, 23; Phil. 1, 20.

Ver. 12. A proverbial way of saying that not all lawful things are expedient. It was applied by the Christians especially to the new freedom from the ritual of the Mosaic Law, and erroneously by some even to the natural law formulated in the Mosaic code. Cf. note on Acts 15, 29.

Ver. 20. The Greek text has, "Glorify God, therefore, in your body."

III: ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

1. MARRIAGE AND CELIBACY

CHAPTER 7

Advice to the Married

NOW concerning the things whereof you wrote to me: It is good for man not to touch woman.

2 Yet, for fear of fornication, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own husband.

3 Let the husband render to the wife her due, and likewise the wife to the husband.

4 The wife has not authority over her body, but the husband; the husband likewise has not authority over his body, but the wife.

5 Do not deprive each other, except perhaps by consent, for a time, that you may give yourselves to prayer; and return together again lest Satan tempt you because you lack self-control.

6 But this I say by way of concession, not by way of commandment.

7 For I would that you all were as I am myself; but each one has his own gift from God,^u one in this way, and another in that.

Advice to the Unmarried

8 But I say to the unmarried and to widows, it is good for them if they so remain, even as I.

9 But if they do not have self-control, let them marry,^v for it is better to marry than to burn.

10 But to those who are married, not I, but the Lord commands that a wife is not to depart^w from her husband, 11 and if she departs, that she is to remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband. And let not a husband put away his wife.

^u Matt. 19, 12.—^v 1 Tim. 5, 14.—^w 1 Cor. 7, 12, 25, 40; Matt. 5, 32.—^x Rom. 11, 16.—^y Rom. 14, 19.

Chap. 7, Ver. 12. Not the Lord: not the express teaching of Christ during His earthly life, but a law made by the Apostles on the authority of Christ. It is known as the "Pauline privilege."

Ver. 14. Sanctified: an external sacredness deriving

Obligation of the Believing Spouse

12 To the others I say, not the Lord: If any brother has an unbelieving wife and she consents to live with him, let him not put her away.

13 And if any woman has an unbelieving husband and he consents to live with her, let her not put away her husband.

14 For ^x the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the believing wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the believing husband; otherwise your children would be unclean, but, as it is, they are holy.

15 But ^y if the unbeliever departs, let him depart. For a brother or sister is not under bondage in such cases, but God has called us to peace.

16 For how dost thou know, O wife, whether thou wilt save thy husband? Or how dost thou know, O husband, whether thou wilt save thy wife?

No Change to Be Sought

17 Only, as the Lord has allotted to each, as when God has called each, so let him walk—and so I teach in all the churches.

18 Was one called having been circumcised? Let him not become uncircumcised. Was one called being uncircumcised? Let him not be circumcised.

19 Circumcision^z does not matter, and uncircumcision does not matter; but the keeping of the commandments of God is what matters.

20 Let every man remain in the calling in which he was called.

21 Wast thou a slave when called? Let it not trouble thee. But if thou canst become free, make use of it rather.

22 For ^a a slave who has been called in the Lord, is a freedman of the Lord; just as a freeman who has been called is a slave of Christ.

23 You ^b have been bought with a price; do not become the slaves of men.

—^z Gal. 5, 6; 6, 15; Rom. 2, 25.—^a Eph. 6, 6; Philem. 16.—^b 1 Cor. 6, 20; 1 Pet. 1, 18f.

from membership in the Church of Christ or from close contact with it, as in marriage with a Christian. Ver. 21. It is not clear whether St. Paul advises the slave to take or to leave an opportunity to be freed.

24 Brethren, in the state in which he was when called, let every man remain with God.

The State of Virginity

25 Now c concerning virgins I have no commandment of the Lord, yet I give an opinion, as one having obtained mercy from the Lord to be trustworthy.

26 I think, then, that this is good on account d of the present distress—that it is good for a man to remain as he is.

27 Art thou bound to a wife? Do not seek to be freed. Art thou freed from a wife? Do not seek a wife.

28 But if thou takest a wife, thou hast not sinned. And if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. Yet such will have tribulation of the flesh.e But I spare you that.

29 But this I say, brethren,f the time is short; it remains that those who have wives be as if they had none;

30 and those who weep, as though not weeping; and those who rejoice, as though not rejoicing; and those who buy, as though not possessing;

31 and those who use this world, as though not using it, for this world, as we see it is passing away.

32 I would have you free from care. He who is unmarried is concerned about the things of the Lord, how he may please God.

33 Whereas g he who is married is concerned about the things of the world, how he may please his wife; and he is divided.

34 And the unmarried woman, and the virgin, thinks about the things of the Lord, that she may be holy in body and in spirit. Whereas she who is married thinks about the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 Now h this I say for your benefit, not to hold you in check, but to promote what is proper, and to make it possible for you to pray to the Lord without distraction.

c 1 Cor. 7, 10. 40.—d 1 Cor. 10, 11.—e Luke 21, 23.—f Rom. 13, 11.—g Luke 14, 20.—h Luke 10, 39. 42.—i Rom. 7, 2.—j Acts 15, 29.—k Gal. 6, 3.

Ver. 26. The present distress: the persecution of Christians, the possible end of the world, as well as the general worries and troubles of this life.

Ver. 29. The time is short: i.e., for meriting in this life before the coming of Christ, whether in the particular or in the general judgment.

Duty of Father to Virgin Daughter

36 But if any man thinks that he incurs disgrace with regard to his virgin, since she is over age, and that it ought so to be done, let him do what he will; he does not sin if she should marry.

37 But he who stands firm in his heart, being under no constraint, but is free to carry out his own will, and has decided to keep his virgin—he does well.

38 Therefore both he who gives his virgin in marriage does well, and he who does not give her does better.

Widows

39 A woman i is bound as long as her husband is alive, but if her husband dies, she is free. Let her marry whom she pleases, only let it be in the Lord.

40 But she will be more blessed, in my judgment, if she remains as she is. And I think that I also have the spirit of God.

2. IDOL OFFERINGS

CHAPTER 8

General Principles

NOW concerning things sacrificed to idols, i we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffs up, but charity edifies.

2 If anyone thinks that he knows anything, k he has not yet known as he ought to know.

3 But if anyone loves God, l the same is known by him.

4 Now as for food sacrificed to idols, we know that there is no such thing as an idol in the world,m and that there is no God but one.

5 For even if there are what are called gods, n whether in heaven or on earth (for indeed there are many gods, and many lords), —l Gal. 4, 9.—m 1 Cor. 10, 19; Deut. 6, 4.—n John 10, 34.

Ver. 36f. Marriage was settled chiefly by the father, but not without consideration for the feelings and choice of the daughter. Being under no constraint: implies an obligation towards his daughter.

Ver. 39. In the Lord: i.e., in the body of Christ, the Church. This can be taken as a general counsel to marriage within the Church.

6 yet for us there is only one God, ^o the Father from whom are all things, and we unto him; and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we through him.

Practical Rules

7 But such knowledge is not in everyone. Some, still idol-conscious, eat idol offerings ^p as such, and their conscience, being weak, is defiled.

8 Now food ^q does not commend us to God. For neither shall we suffer any loss if we do not eat, nor if we do eat shall we have any advantage.

9 Still, take care lest perhaps this right of yours become a stumbling-block ^r to the weak.

10 For if a man sees one who "has knowledge" reclining at table in an idol place, will not his conscience, weak as it is, be emboldened to eat idol offerings?

11 And ^sthrough thy "knowledge" the weak one will perish, the brother for whom Christ died.

12 Now when you sin thus against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ.

13 Therefore, ^tif food scandalizes my brother, I will eat flesh no more forever, lest I scandalize my brother.

3. PAUL'S RIGHTS AS AN APOSTLE

CHAPTER 9

His Claim of Rights

AM I NOT FREE? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are not you my work ^u in the Lord?

2 And if to others I am not an apostle,

^o Mal. 2, 10; John 1, 2; Col. 1, 16.—^p 1 Cor. 10, 28; Rom. 14, 14. 23.—^q Rom. 14, 17.—^r Rom. 14, 20.—^s Rom. 14, 15.—^t Rom. 14, 21.—^u Acts 13, 2; 26, 17; 9, 3; 18, 9.—^v 1 Tim. 5, 18.—^w 2 Tim. 2, 6.

Chap. 8, Ver. 7. Idol-conscious: the Greek text has two readings: "habit of the idol" and "consciousness or conscience of the idol." By habit, some are accustomed to regard an idol as a reality. The eating of food sacrificed to gods still entices them and would be heathen worship. Hence the example of one who sees no wrong in it would encourage them to do what they think wrong. By habit they are idol-conscious.

Ver. 10. "Has knowledge": i.e., a false or overconfident knowledge. Idol place: includes not only the pagan temple, but also the surrounding gardens and buildings where sacrificed meats were served.

yet to you I am. For you are the seal set upon my apostleship in the Lord.

3 My defense against those who question me is this:

4 Have we not a right to eat and to drink?

5 Have we not a right to take about with us a woman, a sister, as do the other apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or is it only Barnabas and I who have not the right to do this?

7 What soldier ever serves at his own expense? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat of its fruit? Who feeds the flock, and does not eat of the milk of the flock?

8 Do I speak these things on human authority? Or does not the Law also say these things?

9 For it is written in the Law of Moses, ^v"Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treads out the grain." Is it for the oxen that God has care?

10 Or does he say this simply for our sakes? These things were written for us. For he who plows ^w should plow in hope, and he who threshes, in hope of partaking of the fruits.

11 If ^xwe have sown for you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we reap from you carnal things?

12 If others share in this right over you, why not we rather? But we have not used this right, ^y but we bear all things, lest we offer hindrance to the gospel of Christ.

13 Do you not know ^zthat they who minister in the temple eat what comes from the temple, and that they who serve the altar, have their share with the altar?

14 So also the Lord directed that those who preach the gospel should have their living ^a from the gospel.

—^x Rom. 15, 27.—^y 2 Cor. 11, 9; 1 Thess. 2, 6.—^z Num. 18, 8. 31; Deut. 18, 1ff.—^a Luke 10, 7; Gal. 6, 6.

Chap. 9, Ver. 5. Woman: the Greek text has "a sister woman." There is no question of a right to marry. The Apostles had that right, but there is no evidence that many of them used it. Paul here is defending his right to support from the Church, not only for himself, but also for a "sister" who would attend to his needs. Brethren of the Lord: cf. Mark 6, 3; Acts 1, 13.

Ver. 6. Right to do this: the Greek text reads "right not to labor."

Ver. 9. Cf. Deut. 25, 4. The meaning of St. Paul is, "if God has such care for oxen, how much more for man."

Reason for Not Using Rights

15 But ^bI for my part have used none of these rights. Neither do I write these things that so it should be done in my case. For it were better for me to die than that anyone should make void my boast.

16 For even if I preach the gospel, I have therein no ground for boasting, since I am under constraint. For woe to me if I do not preach the gospel!

17 If ^cI do this willingly, I have a reward. But if unwillingly, it is a stewardship that has been entrusted to me.

18 What then is my reward? That preaching the gospel, I deliver the gospel without charge, so as not to abuse my right in the gospel.

Paul is All to All

19 For, free though I was as to all, unto all I have made myself a slave that I might gain the more converts.

20 And ^dI have become to the Jews a Jew that I might gain the Jews;

21 to those under the Law, ^eas one under the Law (though not myself under the Law), that I might gain those under the Law; to those without the Law, as one without the Law (though I am not without the law of God, but am under the law of Christ), that I might gain those without the Law.

22 To ^fthe weak I became weak, that I might gain the weak. I became all things to all men, that I might save all.

23 I do all things for the sake of the gospel, that I may be made partaker thereof.

^b Acts 18, 3.—^c Eph. 3, 2-7.—^d Acts 16, 3; 21, 20-26.—^e Gal. 2, 3.—^f 2 Cor. 11, 29; Rom. 11, 14.—

Ver. 15. The end of the verse in the Greek text reads, "It is better for me to die than—no one shall make void my boast."

Ver. 16-18. Paul is not unwilling to preach the Gospel. He is referring to the fact that he did not become an apostle of his own initiative, but that he received his commission while opposing the Church. The miraculous call, as it were, leaves him no choice. Realizing that the grace of the apostolate outweighs his great efforts, he voluntarily foregoes rights so as to increase his reward.

Ver. 22. The end of the verse in the Greek text reads, "I have become all things to all men, that at all costs I may save some."

He Makes Sure His Reward

24 Do you not know ^gthat those who run in a race, all indeed run, but one receives the prize? So run as to obtain it.

25 And ^heveryone in a contest abstains from all things—and they indeed to receive a perishable crown, but we an imperishable.

26 I, therefore, so run as not without a purpose; I so fight as not beating the air;

27 but I chastise my body and bring it into subjection, ⁱlest perhaps after preaching to others I myself should be rejected.

4. AGAINST OVERCONFIDENCE

CHAPTER 10

Warning from Old Testament

FOR I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that our fathers were all ^junder the cloud, and all passed through the sea,

2 and all were baptized in Moses, in the cloud and in the sea.

3 And all ate the same spiritual food,

4 and all drank the same spiritual drink (for they drank from the spiritual rock which followed them, and the rock was Christ).

5 Yet with most of them God was not well pleased, ^kfor "they were laid low in the desert."

6 Now these things came to pass as examples to us, that we should not lust after evil things even as they lusted.

7 And do not become idolators, even as some of them were, as it is written, "The ^g Gal. 2, 2; 2 Tim. 4, 7.—^h 2 Tim. 2, 5.—ⁱ Rom. 8, 13; 13, 14.—^j Ex. 13, 21; 14, 19-22.—^k Num. 14, 16.

Chap. 10, Ver. 3f. Spiritual food, spiritual drink: so called because of the miraculous nature of the manna and the water from the rock. Cf. Ex. 16, 15, 35; 17, 6; Num. 20, 11. Spiritual rock . . . Christ, pre-existing as God, protected the Jews, and produced this food and drink, which were types of sacraments that He would later institute.

Ver. 6. As examples to us: being saved through the waters was a type of Baptism, eating manna and drinking miraculous water were types of the Eucharist. Cf. note on verse 11.

Ver. 7. Eat . . . play: refers to the eating of victims offered to idols, and to idolatrous dancing. Cf. Ex. 32, 6, 19.

people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play."

8 Neither let us commit fornication, ^leven as some of them committed fornication, and there fell in one day twenty-three thousand.

9 Neither ^mlet us tempt Christ, as some of them tempted, and perished by the serpents.

10 Neither ⁿmurmur, as some of them murmured, and perished at the hands of the destroyer.

11 Now ^oall these things happened to them as a type, and they were written for our correction, upon whom the final age of the world has come.

Application

12 Therefore let him who thinks he stands take heed lest he fall.

13 May no temptation take hold of you but such as man is equal to. God is faithful and will not permit you to be tempted beyond your strength, but with the temptation will also give you a way out that you may be able to bear it.

5. DISCUSSION OF IDOL OFFERINGS RESUMED

The Table of the Lord

14 Therefore, beloved, flee from the worship of idols. ^pI am speaking as to men of sense;

15 judge for yourselves what I say.

16 The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not the sharing of the blood of Christ? ^qAnd the bread that we break, is it not the partaking of the body of the Lord?

17 Because the bread is one, we though many, are one body, ^rall of us who partake of the one bread.

18 Behold Israel according to the flesh, ^sare not they who eat of the sacrifices partakers of the altar?

^l Num. 25, 1-9.—^m Num. 21, 5f.—ⁿ Num. 14, 2, 36.—^o 1 Pet. 4, 7.—^p 1 John 5, 21.—^q Matt. 26, 27; Acts 2, 42.—^r 1 Cor. 12, 27; Rom. 12, 5.—^s Lev. 7, Ver. 11. Type, . . . for our correction: those who received the various types of Baptism and the Eucharist were not secure from punishment and loss, neither are we who receive the realities.

Ver. 13. The Greek text reads: "No temptation has taken hold of you but such as is human," i.e., not beyond human resistance. Our text expresses a wish.

19 What then do I say? That what is sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything?

20 No; but I say that what the Gentiles sacrifice, ^t"they sacrifice to devils and not to God"; and I would not have you become associates of devils.

21 You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils; you cannot be partakers of the table of the Lord and of the table of devils.

22 Or are we provoking ^uthe Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he?

Practical Directions

All things are lawful, but not all things are expedient.

23 All things are lawful, but not all things edify.

24 Let ^vno one seek his own interests, but those of his neighbor.

25 Anything that is sold in the market, eat, asking no question for conscience' sake.

26 "The ^wearth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof."

27 If one of the unbelievers invites you, and you wish to go, eat whatever is set before you, and ask no question for conscience' sake.

28 But if someone says, "This has been sacrificed to idols," do not eat of it, for the sake of him who told you and for conscience' sake.

29 I mean the other's conscience, not thine. For why should my liberty be called to judgment by another's conscience?

30 If I partake with thanksgiving, ^xwhy am I ill spoken of for that for which I give thanks?

Give No Offense

31 Therefore, ^ywhether you eat or drink, or do anything else, do all for the glory of God.

6. 15.—^t Deut. 32, 17.—^u Deut. 32, 21; 6, 12.—^v 1 Cor. 10, 33; Rom. 15, 2.—^w Ps. 23, 1.—^x 1 Tim. 4, 3f; Rom. 14, 6.—^y Col. 3, 17.

Ver. 18-21. To partake of the sacrifice among the Jews was a means of union with God. The eating of things sacrificed to false gods, to devils [Deut. 32, 17], by analogy implied union with them. This was not befitting one who had been united to Christ in the Eucharist.

32 Do not be a stumbling-block ^z to Jews and Greeks and to the church of God, 33 even as I myself in all things please all ^a men, not seeking what is profitable to myself but to the many, that they may be saved.

CHAPTER 11

BE IMITATORS ^b of me as I am of Christ.

IV: RELIGIOUS GATHERINGS

1. THE HEADDRESS OF WOMEN

Rules for Men and Women

2 Now I praise you, brethren, because in all things you are mindful of me and hold fast my precepts as I gave them to you.

3 But I would have you know ^c that the head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the man, and the head of Christ is God.

4 Every man praying or prophesying ^d with his head covered, disgraces his head.

5 But every woman praying or prophesying with her head uncovered disgraces her head, for it is the same as if she were shaven.

6 For if a woman is not covered, let her be shaven. But if it is a disgrace for a woman to have her hair cut off or her head shaved, let her cover her head.

7 A man indeed ought not to cover his head, because he is the image and glory of ^e God. But woman is the glory of man.

8 For man is not from woman, but woman from man.

9 For man was not created for woman, but woman for man.

10 This is why the woman ought to ^z Rom. 14, 13.—^a 1 Cor. 9, 20ff; 10, 24.—^b 1 Cor. 4, 16; Phil. 3, 17.—^c Eph. 4, 15; 5, 23; Gen. 3, 16.—^d 1 Cor. 12, 10; 14, 1.—^e Gen. 1, 27; 5, 1.—

Chap. 11, Ver. 2. Hold fast my precepts: the Greek text has "keep the traditions."

Ver. 3-10. Paul finds a justification in nature for the custom of headdress and the significance attached to it. Christian teaching raised the position of women. There was naturally a tendency to push equality with men beyond due limits. Paul is opposing this in a practical way.

Ver. 10. Because of the angels: who assist at the divine service and are interested in having all done properly.

have a sign of authority over her head, because of the angels.

11 Yet neither is man independent of woman, nor woman independent of man in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is from the man, so also is the man through the woman, but all things are from God.

13 Judge for yourselves: does it become a woman to pray to God uncovered?

14 Does not nature itself teach you that for a man to wear his hair long is degrading;

15 but for a woman to wear her hair long is a glory to her? Because her hair has been given her as a covering.

16 But if anyone is disposed to be contentious—we have no such custom, neither have the churches of God.

2. THE EUCHARIST

An Abuse

17 But in giving this charge, I do not commend ^f you in that you meet not for the better but for the worse.

18 For first of all I hear that when you meet in church ^g there are divisions among you, and in part I believe it.

19 For there must be factions, so that those who are approved may be made manifest ^h among you.

20 So then when you meet together, it is no longer possible to eat the Lord's Supper.

21 For at the meal, each one takes first his own supper, and one is hungry, and another drinks overmuch.

22 Have you not houses for your eating and drinking? Or do you despise the church of God and put to shame the ⁱ needy? What am I to say to you? Am I to commend you? In this I do not commend you.

^f 1 Cor. 11, 22.—^g 1 Cor. 1, 10-12; 3, 3.—^h 1 John 2, 19; Deut. 13, 3.—ⁱ Jas. 2, 5ff.

Ver. 16. St. Paul realizes that his argument may not be generally accepted, and so appeals to the authority of custom in the Church.

Ver. 17. But in giving this charge: the Greek reads, "Now making this charge, I do not praise," etc.

Ver. 19. Must be factions: considering man's pride and obstinacy there must be factions, but from this evil arises good in that the true and genuine Christians are made manifest.

Ver. 20-22. Among the early Christians, in imitation of the Last Supper, a slight meal, the Agape or love-feast, preceded the Eucharistic services.

Institution of the Eucharist

23 For I myself have received from the Lord (what I also delivered to you), i that the Lord Jesus, on the night in which he was betrayed, took bread,

24 and giving thanks broke, and said, "This is my body which shall be given up for you; do this in remembrance of me."

25 In like manner also the cup, after he had supped, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood; do this as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me."

26 For as often as you shall eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the death of the Lord, until he comes."

27 Therefore k whoever eats this bread or drinks the cup of the Lord unworthily, will be guilty of the body and the blood of the Lord.

28 But l let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of that bread and drink of the cup;

29 for he who eats and drinks unworthily, without distinguishing the body, eats and drinks judgment to himself.

30 This is why many among you are infirm and weak, and many m sleep.

31 But if we judged ourselves, we should not thus be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are being chastised n by the Lord that we may not be condemned with this world.

33 Wherefore, my brethren, when you come together to eat, wait for one another.

34 If anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, lest you come together unto judgment. The rest I shall set in order when I come.

j 1 Cor. 15, 3; Matt. 26, 26ff; Mark 14, 22ff; Luke 22, 19ff.—k Heb. 6, 6; 10, 29.—l 2 Cor. 13, 5.—m 1 Cor. 15, 20; Eph. 5, 14; 1 Thess. 5, 6.—n Heb. 12, 5ff.—o Hab. 2, 18f.—p Mark 9, 39; 1

Ver. 23-30. This section teaches that: (1) the Eucharist is really the body and blood of Christ (24f); (2) the Apostles and their successors were empowered to perpetuate the act (24-26); (3) the Mass is a sacrifice (25 cf. note); (4) the Mass is one with the sacrifice of the cross (26); (5) the Eucharist must be received worthily (27-30).

Ver. 25. The new covenant: Sacrificial blood sealed the old covenant; cf. Ex. 24, 8. This is the sacrificial blood that makes effective the new order established by God.

Ver. 30. Sickness and death are temporal punishments which were more common then [cf. Acts 5, 5, 10; 1 Cor. 5, 5], just as extraordinary external favors were more common.

V: THE SPIRITUAL GIFTS

1. THEIR DISTRIBUTION

CHAPTER 12

A Principle of Discrimination

NOW o concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant.

2 You know that when you were Gentiles, you went to dumb idols according as you were led.

3 Wherefore I give you to understand p that no one speaking in the Spirit of God says "Anathema" to Jesus. And no one can say "Jesus is Lord," except in the Holy Spirit.

4 Now there are varieties of q gifts, but the same Spirit;

5 and there are varieties of ministries, r but the same Lord;

6 and there are varieties of workings, but the same God, who works all things in all.

7 Now the manifestation of the Spirit is given to everyone for profit.

8 To one through the Spirit is given the utterance of wisdom; and to another the utterance of knowledge, according to the same Spirit;

9 to another faith, in the same Spirit; to another the gift of healing, in the one Spirit;

10 to another s the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another the distinguishing of spirits; to another various kinds of tongues; to another interpretation of tongues.

11 But t all these things are the work of one and the same Spirit, who allots to everyone according as he will.

12 For as the body u is one and has

John 4, 2f.—q Rom. 12, 6; Eph. 4, 4.—r 1 Cor. 12, 28; Eph. 4, 11.—s 1 Cor. 13, 2; 14, 5; Acts 2, 4.—t 1 Cor. 7, 7; Rom. 12, 3; Eph. 4, 7.—u 1 Cor. 12, 27; 10, 17.

Chap. 12, Ver. 1. Spiritual gifts: free, supernatural gifts perfecting human knowledge, speech, service and administrative ability, not for personal advantage, but for the good of the Church. Some of these gifts are listed in verses 8-10; 28-30; Eph. 4, 11.

Ver. 3. The Greek text reads "Jesus is anathema." Faith in the Lordship of Christ is a necessary foundation for any true spiritual gift.

Ver. 4-6. Note that Spirit, Lord, God, terms used to designate God in the Old Testament, are applied in the New to the Holy Spirit, the Son and the Father respectively, as distinct Persons with one divine nature.

many members, and all the members of the body, many as they are, form one body, so also is it with Christ.

13 For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body,^v whether Jews or Gentiles, whether slaves or free; and we were all given to drink of one Spirit.

14 For the body^w is not one member, but many.

15 If the foot says, "Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the ear says, "Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body?

17 If the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing? If the whole body were hearing, where would be the smelling?

18 But as it is, God has set the members, each of them, in the body as he willed.

19 Now if they were all one member, where would the body be?

20 But as it is, there are indeed many members,^x yet but one body.

21 And the eye cannot say to the hand, "I do not need thy help"; nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you."

22 Nay, much rather, those that seem the more feeble members of the body are more necessary;

23 and those that we think the less honorable members of the body, we surround with more abundant honor, and our uncomely parts receive a more abundant comeliness,

24 whereas our comely parts have no need of it. But God has so tempered the body together in due portion as to give more abundant honor where it was lacking;

25 that there may be no disunion in the ^v Gal. 3, 28; Eph. 2, 13. 16.—^w 1 Cor. 12, 20.—^x 1 Cor. 12, 14.—^y Rom. 12, 5; Eph. 5, 30.—^z Eph. —^a 1 Cor. 14, 1.—^b Matt. 7, 22; 17, 20.—^c Matt. 6, 2.

Ver. 22. More necessary: the Greek text and many Vulgate Manuscripts have simply "necessary." As a matter of fact, some of the most delicate organs of the body are the most necessary.

Ver. 23f. Paul speaks of a natural tendency not to neglect but rather to give additional attention to those organs which do not have proper strength and beauty. So in the body of Christ attention will be given to the members not according to virtue and attractiveness but according to needs.

Ver. 31. Greater gifts: greater than those just described is charity, which follows.

body, but that the members may have care for one another.

26 And if one member suffers anything, all the members suffer with it, or if one member glories, all the members rejoice with it.

Christ's Mystical Body

27 Now you are the body of Christ,^y member for member.

28 And ^zGod indeed has placed some in the Church, first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers; after that miracles, then gifts of healing, services of help, power of administration, and the speaking of various tongues.

29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers?

30 Are all workers of miracles? Do all have the gift of healing? Do all speak with tongues? Do all interpret?

31 Yet ^a strive after the greater gifts.

2. A DIGRESSION ON CHARITY

CHAPTER 13

Its Excellence

AND I point out to you a yet more excellent way. If I should speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but do not have charity, I have become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

2 And if I have prophecy and know all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith so as to remove mountains, yet do not have charity,^b I am nothing.

3 And if I distribute all my goods^c to feed the poor, and if I deliver my body to be burned, yet do not have charity, it profits me nothing.

4 Charity is patient, is kind; charity does not envy, is not pretentious, is not puffed up,

5 is not ambitious, is not self-seeking, is not provoked; thinks no evil,

Chap. 13, Ver. 1. Charity: here is meant the supernatural virtue comprising love of God above all things and love of neighbor for God. The Greek word implies, not a mere sentimental feeling, but a sense of appreciation of the worth of God in Himself and in one's neighbor.

Ver. 3. Body to be burned: the precise meaning is not clear, but it would seem to mean a heroic self-sacrifice for some good natural motive.

Ver. 5. Is not ambitious: the Greek text reads: "does not behave unbecomingly." Thinks no evil: the Greek text reads: "does not take account of, or impute evil."

6 does not rejoice over wickedness,^d but rejoices with the truth;

7 bears with all things,^e believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Contrast with Other Gifts

8 Charity never fails, whereas prophecies will disappear, and tongues will cease, and knowledge will be destroyed.

9 For we know in part and we prophecy in part;

10 but when that which is perfect has come, that which is imperfect will be done away with.

11 When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I felt as a child, I thought as a child. Now that I have become a man, I have put away the things of a child.

12 We see now through a mirror in an obscure manner, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then ^fI shall know even as I have been known.

13 So there abide faith,^g hope and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

3. GIFTS OF TONGUES AND PROPHECY

CHAPTER 14

Superiority of Prophecy

AIM AT CHARITY, yet strive after the spiritual gifts,^h but especially that you may prophecy.

2 For he who speaks in a tongue does not speak to men but to God; for no one understands, as he is speaking mysteries in his spirit.

3 But he who prophesies speaks to men for edification, and encouragement, and consolation.

4 He who speaks in a tongue edifies

^d Rom. 10, 12; 13, 9.—^e Gal. 6, 2.—^f 2 Cor. 5, 7; Jas. 1, 23.—^g 1 Thess. 1, 3; 1 John 4, 16.—^h 1 Cor. 12, 10, 31.—ⁱ Num. 11, 29; 1 Cor. 12, 10.—^j 1 Cor.

Ver. 12. Charity is the will's choice of God based on the knowledge of God. We know Him now indirectly through His reflection in creatures. This indirect vision is vague and distorted as was the vision seen through the metal mirrors of St. Paul's day. But when grace becomes the beatific vision through the lifting of the veil, we shall see God directly and know Him as He knows us.

Chap. 14, Ver. 1. To prophecy: to preach extempore under special inspiration of God, to be His spokesman whether for instructing, rebuking, exhorting to virtue or foretelling the future.

Ver. 2. From this it appears that the gift of tongues, i.e., of speaking new languages, was given primarily himself, but he who prophesies edifies the church.

5 Now I should like you all to speak in tongues, but still more to prophesy;ⁱ for he who prophesies is greater than he who speaks in tongues, unless he can interpret so that the church may receive edification.

Tongues Require Interpretation

6 But now, brethren, if I come to you speaking in tongues what shall I profit you, unless I speak to you ^jeither in revelation, or in knowledge, or in prophecy, or in teaching?

7 Even inanimate instruments, like the flute or the harp, may produce sound, but if there is no difference in the notes, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 If the trumpet give forth an uncertain sound, who will prepare for battle?

9 So likewise you—unless with the tongue you utter intelligible speech—how shall it be known what is said? For you will be speaking to the empty air.

10 There are, for example, so many kinds of languages in this world and none without a meaning.

11 If, then, I do not know the meaning of the language, I shall be to the one to whom I speak, a foreigner; and he who speaks, a foreigner to me.

12 So also you, since you strive after spiritual gifts,^k seek to have them abundantly for the edification of the church.

13 Therefore let him who speaks ^lin a tongue pray that he may interpret.

14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my understanding is unfruitful.

15 What, then, is to be done? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the understanding also; I will sing ^mwith the spirit, but I will sing with the understanding also.

12, 8.—^k 1 Cor. 14, 1-4.—^l 1 Cor. 12, 10.—^m Eph. 5, 19.

with a view not to preaching but to praising God, thereby attracting men to God not by the words spoken but by the miracle of speaking various tongues.

Ver. 5. Interpretation of tongues was a gift distinct from the speaking of tongues, enabling the hearers to derive edification also from the words spoken. Cf. v. 2.

Ver. 6-10. Speaking in tongues was a gift more obviously miraculous, more novel, and for that reason naturally desired. Paul, without condemning the desire to speak in tongues, prefers the more simple and useful gift of prophecy which gave supernatural help to religious instruction.

16 Else if thou givest praise with the spirit alone, how shall he who fills the place of the uninstructed say "Amen" to thy thanksgiving? For he does not know what thou sayest.

17 For thou, indeed, givest thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 I thank God that I speak with all your tongues;

19 yet in the church, I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that I may also instruct others, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

Functions of These Gifts

20 Brethren, do not become children in mind,ⁿ but in malice be children and in mind mature.

21 In the Law it is written that In other tongues and with other lips I will speak to this people, and not even so will they listen to me, says the Lord.

22 Wherefore tongues are intended as a sign, not to believers, but to unbelievers; whereas prophecies, not to unbelievers, but to believers.

23 Therefore, ^oif the whole church be assembled together and, while all are speaking with tongues, there should come in uninstructed persons or unbelievers, will they not say that you are mad?

24 Whereas if, while all are prophesying, there should come in an unbeliever or uninstructed person,^p he is convicted by all, he is put on trial by all;

25 the secrets of his heart are made manifest, and so, falling on his face, he will worship God, declaring that God is truly ^qamong you.

Practical Directions

26 What then is to be done, brethren? When you come together ^reach of you has a hymn, has an instruction, has a revelation, has a tongue, has an interpreta-ⁿ Eph. 4, 14; Phil. 3, 12. 15.—^o Acts 2, 13-15.—^p Acts 4, 13.—^q John 4, 19; 16, 8; Isa. 45, 14; Zach. 8, 23.—^r 1 Cor. 11, 18, 20; 12, 8f; Eph. 4, 12.

Ver. 21. Cf. Deut. 28, 49; Isa. 28, 11f.

Ver. 22. Prophecies: the Greek text reads "prophecy."

tion. Let all things be done unto edification.

27 If anyone speaks in a tongue, let it be by twos or at most by threes, and let them speak in turn, and let one interpret.

28 But if there is no interpreter let him keep silence in the church, and speak to himself and to God.

29 Of the prophets, let two or three speak at a meeting, and let the rest act as judges.^s

30 But if anything is revealed to another sitting by, let the first keep silence.

31 For you all can prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all may be encouraged.

32 For the spirits of the prophets are under the control of the prophets.

33 For God is a God of peace, not of disorder.

Order Necessary

Thus I likewise teach in all the churches of the saints.

34 Let women keep silence in the churches, for it is not permitted them to speak, but let them be submissive,^t as the Law also says.

35 But if they wish to learn anything let them ask their husbands at home, for it is unseemly for a woman to speak in church.

36 What, was it from you that the word of God went forth? Or was it unto you only that it reached?

37 If ^uanyone thinks that he is a prophet or spiritual, let him recognize that the things I am writing to you are the Lord's commandments.

38 If anyone ignores this, he shall be ignored.

39 So then, brethren, desire earnestly the gift of prophesying and do not hinder the gift of speaking in tongues.

40 Only ^vlet all things be done properly and in order.

—^s 1 Thess. 5, 21.—^t 1 Cor. 11, 3; 1 Tim. 2, 11f; Titus 2, 5; Gen. 3, 16.—^u John 4, 6.—^v Col. 2, 5.

Ver. 33. I likewise teach: omitted in the Greek text. This verse may be joined with what precedes instead of with what follows.

VI: THE RESURRECTION

CHAPTER 15

Christ's Resurrection

NOW I recall to your minds, brethren, the gospel that I preached to you, which also you received, wherein also you stand,

2 through which also you are being saved, if you hold it fast, as I preached it to you w—unless you have believed to no purpose.

3 For I delivered to you first of all, what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures,

4 and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures,

5 and that he appeared to Cephas, x and after that to the Eleven.

6 Then he was seen by more than five hundred brethren at one time, many of whom are with us still, but some have fallen asleep.

7 After that y he was seen by James, then by all the apostles.

8 And last of all, as by one born out of due time, he was seen z also by me.

9 For a I am the least of the apostles, and am not worthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God.

10 But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace in me has not been fruitless—in fact I have labored more than any of them, b yet not I, but the grace of God with me.

11 Whether then it is I or they, so we preach, and so you have believed.

The False Doctrine

12 Now if Christ is preached as risen from the dead, how do some among you say that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 But if there is no resurrection of the dead, neither has Christ risen;

14 and if Christ has not risen, vain then is our preaching, vain too is your faith.

w 1 Cor. 15, 14.—x Luke 24, 34-43; Mark 16, 14.—y Luke 24, 50.—z 1 Cor. 9, 1.—a Eph. 3, 8; 1 Tim. 1, 15; Matt. 5, 19.—b 2 Cor. 11, 5, 23; 6, 1.—c Acts 1, 22; 5, 32.—d 1 Cor. 15, 14.—e Col. 1, Chap. 15, Ver. 5. Eleven: the correct reading is probably that of most Greek Manuscripts, "the Twelve." In fact there were only eleven Apostles after the loss of Judas, but "the Twelve" had become the title of the group irrespective of the actual number.

Ver. 8. Out of due time: prematurely; Paul refers to his sudden conversion which took place without the mature preparation that the Apostles received.

15 Yes, and we are found false witnesses as to God, in that we have borne witness against God that he raised Christ—whom he did not raise, if the dead do not rise.

16 For if the dead do not rise, neither has Christ risen;

17 and if Christ has not risen, d vain is your faith, for you are still in your sins.

18 Hence they also who have fallen asleep in Christ, have perished.

19 If with this life only in view we have had hope in Christ, we are of all men the most to be pitied.

Christ the First-fruits

20 But as it is, Christ has risen from the dead, the first-fruits e of those who have fallen asleep.

21 For since by a man came death, f by a man also comes resurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made to live.

23 But each g in his own turn, Christ as first-fruits, then they who are Christ's, who have believed, at his coming.

24 Then comes the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father, when he does away with all sovereignty, authority and power.

25 For he must reign, until h "he has put all his enemies under his feet."

26 And the last enemy to be destroyed will be death, for i "he has put all things under his feet." But when he says

27 all things are subject to him, undoubtedly he is excepted who has subjected all things to him.

28 And when all things are made subject to him, then the Son himself will also be made subject to him who subjected all things to him, that God may be all in all.

Practical Faith

29 Else what shall they do who receive Baptism for the dead? If the dead do not 18.—f Gen. 3, 17ff; Rom. 5, 12-18.—g 1 Thess. 4, 15ff; Apoc. 20, 5.—h Ps. 109, 2.—i Apoc. 20, 14; 21, 4; 2 Tim. 1, 10; Ps. 8, 7.

Ver. 11. i.e., "Whether it is I or they who have brought this gospel to you."

Ver. 14. Vain: i.e., empty, not resting on any reality.

Ver. 23. The last part of the verse in Greek reads, "then those who are Christ's, at his coming." Who have believed: does not seem to have been in the original Greek.

rise at all, why then do people receive Baptism for them?

30 And we, ⁱwhy do we stand in jeopardy every hour?

31 I die daily, ^kI affirm it, by the very pride that I take in you, brethren, in Christ Jesus our Lord.

32 If, as men do, I fought with beasts at Ephesus, what does it profit me? If the dead do not rise, ^l"let us eat and drink for tomorrow we shall die."

33 Do not be led astray, "evil companionships corrupt good morals."

34 Awake ^mas you should, and do not sin; for some have no knowledge of God. To your shame I say so.

The Mode of the Resurrection

35 But someone will say, "How do the dead rise? Or with what kind of body do they come?"

36 Senseless man, what thou thyself sowest ⁿis not brought to life, unless it dies.

37 And when thou sowest, thou dost not sow the body that shall be, but a bare grain, perhaps of wheat or something else.

38 But God gives it a body even as he has willed, and to each of the seeds ^oa body of its own.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one flesh of men, another of beasts, another of birds, another of fishes.

40 There are also heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but of one kind is the glory of the heavenly, of another kind the glory of the earthly.

41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another of the stars; for star differs from star in glory.

42 So also with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown in corruption rises in incorruption;

43 what is sown in dishonor rises in glory; ^pwhat is sown in weakness rises in power;

^j 2 Cor. 2, 26.—^k Rom. 8, 36.—^l 1 Cor. 4, 9; 2 Cor. 1, 8; Isa. 22, 13; Luke 12, 19.—^m Rom. 13, 11; Eph. 5, 14.—ⁿ John 12, 24.—^o Gen. 1, 11.—^p Phil. 3, 20f.—^q Gen. 2, 7; John 5, 21; 6, 39f. 54, 57. 63;

Ver. 29. From this it seems that the Christians were accustomed to receive Baptism externally as substitutes for the catechumens who had received it only in desire. It did not have sacramental effect, but was tolerated as being the performance of an act the catechumens desired but could not themselves receive. It showed a belief in the Resurrection.

Ver. 32. I fought with beasts: usually taken metaphorically.

44 what is sown a natural body rises a spiritual body.

The Natural and the Spiritual Body

If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So also it is written, 45 "The first man, ^qAdam, became a living soul"; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit.

46 But it is not the spiritual that comes first, but the physical, and then the spiritual.

47 The first man was of the earth, ^rearthy; the second man is from heaven, heavenly.

48 As was the earthy man, such also are the earthy; and as is the heavenly man, such also are the heavenly.

49 Therefore, even as we have borne the likeness of the earthy, ^slet us bear also the likeness of the heavenly.

Final Glory of the Body

50 Now this I say, brethren, ^tthat flesh and blood can obtain no part in the kingdom of God, neither shall corruption have any part in incorruption.

51 Behold, I tell you a mystery: we shall all indeed rise, ^ubut we shall not all be changed—

52 in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. ^vFor the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise incorruptible and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible body must put on incorruption, ^wand this mortal body must put on immortality.

54 But when this mortal body puts on immortality, then shall come to pass the word that is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory!

55 O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?"

56 Now the sting of death ^xis sin, and the power of sin is the Law.

2 Cor. 3, 6f.—^r Gen. 2, 7.—^s Gen. 5, 3.—^t John 3, 3-6.—^u 1 Thess. 4, 14-17.—^v Zach. 9, 14; Matt. 24, 31; 1 Thess. 4, 16.—^w 2 Cor. 5, 4.—^x Rom. 4, 15; 7, 13.

Ver. 33. Quotation taken from "Thais," a play by Menander.

Ver. 51. The reading of most Greek Manuscripts is to be preferred: "We shall not all sleep (die), but we shall all be changed." The meaning would then be that while those who are living at the last day will not die, they must undergo the change spoken of in the previous verses, from the natural body to the spiritual body.

Ver. 54f. Cf. Isa. 25, 8; Os. 13, 14.

57 But thanks be to God who has given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast and immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

Conclusion

CHAPTER 16

The Collection

NOW concerning the collection ^y being made for the saints, as I have ordered the churches of Galatia, do you also.

2 On the first day of the week, ^z let each one of you put aside at home and lay up whatever he has a mind to, so that the collections may not have to be made after I have come.

3 But when I am with you, whomever you may authorize by giving credentials, them I will send to carry your gift to Jerusalem.

4 And if it is important enough for me also to go, they shall go with me.

St. Paul's Plans

5 But I shall come to you after passing through Macedonia ^a (for I mean to pass through Macedonia);

6 but with you I shall perhaps remain or even winter, so that you may speed me ^b wherever I may be going.

7 For I do not wish to see you just now in passing by, ^c for I hope to stay some time with you, if the Lord permits.

8 But I shall stay on at Ephesus ^d until Pentecost.

9 For ^e a door has been opened to me, great and evident, and there are many adversaries.

10 Now if Timothy ^f comes, see that he

^y Gal. 2, 10.—^z Acts 20, 7.—^a Acts 19, 21.—^b Rom. 15, 24; Titus 3, 12.—^c Acts 20, 2; 18, 21.—^d Acts 19, 1, 10; 2 Cor. 2, 12; Col. 4, 3.—^e Acts 14, 27.—^f Acts 19, 22; Phil. 2, 20. 22.—^g 1 Tim. 4, 12.—

Chap. 16, Ver. 1. The collection for the poor Christians of Jerusalem was requested by the other Apostles [Gal. 2, 10]. It is referred to in Rom. 15, 26; Acts 24, 17; 2 Cor. 8-9.

Ver. 4. Important enough. i.e., if the sum be large enough. Paul did eventually go [Rom. 15, 25; Acts 24, 17].

Ver. 6. Paul did spend the winter at Corinth [Acts 20, 1-3].

be with you without fear, for he works the work of the Lord just as I do.

11 Therefore, let no one despise him, but speed him on his way in peace ^g that he may come to me, for I am awaiting him with the brethren.

12 With regard to our brother Apollos, ^h I earnestly besought him to come to you with the brethren, and he was quite unwilling to come at present; but he will come when he has leisure.

Final Directions and Greetings

13 Watch, stand fast in the faith, act like men, be strong.

14 Let all that you do be done in charity.

15 Now I beseech you, brethren—you know that the household of Stephanas ⁱ and of Fortunatus are the first-fruits of Achaia, and have devoted themselves to the service of the saints—

16 to such as these ^j do you also be subject, and to every helper and worker.

17 I rejoice at the presence of St. Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, because what was lacking on your part they have supplied;

18 for they have refreshed both my spirit and yours. ^k To such as these, therefore, give recognition.

19 The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila ^l and Priscilla with the church at their house greet you heartily in the Lord.

20 All the brethren greet you. ^m Greet one another with a holy kiss.

21 I, Paul, greet you, ⁿ with my own hand.

22 If any man does not love the Lord Jesus Christ, ^o let him be anathema. Maranatha.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you.

24 My love is with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

^h 1 Cor. 1, 12; 3, 6.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 1, 16; Rom. 16, 5.—^j Phil. 2, 29.—^k 1 Thess. 5, 12.—^l Acts 18, 2, 18, 26; Rom. 16, 3, 5.—^m Rom. 16, 16; 2 Cor. 13, 12; 1 Pet. 5, 14.—ⁿ Col. 4, 18; 2 Thess. 3, 17.—^o Gal. 1, 8f.

Ver. 9. Evident: the Greek reads "effective." The meaning is that he has wide opportunities and prospects of success.

Ver. 12. It is clear from this verse that there was no rivalry between Paul and Apollos.

Ver. 22. Maranatha: the Aramaic Maran atha means, "The Lord comes." By another division of the letters, Marana tha, one gets, "Our Lord, come."

The Second Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the CORINTHIANS

ST. PAUL wrote this second canonical Epistle to the Christians of Corinth from Macedonia towards the close of his third missionary journey, and therefore very probably around the year 57 of our era. The Apostle had lately come from Ephesus, where he had spent over two years, and was on his way to Corinth. He had previously sent Titus to Corinth to visit the new community and to ascertain the effect on the faithful there of a severe letter which he had been obliged to write them some time before.

Paul and Titus had first arranged to meet at Troas, a Mysian seaport on the eastern shore of the Aegean Sea; but St. Paul arrived there ahead of schedule, and being anxious for news from Corinth, went across the sea to Philippi in Macedonia, and it was probably there that he met his envoy.

The report given by Titus of the effect on the Corinthians of St. Paul's letter from Ephesus occasioned this Epistle, in which the Apostle defends his life and ministry, urges that the collection—already requested and begun—be made for the poor Christians in Jerusalem, and replies to his bitter opponents. The Epistle ranks with those to Timothy and the Galatians as the most intensely personal of St. Paul's writings. But unlike the letters to Timothy, which are calmly pastoral and directive, this Epistle is vehement and hotly polemical, especially in the four closing chapters. The writer will have his critics and adversaries understand that he is a true apostle of Jesus Christ, and that his sincerity and authority have been amply attested by extraordinary visitations from heaven and by unparalleled labors and sufferings in behalf of the Gospel.

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, to the church of God that is at Corinth, with all the saints that are in the whole of Achaia:

2 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Comfort in Trouble

3 Blessed ^a be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort,

4 who comforts us in all our afflictions, that we also may be able to comfort those who are in any distress by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted by God.

5 For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so also through Christ does our comfort abound.

6 For whether we are afflicted, it is for your instruction and salvation; or whether we are comforted, it is for your comfort; which shows its efficacy in the endurance of the selfsame sufferings that we also suffer.

7 And our hope for you is steadfast, knowing that as you are partakers of the sufferings, so will you also be of the comfort.

Persecution and Deliverance

8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of the affliction which came upon us in Asia. We were crushed beyond measure—beyond our strength, so that we were weary even of life.

9 Yes, we have been carrying, within

^a Eph. 1, 3; 1 Pet. 1, 3.

Chap. 1, Ver. 8. The sense of the Greek is: "so that we despaired even of life."

Ver. 9. Death sentence: the Apostle had passed through a serious illness.

our very selves, our death sentence; in order that we may not trust in ourselves, but in God who raises the dead.

10 He it is who delivered us, and will deliver us, from such great perils; and in him we have hope to be delivered yet again, 11 through the help of your prayers for us. Thus, for the gift bestowed on us at the instance of many persons, thanks will be given by many on our behalf.

His Sincerity

12 For our boast is this, the testimony of our conscience that in simplicity and godly sincerity—not in carnal wisdom, but in the grace of God—we have conducted ourselves in the world, and especially in our relations with you.

13 For we write nothing to you that you do not read and understand. Indeed, I hope you will always understand, 14 even as you have understood us in part, that we are your boast, as you will also be ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

1: PERSONAL DEFENSE

1. THE APOSTLE EXPLAINS HIS DELAY

He Is Not Fickle

15 With this assurance I meant, in order that you might enjoy a double grace, to visit you first,

16 and to pass through you into Macedonia, and from Macedonia to come again to you, and by you to be sent forward on my way to Judea.

17 Now in this my intention, did I show fickleness? Or are my plans made according to the flesh, so that with me it is now "Yes" and now "No"?

18 God is my witness that our message to you is not both "Yes" and "No."

19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us—by me and Silvanus and Timothy—was not now "Yes" and now "No," but only "Yes" was in him.

20 For all the promises of God find their "Yes" in him; and therefore through him also rises the "Amen" to God unto our glory.

21 Now it is God who is warrant for us and for you in Christ, who has anointed us, 22 who has also stamped us with his seal and has given us the Spirit as a pledge in our hearts.

His Wish to Spare Them

23 Now I call God to witness against my soul that it was to spare you that I did not again come to Corinth. Not that we lord it over your faith, but rather we are fellow-workers in your joy; for in faith you stand.

CHAPTER 2

BUT I made up my mind not to come to you again in sorrow.

2 For if I make you sad, who can gladden me, save the very one that is grieved by me?

3 And I wrote to you as I did, that when I come I may not have sorrow upon sorrow from those who ought to give me joy; for I trust in you all that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For I wrote to you in much affliction and anguish of heart, with many tears, not that you might be grieved, but that you might know the great love I have for you.

He Pardons the Offender

5 Now if anyone has caused grief, he has not grieved me, but in a measure (not to be too severe) all of you.

6 For such a one this punishment meted out by the many is sufficient.

7 On the contrary, then, you should rather forgive and comfort him, lest perchance he be overwhelmed by too much sorrow.

Ver. 14. The day, etc.: the day of judgment at the Second Coming of Christ.

Ver. 15. St. Paul begins here to refute the accusation of his enemies that he is fickle.

Ver. 21. Anointed us: doubtless refers to the call and commission of the Apostles to preach the gospel and do the work of the ministry.

Ver. 22. With his seal: the gifts of the Holy Spirit. Chap. 2, Ver. 1-4. These verses would seem to refer to a visit and to a letter other than our First Corinthians intervening between the Apostle's first visit to Corinth and the writing of this present letter.

8 Therefore I exhort you to assure him of your love for him.

9 For to this very end also did I write, that I might test you and know whether you are obedient in all things.

10 Whom you pardon anything, I also pardon. Indeed, what I have forgiven—if I have forgiven anything—I have done for your sakes, in the person of Christ, 11 that we may not be defeated by Satan; for we are not unaware of his devices.

Thanksgiving for Good News

12 Now when I came to Troas to preach the Gospel of Christ, though I had there a great opportunity in the Lord, 13 I had no peace of mind, because I did not find Titus my brother. And so, bidding them farewell, I went on to Macedonia.

14 But thanks be to God who always leads us in triumph in Christ Jesus, manifesting through us the odor of his knowledge in every place.

15 For we are the fragrance of Christ for God, alike as regards those who are saved and those who are lost;

16 to these an odor that leads to death, but to those an odor that leads to life. And for such offices, who is sufficient?

17 We, at least, are not, as many others, adulterating the word of God; but with sincerity, as coming from God, we preach in Christ in God's presence.

2. THE APOSTLE DEFENDS HIS ASSURANCE

CHAPTER 3

They Are His Commendation

ARE WE beginning again to commend ourselves? Or do we need, as some do, letters of commendation to you or from you?

Ver. 14. Leads us in triumph: as in Col. 2, 15. The Apostle is overjoyed at the good news from Corinth which Titus has brought.

Ver. 16. The preaching of the Apostles meant eternal life to those who obeyed it, but to those who refused it, eternal death.

Ver. 17. Adulterating: literally the term means in Greek "huckstering," i.e., trading in the word of God. In Christ: i.e., as members of Christ and ministers of His word.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Again to commend, etc.: implies that the Apostle had already been accused of self-recommendation, perhaps in 1 Cor., or in a lost letter written after our 1 Cor.

2 You are our letter, written on our hearts, which is known and read by all men;

3 clearly you are a letter of Christ, composed by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on fleshly tablets of the heart.

Excellence of the New Law

4 Such is the assurance I have through Christ towards God.

5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as from ourselves, but our sufficiency is from God.

6 He also it is who has made us fit ministers of the new covenant, not of the letter but of the spirit; for the letter kills, but the spirit gives life.

7 Now if the ministration of death, which was engraved in letters upon stones, was inaugurated in such glory that the children of Israel could not look steadfastly upon the face of Moses on account of the transient glory that shone upon it,

8 shall not the ministration of the spirit be still more glorious?

9 For if there is glory in the ministration that condemned, much more does the ministration that justifies abound in glory.

10 For though the former ministration was glorified, yet in this regard it is without glory, because of the surpassing glory of the latter.

11 For if that which was transient was glorious, much more is that glorious which abides.

The Veil Is Taken Away

12 Having therefore such hope, we show great boldness.

13 We ^bdo not act as Moses did, who

^b Ex. 34, 33.

Ver. 7. Ministration of death: the Mosaic Law, which had no power, apart from faith and grace, to save from spiritual death.

Ver. 8. Ministration of the spirit: the New Law, the gospel.

Ver. 11. The splendor which accompanied the giving of the Old Law, like the Law itself, was passing.

Ver. 12. Such hope: of one day enjoying the fullness of the glory spoken of in v. 8.

Ver. 13. The sense of the Greek is "that the children of Israel might not gape upon the end of that which was being destroyed."

used to put a veil over his face that the Israelites might not observe the glory of his countenance, which was to pass away.

14 But their minds were darkened; for to this day, when the Old Testament is read to them, the selfsame veil remains, not being lifted to disclose the Christ in whom it is made void.

15 Yes, down to this very day, when Moses is read, the veil covers their hearts;

16 but when they turn in repentance to God, the veil shall be taken away.

17 Now the Lord is the spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.

18 But we all, with faces unveiled, reflecting as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into his very image from glory to glory, as through the Spirit of the Lord.

CHAPTER 4

DISCHARGING therefore this ministry in accordance with the mercy shown us, we do not lose heart.

2 On the contrary, we renounce those practices which shame conceals, we avoid unscrupulous conduct, we do not corrupt the word of God; but making known the truth, we commend ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 And if our gospel also is veiled, it is veiled only to those who are perishing.

4 In their case, the god of this world has blinded their unbelieving minds, that they should not see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God.

5 For we preach not ourselves, but Jesus Christ as Lord, and ourselves merely as your servants in Jesus.

6 For God, who commanded light to shine out of darkness, has shone in our hearts, to give enlightenment concerning the knowledge of the glory of God, shining on the face of Christ Jesus.

Ver. 14. Their minds: i.e., the minds of the Jews who would not accept the gospel.

Ver. 17. Freedom: from the ceremonial precepts and bondage of Mosaic legislation, but not from its moral teaching.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. Mercy: the Apostle's supernatural vocation to preach the gospel to the Gentiles.

Ver. 4. The image of God: Christ is the image of God, (a) as having the same nature as the Father; (b) as being the Son of the Father; (c) as being equal to the Father (St. Thomas).

Frailty and Support

7 But we carry this treasure in vessels of clay, to show that the abundance of the power is God's and not ours.

8 In all things we suffer tribulation, but we are not distressed; we are sore pressed, but we are not destitute;

9 we endure persecution, but we are not forsaken; we are cast down, but we do not perish;

10 always bearing about in our body the dying of Jesus, so that the life also of Jesus may be made manifest in our bodily frame.

11 For we the living are constantly being handed over to death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus may be made manifest in our mortal flesh.

12 Thus death is at work in us, but life in you.

13 But since we have the same spirit of faith, as shown in that which is written—and I believed, and so I spoke—we also believed, wherefore we also speak.

14 For we know that he who raised up Jesus will raise up us also with Jesus, and will place us with you.

15 For all things are for your sakes, so that the grace which abounds through the many may cause thanksgiving to abound, to the glory of God.

16 Wherefore we do not lose heart. On the contrary, even though our outer man is decaying, yet our inner man is being renewed day by day.

17 For our present light affliction, which is for the moment, prepares for us an eternal weight of glory that is beyond all measure;

18 while we look not at the things that are seen, but at the things that are not seen. For the things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are not seen are eternal.

c John 4, 24.—d Ps. 115, 10.

Ver. 6. For God, who commanded, etc.: the best reading here is, "For God who said, 'Out of darkness light shall shine.'"

Ver. 7. This treasure, etc.: the Christian ministry is discharged by frail human beings.

Ver. 14. And will place us with you: in heaven.

Ver. 17. This verse proves that the good works of the just on earth are meritorious of eternal life, as the Council of Trent teaches.

CHAPTER 5

Reward after Death

FOR WE KNOW that if the earthly house in which we dwell be destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made by human hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 And indeed, in this present state we groan, yearning to be clothed over with that dwelling of ours which is from heaven,

3 if indeed we shall be found clothed, and not naked.

4 For we who are in this tent sigh under our burden, because we do not wish to be unclothed, but rather clothed over, that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life.

5 Now he who made us for this very thing is God, who has given us the Spirit as its pledge.

6 Always full of courage, then, and knowing that while we are in the body we are exiled from the Lord—

7 for we walk by faith and not by sight—

8 we even have the courage to prefer to be exiled from the body and to be at home with the Lord.

9 And therefore we strive, whether in the body or out of it, to be pleasing to him.

10 For all of us must be made manifest before the tribunal of Christ, so that each one may receive what he has won through the body, according to his works, whether good or evil.

3. THE APOSTLE DEFENDS HIS SINCERITY

His Labor for God and Souls

11 Knowing therefore the fear of the Lord, we try to persuade men; but to God

Chap. 5, Ver. 2. To be clothed over, etc.: the Apostle wishes that he might attain immortality without passing through death, that he might take on the resurrected body over his natural body.

Ver. 3. The sense of the Greek is: "although, assuredly, when we have put it on, we shall not find ourselves naked."

Ver. 5. The Spirit as its pledge: The Holy Spirit received in Baptism is the earnest, the warrant, a foretaste of eternal life.

Ver. 6. The Apostle means to say, if death is necessary before we can be with Christ, then welcome death.

Ver. 11. The fear of the Lord: the fear inspired by the thought of the judgment to come. To God we are manifest: the Apostles have to resort to persuasion to convince men of their sincerity, but not so with regard to God, who reads their hearts and souls.

we are manifest. And I hope also that in your consciences we are manifest.

12 We are not again commending ourselves to you; but we are giving you occasion to boast about us, that you may have an answer for them who glory in appearances and not in heart.

13 For if we were out of our mind, it was for God; if we are sane, it is for you.

14 For the love of Christ impels us, because we have come to the conclusion that, since one died for all, therefore all died;

15 and that Christ died for all, in order that they who are alive may live no longer for themselves, but for him who died for them and rose again.

16 So that henceforth we know no one according to the flesh. And even though we have known Christ according to the flesh, yet now we know him so no longer.

17 If then any man is in Christ, he is a new creature: the former things have passed away; behold, they are made new!

18 But all things are from God, who has reconciled us to himself through Christ, and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation.

19 For God was truly in Christ, reconciling the world to himself by not reckoning against men their sins and by entrusting to us the message of reconciliation.

Ambassadors of Christ

20 On behalf of Christ, therefore, we are acting as ambassadors, God, as it were, appealing through us. We exhort you, for Christ's sake, be reconciled to God.

21 For our sakes he made him to be e Apoc. 16, 15.—f Rom. 14, 10.—g Isa. 43, 19; Apoc. 21, 5.

Ver. 13. When the Apostle spoke of the graces and privileges he had received from God, his adversaries accused him of madness; but he spoke thus for the glory of God and the welfare of the faithful.

Ver. 14. For the love of Christ, etc.: the love Christ has for men both urges and restricts the energies and activities of the Apostle to the things that pertain to the service of God and the salvation of human souls, to the exclusion of all selfish interests.

Ver. 16. Have known Christ according to the flesh: referring to the time before his conversion.

Ver. 21. For our salvation the sinless Son of God, in the Person of Christ our Redeemer, became identified with our sins; so that God "suffered Him to be condemned as a sinner, and to die as one accursed."

sin who knew nothing of sin, so that in him we might become the justice of God.

CHAPTER 6

YES, working together with him we entreat you not to receive the grace of God in vain.

2 For he says, *h*In an acceptable time I have heard thee, and in the day of salvation I have helped thee. Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation!

3 We *i*give no offense to anyone, that our ministry may not be blamed.

4 On the contrary, let us conduct ourselves in all circumstances as God's ministers, j in much patience; in tribulations, in hardships, in distresses;

5 in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults; in labors, in sleepless nights, in fastings;

6 in innocence, in knowledge, in long-sufferings; in kindness, in the Holy Spirit, in unaffected love;

7 in the word of truth, in the power of God; with the armor of justice on the right hand and on the left;

8 in honor and dishonor, in evil report and good report; as deceivers and yet truthful, as unknown and yet well known,

9 as dying and behold, we live, as chastised but not killed,

10 as sorrowful yet always rejoicing, as poor yet enriching many, as having nothing yet possessing all things.

11 We are frank with you, O Corinthians; our heart is wide open to you.

12 In us there is no lack of room for you, but in your heart there is no room for us.

13 Now as having a recompense in like kind—I speak as to my children—be you also open wide to us.

Avoid Marriage with Unbelievers

14 Do not bear the yoke with unbelievers. For what has justice in common

Chap. 6, Ver. 3. We give no offense to anyone: the Greek has, "We give offense in nothing."

Ver. 4. Let us conduct ourselves, etc.: the Greek reads: "But in everything commending ourselves," etc. In much patience, etc.: the Apostle here begins an enumeration of nine classes of things that tried his patience and the patience of his companions (vv. 4f.).

Ver. 6f. St. Paul now mentions nine other practices by which he and his fellow-workers commended themselves in their ministry.

with iniquity? Or what fellowship has light with darkness?

15 What harmony is there between Christ and Belial? Or what part has the believer with the unbeliever?

16 And what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, as God says, *k*I will dwell and move among them, I will be their God and they shall be my people.

17 Wherefore, Come out from among them, be separated, says the Lord, and touch not an unclean thing;

18 and I will welcome you in, and will be a Father to you, and you shall be my sons and daughters, says the Lord almighty.

CHAPTER 7

HAVING therefore these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of the flesh and of the spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

4. THE APOSTLE DEFENDS HIS PREVIOUS LETTER

Love for the Corinthians

2 Make room for us. We have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have taken advantage of no one.

3 I am not saying this to condemn you; for I have already said that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together.

4 Great is my confidence in you, great my boasting about you. I am filled with comfort, I overflow with joy in all our troubles.

5 For indeed when we came to Macedonia, our flesh had no rest; we had troubles on every side, conflicts without and anxieties within.

h Isa. 49, 8.—i 1 Cor. 10, 32.—j 1 Cor. 4, 1.—k 1 Cor. 3, 17; 6, 19; Lev. 26, 12.—l Jer. 31, 9.

Ver. 14. Bear the yoke: the reference is to marriage, though the principle has application to all relations of Christians and pagans.

Ver. 15. Belial, or Beliar: a Hebrew word meaning "nothingness," "uselessness." In a secondary sense it means extreme wickedness, and it was commonly understood by the Fathers as a designation for the devil, or Satan.

Chap. 7, Ver. 2. The Apostle is here refuting the accusation of his enemies.

6 But God, who comforts the humble, comforted us by the arrival of Titus.

7 And not by his arrival only, but also by the comfort which he himself experienced in you. He told us of your longing, of your sorrow, of your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced yet more.

Their Repentance

8 Wherefore, although I made you sorry by my letter, I do not regret it. And even if I did regret it, seeing that the same letter did for a while make you sorry, 9 now I am glad; not because you were made sorry, but because your sorrow led you to repentance. For you were made sorry according to God, that you might suffer no loss at our hands.

10 For m the sorrow that is according to God produces repentance that surely tends to salvation, whereas the sorrow that is according to the world produces death.

11 For behold this very fact that you were made sorry according to God, what earnestness it has wrought in you, nay, what explanations, what indignation, what fear, what yearning, what zeal, what readiness to avenge! In everything you have showed yourselves to be innocent in the matter.

12 If then I did write to you, it was not for the sake of him who did the wrong, nor for the sake of him who suffered the wrong; but to make clear the zeal we have for you,

13 before God. This is why we have been comforted. But besides our own comfort, we more especially rejoiced at the joy of Titus, because his mind had been set at rest by you all.

14 And if I did boast to him at all about you, I have not been put to shame; but just as we have spoken all things in truth to you, so also has the boasting we made to Titus been found to be true.

m 1 Pet. 2, 19.

Ver. 6f. The news brought from Corinth by Titus greatly consoled St. Paul.

Ver. 8. Here again the Apostle seems to be referring to a lost letter, or to a letter much more severe than our First Corinthians.

Ver. 12. Who suffered the wrong: would seem to refer to St. Paul himself. The person who did the wrong can hardly be the incestuous man of 1 Cor. 5, 1ff, but someone who had given personal offense to 15 And his affection for you is all the more abundant, as he recalls how obedient you all were and how you received him with fear and trembling.

16 I rejoice that in all things I can have confidence in you.

II: THE COLLECTION FOR THE POOR CHRISTIANS IN JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 8

Example of the Macedonians

NOW we make known to you, brethren, the grace of God that has been bestowed upon the churches of Macedonia;

2 where, amid much testing of tribulation, their overflowing joy and their very deep poverty have resulted in rich generosity.

3 For according to their means—I bear them witness—yes, beyond their means, they gave,

4 earnestly begging of us the favor of sharing in the ministry that is in behalf of the saints.

5 And beyond our expectations they gave themselves, first to the Lord, and then by the will of God to us.

6 This led us to exhort Titus to complete among you also this same gracious work, of which he had made a beginning before.

Exhortation

7 Now, as you abound in everything—in faith, in utterance, in knowledge, in all zeal, and in your love for us—may you excel in this gracious work also.

8 I do not speak as commanding, but as testing the sincerity of your own charity by means of the zeal of others.

9 For you know the graciousness of our Lord Jesus Christ—how, being rich, he became poor for your sakes, that by his poverty you might become rich.

the Apostle. The zeal we have for you: the Greek text reads: "The zeal you have for us."

Chap. 8, Ver. 4. Saints: the poor Christians of Jerusalem.

Ver. 5. They gave themselves, first, etc.: they put their lives and persons at the disposition, first of Christ, and then of the Apostles for Christ's sake.

Ver. 8. Zeal of others: the earnestness of the Macedonians.

10 In this matter I am giving advice. It is to your interest, since a year ago you not only began to do, but also to have the will.

11 Now therefore complete the doing also; so that your readiness to begin it may be equalled by your desire to carry it through, according to your ability.

12 For if there is willingness, it is welcome according to what one has, not according to what one does not have.

13 For I do not mean that the relief of others should become your burden, but that there should be equality;

14 that at the present time your abundance may supply their want, and that their abundance may, in its turn, make up what you lack, thus establishing an equality, as it is written,

15 He who had much had nothing over, and he who had little had not less.

The Mission of Titus

16 Now thanks be to God, who has inspired Titus with this same zeal for you.

17 For not only has he accepted our exhortation, but being very zealous himself, he has gone to you of his own choice.

18 And we have sent along with him the brother whose services to the gospel are praised in all the churches;

19 and what is more, who was also appointed by the churches to travel with us in this work of grace which is being done by us, to the glory of the Lord and to show our own readiness.

20 We are on our guard, lest anyone should slander us in the matter of our administration of this generous amount.

21 For we take forethought for what is honorable, not only before God, but also in the sight of men.

22 And we have sent with them also our brother, whom we have proved to be zealous often and in many things, but who now is more in earnest than ever, because of his great confidence in you,

23 whether as regards Titus, who is my companion and fellow-worker among you, or as regards our brethren, the messengers of the churches, the glory of Christ.

24 Give them therefore, in the sight of the churches, a proof of your charity and of our boasting on your behalf.

CHAPTER 9

The Collection to Be Made Promptly

FOR it is indeed superfluous for me to write to you with reference to this charitable service to the saints.

2 For I know your eagerness, whereof I boast about you to the Macedonians—that Achaia has been ready since last year—and your zeal has stimulated very many.

3 Still, I have sent the brethren, lest our boasting concerning you should be found empty in this instance; that, as I was saying, you may be ready,

4 lest, if any Macedonians come with me and find you unprepared, we—not to say yourselves—should be put to shame for having been so sure.

5 I have therefore thought it necessary to exhort the brethren to go to you in advance and to get ready this promised contribution, so that it may be as a matter of bounty, and not of extortion.

Exhortation to Generosity

6 Mark this: he who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully.

7 Let each one give according as he has determined in his heart, not grudgingly or from compulsion, for p "God loves a cheerful giver."

8 And God is able to make all grace abound in you, so that always having ample means, you may abound in every good work,

9 as it is written, q He has scattered abroad and has given to the poor, his justice remains forever.

n Ex. 16, 18.—o Rom. 12, 17.—p Ecclus. 35, 11.—q Ps. 111, 9.

Ver. 22. Our brother: some trusted fellow-Christian who was to be the third delegate to go to Corinth. Perhaps it was Tychicus.

Ver. 23. The Greek reads, "Whether it be Titus, he is my companion and fellow-worker among you; or our brethren, they are the messengers of the churches. . . ."

Ver. 14. Your abundance: Corinth was a center of great wealth. Their abundance: may refer to the spiritual plenty of the Christians in Jerusalem, or to the material goods which might be theirs at some future time.

Ver. 20. St. Paul took care that the collection should be handled by several representing the churches, so as not to give his enemies any chance to accuse him of misappropriating the money.

10 Now he who provides the sower with seed will both give you bread to eat and will multiply your seed, and will increase the growth of the fruits of your justice;

11 that, being enriched in all things, you may contribute with simplicity of purpose, and thus through us evoke thanksgiving to God;

12 for the administration of this service not only supplies the want of the saints, but overflows also in much gratitude to the Lord.

13 The evidence furnished by this service makes them glorify God for your obedient profession of Christ's gospel and for the sincere generosity of your contributions to them and to all;

14 while they themselves, in their prayers for you, yearn for you, because of the excellent grace God has given you.

15 Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift!

III: THE APOSTLE DEFENDS HIS APOSTOLATE

CHAPTER 10

His Authority

NOW I myself, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—I who to your face indeed am diffident when among you, but when absent am fearless towards you!

2 Yes, I beseech you that I may not when I come have to be bold, with that assurance wherewith I am thought to be bold, against those who regard us as walking according to the flesh.

3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not make war according to the flesh;

4 for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but powerful before God to the demolishing of strongholds, the destroying of reasoning—

5 yes, of every lofty thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God, bring-r Eph. 4, 7.—s Jer. 9, 23; 1 Cor. 1, 31.

Chap. 9, Ver. 15. Unspeakable gift: the gift of faith and charity spoken of in the preceding verse.

Chap. 10, Ver. 1. Am diffident, etc.: thus did the Apostle's adversaries speak about him.

Ver. 4f. Faith is a gift of God and is above reason, ing every mind into captivity to the obedience of Christ,

6 and being prepared to take vengeance on all disobedience when once your own submission is complete.

7 Look at what is before you. If anyone is confident that he is Christ's, let him reflect within himself that even as he is Christ's, so too are we.

8 For even if I boast somewhat more about our authority (which the Lord has given for your upbuilding, and not for your destruction), I shall not be put to shame.

9 But that I may not seem to terrify you, as it were, by letters

10 ("for his letters," they say, "are weighty and telling, but his bodily appearance is weak and his speech of no account"),

11 let such people understand that what we are in word by letters when absent, such are we also in deed when bodily present.

12 Of course we have not the boldness to class ourselves or to compare ourselves with certain ones who commend themselves. We on the contrary measure ourselves by ourselves and compare ourselves with ourselves;

13 and so r we do not boast beyond our limits, but within the limits of the commission which God has given us—limits which include you also.

14 For we are not going beyond our commission, as if it did not embrace you, since we reached even as far as you with the gospel of Christ.

15 We do not boast beyond our limits, in the labors of other men; but we hope, as your faith increases, greatly to enlarge through you the province allotted to us,

16 so as even to preach the gospel in places that lie beyond you, instead of boasting in another man's sphere about work already done.

17 "But he who boasts, s let him boast in the Lord."

18 For he is not approved who commends himself, but he whom the Lord commends.

though not contrary to it. Everything that opposes faith is wrong and must be set aside or destroyed.

Ver. 12. The Greek reads, ". . . but they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves. . . ."

CHAPTER 11

He Preached Gratuitously

WOULD to God that you could bear with a little of my foolishness! Nay, do bear with me!

2 For I am jealous for you with a divine jealousy. For I betrothed you to one spouse, that I might present you a chaste virgin to Christ.

3 But I fear lest, *t*as the serpent seduced Eve by his guile, so your minds may be corrupted and fall from a single devotion to Christ.

4 For if he who comes preaches another Christ whom we did not preach, or if you receive another Spirit whom you have not received, or another gospel which you did not accept, you might well bear with him.

5 For I regard myself as nowise inferior to the great apostles.

6 Even though I be rude in speech, yet I am not so in knowledge; but in every way we have made ourselves clear to you.

7 Or did I do wrong when I humbled myself that you might be exalted, preaching to you the gospel of God free of charge?

8 I stripped other churches, taking pay from them so as to minister to you.

9 And when I was with you and in want, I was a burden to no one; for the brethren from Macedonia supplied my needs. Thus in all things I have kept myself from being a burden to you, and so I intend to keep myself.

10 By the truth of Christ which is in me, this boast shall not be taken from me in the districts of Achaia.

11 Why so? Because I do not love you? God knows I do.

12 But what I do I will go on doing, that I may deprive them of the occasion who are seeking an occasion to boast that they are doing the same as we do.

13 For they are false apostles, deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ.

14 And no wonder, for Satan himself disguises himself as an angel of light.

15 It is no great thing, then, if his ministers disguise themselves as ministers of justice. But their end will be according to their works.

His Ministry of Labor and Suffering

16 I repeat, let no one think me foolish. But if so, then regard me as such, that I also may boast a little.

17 What I am saying in this confidence of boasting, I am not speaking according to the Lord, but as it were in foolishness.

18 Since many boast according to the flesh, I too will boast.

19 For you gladly put up with fools, because you are wise yourselves!

20 For you suffer it if a man enslaves you, if a man devours you, if a man takes from you, if a man is arrogant, if a man slaps your face!

21 I speak to my own shame, as though we had been weak. But wherein any man is bold—I am speaking foolishly—I also am bold.

22 Are they Hebrews? So am I! Are they Israelites? So am I! Are they offspring of Abraham? So am I!

23 Are they ministers of Christ? I—to speak as a fool—am more: in many more labors, in prisons more frequently, in lashes above measure, often exposed to death.

24 From the Jews *u*five times I received forty lashes less one.

25 Thrice *v*I was scourged, once I was stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I was adrift on the sea; t Gen. 3, 4.—u Deut. 25, 3.—v Acts 16, 22, 14, 18; 27, 2.

Chap. 11, Ver. 1. Foolishness: the folly of self-praise which the Corinthians have forced the Apostle to indulge in for the moment. Had they remained loyal to him and to his preaching, such folly would have been unnecessary.

Ver. 2. Divine jealousy: St. Paul's zeal for the Corinthians was like God's for the people of Israel. One spouse: by their conversion the Corinthians became espoused to Christ.

Ver. 4. The supposition here is impossible since there is only one Christ, one Holy Spirit, one heavenly Gospel.

Ver. 5. Great apostles: may refer ironically to the false leaders at Corinth, or sincerely to the Twelve. St. Paul was certainly far superior to the former, and not inferior to the latter in his apostolate.

Ver. 12. The pseudo-apostles at Corinth took pay for their ministry, and if St. Paul did also, their practice would have justification before the people. That was what they wanted.

Ver. 17. Not . . . according to the Lord: i.e., not in keeping with the general rule given by Christ to His Apostles [Matt. 6, 1-6; Luke 17, 10; 18, 11-14]. But St. Paul was justified in deviating from this rule in order to counteract the bad influence of his enemies.

26 in journeyings often, in perils from floods, in perils from robbers, in perils from my own nation, in perils from the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils from false brethren;

27 in labor and hardships, in many sleepless nights, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.

28 Besides those outer things, there is my daily pressing anxiety, the care of all the churches!

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I am not inflamed?

30 If I must boast, I will boast of the things that concern my weakness.

31 The God and Father of the Lord Jesus, who is blessed forevermore, knows that I do not lie.

32 In Damascus w the governor under King Aretas was guarding the city of the Damascenes in order to arrest me, 33 but I was lowered in a basket through a window in the wall, and escaped his hands.

CHAPTER 12

His Revelations

IF I MUST BOAST—it is not indeed expedient to do so—but I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I know x a man in Christ who fourteen years ago—whether in the body I do not know, or out of the body I do not know, God knows—such a one was caught up to the third heaven.

3 And I know such a man—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know, God knows—

4 that he was caught up into paradise and heard secret words that man may not repeat.

5 Of such a man I will boast; but of myself I will glory in nothing save in my infirmities.

6 For if I do wish to boast, I shall not be foolish; for I shall be speaking the truth. But I forbear, lest any man should Chap. 12, Ver. 2. A man in Christ: St. Paul humbly speaks of himself in the third person. Whether in the body, etc.: the Apostle at the time was totally abstracted from the senses, as in ecstasy. The third heaven: i.e., paradise, the abode of the blessed.

reckon me beyond what he sees in me or hears from me.

His Infirmities

7 And lest the greatness of the revelations should puff me up, there was given me a thorn for the flesh, a messenger of Satan, to buffet me.

8 Concerning this I thrice besought the Lord that it might leave me.

9 And he has said to me, "My grace is sufficient for thee, for strength is made perfect in weakness." Gladly therefore I will glory in my infirmities, that the strength of Christ may dwell in me.

10 Wherefore I am satisfied, for Christ's sake, with infirmities, with insults, with hardships, with persecutions, with distresses. For when I am weak, then I am strong.

He Has Been Forced to Boast

11 I have become foolish! You have forced me. For I ought to have been commended by you, since in no way have I fallen short of the most eminent apostles, even though I am nothing.

12 Indeed, the signs of the apostle were wrought among you in all patience, in miracles and wonders and deeds of power.

13 For in what have you been less favored than the other churches—unless in this, that I was no burden to you? Pardon me this wrong!

His Third Visit

14 Behold, this is the third time that I am ready to come to you. And I will not be a burden to you; for I do not seek yours, but you. For the children should not save up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

15 But I will most gladly spend and be spent myself for your souls, even though, loving you more, I be loved less.

16 But be it so: I was no burden to w Acts 9, 24.—x Acts 9, 3.

Ver. 7. Thorn for the flesh: or "thorn in the flesh," seems to refer to some chronic illness.

Ver. 16. I caught you by guile: his enemies perhaps said, or would say, that he was cunning enough to get money from the Corinthians through his legates.

you, but, being crafty, I caught you by guile.

17 Did I take advantage of you through any of these whom I sent to you?

18 I urged Titus to go, and I sent our brother with him. Did Titus take advantage of you? Have we not walked in the same spirit, have we not walked in the same steps?

19 Are you thinking all this time that we are defending ourselves before you? We speak before God in Christ; but in all things, beloved, for your own edification.

20 For I fear lest perhaps when I come I may not find you as I should wish, and lest I may be found by you not as you would wish—lest perhaps there be found among you contentions, envyings, animosities, dissensions, detractions, gossiping, arrogance, disorders—

21 lest when I come again God should humiliate me before you, and I should mourn over many who sinned before and have not repented of the uncleanness and immorality and licentiousness that they practised.

CHAPTER 13

Warnings

BEHOLD, this is the third time that I am coming to you: y "On the word of two or three witnesses every word shall be confirmed."

2 I have already warned, when present, and now in my absence I warn again those who sinned before, and all the rest, that, if I come again, I will not spare.

3 Do you seek a proof of the Christ who speaks in me, who is not weak in your regard, nay, is powerful in you?

Ver. 19. We speak before God in Christ: i.e., before God as our Judge, and as ministers of Christ. Chap. 13, Ver. 1. On the word, etc.: he means to say that he will take action in a strictly legal way, as required by Deut. 19, 15.

Ver. 4. We also are weak: i.e., we share in the sufferings of Christ.

Ver. 5. Christ dwells in the intellect by faith, in 4 For though he was crucified through weakness, yet he lives through the power of God. Yes, we also are weak in him, yet we shall live with him through the power of God in your regard.

5 Put your own selves to test, whether you are in the faith; prove yourselves. Do you not know yourselves that Christ Jesus is in you? unless perhaps you are reprobate!

6 But I hope that you will come to know that we are not reprobate.

7 But we pray God that you may do no evil at all, not wishing ourselves to appear approved, but that you may do what is good, and we ourselves pass as reprobate.

8 For we can do nothing against the truth, but only for the truth.

9 And so we rejoice when we are weak but you are strong. This we also pray for, your perfecting.

10 Wherefore I write these things while absent, that when present I may not act more severely, according to the power that the Lord has given me for upbuilding, and not for destruction.

Conclusion

Farewell

11 In conclusion, brethren, rejoice, be perfected, be comforted, be of the same mind, be at peace; and the God of peace and love will be with you.

12 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the saints send you greetings.

13 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the charity of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all. Amen.

y Deut. 19, 15; Matt. 18, 16; John 8, 17; Heb. 10, 28.

the heart and affections by charity, in the soul by grace.

Ver. 7. St. Paul hopes there will be no reason at Corinth that will deserve the exercise of his divine authority. He is not eager to draw attention to his God-given powers.

Ver. 9. Your perfecting: perhaps in the sense of "your correction."

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the GALATIANS

THE GALATIANS, to whom this Epistle was written, lived between Cappadocia and Phrygia, in Asia Minor. They were Gentile Christians, and were converted by St. Paul about the year 52 A.D. His ministry among them had borne great fruit; they had been baptized, and had received the Holy Spirit; miracles worked among them had given evidence of the presence of the Spirit in their hearts. The Apostle visited them a second time, and by his exhortations confirmed them in the faith. But after his second visit St. Paul learned, by letter or by special messenger sent to him, that some Jewish teachers who had lately arrived among his new converts were teaching, contrary to his doctrines, that for salvation it was necessary to be circumcised and to observe the Mosaic rites. Furthermore, these Judaizers sought to undermine the authority of the Apostle by questioning his divine commission. They claimed that his teaching seemed to be only human and differed widely in many respects from that of Christ and of the other Apostles. They asserted that he disregarded the sacredness of the Mosaic Law and circumcision, which were an external sign of God's covenant with man, and thereby doubted the truth of the divine promises. Such were the difficulties that reached the ears of St. Paul in Ephesus; and since he was unable to be with his converts, he met the serious situation by this Epistle.

The Epistle contains a defense of his person and of his doctrine. In indignation he asserts the divine origin of his teaching and of his authority; he shows that justification is not through the Mosaic Law, but through faith in Jesus Christ, who was crucified and who rose from the dead; he concludes that consequently the Mosaic Law was something transient and not permanent, that it is not an essential part of Christianity. Nor does he fail to insist on the necessity of the evangelical virtues, especially charity, the offspring of faith.

The subject-matter of the Epistle resembles closely that of the Epistle to the Romans, and also of the Second Epistle to the Corinthians. The reason for this similarity is that these Epistles were written when the Apostle was more or less in the same frame of mind, indignant that his converts were being perverted by Pharisaic emissaries.

The Epistle was probably written at Ephesus about the year 54 A.D. It may, however, have been written somewhat later, from either Macedonia or Corinth. Its authenticity was admitted by all antiquity.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an apostle, sent not from men nor by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father ^awho raised him from the dead,

2 and all the brethren who are with me, to the churches of Galatia.

^a Gal. 1, 11f.—^b Gal. 2, 20.

3 Grace and peace be to you from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from the wickedness of this present world according ^bto the will of our God and Father;

5 to whom is glory forever and ever. Amen.

Surprise and Rebuke

6 I marvel that you are so quickly deserting him who called you to the grace of Christ, changing to another gospel;

Chap. 1, Ver. 6. Deserting him: refers to our heavenly Father. Another gospel: a different gospel, a gospel containing serious doctrinal errors.

7 which is not another gospel, except in this respect that there are some who trouble you, and wish to pervert the gospel of Christ.

8 But even if we or an angel from heaven should preach a gospel to you other than that which we have preached to you, let him be anathema!

9 As we have said before, so now I say again: If anyone preach a gospel to you other than that which you have received, let him be anathema!

10 For am I now seeking the favor of men, or of God? Or am I seeking to please men? If I were still trying to please men, I should not be a servant of Christ

I: PERSONAL DEFENSE

1 A DEFENSE OF HIS APOSTOLATE

Not of Human Origin

11 For I give you to understand, brethren, that the gospel which was preached by me is not of man.

12 For I did not receive it from man, nor was I taught it; but I received it by a revelation ^c of Jesus Christ.

13 For you have heard of my former manner of life in Judaism; how beyond all measure I persecuted the Church of God, and ravaged it.

14 And I advanced in Judaism above many of my contemporaries in my nation, showing much more zeal for the traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased him who from my mother's womb set me apart and called me by his grace,

16 to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the Gentiles, immediately, without taking counsel with ^d flesh and blood, 17 and without going up to Jerusalem to those who were appointed apostles before me, I retired into Arabia, and again returned to Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went to Jerusalem to see Peter, and I remained with him fifteen days.

19 But I saw none of the other apostles, except James, the brother of the Lord.

20 Now in what I am writing to you, behold, before God, I do not lie.

21 Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia.

22 And I was unknown by sight to the churches of Judea which were in Christ.

23 But they had heard only that he who formerly persecuted us, now preaches the faith which once he ravaged.

24 And they glorified God in me.

2. A DEFENSE OF HIS GOSPEL

CHAPTER 2

Approved by the Apostles

THEN after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking also Titus along with me.

2 And I went up in consequence of a revelation, and I conferred with them on the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but separately with the men of authority; lest perhaps I should be running, or had run in vain.

3 But not even Titus, who was with me, Gentile though he was, was compelled to be circumcised,

4 although it was urged on account of false brethren who were brought in secretly, who slipped in to spy upon our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into slavery.

5 Now to these we did not yield in submission, ^e no, not for an hour, that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.

6 But from the men of authority (what they once were matters not to me; ^f God accepts not the person of man)—the men of authority laid no further burden on me.

7 On the contrary, when they saw that to me was committed the gospel for the uncircumcised, as to Peter that for the circumcised

8 (for he who worked in Peter for the apostleship of the circumcised worked also in me among the Gentiles) — them a definite stand was taken by the Apostles. To spy upon: i.e., to find some weak points. Our liberty: i.e., freedom from the Mosaic observance. Slavery: i.e., subjection to the Law.

^c Eph. 3, 3.—^d Gal. 2, 7.—^e Gal. 3, 1.—^f Rom. 2, 11; Eph. 6, 9.

Ver. 8. Anathema: i.e., cursed, excluded from the kingdom of God.

Chap. 2, Ver. 4. These false brethren contended that circumcision was necessary for salvation. Against 9 and when they recognized the grace that was given to me, James and Cephas and John, who were considered the pillars, gave to me and to Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, that we should go to the Gentiles, and they to the circumcised;

10 provided only that we should be mindful of the poor, the very thing I was eager to do.

Paul Reproves Peter

11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I withstood him to his face, because he was deserving of blame.

12 For before certain persons came from James, he used to eat with the Gentiles; but when they came, he began to withdraw and to separate himself, fearing the circumcised.

13 And the rest of the Jews dissembled along with him, so that Barnabas also was led away by them into that dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they were not walking uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all: If thou, though a Jew, livest like the Gentiles, and not like the Jews, how is it that thou dost compel the Gentiles to live like the Jews?

15 We are Jews by birth, and not sinners from among the Gentiles.

16 But we know that man is not justified by the works of the Law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ. Hence we also believe in Christ Jesus, that we may be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the Law;^g because by the works of the Law no man will be justified.

17 But if, while we are seeking to be justified in Christ, we ourselves also are found sinners, is Christ therefore the minister of sin? By no means.

18 For if I reconstruct the things that I destroyed, I make myself a sinner.

19 For I through the Law have died to ^g Rom. 3, 20.—^h Gen. 15, 6; Rom. 4, 3; Jas. 2, 23.—ⁱ Gen. 12, 3.

Ver. 16. The works of the Law: i.e., the Mosaic code. These prescriptions by themselves had no power to save, as salvation depends on faith and grace in Christ.

Ver. 18. The things that I destroyed: i.e., the works of the Law.

Ver. 19. The Law was intended to lead to Christ.

the Law that I may live to God. With Christ I am nailed to the cross.

20 It is now no longer I that live, but Christ lives in me. And the life that I now live in the flesh, I live in the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself up for me.

21 I do not cast away the grace of God. For if justice is by the Law, then Christ died in vain.

II: DOCTRINAL

1. JUSTIFICATION FROM FAITH NOT FROM THE LAW

CHAPTER 3

Proved from the Galatians' Experience

O FOOLISH GALATIANS! who has bewitched you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ has been depicted crucified?

2 This only I would learn from you: Did you receive the Spirit in virtue of the works of the Law, or in virtue of hearing and believing?

3 Are you so foolish that after beginning in the Spirit, you now make a finish in the flesh?

4 Have you suffered so much in vain? if indeed it be in vain.

5 He therefore who gives the Spirit to you, and works miracles among you, does he do it by the works of the Law, or by the message of faith?

6 Even thus ^h“Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as justice.”

The Example of Abraham

7 Know therefore that the men of faith are the real sons of Abraham.

8 And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, announced to Abraham beforehand, ⁱ“In thee shall all the nations be blessed.”

9 Therefore the men of faith shall be blessed with faithful Abraham.

Therefore its purpose was accomplished, and it died, or one became dead to it, when one reached Christ. By the cross Christ delivered us from the curse of the Law.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Some Vulgate codices and the Clementine edition add, “That you should not obey the truth.”

The Nature of the Law

10 For those who rely on the works of the Law are under a curse. For it is written, j Cursed is everyone who does not hold to all things that are written in the book of the Law, to perform them.

11 But that by the Law no man is justified before God is evident, because k "he who is just lives by faith."

12 But the Law does not rest on faith; but, l "he who does these things, shall live by them."

13 Christ redeemed us from the curse of the Law, becoming a curse for us; for it is written, m Cursed is everyone who hangs on a gibbet;

14 that the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that through faith we might receive the promise of the Spirit.

The Promise of God

15 Brethren (I speak after the manner of men); n yet even a man's will, once it has been ratified, no one annuls or alters.

16 The promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring. He does not say, "And to his offsprings," as of many; but as of one, "And to thy offspring," who is Christ.

17 Now I mean this: The Law which was made four hundred and thirty years later does not annul the covenant which was ratified by God, so as to make the promise void.

18 For if the right to inherit be from the Law, it is no longer from a promise. But God gave it to Abraham by promise.

The Purpose of the Law

19 What then was the Law? o It was enacted on account of transgressions, being delivered by angels through a medi-

j Deut. 27, 26.—k Hab. 2, 4; Rom. 1, 17.—l Lev. 18, 5.—m Deut. 21, 23.—n Heb. 9, 17.—o Rom. 5, Ver. 10. Those who trust in an inherent sanctifying power in the works of the Law are under a curse. The Law gave no help towards keeping its mandates; and thereby multiplied sins.

Ver. 12. The citation from Lev. 18, 5 means that he who keeps the Law shall live; but St. Paul points out that keeping the Law is impossible without some help, which the Law itself cannot give.

Ver. 13. Becoming a curse: i.e., Christ took on Himself all the maledictions of the Law, in order to free those under the Law. Curse: an execration, an ator, until the offspring should come to whom the promise was made.

20 Now there is no intermediary where there is only one; but God is one.

21 Is the Law then contrary to the promises of God? By no means. For if a law had been given that could give life, justice would truly be from the Law.

22 But p the Scripture shut up all things under sin, that by the faith of Jesus Christ the promise might be given to those who believe.

23 But before the faith came we were kept imprisoned under the Law, q shut up for the faith that was to be revealed.

24 Therefore the Law has been our tutor unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.

25 But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor.

26 For you are all the children of God through faith in Christ Jesus.

27 For r all you who have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ.

28 There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither slave nor freeman; there is neither male nor female. For you are all one in Christ Jesus.

29 And if you are Christ's, then you are the offspring of Abraham, s heirs according to promise.

2. CHRISTIANS LIVE IN A STATE OF FREEDOM

CHAPTER 4

Slavery and Freedom

NOW I say, as long as the heir is a child, he differs in no way from a slave, though he is the master of all;

2 but he is under guardians and stewards until the time set by his father.

3 So we too, t when we were children, were enslaved under the elements of the world.

20.—p Rom. 3, 9.—q Gal. 4, 3.—r Rom. 6, 4.—s Gal. 3, 7.—t Gal. 3, 23; 5, 1.

expression or sentence of reprobation; it is used here by metonymy. The citation from Deut. 21, 23 illustrates the way Christ redeemed us.

Ver. 17. At this time the Law was given to Moses. Ver. 20. When there is a mediator, there are at least two parties.

Chap. 4, Ver. 3. The elements of the world: elementary principles of conduct, e.g., the religious laws of the Jews, and the various ceremonies of the heathens.

4 But when the fullness of time came, God sent his Son, born of a woman, born under the Law,

5 that he might redeem u those who were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.

6 And because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, "Abba, Father."

7 So that he is no longer a slave, but a son; and if a son, an heir v also through God.

No Return to Slavery

8 But then indeed, not knowing God, you served those who really are not gods.

9 But now that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how is it that you turn again to the weak and beggarly elements, which you desire to serve again?

10 You are observing days and months and seasons and years.

11 I fear for you, lest perhaps I have labored among you in vain.

12 Become like me, because I also have become like you, brethren, I beseech you! You have done me no wrong.

13 And you know that on account of a physical infirmity I preached the gospel to you formerly; and though I was a trial to you in my flesh, 14 you did not reject or despise me; but you received me as an angel of God, even as Christ Jesus.

15 Where then is your self-congratulation? For I bear you witness that, if possible, you would have plucked out your very eyes and given them to me.

16 Have I then become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?

17 They court you from no good mou Gal. 3, 13. 26.—v Gal. 3, 29.—w Gal. 1, 7.—x Gal. 3, 23; 4, 9.—y Gen. 16, 15; Gen. 21, 2.—

Ver. 6. Crying, "Abba, Father": i.e., the Spirit teaches us, the adopted sons of God, to cry out: "Abba, Father." The two words are used because St. Paul, writing the Greek word, wished to preface it with the very word our Lord had used in this doctrine which was of such great importance.

Ver. 10. Their feasts under the Jewish Law.

Ver. 13. Literally: "You did not despise your trial in my flesh." Physical infirmity: i.e., some bodily illness caused him to stop in Galatia, which otherwise he would have passed by.

Ver. 15. Self-congratulation: they congratulated themselves that they had had Paul with them as their teacher.

tive; w but they would estrange you, that you may court them.

18 But court the good from a good motive always, and not only when I am present with you, 19 my dear children, with whom I am in labor again, until Christ is formed in you!

20 But I wish I could be with you now, and change my tone, because I do not know what to make of you.

Ismael and Isaac

21 Tell me, you who desire to be under the Law, have you not x read the Law?

22 For it is written that Abraham had two sons, y the one by a slave-girl and the other by a free woman.

23 And the son of the slave-girl was born according to the flesh, but the son of the free woman in virtue of the promise.

24 This is said by way of allegory. For these are the two covenants: one indeed from Mount Sinai, bringing forth children unto bondage, z which is Agar.

25 For Sinai is a mountain in Arabia, which corresponds to the present Jerusalem, and is in slavery with her children.

26 But that Jerusalem which is above is free, which is our mother.

27 For it is written, a Rejoice thou barren, that dost not bear; break forth and cry, thou that dost not travail; for many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that has a husband.

28 Now b we, brethren, are the children of promise, as Isaac was.

29 But as then he who was born according to the flesh persecuted him who was born according to the spirit, so also it is now.

30 But what does the Scripture say? c "Cast out the slave-girl and her son, for z Gal. 5, 1.—a Isa. 54, 1.—b Rom. 9, 8.—c Gen. 21, 10.

Ver. 17. They: i.e., his opponents. They would estrange you: namely, from Paul, or the Christian community.

Ver. 18. The Greek reading is: "it is good to be zealously sought after in a good thing always." St. Paul declares that anyone may take an interest in the Galatians in his absence, provided it is done from a good motive.

Ver. 21. The Greek has: "will you not listen to the Law?"

Ver. 24. By way of allegory: these characters have a higher meaning.

Ver. 25. The Old Testament, and the synagogue.

Ver. 26. The New Testament, and the Church.

the son of the slave-girl shall not be heir with the son of the free woman."

31 Therefore, brethren, we are not children of a slave-girl, but of the free woman d—in virtue of the freedom wherewith Christ has made us free.

III: MORAL

1. GENERAL COUNSELS

CHAPTER 5

Circumcision Now Voidance of Christ

STAND FAST, and do not be caught again under the yoke of slavery.

2 Behold, e I, Paul, tell you that if you be circumcised, Christ will be of no advantage to you.

3 And I testify again to every man who has himself circumcised, that he is bound to observe f the whole Law.

4 You who would be justified in the Law are estranged from Christ; you have fallen away from grace.

5 For we in the Spirit wait for the hope of justice in virtue of faith.

6 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision g is of any avail, nor uncircumcision, but faith which works through charity.

Judgment on Seducers

7 You were running well; who hindered you from obeying the truth?

8 This persuasion is not from him h who calls you.

9 A i little leaven ferments the whole mass.

10 I have confidence in you in the Lord, that you will not think otherwise; but he who disturbs you will bear the penalty, j whoever he may be.

d Gal. 3, 29.—e Acts 15, 1ff.—f Gal. 1, 9.—g Gal. 6, 15.—h Gal. 1, 6.—i 1 Cor. 5, 6.—j Gal. 1, 7.—

Chap. 5, Ver. 3. Circumcision was a public pledge to practise the whole Law.

Ver. 5. The hope which proceeds from justice.

Ver. 8. This persuasion: i.e., to believe that circumcision is necessary for salvation.

Ver. 9. Bad influence will cause total ruin.

Ver. 11. If I still preach circumcision: St. Paul here is referring to the calumny of his enemies, who said that he was still preaching the necessity of circumcision. If this were true, there is no reason why he should be persecuted; further, the cross, which was a stumbling-block to the Jews because it removed the obligation of the Law, should no longer be found such.

11 But I, brethren, if I still preach circumcision, why am I still persecuted? Then is the stumbling-block of the cross removed!

12 Would that those who are unsettling you would mutilate themselves!

How Christians Should Live

13 For you have been called to liberty, brethren; only do not use liberty as an occasion for sensuality, but by charity serve one another.

14 For the whole Law is fulfilled in one word: k Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

15 But if you bite and devour one another, take heed or you will be consumed by one another.

16 But I say: l Walk in the Spirit, and you will not fulfill the lusts of the flesh.

17 For the flesh lusts against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh; for these are opposed to each other, so that you do not do what you would.

18 But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the Law.

19 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are immorality, uncleanness, licentiousness,

20 idolatry, witchcrafts, enmities, contentions, jealousies, anger, quarrels, factions, parties,

21 envies, murders, drunkenness, carousings, and suchlike. And concerning these I warn you, as I have warned you, that they who do such things will not attain the kingdom of God.

22 But the fruit of the Spirit is: charity, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, 23 faith, modesty, continency. Against such things there is no law.

24 And they who belong to Christ have k Lev. 19, 18; Matt. 22, 39; Rom. 13, 9.—l 1 Pet. 2, 11; 5, 25.

Ver. 12. Mutilate: i.e., that they would make themselves eunuchs.

Ver. 13. As an occasion for sensuality: namely, to indulge the lower tendencies of the flesh.

Ver. 15. Consumed by one another: signifies the complete ruin of their Christian community.

Ver. 17. The reference is to the struggle of man against the weakness of his nature. He cannot without the Spirit's help do what he would.

Ver. 23. Against such things there is no law: those who practise these virtues are not under the Mosaic Law, but under the law of Christ.

crucified their flesh with its passions and desires.

25 If we live by the Spirit,^m by the Spirit let us also walk.

26 Let us not become desirous of vain-glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

2. SPECIFIC COUNSELS

CHAPTER 6

Fraternal Correction

BRETHREN, even if a person is caught doing something wrong, you who are spiritual instruct such a one in a spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.

2 Bear one another's burdens, and so you will fulfill the law of Christ.

3 For if anyone thinks himself to be something, whereas he is ⁿnothing, he deceives himself.

4 But let everyone test his own work, and so he will have glory in himself only, and not in comparison with another.

5 For each one will bear his own burden.

Good Works

6 And let him who is instructed in the word share all good things with his teacher.

7 Be not deceived, God is not mocked.

8 For what a man sows, that he will also reap. For he who sows in the flesh,

^m Gal. 5, 16.—ⁿ 1 Cor. 3, 18.—^o 2 Thess. 3, 13.—^p Gal. 5, 11.—^q Gal. 5, 6.

Chap. 6, Ver. 1. Caught: i.e., led away by passion or surprise into a fault.

Ver. 5. His own burden: the duty imposed on each one (ver. 2).

Ver. 6. Share all good things: i.e., give him some of his temporal possessions.

Ver. 11. He concludes the Epistle in large characters with his own hand, to impress on the Galatians the importance of what he wrote.

Ver. 12. In the flesh: in a worldly way, not in a manner suggested by the Spirit.

from the flesh also will reap corruption. But he who sows in the spirit, from the spirit will reap life everlasting.

9 And ^oin doing good let us not grow tired; for in due time we shall reap if we do not relax.

10 Therefore, while we have time, let us do good to all men, but especially to those who are of the household of faith.

Conclusion

Summary

11 See with what large letters I am writing to you with my own hand!

12 As many as wish to please in the flesh compel you to be circumcised simply that they may not suffer persecution ^pfor the cross of Christ.

13 For not even they who are circumcised keep the Law; but they desire you to be circumcised, that they may make a boast of your flesh.

14 But as for me, God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision ^qnor uncircumcision but a new creation is of any account.

16 And whoever follow this rule, peace and mercy upon them, even upon the Israel of God.

17 Henceforth let no man give me trouble, for I bear the marks of the Lord Jesus in my body.

18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

Ver. 13. Boast of your (circumcised) flesh: they would boast of having induced you to submit to circumcision.

Ver. 15. A new creation: the supernatural state of grace transforms one's mind, heart and actions.

Ver. 16. This rule: i.e., the teaching concerning the new creation. Israel of God: i.e., the Church. Those who have the faith are true Israelites.

Ver. 17. The scars on St. Paul's body were those inflicted in persecutions; they attested his faithfulness to Christ.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the

EPHESIANS

THIS EPISTLE was written by St. Paul towards the close of his first imprisonment in Rome, in the year 63 A.D. It was brought to its destination in Asia Minor by Tychicus, who also carried with him the Epistle to the Colossians. He was accompanied by Onesimus bearing the Epistle to Philemon.

In spite of this traditional title it is uncertain to whom St. Paul originally addressed this Epistle. Either it was indeed written to the Ephesians, as was commonly believed from the end of the second century A.D. and indicated by the presence of the words "at Ephesus" (1, 1) in most MSS; or it is to be identified with the Epistle mentioned in Col. 4, 16, which St. Paul wrote to the Christians of Laodicea, a town not far from Colossæ and Ephesus; or, finally, it may have been written, not to any one community in particular, but as a sort of circular letter to the various Christian communities in that part of Asia Minor in which Ephesus and Colossæ are situated.

Ephesus, then the chief city of western Asia Minor, had been evangelized by St. Paul about 53-56 A.D. Soon afterwards the important town of Laodicea, about a hundred miles to the east, had received Christianity from some Ephesian Christians. The majority of converts in all this territory were from the pagan Gentiles, Jews forming only a small minority.

Very similar in theme and language to the Epistle to the Colossians, but much more abstract, profound and systematic, this Epistle's central thought is the Church regarded as the mystical body of Christ, through which God pours out the divine life of grace in most generous fashion to its members, the Christians, in and through its head, Jesus Christ. The spiritual, organic unity of its members with Christ and with one another is emphasized as the basic principle of the life of the mystical body. Then comes exhortation to lead the new life that befits those incorporated into the sublime unity of the mystical body.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to all the saints ^a who are at Ephesus, the faithful in Christ Jesus:

2 grace be to you and peace from God ^b our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Eternal Plan of the Father

3 Blessed ^c be the God and Father of Chap. 1, Ver. 1. All: not in the original Greek. At Ephesus: important manuscript and patristic evidence shows that these words were probably not in the original text.

Ver. 5. The purpose: the original Greek reads "the our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing on high in Christ.

4 Even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, ^d that we should be holy and without blemish in his sight in love.

5 He predestined us to be adopted through Jesus Christ as his sons, ^e according to the purpose of his will,

6 unto the praise of the glory of his grace, with which he has favored us in his beloved ^f Son.

^a Rom. 1, 7; 1 Cor. 1, 2; Col. 1, 1.—^b Col. 1, 2.—^c Eph. 2, 6.—^d John 15, 16; 17, 24; Rom. 8, 29.—^e John 1, 12.—^f Matt. 3, 17.

good pleasure." This Epistle insists repeatedly on the gratuitous character of the divine gift of redemption.

Ver. 6. His beloved Son: not in the original text, but gives the full implied meaning.

Realized in the Son

7 In him we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins, g according to the riches of his grace.

8 This grace has abounded beyond measure h in us in all wisdom and prudence,

9 so that he may make known to us the mystery of his will i according to his good pleasure. And this his good pleasure he purposed in him

10 to be dispensed in the fullness of the times: j to re-establish all things in Christ, both those in the heavens and those on the earth.

Fulfilled through the Holy Spirit

11 In him, I say, k in whom we also have been called by a special choice, having been predestined in the purpose of him who works all things according to the counsel of his will,

12 to contribute to the praise of his glory—we who before hoped in Christ.

13 And in him you too, when you had heard the word of truth, the good news of your salvation, and believed in it, were sealed with the Holy Spirit l of the promise, 14 who is the pledge of our inheritance, m for a redemption of possession, for the praise of his glory.

I: DOCTRINAL

1. THE CHURCH IS ONE WITH CHRIST

Thanksgiving and Prayer

15 Wherefore I on my part, hearing of your faith n in the Lord Jesus, and of your love for all the saints, g Eph. 2, 7; 3, 8, 15; Col. 1, 14, 20.—h Col. 1, 9.—i Eph. 3, 9; Rom. 16, 25.—j Gal. 4, 4; Col. 1, 16.—k Col. 1, 12; Rom. 8, 28.—l Eph. 4, 30; Col. 1, 5f.—m 2 Cor. 1, 22; 5, 5.—n Col. 1, 4, 9.—o Col. 1, 3; Rom. 1, 9.—p Col. 1, 10.—q Deut. 33, 3f; Col.

Ver. 10. To re-establish: the Greek word means rather "to sum up under one heading."

Ver. 12f. We . . . you too: the Jewish Christians . . . the Gentile Christians.

Ver. 14. The pledge: in the Greek, "the earnest," which has a much stronger meaning, as it brings out that possession of the Holy Spirit in this life is already a real, though only initial, participation in the inheritance. A redemption of possession: a redemp-

16 do not cease to give thanks for you, o making mention of you in my prayers,

17 that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may grant you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in deep knowledge p of him:

18 the eyes of your mind being enlightened, so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, q what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, 19 and what the exceeding greatness of his power r towards us who believe.

Its measure is the working of his mighty power,

20 which he has wrought in Christ in raising him from the dead, and setting him at his right hand s in heaven

21 above every Principality and Power and Virtue and Domination t—in short, above every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come.

22 And all things he made subject under his feet, u and him he gave as head over all the Church, 23 which indeed is his body, v the completion of him who fills all with all.

CHAPTER 2

All Brought into Christ's Life

YOU also, when you were dead w by reason of your offenses and sins,

2 wherein once you walked according to the fashion of this world, according to the prince of the x power of the air about us, the prince of the spirit which now works on the unbelievers—

3 indeed, in the company of these even we, all of us, once led our lives in the desires of our flesh, doing the promptings of our flesh and of our thoughts, and were by nature y children of wrath even as the rest.

1, 5.—r 2 Cor. 13, 4; Col. 1, 11.—s Ps. 109, 1.—t Col. 1, 15; 2, 10.—u Ps. 8, 6; Matt. 28, 18; Col. 1, 18.—v Eph. 4, 10; Rom. 12, 5; Col. 1, 19; 1 Cor. 12, 27.—w Col. 1, 21; 2, 13.—x Eph. 6, 12; John 12, 31; Col. 1, 13.—y Col. 3, 6.

tion that gives possession, either of us to God, or of God to us.

Ver. 21. Principality: etc.: a classification of the angels.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. You also: i.e., the Gentile converts as distinct from we, the Jews, of ver. 3.

Ver. 2. The prince, etc.: Satan, the prince of demoniacal power.

Ver. 3. Children of wrath: deserving of God's anger.

4 But God, who is rich in mercy, by reason of his very great love wherewith he has loved us

5 even when we were dead by reason of our sins, brought us to life together with Christ^z (by grace you have been saved),

6 and raised us up together, ^aand seated us together in heaven in Christ Jesus,

7 that he might show in the ages to come the overflowing riches of his grace in kindness towards us in Christ Jesus.

8 For by grace you have been saved through faith; ^band that not from yourselves, for it is the gift of God;

9 not ^cas the outcome of works, lest anyone may boast.

10 For his workmanship we are, created in Christ Jesus in good works, ^dwhich God has made ready beforehand that we may walk in them.

Gentile and Jew United

11 Wherefore, bear in mind that once you, the Gentiles in flesh, who are called "uncircumcision" by the so-called "circumcision"^e in flesh made by human hand—

12 bear in mind ^fthat you were at that time without Christ, excluded as aliens from the community of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of the promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

13 But now in Christ Jesus you, who were once afar off, ^ghave been brought near through the blood of Christ.

14 For he himself is our peace, ^hhe it is who has made both one, and has broken down the intervening wall of the enclosure, the enmity, in his flesh.

^z Luke 15, 24. 32; Rom. 6, 13.—^a Rom. 8, 10; Phil. 3, 20.—^b Gal. 2, 16.—^c Titus 2, 14.—^d 1 Cor. 1, 29.—^e Eph. 5, 8.—^f Rom. 9, 4; 1 Thess. 4, 13.—^g Isa. 57, 19; Col. 1, 20.—^h Gal. 3, 28.—ⁱ Col. 2, 14;

Ver. 6. In heaven: literally, as in Eph. 1, 3, "on high." The divine life of the Christian on earth is an initial stage of the heavenly state, since it unites him to God in the glorified Christ.

Ver. 9. Works, i.e., mere human effort without God's grace coming before and with it.

Ver. 11. "Uncircumcision": the uncircumcised Gentiles. "Circumcision": the circumcised Jews.

Ver. 14. The intervening wall, etc.: a concrete figure of speech signifying the Gentiles' exclusion from the religious life of the community of the Jews as God's chosen people. The metaphor is taken from the barrier in the outer court of the temple of Jerusalem,

15 The Law of the commandments expressed in decreesⁱ he has made void, that of the two he might create in himself one new man, and make peace

16 and reconcile both^j in one body to God by the cross, having slain the enmity in himself.

17 And coming, he announced the good tidings of peace to you who were afar off,^k and of peace to those who were near;

18 because through him we both have access^l in one Spirit to the Father.

19 Therefore, you are now no longer strangers and foreigners, but you are citizens with the saints and members ^mof God's household:

20 you are built upon the foundation ⁿof the apostles and prophets with Christ Jesus himself as the chief corner stone.

21 In him the whole structure is closely fitted together^o and grows into a temple holy in the Lord;

22 in him you too are being built together into a dwelling place for God ^pin the Spirit.

2. PAUL'S COMMISSION TO PREACH THE MYSTERY

CHAPTER 3

Paul Instructed

FOR THIS REASON, I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you, ^qthe Gentiles—

2 for I suppose you have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God that was given to me in your regard;

3 how that by revelation was made known to me the mystery, ^ras I have written above in brief;

2 Cor. 5, 17.—^j Col. 1, 20. 22.—^k Isa. 57, 19; Zach. 9, 10.—^l Eph. 3, 12.—^m Heb. 12, 22f.—ⁿ Mark 16, 18; Isa. 28, 16.—^o Col. 2, 19.—^p 1 Pet. 2, 5.—^q Phil. 1, 7. 13; Col. 1, 24f.—^r Col. 1, 26.

inside which the Gentiles might not proceed under penalty of death.

Ver. 15. The death of Christ supplanted the Old Law, which contained a strict distinction of Jew from Gentile.

Ver. 16. In himself: the Greek means rather "in it," i.e., in the cross.

Ver. 19. Citizens: the Greek is more expressive with "fellow-citizens." With the saints: another possible meaning is "of the sanctuary."

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. The sentence begun here is resumed in v. 14, vv. 2-13 being a long parenthesis characteristic of St. Paul.

4 and so by reading you can perceive how well versed I am in the mystery of Christ,

5 that mystery ^s which in other ages was not known to the sons of men, as now it has been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit:

6 namely, that the Gentiles are joint heirs, and fellow-members of the same body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

Assigned to Preach to the Gentiles

7 Of that gospel I was made a minister ^t by the gift of God's grace, which was given to me in accordance with the working of his power.

8 Yes, to me, ^u the very least of all saints, there was given this grace, to announce among the Gentiles the good tidings of the unfathomable riches of Christ,

9 and to enlighten all men as to what is the dispensation of the mystery ^v which has been hidden from eternity in God, who created all things;

10 in order that through the Church ^w there be made known to the Principalities and the Powers in the heavens the manifold wisdom of God

11 according to the eternal purpose which he accomplished in Christ Jesus our Lord.

12 In him we have assurance and confident access ^x through faith in him.

13 Therefore I pray you not to be disheartened at my tribulations for you, ^y for they are your glory.

3. A PRAYER FOR HIS READERS

14 For this reason I bend my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

^s Col. 1, 26.—^t Col. 1, 25. 29.—^u 1 Cor. 15, 9f; Gal. 1, 16.—^v Rom. 16, 25; Col. 1, 26f.—^w 1 Pet. 1, 12; Rom. 11, 33; Col. 1, 26.—^x Heb. 4, 16; Rom. 5, 2.—^y Col. 1, 24.—^z Eph. 6, 10; Col. 1, 11.—

Ver. 5. Known: in the Greek, "made known." The sons of men: those who have human nature from Adam.

Ver. 6. The same body: the one mystical body of Christ, which is a central idea of this Epistle.

Ver. 10. There be made known: in the Greek, "there be made known now."

Ver. 11. The eternal purpose: literally, "the purpose of the ages," i.e., embracing and foreordaining all stages of human history.

Ver. 14. Of our Lord Jesus Christ: not in the original Greek.

15 from whom all fatherhood in heaven and on earth receives its name,

16 that he may grant you from his glorious riches to be strengthened ^z with power through his Spirit unto the progress of the inner man;

17 and to have Christ dwelling through faith in your hearts: ^a so that, being rooted and grounded in love,

18 you may be able to comprehend ^b with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth,

19 and to know Christ's love which surpasses knowledge, ^c in order that you may be filled unto all the fullness of God.

20 Now, to him who is able to accomplish all things in a measure far beyond what we ask or conceive, in keeping with the power ^d that is at work in us—

21 to him be glory in the Church and in Christ Jesus down through all the ages of time without end. Amen.

II: MORAL

1. FOR CHRISTIANS IN GENERAL

CHAPTER 4

Unity in the Mystical Body

I THEREFORE, the prisoner in the Lord, exhort you ^e to walk in a manner worthy of the calling with which you were called,

2 with all humility and meekness, with patience, ^f bearing with one another in love,

3 careful ^g to preserve the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace:

4 one body and one Spirit, ^h even as you were called in one hope of your calling;

5 one ⁱ Lord, one faith, one Baptism;

^a John 14, 23; Col. 1, 23; 2, 7.—^b Col. 2, 2.—^c Col. 2, 3.—^d Rom. 16, 25f; Col. 1, 29.—^e Col. 1, 10.—^f Col. 3, 12.—^g Col. 3, 14f.—^h Rom. 12, 5.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 8, 6.

Ver. 15. Fatherhood: the Greek word means rather "family." Receives its name: i.e., derives its manifest being and nature.

Ver. 16. The inner man: human nature inasmuch as inclined to God in spite of original sin.

Ver. 18. The breadth, etc.: probably the Apostle speaks of the mystery of the Redeemer and His unfathomable riches. Cf. Eph. 3, 4. 9.

Ver. 19. Knowledge: human knowledge. Fullness of God: that plenitude of perfection of which God is the source and which He communicates to the saints.

Ver. 20. All things, etc.: in the Greek, "far beyond all that we ask," etc.

6 one i God and Father of all, who is above all, and throughout all, and in us all.

Diversity of Graces

7 But k to each one of us grace was given according to the measure of Christ's bestowal.

8 Thus it says, l Ascending on high, he led away captives; he gave gifts to men.

9 Now this, "he ascended," what does it mean but that he also first descended into the lower parts of the earth?

10 He who descended, he it is who ascended also above all the heavens, that he might fill all things.

11 And he himself gave some men as m apostles, and some as prophets, others again as evangelists, and others as pastors and teachers,

12 in order to perfect the saints for a work of ministry, n for building up the body of Christ,

13 until we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the deep knowledge of the Son of God, to perfect manhood, o to the mature measure of the fullness of Christ.

14 And this he has done p that we may be now no longer children, tossed to and fro and carried about by every wind of doctrine devised in the wickedness of men, in craftiness, according to the wiles of error.

15 Rather are we to practise the truth in love, and so grow up in all things in him who is the q head, Christ.

16 For from him the whole body (being closely joined and knit together through every joint of the system r according to the functioning in due measure of each single part) derives its increase to the building up of itself in love.

Change of Self

17 This, s therefore, I say and testify in the Lord, that henceforward you are not to walk as the Gentiles walk in the futility of their mind, 18 having their understanding clouded in darkness, t estranged from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart.

19 For they have given themselves up in despair to sensuality, greedily practising every kind u of uncleanness.

20 But you have not so learned Christ

21 for surely you have heard of him and have been taught in him (as truth is in Jesus)

22 that as regards your former manner of life you are v to put off the old man, which is being corrupted through its deceptive lusts.

23 But w be renewed in the spirit of your mind,

24 and put on the new man, which has been created according to God in justice and holiness of truth.

Vices to be Avoided

25 Wherefore, x put away lying and speak truth each one with his neighbor, because we are members of one another.

26 "Be angry and y do not sin"; do not let the sun go down upon your anger:

j 1 Cor. 12, 6.—k Rom. 12, 3, 6; 1 Cor. 12, 11.—l Ps. 67, 19; Col. 2, 15.—m 1 Cor. 12, 28.—n 1 Pet. 2, 5; 2 Tim. 3, 17.—o Col. 1, 28.—p 1 Cor. 14, 20; Heb. 13, 9.—q Eph. 5, 23; Col. 1, 18.—r Col. 2, 19.

Chap. 4, Ver. 6. In us all: the Greek omits us.

Ver. 8. It: the Holy Scripture. The quotation is from Ps. 67, 19, but somewhat freely worded by St. Paul to fit the present application. St. Paul is thinking of the triumphant Ascension of our Lord, who distributes His gifts to men.

Ver. 9. First: not in the best Greek Manuscripts, but clarifies the meaning. The lower parts of the earth: this earth as opposed to heaven.

Ver. 12. The body of Christ: the mystical body, of which Christ is the head and the source of supernatural life.

Ver. 14. Wickedness: the Greek means rather "deceit."

Ver. 16. This is a description of the spiritual organization of the mystical body for distributing from Christ through its various members its life of divine love.

Ver. 18. The blindness: the Greek word taken lit-

—s Rom. 1, 21; Col. 2, 4, 6.—t Col. 1, 21, 1 Pet. 1, 14.—u Col. 3, 5.—v Rom. 8, 13; Col. 3, 9; Gal. 6, 8.—w Rom. 12, 2.—x Zach. 8, 16; Col. 3, 9.—y Ps. 4, 5.

erally means "callousness"; hence, hardness, moral blindness of the heart, i.e., of the mind.

Ver. 19. In despair: the Greek word usually means "without feeling" (especially of pain); hence, morally insensible to the evil of sin.

Ver. 21. You have heard of him: i.e., in the teachers He sent.

Ver. 22. The old man: human nature under the domination of sin.

Ver. 23. The spirit of your mind: spirit here seems to mean, not the Holy Spirit nor yet grace in itself but that interior and higher aspect of the mind by which it is open to the influence of grace, in contrast to the futility of the Gentiles' mind spoken of in ver. 17.

Ver. 24. The new man: human nature restored by grace and obedient to the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 26. The quotation is from Ps. 4, 5. Even in just anger one must be careful not to sin by excess.

27 do not give place to the devil.

28 He who was wont to steal, let him steal no longer, but rather let him labor, working with his hands at what is good, ^zthat he may have something to share with him who suffers need.

29 Let ^ano ill speech proceed from your mouth, but whatever is good for supplying what fits the current necessity, that it may give grace to the hearers.

30 And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, in whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.

31 Let ^ball bitterness, and wrath, and indignation, and clamor, and reviling, be removed from you, along with all malice.

32 On the contrary, ^cbe kind to one another, and merciful, generously forgiving one another, as also God in Christ has generously forgiven you.

CHAPTER 5

BE YOU, therefore, imitators of God, ^das very dear children

2 and ^ewalk in love, as Christ also loved us and delivered himself up for us an offering and a sacrifice to God to ascend in fragrant odor.

3 But ^fimmorality and every uncleanness or covetousness, let it not even be named among you, as becomes saints;

4 or obscenity or foolish talk or scurrility, which are out of place; ^gbut rather thanksgiving.

5 For know this and understand, that no fornicator, or unclean person, or covetous one (for that is idolatry) has any inheritance ^hin the kingdom of Christ and God.

6 Let ⁱno one lead you astray with empty words; for because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the children of disobedience.

7 Do not, then, become partakers with them.

^z 1 Thess. 4, 11.—^a Eph. 5, 4; Col. 3, 16; 4, 6.—^b Col. 3, 8.—^c Matt. 6, 14; Col. 3, 12f.—^d Matt. 5, 48; Col. 3, 12.—^e Ps. 39, 7; Ex. 29, 18.—^f Col. 3, 5.—^g Col. 3, 8.—^h 1 Cor. 6, 9f; Gal. 5, 21.—ⁱ Rom. 1, 18; Col. 2, 4, 8.—^j Luke 16, 8; John 12, 36.—^k

Ver. 30. The day of redemption: the last day, when redemption will be completed.

Chap. 5, Ver. 2. Loved us: in the Greek, "loved you."

Ver. 10. To God: the Greek has "to the Lord."

Ver. 11-14. Doing good is one of the best means of exposing the ugliness of evil deeds.

8 For you were once darkness, ^jbut now you are light in the Lord. Walk, then, as children of light

9 (for the fruit of the light is in all goodness and justice and truth),

10 testing ^kwhat is well pleasing to God;

11 and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather expose them.

12 For of the things that are done by them in secret it is shameful even to speak;

13 but all the things that are exposed are made manifest by the light: ^lfor all that is made manifest is light.

14 Thus it says, ^m*Awake, sleeper, and arise from among the dead, and Christ will enlighten thee.*

15 See to it therefore, brethren, that you walk with care: ⁿnot as unwise 16 but as wise, making the most of your time, because the days are evil.

17 Therefore, ^odo not become foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is.

18 And do not be drunk with wine, for in that is debauchery; ^pbut be filled with the Spirit,

19 speaking to one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, ^qsinging and making melody in your hearts to the Lord,

20 giving thanks always ^rfor all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to God the Father.

2. THE CHRISTIAN HOME

The Wife and the Husband

21 Be subject to one another ^sin the fear of Christ.

22 Let ^twives be subject to their husbands as to the Lord;

23 because ^ua husband is head of the wife, just as Christ is head of the Church, being himself savior of the body.

Rom. 1, 24.—^l John 3, 20f.—^m Isa. 26, 19, 60, 1; Rom. 13, 11.—ⁿ Col. 4, 5.—^o Rom. 12, 2.—^p Luke 21, 34.—^q Col. 3, 16.—^r Col. 3, 17.—^s 1 Pet. 5, 5.—^t Col. 3, 18—4, 1; 1 Pet. 3, 1-7.—^u 1 Cor. 11, 3; Col. 1, 18.

Ver. 14. The quotation is not found elsewhere in Sacred Scripture. It may have been an early Christian hymn.

Ver. 15. In the Greek brethren is absent, and with care qualifies see, not walk.

24 But just as the Church is subject to Christ, so also let wives be to their husbands in all things.

25 Husbands, v love your wives, just as Christ also loved the Church, and delivered himself up for her,

26 that he might sanctify her, w cleansing her in the bath of water by means of the word;

27 in order that he might present to himself the Church in all her glory, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that she might be holy x and without blemish.

28 Even thus ought husbands also to love their wives as their own bodies.

29 He who loves his own wife, loves himself. For no one ever hated his own flesh; on the contrary he nourishes and cherishes it, as Christ also does the Church 30 (because y we are members of his body, made from his flesh and from his bones).

z 31 For this cause a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife; and the two shall become one flesh.

32 This is a great mystery—I mean in reference to Christ and to the Church.

33 However, let each one of you also love his wife just as he loves himself; and let the wife respect her husband.

CHAPTER 6

Children, Parents, Slaves and Masters

CHILDREN, a obey your parents in the Lord, for that is right.

2 "Honor thy father and thy mother" b—such is the first commandment with a promise—

3 "that c it may be well with thee, and v Col. 3, 19.—w Titus 3, 5.—x 2 Cor. 11, 2.—y 1 Cor. 6, 15.—z Matt. 19, 5; Mark 10, 7f.—a Col. 3, 20.—b Ex. 20, 12.—c Deut. 5, 16.—d Prov. 2, 2; 3, 11; Col. 3, 21.—e Deut. 6, 7; Col. 3, 22-25.—f 2 Cor.

Ver. 24. In all things: i.e., in all things that pertain to the right relationship of husband and wife. Note well that the subjection inculcated in these verses is not a brutal or slavish subjection as to a tyrant, but that of the loved one to her lover, who is according to right order head of the family, as Christ is head of the Church.

Ver. 26. The bath of water: the Sacrament of Baptism.

Ver. 30. From his flesh and from his bones: not in the best Greek Manuscripts. It is probably an interpolation from Gen. 2, 23.

Chap. 6, Ver. 3. Upon the Earth: in the Old Testament, refers to the promised land of Palestine.

that thou mayest be long-lived upon the earth."

4 And you, fathers, d do not provoke your children to anger, but rear them in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.

5 Slaves, e obey your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling in the sincerity of your heart, as you would Christ:

6 not serving to the eye as pleasers of men, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart,

7 giving your service with good will as to the Lord and not to men.

8 in the knowledge that whatever good each does, the same he will receive back from the Lord, f whether he is slave or freeman.

9 And you, masters, g do the same towards them, and give up threatening, knowing that their Lord who is also your Lord is in heaven, and that with him there is no respect of persons.

3. THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE

The Armor of God

10 For the rest, brethren, be strengthened h in the Lord and in the might of his power.

11 Put on the armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles i of the devil.

12 For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the j Principalities and the Powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness on high.

13 Therefore take up the armor of God, that you may be able to resist in the evil day, k and stand in all things perfect.

14 Stand, therefore, having girded your

6, 10.—g Col. 4, 1.—h 1 Cor. 16, 13.—i 2 Cor. 10, 4.—j John 14, 30; Col. 1, 13.—k Isa. 11, 5; 59, 17; Luke 12, 35; 1 Thess. 5, 8; 1 Pet. 1, 14.

Ver. 5-8. St. Paul does not laud slavery as an institution but in the circumstances he exhorts those already slaves to humble acceptance of it in corporal activity for a supernatural motive.

Ver. 5. Masters according to the flesh: temporal human masters in the things of this world, as distinct from Christ who is Master according to the spirit, i.e., in what pertains to the supernatural and eternal.

Ver. 9. Do the same: act in the same spirit, according to the same rule.

Ver. 13. Stand: i.e., stand victorious and unshaken. In all things perfect: in the Greek, "having accomplished all things."

loins with truth, and having put on the breastplate of justice,

15 and having your feet shod with the readiness of the ^lgospel of peace,

16 in all things taking up the shield of faith, ^mwith which you may be able to quench all the fiery darts of the most wicked one.

17 And take unto you the helmet of salvation ⁿand the sword of the spirit, that is, the word of God.

Assiduous Prayer

18 With all prayer ^oand supplication pray at all times in the Spirit, and therein be vigilant in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints—

19 and for me, that when I open my mouth, utterance may be granted to me fearlessly to make known the mystery ^pof the gospel,

^l Isa. 52, 7; 40, 3. 9.—^m 1 Pet. 5, 9.—ⁿ Isa. 59, 17; 1 Thess. 5, 8.—^o Matt. 26, 41; Col. 4, 2f.—^p Col. 4, 3; 2 Thess. 3, 1; Acts 4, 29.—^q 2 Cor. 5,

Ver. 15. Readiness: that prompt vigilance which is provided by the gospel to win a victorious peace.

20 for which I am an ambassador in chains; ^qso that therein I may dare to speak as I ought.

Conclusion

21 But that you too may know my circumstances and what I am doing, Tychicus, ^rour dearest brother and faithful minister in the Lord, will tell you everything.

22 Him I have sent to you for this very purpose, that you may learn our circumstances, ^sand that he may comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all those who have a love unailing ^tfor our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

20; Col. 4, 4.—^r Acts 20, 4; Col. 4, 7; 2 Tim. 4, 12.—^s Col. 4, 7f.—^t 1 Pet. 1, 8.

Ver. 19. Open my mouth: either when Paul prepares to deliver his solemn message, or when God enables him to do so.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the PHILIPPIANS

THE CHURCH at Philippi was St. Paul's first foundation on European soil. The vision of a man of Macedonia calling for aid brought the Apostle, St. Timothy and their comrades from Asia into Europe. In Acts (16, 11-40) St. Luke narrates the conversions at Philippi, the cure of a girl possessed by a demon, the Apostle's imprisonment, his release and departure from that city.

On at least two other occasions Philippi had the joy of welcoming its beloved Apostle. The people were deeply attached to St. Paul, helping him by alms in his missionary work; and Paul's special affection for them manifests itself in this Epistle. He hopes to be able to visit them soon.

The occasion of its composition can be gathered from the Epistle. Learning that St. Paul had been cast into prison, the church at Philippi, in order to assist him, sent Epaphroditus with a sum of money and with instructions to remain beside the Apostle as his companion and servant. While thus employed, Epaphroditus fell sick and nearly died. Upon his recovery, St. Paul decided to send him back to Philippi. The Epistle expresses gratitude to the church for its gift and commends the service rendered by Epaphroditus.

At the same time Paul takes the opportunity of exhorting the faithful to compose their dissensions, and he warns them against Jewish converts who wished to make Old Testament practices obligatory for Christians.

No one but St. Paul could have composed such a letter. It was written from Rome in the year 63 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL AND TIMOTHY, servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus that are at Philippi, with the bishops ^a and deacons:

2 grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, ^b and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving and Prayer

3 I give thanks to my God in all my remembrance of you,

4 always in all my prayers making supplications for you all with joy,

5 because of your association with me in spreading the gospel of Christ from the first day until now.

6 I am convinced of this, ^c that he who has begun a good work in you will bring it to perfection until the day of Christ Jesus.

7 And I have the right to feel so about you all, because I have you in my heart, all of you, alike in my chains and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel, as sharers in my joy.

8 For God is my witness how I long for you all in the heart of Christ Jesus.

9 And this I pray, that your charity may more and more abound in knowledge and all discernment,

10 so that ^d you may approve the better things, that you may be upright and without offense unto the day of Christ,

11 filled ^e with the fruit of justice, through Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.

^a 1 Tim. 3, 1. 8.—^b Rom. 1, 7.—^c 1 Cor. 1, 6-8.—^d Rom. 2, 18; 12, 2; Heb. 5, 14.—^e Eph. 5, 9; John 15, 8.—^f 2 Tim. 2, 9; Eph. 6, 20f.—^g Eph. 3, 1.—

Chap. 1, Ver. 5. The gospel: the preaching of Christ's doctrine, not the written Gospels. In the Greek it is clear that St. Paul refers to what they have done for the propagation of the faith. The Philippians had supported the first missionaries and had sent money to St. Paul. Cf. Phil. 4, 10-20 and Acts 16, 15.

Ver. 6. Day of Christ Jesus: the Second Coming of Christ at the end of the world to judge all men.

Ver. 7. Shares in my joy: the Greek has "sharers of my grace." For Paul his imprisonment is a divine favor.

Ver. 8. Heart: the Latin and Greek words refer to the internal organs as the heart, lungs and liver, which were considered the seat of thought and affec-

I: PERSONAL NEWS

Propagation of the Gospel

12 Now I wish you to know, brethren, ^f that my experiences have turned out rather for the advancement of the gospel,

13 so that ^g the chains I bear for the sake of Christ have become manifest as such throughout the prætorium and in all other places.

14 And the greater number of the brethren in the Lord, gaining courage from my chains, have dared to speak the word of God more freely and without fear.

15 Some indeed preach Christ even out of envy and contentiousness, but some also out of good will.

16 Some proclaim Christ out of love since they know I am appointed for the defense of the gospel;

17 but some out of contentiousness, not sincerely, thinking to stir up affliction for me in my chains.

18 But what of it? Provided only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is being proclaimed; ^h in this I rejoice, yes and I shall rejoice.

19 For I know that this will turn out for my ⁱ salvation, thanks to your prayer and the assistance of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20 in accord with my eager longing and hope that in nothing I shall be put to shame, but that with complete assurance now as at all times Christ will be glorified in my body, ^j whether through life or through death.

Sentiments of St. Paul

21 For to me to live is Christ ^k and to die is gain.

^h Phil. 2, 17f.—ⁱ Job 13, 16.—^j 1 Pet. 4, 16.—^k Gal. 2, 20.

tion. "Heart" is the best present-day English equivalent.

Ver. 13. Chains, etc.: all perceive that Paul is imprisoned not as a criminal but for bearing witness to Christ. Prætorium: the word can mean either the imperial palace or the prætorian guard in whose custody St. Paul is. Here the Apostle refers to the soldiers.

Ver. 17. Affliction for me in my chains: They suppose their success in preaching will diminish Paul's renown and thus embitter his imprisonment.

Ver. 18. In pretense: some used the gospel as an excuse for furthering their own ambitions. In truth: they preach Christ without any selfish motives.

22 But ^l if to live in the flesh is my lot, this means for me fruitful labor, and I do not know which to choose.

23 Indeed I am hard pressed from both sides—desiring to depart and to be with Christ, ^m a lot by far the better;

24 yet to stay on in the flesh is necessary for your sake.

25 And with this conviction I know that I shall stay on and continue with you all for your progress and joy in the faith, 26 that your rejoicing in my regard may abound in Christ Jesus through my coming to you again.

II: EXHORTATION

Firmness

27 Only ⁿ let your lives be worthy of the gospel of Christ; so that, whether I come and see you, or remain absent, I may hear about you, that you are steadfast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel.

28 Do not be terrified in any way by the adversaries; ^o for this is to them a reason for destruction, but to you for salvation, and that from God.

29 For ^p you have been given the favor on Christ's behalf—not only to believe in him but also to suffer for him, 30 while engaged in the same ^q struggle in which you have seen me and now have heard of me.

CHAPTER 2

Unity and Humility

IF, THEREFORE, there is any comfort in Christ, any encouragement from charity, any fellowship in the Spirit, any feelings of mercy,

2 fill up my joy by thinking alike, hav-

^l Rom. 1, 13.—^m 3 Kgs. 19, 4; 2 Cor. 5, 8.—ⁿ Col. 1, 10; 1 Thess. 2, 12.—^o 2 Thess. 1, 5-7.—^p Acts 5, 41; Matt. 5, 10-12.—^q Acts 16, 22.—^r Gal. 5, 26; Rom. 12, 10.—^s 1 Cor. 10, 24, 33; 13, 5; 9, 22.—^t John 1, 1f; 17, 5; Gen. 1, 27; 3, 5.—^u Isa. 53, 3;

Ver. 23. Hard pressed from both sides: the two desires are a vise crushing his heart.

Ver. 27. Your lives: the Greek text means "be worthy citizens." Our commonwealth is in heaven. Cf. Phil. 3, 20. We are fellow-citizens of the saints. Cf. Eph. 2, 19.

Ver. 28. Reason for: the Greek has "sign" or "proof."

Chap. 2, Ver. 6. By nature: literally "by form" in the Greek and Latin. A thing to be clung to: literally ing the same charity, with one soul and one mind.

3 Do ^r nothing out of contentiousness or out of vainglory, but in humility let each one regard the others as his superiors,

4 each one looking not ^s to his own interests but to those of others.

5 Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus,

6 who though he was by nature God, ^t did not consider being equal to God a thing to be clung to,

7 but emptied himself, taking the nature of a slave and being made like unto men. ^u And appearing in the form of man,

8 he humbled himself, ^v becoming obedient to death, even to death on a cross.

9 Therefore ^w God also has exalted him and has bestowed upon him the name that is above every name,

10 so that at ^x the name of Jesus every knee should bend of those in heaven, on earth and under the earth, 11 and every tongue should confess ^y that the Lord Jesus Christ is in the glory of God the Father.

Fear and Joy in Serving

12 Wherefore, my beloved, obedient as you have always been, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your salvation with fear and trembling.

13 For ^z it is God who of his good pleasure works in you both the will and the performance.

14 Do all things without murmuring and without questioning,

15 so as to be blameless and guileless, children of God without blemish ^a in the midst of a depraved and perverse generation. For among these you shine like stars in the world,

2 Cor. 8, 9; Heb. 2, 14, 17.—^v Heb. 5, 8; 12, 2.—^w Eph. 1, 21.—^x Isa. 45, 23f; John 5, 23; Apoc. 5, 13.—^y Rom. 10, 9.—^z John 15, 5; 2 Cor. 3, 5; 1 Thess. 2, 13.—^a Matt. 10, 16; Deut. 32, 5.

"rapine," "robbery." The Latin could mean "usurpation" but this translation would not bring out so well the doctrine of humility.

Ver. 7. Emptied himself: not by surrendering the divine nature, which is impossible, but by foregoing the glory attached to it.

Ver. 11. In the glory: the Vulgate reading suggests that both Persons enjoy equal glory. The Greek reads "Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father"; confessing the Son's divinity redounds to the Father's glory.

16 holding fast the word of life to my glory against the day of Christ; because not in vain^b have I run, neither in vain have I labored.

17 But ^ceven if I am made the libation for the sacrifice and service of your faith, I joy and rejoice with you.

18 And in the same way do you also joy and rejoice with me.

III: TIMOTHY AND EPAPHRODITUS

Timothy

19 Now I hope in the Lord Jesus shortly to send Timothy to you, that I also may be of good cheer when I know your circumstances.

20 For ^dI have no one so like-minded who is so genuinely solicitous for you.

21 For ^ethey all seek their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ.

22 But know his worth: as child serves father, so he has served with me in spreading the gospel.

23 I hope then to send him to you as soon as I see how things stand with me.

24 But ^fI trust in the Lord that I myself also shall come to you shortly.

Epaphroditus

25 But ^gI have thought it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother and fellow-worker and fellow-soldier, but for you a messenger and the minister to my need.

26 For he was longing for all of you and was grieved because you had heard that he was sick.

27 Yes, he was sick, almost unto death. But God had mercy on him, and not on him only but on me also, that I might not have sorrow upon sorrow.

^b Isa. 49, 4.—^c Rom. 15, 16; 2 Tim. 4, 6.—^d 1 Cor. 4, 17; 16, 10.—^e 1 Cor. 13, 5.—^f Phil. 1, 25.—^g Phil. 4, 18.—^h 1 Cor. 16, 16.—ⁱ Apoc. 22, 15;

Ver. 17. Made the libation: the Philippians are the priests, their faith is the sacrificial animal on the altar, Paul's life blood is poured out as a libation. Service: the Greek means divine worship.

Ver. 30. What was lacking: the Philippians' money gift fell short of perfection in two respects. Because of the distance of Philippi from Rome they could not place their gift in Paul's hands, nor could they serve him personally. Epaphroditus, their messenger, has supplied these deficiencies.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Necessary: the Greek text reads "salutary" or "a safeguard." The Greek can mean: "I do not hesitate to write . . ."

28 Therefore I send him the more speedily, in order that seeing him again you may rejoice and that I may be free from sorrow.

29 Welcome him, ^hthen, with all joy in the Lord and show honor to men like him, 30 because for the work of Christ he drew near to death, risking his life to supply what was lacking for your service to me.

IV: WARNINGS AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

CHAPTER 3

The Christian Spirit

FOR THE REST, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write you the same things indeed is not irksome to me, but it is necessary for you.

2 Beware of the dogs, ⁱbeware of the evil workers, beware of the mutilation.

3 For ^jwe are the circumcision, we who serve God in spirit, who glory in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh—

4 though I too might have confidence even in the flesh. ^kIf anyone else thinks he may have confidence in the flesh, yet more may I:

5 circumcised the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; ^las regards the Law, a Pharisee;

6 as regards zeal, a persecutor of the Church of God; as regards the justice of the Law, leading a blameless life.

Renunciation for the Sake of Christ

7 But ^mthe things that were gain to me, these, for the sake of Christ, I have counted loss.

8 Nay more, I count everything loss

2 Cor. 11, 13.—^j Rom. 2, 29.—^k 2 Cor. 11, 18. 22.—^l Acts 23, 6; 26, 5.—^m Matt. 13, 44. 46.

Ver. 2. Dogs: false teachers. The Jews of the time applied this epithet to the godless and to Gentiles. Mutilation: circumcision.

Ver. 5. Hebrew of Hebrews: referring perhaps not to racial descent only but to language and customs. Paul's parents, though living among Gentiles in the Dispersion, retained their Hebrew (Aramaic) language and customs.

Ver. 6. Church of God: the Greek text omits "of God."

Ver. 7. All his former advantages would indeed be disadvantages if he relied on them.

because of the excelling knowledge of Jesus Christ, my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things, and I count them as dung that I may gain Christ

9 and be found in him, not having a justice of my own, ⁿ which is from the Law, but that which is from faith in Christ, the justice from God based upon faith;

10 so that I may know him and the power of his resurrection ^o and the fellowship of his sufferings: become like to him in death,

11 in the hope that somehow I may attain to the resurrection ^p from the dead.

12 Not that I have already obtained this, or already have been made perfect, ^q but I press on hoping that I may lay hold of that for which Christ Jesus has laid hold of me.

13 Brethren, I do not consider that I have laid hold of it already. But one thing I do: forgetting what is behind, I strain forward to what is before, 14 I press on towards the goal, to the prize ^r of God's heavenly call in Christ Jesus.

15 Let us then, as many as are perfect, be of this mind; and if in any point you are minded otherwise, this also God will reveal to you.

16 Still ^s in what we have attained let us be of the same mind, and let us also continue in this same rule.

Followers and Opponents of the Cross

17 Brethren, be imitators of me, ^t and mark those who walk after the pattern you have in us.

18 For many walk, ^u of whom I have told you often and now tell you even weeping, that they are enemies of the cross of Christ.

ⁿ Rom. 3, 21f.—^o Rom. 6, 3-5; 8, 17; Gal. 6, 17.—^p Apoc. 20, 4-6.—^q 1 Tim. 6, 12.—^r 1 Cor. 9, 24; 2 Tim. 4, 7.—^s Gal. 6, 16.—^t 1 Cor. 11, 1; 1 Pet. 5, 3.—^u 1 Cor. 1, 17, 23; Gal. 6, 12.—^v Rom. 16, 18.—^w Eph. 2, 6; Col. 3, 1f; Heb. 12, 22.—^x 1

Ver. 15. Perfect: i.e., mature, not infants but adults in the faith. Cf. 1 Cor. 2, 6.

Ver. 16. Let us be of the same mind: not in the Greek text; probably a gloss.

Ver. 18. Enemies of the cross: some commentators understand St. Paul to speak of Judaizers, who considered their justification and sanctity as coming not solely from the merits of Christ's death but partly from their own action independently of Christ's merits. Others think the Apostle is speaking of unmortified Christians in general.

19 Their end is ruin, their god is the belly, ^v their glory is in their shame, they mind the things of earth.

20 But our citizenship is in heaven from which also we eagerly await a Savior, ^w our Lord Jesus Christ, 21 who ^x will refashion the body of our lowliness, conforming it to the body of his glory by exerting the power by which he is able also to subject all things to himself.

CHAPTER 4

SO THEN, my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my crown, ^y stand fast thus in the Lord, beloved.

Conclusion

Concord

2 I entreat Evodia and I exhort Syn-tyche to be of one mind in the Lord.

3 And I beseech thee also, my loyal comrade, help them, for they have toiled with me in the gospel, as have Clement and the rest of my fellow-workers whose names are in the ^z book of life.

Peace and Joy in the Lord

4 Rejoice in the Lord ^a always; again I say, rejoice.

5 Let your moderation be known to all men. ^b The Lord is near.

6 Have no anxiety, but in every prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your petitions ^c be made known to God.

7 And may the peace of God which surpasses all understanding guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

8 For the rest, brethren, ^d whatever things are true, whatever honorable, whatever just, whatever holy, whatever

Cor. 15, 43-55; Rom. 8, 29.—^y 2 Cor. 1, 14; 1 Thess. 2, 19f.—^z Apoc. 3, 5; 20, 15; 21, 27; Ex. 32, 32; Ps. 68, 29; Luke 10, 20.—^a 2 Cor. 13, 11.—^b 2 Cor. 10, 1.—^c Matt. 6, 25-34; 1 Pet. 5, 7; John 14, 27; Col. 3, 15.—^d Rom. 12, 17.

Ver. 19. Their god is the belly: they are slaves of their grosser appetites.

Ver. 20. Our citizenship: the Greek text reads "commonwealth."

Chap. 4, Ver. 3. Loyal comrade: not identified. Some take Synzyge (comrade) as a proper name and understand "Synzyge, rightly so called."

Ver. 5. Moderation: the Greek signifies forbearance, a willingness to waive one's rights.

lovable, whatever of good repute, if there be any virtue, if anything worthy of praise, think upon these things.

9 And what you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, ^ethese things practise. And the God of peace will be with you.

Their Gift

10 I have rejoiced in the Lord greatly that now at last your concern for me has revived. Indeed you were always concerned, but lacked opportunity.

11 Not that I speak because I was in want. ^fFor I have learned to be self-sufficing in whatever circumstances I am.

12 I know how to live humbly and I know how to live in abundance (I have been schooled to every place and every condition ^g), to be filled and to be hungry, to have abundance and to suffer want.

13 I can do all things ^h in him who strengthens me.

14 Still, you have done well by sharing in my affliction.

15 But, Philippians, you yourselves also know that in the first days of the ^e 1 Thess. 4, 1; 1 Cor. 14, 33.—^f 1 Tim. 6, 6; 2 Cor. 11, 9.—^g 2 Cor. 6, 10; 11, 27; 1 Cor. 4, 11.—^h 2 Cor. 12, 10; 2 Tim. 4, 17.—ⁱ 2 Cor. 11, 9.—^j 1 Cor. 9,

Ver. 15. Went into partnership: St. Paul here uses a business term, the figure running through to ver. 18.
Ver. 22. Those of Cæsar's household: not members of the imperial family or relatives of the emperor, but officials of the court, which would include freedmen and slaves.

gospel, when I left Macedonia, no church went into partnership with me in the matter of giving and receiving ⁱ but you only.

16 For even in Thessalonica, you sent once and twice something for my need.

17 Not that I am eager for the gift, but I am eager for the profit ^j accumulating to your account.

18 I have all and more than enough. I am fully supplied now that I have received from Epaphroditus what you have sent, a sweet odor, ^k an acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing to God.

19 But may my God supply your every need according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus.

20 Now to our God and Father be glory for endless ages. Amen.

Farewell

21 Greet every saint in Christ Jesus.

22 The brethren with me here greet you. All the saints greet you, ^lespecially those of Cæsar's household.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

11.—^k Ex. 29, 18; Ezech. 20, 41; Eph. 5, 2.—^l Phil. 1, 13.

bers of the imperial family or relatives of the emperor, but officials of the court, which would include freedmen and slaves.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the COLOSSIANS

DURING Paul's stay at Ephesus from about 53 to 56 A.D. (Acts 19, 1–20, 2), the message of the Gospel was carried inland by his zealous converts. Among these was Epaphras, who evangelized the towns of Colossæ, Laodicea and Hierapolis (4, 12f), situated in the valley of the Lycus River, little more than a hundred miles east of Ephesus. The Apostle took a personal interest in the work of his disciple (2, 1). A few years later, while he was being detained at Rome for trial before Cæsar, he had news of the Colossians through Epaphras. Though the report of the evangelist was, on the whole, favorable (1, 4–8; 2, 5f), he saw dangerous tendencies in the young Christian community. Self-appointed teachers claimed for angels a very high place of honor (2, 18f), and boasted of a deeper knowledge of Christianity, insisting on Judaic observances (2, 16) and a false asceticism (2, 20–23). Concerned lest his work be destroyed, Epaphras had come to Rome to seek help from Paul.

Paul met the danger by sending (63 A.D.) a letter to Colossæ, borne by Ty-chicus (4, 7–9). To counter the errors he set forth in clear terms the true doctrine concerning Christ, our Redeemer, head of the mystical body, the Church (1, 15-2, 3), and drew up rules for an ideal Christian life (3, 5-4, 6). Between these positive sections, the Apostle inserted a vigorous condemnation of the false teachings (2, 4-3, 4). Because of the emphatic statement of Christ's divinity that they contain, the first two chapters of the letter are of great doctrinal importance.

The Epistle to the Colossians bears a remarkable resemblance to the Epistle to the Ephesians. Most of the words and phrases of this shorter letter are met with in the other also. Written at the same time, both were addressed to communities of Jewish and pagan converts, struggling in like circumstances to maintain the purity of their faith.

The two Epistles should be read and studied together.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and our brother Timothy, 2 to the brethren in Colossæ, holy and faithful in Christ Jesus: grace be to you and peace from God our Father.

Thanksgiving

3 We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you,

4 for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love that you bear towards all the saints

5 because of the hope that is laid up for you in heaven. Of that hope you have heard in the word of the gospel truth

6 which has reached you, even as it is in the whole world, both bearing fruit and growing; just as it does among you since the day that you heard and recognized the grace of God in truth.

7 Thus you learned from our most dear fellow-servant Epaphras. He is a faithful minister of Christ Jesus in your behalf;

8 and it was he who made known to us your love in the Spirit.

^a John 1, 3.

Chap. 1, Ver. 7. Together with Col. 2, 1 and Col. 4, 12, these words make it almost certain that St. Paul had not preached at Colossæ. However, he knew some of the Colossians personally from having met them at Ephesus. Cf. note on Philem. 1.

Ver. 15-20. Christ's pre-eminence is asserted from the viewpoint of His divine nature (15-17) and of His work as Redeemer (18-20). The image of the Father, he is "true God of true God"; "the only-begotten of the Father" [John 1, 14]. He occupies the privileged position of the firstborn [Heb. 1, 4-15]. All created things, even the angels, were made by

Prayer for Their Progress

9 This is why we too have been praying for you unceasingly, since the day we heard this, and asking that you may be filled with knowledge of his will, in all spiritual wisdom and understanding.

10 May you walk worthily of God and please him in all things, bearing fruit in every good work and growing in the knowledge of God.

11 May you be completely strengthened through his glorious power unto perfect patience and long-suffering; joyfully

12 rendering thanks to the Father, who has made us worthy to share the lot of the saints in light.

13 He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, 14 in whom we have our redemption, the remission of our sins.

I: THE PRE-EMINENCE OF CHRIST

God, Creator, Head

15 He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature.

16 For in him ^a were created all things in the heavens and on the earth, things visible and things invisible, whether Thrones, or Dominations, or Principali-

Him out of nothing, and He maintains them in existence. As God-Man He redeemed us by shedding His blood for us on the cross. He is the source (beginning) of the new life of grace in us, firstborn of "the new creation." Cf. Gal. 6, 15; 2 Cor. 5, 17. The head of the mystical body, the Church, is Christ; angels are not His equals as mediators between God and mankind Cf. Col. 2, 10, 19.

Ver. 16. Thrones, Dominations, Principalities, Powers: here used of both good and bad angels. The last two names are applied to angels in Col. 2, 10 and to demons in Col. 2, 15.

ties, or Powers. All things have been created through and unto him.

17 and he is before all creatures, and in him all things hold together.

18 Again, he is the head of his body, the Church; ^b he, who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in all things he may have the first place.

19 For it has pleased God the Father that in him all his fullness should dwell, 20 and that through him he should reconcile to himself all things, whether on the earth or in the heavens, making peace through the blood of his cross.

Conciliator

21 You yourselves were at one time estranged and enemies in mind through your evil works.

22 But now he has reconciled you in his body of flesh through his death, to present you holy and undefiled and irreproachable before him.

23 Only you must remain firmly founded in the faith and steadfast and not withdrawing from the hope of the gospel which you have heard. It has been preached to every creature under heaven; and of it I, Paul, have become a minister.

Center of Preaching

24 I rejoice now in the sufferings I bear for your sake; and what is lacking of the sufferings of Christ I fill up in my flesh for his body, which is the Church;

25 whose minister I have become in virtue of the office that God has given me in your regard. For I am to preach the word of God fully—

26 the mystery which has been hidden for ages and generations, but now is clearly shown to his saints.

27 To them God willed to make known

Ver. 24. What is lacking of the sufferings of Christ: St. Paul means, according to many interpreters, the sufferings endured by our Lord during His life on earth. Though these sufferings have infinite value to satisfy for the sins of men, they have to be applied to individual souls. The labor of the Apostle contributes to this. According to a more probable view, St. Paul calls his own sufferings the tribulations of Christ because of his intimate union with the Savior in the mystical body.

Ver. 29. Or, "according to his strength which is mightily stirred within me."

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. There is some support for the how rich in glory is this mystery among the Gentiles Christ in you, your hope of glory!

28 Him we preach, admonishing every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

29 At this, too, I work and strive, according to the power which he mightily exerts in me.

CHAPTER 2

FOR I WISH you to know what great concern I have for you and for the Laodiceans and for all who have not seen me in the flesh;

2 that their hearts may be comforted, and they themselves well equipped in charity and in all the riches of complete understanding, so as to know the mystery of God the Father of Christ Jesus,

3 in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

II: WARNINGS
AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

A General Admonition

4 Now I say this so that no one may deceive you by persuasive words.

5 For though I am absent in ^cbody, yet in spirit I am with you, rejoicing at the sight of your orderly array and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ.

6 Therefore, as you have received Jesus Christ our Lord, so walk in him;

7 be rooted in him and built up on him, and strengthened in the faith, as you also have learnt, rendering thanks abundantly.

Speculative Errors

8 See to it that no one deceives you by philosophy and vain deceit, according to b 1 Cor. 15, 20; Apoc. 1, 5.—c 1 Cor. 5, 3.

reading: "... the mystery of God, that is, Christ ... in whom. ..."

Ver. 3. Only the Son can impart true knowledge concerning God the Father [John 1, 18]. Those who pretend to have received further revelations, derived from sources other than Christ [Col. 2, 4. 8. 16-23], are false teachers.

Ver. 8. Deceives: the Greek reads, "carries you away." The elements of the world: a term used in the syncretistic worship practised in Asia Minor, signifying the demons whom the heathens in their superstition held to be in control of the four elements and the heavenly bodies.

human traditions, according to the elements of the world and not according to Christ.

9 For in him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily,

10 and in him who is the head of every Principality and Power you have received of that fullness.

11 In him, too, you have been circumcised with a circumcision not wrought by hand, but through putting off the body of the flesh, a circumcision which is of Christ.

12 For you were buried together with him in Baptism, and in him also rose again through faith in the working of God who raised him from the dead.

13 And *d*you, when you were dead by reason of your sins and the uncircumcision of your flesh, he brought to life along with him, forgiving you all your sins, 14 cancelling the decree against us, which was hostile to us. Indeed, he has taken it completely away, nailing it to the cross.

15 Disarming the Principalities and Powers, he displayed them openly, leading them away in triumph by force of it.

Erroneous Practices

16 Let no one, then, call you to account for what you eat or drink or in regard to a festival or a new moon or a Sabbath.

17 These are a shadow of things to come, but the substance is of Christ.

18 Let no one cheat *e*you who takes pleasure in self-abasement and worship of the angels, and enters vainly into what he has not seen, puffed up by his mere human mind.

19 Such a one is not united to the head, from whom the whole body, supplied and built up by joints and ligaments, attains a growth that is of God.

20 If you have died with Christ to the elements of the world, why, as if still living in the world, do you lay down the rules:

Ver. 9-15. St. Paul adduces three points against the false teachings: (1) Christ is superior to the angels for in Him the divine nature is incarnate (ver. 9f): through Him, not through angels, we may become "partakers of the divine nature" [2 Pet. 1, 4]. (2) Our sins are forgiven, not through the agency of angels, but in our receiving at Baptism a spiritual circumcision (ver. 11-13). (3) Through his death on the cross Christ brought to an end the rule of Satan and his hosts over the world (ver. 14f).

Ver. 16-23. There is no need, then, for outworn

21 "Do not touch; nor taste; nor handle!"

22 things that must all perish in their very use? In this you follow "the precepts and doctrines of men."

23 which, to be sure, have a show of wisdom in superstition and self-abasement and hard treatment of the body, but are not to be held in esteem, and lead to the full gratification of the flesh.

CHAPTER 3

Mystical Death and Resurrection

THEREFORE, if you have risen with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God.

2 Mind the things that are above, not the things that are on earth.

3 For you have died and your life is hidden with Christ in God.

4 When Christ, your life, shall appear, then you too will appear with him in glory.

III: THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN LIFE IN THE WORLD

Renounce Vices

5 Therefore mortify your members, which are on earth: immorality, uncleanness, lust, evil desire and covetousness (which is a form of idol-worship).

6 Because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the unbelievers,

7 and you yourselves once walked in them when they were your life.

8 But *g*now do you also put them all away: anger, wrath, malice, abusive language and foul-mouthed utterances.

9 Do not lie to one another. Strip off the old man with his deeds

10 and put on the new, one that is being renewed unto perfect knowledge "according to the image of his Creator."

d Eph. 2, 1.—e Matt. 24, 4.—f Eph. 5, 3.—g Rom. 6, 4; Eph. 4, 22; Heb. 12, 1; 1 Pet. 2, 1; 4, 2.

and abrogated Judaic rites (ver. 16f), or for the ascetical practices carried out in connection with the superstitious worship of evil spirits (ver. 18-23). Indeed, such observances, inspired by vain pride, end in sinful catering to the sensual appetite.

Ver. 23. Or, "they have, to be sure, a show of wisdom in self-made piety and humiliation and bodily chastisement, but have no merit, serving the gratification of the flesh."

Chap. 3, Ver. 5. Covetousness is the worship of mammon [Matt. 6, 4].

11 Here there is not "Gentile and Jew," "circumcised and uncircumcised," "Barbarian and Scythian," "slave and free-man"; but Christ is all things and in all.

Practise Virtues

12 Put on therefore, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, a heart of mercy,^h kindness, humility, meekness, patience.

13 Bear with one another and forgive one another, if anyone has a grievance against any other; even as the Lord has forgiven you, so also do you forgive.

14 But above all these things have charity, which is the bond of perfection.

15 And may the peace of Christ reign in your hearts; unto that peace, indeed, you were called in one body. Show yourselves thankful.

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you abundantly: in all wisdom teach and admonish one another by psalms, hymns and spiritual songs, singing in your hearts to God by his grace.

17 Whatever you do in word or in work, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

The Christian Family

18 Wives, be subject to your husbands,ⁱ as is becoming in the Lord.

19 Husbands, love your wives and do not be bitter towards them.

20 Children, ^kobey your parents in all things, for that is pleasing in the Lord.

21 Fathers, ^ldo not provoke your children to anger, that they may not be discouraged.

Slaves and Masters

22 Slaves, ^mobey in all things your masters according to the flesh; not with eye-service seeking to please men, but in singleness of heart from fear of the Lord.

23 Whatever you do, work at it from

^h Eph. 6, 11.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 10, 31.—^j Eph. 5, 22; 1 Pet. 3, 1.—^k Eph. 6, 1.—^l Eph. 6, 4.—^m Titus 2, 9; 1 Pet. 2, 18.—ⁿ Rom. 2, 5.—^o Luke 18, 1; 1

Ver. 11. In the higher Christian life of grace, social and racial distinctions count for nothing.

Ver. 18-21. Cf. notes on Eph. 5, 21-6, 9.

Chap. 4, Ver. 5. Like St. Paul, the Colossians must look for favorable openings to win outsiders to the faith.

Ver. 7. Tychicus: cf. Introduction.

Ver. 8. The Greek reads, "... that you may know my circumstances and that he may comfort...."

the heart as for the Lord and not for men.
24 knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. Serve the Lord Christ.

25 For he who does a wrong will reap the wrong he did, and there is no respect of persons.

CHAPTER 4

MASTERS, give your slaves what is just and fair, knowing that you too have a Master in heaven.

Prayer and Prudence

2 Be ^o assiduous in prayer, being wakeful therein with thanksgiving.

3 At the same time ^p pray for us also, that God may give us an opportunity for the word, to announce the mystery of Christ (for which also I am in chains),

4 that I may openly announce it as I ought to speak.

5 Walk ^q in wisdom as regards outsiders, making the most of your time.

6 Let your speech, while always attractive, be seasoned with salt, that you may know how you ought to answer each one.

Conclusion

Tychicus and Onesimus

7 All my circumstances Tychicus, our dearest brother and faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord, will tell you.

8 Him I have sent to you for this very purpose, that he may learn your circumstances and comfort your hearts.

9 With him is Onesimus, our most dear and faithful brother, who is one of you. They will tell you all that is going on here.

From Paul's Co-workers

10 Aristarchus, my fellow-prisoner, sends you greetings; so does Mark, Bar-

Thess. 5, 17.—^p Eph. 6, 19; 2 Thess. 3, 1.—^q Eph. 5, 15.

Ver. 9. Onesimus: cf. the Epistle to Philemon.

Ver. 10f. Aristarchus: a Macedonian Jew from Thessalonica. He had been with St. Paul at Ephesus [Acts 19, 19] and followed him to Jerusalem and Rome [Acts 20, 4; 27, 2], where he voluntarily shared the Apostle's imprisonment in order to be able to serve him. Mark: the evangelist. Cf. Acts 12, 25; 15, 37-39. The Jewish convert Jesus Justus is not named elsewhere.

nabas' cousin (concerning whom you have received instructions—if he comes to you, welcome him), 11 and Jesus who is called Justus. Of men circumcised, these only are my fellow-workers in the kingdom of God; they have been a comfort to me.

12 Epaphras, who is one of you, sends you greetings—a servant of Christ Jesus, who is ever solicitous for you in his prayers, that you may remain perfect and completely in accord with all the will of God.

13 Yes, I bear him witness that he labors much for you and for those who are at Laodicea and at Hierapolis.

14 Luke, ^r our most dear physician, and Demas send you greetings.

Ver. 12f. Epaphras: cf. Introduction. He is not to be identified with Epaphroditus [Phil. 2, 25; 4, 18].

Ver. 14. Luke, our most dear physician: the evangelist. Demas: cf. 2 Tim. 4, 10.

Ver. 15. Like Philemon in Colossæ, Nymphas in Laodicea had placed his home at the disposal of the Christians for their religious services.

A Message for the Laodiceans

15 Greetings to the brethren who are at Laodicea and to Nymphas and the church that is in his house.

16 And when this letter has been read among you, see that it be read in the church of the Laodiceans also; and that you yourselves read the letter from Laodicea.

17 And say to Archippus: "Look to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it."

18 I, Paul, greet you by my own hand. Remember my chains. Grace be with you. Amen.

r 2 Tim. 4, 11.

Ver. 16. The Epistle to the Laodiceans has not been preserved. Some identify it as our canonical Epistle to the Ephesians.

Ver. 17. Archippus: may have been in charge of the Christians at Colossæ during the absence of Epaphras. Cf. Philem. 2.

The First Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the THESSALONIANS

ST. PAUL founded the church at Thessalonica during the early part of his second great missionary journey, i.e., about 51 A.D. Thessalonica, the capital of Macedonia, was a large and important city. Its population was predominantly Gentile, but Jews dwelt there in sufficient numbers to have a synagogue. Paul succeeded in converting some of the Jews and a large number of Gentiles. But his success stirred up the envy of the unbelieving Jews, who by calumny and riot compelled him to flee to Berea. From there he went to Athens and Corinth, and it was in the latter city that this letter was written.

While at Athens Paul, fearing lest the persecution which continued against the church at Thessalonica should cause his new converts to abandon the faith, sent Timothy to ascertain conditions in the church and to comfort and strengthen its members. Timothy reported to Paul at Corinth, bringing the cheering news of their constancy in the face of persecution. He likewise informed Paul that the Thessalonians required further instruction on the Second Coming of Christ, and this topic forms the main doctrinal subject of the Epistle, which was written shortly after Timothy's return from Thessalonica. The Second Epistle to the Thessalonians was written soon after the First, and these two Epistles are generally regarded as the earliest of Paul's writings.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL ^a and Silvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ: grace be to you and peace.

Thanksgiving for Their Faith

2 We give thanks to God always for you all, continually making a remembrance of you in our prayers;

3 being mindful before God our Father of your work of faith, and labor, and charity, and your enduring hope in our Lord Jesus Christ.

4 We know, brethren, beloved of God, how you were chosen.

5 For our gospel was not delivered to you in word only, but in power also, and in the Holy Spirit, and in much fullness, as indeed you know what manner of men we have been among you for your sakes.

6 And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, ^b receiving the word in great tribulation, with joy of the Holy Spirit,

7 so that you became a pattern to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia.

8 For from you the word of the Lord has been spread abroad, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has gone forth, so that we need say nothing further.

9 For ^c they themselves report concerning us how we entered among you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God,

10 and to await from heaven Jesus, his son, ^d whom he raised from the dead, who has delivered us from the wrath to come.

^a Acts 15, 40; 16, 19; 17, 1. 15.—^b Acts 13, 52.—^c Acts 14, 15.—^d Acts 17, 31.—^e Acts 20, 33.—^f John 5, 41, 44.—^g Acts 20, 34.—^h Acts 20, 31.

Chap. 1, Ver. 4. How you were chosen: their call by God to the faith and the circumstances of this call. Cf. ver. 5f.

Ver. 5. Miracles (in power) and an outpouring of Charismata (in the Holy Spirit) accompanied his preaching.

Ver. 6. In great tribulation: in spite of persecution, they joyfully accepted the faith.

I: PAUL'S PAST RELATIONS AND PRESENT INTEREST

CHAPTER 2

His Mission among Them

FOR you yourselves, brethren, know that our coming among you was not in vain.

2 But although we had previously experienced suffering and shameful treatment at Philippi, as you know, we had confidence in our God to preach to you the gospel of God amid much anxiety.

3 For our exhortation was not from error, nor from impure motives, nor from guile.

4 But as approved by God to be entrusted with the gospel, so we speak not as pleasing men, but God, who proves our hearts.

5 For at no time have we used words of flattery, as you know, nor any pretext for avarice, God is witness,

6 nor have we sought glory from men, ^f neither from you nor from others.

7 Although as the apostles of Christ we could have claimed a position of honor among you, still while in your midst we were as children: as if a nurse were cherishing her own children,

8 so we in our love for you would gladly have imparted to you not only the gospel of God, but also our own souls; because you had become most dear to us.

9 For you remember, brethren, our labor and toil. ^g We worked night and day so as not to be a burden to any of you while we preached to you the gospel of God.

10 You are witnesses and God also, how holy and just and blameless was our conduct towards you who have believed;

11 inasmuch as you are aware of how we entreated and comforted each one of you, ^h acting towards you as a father towards his children,

12 declaring to you that you should

Ver. 10. Wrath to come: eternal punishment. Cf. 1 Thess. 5, 9; 2 Cor. 1, 9.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. Not in vain: his preaching produced results. It was not ineffectual. Cf. 1 Thess. 3, 5.

Ver. 2. Shameful treatment at Philippi: cf. Acts 16, 22-24. Amid much anxiety: cf. Acts 17, 5-10.

Ver. 8. Our own souls: he was prepared to sacrifice his life for them.

Ver. 9. Cf. 2 Thess. 3, 8; Acts 20, 34; 1 Cor. 4, 12.

walk worthily of God, who called you unto his kingdom and glory.

Thanksgiving for Their Constancy

13 Therefore we too give thanks to God without ceasing, because when you heard and received from us the word of God, you welcomed it not as the word of men, but, as it truly is, the word of God, who works in you who have believed.

14 For you, brethren, have become imitators of the churches of God which are in Judea in Christ Jesus, in that you also have suffered the same things from your own countrymen as they have from the Jews,

15 who both killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and have persecuted us. ⁱ They are displeasing to God, and are hostile to all men, 16 because they hinder us from speaking to the Gentiles, that they may be saved. Thus they are always filling up the measure of their sins, for the wrath of God has come upon them to the utmost.

17 But we, brethren, being bereaved of you for a short time, in sight, not in heart, have made more than ordinary efforts to hasten to see you, so great has been our desire.

18 For we wanted to come to you—I, Paul, more than once—but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of glory, if not you before our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?

20 Yes, you are our glory and joy.

CHAPTER 3

The Mission of Timothy

AND SO ⁱ when we could bear it no longer we decided to remain at Athens alone, 2 and we sent Timothy, ^k our brother

Ver. 14. Cf. Acts 17, 5-9.

Ver. 16. The wrath of God: cf. 1 Thess. 1, 10; 5, 9. The severest kind of punishment God can inflict on the unbelieving Jews is eternal damnation. Possibly Paul also has in mind two other manifestations of God's anger towards the Jews, namely, the destruction of Jerusalem and the exclusion of the Jews as a nation from the Church. Cf. Rom. 11, 25-27.

Ver. 17. More than ordinary efforts to hasten: literally, "have hastened more abundantly."

Ver. 18. Satan hindered us: i.e., through evil men, whether Jews or Gentiles, who served as his agents to interfere with Paul's ministry.

Ver. 19. Coming: i.e., parousia. The word, used four times in 1 Thess. [cf. 1 Thess. 3, 13; 4, 15; 5, and a servant of God in the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and comfort you in your faith,

3 lest any should be shaken by these tribulations. For you yourselves know that we are appointed thereto.

4 Indeed ^l even when we were with you we used to tell you that we should suffer tribulations, as also it has come to pass, and you know.

5 Consequently when I could bear it no longer I sent in order to know your faith, lest perhaps the tempter might have tempted you, and our labor might come to naught.

6 But now that Timothy has come to us from you, ^m and has made known to us your faith and charity, and your kindly remembrance of us at all times, and that you long to see us just as we long to see you,

7 we have accordingly found comfort in you, brethren, amid all our trials and tribulations, on account of your faith;

8 because now we live, if you stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we return to God for you for all the joy wherewith we rejoice for your sakes before our God?

10 Night and day we pray more and more that we may see you again, and may supply those things that are lacking to your faith.

11 May God our Father and our Lord Jesus direct our way unto you.

12 And may the Lord make you to increase and abound in charity towards one another, and towards all men just as we do towards you, 13 that he may strengthen your hearts, blameless in holiness before God our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints. Amen.

ⁱ Acts 2, 23; 7, 52.—^j Acts 17, 14f.—^k Acts 16, 1f.—^l Acts 14, 22.—^m Acts 18, 5.

23], occurs here for the first time. Literally it means "presence," but in the New Testament it is a technical term for the Second Coming of Christ.

Chap. 3, Ver. 3. Shaken: has the meaning of "unfavorably affected." We are appointed thereto: cf. Acts 14, 21; 2 Tim. 3, 12.

Ver. 5. The tempter: the devil. He is also given this name in Matt. 4, 3.

Ver. 10. More and more: literally, "more abundantly." Those things that are lacking to your faith: he wished to give them fuller instruction in the truths of Christianity. He had been obliged to leave Thessalonica before completing their instruction. Cf. Acts 17, 1-10.

CHAPTER 4

Exhortation to Chastity and Charity

MOREOVER, brethren, even as you have learned from us how you ought to walk to please God—as indeed you are walking—we beseech and exhort you in the Lord Jesus to make even greater progress.

2 For you know what precepts I have given to you by the Lord Jesus.

3 For this is the will of God, your sanctification; that you abstain from immorality;

4 that every one of you learn how to possess his vessel in holiness and honor,

5 not in the passion of lust like the Gentiles who do not know God;

6 that no one transgress and overreach his brother in the matter, because the Lord is the avenger of all these things, as we have told you before and have testified.

7 For God has not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness.

8 Therefore, he who rejects these things rejects not man but God, who has also given his Holy Spirit to us.

9 But concerning brotherly charity there is no need for us to write to you, ⁿfor you yourselves have learned from God to love one another.

10 For indeed you practise it towards all the brethren all over Macedonia. But we exhort you, brethren, to make even greater progress.

11 Strive to live peacefully, minding ⁿ John 13, 34.—^o 1 Cor. 15, 20.—^p 1 Cor. 15, 3f. 12.—^q 1 Cor. 15, 51.—^r 1 Cor. 15, 23. 52.—^s John 12, 26; 17, 24.—^t Matt. 24, 36-45.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. To make even greater progress: literally, "to abound more."

Ver. 3. Immorality: Paul repeatedly warns his converts against this sin. Cf. 1 Cor. 5, 11; 6. 9. 13. 15-20; 1 Tim. 1, 10.

Ver. 4. Vessel: may refer to a man's body or to his wife. The first meaning seems preferable. In this sense of "body," Paul is forbidding the use of it for immorality. In the sense of "wife," two translations are given: (a) acquire a wife, (b) possess a wife; (a) avoid sexual indulgence before marriage, (b) make a proper use of marriage.

Ver. 6. In the matter: the Vulgate, in negotio, may also mean "in business," but the context, which is concerned with immorality, favors the translation given. Paul is here warning against sins of adultery.

Ver. 8. These things: this teaching.

Ver. 14. After so understand the words: "we believe that." Fallen asleep through Jesus: those who died united to Jesus by grace shall share in His glorious Resurrection. There is a necessary bond between the Resurrection of Christ and that of the just. Cf. 1 Cor. 15, 13-16. 20f; 50-55.

your own affairs, working with your own hands, as we charged you, 12 so that you may walk becomingly towards outsiders, and may need nothing.

II: THE SECOND COMING
OF OUR LORD*Witnessed by the Dead*

13 But we would not, brethren, have you ignorant concerning those who are asleep, lest you should grieve, even as others who have no hope.

14 For ^pif we believe that Jesus died and rose again, so with him God will bring those also who have fallen asleep through Jesus.

15 For ^qthis we say to you in the word of the Lord, that we who live, who survive until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep.

16 For ^rthe Lord himself with cry of command, with voice of archangel, and with trumpet of God will descend from heaven; and the dead in Christ will rise up first.

17 Then ^swe who live, who survive, shall be caught up together with them in clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we shall ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, comfort one another with these words.

CHAPTER 5

Time Unknown

BUT of the times and seasons, brethren, you have no need that we write to you,

Ver. 15. In the word of the Lord: Paul's teaching on the subject of the parousia is that of Christ Himself. We who live, who survive: this does not assert or imply that the parousia will take place in the lifetime of St. Paul. We: applies to the faithful, whoever they may be, who are alive at the end of the world. Those living at the Second Coming of Christ shall have no advantage over those who have died, because the living shall not go before them to glory or receive glory without them. The Thessalonians, therefore, need not grieve over the lot of the dead.

Ver. 16. Cry of command, voice of archangel, trumpet of God: probably signify the same thing, namely, God's command to the dead to arise. Cf. Matt. 24, 30; Luke 21, 27; Acts 1, 11; 2 Thess. 1, 7.

Chap. 5, Ver. 1. In ver. 2 Paul gives the reason why it is unnecessary for him to write to them about the time of Christ's Second Coming. When among them he had informed them that it would occur suddenly and unexpectedly. The time is uncertain because no man knows it. Cf. Matt. 24, 36; Mark 13, 32.

2 for you yourselves know well that the day of the Lord is to come as a thief in the night.

3 For when they shall say, "Peace and security," even then sudden destruction will come upon them, as birth pangs upon her who is with child, and they will not escape.

Be Always Prepared

4 But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief;

5 for you are all children of the light and children of the day. We are not of night, nor of darkness.

6 Therefore, let us not sleep as do the rest, but let us be wakeful and sober.

7 For they who sleep, sleep at night, and they who are drunk, are drunk at night.

8 But let us, who are of the day, be sober. ^u Let us put on the breastplate of faith and charity, and for a helmet the hope of salvation.

9 For God has not destined us unto wrath, but to gain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, 10 who died for us in order that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 Wherefore, comfort one another and edify one another, even as indeed you do.

Conclusion

Obedience, Patience and Charity

12 Now we beseech you, brethren, to appreciate those who labor among you, ^u Eph. 6, 14-17; Isa. 59, 17.—^v Prov. 20, 22.

Ver. 4. Since the day of the Lord is uncertain as to time, there remains the possibility that it may occur during the lifetime of the Thessalonians. Paul neither asserts nor implies that it will. He merely points out the practical conclusions to be drawn from this possibility. It should not terrify them, because their virtues render them ready to meet Christ. It should prompt them always to live in a state of readiness [ver. 5-8]. Paul's admonition is the same as that of Christ. Cf. Matt. 24, 44.

Ver. 9. Wrath: cf. 1 Thess. 1, 10; 2, 16.

Ver. 12. The existence of a hierarchy is indicated.

Ver. 13. Be at peace with them: a variant reading has, "be at peace among yourselves."

Ver. 14. The irregular: the Greek reads "idlers."

and who are over you in the Lord and admonish you.

13 Esteem them with a more abundant love on account of their work. Be at peace with them.

14 And we exhort you, brethren, improve the irregular, comfort the faint-hearted, support the weak, be patient towards all men.

15 See ^v that no one renders evil for evil to any man; but always strive after good towards one another and towards all men.

16 Rejoice always.

17 Pray without ceasing.

18 In all things give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus regarding you all.

19 Do not extinguish the Spirit.

20 Do not despise prophecies.

21 But test all things; hold fast that which is good.

22 Keep yourselves from every kind of evil.

Final Blessing and Greeting

23 And may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved sound, blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 He who called you is faithful and will do this.

25 Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss.

27 I charge you by the Lord that this epistle be read to all the holy brethren.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

Ver. 19. Do not extinguish the Spirit: make use of the charismatic gifts such as tongues and prophecy. Cf. 1 Cor. 12-14.

Ver. 20. Prophecies: inspired instructions of those who had the gift known as prophecy.

Ver. 21. Test all things: they are to make certain that the gifts are genuine.

Ver. 23. Spirit: the human soul as the principle of intelligence and will. Soul: the human soul as the principle of animal and sensitive life, hence as the seat of the affections and feelings. Spirit, soul, and body, are the terms in which Paul sums up man and his activities. Cf. 1 Cor. 15, 44. 46; Heb. 4, 12. Consequently he prays that under the grace of God they may be wholly sanctified.

The Second Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the THESSALONIANS

THE FIRST EPISTLE failed to quiet the doubts and fears of the Thessalonians, and so Paul hastened to supply them with fuller information on the subject of the "parousia," or Second Coming of Christ. He informed them that the "parousia" was not at hand. It could not take place until a great apostasy occurred and Antichrist appeared. Some of the Thessalonians who were convinced that the Second Coming of Christ was at hand thought it useless to work, and consequently lived irregularly.

Paul condemned this practice, and ordered the offenders to be corrected. He urged all to adhere to his teachings, whether these were given orally or in writing.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians^a in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Their Faith and Constancy

3 We are bound to give thanks to God always for you, brethren. It is fitting that we should, because your faith grows exceedingly and your charity each one for the other increases.

4 And because of this we ourselves boast of you in the churches of God for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and the tribulations that you are enduring.

5 In this there is a proof of the just judgment of God counting you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which also you suffer.

^a Thess. 1, 1.—^b Isa. 66, 15; Jer. 10, 25; Ps. 78, 6.—^c Isa. 2, 10. 19. 21.—^d Ps. 88, 8; 67, 36; Isa.

Chap. 1, Ver. 5. Proof: i.e., token or indication. Their persecutions and sufferings show that God will have to punish and reward in another life. Cf. ver. 6f.

Ver. 7. At the revelation of the Lord Jesus: i.e., at the parousia or Second Coming of Christ. Cf. Matt. 24, 30f.

Ver. 8. In flaming fire: this is a figurative description of the appearance of Christ as judge. Cf. 1 Cor. 3, 12-15. All who reject the gospel, whether Jews or pagans, shall be punished.

6 Indeed it is just on the part of God to repay with affliction those who afflict you,

7 and to give you who are afflicted rest with us at the revelation of the Lord Jesus who will come from heaven with the angels of his power,

8 in flaming fire, ^b to inflict punishment on those who do not know God, and who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 These ^c will be punished with eternal ruin, away from the face of the Lord and the glory of his power,

10 when on that day he shall come to be glorified in his saints,^d and to be marvelled at in all those who have believed. For our testimony before you has been believed.

Prayer for Their Glorification

11 To this end also we pray always for you, that our God may make you worthy of his calling, and may fulfill with power every good purpose and work of faith,

12 That the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you,^e and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

48, 3.—^e Isa. 24, 15; 66, 5; Mal. 1, 11.

Ver. 9. Eternal ruin: eternal damnation. Away from the face of the Lord: i.e., eternal separation from Christ. The glory of his power: i.e., eternal deprivation of the glory imparted to the just by the power of Christ.

Ver. 10. The glory of the just is reflected in Christ who obtained it for them.

Ver. 12. All sanctification and glorification are achieved through the grace of Christ.

I: THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD

CHAPTER 2

Preludes to the Second Coming

WE BESEECH YOU, brethren,^f by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered together unto him,

2 not to be hastily shaken from your right mind, nor terrified, whether by spirit, or by utterance, or by letter attributed to us, as though the day of the Lord were near at hand.

3 Let no one deceive you in any way, for the day of the Lord will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of sin is revealed, the son of perdition,

4 who opposes and is exalted above all that is called God, or that is worshipped, so that he sits in the temple of God and gives himself out as if he were God.

5 Do you not remember that when I was still with you, I used to tell you these things?

6 And now you know what restrains him, that he may be revealed in his proper time.

7 For the mystery of iniquity is already at work; ^g provided only that he who is at present restraining it, does still restrain, until he is gotten out of the way.

8 And then the wicked one will be revealed, ^h whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth and will destroy with the brightness of his coming.

9 And his coming is according ⁱ to the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders,

^f 1 Thess. 4, 13-17.—^g Acts 20, 29.—^h Isa. 11, 4; Apoc. 19, 15. 20.—ⁱ Matt. 24, 24; Apoc. 13, 11.—

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. Spirit . . . utterance . . . letter: indicate three possible sources of their belief that the parousia is imminent. Spirit refers to some falsely claimed revelation; utterance may be a statement of Paul's which was misunderstood, or wrongly attributed to him; the letter seems to be one forged in Paul's name.

Ver. 3. The day of the Lord will not come: these words have been inserted to complete the sentence, which in the original is elliptical. The parousia must be preceded by a great apostasy, i.e., a great religious revolt, and the advent of the man of sin, i.e., Antichrist. Son of Perdition: one entirely deserving of eternal punishment.

Ver. 4. Antichrist will be characterized by great impiety and pride. He sits in the temple of God, etc.: he will aspire to be treated as God and proclaim that he is really God. The reference to the temple should not be pressed.

Ver. 6. What restrains him: the Thessalonians knew the obstacle. We can only conjecture what it was.

Ver. 7. Mystery of iniquity: the evil power of which Antichrist is to be the public exponent and champion. He who is at present restraining it: the 10 and with all wicked deception to those who are perishing. For they have not received the love of truth that they might be saved.

11 Therefore God sends them a misleading influence that they may believe falsehood, 12 that all may be judged who have not believed the truth, but have preferred wickedness.

Thanksgiving for Their Election

13 But we, brethren beloved of God, are bound to give thanks to God always for you, because God has chosen you as first-fruits unto salvation through the sanctification of the Spirit and belief ⁱ of the truth.

14 For this purpose he also called you by our preaching to gain the glory ^k of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 So then, brethren, stand firm, and hold the teachings that you have learned, whether by word or by letter of ours.

16 And may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our ^l Father, who has loved us and has given us through grace everlasting consolation and good hope, 17 comfort and strengthen your hearts in every good work and word.

II: EXHORTATION

CHAPTER 3

Request for Mutual Prayer

IN CONCLUSION, brethren, pray for us,^m that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified even as among you, ^j 1 Thess. 2, 13.—^k 1 Thess. 4, 7; 5, 9.—^l 1 Thess. 3, 11.—^m 1 Thess. 5, 25.

obstacle is now spoken of as a person. Some suggest that Michael the archangel and his heavenly army may be the obstacles which now prevent the appearance of Antichrist.

Ver. 8. When Christ appears in glory, He will inflict defeat and death on Antichrist by a mere word of command.

Ver. 9f. By the aid of Satan Antichrist will perform prodigies which men will falsely regard as miracles, and by means of which they will be led to adopt sinful practices and erroneous doctrines.

Ver. 11. God sends: God will allow their willful rejection of truth to have its natural results of spiritual blindness, impenitence and damnation. A misleading influence: or, "a delusion."

Ver. 13. First-fruits: i.e., earliest believers in the gospel. Some Manuscripts read: "from the beginning." That is, God called them from all eternity.

Ver. 15. Teachings: i.e., his teachings whether given orally or in writing. Hence not all apostolic teaching was written in the books of the New Testament.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. May run: i.e., be rapidly spread. Be glorified: i.e., be held in honor.

2 and that we may be delivered from troublesome and evil men; for not all men have the faith.

3 But the Lord is faithful, who will strengthen you and guard you from evil.

4 And we have confidence in the Lord as regards you, that you both do and will do the things that we enjoin.

5 And may the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God and the patience of Christ.

Against Idleness

6 And we charge you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to withdraw yourselves from every brother who lives irregularly, and not according to the teaching received from us.

7 For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us; for we were not unruly while with you,

8 neither did we eat any man's bread at his cost, but we worked night and day in labor and toil, so that we might not burden any of you.

9 Not that we did not have the right to do so, but that we might make ourselves an example for you to imitate us.

n 1 Thess. 3, 4; 4, 11.—o 1 Thess. 5, 14.

Ver. 2. Cf. Acts 17, 5-13 and 18, 5f for Jewish opposition to his efforts.

Ver. 6. Irregularly: here, as in v. 11, the term refers to deliberate avoidance of work, or malingering. In 1 Thess. 4, 11 and in his preaching (3, 10) Paul expressly instructed them to work and perform their daily duties.

Ver. 7. He refers to his own example which should have been imitated.

Ver. 8f. He did not insist on his right to their 10 For indeed when we were with you we used to charge you: ⁿ if any man will not work, neither let him eat.

11 For we have heard that some among you are living irregularly,^o doing no work but busy at meddling.

12 Now such persons we charge and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ that they work quietly and eat their own bread.

13 But you, brethren, do not grow tired of well-doing.

14 And if anyone does not obey our word by this letter, note that man and do not associate with him, that he may be put to shame.

15 Yet do not regard him as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

Conclusion

Final Blessing and Greeting

16 And may the Lord of peace himself give you everlasting peace in every place. The Lord be with you all.

17 I, Paul, greet you with my own hand. This is the mark in every letter. Thus I write.

18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

support, but provided for himself by the labor of his own hands. Cf. 1 Thess. 2, 9; Acts 18, 3; 20, 34; 1 Cor. 9, 14f; 2 Cor. 11, 7-13.

Ver. 10. Paul indicates one of the means to be used in repressing culpable idleness. Cf. v. 12 for another.

Ver. 16. In every place: a variant reading has, "in every manner."

Ver. 17. Thus I write: i.e., this is my handwriting. His personal signature is the sign that the letter is his.

The First Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to TIMOTHY

THE TWO Epistles to St. Timothy and the one to St. Titus are called Pastoral Epistles because they are addressed directly, not to any church as a group, but rather to its head or pastor for his guidance in the rule of the church. All three Epistles are closely connected in form and content. From earliest times these letters have been recognized as inspired and canonical by the eastern and western Fathers.

St. Timothy was of Lystra in Lyca-onia, born of a Greek father and a Jewish mother (Acts 16, 1). He was educated in the assiduous reading of the Scriptures (2 Tim. 3, 15). His mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois (2 Tim. 1, 5), as well as Timothy himself, probably embraced the faith during St. Paul's first stay at Lystra, since they were already Christians at his return on the second missionary journey (Acts 16, 1). It was at that time that Timothy was highly recommended by the Christians and the Apostle chose him as a missionary companion. Since Timothy was uncircumcised, the Apostle performed this rite upon him to facilitate his preaching among the Jewish colonists in the regions of Phrygia (Acts 16, 3) and elsewhere. Thereafter Timothy was seldom parted from St. Paul, who employed him in some difficult and confidential missions (2 Thess. 3, 1-8; 1 Cor. 4, 17; 16, 10; Phil. 2, 19-23; Heb. 13, 23). During the first imprisonment of the Apostle at Rome, Timothy was with his master (Col. 1, 1; Philem. 1; Phil. 1, 1). After this imprisonment he accompanied the Apostle on his last missionary journey and was left at Ephesus to take charge of the church there (1 Tim. 1, 3). The Apostle, shortly before his death, wrote Timothy to come to him before the winter (2 Tim. 1, 4; 4, 9, 21). According to tradition Timothy spent the rest of his life at Ephesus as its bishop and was martyred during the winter of 97 A.D. His feast is celebrated in the Latin Church on January 24.

This first epistle was written between Paul's liberation from the first imprisonment (63 A.D.) and his death (67 A.D.), on one of his journeys not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles (1 Tim. 1, 3; cf. also 2 Tim. 4, 13, 20; Titus 3, 12), since it presupposes an ecclesiastical hierarchy as well as false teachers at Ephesus, who were not there during the Apostle's third missionary journey (Acts 20, 29f). For these reasons Catholic authors commonly hold that the Epistle was written in 65 or 66 A.D. from Macedonia (1 Tim. 1, 3).

A twofold thought is dominant in this Epistle. Timothy must energetically combat false teachers and actively engage in the work of organizing the community. The thought of the Apostle moves restlessly back and forth on these two points, since he was fully aware from his own experience of the dangers that threatened.

Introduction CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the order of God our Savior, and of Christ Jesus our hope,

2 To Timothy, ^a his beloved son in the faith: grace, mercy and peace from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

I: AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

Timothy's Mission at Ephesus

3 When I went to Macedonia, I asked thee to stay on at Ephesus that thou mightest charge some not to teach novel doctrines,

4 and not to study ^b fables and endless genealogies which beget controversies rather than godly edification, which is in the faith.

5 Now the purpose of this charge is charity, from a pure heart and a good conscience and faith unfeigned.

6 Some going astray from these things have turned aside to vain babbling,

7 desiring to be teachers of the Law, when they understand neither what they say nor the things about which they make assertion.

Role of the Law

8 But ^c we know that the Law is good, if a man uses it rightly,

9 knowing that the Law is not made for the just, but for the unjust and rebellious, for the ungodly and sinners, for criminals and the defiled, for parricides and matricides, for murderers,

10 for immoral people, for sodomites, for kidnappers, for liars, for perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to the sound doctrine, 11 according to the gospel of the glory of the blessed God, which has been committed to my trust.

The Apostle's Own Life

12 I give thanks to Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because he counted me trustworthy in making me his minister.

13 For I formerly was a blasphemer, a persecutor and a bitter adversary; but

^a Acts 16, 1.—^b 1 Tim. 4, 7; 2 Tim. 2, 16; Titus 3, 9.—^c Rom. 7, 12.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. Savior: this title, applied to God so frequently in the Old Testament, is rarely so used in the New.

Ver. 3f. This sentence contains the theme of the Epistle and its thought is resumed in 1 Tim. 2, 1.

Ver. 4^o. Genealogies: probably Jewish legends, not always reverent, about Biblical characters. Edification: the Greek text reads "economy," i.e., the dispensation of salvation. The sense is about the same.

Ver. 7f. These verses indicate that the novel doctrines are Jewish.

I obtained the mercy of God because I acted ignorantly, in unbelief.

14 Indeed, the grace of our Lord has abounded beyond measure in the faith and love that is in Christ Jesus.

15 This saying is true and worthy of entire acceptance, ^dthat Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the chief.

16 But for this reason I obtained mercy, that in me first Christ Jesus might show forth all patience, as an example to those who shall believe in him for the attainment of life everlasting.

17 To the King of the ages, who is immortal, invisible, the one only God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

Fidelity to Vocation

18 I commit to thee this charge, my son Timothy, that according to the prophecies once made concerning thee, thou mayest fight the good fight by means of them,

19 having faith and a good conscience. Some rejecting this have made shipwreck of the faith, 20 among whom are Hymeneus ^e and Alexander, whom I have delivered up to Satan that they may learn not to blaspheme.

II: PASTORAL CHARGE

CHAPTER 2

Directions on Prayer

I URGE therefore, first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions and thanksgivings be made for all men;

2 for kings, and for all in high positions, that we may lead a quiet and peaceful life in all piety and worthy behavior.

3 This is good and agreeable in the sight of God our Savior,

4 who wishes all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth.

Ver. 15. True: i.e., "reliable," "trustworthy."

Ver. 20. Delivered up to Satan: this expression means excommunication. Cf. 1 Cor. 5, 4f.

Chap. 2, Ver. 4. God by His antecedent will wishes all men to be saved, and no one is lost save by his own fault.

Ver. 5. This insistence on the universal mediatorship of Christ as man is against the separatist tendencies.

Ver. 8. Frescoes and graffiti of the catacombs show Christians praying with upturned palms.

5 For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, himself man, Christ Jesus, 6 who gave himself a ransom for all, bearing witness in his own time.

7 To this I have been appointed a preacher and an apostle (I tell the truth, I do not lie), a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

Women in Public Assemblies

8 I wish, then, that the men pray everywhere, lifting up pure hands, without wrath and contention.

9 In like manner ^fI wish women to be decently dressed, adorning themselves with modesty and dignity, not with braided hair or gold or pearls or expensive clothing,

10 but with good works such as become women professing godliness.

11 Let a woman learn in silence with all submission.

12 For I do not allow a woman to teach, ^gor to exercise authority over men; but she is to keep quiet.

13 For Adam ^hwas formed first, then Eve.

14 And Adam ⁱwas not deceived, but the woman was deceived and was in sin.

15 Yet women will be saved by child-bearing, if they continue in faith and love and holiness with modesty.

CHAPTER 3

Qualities of a Bishop

THIS saying is true: If anyone is eager for the office of bishop, he desires a good work.

2 A bishop, then, must be blameless, ^jmarried but once, reserved, prudent, of good conduct, hospitable, a teacher, ^d Matt. 9, 13; Mark 2, 17.—^e 2 Tim. 2, 17; 4, 14.—^f 1 Pet. 3, 3.—^g 1 Cor. 14, 34.—^h Gen. 1, 26.—ⁱ Gen. 3, 6.—^j Titus 1, 7.

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. Bishop: represents a Greek word meaning "overseer," and "presbyter" another Greek word meaning "elder." In St. Paul "bishop" and "presbyter" seem to be used convertibly, and probably priests are here included under the term "bishops."

Ver. 2. Married but once: priestly celibacy as a law is of later ecclesiastical institution. No condemnation of second marriages in general is intended.

3 not a drinker or a brawler, but moderate, not quarrelsome, not avaricious.

4 He should rule well his own household, keeping his children under control and perfectly respectful.

5 For if a man cannot rule his own household, how is he to take care of the church of God?

6 He must not be a new convert, lest he be puffed up with pride and incur the condemnation passed on the devil.

7 Besides this he must have a good reputation with those who are outside, that he may not fall into disgrace and into a snare of the devil.

Qualities of a Deacon

8 Deacons also must be honorable, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy for base gain, 9 but holding the mystery of faith in a pure conscience.

10 And let them first be tried, and if found without reproach let them be allowed to serve.

11 In like manner let the women be honorable, not slanderers, but reserved, faithful in all things.

12 Deacons should be men who have been married but once, ruling well their children and their own households.

13 And those who have fulfilled well this office will acquire a good position and great confidence in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

III: AGAINST FALSE DOCTRINE

Pillar and Mainstay of the Truth

14 I write these things to thee hoping to come to thee shortly,

15 but in order that thou mayest know, if I am delayed, how to conduct thyself in the house of God, which is the Church of k 2 Tim. 3, 1; 2 Pet. 3, 3; Jude 1, 18.—l 1 Tim. 1, 4; 2 Tim. 2, 23; Titus 3, 9.

Ver. 8. Deacons: though this term is used in other places in the general sense of minister or servant, here it clearly refers to the sacramental office and order.

Ver. 16. Mystery of godliness: this is the gospel. The Greek reading is "who," i.e., the Christ, instead of "which," i.e., the gospel. We have here perhaps a fragment of a liturgical hymn. (Aramean). Manifested: In His appearance on earth. Justified: in His glorious Resurrection. Appeared to angels: at His Ascension.

the living God, the pillar and mainstay of the truth.

16 And obviously great is the mystery of godliness: which was manifested in the flesh, was justified in the spirit, appeared to angels, was preached to Gentiles, believed in the world, taken up in glory.

CHAPTER 4

Lying Teachers

Now the Spirit expressly says k that in after times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to deceitful spirits and doctrines of devils,

2 speaking lies hypocritically, and having their conscience branded.

3 They will forbid marriage, and will enjoin abstinence from foods, which God has created to be partaken of with thanksgiving by the faithful and by those who know the truth.

4 For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be rejected that is accepted with thanksgiving.

5 For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer.

Piety and False Asceticism

6 By recommending these things to the brethren, thou wilt be a good minister of Christ Jesus, nourished with the words of faith and of the good doctrine to which thou hast attained.

7 But avoid foolish fables^l and old wives' tales and train thyself in godliness.

8 For bodily training is of little profit, while godliness is profitable in all respects, since it has the promise of the present life as well as of that which is to come.

9 This saying is true and worthy of entire acceptance;

10 for we work and are reviled for this reason, that we hope in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, especially of believers.

Chap. 4, Ver. 2. Fugitive slaves and criminals were often branded on the forehead.

Ver. 3-5. St. Paul condemns abstinence when it is the result of the false principle that matter is bad because produced by the evil spirit. From right motives of self-denial and mortification, and as commanded by the Church, the practice of fast and abstinence is good.

Ver. 5. Word of God: is either the creative word of God, or prayers from Scripture said at meals.

Zeal in His Office

11 Command and teach these things.

12 Let no man despise thy youth, but be thou an example to the faithful in speech, in conduct, in charity, in faith, in chastity.

13 Until I come, be diligent in reading, in exhortation and in teaching.

14 Do not neglect the grace that is in thee, granted to thee by reason of prophecy with the laying on of hands of the presbyterate.

15 Meditate on these things, give thyself entirely to them, that thy progress may be manifest to all.

16 Take heed to thyself and to thy teaching, be earnest in them. For in so doing thou wilt save both thyself and those who hear thee.

IV: DUTIES TOWARDS THE FLOCK

CHAPTER 5

Different Classes

DO NOT REBUKE an elderly man, but exhort him as you would a father, and young men as brothers,

2 elderly women as mothers, younger women as sisters in all chastity.

Widows

3 Honor widows who are truly widowed.

4 But if a widow has children or grandchildren, let these first learn to provide for their own household and make some return to their parents, for this is pleasing to God.

5 But she who is truly a widow, and left solitary, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day.

Ver. 12. Thy youth: St. Timothy would be about thirty-five years old at this time.

Ver. 13. Reading: this is the public reading of the Scriptures.

Ver. 14. Presbyterate: i.e., the priesthood.

Chap. 5, Ver. 3, Truly widowed: i.e., one who is alone, solitary, with no relatives to provide for her. Cf. ver. 4f. 16. Honor: implies support, like our word "honorarium." Cf. ver. 9.

Ver. 4. Let these first learn: implies that the children and grandchildren of a widow should provide for her. The Clementine Vulgate, reading in the singular, seems to mean that such a widow should devote herself to the care of her children and grandchildren.

6 For she who gives herself up to pleasures is dead while she is still alive.

7 And command them to be blameless.

8 But if anyone does not take care of his own, and especially of his household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

9 Let a widow who is selected be not less than sixty years old, having been married but once,

10 with a reputation for her good works in bringing up children, in practising hospitality, in washing the saints' feet, in helping those in trouble, in carefully pursuing every good work.

11 But refuse younger widows, for when they have wantonly turned away from Christ, they wish to marry, 12 and are to be condemned because they have broken their first troth.

13 And further, being idle, they learn to go about from house to house, and are not only idle but gossipers as well and busybodies, mentioning things they ought not.

14 I desire therefore that the younger widows marry, bear children, rule their households, and give the adversary no occasion for abusing us.

15 For already some have turned aside after Satan.

16 If any believing woman has widowed relatives, let her provide for them and do not let the Church be burdened, in order that there may be enough for those who are truly widows.

Presbyters

17 Let the presbyters who rule well be held worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in the word and in teaching.

18 For the Scripture says, m "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treads out m Deut. 25, 4; 1 Cor. 9, 9; Matt. 10, 10; Luke 10, 17.

Ver. 8. Has denied the faith: "which works through charity" [Gal. 5, 6].

Ver. 9. This verse shows that the widow had an official position in the Church, at least as a beneficiary, and that some pledged themselves for life. Cf. ver. 11.

Ver. 11. Refuse: reject, do not admit to an official position.

Ver. 14. This direction to young widows to marry does not contradict the Apostle's recommendation of virginity [1 Cor. 7, 40]. St. Paul has in mind those whom he has just described.

Ver. 17. Double honor: more ample provision. Cf. ver. 3 above.

the grain," and, "The laborer is worthy of his wages."

19 Do not listen to an accusation against a presbyter unless it is supported by two or three witnesses.

20 When they sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, that the rest also may have fear.

21 I charge thee before God and Christ Jesus and the elect angels that thou observe these things impartially, in no way favoring either side.

22 Do not lay hands hastily upon anyone, and do not be a partner in other men's sins. Keep thyself chaste.

23 Stop drinking water only, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thy frequent infirmities.

24 Some men's sins are manifest even before investigation, other men's sins only afterwards.

25 In like manner also the good works are manifest, and those that are otherwise cannot be hidden.

CHAPTER 6

Slaves

LET SLAVES who are under the yoke account their masters deserving of all honor, that the name of the Lord and his teaching be not blasphemed.

2 And when they have masters who are believers, let them not despise them because they are brethren, but let them serve them all the more because they who receive their services are believers and beloved. Teach and exhort these things.

Lying Teachers

3 If anyone teaches otherwise and does not agree with the sound instruction of our Lord Jesus Christ, and that doctrine which is according to godliness, ⁿ Job 1, 21; Eccles. 5, 14.—^o Prov. 27, 26.—^p Matt. 27, 11; John 18, 33. 37.—^q Apoc. 17, 14; 19, 16.—^r John 1, 18; 1 John 4, 12.

Ver. 23. This abrupt parenthesis is characteristic of St. Paul.

Ver. 24. St. Paul adds two maxims that should guide St. Timothy in selecting leaders for the Church. Those publicly known to be unworthy are excluded, but all candidates are to be investigated before ordination.

Chap. 6, Ver. 11. St. Paul appears anxious about 4 he is proud, knowing nothing, but doting about controversies and disputes of words. From these arise envies, quarrels, blasphemies, base suspicions,

5 the wranglings of men corrupt in mind and bereft of truth, supposing godliness to be gain.

6 And godliness with contentment is indeed great gain.

7 For we brought nothing into the ⁿ world, and certainly we can take nothing out;

8 but having food and sufficient clothing, ^o with these let us be content.

9 But those who seek to become rich fall into temptation and a snare and into many useless and harmful desires, which plunge men into destruction and damnation.

10 For covetousness is the root of all evils, and some in their eagerness to get rich have strayed from the faith and have involved themselves in many troubles.

Final Plea

11 But thou, O man of God, flee these things; but pursue justice, godliness, faith, charity, patience, mildness.

12 Fight the good fight of the faith, lay hold on the life eternal, to which thou hast been called, and hast made the good confession before many witnesses.

13 I charge thee in the sight of God, who gives life to all things, and in the sight of Christ Jesus, who bore witness ^p before Pontius Pilate to the good confession, 14 that thou keep the commandment without stain, blameless until the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 This coming he in his own time will make manifest, ^q who is the Blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords;

16 who alone has immortality and dwells in light inaccessible, ^r whom no man has seen or can see, to whom be honor and everlasting dominion. Amen.

Timothy, whose youth and timidity were known to him. But we must not exaggerate the Apostle's subjective fears by picturing his disciple as a weakling.

Ver. 12. Timothy's confession of the Christ was either at his Baptism, or before the priests of Lystra at his ordination; or, as is more probable from the expression used, at some time before the civil magistrates.

The Rich

17 Charge the rich of this world not to be proud, s or to trust in the uncertainty of riches, but in God, who provides all things in abundance for our enjoyment.

18 Let them do good and be rich in good works, giving readily, sharing with others, 19 and thus providing for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, in order that they may lay hold on the true life.

Conclusion

Exhortation and Greeting

20 O Timothy, guard the trust and keep free from profane novelties in speech and the contradictions of so-called knowledge, 21 which some have professed and have fallen away from the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

s Luke 12, 21.

The Second Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to TIMOTHY

THE SECOND EPISTLE to Timothy was written in 66 or 67 A.D., while St. Paul was a prisoner in Rome for the second and last time.

The Apostle describes himself as still in prison and abandoned by nearly all his companions, who for various reasons have left Rome (4, 9f). Only Luke the physician, of whom he seems to have special need, is with him (4, 11). He feels his isolation keenly, particularly since his relations with the Roman church are much restricted. He feels the need of seeing Mark and Timothy, for whom Tychicus was to substitute at Ephesus (4, 11f). He sees his death near (4, 6-8).

The Epistle is an urgent invitation to Timothy to join him, yet the Apostle is concerned to strengthen the spirit of his beloved disciple and to urge him again to act energetically against the separatist teachers.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, in accordance with the promise of life in Christ Jesus,

2 to Timothy, my beloved son: grace, mercy and peace from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. In accordance, etc.: the aim and purpose of St. Paul's election and call to the apostleship was to proclaim the fulfillment in Christ of the promises of the Old Testament.

Thanksgiving and Prayer

3 I give thanks to God, whom I serve as did my forefathers, with a clear conscience, that I remember thee without ceasing in my prayers night and day.

4 Recalling thy tears, I long to see thee, that I may be filled with joy.

5 I remember that unfeigned faith of thine, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois and in my mother Eunice, and dwells, I am certain, in thee also.

Ver. 4. Tears: the reference is to a farewell on some occasion, perhaps St. Paul's departure as a prisoner.

I: PASTORAL CHARGE

Paul's Example

6 For this reason I admonish thee to stir up the grace of God which is in thee by the laying on of my hands.

7 For God ^a has not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of prudence.

8 Do not, therefore, be ashamed of testimony for our Lord, nor of me, his prisoner, but enter into my sufferings for the gospel through the power of God.

9 He has redeemed us and called us with a holy calling, ^b not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and the grace which was granted to us in Christ Jesus before this world existed,

10 but is now made known by the manifestation of our Savior Jesus Christ. He has destroyed death and brought to light life and incorruption by the gospel, 11 of which ^c I have been appointed a preacher and an apostle and a teacher of the Gentiles.

12 That is why also I am suffering these things; yet I am not ashamed. For I know whom I have believed, and I am certain that he is able to guard the trust committed to me against that day.

13 Hold to the form of sound teaching which thou hast heard from me, in the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.

14 Guard the good trust through the Holy Spirit, who dwells in us.

Loyalty and Defections

15 This thou knowest that all in the province of Asia have turned away from me, among them, Phigelus and Hermogenes.

16 May the Lord grant mercy ^d to the house of Onesiphorus, because he often comforted me and was not ashamed of my chains;

^a Rom. 8, 15.—^b Titus 3, 5.—^c 1 Tim. 2, 7.—^d 2 Tim. 4, 19.—^e Matt. 10, 33; Mark 8, 38.—^f Rom. 3, 3.

Ver. 9. This is a statement of St. Paul's doctrine of justification by faith, assured by the divine purpose.

Ver. 10. Incorruption: immortality, eternal happiness.

Ver. 16. Onesiphorus is spoken of as now dead; he was an official of the church at Ephesus.

17 but when he came to Rome, he sought me out diligently and found me.

18 May the Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord on that day. And thou knowest very well the many services he rendered me at Ephesus.

CHAPTER 2

Devotion to His Office

THEREFORE my child, be strengthened in the grace which is in Christ Jesus;

2 and the things that thou hast heard from me through many witnesses, commend to trustworthy men who shall be competent in turn to teach others.

3 Conduct thyself in work as a good soldier of Christ Jesus.

4 No one serving as God's soldier entangles himself in worldly affairs, that he may please him whose approval he has secured.

5 And again, one who enters a contest is not crowned unless he has competed according to the rules.

6 The farmer who toils must be the first to partake of the fruits.

7 Take in what I tell thee, for the Lord will give thee understanding in all things.

The Thought of Christ

8 Remember that Jesus Christ rose from the dead and was descended from David; this is my gospel, 9 in which I suffer even to bonds, as a criminal. But the word of God is not bound.

10 This is why I bear all things for the sake of the elect, that they also may obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with heavenly glory.

11 This saying is true: If we have died with him, we shall also live with him;

12 if we endure, we shall also reign with him; ^e if we disown him, he also will disown us;

13 if we are faithless, ^f he remains faithful, for he cannot disown himself.

Chap. 2, Ver. 4. The Greek reads, ". . . involves himself in affairs of everyday life, for he must satisfy him who enlisted him." The Latin means, "to whom he has engaged himself."

Ver. 11-13. Here again we have what appears to be a fragment of an ancient liturgical hymn. Cf. 1 Tim. 3, 16.

II: FIDELITY TO HIS OFFICE

False Teachers

14 Recall these things to their minds, charging them in the sight of the Lord not to dispute with words, for that is useless, leading to the ruin of the listeners.

15 Use all care to present thyself to God as a man approved, a worker that cannot be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth.

16 But avoid profane and empty babblings, for they contribute much to ungodliness,

17 and their speech spreads like a cancer. Of this sort are Hymeneus and Philletus, 18 who have erred from the truth in saying that the resurrection has taken place already; and they are destroying the faith of some.

The Faithful Servant

19 But the sure foundation of God stands firm, bearing this seal: "The Lord knows who are his"; and, "Let everyone depart from iniquity who names the name of the Lord."

20 But in a great house there are vessels not only of gold and silver, but also of wood and clay; and some are for honorable uses, but some for ignoble.

21 If anyone, therefore, has cleansed himself from these, he will be a vessel for honorable use, sanctified and useful to the Lord, ready for every good work.

22 But flee the cravings of youth and pursue justice, faith, charity and peace with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart.

23 Avoid also foolish and ignorant controversies,^g knowing that they breed quarrels.

24 But the servant of the Lord must not quarrel, but be gentle towards all, ready to teach, patient,

Ver. 14. The Clementine Vulgate reads: "Dispute not . . . over what is useless."

Ver. 18. They taught the immortality of the soul but seem to have denied the resurrection of the body.

Ver. 19. These are the two fundamental truths of the relations of God to man: on God's part, predestination; on man's part, the free rejection of sin.

Ver. 20. The change of metaphor from the construction of the building to its furnishing is quite 25 gently admonishing those who resist, in case God should give them repentance to know the truth,

26 and they recover themselves from the snare of the devil, to whose will they are held captive.

CHAPTER 3

Against New Teachers

BUT KNOW THIS, ^h that in the last days dangerous times will come.

2 Men will be lovers of self, covetous, haughty, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, criminal,

3 heartless, faithless, slanderers, incontinent, merciless, unkind,

4 treacherous, stubborn, puffed up with pride, loving pleasure more than God,

5 having a semblance indeed of piety, but disowning its power. Avoid these.

6 For of such are they who make their way into houses and captivate silly women who are sin-laden and led away by various lusts:

7 ever learning yet never attaining knowledge of the truth.

8 Just as ⁱ Jamnes and Mambres resisted Moses, so these men also resist the truth, for they are corrupt in mind, reprobate as regards the faith.

9 But they will make no further progress, for their folly will be obvious to all, as was that of those others.

Paul's Example and Doctrine

10 But thou hast closely followed my doctrine, my conduct, my purpose, my faith, my long-suffering, my love, my patience,

11 my persecutions, my afflictions; ^j such as befell me at Antioch, Iconium and Lystra—such persecutions as I suffered, and out of them all the Lord delivered me.

^g 1 Tim. 1, 4, 7; Titus 3, 9.—^h 1 Tim. 4, 1; 2 Pet. 3, 3; Jude 1, 18.—ⁱ Ex. 7, 11.—^j Acts 14, 1ff.

abrupt but this is not uncommon in Semitic literature.

Chap. 3, Ver. 8. Jamnes and Mambres are the names given in later Jewish tradition to the magicians of Pharaoh.

Ver. 10. This verse expresses St. Paul's spiritual testament to Timothy, his favorite disciple.

Ver. 11. These persecutions are recounted in Acts 13 and 14.

12 And all who want to live piously in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution.

13 But the wicked and impostors will go from bad to worse, erring and leading into error.

14 But do thou continue in the things that thou hast learned and that have been entrusted to thee, knowing of whom thou hast learned them.

15 For from thy infancy thou hast known the Sacred Writings, which are able to instruct thee unto salvation by the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 All Scripture ^kis inspired by God and useful for teaching, for reproving, for correcting, for instructing in justice;

17 that the man of God may be perfect, equipped for every good work.

CHAPTER 4

Preach Sound Doctrine

I CHARGE THEE, in the sight of God and Christ Jesus, who will judge the living and the dead by his coming and by his kingdom,

2 preach the word, be urgent in season, out of season; reprove, entreat, rebuke with all patience and teaching.

3 For there will come a time when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but having itching ears, will heap up to themselves teachers according to their own lusts.

4 and they will turn away their hearing from the truth and turn aside rather to fables.

5 But do thou be watchful in all things, bear with tribulation patiently, work as a preacher of the gospel, fulfill thy ministry.

Reward

6 As for me, I am already being poured out in sacrifice, and the time of my deliverance is at hand.

k 2 Pet. 1, 20.—l Col. 4, 14.

Ver. 14. Of whom: refers to Timothy's mother and grandmother, as well as to St. Paul.

Ver. 16. This is the classic text for the divine inspiration of the Scriptures.

Chap. 4, Ver. 5. The Clementine Vulgate adds, "Be reserved."

Ver. 6. Poured out: i.e., as a libation. Cf. Phil. 2, 17.

Ver. 13. Cloak: this may also mean a satchel for the books. Troas: an important port in Mysia on the east coast of the Aegean Sea. Books: what these were 7 I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith.

8 For the rest, there is laid up for me a crown of justice, which the Lord, the just Judge, will give to me in that day; yet not to me only, but also to those who love his coming.

Conclusion

Paul's Loneliness

9 Make haste to come to me shortly; for Demas has deserted me, loving this world, and has gone to Thessalonica, 10 Crescens to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia.

11 Luke only is with me.^l Take Mark and bring him with thee, for he is useful to me for the ministry.

12 But Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus.

13 When thou comest, bring with thee the cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus, and the books, especially the parchments.

14 Alexander, the coppersmith, has done me much harm; the Lord will render to him according to his deeds.

15 Do thou also avoid him for he has vehemently opposed our words.

His Trial

16 At my first defense no one came to my support, but all forsook me, may it not be laid to their charge.

17 But the Lord stood by me and strengthened me, that through me the preaching of the gospel might be completed, and that all the Gentiles might hear, and I was delivered from the lion's mouth.

18 The Lord will deliver me from every work of evil, and will preserve me for his heavenly kingdom; to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

is unknown. Parchments: very likely texts of the Old Testament, though some commentators take the word to mean writing material.

Ver. 14. Alexander: apparently an Ephesian, and Paul's accuser in Rome.

Ver. 16. The reference seems to be to the first hearing at his recent trial.

Ver. 17. All the Gentiles: refers either to his preaching throughout the Roman world, or to his profession of faith before the imperial tribunal in the world capital.

Greetings

19 Greet m Prisca and Aquila and the household of Onesiphorus.

20 Erastus stayed at Corinth, but Trophimus I left sick at Miletus.

Ver. 19. On Prisca and Aquila, cf. Acts 18; Rom. 16, 3-5; 1 Cor. 16, 19.

21 Hasten to come before winter. Eubulus, Pudens, Linus and Claudia and all the brethren greet thee.

22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

m 2 Tim. 1, 16.

Ver. 21. Linus: St. Irenæus says that this Linus was the successor of St. Peter.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to TITUS

ST. TITUS was born of Greek parents. He accompanied Sts. Paul and Barnabas to the Council of Jerusalem (Gal. 2, 1. 3). He was uncircumcised, and although at the Council Judaizers insisted that he submit to this rite, St. Paul refused to permit it. Titus is addressed in this Epistle as "beloved son" (1, 4), probably because he was converted to the faith by the Apostle. He was sent by the latter on several important missions during the third missionary journey (2 Cor. 2, 13; 7, 6; 8, 6. 16; 12, 18). We lose sight of him after this, as he is not mentioned in the Epistles of the Captivity. From this Epistle we learn that St. Paul entrusted him with the organization of the church in Crete (1, 5). Afterwards he was summoned by the Apostle to Nicopolis in Epirus (3, 12), and during Paul's final Roman imprisonment he was sent on a mission to Dalmatia (2 Tim. 4, 10). According to tradition he returned to Crete to exercise his episcopal office, and died there.

The journey of St. Paul to the island of Crete (1, 5) cannot be inserted anywhere in the life of the Apostle before the first Roman imprisonment. Hence the visit, as well as the composition of this Epistle, took place between St. Paul's liberation from this first imprisonment and his death. Catholic authors commonly hold that the Epistle was written shortly after the writing of 1 Timothy, in either 65 or 66 A. D.

The religious situation in Crete and the mission of Titus correspond to what confronted Timothy at Ephesus (compare 3, 9 with 1 Tim. 1, 4). Because of the character of the inhabitants and the spread of erroneous doctrines (1, 10f. 14; 3, 9-11), Titus' task was a difficult one. Before leaving Titus at Crete St. Paul had instructed him how to organize and rule the churches.

In this Epistle the Apostle gives him counsels and instructions to guide him in his episcopal office.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PAUL, a servant of God and apostle of Jesus Christ, in accordance with the faith of God's elect and the full knowledge of the truth which is according to piety,

2 in the hope of life everlasting which God, who does not lie, promised before the ages began—

3 he has in due times manifested his word through the preaching committed to my trust by the command of God our Savior—

4 to Titus, my beloved son in the common faith: grace and peace from God the Father, and from Christ Jesus our Savior.

I: PASTORAL CHARGE

Titus' Mission

5 For this reason I left thee in Crete, that thou shouldst set right anything that is defective and shouldst appoint presbyters in every city, as I myself directed thee to do.

6 They must be blameless,^a married but once, having believing children who are not accused of impurity or disobedience.

7 For a bishop must be blameless as being the steward of God, not proud, or ill-tempered, or a drinker, or a brawler, or greedy for base gain;

8 but hospitable, gentle, reserved, just, holy, continent;

9 holding fast the faithful word which is in accordance with the teaching, that he may be able both to exhort in sound doctrine and to confute opponents.

Special Needs in Crete

10 For there are also many disobedient, vain babblers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision.

^a 1 Tim. 3, 2.—^b Rom. 14, 20.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. In accordance with, etc.: cf. note on 2 Tim. 1, 1. Servant of God: an official title, borrowed from the oriental custom of styling oneself "servant of the king" or of some local deity.

Ver. 5, 7. On bishops and presbyters, cf. note on 1 Tim. 3, 1.

Ver. 6. This verse does not condemn second marriage absolutely.

Ver. 12. This citation is from the "Minos" of Epimenides, a Cretan poet who may have lived in the sixth century B. C.

11 These must be rebuked, for they upset whole households, teaching things that they ought not, for the sake of base gain.

12 One of themselves, a prophet of their own, said, "Cretans, always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons."

13 This statement is true. Hence rebuke them sharply that they may be sound in faith, 14 and may not listen to Jewish fables and the commandments of men who turn away from the truth.

15 For the clean all things are clean,^b but for the defiled and unbelieving nothing is clean; for both their mind and their conscience are defiled.

16 They profess to know God, but by their works they disown him, being abominable and unbelieving and worthless for any good work.

II: CHARGE TO TEACH THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 2

Different Classes

BUT DO thou speak what befits the sound doctrine:

2 that elderly men be reserved, honorable, prudent, sound in faith, in love, in patience;

3 that elderly women, in like manner, be marked by holiness of behavior, not slanderers, nor enslaved to much wine; teaching what is right,

4 that they may train the younger women to be wise, to love their husbands and their children,

5 to be discreet, chaste, domestic, gentle, obedient to their husbands, so that the word of God be not reviled.

6 Exhort the younger men, in like manner, to be self-controlled.

7 Show thyself in all things an example of good works, in teaching, in integrity and dignity;

Ver. 15. The reference is to the distinction between clean and unclean meats in the Mosaic Law, abrogated by the gospel.

Chap. 2, Ver. 5. Domestic: variants in the Greek text give two words very similar in form, "home worker" and "stayer at home."

Ver. 7f. In teaching: the Greek text reads: ". . . in teaching, show forth integrity, dignity and sound discourse that will be irreproachable, so that . . ."

8 let thy speech be sound and blameless, so that anyone opposing may be put to shame, having nothing bad to say of us.

9 Exhort slaves to obey their ^c masters, pleasing them in all things and not opposing them;

10 not pilfering, but showing faithfulness in all things, so as to adorn in all things the teaching of God our Savior.

Changed Life

11 For the grace of God our Savior ^d has appeared to all men,

12 instructing us, in order that, rejecting ungodliness and worldly lusts, we may live temperately and justly and piously in this world;

13 looking for the blessed hope and glorious coming of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ, 14 who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and cleanse for himself an acceptable people, pursuing good works.

15 Thus speak, and exhort, and rebuke, with all authority. Let no one despise thee.

CHAPTER 3

ADMONISH them to be subject to princes and authorities, obeying commands, ready for every good work,

2 speaking evil of none, not quarrelsome but moderate, showing all mildness to all men.

3 For we ourselves also were once unwise, unbelieving, going astray, slaves to various lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful and hating one another.

4 But when the goodness and kindness of God our Savior appeared,

5 then not by reason of good works ^e that we did ourselves, but according to his mercy, he saved us through the bath

Ver. 10. Faithfulness: a variant reading gives "charity."

Chap. 3, Ver. 9. Genealogies: cf. 1 Tim. 1, 3.

Ver. 12. Nicopolis: probably Nicopolis of Epirus.

Ver. 13. Zenas the lawyer: he may have been a Roman lawyer or a doctor of the Jewish Law.

of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit;

6 whom he has abundantly poured out upon us through Jesus Christ our Savior,

7 in order that, justified by his grace, we may be heirs in the hope of life everlasting.

Good Works and Truth

8 This saying is true, and concerning these things I desire thee to insist, that they who believe in God may be careful to excel in good works. These things are good and useful to men.

9 But avoid foolish controversies ^f and genealogies and quarrels and disputes about the Law; for they are useless and futile.

10 A factious man avoid after a first and a second admonition, 11 knowing that such a one is perverted and sins, being self-condemned.

Conclusion

Closing Messages

12 When I send Artemas or Tychicus to thee, make every effort to come to me at Nicopolis; for there I have decided to spend the winter.

13 Help Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their way, taking care that nothing be wanting to them.

14 And let our people also learn to excel in good works, in order to meet cases of necessity, that they may not be unfruitful.

Greeting

15 All my companions greet thee. Greet those who love us in the faith. The grace of God be with you all. Amen.

^c Eph. 6, 5; Col. 3, 22; 1 Pet. 2, 18.—^d Titus 3, 4.—^e 2 Tim. 1, 9.—^f 1 Tim. 4, 7; 2 Tim. 2, 23.

Ver. 14. Our people: these are the Christians generally, not the officials of the Church.

Ver. 15. In the faith: this replaces the common formula, "in Christ," and is directed against the separatists.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to PHILEMON

DURING his first Roman imprisonment (61-63 A.D.), St. Paul came to know a slave named Onesimus, who had deserted his master Philemon, a wealthy Christian of Colossæ in Phrygia. After the Apostle had won the fugitive over to Christianity, he looked for a favorable opportunity to send him back to his master. This opportunity offered itself when he was dispatching a letter to the Colossians in the year 63 A.D.

Onesimus accompanied St. Paul's messenger Tychicus (Col. 4, 7-9). To Philemon the Apostle addressed this touching appeal, entreating his friend to deal kindly with the runaway.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Address and Greeting

PAUL, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and our brother Timothy, to Philemon, our beloved and fellow-worker,

2 and to Appia, the sister, and to Archippus, our fellow-soldier, and to the church that is in thy house:

3 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Faith and Charity

4 I give thanks to my God, always making remembrance of thee in my prayers,

5 as I hear of thy charity and of the faith that thou hast in our Lord Jesus and towards all the saints.

6 May the sharing of thy faith be made evident in full knowledge of all the good that is in you, in Christ Jesus.

7 For I had great joy and consolation in thy charity, because through thee, brother, the hearts of the saints have found rest.

Plea for Onesimus

8 For this reason, though I am very confident that I might charge thee in Christ Jesus to do what is fitting,

9 yet for the sake of charity I prefer to plead, since thou art such as thou art; as Paul, an old man—and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ—

10 I plead with thee for my own son, whom I have begotten in prison, for Onesimus.

11 He once was useless to thee, but now is useful both to me and to thee.

12 I am sending him back to thee, and do thou welcome him as though he were my very heart.

13 I had wanted to keep him here with me that in thy stead he might wait on me in my imprisonment for the gospel;

14 but I did not want to do anything without thy counsel, in order that thy kindness might not be as it were of necessity, but voluntary.

15 Perhaps, indeed, he departed from thee for a short while so that thou mightest receive him forever, 16 no longer as a slave, but instead of a slave as a brother most dear, especially to me, and how much more to thee, both in the flesh and in the Lord!

17 If, therefore, thou dost count me as a partner, welcome him as thou wouldst me.

18 And if he did thee any injury or owes thee anything, charge it to me.

19 I, Paul, write it with my own hand: I will repay it—not to say to thee that thou owest me thy very self.

20 Yes, indeed, brother! May I, too, make use of thee in the Lord! Console my heart in the Lord!

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. Philemon had been converted to Christianity by St. Paul, probably during the latter's long stay at Ephesus [Acts 19, 10]. This is the debt Philemon owes the Apostle [ver. 19].

Ver. 2. Appia was the wife of Philemon. Archippus was probably his son [cf. Col. 4, 17].

Ver. 5. Faith draws them to our Lord, charity to the brethren.

Ver. 6. The Greek reads: "May thy participation in the faith become effective in the clear knowledge of . . ." Our text refers to the liberality of Philemon, inspired by his faith.

Hopes, Greetings, Blessings

21 Trusting in thy compliance I am writing to thee, knowing that thou wilt do even beyond what I say.

22 At the same time make ready a lodging for me too, for I hope that through your prayers I shall be restored to you.

23 Epaphras, my fellow-prisoner in Christ Jesus,

24 Mark, Aristarchus, Demas and Luke, my fellow-workers, send thee greetings.

25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

Ver. 23f. For the names cf. notes on Col. 4, 10-14.

The Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the HEBREWS

APART from some doubts expressed unofficially in the West before the fourth century, the traditional Catholic view has always maintained the Pauline authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews, at least in the sense that it was conceived by St. Paul and written under his direction. Its thought is thoroughly Pauline, and much of its phraseology is also distinctly Pauline. The excellent literary style, however, is generally superior to that found in the other Epistles of St. Paul, and ranks with the best in the New Testament.

The time, place of composition and destination of the Epistle are not stated explicitly, and there is but little evidence elsewhere bearing upon these matters. Opinions, based on the few vague indications available, differ widely. As plausible as any is the common view that the Epistle was written at Rome about 63 A.D., shortly after St. Paul's release from his first Roman imprisonment, and that it was destined for the Jewish Christians of Palestine, who under the stress of trials were in danger of relapsing into Judaism.

The Epistle describes most eloquently the eminent superiority of the new dispensation over the old. Inaugurated by the Son of God Himself, this new dispensation was God's final revelation to man. It completed the message of the prophets, and brought to perfection all that was of permanent value in the Mosaic covenant. The Incarnate Son of God was its High Priest, and His glorious sacrifice was truly efficacious before God in the forgiveness of sin. As suffering and humiliation had an important place in His victory, His followers are exhorted to forego worldly advantage, to bear their trials patiently, and to persevere heroically in the faith.

I: SUPERIORITY OF THE NEW DISPENSATION OVER THE OLD

1. A SUPERIOR MEDIATOR

CHAPTER 1

Christ Superior to the Angels

GOD, who at sundry times and in divers manners spoke in times past to the fathers by the prophets,

2 last of all in these days has spoken to us by his Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, ^a by whom also he made the world;

3 who, being the brightness of his glory and the image of his substance, and upholding all things by the word of his power, has effected man's purgation from sin and taken his seat at the right hand ^b of the Majesty on high,

^a Ps. 2, 8; John 1, 3.—^b Ps. 109, 1; Wisd. 7, 26; Mark 16, 19; Col. 1, 15.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. At sundry times: the Greek means, "in many portions."
Ver. 2. Last of all in these days: the Greek text has, "at the end of these days," or according to another reading, "in these last days." By his Son: literally, "in a son"; i.e., one who by nature is a son.

4 having become so much superior to the angels as he has inherited a more excellent name c than they.

5 For to which of the angels has he ever said, d Thou art my son, I this day have begotten thee? and again, I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son?

6 And again, when he brings the first-born into the world, he says, e And let all the angels of God adore him.

7 And of the angels indeed he says, f He makes his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.

8 But of the Son, g Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever, and a sceptre of equity is the sceptre of thy kingdom.

9 Thou hast loved justice and hated iniquity; therefore God, thy God, has anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

10 And, h Thou in the beginning, O Lord, didst found the earth, and the heavens are works of thy hands.

11 They shall perish, but thou shalt continue; and they shall all grow old as does a garment,

12 and as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

13 Now to which of the angels has he ever said, i Sit at my right hand, until I make thy enemies the footstool of thy feet?

14 Are they not all ministering j spirits, sent for service, for the sake of those who shall inherit salvation?

CHAPTER 2

Warning and Exhortation

THEREFORE ought we the more earnestly to observe the things that we have heard, lest perhaps we drift away.

Ver. 4. Having become: or, "showing himself to be." "The humanity of Christ was exalted in glory far above the angels, because He alone was truly the Son."

Ver. 6. And again, when he brings: or, "And when he again brings." In the Greek the "again" may be taken with either "says" or "brings." If it is taken with "says," it will merely introduce another quotation, and the reference will be to the first coming of Christ at the Incarnation. If it is taken with "brings," the reference will be to the Second Coming of Christ at the end of the world. World: the Greek means "the inhabited earth."

Ver. 7. Spirits: or, "winds."

Ver. 8. Thy kingdom: some Greek Manuscripts have "his kingdom."

2 For k if the word spoken by angels proved to be valid, and every transgression and disobedience received a just punishment,

3 how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? For it was first announced by the Lord and was confirmed unto us by those who heard him;

4 God l also, according to his own will, bearing them witness by signs and wonders, and by manifold powers, and by impartings of the Holy Spirit.

Christ Suffered for His Brethren

5 For he has not subjected to angels the world to come, whereof we speak.

6 Rather someone has testified somewhere, saying, m What is man that thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest him?

7 Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, thou hast crowned him with glory and honor, and hast set him over the works of thy hands;

8 thou n hast put all things under his feet. For in subjecting all things to man, he left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not see as yet all things subject to him.

9 But we do see him who was made "a little lower than the angels," namely, Jesus, crowned with glory and honor because of his having suffered death, that by the grace of God he might taste death for all.

10 For it became him for whom are all things and through whom are all things, who had brought many sons into glory, c Eph. 1, 21; Phil. 2, 9.—d Ps. 2, 7; 2 Kgs. 7, 14.—e Deut. 32, 43 (LXX); Ps. 96, 7; Apoc. 1, 5.—f Ps. 103, 4.—g Ps. 44, 7f.—h 10-12: Ps. 101, 26-28.—i Ps. 109, 1.—j Gen. 28, 12; Ps. 90, 11; Dan. 7, 10.—k Acts 7, 53; Gal. 3, 19.—l Mark 16, 20; Acts 14, 3; 19, 11.—m Ps. 8, 5-8.—n Matt. 28, 18; 1 Cor. 15, 25-28.

Ver. 12. As a vesture, etc.: the Greek has, "as a mantle thou shalt roll them up."

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. Word spoken by angels: the Mosaic Law. Proved to be valid: or, "held good," "had the force of law." Just punishment: literally, "just recompense of reward."

Ver. 5. World to come: here means the Christian dispensation, not the future life.

Ver. 7. A little lower: or, "for a little while lower." And hast set . . . thy hands: omitted in some Greek Manuscripts.

Ver. 10. Who had brought many sons into glory: better, according to the Greek, "while he was bringing many sons into glory."

to perfect through sufferings the author of their salvation.

11 For both he who sanctifies and they who are sanctified are all from one. For which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying,

12 I will declare thy name to my brethren; in the midst of the church I will praise thee.

13 And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold, I and my children whom God has given me.

14 Therefore because children have blood and flesh in common, so he in like manner has shared in these; that q through death he might destroy him who had the empire of death, that is, the devil;

15 and might deliver them, r who throughout their life were kept in servitude by the fear of death.

16 For, of course, it is not angels that he is succoring, but he is succoring the offsprings of Abraham.

17 Wherefore it was right that he should in all things be made like unto his brethren, that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest before God to expiate the sins of the people.

18 For in that he himself has suffered and has been tempted, he is able to help those who are tempted.

CHAPTER 3

Christ Superior to Moses

THEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of a heavenly calling, consider the apostle and high priest of our confession, Jesus,

2 who is faithful to him who made him, as was t Moses also "in all his house."

3 For he was deemed worthy of greater glory than Moses, u just as the builder of a house has greater honor than the house that he has built.

o Ps. 21, 23.—p 2 Kgs. 22, 3; Ps. 17, 3; Isa. 8, 18.—q Isa. 25, 8; Os. 13, 14; John 12, 31; 1 Cor. 15, 54.—r Luke 1, 74; Rom. 8, 15; 2 Tim. 1, 7-10.—s Isa. 41, 8.—t Num. 12, 7.—u Matt. 12, 41f; 16.

Ver. 11. All from one: probably, from one family, with God as the Father of all.

Ver. 14. Blood and flesh: i.e., having the same human nature.

Ver. 18. Has suffered and has been tempted: the Greek has, "for in that he himself suffered, having been tempted."

Chap. 3, Ver. 2. "In all his house": i.e., in all God's house.

4 For every house is built by someone; but he who created all things is God.

5 And Moses indeed was faithful "in all his house" as a servant, to testify v concerning those things that were to be spoken;

6 but Christ is faithful w as the Son over his own house. We are that house, if we hold fast our confidence and the hope in which we glory unto the end.

Exhortation

7 Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, x Today if you shall hear his voice,

8 do not harden your hearts as in the provocation, during the day of temptation in the desert,

9 where your fathers tried me, proved and saw my works

10 forty years. Wherefore I was offended with this generation, and said, "They always err in heart, and they have not known my ways."

11 As I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my Rest.

12 Take heed, brethren, lest perhaps there be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart that would turn away from the living God.

13 But exhort one another every day, while it is still Today, that none of you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

14 For we have been made partakers of Christ, provided only that we hold fast our first confidence in him y unto the end.

15 While it is said, Today if you shall hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in that provocation—

16 for some who heard gave provocation, but not all those who came out of Egypt under Moses—

17 with whom then was he offended forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, whose corpses fell z in the desert?

18.—v Deut. 18, 18.—w Heb. 10, 23; 1 Cor. 3, 16f; 6, 19; 2 Cor. 6, 16; Eph. 2, 19-22; 1 Pet. 2, 5.—x Num. 14, 21-23; Ps. 94, 8-11.—y Heb. 3, 6; Rom. 8, 17; 1 Cor. 1, 9.—z Num. 14, 29.

Ver. 6. The hope in which we glory: literally, "the glory of hope."

Ver. 11. They shall not enter: literally, "if they shall enter." This is the common form of oath, with some such words as "God do so to me and more also" preceding the "if."

Ver. 16. For some who heard gave provocation, etc.: the Greek has, "who were they, who having heard did provoke? Were they not all those who were led out of Egypt by Moses?"

18 And to whom did he swear^a that they should not enter into his Rest, but to those who were unbelieving? And we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

CHAPTER 4

Our Promised Land

LET US THEREFORE fear lest perhaps, while the promise of entering into his Rest remains, any of you should be thought wanting.

2 For to us also it has been declared, just as to them. But the word that was heard did not profit them, since they had no faith in what they heard.

3 We then who have believed shall enter into his Rest, even as he said, ^b*As I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my Rest.* And indeed his works were completed at the foundation of the world.

4 For somewhere he spoke of the seventh day thus, ^c*And God rested the seventh day from all his works;*

5 and in this place again: They shall not enter into my Rest.

6 Since then it follows that some are to enter into it, and they to whom it was first declared did not enter in because of unbelief,

7 he again fixes another day to be Today, saying by David after so long a time, as quoted above, ^d*Today if you shall hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.*

8 For if Josue had given them rest, ^eGod would never afterwards be speaking of another day.

9 There remains therefore a Sabbath Rest for the people of God.

10 For he who has entered into his Rest, has himself also rested from his own works, even as God did from his.

11 Let us therefore hasten to enter into that Rest, lest anyone fall by following the same example of unbelief.

12 For the word of God is living and efficient and keener than any two-edged sword,^f and extending even to the division of soul and spirit, of joints also and of marrow, and a discerner of the thoughts and intentions of the heart.

13 And ^gthere is no creature hidden from his sight; but all things are naked and open to the eyes of him to whom we have to give account.

2. A SUPERIOR HIGH PRIEST

Confidence in Christ

14 Having therefore a great high priest who has passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our confession.

15 For we have not a high priest who cannot have compassion on our infirmities, but one tried as we are in all things except sin.

16 Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

CHAPTER 5

Christ the High Priest

FOR every high priest taken from among men is appointed for men in the things pertaining to God, that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins.

2 He is able to have compassion on the ignorant and erring, because he himself also is beset with weakness,

3 and by reason thereof is obliged to offer for sins, ^has on behalf of the people, so also for himself.

4 And ⁱno man takes the honor to himself; he takes it who is called by God, as Aaron was.

5 So also Christ did not glorify himself with the high priesthood, but he who spoke to him, ^j*Thou art my son, I this day have begotten thee.*

6 As he says also in another place, ^k*Thou art a priest forever, according to the order of Melchisedech.*

^a Num. 14, 23; Deut. 1, 35.—^b Ps. 94, 11.—^c Gen. 2, 2.—^d Heb. 3, 7.—^e Jos. 22, 4.—^f Wisd. 7, 24; 18, 15f; Eph. 6, 17; Apoc. 1, 16; 19, 15.—^g

Ecclus. 15, 20; Pss. 89, 8; 33, 16.—^h Lev. 9, 7; 16, 17.—ⁱ Ex. 28, 1; 2 Par. 26, 18.—^j Ps. 2, 7; John 8, 54.—^k Ps. 109, 4.

Chap. 4, Ver. 2. It has been declared: the Greek has, "For we too have had the good news proclaimed to us, just as they had. But the word they heard did not profit them because it was not mingled with faith on the part of the hearers."

Ver. 3. Shall enter: the Greek text reads, "are entering," or, "do enter."

Ver. 8. Josue: in Greek, "Jesus." The reference is to the successor of Moses.

7 For Jesus, in the days of his earthly life, with a loud cry and tears, offered up prayers and supplications to him who was able to save him from death,^l and was heard because of his reverent submission.

8 And he, Son though he was, learned obedience ^m from the things that he suffered;

9 and when perfected, he became to all who obey him the cause of eternal salvation,

10 called by God a high priest according to the order of Melchisedech.

Importance of the Doctrine

11 On this point we have much to say, and it is difficult to explain it, because you have grown dull of hearing.

12 For whereas by this time you ought to be masters, you need to be taught again the rudiments of the words of God; and you have become such as have need of milk ⁿ and not of solid food.

13 For everyone who is fed on milk is unskilled in the word of justice; he is but a child.

14 But solid food is for the mature, for those who by practice have their faculties trained to discern good and evil.

CHAPTER 6

An Appeal for Progress

THEREFORE, leaving the elementary teaching concerning Christ, let us pass on to things more perfect, not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith towards God,

2 of the doctrine of baptisms and the laying on of hands, of the resurrection of the dead and of eternal judgment.

3 And this we will do, if God permits.

Danger of Apostasy

4 For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, who have both

^l Matt. 26, 38ff.—^m Phil. 2, 8.—ⁿ 1 Cor. 3, 2; 1 Pet. 2, 2.—^o Heb. 10, 26; Matt. 12, 31. 45; 2 Pet.

Chap. 5, Ver. 7. Was heard because of his reverent submission: or, "was heard because of his godly fear." The Old Latin has, "was delivered from fear."

Ver. 13. Word of justice: probably, the deeper truths of faith.

Chap. 6, Ver. 1. Elementary teaching concerning Christ: literally, "the word of the beginning of Christ."

tasted the heavenly gift and become partakers of the Holy Spirit,

5 who have moreover tasted the good word of God and the powers of the world to come,

6 and then have fallen away, to be renewed again to repentance; since they crucify again for themselves the Son of God and make him a mockery.

7 For the earth that drinks in the rain that often falls upon it, and produces vegetation^p that is of use to those by whom it is tilled, receives a blessing from God;

8 but that which brings forth thorns and thistles is worthless,^q and is nigh unto a curse, and its end is to be burnt.

Expectation of Better Things

9 But in your case, beloved, we are confident of better things, things that promise salvation, even though we speak thus.

10 For God is not unjust, that he should forget your work and the love that you have shown in his name, you who have ministered and do minister to the saints.

11 But we want every one of you to show to the very end the same earnestness^r for the fulfillment of your hopes;

12 so that you may become not sluggish but imitators of those who by faith and patience will inherit the promises.

Certainty of God's Promise

13 For when God made his promise to Abraham, since he had no one greater to swear by, he swore by himself,

14 saying, ^s*I will surely bless thee, and I will surely multiply thee.*

15 And thus after patient waiting, Abraham obtained the promise.

16 For men swear by one greater than themselves, and an oath given as a guarantee is the final settlement of all their disagreement.

2, 20.—^p Gen. 1, 11.—^q Gen. 3, 18.—^r Heb. 3, 14.—^s Gen. 22, 16.

Ver. 4. Impossible: i.e., extremely difficult.

Ver. 6. Make him a mockery: by apostasy.

Ver. 10. God would indeed be unjust if He punished sin without rewarding good works.

Ver. 14. I will surely bless thee: literally, "unless blessing, I bless thee," a Hebrew idiom.

17 Hence God, meaning to show more abundantly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his will, interposed an oath, 18 that by two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to deceive, we may have the strongest comfort—we who have sought refuge in holding fast the hope set before us.

19 This hope we have, as a sure and firm anchor of the soul, reaching even behind the veil

20 where our forerunner Jesus has entered for us, having become a high priest forever ^t according to the order of Melchisedech.

CHAPTER 7

Melchisedech More Than Abraham

FOR ^uthis Melchisedech was king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him;

2 to whom Abraham divided the tithes of all. First, as his name shows, he is King of Justice, and then also he is King of Salem, that is, King of Peace.

3 Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but likened to the Son of God, he continues a priest forever.

Melchisedech More Than Levi

4 Now consider how great this man is, to whom even Abraham the patriarch gave tithes out of the best portions of the spoils.

5 And indeed they who are of the priestly sons of ^vLevi, have a commandment to take tithes from the people according to the Law, that is, from their brethren, though these also have come from the loins of Abraham.

6 But he whose genealogy is not recorded among them received tithes of Abraham and blessed him who had the promises.

^t Ps. 109, 4.—^u Gen. 14, 17-20.—^v Num. 18, 21.—^w Gen. 49, 10; Isa. 11, 1.—^x Ps. 109, 4.

Ver. 18. Two unchangeable things: namely, the promise and the oath.

7 Now beyond all contradiction, that which is less is blessed by the superior.

8 And in the one case indeed, mortal men receive tithes, while in the other, it is one of whom it is testified that he lives on.

9 And even Levi, the receiver of tithes, was also, so to speak, through Abraham made subject to tithes, 10 for he was still in the loins of his father when Melchisedech met him.

Levitical Priesthood Imperfect

11 If then perfection was by the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the Law), what further need was there that another priest should rise, according to the order of Melchisedech, and said not to be according to the order of Aaron?

12 For when the priesthood is changed, it is necessary that a change of law be made also.

13 For he of whom these things are said is from another tribe, from which no one has ever done service at the altar.

14 For it is evident that our Lord has sprung out of Juda,^w and Moses spoke nothing at all about priests when referring to this tribe.

15 And it is yet far more evident if there arise another priest, according to the likeness of Melchisedech, 16 who has become so not according to the Law of carnal commandment, but according to a life that cannot end.

17 For it is testified of him, ^x*Thou art a priest forever, according to the order of Melchisedech.*

Superseded by Priesthood of Christ

18 On the one hand there is the rejection of the former commandment, because of its weakness and unprofitableness

19 (for the Law brought nothing to perfection), and on the other hand a bringing in of a better hope, through which we draw near to God.

Chap. 7, Ver. 3. Without father, without mother: because they are not mentioned in Scripture. Likened: i.e., he is a figure or type of Christ.

A Priest by Divine Oath

20 And inasmuch as it is not without an oath (for the others indeed were made priests without an oath, 21 but he with an oath through him who said to him, y The Lord has sworn and will not repent: Thou art a priest forever), 22 all the more has Jesus become surety of a superior covenant.

23 And the other priests indeed were numerous, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office;

24 but he, because he continues forever, has an everlasting priesthood.

25 Therefore he is able at all times to save those who come to God through him,^z since he lives always to make intercession for them.

Sinless and Perfect

26 For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, undefiled, set apart from sinners, and become higher than the heavens.

27 He does not need ^ato offer sacrifices daily (as the other priests did), first for his own sins, and then for the sins of the people; for this latter he did once for all in offering up himself.

28 For the Law appoints as priests men who are weak; but the word of the oath, which came after the Law, appoints a Son who is forever perfect.

3. A SUPERIOR COVENANT

CHAPTER 8

Christ in the Heavenly Sanctuary

NOW the main point in what we are saying is this. We have such a high priest, who has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of Majesty in the heavens,

2 a minister of the Holies, and of the true tabernacle,^b which the Lord has erected and not man.

3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; therefore it is necessary that this one also should have something to offer.

4 If then he were on earth, he would not even be a priest, since there are already others to offer gifts according to the Law.

5 The worship they offer is a mere copy and shadow of things heavenly, even as Moses was warned when he was completing the tabernacle: ^c"See," God said, "that thou make all things according to the pattern that was shown thee on the mount."

Mediator of a Superior Covenant

6 But now he has obtained a superior ministry, in proportion as he is mediator of a superior covenant, enacted on the basis of superior promises.

7 For had the first been faultless, place would not of course be sought for a second.

8 For finding fault with them he says, d Behold, days are coming, says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Juda,

9 not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers on the day when I took them by the hand to lead them forth out of the land of Egypt; for they did not abide by my covenant, and I did not regard them, says the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws into their mind, and upon their hearts I will write them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

11 And they shall not teach, each his neighbor, and each his brother, saying, "Know the Lord"; for all shall know me, from least to greatest among them.

12 Because I will be merciful to their iniquities, and their sins I will remember no more.

13 Now in saying "a new covenant," he has made obsolete the former one; and that which is obsolete and has grown old is near its end.

^y Ps. 109, 4.—^z Rom. 8, 34; 1 John 2, 1.—^a Lev. 16, 6. 17.—^b Ex. 33, 7; Num. 24, 6.—^c Col. 2, 17; Ex. 25, 40.—^d 8ff. Jer. 31, 31-34; cf. Heb. 10, 16.

4. A SUPERIOR SACRIFICE

CHAPTER 9

The Earthly Sanctuary

THE first covenant also had ritual ordinances and a sanctuary, though an earthly one.

2 For there was set up a tabernacle^e in the outer part of which were the lampstand and the table and the showbread, and this is called the Holy Place;

3 but beyond the second veil was the tabernacle which is called the ^fHoly of Holies,

4 having a golden censer and the ark of the covenant,^g overlaid on every side with gold. In the ark was a golden pot containing the manna and the rod of Aaron which had budded, and the tablets of the covenant;

5 and above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy-seat. ^h But of all these we cannot now speak in detail.

A Type of the Heavenly Sanctuary

6 Such then being the arrangements, the priests always used to enter into the first tabernacle to perform the sacred rites;

7 but into the second tabernacleⁱ the high priest alone entered once a year, not without blood, which he offered for his own and the people's sins of ignorance.

8 The Holy Spirit signified by this that the way into the Holies was not yet thrown open while the first tabernacle was still standing.

9 This first tabernacle is a figure of the present time, inasmuch as gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the worshipper in conscience, since they refer only to food and drink

10 and various ablutions and bodily regulations^j imposed until a time of reformation.

^e Ex. 25, 23-30; 26, 1.—^f Ex. 26, 33.—^g Lev. 16, 12f; Ex. 16, 33; 25, 10; Num. 17, 8.—^h Ex. 25, 16-22; 26, 34.—ⁱ Ex. 30, 10; Lev. 16, 2ff.—^j Lev. 11, 2-47; Num. 19, 13; Col. 2, 16.—^k Lev. 16, 14-16;

Chap. 9, Ver. 4. Censer: the Greek word means either "censer" or "altar."

Ver. 11. Greater and more perfect tabernacle: the tabernacle of the heavens.

Christ the High Priest and Victim

11 But when Christ appeared as high priest of the good things to come, he entered once for all through the greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made by hands (that is, not of this creation), 12 nor again by virtue of blood of goats and calves, but by virtue of his own blood, into the Holies, having obtained eternal redemption.

13 For if ^k the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkled ashes of a heifer sanctify the unclean unto the cleansing of the flesh,

14 how much more will the blood of Christ,^l who through the Holy Spirit offered himself unblemished unto God, cleanse your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?

Redemption through Christ

15 And this is why he is mediator of a new covenant,^m that whereas a death has taken place for redemption from the transgressions committed under the former covenant, they who have been called may receive eternal inheritance according to the promise.

16 For where there is a testament, the death of the testator must intervene;

17 for a testament is valid only when men are dead, otherwise it has as yet no force as long as the testator is alive.

The Blood of Victims

18 Hence not even the first has been inaugurated without blood;

19 for when every commandment of the Law had been read by Moses to all the people, he took the blood of the calves and of the goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people, saying,

20 ⁿ This is the blood of the covenant which God has commanded for you.

21 The tabernacle also and all the ves-

Num. 19, 2. 17.—^l Titus 2, 14; 1 Pet. 1, 18f; 1 John 1, 7; Apoc. 1, 5.—^m 1 Tim. 2, 5.—ⁿ Ex. 24, 3-8; Matt. 26, 28.

Ver. 14. The Greek reads, "by his eternal spirit."

Ver. 16. Testament: the Greek word used here has the double signification of "covenant" and "will."

sels of the ministry he sprinkled likewise with blood;

22 and with blood almost everything is cleansed according to the Law,^o and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.

The Blood of Christ

23 It was necessary, therefore, that the copies of the heavenly realities should be cleansed by these things; but the heavenly realities themselves require better sacrifices than these.

24 For ρ Jesus has not entered into a Holies made by hands, a mere copy of the true, but into heaven itself, to appear now before the face of God on our behalf;

25 nor yet has he entered to offer himself often, as the high priest enters into the Holies year after year with blood not his own;

26 for q in that case he must have suffered often since the beginning of the world. But as it is, once for all at the end of the ages, he has appeared for the destruction of sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And r just as it is appointed unto men to die once and after this comes the judgment, 28 so also was Christ offered once to take away the sins of many; the second time with no part in sin he will appear unto the salvation of those who await him.

CHAPTER 10

One Sacrifice Supplants Many

FOR THE LAW, having but a shadow of the good things to come,^s and not the exact image of the objects, is never able by the sacrifices which they offer continually, year after year the same, to perfect those who draw near;

2 for in that case would they not have ceased to be offered, because the worshippers, once cleansed, would no longer have any consciousness of sin?

^o Lev. 17, 11.—^p 1 John 2, 1f.—^q 1 Cor. 10, 11; Gal. 4, 4.—^r Gen. 3, 19.—^s Col. 2, 17.—^t Lev. 16, 21, 29.—^u Mich. 6, 6-8.—^v Ps. 39, 7f.—^w Ex. 29, 3 Yet t in these sacrifices sins are brought to remembrance year by year.

4 For it is impossible that sins should be taken away^u with blood of bulls and of goats.

5 Therefore in coming into the world, he says, ^v Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldst not, but a body thou hast fitted to me:

6 in holocausts and sin-offerings thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then said I, "Behold, I come—(in the head of the book it is written of me)—to do thy will, O God."

8 In saying in the first place, "Sacrifices and oblations and holocausts and sin-offerings thou wouldst not, neither hast thou had pleasure in them" (which are offered according to the Law),

9 and then saying, "Behold, I come to do thy will, O God," he annuls the first covenant in order to establish the second.

10 It is in this "will" that we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

Its Eternal Efficacy

11 And every priest indeed stands daily ministering, and often offering the same sacrifices,^w which can never take away sins;

12 but Jesus, having offered one sacrifice for sins, has taken his seat forever at the right hand of God, 13 waiting thenceforth until his enemies be made the footstool^x under his feet.

14 For by one offering he has perfected forever those who are sanctified.

15 Thus also the Holy Spirit testifies unto us. For after having said,

16 This is the covenant y that I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws upon their hearts, and upon their minds I will write them, he then adds, 17 And their sins and their iniquities I will remember no more.

18 Now where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer offering for sin.

38; Num. 28, 3.—^x Ps. 109, 1.—^y Jer. 31, 33; Heb. 8, 8.

Ver. 22. Forgiveness: legal pardon.
Ver. 24. Jesus: the Greek has "Christ."
Ver. 28. Sins of many: "His death was offered to prevent the ruin of all, but He did not take away the sins of all, because they themselves were unwilling" (St. John Chrysostom).

Chap. 10, Ver. 7. Head of the book: the Greek has "roll of the book."

Ver. 18. The sense is: where these are remitted there is no longer need of an offering for sin.

II: EXHORTATIONS

1. TO PERSEVERANCE IN FAITH

*First Motive:
The Judgment*

19 Since then, brethren, we are free to enter the Holies in virtue of the blood of Christ,

20 a new and living way^z which he inaugurated for us through the veil (that is, his flesh),

21 and since we have a high priest over the house of God,

22 let us draw near with a true heart in fullness of faith, having our hearts cleansed from an evil conscience by sprinkling, and the body washed with a clean water.

23 Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who has given the promise is faithful.

24 And let us consider how to arouse one another to charity and good works;

25 not forsaking our assembly as is the custom of some, but exhorting one another, and this all the more as you see the Day drawing near.

Guilt of Apostasy

26 For ^bif we sin willfully after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there remains no longer a sacrifice for sins,

27 but a certain dreadful expectation of judgment, and ^c"the fury of a fire which will consume the adversaries."

28 A man making void the Law of Moses dies without any mercy on the word of two ^dor three witnesses;

29 how much worse punishments do you think he deserves who has trodden under foot the Son of God, and has regarded as unclean the blood of the covenant through which he was sanctified, and has insulted the Spirit of grace?

30 For we know him who has said,

^z John 14, 6.—^a Ezech. 36, 25.—^b Heb. 6, 4; 1 John 5, 16.—^c Soph. 1, 18.—^d Deut. 17, 6.—^e Deut.

Ver. 26. Sin willfully: by apostasy.

Ver. 38. Lives: the Greek has, "shall live."

Chap. 11, Ver. 1. The sense is: faith is assurance in the case of things that are hoped for, it is conviction about things that are not seen.

e Vengeance is mine, I will repay. And again, The Lord will judge his people.

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

Second Motive: Trials Well Borne

32 But call to mind the days gone by, in which, after you had been enlightened, you endured a great conflict of sufferings;

33 partly by being made a public spectacle through reproaches and tribulations, and partly by making common cause with those who fared thus.

34 For you both have had compassion on those in prison and have joyfully accepted the plundering of your own goods, knowing that you have a better possession and a lasting one.

35 Do not, therefore, lose your confidence, which has a great reward.

36 For you have need of patience that, doing the will of God, you may receive the promise:

37 f For yet a very little while, and he who is to come, will come, and will not delay.

38 g Now my just one lives by faith. But if he draws back, he will not please my soul.

39 We, however, are not of those who draw back unto destruction, but of those who have faith to the saving of the soul.

CHAPTER 11

Third Motive: Old Testament Examples

Now faith is the substance of things to be hoped for, the evidence of things that are not seen;

2 for by it the men of old had testimony borne to them.

3 By faith ^hwe understand that the world was fashioned by the word of God; and thus things visible were made out of things invisible.

32, 35; Rom. 12, 19.—^f Hab. 2, 3.—^g Hab. 2, 4.—^h Gen. 1, 4; John 1, 3.

Ver. 2. Had testimony borne to them: gained God's approval.

Abel

4 By faith i Abel offered to God a sacrifice more excellent than did Cain, through which he obtained a testimony that he was just, God giving testimony to his gifts; and through his faith, though he is dead, he yet speaks.

Enoch

5 By faith j Enoch was taken up lest he should see death; and he was not found, because God took him up. For before he was taken up he had testimony that he pleased God,

6 and without faith it is impossible to please God. For he who comes to God must believe that God exists and is a rewarder to those who seek him.

Noe

7 By faith k Noe, having been warned concerning things not seen as yet, prepared with pious fear an ark in which to save his household. Having thus condemned the world, he was made heir of the justice which is through faith.

Abraham

8 By faith l he who is called Abraham obeyed by going out into a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing where he was going.

9 By faith m he abode in the Land of Promise as in a foreign land, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the co-heirs of the same promise;

10 for he was looking for the city with fixed foundations,^{n} of which city the architect and the builder is God.

Sara

11 By faith even Sara o herself, who was barren, received power for the conception of a child when she was past the time of life, because she believed that he who had given the promise was faithful.

12 And so there sprang from one man, p though he was as good as dead, issue like the stars of heaven in number and innumerable as the sand that is by the seashore.

The Heavenly Country

13 In the way of faith all these died without receiving the promises, but beholding them afar off, and saluting them and acknowledging that they were pilgrims and strangers on earth.

14 For they who say these things show plainly that they seek a country of their own.

15 And indeed if they were thinking of the country from which they went out, they certainly would have had opportunity to return;

16 but as it is they seek after a better, that is, a heavenly country. q Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared for them a city.

Abraham's Trial

17 By faith Abraham, r when he was put to the test, offered Isaac; and he who had received the promises

18 (to whom it had been said, s In Isaac thy seed shall be called) was about to offer up his only-begotten son, 19 reasoning that God has power to raise up even from the dead; t whence also he received him back as a type.

Isaac, Jacob, Joseph

20 By faith u Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau even regarding things to come.

21 By faith v Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph and bowed in worship towards the top of his staff.

22 By faith w Joseph, when dying, made mention of the departure of the sons of Israel and gave orders concerning his bones.

i Gen. 4, 4-8; Matt. 23, 35.—j Gen. 5, 24; Ecclus. 44, 16.—k Gen. 6, 8-22; Ecclus. 44, 17.—l Gen. 12, 1-4; Ecclus. 44, 20-23; Acts 7, 2-8; Rom. 4, 16-22.—m Gen. 23, 4; 26, 3; 35, 12, 27.—n Apoc. 21, 2. 10.—o Gen. 17, 19; 21, 2.—p Gen. 15, 5; 22, 17; 32, 12.—q Ex. 3, 6; Mark 12, 26.—r Gen. 22, 1-10; 1 Mach. 2, 52; Jas. 2, 21.—s Gen. 21, 12; Rom. 9, 7.—t Rom. 4, 17-21.—u Gen. 27, 27-40.—v Gen. 48, 15; 47, 31.—w Gen. 50, 23f.

Amram and Jochabed

23 By faith ^xMoses was hidden by his parents for three months after his birth, because they saw he was a beautiful babe and they did not fear the king's edict.

Moses

24 By faith ^yMoses, when he was grown up, denied that he was a son of Pharaoh's daughter;

25 choosing rather to be afflicted with the people of God than to have the enjoyment of sin for a time,

26 esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of the Egyptians; for he was looking to the reward.

27 By faith ^zhe left Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he persevered as if seeing him who cannot be seen.

28 By faith ^ahe celebrated the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, that he who destroyed the firstborn might not touch them.

The Israelites

29 By faith ^bthey passed through the Red Sea, as through dry land; whereas the Egyptians, attempting it, were swallowed up.

30 By faith ^cthe walls of Jericho fell after they had gone around them for seven days.

Rahab

31 By faith ^dRahab the harlot, who had received the spies in peace, did not perish with the unbelievers.

More Heroes of Faith

32 And what more shall I say? ^eFor time will fail me if I tell of Gideon, of Barac, of Samson, of Jephthe, of David and of Samuel and the prophets,

33 who by faith ^fconquered kingdoms,

^x Ex. 2, 2.—^y Ex. 2, 11.—^z Ex. 2, 15; 10, 28f; 12, 51.—^a Ex. 12, 21ff.—^b Ex. 14, 22ff.—^c Jos. 6, 20.—^d Jos. 2, 3; 6, 25.—^e Judg. 6, 11; 4, 6; 13, 24; 11, 1; 1 Kgs. 12, 11; 16, 13; Acts 3, 24.—^f Dan. 6, wrought justice, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 quenched the violence of fire,^g escaped the edge of the sword, recovered strength from weakness, became valiant in battle, put to flight armies of aliens.

35 Women had their dead restored to them by resurrection.^h Others were tortured, refusing to accept release, that they might find a better resurrection.

36 Others ⁱhad experience of mockery and stripes, yes, even of chains and prisons.

37 They ^jwere stoned, they were sawed asunder, they were tempted, they were put to death by the sword. They went about in sheepskins and goatskins, destitute, distressed, afflicted—

38 of whom the world was not worthy—^kwandering in deserts, mountains, caves and holes in the earth.

Imperfection of Their State

39 And all these, though they had been approved by the testimony of faith, did not receive what was promised,

40 for God had something better in view for us; so that they should not be perfected without us.

2. OTHER VIRTUES

CHAPTER 12

Constancy

THEREFORE let us also, having such a cloud of witnesses over us, put away every encumbrance and the sin entangling us,^l and run with patience to the fight set before us;

2 looking towards the author and finisher of faith, Jesus, who for the joy set before him, endured a cross, despising shame, and sits at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 Consider, then, him who endured such opposition from sinners against himself, so that you may not grow weary and lose heart.

22.—^g Dan. 3, 22ff.—^h 3 Kgs. 7, 23; 4 Kgs. 4, 36; 2 Mach. 6, 18—7, 42.—ⁱ Jer. 20, 2; 37, 15.—^j 2 Par. 24, 21.—^k 1 Mach. 2, 28-30; 2 Mach. 5, 27.—^l 1 Cor. 9, 24; 1 Pet. 2, 1.

Ver. 23. His parents: Amram and Jochabed.

Ver. 26. Of Christ: literally, "of the anointed."

4 For you have not yet resisted unto blood in the struggle with sin.

5 And you have forgotten the exhortation that is addressed to you as sons, saying, m My son, neglect not the discipline of the Lord, neither be thou weary when thou art rebuked by him.

6 For whom the Lord loves, he chastises; and he scourges every son whom he receives.

7 Continue under discipline. God deals with you as with sons; for what son is there whom his father n does not correct?

8 But if you are without discipline, in which all have had a share, then you are illegitimate children and not sons.

9 Furthermore, we had fathers of our flesh to correct us, and we revered them. Shall we not much more obey the Father of spirits and live?

10 For they indeed corrected us for a few days, as they saw fit; but he for our benefit, that we may share his holiness.

11 Now all discipline seems for the present to be a matter not for joy but for grief; but afterwards o it yields the most peaceful fruit of justice to those who have been exercised by it.

12 Therefore brace up the hands that hang down, p and the tottering knees, 13 and make straight paths for your feet; q that no one who is lame may go out of the way, but rather be healed.

Peace and Holiness

14 Strive for peace r with all men, and for that holiness without which no man will see God.

15 Take heed lest anyone be wanting in the grace of God; s lest any root of bitterness springing up cause trouble and by it the many be defiled;

16 lest there be any immoral or profane person, t such as Esau, who for one meal sold his birthright.

17 For know that even afterwards, u when he desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected; for he found no opportunity for repentance, although he had sought after it with tears.

m Prov. 3, 11.—n Prov. 13, 24; Eccles. 30, 1.—o 2 Cor. 4, 17; Wisd. 3, 5; 1 Pet. 1, 6; Jas. 3, 18.—p Isa. 35, 3; Job 4, 4.—q Prov. 4, 26.—r Rom. 12, 18.—s Deut. 29, 18.—t Gen. 25, 33.—u Gen. 27, 38.

Sinai and the New Sion

18 For v you have not approached a mountain that may be touched, and a burning fire, and whirlwind and darkness and storm,

19 and sound of trumpet, and sound of w words; which sound was such that those who heard entreated that the word should not be spoken to them;

20 for they could not bear what was being said: x "And if even a beast touches the mount, it shall be stoned."

21 And so terrible was the spectacle that Moses said, y "I am greatly terrified and trembling."

22 But you have come to Mount Sion, and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to the company of many thousands of angels,

23 and to the Church of the firstborn who are enrolled in the heavens, and to God, the judge of all, and to the spirits z of the just made perfect,

24 and to Jesus, mediator of a new covenant, and to a sprinkling of blood a which speaks better than Abel.

25 See that you do not refuse him who speaks. For if they did not escape who rejected him who spoke upon earth, much more shall we not escape who turn away from him who speaks to us from heaven.

26 His voice then shook the earth, but now he promises thus, b Yet once, and I will shake not the earth only but heaven also.

27 Now by this expression, "yet once," he announces the removal of things which can be shaken—created things—in order that the things which cannot be shaken may remain.

28 Therefore, c since we receive a kingdom that cannot be shaken, we have grace, through which we may offer pleasing service to God with fear and reverence.

29 For d our God is a consuming fire.

—v Ex. 19, 12.—w Ex. 19, 16, 19; 20, 19.—x Ex. 19, 13.—y Deut. 9, 19.—z Luke 10, 20; Dan. 3, 86.—a Gen. 4, 10.—b Ag. 2, 7.—c Dan. 2, 44.—d Deut. 4, 24.

CHAPTER 13

Brotherly Love and Purity

LET brotherly love abide in you, 2 and do not forget to entertain strangers; for ^ethereby some have entertained angels unawares.

3 Remember those who are in bonds as if you were bound with them, and those who are illtreated, as tarrying yourselves also in the body.

4 Let ^fmarriage be held in honor with all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled. For God will judge the immoral and adulterers.

God Will Never Fail You

5 Let your manner of life be without avarice; be content with what you have, for he himself has said, ^g*I will not leave thee, neither will I forsake thee.*

6 So that we may confidently say, ^h*The Lord is my helper: I will not fear what man shall do to me.*

Loyalty to Christ and Superiors

7 Remember your superiors, who spoke to you the word of God. Consider how they ended their lives, and imitate their faith.

8 Jesus Christ ⁱis the same, yesterday and today, yes, and forever.

9 Do not be led away by various and strange doctrines. For it is good to make steadfast the heart by grace, not by foods, ^jin which those who walked found no profit.

10 We have an altar, from which they have no right to eat who serve the tabernacle.

11 For ^kthe bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the Holies by the high priest for sin, are burned outside the camp;

12 and so Jesus also, ^lthat he might sanctify the people by his blood, suffered outside the gate.

13 Let us therefore go forth to him outside the camp, bearing his reproach;

14 for here we have no permanent city, but we seek for the city that is to come.

15 Through him, therefore, ^mlet us offer up a sacrifice of praise always to God, that is, fruit of lips praising his name.

16 And do not forget kindness and charity, for by such sacrifices God's favor is obtained.

17 Obey your superiors and be subject to ⁿthem, for they keep watch as having to render an account of your souls; so that they may do this with joy, and not with grief, for that would not be expedient for you.

Conclusion

Request for Prayer

18 Pray for us. For we are confident that we have a good conscience, desiring to live uprightly in all things.

19 But I more especially exhort you to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

Blessing

20 Now may the God of ^opeace, who brought forth from the dead the great pastor of the sheep, our Lord Jesus, in virtue of the blood of an everlasting covenant, 21 fit you with every good thing to do his will; working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom is glory forever and ever. Amen.

Greetings

22 And I beseech you, brethren, to bear with this word of exhortation; for I have written to you in few words.

23 Know that our brother Timothy has been set free; with whom (if he comes soon) I will see you.

24 Greet all your superiors and all the saints. The brethren from Italy send you greetings.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

^e Gen. 18, 18, 3; 19, 2f.—^f 1 Cor. 7, 38; 1 Tim. 4, 3; Eph. 5, 5.—^g Jos. 1, 5.—^h Ps. 117, 6.—ⁱ Apoc. 1, 8.—^j Rom. 14, 17; Eph. 4, 14.—^k Ex. 29, 14;

Lev. 16, 27.—^l Heb. 9, 12; John 19, 17.—^m Ps. 49, 14, 23; Isa. 57, 19.—ⁿ 1 Thess. 5, 12.—^o Rom. 15, 33; Acts 2, 24; 1 Pet. 2, 25; 5, 4.

The Epistle of ST. JAMES THE APOSTLE

BESIDES the fourteen Epistles of St. Paul, there are seven Catholic Epistles: one of St. James, two of St. Peter, three of St. John, and one of St. Jude. From the earliest days of the Church these have been called "Catholic" on account of their universal appeal. With the exception of the Second and Third Epistles of St. John, they were circular or encyclical letters sent by these Apostles to various Christian communities of the Church.

St. James the Less, the author of the first Catholic Epistle, was the son of Alphaeus or Cleophas (Matt. 10, 3). His mother Mary was a sister, or a close relative, of the Blessed Virgin, and for that reason, according to Jewish custom, he was sometimes called the brother of the Lord (Gal. 1, 19; cf. also Matt. 13, 55; Mark 6, 3). The Apostle held a distinguished position in the early Christian community at Jerusalem. St. Paul tells us he was a witness of the Resurrection of Christ (1 Cor. 15, 7); he is also called a "pillar" of the Church, whom St. Paul consulted about the gospel (Gal. 2, 2. 9). According to tradition, he was the first Bishop of Jerusalem, and was at the Council of Jerusalem about the year 50 (Acts 1, 13; 15, 4ff; 21, 18; Gal. 1, 19). The historians Eusebius and Hegesippus relate that St. James was martyred for the faith by the Jews in the spring of the year 62, although they greatly esteemed his person and had given him the surname of "James the Just."

Catholic tradition has always recognized St. James as the author of this Epistle. Internal evidence based on the language, style and teaching of the Epistle reveals its author as a Jew familiar with the Old Testament, and a Christian thoroughly grounded in the teachings of the gospel. External evidence from the early Fathers and councils of the Church confirms its authenticity and canonicity.

The date of its writing cannot be determined exactly. According to some scholars it was written about the year 49. Others, however, claim it was written after St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans (composed during the winter of 57-58). It was probably written between the years 60 and 62.

St. James addresses himself to the "twelve tribes that are in the Dispersion" (1,1), that is, to Christians outside Palestine; but nothing in the Epistle indicates that he is thinking only of Jewish Christians. St. James realizes full well the temptations and difficulties they encounter in the midst of paganism, and as a spiritual father, he endeavors to guide and direct them in the faith. Therefore the burden of his discourse is an exhortation to practical Christian living.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

JAMES, the servant of God and of our Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes that are in the Dispersion: a greeting.

a 1 Pet. 1, 1.—b Rom. 5, 3ff; 1 Pet. 1, 6.—c Prov. 2, 3ff.

Chap. 1, Ver. 2. Various trials: i.e., afflictions or misfortunes due to external causes, rather than temptations taken in the moral sense of the term.

I: EXHORTATION TO PATIENCE IN TRIALS

Wisdom in Trials

2 Esteem it all joy, my brethren, b when you fall into various trials,

3 knowing that the trying of your faith begets patience.

4 And let patience have its perfect work, that you may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing.

5 But if any of you is wanting in wisdom, c let him ask it of God, who gives abundantly to all men, and does not reproach; and it will be given to him.

6 But d let him ask with faith, without hesitation. For he who hesitates is like a wave of the sea, driven and carried about by the wind.

7 Therefore, let not such a one think that he will receive anything from the Lord,

8 being a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways.

9 But let the brother of lowly condition e glory in his high estate,

10 and the rich man in his low condition; f for he will pass away like the flower of the grass.

11 For the sun rises with a burning heat and parches the grass, and its flower falls and the beauty of its appearance perishes. So too will the rich man wither in his ways.

12 Blessed g is the man who endures temptation; for when he has been tried, he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him.

Sources of Evil and Good

13 Let no man say when he is tempted, that he is tempted by God; for God is no tempter to evil, and he himself tempts no one.

14 But everyone is tempted by being drawn away and enticed by his own passion.

15 Then when passion has conceived, it brings forth sin; but when sin has matured, it begets death.

16 Therefore, my beloved brethren, do not err.

17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of Lights, h with whom there is no change, nor shadow of alteration.

18 Of his own will he has begotten us d Mark 11, 24; Eccclus. 2, 5.—e Jas. 2, 5.—f Isa. 40, 6f.—g 2 Tim. 4, 8; 1 Pet. 5, 4; 1 Cor. 2, 9; 9, 25; Apoc. 2, 10.—h 1 John 1, 5; Matt. 7, 11; John 3, 3, 27; Jas. 3, 15, 17.—i John 1, 13; 1 Pet. 1, 23; Apoc. 14, 4.—j Eccles. 7, 9; Eccclus.

Ver. 8. Double-minded: literally, a man endowed with two souls, that is, an irresolute person who entertains conflicting sentiments.

Ver. 11. The Greek text reads "burning wind". Cf. Matt. 20, 12.

Ver. 13. He is tempted by God: the Greek reads, "I am tempted by God." God is no tempter to evil: the meaning probably is that God is not subject to temptation, neither does he tempt any man.

Ver. 16. Therefore: wanting in the Greek.

Ver. 21. Uncleanness: the Greek expression usually by the word of truth, i that we might be, as it were, the first-fruits of his creatures.

II: LIVING AND ACTIVE FAITH

Hearers and Doers of the Word of God

19 You know this, my beloved brethren. j But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath.

20 For k the wrath of man does not work the justice of God.

21 Therefore, l casting aside all uncleanness and abundance of malice, with meekness receive the ingrafted word, which is able to save your souls.

22 But m be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves.

23 For if anyone is a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like a man looking at his natural face in a mirror:

24 for he looks at himself and goes away, and presently he forgets what kind of man he is.

25 But n he who has looked carefully into the perfect law of liberty and has remained in it, not becoming a forgetful hearer but a doer of the work, shall be blessed in his deed.

26 And o if anyone thinks himself to be religious, not restraining his tongue but deceiving his own heart, that man's religion is vain.

27 Religion pure and undefiled before God the Father is this: to give aid to orphans and widows in their tribulation, and to keep oneself unspotted from this world.

CHAPTER 2

Impartiality

MY BRETHREN, p do not join faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with partiality towards persons.

5, 13.—k Eph. 4, 26.—l Col. 3, 8; 1 Pet. 2, 1.—m Matt. 7, 21, 26; Rom. 2, 13.—n Jas. 2, 12. Rom. 8, 2; John 13, 17.—o Ps. 33, 14.—p 1 Cor. 2, 8; Eccclus. 42, 1.

refers to the lack of physical cleanliness. In the present context it is used metaphorically of what defiles the soul. Abundance of malice: i.e., not merely excessive, but manifold wickedness which must be discarded before the word can be ingrafted.

Ver. 22. The word of God has already been received by the Christians to whom St. James is writing; but they must understand it better and obey it.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1ff. Faith in our Lord Jesus Christ should not be combined with partiality towards men. Ver. 2 and the following exemplify this.

2 For if a man in fine apparel, having a gold ring, enters your assembly, and a poor man in mean attire enters also,

3 and you pay attention to him who is clothed in fine apparel and say, "Sit thou here in this good place"; but you say to the poor man, "Stand thou there," or, "Sit by my footstool";

4 are you not making distinctions among yourselves, and do you not become judges with evil thoughts? Listen, my beloved brethren!

5 Has not God chosen the poor of this world to be rich in faith^q and heirs of the kingdom which God has promised to those who love him?

6 But ^ryou have dishonored the poor man. Do not the rich use their power to oppress you, and do they not drag you before judgment-seats?

7 Do ^sthey not blaspheme the good name by which you are called?

8 If, however, you fulfill the royal law, according to the Scriptures, ^t"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," you do well.

9 But ^uif you show partiality towards persons, you commit sin, being convicted by the law as transgressors.

10 For ^vwhoever keeps the whole law, but offends in one point, has become guilty in all.

11 For he who said, ^w"Thou shalt not commit adultery," said also, "Thou shalt not kill." Now if thou wilt not commit adultery, yet wilt commit murder, thou hast become a transgressor of the law.

12 So ^xspeak and so act as men about to be judged by the law of liberty.

13 For judgment is without mercy to him who has not shown mercy; ^ybut mercy triumphs over judgment.

Practical Faith

14 What will it profit, my brethren, if a man says he has faith,^z but does not have works? Can the faith save him?

^q 1 Cor. 1, 26; Luke 12, 21.—^r 1 Cor. 11, 22.—^s 1 Pet. 4, 14.—^t Lev. 19, 18; Matt. 22, 39; Rom. 13, 9.—^u Deut. 1, 17.—^v Matt. 5, 19.—^w Ex. 20, 13f; Deut. 5, 17f.—^x Jas. 1, 25.—^y Matt. 5, 7; 18,

Ver. 10f. The whole Law and each article of it must be observed. He who transgresses a single Law despises the supreme Lawgiver.

Ver. 15. Naked: i.e., insufficiently clad.

15 And if a brother or a sister be naked and in want of daily food,

16 and one of you say to them, "Go in peace, be warmed and filled," yet you do not give them what is necessary for the body,^a what does it profit?

17 So faith too, unless it has works, is dead in itself.

18 But someone will say, "Thou hast faith, and I have works." Show me thy faith^b without works, and I from my works will show thee my faith.

19 Thou ^cbelievest that there is one God. Thou dost well. The devils also believe, and tremble.

20 But dost thou want to know, O senseless man, that faith without works is useless?

21 Was ^dnot Abraham our father justified by works, when he offered up Isaac his son upon the altar?

22 Dost thou see that faith worked along with his works, and by the works the faith was made perfect?

23 And the Scripture was fulfilled which says, ^e"Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as justice, and he was called the friend of God."

24 You see ^fthat by works a man is justified, and not by faith only.

25 In like manner, ^gwas not Rahab the harlot also justified by works, when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out another way?

26 For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith also without works is dead.

III: THE HAZARD OF TEACHING

CHAPTER 3

Abuses of the Tongue

LET NOT many of you become teachers, my brethren, knowing that you will receive a greater judgment.

2 For in many things we all offend. If anyone does not offend in word, he is 29-34; 25, 45f.—^z Matt. 7, 21.—^a 1 John 3, 17.—^b Gal. 5, 6.—^c Mark 5, 7.—^d Gen. 22, 9f. 12; Heb. 11, 17.—^e Gen. 15, 6; Isa. 41, 8; 2 Par. 20, 7.—^f John 8, 39; Rom. 4, 12.—^g Jos. 2, 4. 15; 6, 17; Heb. 11, 31.

Ver. 19. The Greek reads: "Dost thou believe that there is one God?"

Chap. 3, Ver. 1. The Greek has: "we shall receive the greater judgment," i.e., a stricter judgment.

a perfect man, able also to lead round by a bridle the whole body.

3 For if we put bits into horses' mouths that they may obey us, we control their whole body also.

4 Behold, even the ships, great as they are, and driven by boisterous winds, are steered by a small rudder wherever the touch of the steersman pleases.

5 So the tongue also is a little member, but it boasts mightily. Behold, how small a fire—how great a forest it kindles!

6 And the tongue is a fire, the very world of iniquity. The tongue is placed among our members, defiling the whole body, and setting on fire the course of our life, being itself set on fire by hell.

7 For every kind of beast and bird, and of serpents and the rest, is tamed and has been tamed by mankind;

8 but the tongue no man can tame—a restless evil, full of deadly poison.

9 With it we bless ^hGod the Father; and with it we curse men, who have been made after the likeness of God.

10 Out of the same mouth proceed blessing and cursing. These things, my brethren, ought not to be so.

11 Does the fountain send forth sweet and bitter water from the same opening?

12 Can a fig tree, my brethren, bear olives, or a vine figs? ⁱ So neither can salt water yield fresh water.

True Wisdom

13 Who is wise and instructed among you? Let him by his good behavior show his work in the meekness of wisdom.

14 But if you have bitter jealousy and contentions in your hearts, do not glory and be liars against the truth.

15 This is not the wisdom that descends from above. ^jIt is earthly, sensual, devilish.

16 For where there is envy and contentiousness, there is instability and every wicked deed.

^h Gen. 1, 27.—ⁱ Matt. 7, 16ff.—^j Jas. 1, 5, 17.—^k Isa. 32, 17; Matt. 5, 9.—^l Luke 6, 26; 1 John 2, 15.—^m Ex. 20, 3, 5.—ⁿ Prov. 3, 34; Job 22, 29;

Ver. 6. Course of our life: literally, "the wheel of of our nativity" or "nature," i.e., man's life from beginning to end. Cf. Jas. 1, 23.

Ver. 7. And the rest: the Greek has "and sea creatures."

Ver. 9. God the Father: the Greek has "the Lord and Father."

17 But the wisdom that is from above is first of all chaste, then peaceable, moderate, docile, in harmony with good things, full of mercy and good fruits, without judging, without dissimulation.

18 The ^kfruit of justice is sown in peace by those who make peace.

IV: SPECIAL ADMONITIONS

CHAPTER 4

Sources of Discord

WHENCE do wars and quarrels come among you? Is it not from this, from your passions, which wage war in your members?

2 You covet and do not have; you kill and envy, and cannot obtain. You quarrel and wrangle, and you do not have because you do not ask.

3 You ask and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it upon your passions.

4 Adulterers,^l do you not know that the friendship of this world is enmity with God? Therefore, whoever wishes to be a friend of this world becomes an enemy of God.

5 Or do you think that the Scripture says in vain, ^m"The Spirit which dwells in you covets unto jealousy"?

6 But he gives a greater grace. For this reason it says, ⁿ"God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble."

7 Be subject therefore to God,^o but resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw near to God, and he will draw near to ^pyou. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded.

9 Be sorrowful, and mourn, and weep; let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy into sadness.

10 Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, ^qand he will exalt you.

Matt. 23, 12; 1 Pet. 5, 5; Luke 14, 11.—^o Eph. 6, 12; 1 Pet. 5, 8f.—^p Zach. 1, 3; Isa. 1, 16.—^q Luke 14, 11; 18, 14; 1 Pet. 5, 6.

Chap. 4, Ver. 4. The Greek reads, "adulteresses." A worldly soul is guilty of spiritual infidelity or adultery.

Ver. 6. But he gives a greater grace: i.e., He gives us more valuable gifts than the world or its votaries can offer. Cf. 1 John 3, 20.

Presumption

11 Brethren, do not speak against one another. He who speaks against a brother, or judges his brother, speaks against the law and judges the law. But if thou judgest the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one Lawgiver and Judge,^r he who is able to destroy and to save.

13 But thou who judgest thy neighbor, ^swho art thou?

Behold now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go into such a city, and spend a year there, and trade and make money";

14 you ^twho do not know what will happen tomorrow.

15 For what is your life? It is a mist that appears for a little while, and then vanishes. You ought rather to say, ^u"If the Lord will," and, "If we live, we will do this or that."

16 But now you boast in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil.

17 Therefore ^vhe who knows how to do good, and does not do it, commits a sin.

CHAPTER 5

The Unjust Rich

COME NOW, you rich, ^wweep and howl over your miseries which will come upon you.

2 Your riches have rotted,^x and your garments have become moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and silver are rusted;^y and their rust will be a witness against you, and will devour your flesh as fire does. You have laid up treasure in the last days.

4 Behold, the wages of the laborers who reaped your fields,^z which have been kept back by you unjustly, cry out; and their cry has entered into the ears of the Lord of Hosts.

^r Matt. 7, 1; Rom. 2, 1; 14, 4.—^s Prov. 27, 1; Luke 12, 19f.—^t Ps. 38, 6f.—^u Acts 18, 21.—^v Luke 12, 47; Rom. 14, 23.—^w Luke 6, 24.—^x Matt. 6, 19.—^y Prov. 16, 27.—^z Lev. 19, 13; Deut. 24, 14f; Isa. 5, 9; Mal. 3, 5; Job 31, 38ff.—^a Luke 16, 19.

Ver. 15. The Greek reads: "If the Lord will, we shall live and do this or that"; and, "You are a mist," Chap. 5, Ver. 6. Many translate "the Just One," and see here some allusion to the Passion and Death of Christ. More probably the expression refers to the class of the just who offered no resistance.

5 You have feasted upon earth,^a and you have nourished your hearts on dissipation in the day of slaughter.

6 You have condemned and put to death the just, and he did not resist you.

Conclusion

Patience in Affliction

7 Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient until it receives the early and the late^b rain.

8 Do you also be patient; strengthen your hearts;^c for the coming of the Lord is at hand.

9 Do not complain against one another, brethren, that you may not be judged. Behold, the judge is standing at the door.

10 Take, brethren, as an example of labor and patience, the prophets ^dwho spoke in the name of the Lord. Behold, we call them blessed who have endured.

11 You have heard of the patience of Job,^e and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is merciful and compassionate.

12 But above all things, my brethren, ^fdo not swear, either by heaven or by the earth, or any other oath; but let your yes be yes, your no, no; that you may not fall under judgment.

Last Anointing, Confession and Prayer

13 Is any one of you sad? Let him pray. Is any one in good spirits? Let him sing a hymn.

14 Is any one among you sick? Let him bring in the presbyters of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil ^gin the name of the Lord.

15 And the prayer of faith will save the sick man,^h and the Lord will raise 25; Jer. 12, 3.—^b Deut. 11, 14; Luke 21, 19; Heb. 10, 36.—^c 1 Thess. 2, 16; 3, 13.—^d Matt. 5, 12.—^e Pss. 102, 8; 110, 4; Job 1, 21f.—^f Matt. 5, 34ff.—^g Mark 6, 13. ^h Mark 16, 18.

Ver. 14. According to the teaching of the Council of Trent (Sess. 14, c. 3) St. James promulgated here the Sacrament of Extreme Unction. Presbyters: certainly here in the sense of "priests."

him up, and if he be in sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 Confess, therefore, your sins to one another, and pray for one another, that you may be saved. For the unceasing prayer of a just man is of great avail.

17 Elias ⁱwas a man like ourselves, subject to the same infirmities; and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain upon the earth, and it did not rain for three years and six months.

18 He prayed again, ^jand the heavens

ⁱ 3 Kgs. 17, 1; Luke 4, 25.—^j 3 Kgs. 18, 42.—^k Gal. 6, 1.—^l Ps. 50, 15; Prov. 10, 12; 1 Pet. 4, 8.

gave rain and the earth brought forth its fruit.

Conversion of a Sinner

19 My brethren, if any one of you strays from the truth ^kand someone brings him back, 20 he ought to know that he who causes a sinner to be brought back from his misguided way, will save his soul from ^ldeath, and will cover a multitude of sins.

Ver. 16. That you may be saved: the sense of the Greek is "that you may be healed."

The First Epistle of ST. PETER THE APOSTLE

ST. PETER, also called Simon (Acts 15, 14; 2 Pet. 1, 1), was the son of a certain John from the town of Bethsaida in Galilee (John 1, 42-44). He was led by his brother Andrew to the Lord, who conferred upon him the name Cephas, i.e., "rock," or Peter (John 1, 42; Matt. 16, 17-19; Mark 3, 16; Luke 6, 14). Thereupon he followed the Lord and became the "Prince of the Apostles." After the Resurrection the primacy was conferred upon him and immediately after the Ascension he began to exercise it. After preaching in Jerusalem and Palestine he went to Rome, probably after his liberation from prison (Acts 12, 17). Some years later he was in Jerusalem for the first Church Council (Acts 15, 6ff), and shortly afterwards at Antioch (Gal. 2, 11-14). In the year 67 he was martyred in Rome.

The Epistle names St. Peter, Apostle of Jesus Christ, as its author (1, 1; cf. also 5, 12-14), and the testimony of the early centuries of Christianity reaffirms this evidence. So constant was this testimony that Eusebius, the Church historian, placed the Epistle among the books of the Bible accepted by all. Its authorship is also confirmed by the contents of the Epistle, in which the author appears as an immediate witness of the sufferings of Christ (5, 1), and by its similarity to St. Peter's discourses in Acts.

The Epistle is addressed to the Christian communities of Asia Minor that were being distressed by the enmity of their pagan neighbors. By their acceptance of Christianity they had become separated from their own countrymen, who abused and persecuted them. The Apostle therefore instructs his readers that Christianity is the true religion in spite of their trials and sufferings, and exhorts them to lead good Christian lives.

The place of composition is given as "Babylon" (5, 13). From the Apocalypse (14, 8; 16, 19, etc.), the Jewish writings and the Sibylline books of the first century, we know that this name was a cryptic designation of the city of Rome. Since the author seems to be familiar with the Epistle to the Ephesians, which was written in 63 A.D., and since he makes no reference to the persecution of Nero, which began about the end of 64 A.D., it appears very likely that the letter was written in the latter part of 63 or the beginning of 64.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

PETER, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, to the sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia, chosen

2 unto the sanctification of the Spirit according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, unto obedience to Jesus Christ and the sprinkling of his blood: grace and peace be given you in abundance.

Thanksgiving

3 Blessed ^a be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his great mercy has begotten us again, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, unto a living hope, 4 unto an incorruptible inheritance—undefiled and unfading, reserved for you in heaven.

5 By the power of God you are guarded through faith for salvation, which is ready to be revealed in the last time.

6 Over this you rejoice; though now for a little while, if need be, you are made sorrowful by various trials,

7 that the temper of your faith—more precious by far than gold which is tried by fire^b—may be found unto praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ.

8 Him, though you have not seen, you love. In him, though you do not see him,^c yet believing, you exult with a joy unspeakable and triumphant;

9 receiving, as the final issue of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

10 The prophets who foretold the grace that was to come for you made earnest inquiry and search concerning this salvation.

11 They searched what time or circumstances the Spirit of Christ in them was signifying, when he foretold the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that would follow.

12 To them it was revealed ^d that not to themselves but to you they were ministering those things which now have been declared to you by those who preached the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. Into these things angels desire to look.

I: GENERAL COUNSELS OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS

Filial Obedience and Fear

13 Therefore, having girded up the loins of your understanding,^e be sober and set your hope completely upon that grace which is brought to you in the revelation of Jesus Christ.

14 As obedient children, do not conform to the lusts of former days when you were ignorant;

15 but as the One who called you is holy, be you also holy in all your behavior;

16 for it is written,^f You shall be holy, because I am holy.

17 And if you invoke as Father him who ^g without respect of persons judges according to each one's work, conduct yourselves with fear in the time of your sojourning.

18 You know that you were redeemed from the vain manner of life handed down from your fathers, not with perishable things, with silver or gold, 19 but ^h with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot.

^a Eph. 1, 3ff.—^b Prov. 17, 3; Mal. 3, 3.—^c 2 Cor. 5, 7.—^d Eph. 3, 10.—^e Eph. 6, 14.—^f Lev. 19, 2; 20, 7.—^g Mal. 1, 6; Rom. 2, 11.—^h Heb. 9, 14.

Chap. 1, Ver. 1. To the sojourners of the Dispersion: a technical term among the Jews referring to the Jews resident outside Palestine. St. Peter uses it in an analogous sense, i.e., with reference to Christians who on earth form a dispersion from their heavenly home. Cf. Jas. 1, 1; Heb. 11, 13-16; 12, 22.

Ver. 2. Sprinkling of his blood: a metaphor based on the dedication of the covenant contracted at Mount Sinai [Ex. 24, 8].

Ver. 6. You rejoice: the Greek text may be the imperative "rejoice!"

Ver. 7. More precious by far, etc.: the Greek text reads: "more precious than gold which perishes, proved though it is by fire."

Ver. 14. Obedient children: literally, "children of obedience," i.e., in contrast to those not "obedient" to the faith. Cf. Eph. 2, 2f; 5, 6.

Ver. 17. With fear: the reverential fear of children towards a just father. Sojourning: life on earth is but a pilgrimage.

Ver. 19f. Without blemish and without spot. Fore-known, etc.: a reference to the messianic prophecy of Isa. 53, 7 [cf. Acts 8, 32], and to the preaching of John the Baptist [John 1, 29-34].

20 Foreknown, indeed, before the foundation of the world, he has been manifested in the last times for your sakes.

21 Through him you are believers in God who raised him up from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope might be in God.

Brotherly Love

22 Now that your obedience to charity has purified your souls for a brotherly love that is sincere, love one another heartily and intensely.

23 For you have been reborn, not from corruptible seed but from incorruptible, through the word of God who lives and abides forever.

24 For, ⁱ All flesh is as grass, and all its glory as the flower of grass; the grass withered, and the flower has fallen—

25 but the word of the Lord endures forever. Now this is the word of the gospel that was preached to you.

CHAPTER 2

Growth in Holiness

LAY ASIDE therefore all malice, and all deceit, and pretense, and envy, and all slander.

2 Crave, as newborn babes, pure spiritual milk, that by it you may grow to salvation;

3 if, indeed, ⁱ you have tasted that the Lord is sweet.

4 Draw near to him, a living stone, rejected indeed by men but chosen and honored by God.

5 Be you yourselves as living stones, built thereon into a spiritual house, ^k a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.

6 Hence Scripture says, ^l Behold, I lay

ⁱ Isa. 40, 6-8.—^j Ps. 33, 9.—^k Eph. 2, 21f.—^l Isa. 28, 16.—^m Ps. 117, 22; Matt. 21, 42.—ⁿ Isa. 8, 14.

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. Newborn babes: the meaning is in no sense derogatory, as in 1 Cor. 3, 1. Neophytes will attain to maturity [Eph. 4, 13f] more readily when strengthened by the spiritual milk, the pure and unadulterated word of God.

Ver. 5. Living stones, built, etc.: a frequent metaphor in the Epistles of St. Paul.

Ver. 8. Do not believe: the Greek has: "being disobedient." Are destined: rejection of Christ spells destruction.

in Sion a chief cornerstone, chosen, precious; and he who believes in it shall not be put to shame.

7 For you, therefore, who believe, is this honor; but to those who do not believe, ^m A stone which the builders rejected, the same has become the head of the corner,

8 and, ⁿ A stumbling-stone, and a rock of scandal, to those who stumble at the word, and who do not believe. For this also they are destined.

9 You, however, ^o are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a purchased people; that you may proclaim the perfections of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light.

10 You ^p who in times past were not a people, but are now the people of God; who had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

II: PARTICULAR COUNSELS OF CHRISTIAN CONDUCT

Good Example

11 Beloved, ^q I exhort you as strangers and pilgrims to abstain from carnal desires which war against the soul.

12 Behave yourselves honorably among the pagans; that, whereas they slander you as evildoers, they may, through observing you, by reason of your good works glorify God in the day of visitation.

For the Citizen

13 Be subject to every human creature for God's sake, ^r whether to the king as supreme,

14 or to governors as sent through him for vengeance on evildoers and for the praise of the good.

15 For such is the will of God, that by doing good you should put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

—^o Ex. 19, 6; Isa. 43, 20f.—^p Os. 1, 6. 9.—^q Gal. 5, 24.—^r Rom. 13, 1-7.

Ver. 9. A purchased people: the Greek has: "a people for (God's) possession."

Ver. 12. The day of visitation: this may refer to the last judgment, or, more probably, to the time when the call of grace shall be given to the pagan. Hence the exhortation to good example. Cf. Matt. 5, 16.

Ver. 13. For God's sake: the Greek has: "for the Lord's sake."

16 Live as freemen, yet not using your freedom as a cloak for malice but as servants of God.

17 Honor all men; ^slove the brotherhood; fear God; honor the king.

For the Slave

18 Servants, ^tbe subject to your masters in all fear, not only to the good and moderate, but also to the severe.

19 This is indeed a grace, if for consciousness of God anyone endures sorrows, suffering unjustly.

20 For what is the glory if, when you sin and are buffeted, you endure it? But if, when you do right and suffer, you take it patiently, ^uthis is acceptable with God.

21 Unto this, indeed, you have been called, because Christ also has suffered for you, leaving you an example ^vthat you may follow in his steps:

22 ^wWho did no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth.

23 Who, when he was reviled, did not revile, when he suffered, did not threaten, but yielded himself to him who judged him unjustly;

24 who himself ^xbore our sins in his body upon the tree, that we, having died to sin, might live to justice; and by his stripes you were healed.

25 For you were as sheep going astray, ^ybut now you have returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

CHAPTER 3

For the Wife and the Husband

IN LIKE MANNER ^zalso let wives be subject to their husbands; so that even if any do not believe the word, they may without word be won through the behavior of their wives.

2 observing reverently your chaste behavior.

3 Let not theirs be the ^aoutward adornment of braiding the hair, or of wearing gold, or of putting on robes;

^s Prov. 24, 21; Rom. 12, 10.—^t Eph. 6, 5.—^u Matt. 5, 10.—^v John 13, 15.—^w Isa. 53, 9.—^x Isa. 53, 4f.—^y Isa. 53, 6.—^z Titus 2, 5.—^a Isa. 3, 18-24; 1Tim.

Ver. 19. For consciousness of God: for religious motives.

Chap. 3, Ver. 6. Fear no disturbance: in marriage Christian wives are obliged to obey God's law re-

4 but let it be the inner life of the heart, in the imperishableness of a quiet and gentle spirit, which is of great price in the sight of God.

5 For after this manner in old times the holy women also who hoped in God adorned themselves, while being subject to their husbands.

6 ^bSara obeyed Abraham, calling him lord. You are daughters of hers when you do what is right and fear no disturbance.

7 Husbands, ^cin like manner dwell with your wives considerably, paying honor to the woman as to the weaker vessel, and as co-heir of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

In Christian Charity

8 Finally, be all like-minded, compassionate, lovers of the brethren, merciful, humble;

9 not rendering evil for evil, ^dor abuse for abuse, but contrariwise, blessing; for unto this were you called that you might inherit a blessing.

10 For, ^eHe who would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no deceit.

11 Let him turn away from evil and do good, let him seek after peace and pursue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are upon the just, and his ears unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against those who do evil.

In Christian Suffering

13 And who is there to harm you, if you are zealous for what is good?

14 But ^feven if you suffer anything for justice' sake, blessed are you. So have no fear of their fear and do not be troubled.

15 But hallow the Lord Christ in your hearts. ^gBe ready always with an answer

2, 9.—^b Gen. 18, 12.—^c Eph. 5, 25.—^d Matt. 5, 44; Rom. 12, 14.—^e 10-12; Ps. 33, 13-17.—^f Matt. 5, 10; Isa. 8, 12.—^g Isa. 8, 13.

gardless of intimidation from non-Christian husbands. Ver. 7. To the woman as to the weaker vessel: the Greek reads: "to the female vessel as weaker."

Ver. 15. Hallow: i.e., venerate, glorify.

to everyone who asks a reason for the hope that is in you.

16 Yet do so with gentleness and fear, having a good conscience, so that wherein they speak in disparagement of you they who revile your good behavior in Christ may be put to shame.

17 For it is better, if the will of God should so will, that you suffer for doing good than for doing evil.

18 Because ^h Christ also died once for sins, the Just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God. Put to death indeed in the flesh, he was brought to life in the spirit, 19 in which also he went and preached to those spirits that were in prison.

20 These in times past had been disobedient when the patience of God waited ⁱ in the days of Noe while the ark was building. In that ark a few, that is, eight souls were saved through water.

21 Its counterpart, Baptism, ^j now saves you also (not the putting off of the filth of the flesh, but the inquiry of a good conscience after God), through the resurrection of Jesus Christ;

22 who ^k is at the right hand of God, swallowing up death that we might be made heirs of eternal life; for he went into heaven, Angels, Powers and Virtues being made subject to him.

CHAPTER 4

In Christian Faithfulness

SINCE Christ therefore has suffered in the flesh, do you also arm yourselves with the same intent; because he who has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sins;

2 that ^l during the rest of his time in the flesh he may live no longer according to the lusts of men, but according to the will of God.

3 For sufficient is the time past for those to have accomplished the desire of the pagans, walking, as they did, in dissipapation, lusts, drunkenness, revellings, carousings and unlawful worship of idols.

4 They are amazed that you do not run with them into the same flood of dissipation, and they abuse you.

5 But ^m they will render an account to him who is ready to judge the living and the dead.

6 For to this end was the gospel preached even to the dead, that they may be judged indeed as men in flesh but may live as God lives in spirit.

III: CHRISTIAN SERVICE AND THE COMING JUDGMENT

Mutual Charity

7 But the end of all things is at hand. Be prudent therefore and watchful in prayers.

8 But above all things have a constant mutual charity among yourselves; ⁿ for charity covers a multitude of sins.

9 Be hospitable ^o to one another without murmuring.

10 According to the gift that each has received, ^p administer it to one another as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.

11 If anyone speaks, let it be as with words of God. If anyone ^q ministers, let it be as from the strength that God furnishes; that in all things God may be honored through Jesus Christ, to whom are the glory and the dominion forever. Amen.

Blessings of Persecution

12 Beloved, do not be startled at the trial by fire that is taking place among you to prove you, ^r as if something strange were happening to you;

13 but rejoice, in so far as you are partakers of the sufferings of Christ, ^s that you may also rejoice with exultation in the revelation of his glory.

^h Rom. 6, 10.—ⁱ Gen. 7, 7. 17.—^j Eph. 5, 26.—^k Eph. 1, 20f.—^l Eph. 4, 23.—^m Rom. 14, 9f.—ⁿ

Ver. 18. Brought to life in the spirit: a reference to the new activity of Christ's soul in limbo.

Ver. 22. Swallowing up death that we might be made heirs of eternal life: wanting in the Greek text.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. Intent: the ruling thought of Christian conduct. Cf. Heb. 12, 2.

Ver. 5. They will render an account: the pagans who now speak evil of the Christians must render an account to Christ, the Judge of the living and the dead.

Prov. 10, 12.—^o Heb. 13, 2.—^p 1 Cor. 12.—^q Rom. 12, 7.—^r 1 Pet. 1, 6f.—^s Rom. 8, 17; 2 Tim. 2, 12.

Ver. 6. The gospel preached even to the dead: a reference to the good tidings Christ brought to the souls in limbo [1 Pet. 3, 19].

Ver. 8. Mutual charity: the Greek reads, "earnest charity."

14 If you are upbraided for the name of Christ, ^t blessed will you be, because the honor, the glory and the power of God and his Spirit rest upon you.

15 Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or a thief, or a slanderer, or as one coveting what belongs to others.

16 But if he suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God under this name.

17 For the time has come for the judgment to begin with the household of God; ^u but if it begin first with us, what will be the end of those who do not believe the gospel of God?

18 And ^v if the just man scarcely will be saved, where will the impious and the sinner appear?

19 Therefore let them also who suffer according to the will of God commend their souls ^w in well-doing to a faithful Creator.

CHAPTER 5

For the Ministry

NOW I exhort the presbyters ^x among you—I, your fellow-presbyter and witness of the sufferings of Christ, the partaker also of the glory that is to be revealed in time to come—

2 tend ^y the flock of God which is among you, governing not under constraint, but willingly, according to God; nor yet for the sake of base gain, but eagerly;

3 nor yet as lording it over your charges, ^z but becoming from the heart a pattern to the flock.

4 And when the Prince of the shepherds appears, ^a you will receive the unfading crown of glory.

^t Acts 5, 41; Isa. 11, 2.—^u 1 Cor. 11, 32; 2 Thess. 1, 8.—^v Prov. 11, 31 (LXX).—^w Ps. 30, 6.—^x Rom. 8, 17; Apoc. 1, 9.—^y 1 Tim. 3, 2-7.—^z Titus 2, 7.—^a 2 Tim. 4, 8.—^b Matt. 23, 12; Prov. 3, 34 (LXX).

Ver. 14. The reading here is that of the Clementine Vulgate. The best reading of the Vulgate Manuscripts seems to be "... because the Spirit of God's glory rests upon you, blasphemed by others, but honored by yourselves."

Ver. 15. As one coveting: the Greek term means a meddler in other men's affairs.

Ver. 17. Who do not believe: the Greek reads, "who do not obey."

Chap. 5, Ver. 1. Fellow-presbyter: i.e., fellow-priest or bishop.

Ver. 3. From the heart: not in the Greek text.

Ver. 4. The Prince of the shepherds: the Greek reads, "the chief Shepherd."

Ver. 5. You who are younger: a counsel addressed to the inferior ministers of the individual communities.

Counsels to the Laity

5 Likewise, you who are younger, be subject to the presbyters. And all of you practise humility towards one another; for, ^b God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble.

6 Humble ^c yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in the time of visitation;

7 cast ^d all your anxiety upon him, because he cares for you.

8 Be sober, be watchful! ^e For your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, goes about seeking someone to devour.

9 Resist him, steadfast in the faith, ^f knowing that the same suffering befalls your brethren all over the world.

10 But the God of all grace, who has called us unto his eternal glory ^g in Christ Jesus, will himself, after we have suffered a little while, perfect, strengthen and establish us.

11 To him is the dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Conclusion

Farewell

12 By Silvanus, the faithful brother as I account him, I have written to you thus briefly, exhorting and testifying that this is the true grace of God. Stand firmly in it.

13 The church which is at Babylon, ^h chosen together with you, greets you, and so does my son Mark.

14 Greet one another ⁱ with a holy kiss. Grace be to you all who are in Christ. Amen.

—^c Job 22, 29; Jas. 4, 10.—^d Ps. 54, 23; Matt. 6, 25; Phil. 4, 6.—^e 1 Thess. 5, 6; Ps. 21, 14.—^f Eph. 6, 11-13.—^g 1 Thess. 2, 12.—^h Acts 12, 12, 25; 2 Tim. 4, 11.—ⁱ 1 Cor. 16, 20.

Ver. 6. In the time of visitation: the Greek reads, "in due time."

Ver. 9. Befalls: the Greek can mean, "is prescribed for."

Ver. 10. Who has called us: the Greek reads, "who has called you."

Ver. 12. Silvanus: cf. 2 Cor. 1, 19; 1 Thess. 1, 1; 2 Thess. 1, 1; probably identical with Silas mentioned in Acts 15, 22.

Ver. 13. The church: the Greek reads "she." Jewish mentality frequently personified the religious community. Babylon: Rome. A metaphor probably founded on Jewish usage.

Ver. 14. Grace: the Greek reads: "Peace to you all who are in Christ."

The Second Epistle of ST. PETER THE APOSTLE

IN THIS Second Epistle St. Peter refers to his previous letter and to the doctrine contained in it (3, 1f). It was most likely addressed to the same Christian communities of Asia Minor as the former Epistle, and was occasioned by the appearance among the Christians of false teachers (2, 1), heretics and deceivers (3, 3), who promised them freedom (2, 19), corrupting their good morals (2, 18) and denying the Second Coming of Christ and the end of the world (3, 4ff). Its purpose, therefore, was to encourage the Christians to persevere in the faith, and to protect them against the dangers of the false teachers.

The contents of this Epistle, especially Chapter Two, bear such a striking resemblance to the Epistle of St. Jude that it seems probable St. Peter was familiar with the Epistle of his fellow-Apostle and made use of some of its thoughts.

The author calls himself "Simon Peter, a servant and Apostle of Jesus Christ" (1, 1). This statement of authorship is confirmed by the Epistle itself, the author of which describes himself as an eyewitness of our Lord's Transfiguration (1, 16-18), and calls Paul his "dear brother" (3, 15).

The time and place of its composition are deduced from 1, 13-15. The Apostle knows that his death is close at hand. As St. Peter died a martyr in Rome, we may conclude that the Epistle was written from Rome during his imprisonment, 66-67 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

SIMON PETER, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have obtained an equal privilege of faith with ourselves through the justice of our God and Savior Jesus Christ.

2 May grace and peace be given you in abundance in the knowledge ^a of our Lord.

I: CHRISTIAN VIRTUE — ITS NECESSITY AND MOTIVES

Life of a Christian

3 For indeed ^b his divine power has granted us all things pertaining to life and piety through the knowledge of him who has called us by his own glory and power—

4 through which he has granted us the very great and precious promises, ^c so that through them you may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption of that lust which is in the world.

5 Do you accordingly on your part strive diligently to supply your faith with virtue, ^d your virtue with knowledge,

6 your knowledge with self-control, your self-control with patience, your patience with piety,

7 your piety with fraternal love, ^e your fraternal love with charity.

^a Jude 2; Col. 1, 10.—^b 1 Pet. 2, 9; 2 Cor. 4, 6.—^c 2 Cor. 7, 1; Eph. 4, 22.—^d Gal. 5, 22f.—^e Gal. 6, 10.

Chap. 1, Ver. 3. His divine power: the power of Christ, who is mentioned last in the preceding sentence. The call is always ascribed to God the Father.

Ver. 4. Through which: Christ's glory and power are the foundation of our hope. The Greek text reads, "the . . . things promised us," and, "having escaped from the corruption which is in the world by lust."

Partakers of the divine nature: the adopted sons of God share in a supernatural way in the nature of God. Grace makes them like Him; and in heaven they will see Him as He is.

Ver. 5. The Greek text reads, "For this very reason, employing all care, supply. . . ."

Parables and Miracles

HE PICTURES in the following pages depict some of the parables used by Christ in His teaching and some of the miracles performed by Him during His ministry. The artists are from 16th and 17th century Flanders, and from 19th century Germany, Norway, Denmark, and England. A few of the names are not new here. Johann Friedrich Overbeck did The Finding of Moses, which appears in the section of pictures illustrating Old Testament stories; Marten de Vos, Constantin Hansen, Jörgen Roed, and Carl Bloch are represented in the section illustrating events in the life of Christ.

The pictures capture only a few brief moments in the sequence of parables and miracles that enrich the fabric of the New Testament narrative. Both the parables and the miracles are an important part of the message of Jesus. He taught with parables; He inspired with miracles. One of His purposes in using parables was to instruct his disciples, so that He might send them out to preach the Kingdom of God. By His miracles He so strengthened their faith that they, too, were able to perform miracles, and as a result, go out into the world and establish the rhythm of instruction and inspiration which had its foundation in Jesus' relationship with them.

What Is a Parable?

A PARABLE is a story intended to reveal an underlying spiritual truth. Jesus used such stories to highlight His message. The parables contain many simple incidents drawn from the everyday life of His listeners, but their meaning is profound. Sometimes He used several parables to emphasize a point, as when, in explaining the abounding, redeeming love of God, He related three stories, including “The Prodigal Son.” Or again, when questioned by His disciples as to why He spoke in parables, He expressed His desire to instruct them first; He then explained the meaning of the parable of the sower who went forth to sow, and He quickly followed with three more parables, all illustrating the same point. His message is deeply rooted in the parables He used in His teaching. The parables also provide the opportunity for intimate glimpses into the lives of the people of New Testament times. For their literary charm—their simplicity, their vividness, their pithiness—and for the message they convey, the parables are an invaluable part of the New Testament text.

The Good Samaritan, privately owned
Ludwig A. Schou (1838-1867), Danish School

Luke 10:34 "And he went up to him and bound up his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. And setting him on his own beast, he brought him to an inn and took care of him."

CAMERA CLIX

The Lost Sheep, Manchester City Art Gallery, England
William J. Webb (late 19th century), English School

Luke 15:5 "And when he has found it, he lays it upon his shoulders rejoicing."

CAMERA CLIX

The Prodigal Son, Bringstrup Church, Copenhagen
Jörgen Roed (1808-1888), Danish School

Luke 15:20 "And he arose and went to the father. But while he was yet a long way off, his father saw him and was moved with compassion, and ran and fell upon his neck and kissed him."

CAMERA CLIX

The Wise and the Foolish Virgins, Stadtische Kunstsammlung, Düsseldorf
A. Peter Cornelius (1783-1867), German School

Mat. 25:1 "Then will the kingdom of heaven be like ten virgins who took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom and the bride."

CAMERA CLIX

The Stranger Being Welcomed, Castle Chapel, Celle, Germany
Marten de Vos (1532-1603), Flemish School

Mat. 25:35 "For I was hungry and you gave me to eat; I was thirsty and you gave me to drink; I was a stranger and you took me in."

What Is a Miracle?

 MIRACLE is a phenomenon that apparently works beyond the boundaries of natural law. It is something that creates wonder. The miracles in the New Testament are significant in various ways. They demonstrate the “good news” of the Gospel. They are an evidence of divine power working through an agent. They are an expression of Christ’s compassion and mercy. They illustrate the healing power of faith. They show how His forgiveness can make a man whole. They testify to the power of “the Word.” The miracles are an intrinsic part of Christ’s message.

Wedding in Cana, Frederiksborg Castle
Carl Bloch (1834-1890), Danish School

John 2:8 "And Jesus said to them, 'Draw out now, and take to the chief steward.' And they took it to him."

CAMERA CLIX

The Miraculous Catch of Fish, Musée des Beaux Arts, Strasbourg
Jacob Jordaens (1593-1678), Flemish School

Luke 5:6 "And when they had done so, they enclosed a great number of fishes, but their net was breaking."

CAMERA CLIX

The Son of the Widow of Nain, Reerslev Church, Denmark
Fredrik Christian Lund (1826-1901), Danish School

Luke 7:15 "And he who was dead, sat up, and began to speak."

CAMERA CLIX

The Revival of the Daughter of Jairus, Staatsgalerie, Stuttgart
Johann Friedrich Overbeck (1789-1869), German School

Luke 8:54 "But he, taking her by the hand, cried out, saying, 'Girl, arise!'"

CAMERA CLIX

Christ and the Haemorrhoidal Woman, Bloustrød Church, Denmark
Gustav Theodor Wegener (1817-1877), Danish School

Mat. 9:22 "But Jesus, turning and seeing her, said, 'Take courage, daughter; thy faith has saved thee.'"

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Resurrecting Lazarus, Royal Academy, Copenhagen
Albert Kückler (1803-1886), Danish School

John 11:44 "And at once he who had been dead came forth."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Healing the Blind, Royal Academy, Copenhagen
Martinus Rörbye (1803-1848), Norwegian School

Mat. 15:30 "And great crowds came to him, bringing with them the dumb, the blind, the lame, the maimed, and many others; and they set them down at his feet, and he cured them."

CAMERA CLIX

Christ Healing the Lame, Skovshoved Church, Denmark
Constantin Hansen (1804-1880), Danish School

Mat. 15:31 "So that the crowds marvelled to see the dumb speak, the lame walk, and the blind see. And they glorified the God of Israel."

Necessity of Virtue

8 For if you possess these virtues and they abound in you, they will render you neither inactive nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 For he who lacks them is blind, f groping his way, and has forgotten that he was cleansed from his former sins.

10 Therefore, brethren, strive even more by good works to make your calling and election sure. For if you do this, you will not fall in to sin at any time.

11 Indeed, in this way will be amply provided for you the entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

12 Therefore I shall begin to remind you always of these things; although indeed you know them and are well established in the present truth.

13 As long as I am in this tabernacle, I think it right to arouse you by a reminder, 14 knowing as I do that the putting off of my tabernacle is at hand, g just as our Lord Jesus Christ signified to me.

15 Moreover I will endeavor that even after my death you may often have occasion to call these things to mind.

Sovereignty of Christ

16 For we were not following fictitious tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his grandeur.

17 For he received from God the Father honor and glory, when from out the majestic glory a voice came down to him, speaking thus: h This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased.

f 1 John 2, 9, 11.—g John 21, 18f.—h Matt. 17, 4-6; Ps. 2, 7.—i 2 Tim. 3, 16.—j Matt. 24, 11; 1

Ver. 8. The Greek has: "For if these things are yours and increase, they render. . . ."

Ver. 9. Groping: in the Greek, "seeing only what is near."

Ver. 10. By good works: wanting in many Greek Manuscripts.

Ver. 13. This tabernacle: the human body.

Ver. 16. Fictitious tales: a reference to the false doctrines of lying teachers.

Ver. 17. Some few Manuscripts of the Vulgate add, "hear him," to the quotation.

Ver. 18. The holy mount: the Mount of Transfiguration.

18 And this voice we ourselves heard borne from heaven when we were with him on the holy mount.

19 And we have the word of prophecy, surer still, to which you do well to attend, as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts.

20 This, then, you must understand first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture is made by private interpretation.

21 For not by will of man was prophecy brought at any time; but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

II: FALSE TEACHERS

CHAPTER 2

Punishment of Lying Teachers

BUT there were false prophets i also among the people, just as among you there will be lying teachers who will bring in destructive sects. They even disown the Lord who bought them, thus bringing upon themselves swift destruction.

2 And many will follow their wanton conduct, and because of them k the way of truth will be maligned.

3 And out of greed they will with deceitful words l use you for their gain. Their condemnation, passed of old, is not made void, and their destruction does not slumber.

Warning from the Past

4 For m God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but dragged them down by infernal ropes to Tartarus, and deliv-

Tim. 4, 1.—k Isa. 52, 5.—l Rom. 16, 18; 1 Thess. 2, 5.—m Jude 6.

Ver. 19. Word of prophecy: the sum of messianic prophecies of the Old Testament which declares the glorious reign of the Messiah. Until the day dawns: the day of the Lord, a reference to the Second Coming of Christ. It will resemble the morning star in splendor.

Ver. 20. Some would render this: "... no prophecy is the object of private interpretation."

Chap. 2, Ver. 2. The way of truth: the code of moral living as taught by Christ.

Ver. 4. But dragged them down: the Greek reads, "consigned them to the dark pits of Tartarus, delivering them into custody to await judgment." Tartarus: i.e., hell.

ered them to be tortured and kept in custody for judgment.

5 Nor did he spare the ancient world, ⁿ but preserved (with seven others) Noe a herald of justice, when he brought a flood upon the world of the impious.

6 And ^o he condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, thus making them an example to those who in the future should live impiously;

7 whereas he delivered just Lot, who was distressed by the lawless behavior of the wicked.

8 For by what that just man saw and heard while dwelling among them, they tormented his just soul day after day with their wicked deeds.

9 The Lord knows how to deliver the God-fearing from temptation ^p and to reserve the wicked for torment on the day of judgment,

10 but especially ^q those who follow the flesh in unclean lust and despise authority.

The Vices of Heresy

Rash and self-willed, such men in their deriding do not regard majesty;

11 whereas angels, ^r though greater in strength and power, do not bring against themselves an abusive charge.

12 But these men, like irrational animals created by nature for capture and destruction, ^s deride what they do not understand, and will perish in their own corruption,

13 receiving thereby the recompense of their wrongdoing. They regard as pleasure their daylight revelry; they are spots and blemishes, ^t they abound in wantonness while banqueting with you.

14 They have eyes full of adultery and turned unceasingly towards sin. They entice unstable souls; they have their hearts exercised in covetousness; they are children of a curse.

15 They have forsaken the right way

ⁿ Gen. 8, 18.—^o Gen. 19, 25; Jude 7.—^p 1 Cor. 10, 13; Apoc. 3, 10.—^q Jude 8.—^r Jude 9.—^s Jude 10; Ps. 48, 13.—^t Jude 12.—^u Num. 22, 7; Jude 11.—^v Num. 22, 28.—^w Jude 12f.—^x Jude 16.—^y John

Ver. 10. Majesty: as in Jude, probably refers to the good angels.

Ver. 12. The Greek text reads, "born according to nature for capture."

Ver. 18. These lying teachers had interpreted and have gone astray; ^u they have followed the way of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of wrongdoing.

16 But he was rebuked for his madness; ^v a dumb beast of burden spoke with the voice of a man and checked the folly of the prophet.

17 These ^w men are springs without water and mists driven by storms; the blackness of darkness is reserved for them.

18 For ^x by high-sounding, empty words they entice with sensual allurements of carnal passion those who are just escaping from such as live in error.

19 They promise them freedom, whereas they themselves are the slaves of corruption; ^y for by whatever a man is overcome, of this also he is the slave.

20 For if after escaping the defilements of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein and overcome, ^z their latter state has become worse for them than the former.

21 For it were better for them not to have known the way of justice, ^a than having known it, to turn back from the holy commandment delivered to them.

22 For what that true proverb says has happened to them. ^b A dog returns to his vomit, and, A sow even after washing wallows in the mire.

CHAPTER 3

The Second Coming

THIS, beloved, is now the second epistle that I am writing to you wherein I stir up your pure mind to remembrance,

2 that you may be mindful of what I formerly preached ^c of the words of the holy prophets and of your apostles, which are the precepts of the Lord and Savior.

3 This first you must know, ^d that in the last days there will come deceitful

8, 34; Rom. 6, 16.—^z Matt. 12, 45.—^a Luke 12, 47f.—^b Prov. 26, 11.—^c Jude 17.—^d 1 Tim. 4, 1; Jude 18.

Christian liberty as freedom from the moral law. Escaping from such as live in error: Christian converts who were hardly free from former pagan habits.

Chap. 3, Ver. 2. The Greek text reads, "... foretold you by the prophets, ... apostles' precept. ..."

scoffers, men walking according to their own lusts,

4 saying, "Where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation."

5 For of this they are willfully ignorant, that there were heavens^e long ago, and an earth formed out of water and by water through the word of God.

6 By these means the world that then was, deluged with water,^f perished.

7 But the heavens that now are, and the earth, by that same word have been stored up, being reserved for fire against the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men.

8 But, beloved, do not be ignorant of this one thing, that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years,^g and a thousand years as one day.

9 The Lord does not delay in his promises, but for your sake is long-suffering, not wishing that any should perish^h but that all should turn to repentance.

10 But ⁱthe day of the Lord will come as a thief; at that time the heavens will pass away with great violence, and the elements will be dissolved with heat, and the earth, and the works that are in it, will be burned up.

11 Seeing therefore that all these things are to be dissolved, what manner of men ought you to be in holy and pious behavior,

^e Gen. 1, 2. 6. 8; Ps. 23, 2.—^f Gen. 7, 21.—^g Ps. 89, 4.—^h 1 Tim. 2, 4.—ⁱ 1 Thess. 5, 2f; Matt. 24,

Ver. 4. Where is the promise of his coming: a scornful denial of Christ's Second Coming. Fathers: the first converts to Christianity, many of whom were at this time dead.

Ver. 7. The word that created the world and destroyed it by water, now preserves the world for the general conflagration at the end of time.

12 you who await and hasten towards the coming of the day of God, by which the heavens, being on fire, will be dissolved and the elements will melt away by reason of the heat of the fire.

13 But ^jwe look for new heavens and a new earth, according to his promises, wherein dwells justice.

Conclusion

Exhortation, Doxology

14 Therefore, beloved, while you look for these things, endeavor to be found by him without spot and blameless, in peace.

15 And regard the long-suffering of our Lord as salvation. Just as our most dear brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given him, has written to you,

16 as indeed he did in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things. In these epistles there are certain things difficult to understand, which the unlearned and the unstable distort, just as they do the rest of the Scriptures also, to their own destruction.

17 You therefore, brethren, since you know this beforehand, be on your guard lest, carried away^k by the error of the foolish, you fall away from your own steadfastness.

18 But grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. To him be the glory, both now and to the day of eternity. Amen.

29. 35. 43; Isa. 66, 15f.—^j Isa. 66, 22; Apoc. 21, 1. 27.—^k Mark 13, 5. 33.

Ver. 10. And the earth . . . burned up: this phrase is missing in many notable Vulgate Manuscripts.

Ver. 13. Some Manuscripts of the Vulgate read, "and the fulfillment of his promises. . . ."

Ver. 17. The foolish: the Greek has, "the lawless."

The First Epistle of ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

THAT St. John the Apostle, the author of the Fourth Gospel, is also the author of this Epistle is the verdict of historical evidence, both implicit and explicit, reaching as far back as St. Polycarp. The internal evidence of the book itself is sufficiently strong; for the writer speaks with authority, as an Apostle would. Moreover, when the Epistle is compared with the Gospel of St. John, the resemblance both in thought and in expression is so striking that identity of authorship is admitted by most commentators.

From this close relation to the Fourth Gospel many commentators are of the opinion that the Epistle was written shortly before or shortly after the Gospel to serve as an introduction, or as a post-script, to it, or at least with the intention that both should be read together. Beyond this, there is nothing to indicate the time and place of its composition; but from this close connection we may say that it was written at Ephesus towards the close of the first century.

The Apostle wrote this letter probably as a circular letter to the faithful of Asia Minor, to remind them of what he had written and preached concerning the divinity of Christ, and thus to strengthen them against the heresies of the day. For it seems certain that, in the churches to which the letter is directed, there had risen false teachers and prophets—anti-christs who denied that Jesus was the Messiah, and Incarnate Son of God.

The fundamental thought of the Epistle is this: God is made known to us in Jesus Christ; hence, fellowship with the Father is through the Son. There are three main currents of thought: (1) God is light (1, 5–2, 27); (2) God is justice (2, 28–4, 6); (3) God is love (4, 7–5, 12).

Hence, if we are to have fellowship with the Father through the Son, we must walk in light, in justice or holiness, and in love. Thus the Apostle calls those who deny that Jesus is the Christ and the Incarnate Son of God, liars and anti-christs. He especially emphasizes the sublimity and excellence of love, the love of God finding expression in brotherly love. The Apostle further shows how to distinguish the children of God from the children of the devil; he describes the baseness and gravity of sin; and finally, he shows how the sinner may hope for pardon.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

The Witness to the Word of Life

I WRITE of what was from the beginning, ^a what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked upon and our hands have handled: of the Word of Life.

2 And the Life was made known and we have seen, and now testify and announce to you, the Life Eternal which was with the Father, ^b and has appeared to us.

3 What we have seen and have heard we announce to you, in order that you also may have fellowship with us, ^c and that our fellowship may be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

4 And these things we write to you that you may rejoice, ^d and our joy may be full.

I: GOD IS LIGHT

Walk in Light

5 And the message which we have heard from him and announce to you, is this: that God is light, and in him is no darkness.

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, ^e we lie, and are not practising the truth.

a John 1, 1. 14.—b John 17, 5.—c John 17, 21.—d John 15, 11.—e John 3, 21; 12, 35.

7 But if we walk in the light as he also is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, ^f and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin.

8 If ^g we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

9 If we acknowledge our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all iniquity.

10 If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word ^h is not in us.

CHAPTER 2

MY DEAR CHILDREN, these things I write to you in order that you may not sin. But if anyone sins, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the just;

2 and he is a propitiation for our sins, not for ours only but also for those ⁱ of the whole world.

Observe the Commandments Especially Charity

3 And by this we can be sure that we know him, if we keep ^j his commandments.

4 He who says that he knows him, and does not keep his commandments, is a liar ^k and the truth is not in him.

5 But he who keeps his word, in him the love of God is truly perfected; ^l and by this we know that we are in him.

6 He who says that he abides in him, ought himself also to walk just as he walked.

7 Beloved, no new commandment am I writing to you, but an old commandment which you had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which you have heard.

8 Again, a new commandment I am writing to you, ^m and this is true both in him and in you. Because the darkness has

^f Hab. 9, 14; 1 Pet. 1, 19; Apoc. 1, 5.—^g 3 Kgs. 8, 46; 2 Par. 6, 36; Prov. 20, 9; Eccles. 7, 21.—^h John 5, 38; 8, 37.—ⁱ John 1, 29.—^j John

Chap. 2, Ver. 7f. The old and the new commandments are really one and the same commandment of love, promulgated in the Old Testament, but renewed by Christ, especially in the new motives and other helps supplied by Him.

Ver. 14. I am writing to you, fathers, etc.: omitted by the Clementine Vulgate. The Greek text has, "I wrote."

passed away and the true light is now shining.

9 He who says that he is in the light, and hates his brother, ⁿ is in the darkness still.

10 He ^o who loves his brother abides in the light, and for him there is no stumbling.

11 But he who hates his brother is in the darkness, and walks in the darkness, and he does not know whither he goes; because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

Reasons for Writing

12 I am writing to you, dear children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake.

13 I am writing to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning. I am writing to you, young men, because you have conquered the evil one.

14 I am writing to you, little ones, because you know the Father. I am writing to you, fathers because you know him who is from the beginning. ^p I am writing to you, young men, because you are strong and the word of God abides in you, and you have conquered the evil one.

15 Do not love the world, or the things that are in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him;

16 because all that is in the world is the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life; which is not from the Father, but from the world.

17 And the world with its lust is passing away, but he who does the will of God abides forever.

Against False Teachers

18 Dear children, it is the last hour; and as you have heard that Antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have 14, 15; 15, 10.—^k John 8, 44.—^l John 14, 23; 14, 16f.—^m John 13, 34.—ⁿ John 8, 12.—^o John 11, 10.—^p John 14, 7; 15, 7.

Ver. 18. It is the last hour: the meaning probably is that it is the last age of the world, the age of the Church. How long it will last no one knows. Antichrist: St. John supposes that the doctrine concerning the coming of Antichrist is already known to his readers. "Antichrist" is commonly understood as a personal opponent of Christ at the end of time. Cf. 2 John 7.

arisen; whence we know that it is the last hour.

19 They have gone forth from us, but they were not of us. For if they had been of us, they would surely have continued with us; but they were to be made manifest, that q not one of them is of us.

20 But you have an anointing r from the Holy One and you know all things.

21 I have not written to you as to those who do not know the truth, but as to those who know it, and because no lie is of the truth.

22 Who is the liar but he who denies that Jesus is the Christ? He is the Antichrist who denies the Father and the Son.

23 No one who disowns the Son has the Father. s He who confesses the Son has the Father also.

24 As for you, let that which you have heard from the beginning abide in you. If that abides in you which you have heard from the beginning, t you also will abide in the Son and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he has given us, u the life everlasting.

26 These things I have written to you concerning those who lead you astray.

27 And as for you, let the anointing which you have received from him, dwell in you, and you have no need that anyone teach you. But as his anointing teaches you concerning all things, and is true and is no lie, even as it has taught you, abide in him.

II: GOD IS JUSTICE

Children of God

28 And now, dear children, abide in him,v so that when he appears we may have confidence, and may not shrink ashamed from him at his coming.

29 If you know that he is just, know that everyone also who does what is just has been born of him.

q John 17, 12.—r John 14, 26.—s John 5, 23.—t John 14, 23.—u John 10, 28; 17, 2.—v John 14, 17.—w John 1, 12; 16, 3; 17, 25.—x John 17, 24.—y

Ver. 19. The antichrists who teach erroneous and subversive doctrines formerly belonged to the Church. Before they left the Christian community they were no longer ours: they were not in the state of grace and not real Christians.

Ver. 20. Anointing from the Holy One: the expression is usually understood to refer to the conferring of the Holy Spirit. You know all things: some

CHAPTER 3

Children of God

BEHOLD what manner of love the Father has bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God; w and such we are. This is why the world does not know us, because it did not know him.

2 Beloved, now we are the children of God, and it has not yet appeared what we shall be. We know that, when he appears, we shall be like to him, for we shall see him x just as he is.

3 And everyone who has this hope in him makes himself holy, just as he also is holy.

4 Everyone who commits sin commits iniquity also; and sin is iniquity.

5 And you know that he appeared to take our sins away, y and sin is not in him.

6 No one who abides in him commits sin; and no one who sins has seen him, or has known him.

Children of the Devil

7 Dear children, let no one lead you astray. He who does what is just is just, even as he is just.

8 He z who commits sin is of the devil, because the devil sins from the beginning. To this end the Son of God appeared, that he might destroy the works of the devil.

9 Whoever is born of God does not commit sin, because his seed abides in him and he cannot sin, because he is born of God.

10 In this the children of God and the children of the devil are made known.

Whoever is not just is not of God, nor is he just who does not love his brother.

11 For this is the message that you have heard from the beginning, a that we should love one another;

12 not like b Cain, who was of the evil one, and killed his brother. And wherefore

John 1, 29; 8, 46; Isa. 53, 9; 1 Pet. 2, 22.—z John 8, 44; 12, 31.—a John 13, 34; 15, 12, 17.—b Gen. 4, 8.

very ancient authorities read, "all of you have knowledge," following the Greek text.

Chap. 3, Ver. 9. Does not commit sin: this does not mean that it is impossible for him who has been spiritually reborn in Baptism to commit sin, but simply that he will not sin as long as he keeps the seed of grace in himself. This grace, however, can be lost through sin.

did he kill him? Because his own works were wicked, but his brother's just.

13 Do not be surprised, ^c brethren, if the world hates you.

14 We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren. ^dHe who does not love abides in death.

15 Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer. ^eAnd you know that no murderer has eternal life abiding in him.

True Charity

16 In this ^f we have come to know his love, that he laid down his life for us; and we likewise ought to lay down our life for the brethren.

17 He ^g who has the goods of this world and sees his brother in need and closes his heart to him, how does the love of God abide in him?

18 My dear children, let us not love in word, neither with the tongue, but in deed and in truth.

A Good Conscience

19 In this we know that we are of the truth, and in his sight we set our hearts at rest.

20 Because if our heart blames us, God is greater than our heart and knows all things.

21 Beloved, if our heart does not condemn us, we have confidence towards God, 22 and ^h whatever we ask, we shall receive from him, because we keep his commandments and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

23 And this is his ⁱ commandment, that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, even as he gave us commandment.

24 And he who keeps his commandments abides in God, and God in him. And in this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us.

^c John 15, 18; 17, 14.—^d John 5, 24; Lev. 19, 17.—^e John 8, 44.—^f John 3, 16; 10, 11; 15, 13.—^g Jas. 2, 15.—^h John 8, 29; Matt. 21, 22.—ⁱ John

Ver. 19f. A probable rendering of the Greek: "... and in his sight we shall reassure our hearts, whatever our heart may accuse us of, because God is greater. . . ."

Ver. 19. The Greek reads: "... we shall know . . . we shall set."

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. Test the spirits: the expression probably refers to those Christians who claimed extraordinary gifts of the Holy Spirit [cf. 1 Cor. 14, 32]. These spirits should be examined to see whether

CHAPTER 4

True and False Spirits

BELOVED, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are of God; because many false prophets have gone forth into the world.

2 By this is the spirit of God known: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh, is of God.

3 And every spirit that severs Jesus, is not of God, but is of Antichrist, of whom you have heard that he is coming, and now is already in the world.

4 You are of God, dear children, and have overcome him, because greater is he who is in you than he who is in the world. They are of the world; ^j

5 therefore of the world they speak and the world listens to them.

6 We are of God. ^k He who knows God listens to us; he who is not of God does not listen to us. By this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

III: GOD IS LOVE

Love Unites Us with God

7 Beloved, let us love one another, for love is from God. And everyone who loves is born of God, and knows God.

8 He who does not love does not know God; for God is love.

9 In ^l this has the love of God been shown in our case, that God has sent his only-begotten Son into the world that we may live through him.

10 In this is the love, not that we have loved God, but that he has first loved us, and sent his Son a propitiation for our sins.

11 Beloved, if God has so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

6, 29.—^j John 15, 19.—^k John 8, 47; 10, 16.—^l John 3, 16.

their teaching is in agreement with Catholic faith and the doctrine of Christ and His Church.

Ver. 3. And every spirit that severs Jesus: i.e., that separates the Christ from Jesus, regarding them as two distinct persons, as Cerinthus did. He maintained that the Christ came upon Jesus at baptism and left Him before the Passion. The better reading of the Greek is: "and every spirit that does not confess Jesus," etc.

Ver. 4. They are of the world: the false prophets of 1 John 4, 1.

12 No m one has ever seen God. If we love one another, God abides in us and his love is perfected in us.

13 In this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have seen, and do testify, n that the Father has sent his Son to be Savior of the world.

15 Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him and he in God.

16 And we have come to know, and have believed, o the love that God has in our behalf. God is love, and he who abides in love abides in God, and God in him.

17 In this is love perfected with us, that we may have confidence in the day of judgment; because as he is, even so are we also in this world.

18 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casts out fear, because fear brings punishment. And he who fears is not perfected in love.

19 Let us therefore love, because God first loved us.

20 If anyone says, "I love God," and hates his brother, he is a liar. For how can he who does not love his brother, whom he sees, love God, whom he does not see?

21 And this commandment we have from him, p that he who loves God should love his brother also.

CHAPTER 5

The Basis of Love

EVERYONE who believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God. q And everyone who loves him who begot, loves also the one begotten of him.

2 In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and do his commandments.

3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his r commandments; and his commandments are not burdensome.

m John 1, 18; 1 Tim. 6, 16.—n John 4, 42.—o John 6, 70.—p John 13, 34; 15, 17; Eph. 5, 2.—q John 8, 42; 16, 27.—r John 14, 15.—s John 16,

Ver. 18. There is no fear in love: perfect love banishes human, doubtful and servile fear. It does not, however, exclude the wholesome fear of God's judgments, nor the fear and trembling with which man must work out his salvation [Phil. 2, 12].

Chap. 5, Ver. 6. The water . . . the blood: probably refers to the baptism and death of Christ.

4 Because all that is born of God overcomes the world; s and this is the victory that overcomes the world, our faith.

5 Who t is there that overcomes the world if not he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

Witnesses to Christ

6 This is he who came in water and in blood, Jesus Christ; not in the water only, but in the water and in the blood. And it is the Spirit u that bears witness that Christ is the truth.

7 For there are three that bear witness v [in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit; and these three are one.

8 And there are three that bear witness on earth]: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three are one.

9 If we receive the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God which is greater, that he has borne witness concerning his Son.

10 He who believes in the Son of God has the testimony of God in himself. w He who does not believe the Son, makes him a liar; because he does not believe the witness that God has borne concerning his Son.

11 And this is the testimony, that God has given us eternal life; x and this life is in his Son.

12 He who has the Son has the life. y He who has not the Son has not the life.

13 These things I am writing to you that you may know that you have eternal life z—you who believe in the name of the Son of God.

Confidence in Prayer

14 And the confidence that we have towards him is this, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us.

15 And we know that he hears us what-

33.—t 1 Cor. 15, 57.—u John 15, 26; 19, 34.—v John 5, 32, 36; 15, 26.—w John 3, 33.—x John 17, 3.—y John 3, 36; 15, 4.—z John 1, 12; 2, 18; 20, 31.

Ver. 7f. According to the evidence of many manuscripts, and the majority of commentators, these verses should read: "For there are three that bear witness: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three are one." The Holy See reserves to itself the right to pass finally on the origin of the present reading.

ever we ask; we know that the requests we make of him are granted.

16 He who knows his brother is committing a sin that is not unto death, shall ask, and shall give life to him who does not commit a sin unto death. There is sin unto death; I do not mean that anyone should ask as to that.

17 All lawlessness is sin, and there is a sin unto death.

Conclusion

18 We know that no one who is born of God commits sin; but the Begotten of

Ver. 16f. It is difficult to determine just what St. John means by sin . . . not unto death and sin unto death. The former is probably a grievous or mortal sin, because life shall be given; the latter is probably a willful apostasy and the sin of final unrepentance.

God ^a preserves him and the evil one does not touch him.

19 We know that we are of God, and the whole world is in the power of the evil one.

20 And we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding, that we may know the true God ^b and may be in his true Son. He is the true God and eternal life.

21 Dear children, guard yourselves from the idols. Amen.

^a John 17, 12.—^b John 17, 3; Luke 24, 25.

St. John does not forbid us to pray for such sinners, because God alone can determine whether one is finally impenitent or not. Our faith teaches us that God desires not the death of the sinner, but that he be converted and live [Ezech. 33, 11].

The Second Epistle of ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

THE DIRECT external evidence that this as well as the following Epistle was written by St. John the Apostle, is not extensive. Yet sufficient references to both Epistles are found in early patristic literature to prove their authorship and authenticity. Besides, we have a number of indirect testimonies in the citation of passages obviously derived from either the Second or the Third Epistle. Again, the vocabulary throughout is precisely that which is found in the Gospel and in the First Epistle.

The ideas and expressions of the Second Epistle are the same as those of the First; hence its composition must have been prompted by the same or similar occasions. It was probably written towards the end of the first century.

The recipient of the Second Epistle is addressed as "Elect Lady." The meaning of the title is obscure. Many have thought that an individual is meant, one whose name was Kuria or Elect, or simply "an elect lady." Others have seen in the title a mere symbol, either of the universal Church, or of some particular church in Asia Minor.

The Apostle commends the recipients of the letter for their steadfastness in the true faith, and exhorts them to persevere, lest they lose the reward of their labors. He exhorts them to love one another, but warns them to have no fellowship with heretics, and not even to greet them.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Greeting

THE PRESBYTER to the Elect Lady and to her children whom I love in truth—and not I alone, but also all who have ^a known the truth—

2 for the sake of the truth which abides in us, and will be with us forever:

3 grace, mercy and peace be with you from God the Father and from Christ Jesus, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

TEACHING OF THE APOSTLE

Brotherly Love

4 I rejoiced greatly that I found some of thy children walking in truth, according to the commandment that we have received from the Father.

5 And now I beseech thee, lady, not as writing to thee a new commandment, but that which we have had from the beginning, ^b that we love one another.

^a John 8, 32.—^b John 13, 34; 15, 12.—^c John 14, 15.—^d 1 John 4, 3.—^e John 8, 31.—^f John 15, 11; 17, 13.

Ver. 1. Presbyter: a general term meaning "elder" or "ancient." The author here is called The Presbyter, such apparently being his title, or surname of honor. The Elect Lady may have been an individual, but more likely the title is given to a particular church, since the name occurs at the end of the Epistle, and is applied to another. Cf. Introduction.

6 And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments. ^c This is the commandment, that, just as you have heard from the beginning, you should walk in it.

Against False Teachers

7 For many deceivers have gone forth into the world who do not confess Jesus as the Christ coming in the flesh. ^d This is the deceiver and the Antichrist.

8 Look to yourselves, that you do not lose what you have worked for, but that you may receive a full reward.

9 Anyone who advances and does not abide in the doctrine of Christ, has not God; ^e he who abides in the doctrine, he has both the Father and the Son.

10 If anyone comes to you and does not bring this doctrine, do not receive him into the house, or say to him, Welcome.

11 For he who says to him, Welcome, is sharer in his evil works.

Conclusion

12 Though I have much to write to you, I do not wish to do so with paper and ink; for I hope to be with you and to speak face to face, ^f that your joy may be full.

13 The children of thy sister Elect greet thee.

Ver. 6. In it: may refer to love or to commandment.

Ver. 8. The Greek text may mean: "... that you do not lose what you have accomplished."

The Third Epistle of ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

THE THIRD EPISTLE of St. John is addressed to a certain Gaius. Whether he is to be identified with a Christian of the same name mentioned in Acts 19, 29 and 20, 4, is uncertain.

The time and place of composition of this Epistle are likewise uncertain. The similarity of content and form, however, suggests that it was written about the same time as the Second Epistle. The Epistle, though brief, vividly portrays certain features in the life of the early Church. Gaius is praised for his hospitality and for walking in the truth. Diotrephes, on the contrary, is censured for his ambition and lack of hospitality. A certain Demetrius is also commended for his virtue.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Salutation

THE PRESBYTER to the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.

PRAISE OF GAIUS

2 Beloved, I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospers.

3 I rejoiced greatly when some brethren came and bore witness to thy truth, even as thou walkest in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

5 Beloved, thou dost in accordance with faith whatever thou workest for the brethren, and that even when they are strangers.

6 They have borne witness to thy love before the church. Thou wilt do well to see them off on their journey in a manner worthy of God.

7 For on behalf of the Name they have

Ver. 1. While not the head of a church, Gaius seems to have been a man of great influence and to have been much loved by the Apostle.

Ver. 9. I would have written perhaps, etc.: the sense evidently differs from the Greek, "I wrote something." Many think the reference is to a lost Epistle, similar to that alluded to in 1 Cor. 5, 9.

gone forth, taking nothing from the pagans.

8 We therefore ought to support such as these, that we may be fellow-workers for the truth.

DIOTREPHESES AND DEMETRIUS

9 I would have written perhaps to the church; but Diotrephes, who loves to have the first place among them, does not receive us.

10 Therefore if I come, I will recall to mind his works, prating against us with evil words; and as if this were not enough for him, he himself does not receive the brethren, and those who do so he hinders, and casts them out of the church.

11 Beloved, do not imitate evil, but that which is good. He who does what is good is of God; he who does what is evil has not seen God.

12 Witness is borne to Demetrius by all, and by the truth itself, yes, we also bear witness; ^a and thou knowest that our witness is true.

^a John 19, 35; 21, 24.

Diotrephes: probably the bishop of one of the churches established by St. John. He is censured here, not for usurping authority but rather for abusing it, especially by his opposition to St. John.

Ver. 12. It is impossible to identify this Demetrius, who in a special way seems to have been the object of Diotrephes' animosity.

Conclusion

13 I had much to write to thee; but I do not want to write to thee with pen and ink.

14 But I hope to see thee shortly, and we will speak face to face.

15 Peace be to thee. The friends greet thee. Greet the friends by name.

The Epistle of ST. JUDE THE APOSTLE

BY designating himself "the brother of James" (v. 1), the writer of this Epistle evidently wished to reveal himself to his readers. At the time the Epistle was written, there was no one of prominence in the Church having the name of James except the Apostle James the Less, Bishop of Jerusalem and author of the Epistle that bears his name. St. James the Less was one of the "brethren of the Lord" (Gal. 1, 19), and had a brother named Jude (Matt. 13, 55; Mark 6, 3). In the two lists of the Apostles given by St. Luke (Luke 6, 16; Acts 1, 15), one is named "Jude of James." He is called Thaddeus by the other evangelists (Matt. 10, 3; Mark 3, 18). It is clear that Luke refers to Jude the brother of James. Little more is known of the life of this Apostle. According to a tradition he preached the gospel in Syria and suffered martyrdom at Beirut. The Church celebrates the feast of Sts. Simon and Jude on October 28.

The author of this Epistle presupposes that his readers are familiar with the Old Testament and with Jewish traditions. It is likely, therefore, that it was addressed to converts from Judaism who also knew the Apostle James.

The Epistle is both brief and practical. It was occasioned by the teachings and practices of certain heretics within the Church. By their evil lives they were denying that Jesus is the only Lord and Master. They were opposed to all law and authority, and changed Christian liberty into unrestrained license. The Epistle is a warning to them.

The Epistle was written between the years 62 and 67 A.D., as may be concluded from the following indications. The warnings from the past (vv. 5-7) contain no mention of the fall of Jerusalem. It was written before the death of St. Peter. It was written after the death of St. James, Bishop of Jerusalem, for on the authority of Hegesippus we know that the church in Palestine was free from heresies during his administration.

The Fathers, and Catholic tradition in general, ascribe this Epistle to the Apostle St. Jude. St. Peter made use of it in his Second Epistle. The Muratorian canon enumerates it among the sacred books.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Purpose of Address

JUDE, the servant ^a of Jesus Christ and the brother of James, to the called who have been loved in God the Father and preserved for Christ Jesus:

^a Matt. 13, 55.

2 mercy and peace and charity be given you in abundance.

3 Beloved, while I was making every endeavor to write to you about our common salvation, I found it necessary to write to you, exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered to the saints.

4 For certain men have stealthily entered in, who long ago were marked out for this condemnation, ungodly men who turn the grace of God into wantonness and disown our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

I: WARNING AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

Divine Judgments

5 But I desire to remind you, though once for all you have come to know all things, that Jesus, who saved the people from the land of Egypt, ^b the next time destroyed those who did not believe.

6 And the angels also who did not preserve their original state, but forsook their abode, he has kept in everlasting chains under darkness for the judgment of the great day.

7 Just as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighboring cities which like them committed sins of immorality and practised unnatural vice, have been made an example, undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Evil Life of Heretics

8 In like manner do these men also defile the flesh, disregard authority, deride majesty.

9 Yet when ^c Michael the archangel was fiercely disputing with the devil about the body of Moses, he did not venture to bring against him an accusation of blasphemy, but said, "May the Lord rebuke thee."

10 But these men deride whatever they do not know; and the things they know by instinct like the dumb beasts, become for them a source of destruction.

11 Woe to them! ^d for they have gone in the way of Cain, and have rushed on thoughtlessly into the error of Balaam for the sake of gain, and have perished in the rebellion of Core.

12 These men are stains on their feasts, banqueting together without fear, looking after themselves; clouds without water, carried about by the winds; trees in the fall, unfruitful, twice dead, uprooted;

13 wild waves of the sea, foaming up their ^e shame; wandering stars, for whom the storm of darkness has been reserved forever.

Judgment of Heretics

14 Now of these also Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, ^f "Behold, the Lord has come with thousands of his holy ones

15 to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the impious of all their impious works, and of all the hard things that impious sinners have spoken ^g against him."

16 These are grumbling murmurers walking according to their lusts. And haughty in speech, they cultivate people for the sake of gain.

17 But as for you, beloved, be mindful of the words that have been spoken beforehand by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, 18 who kept saying to you that at the end of time there will come scoffers, walking impiously according to their lusts.

19 These are they who set themselves apart, sensual men, not having the Spirit.

^b Num. 14, 35.—^c Deut. 12, 1; Zach. 3, 2.—^d Gen. 4, 8; Num. 31, 16; 16, 22.—^e Isa. 57, 20.—^f Gen. 5, 21; Deut. 33, 2; Zach. 14, 5.—^g Mal. 3, 13.

Ver. 4. These men had not been sincere in embracing Christianity. Hence they are said to have stealthily entered in. The condemnation for which they have been marked is the judgment of God on sinners whose crimes and punishments are recorded in the Old Testament.

Ver. 6. The rebellious angels lost the dignity conferred on them through grace and were cast into hell. On the last day final sentence will be passed upon them, and the fullness of punishment will be meted out to them.

Ver. 8. Majesty: the Greek text has the plural, which is understood as referring to the angels.

Ver. 9. This dispute between Michael and the devil is nowhere else recorded in the Scriptures. The cause of the dispute is not assigned, but it is certain the devil wished to make some evil use of the body of Moses.

Ver. 11. Way of Cain: who slew his brother. Error of Balaam: who for the sake of a reward would have led the people astray. Rebellion of Core: who opposed Moses, a divinely appointed authority. The heretics resemble these men, and will be punished as they were.

Ver. 14f. The "Book of Enoch" is apocryphal. St. Jude does not here approve the entire book, but only this prophecy. Has come: so certain is His coming that it is represented as accomplished.

Ver. 19. Who set themselves apart: another supported reading is: "who bring about division."

II: ADMONITIONS
FOR CHRISTIANS

Perseverance and Charity

20 But as for you, beloved, build up yourselves upon your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit.

21 Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto life everlasting.

22 And some, who are judged, reprove;

h Amos 4, 11; Zach. 3, 2; Jas. 5, 19f.

Ver. 22f. The reading of these two verses is uncertain. They may be rendered from the Greek, "And some who are wavering try to persuade." The advice is that they should admonish the erring. If 23 but others, save, snatching them from the fire.^h And to others be merciful with fear, hating even the garment which is soiled by the flesh.

Conclusion

24 Now to him who is able to preserve you without sin and to set you before the presence of his glory, without blemish, in gladness,

25 to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, belong glory and majesty, dominion and authority, before all time, and now, and forever. Amen.

their efforts fail they are to be merciful to them, at the same time avoiding their contamination.

Ver. 24. The Clementine Vulgate adds: "At the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

THE APOCALYPSE

of St. John the Apostle

THE APOCALYPSE is a revelation of the things that were, are and will be. We are actually witnessing some of the events foretold in this book, but many still lie in the future. It is Christ who commands John to write to the seven churches, opens the seven seals, reveals the sufferings of the saints, opens the little book, overcomes the beast, reigns during the period of the first resurrection, judges the dead, both great and small, according to their works at His Second Coming, rules over all things from the beginning, presides over all the changing scenes of earth's history, and is the King of kings and Lord of lords.

The book presents Christ as the Coming One; it reveals the dealings of Him who came, and who is to come. It opens with the solemn hope that the Coming One will come soon, and closes with the impressive prediction that the Coming One will come quickly.

The book is one of hope, but also one of warning; its aim is to assure the Church of the advent of her Lord in victory. The precise time of this victory lies hidden with God, but it is certain, although the crown will not be won without a struggle. Heaven will be stormed and carried away through suffering and conflict. And all who keep the words of this book will take part in the conflict and share in the victory.

The conflict is presented under the form of symbols. It is not easy to give a full interpretation of all the types, but the general symbols are not difficult to understand. Jerusalem stands as the type of the good cause, and this is the Church of Christ. Babylon appears as the type of the evil cause, and this is the world power. The heavenly Jerusalem has the assistance of divine power. The earthly Babylon has the help of evil powers, the dragon, the beast and the false prophet. The scenes in the great conflict arrange themselves around these types of good and of evil. The numbers, the seals, the trumpets and the bowls are phases in the development and consummation of the conflict.

John has arranged the scenes in a sevenfold structure; even in the subordinate visions he keeps to this arrangement. Commentators, however, are not agreed in marking off the limits of each structure.

The book was written in Greek by St. John the Evangelist, on the island of Patmos, about the year 96 A.D.

Prologue

CHAPTER 1

The Book—Its Source and Contents

THE REVELATION of Jesus Christ which God gave him, to make known to his servants the things that must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified them through his angel to his servant John;

2 who bore witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, to whatever he saw.

3 Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the things that are written therein; for the time is at hand.

Greetings

4 John to the seven churches that are in Asia: grace be to you and peace from him ^a who is and who was and who is coming, and from the seven spirits who are before his throne,

5 and from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, the ^b firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To him who has loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood,

6 and made us to be a kingdom, and priests to God his Father—to him belong glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Christ's Coming

7 Behold, ^c he comes with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also who pierced him. And all the tribes of the earth shall wail over him. Even so. Amen.

8 ^d "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end," says the Lord God, "who is and who was and who is coming, the Almighty."

Chap. 1, Ver. 4. Asia: the Roman Province of Asia, the western part of what is now known as Asia Minor. The seven spirits: the Holy Spirit, whose seven gifts are diffused among all the churches; or the phrase may refer to seven angels.

Ver. 5. Washed: some Greek Manuscripts have "loosed."

Ver. 8. The Alpha and the Omega: the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. God is the first

I: THE SEVEN LETTERS

1. PREPARATORY VISION

John Told to Write His Visions

9 I, John, your brother and partner in the tribulation and kingdom and patience that are in Jesus, was on the island which is called Patmos, because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus.

10 I was in the spirit on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet,

11 saying, "What thou seest write in a book, and send to the seven churches, to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamum, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."

Vision of the Son of Man

12 And I turned to see the voice that was speaking to me. And having turned, I saw seven golden lamp-stands;

13 and in the midst of the seven lamp-stands One like to a son of man, clothed with a garment reaching to the ankles, and girt about the breasts with a golden girdle.

14 But his head and his hair were white as white wool, and as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire;

15 his feet were like fine brass, as in a glowing furnace, and his voice like the voice of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars. And out of his mouth came forth a sharp two-edged sword; and his countenance was like the sun shining in its power.

17 And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as one dead. And he laid his right beginning and the last end. The Latin translator added the meaning of Alpha and Omega.

^a Ex. 3, 14.—^b 1 Cor. 15, 20; Col. 1, 18; Heb. 9, 14; 1 Pet. 1, 19; 1 John 1, 7.—^c Isa. 3, 13; Matt. 24, 30; Jude 14.—^d Apoc. 21, 6; 22, 13; Isa. 44, 6.

Ver. 10. The Lord's day: Sunday, the first day of the week.

Ver. 12. The sense is: "To see what voice it was that spoke to me."

Ver. 15. The image is that of brass glowing in the refiner's furnace.

hand upon me, saying, "Do not be afraid; I am the First and the Last,

18 and he who lives; I was dead, and behold, I am living forevermore; and I have the keys of death and of hell.

19 Write therefore the things that thou hast seen, and the things that are, and the things that are to come hereafter.

20 As for the mystery of the seven stars that thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden lamp-stands—the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lamp-stands are the seven churches."

2. THE LETTERS

CHAPTER 2

To the Church at Ephesus

"TO THE ANGEL of the church at Ephesus write: Thus says he who holds the seven stars in his right hand, who walks in the midst of the seven golden lamp-stands:

2 I know thy works and thy labor and thy patience, and that thou canst not bear evil men; but hast tried them who say they are apostles and are not, and hast found them false.

3 And thou hast patience and hast endured for my name, and hast not grown weary.

4 But I have this against thee, that thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore whence thou hast fallen, and repent and do the former works; or else I will come to thee, and will move thy lamp-stand out of its place, unless thou repentest.

6 But this thou hast: thou hatest the works of the Nicolaites, which I also hate.

7 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: Him who overcomes I will permit to eat of the tree of life, which is in the paradise of my God.

e Isa. 41, 4; 44, 6.—f Num. 24, 3; 25, 2.

Chap. 2, Ver. 1. Angel: the guardian angel of the church, or the church itself; or, and this is the common view, the bishop of the church. If St. John addresses the bishops, he regards them as the incarnation of their respective churches.

Ver. 9. The Jews of Smyrna are called the syna-

To the Church at Smyrna

8 "And to the angel of the church at Smyrna write: Thus says the First and the Last, who was dead and is alive:

9 I know thy tribulation and thy poverty, but thou art rich; and that thou art slandered by those who say they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things that thou art about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation for ten days. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death.

To the Church at Pergamum

12 "And to the angel of the church at Pergamum write: Thus says he who has the sharp two-edged sword:

13 I know where thou dwellest, where the throne of Satan is; and thou holdest fast my name and didst not disown my faith, even in the days of Antipas, my faithful witness, who was slain among you where Satan dwells.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there some who hold the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, that they might eat and commit fornication.

15 So thou hast also some who hold the teaching of the Nicolaites.

16 In like manner repent, or else I will come to thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: To him who overcomes, I will give the hidden manna, and I will give him a white pebble, and upon the pebble a new name written, which no one knows except him who receives it.

gogue of Satan because of their interference with the Christian Church, the true synagogue.

Ver. 10. Ten days: the period of trial would be limited and would be short.

Ver. 11. Second death: a death which is other than the death of the body, i.e., the final condemnation of sinners.

To the Church at Thyatira

18 "And to the angel of the church at Thyatira write: Thus says the Son of God, who has eyes like to a flame of fire, and whose feet are like fine brass:

19 I know thy works, thy faith, thy love, thy ministry, thy patience and thy last works, which are more numerous than the former.

20 But I have against thee that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach, and to seduce my servants, to commit fornication, and to eat of things sacrificed to idols.

21 And I gave her time that she might repent, and she does not want to repent of her immorality.

22 Behold, I will cast her upon a bed, and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of their deeds.

23 And her children I will strike with death, and all the churches shall know that I am he who searches desires and hearts, and I will give to each of you according to your works.

But to you I say,

24 to the rest in Thyatira, as many as do not hold this teaching and do not know the depths of Satan, as they call them. I will not put upon you any other burden.

25 But that which you have, hold fast till I come.

26 And to him who overcomes, and who keeps my works unto the end, I will give authority over the nations.

27 And he shall rule them with a rod of iron, and like the potter's vessel they shall be dashed to pieces, 28 as I also have received from my Father; and I will give him the morning star.

29 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

^g 1 Kgs. 16, 16, 7; Ps. 7, 10; Jer. 17, 10.—^h Apoc. 16, 15; 1 Thess. 5, 2; 2 Pet. 3, 10.—ⁱ Job 12, 14; Isa. 22, 22.

Ver. 18. Son of God: the only place in the Apocalypse where the phrase is used.

Ver. 22. Cast her upon a bed: I will inflict upon her a fatal illness.

Ver. 24. Depths of Satan: these teachers call their science the deep secrets of God, but Christ calls it the deep secrets of Satan, i.e., of pride and impiety.

Ver. 28. The morning star: the glory with which the saints will shine in eternity.

CHAPTER 3

To the Church at Sardis

"AND to the angel of the church at Sardis write: Thus says he who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars: I know thy works; thou hast the name of being alive, and thou art dead.

2 Be watchful and strengthen the things that remain, but which were ready to die. For I do not find thy works complete before my God.

3 Remember therefore what thou hast received and heard, and observe it and repent. Therefore, if thou wilt not watch, ^h I will come upon thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know at what hour I shall come upon thee.

4 But thou hast a few persons at Sardis who have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with me in white; for they are worthy.

5 He who overcomes shall be arrayed thus in white garments, and I will not blot his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

To the Church at Philadelphia

7 "And to the angel of the church at Philadelphia write: Thus says the holy one, the true one, ⁱ he who has the key of David, he who opens and no one shuts, and who shuts and no one opens:

8 I know thy works. Behold, I have caused a door to be opened before thee which no one can shut, for thou hast scanty strength, and thou hast kept my word and hast not disowned my name.

9 Behold, I will bring some of the synagogues of Satan who say they are Jews, and are not, but are lying—behold, I will make them come and worship before thy feet. And they shall know that I have loved thee.

Chap. 3, Ver. 5. I will not blot . . . out: this figure of speech—a book and the blotting out—is ancient; cf. Ex. 32, 32. Confess his name: an echo of Christ's words on earth. Cf. Matt. 10, 32.

Ver. 7. Who opens and no one shuts: an affirmation of the divinity of Christ. Cf. Job 12, 14, where this power is attributed to God alone.

10 Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I too will keep thee from the hour of trial, which is about to come upon the whole world to try those who dwell upon the earth.

11 I come quickly; hold fast what thou hast, that no one receive thy crown.

12 He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God, and never more shall he go outside. And I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God—the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from my God—and my new name.

13 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

To the Church at Laodicea

14 “And to the angel of the church at Laodicea write: i Thus says the Amen, the faithful and true witness, who is the beginning of the creation of God:

15 I know thy works; thou art neither cold nor hot. I would that thou wert cold or hot.

16 But because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to vomit thee out of my mouth;

17 because thou sayest, ‘I am rich and have grown wealthy and have need of nothing,’ and dost not know that thou art the wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked one.

18 I counsel thee to buy of me gold refined by fire, that thou mayest become rich, and mayest be clothed in white garments, and that the shame of thy nakedness may not appear, and to anoint thy eyes with eye salve that thou mayest see.

19 As for me, k those whom I love I rebuke and chastise. Be earnest therefore and repent.

20 Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man listens to my voice and opens the door to me, I will come in to j John 14, 6.—k Prov. 3, 12; Heb. 12, 6.

Ver. 10. My patience: the patience that I manifested.

Ver. 14. Amen: a Hebrew word, used here as a personal name.

Chap. 4, Ver. 1. The former voice: the voice heard in the opening vision, i.e., in Apoc. 1, 10.

Ver. 2. In the spirit: the soul was absorbed in heavenly things, i.e., he saw with clear spiritual insight.

Ver. 3. There is some uncertainty as to what stones are meant. Jasper is described as a dark, him and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 He who overcomes, I will permit him to sit with me upon my throne; as I also have overcome and have sat with my Father on his throne.

22 He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.”

II: THE SEVEN SEALS

1. PREPARATORY VISION

CHAPTER 4

The Court of Heaven

AFTER this I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the former voice, which I had heard as of a trumpet speaking with me, said, “Come up hither, and I will show thee the things that must come to pass hereafter.”

2 Immediately I was in the spirit; and behold, there was a throne set in heaven, and upon the throne One was sitting.

3 And he who sat was in appearance like to a jasper-stone and a sardius, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in appearance like to an emerald.

4 And round about the throne are twenty-four seats; and upon the seats twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and on their heads crowns of gold.

5 And from the throne proceed flashes of lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder; and there are seven lamps burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

6 And before the throne there is, as it were, a sea of glass like to crystal, and in the midst of the throne, and round the throne, are four living creatures, full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first living creature is like a lion and the second like a calf and the opaque green, but that is not the case here, for in Apoc. 21, 11 it is qualified as “clear as crystal.”

Ver. 4. Twenty-four elders: these elders represent the holy ones of the Old and New Testaments.

Ver. 6. In the midst of: probably one creature on each of the four sides. Four living creatures: representative of animated nature. Four beings hold a primacy in the world, among animals, man; among birds, the eagle; among cattle, the bull; and among wild animals, the lion.

third has the face, as it were, of a man, and the fourth is like an eagle flying.

8 And the four living creatures have each of them six wings; round about and within they are full of eyes. And they do not rest day and night, saying, 1 Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God almighty, who was, and who is, and who is coming.

9 And when those living creatures give glory and honor and benediction to him who sits on the throne, who lives forever and ever,

10 the twenty-four elders will fall down before him who sits upon the throne, and will worship him who lives forever and ever, and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

11 "Worthy art thou, O Lord our God, to receive glory and honor and power; for thou hast created all things, and because of thy will they existed, and were created."

CHAPTER 5

The Scroll and the Lamb

AND I saw upon the right hand of him who sits upon the throne a scroll written within and without, sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to break the seals thereof?"

3 And no one in heaven, or on earth, or under the earth, was able to open the scroll or to look thereon.

4 And I wept much, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep; behold, the lion of the tribe of Juda, the root of David, has overcome to open the scroll and its seven seals."

6 And I saw, and behold, in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

7 And he came and took the scroll out of the right hand of him who sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had opened the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, having each a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints.

The Three Songs of Praise

9 And they sing a new canticle, saying, "Worthy art thou to take the scroll and to open its seals; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us for God with thy blood, out of every tribe and tongue and people and nation,

10 and hast made them for our God a kingdom and priests, and they shall reign over the earth."

11 And I beheld, and I heard a voice of many angels round about the throne, and the living creatures and the elders, and the number of them was m thousands of thousands,

12 saying with a loud voice, "Worthy is the Lamb who was slain to receive power and divinity and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and blessing."

13 And every creature that is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth, and such as are on the sea, and all that are in them, I heard them all saying, "To him who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb, blessing and honor and glory and dominion, forever and ever."

14 And the four living creatures said, "Amen," and the elders fell down and worshipped him who lives forever and ever.

1 Isa. 6, 3.—m Dan. 7, 10.

Chap. 5, Ver. 1. Scroll: the ancient form of the book was a volume or a roll, and this particular roll was written on the inside and on the outside.

Ver. 3. Look thereon: to examine it and see what it contained.

Ver. 5. Root of David: the lion is also the symbol of the royal house of David. Christ comes of the seed of David and the prophets described Him as the branch that would spring from the ancient stock. Cf. Isa. 11, 1.

Ver. 8. The Greek text reads, "when he had taken the scroll."

Ver. 12. Divinity: the Greek text reads "wealth."

2. THE BREAKING OF THE FIRST SIX SEALS

CHAPTER 6

War

AND I saw that the Lamb had opened the first of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!"

2 And I saw, and behold, a white horse, and he who was sitting on it had a bow, and there was given him a crown, and he went forth as a conqueror to conquer.

Strife

3 And when he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, "Come!"

4 And there went forth another horse, a red one; and to him who was sitting on it, it was given to take peace from the earth, and that men should kill one another, and there was given him a great sword.

Famine

5 And when he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, "Come!" And I saw, and behold, a black horse, and he who was sitting on it had a balance in his hand.

6 And I heard as it were a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying, "A measure of wheat for a denarius, and three measures of barley for a denarius, and do not harm the wine and the oil."

Pestilence

7 And when he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, "Come!" And I saw,

8 and behold, a pale-green horse, and n Isa. 2, 19; Os. 10, 8; Luke 23, 30.

Chap. 6, Ver. 1. The Greek text reads, "when the Lamb had opened."

Ver. 2. White horse: this horseman with the bow symbolizes Christ and the victory of His word. Cf. Apoc. 19, 11-13.

Ver. 4. Red one: this horse symbolizes war.

Ver. 5. Black horse: symbolizing famine.

Ver. 6. A measure of wheat for a denarius: a famine price. Perhaps "twenty-five cents for a five-cent loaf of bread" might indicate the prices signi-he who was sitting on it—his name is Death, and hell was following him. And there was given him power over the four parts of the earth, to kill with sword, with famine, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

The Martyrs

9 And when he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slain for the word of God, and for the witness that they bore.

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, "How long, O Lord (holy and true), dost thou refrain from judging and from avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?"

11 And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told to rest a little while longer, until the number of their fellow-servants and their brethren who are to be slain, even as they had been, should be complete.

Signs on Earth and in Heaven

12 And I saw, when he opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair; and the whole moon became as blood.

13 And the stars of heaven fell upon the earth, as the fig tree sheds its unripe figs when it is shaken by a great wind.

14 And heaven passed away as a scroll that is rolled up; and every mountain and the islands were moved out of their places.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the princes, and the tribunes, and the rich, and the strong, and everyone, bond and free, hid themselves in the caves and in the rocks of the mountains.

16 And they said to the mountains and to the rocks, n "Fall upon us, and hide us from the face of him who sits upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb;

17 for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?"

fied. Do not harm the wine and the oil: these are not, like bread, necessary for life.

Ver. 8. Pale-green horse: i.e., olive-colored; this horseman symbolizes death, or rather pestilence. There was given him power, etc.: the Greek text reads, "power was given them over a fourth part of the earth."

Ver. 16. Wrath of the Lamb: the Lamb has again become the Lion.

3. AN INTERMEDIATE VISION, AND THE OPENING OF THE SEVENTH SEAL

CHAPTER 7

Sealing of the Spiritual Israel

AFTER this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding fast the four winds of the earth, that no wind should blow over the earth, or over the sea, or upon any tree.

2 And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, who had it in their power to harm the earth and the sea,

3 saying, "Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God on their foreheads."

4 And I heard the number of those who were sealed, a hundred and forty-four thousand sealed, out of every tribe of the children of Israel;

5 of the tribe of Juda, twelve thousand sealed; of the tribe of Ruben, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand;

6 of the tribe of Aser, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Nephthali, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Manasses, twelve thousand;

7 of the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand;

8 of the tribe of Zabulon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand sealed.

Blessedness of the Sealed

9 After this I saw a great multitude which no man could number, out of all

Chap. 7, Ver. 4. A hundred and forty-four thousand: a symbolical number which signifies a great multitude, i.e., all the predestined. In the enumeration of the twelve tribes Ephraim is replaced by Joseph, and Dan is not mentioned at all, perhaps intentionally, for the Antichrist was to come out of Dan according to a Jewish tradition.

nations and tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and with palms in their hands.

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, "Salvation belongs to our God who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb."

11 And all the angels were standing round about the throne, and the elders and the four living creatures; and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshipped God,

12 saying, "Amen, Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and strength to our God forever and ever. Amen."

The Seventh Seal

13 And one of the elders spoke and said to me, "These who are clothed in white robes, who are they? and whence have they come?"

14 And I said to him, "My lord, thou knowest." And he said to me, "These are they who have come out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

15 Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple, and he who sits upon the throne will dwell with them.

16 They shall neither hunger nor thirst any more, neither shall the sun strike them nor any heat.

17 For the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne will shepherd them, and will guide them to the fountains of the waters of life, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

CHAPTER 8

AND when he opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven, as it were for half an hour.

o Isa. 49, 10.—p Apoc. 21, 4; Isa. 25, 8.

Chap. 8, Ver. 1. Silence: the cries and groans of the earth and even the doxologies of heaven are hushed. This is not a symbol or a prophecy but simply a vision and a preparation for what follows.

III: THE SEVEN TRUMPETS

1. PREPARATORY VISION

Seven Angels with Trumpets

2 And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and there were given to them seven trumpets.

3 And another angel came and stood before the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given to him much incense, that he might offer it with the prayers of all the saints upon the golden altar which is before the throne.

4 And with the prayers of the saints there went up before God from the angel's hand the smoke of the incense.

5 And the angel took the censer and filled it with the fire of the altar and threw it down upon the earth, and there were peals of thunder, rumblings, and flashes of lightning and an earthquake.

6 And the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound the trumpet.

2. THE FIRST SIX TRUMPETS

The First Four Trumpets

7 And the first angel sounded the trumpet, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast upon the earth; and the third part of the earth was burnt up, and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

8 And the second angel sounded the trumpet, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third part of the sea became blood,

9 and there died the third part of those creatures that have life in the sea, and the third part of the ships was destroyed.

10 And the third angel sounded the trumpet, and there fell from heaven a great star, burning like a torch, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of waters.

q Isa. 2, 19; Os. 10, 8; Luke 23, 30.

Ver. 7. The prohibition of Apoc. 7, 1 is retracted.

Ver. 12. The sense is that the light of the heavenly bodies was reduced by one-third its intensity.

Chap. 9, Ver. 1. A star: perhaps Lucifer. This is confirmed by the words, the key of the bottomless 11 The name of the star is called Wormwood. And the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many people died of the waters because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, that the third part of them might be darkened, and the day for the third part of it might not shine, and the night likewise.

The Three Woes

13 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of an eagle flying in midheaven, saying with a loud voice, "Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth!" because of the rest of the trumpet-voices of the three angels who were about to sound the trumpet.

CHAPTER 9

The Fifth Trumpet

AND the fifth angel sounded the trumpet, and I saw that a star had fallen from heaven upon the earth, and there was given to him the key of the bottomless pit.

2 And he opened the bottomless pit, and there came up smoke out of the pit like the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit.

3 And out of the smoke there came forth locusts upon the earth. And there was given to them power, as the scorpions of the earth have power.

4 And they were told not to hurt the grass of the earth or any green thing or any tree; but only the men who do not have God's seal upon their foreheads.

5 And they were not permitted to kill anyone, but to torture them for five months; and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion when it strikes a man.

6 And q in those days men will seek pit. This key was given to the fallen star, and therefore the star is an individual. Bottomless pit: abode of the damned and the devils.

Ver. 5. Five months: the general period of a locust plague is about five months.

death and will not find it; and they will long to die and death will flee from them.

7 And r in appearance the locusts were like horses made ready for battle; and there were on their heads crowns as it were like gold; and their faces were like the faces of men.

8 And they had hair like the hair of women; and their teeth were like the teeth of lions.

9 And they had breastplates like breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was like the sound of many horse-chariots running to battle.

10 And they had tails like those of scorpions and there were stings in their tails; and they had power to harm mankind for five months.

11 And they had over them a king, the angel of the abyss; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in the Greek Apollyon; in Latin he has the name Exterminans.

12 The first woe is past; behold, two woes are yet to come hereafter!

The Sixth Trumpet

13 And the sixth angel sounded the trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God,

14 saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, "Loose the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates."

15 And the four angels were loosed who had been kept ready for the hour and day and month and year, that they might kill the third part of mankind.

16 And the number of the army of horsemen was twenty thousand times ten thousand. I heard the number of them.

17 And this is how I saw the horses in the vision: they who sat upon them had breastplates like to fire and to hyacinth and to sulphur, and the heads of the horses were like the heads of lions; and

Ver. 11. Abaddon: i.e., destruction. Apollyon: i.e., destroyer.

Ver. 15. Who had been kept ready for the hour: the loosing of the angels would take place at a definite period, the year, month, day and hour of which are known, in accordance with the Providence of God.

Ver. 17. The Greek text is usually punctuated to read, "I saw . . . the horses and those who sat on them . . . , having . . . ," from their mouths issued fire and smoke and sulphur.

18 By these three plagues the third part of mankind was killed, by the fire and the smoke and the sulphur which issued from their mouth.

19 For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails. For their tails are like serpents, and have heads, and with them they do harm.

20 And the rest of mankind, they who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands so as not to worship the demons and the idols of gold and of silver and of brass and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk.

21 And they did not repent of their murders or of their sorceries or of their immorality or of their thefts.

3. AN INTERMEDIATE VISION AND THE SEVENTH TRUMPET

CHAPTER 10

The Angel with the Little Scroll

AND I saw another angel, a strong one, coming down from heaven, clothed in a cloud, and the rainbow was over his head, and his face was like the sun, and his feet like pillars of fire.

2 And he had in his hand a little open scroll; and he set his right foot upon the sea but his left upon the earth.

3 And he cried with a loud voice as when a lion roars. And when he had cried, the seven thunders spoke out their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write; and I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Seal up the things that the seven thunders spoke, and do not write them."

5 And s the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and on the earth, lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 and swore by him who lives forever

r Wisd. 16, 9.—s Dan. 12, 7.

Chap. 10, Ver. 2. Little open scroll: three scrolls are associated in the Apocalypse. The first is the scroll of the course of this world determined by divine Providence, mentioned in the fifth chapter; the last is the scroll of life, mentioned in the twenty-first and twenty-second chapters. Between these two comes another scroll, the little open scroll, the ever-open scroll of God's promises and the witness of His power.

and ever, who created heaven and the things that are therein, and the earth and the things that are therein, and the sea and the things that are therein, that there shall be delay no longer;

7 but that in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he begins to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God will be accomplished, as he declared by his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice that I heard from heaven was speaking with me again, and saying, "Go, take the open scroll from the hand of the angel who stands upon the sea and upon the earth."

9 And I went away to the angel, telling him to give me the scroll. And he said to me, t "Take the scroll and eat it up, and it will make thy stomach bitter, but in thy mouth it will be sweet as honey."

10 And I took the scroll from the angel's hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth sweet as honey, and when I had eaten it my stomach was made bitter.

11 And they said to me, "Thou must prophesy again to many nations and peoples and tongues and kings."

CHAPTER 11

The Measuring of the Temple

AND there was given me a reed like to a rod, and I was told: "Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar and those who worship therein.

2 But the court outside the temple, reject it, and do not measure it; for it has been given to the nations, and the holy city they will trample under foot for forty-two months.

3 And I will grant unto my two witnesses to prophesy for a thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sack-cloth."

t Ezech. 3, 1.

Ver. 9f. Sweetness is succeeded by bitterness when John realizes the contents of the little scroll.

Chap. 11, Ver. 2. Forty-two months; three years and a half. The forty-two months of thirty days each correspond to the twelve hundred and sixty days of the prophesying of the two witnesses and to the three years and a half of the woman in the wilderness. The period of forty-two months is the symbol of a period,

The Two Witnesses

4 These are the two olive trees and the two lamp-stands that stand before the Lord of the earth.

5 And if anyone desires to harm them, fire will come out of their mouths, and will devour their enemies. And if anyone desires to injure them, he must in this manner be killed.

6 These have power to shut heaven, so that it will not rain during the days of their prophesying; and they have power over the waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with every plague as often as they desire.

7 And when they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up out of the abyss will wage war against them, and will conquer them and will kill them.

8 And their dead bodies will lie in the streets of the great city, which is called mystically Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord also was crucified.

9 And men from the tribes and peoples and tongues and nations will look upon their bodies three days and a half; and they will not allow their dead bodies to be laid in tombs.

10 And the inhabitants of the earth will rejoice over them and make merry; and they will send gifts to one another because these two prophets tormented the inhabitants of the earth.

11 And after the three days and a half, the breath of life from God entered into them. And they stood up on their feet, and a great fear fell upon those who saw them.

12 And they heard a great voice from heaven saying to them, "Come up hither." And they went up to heaven in a cloud, and their enemies saw them.

13 And at that hour there was a great earthquake and the tenth part of the city fell; and there were killed in the earthquake seven thousand persons; and the rest were affrighted and gave glory to the God of heaven.

limited in length, and under the control of Him who governs all things.

Ver. 3. Two witnesses; Elias and Enoch, according to some authors; Christian preachers, according to another view.

Ver. 7. Beast: no beast as yet has been mentioned. This beast symbolizes Antichrist.

Ver. 11. Three days and a half: this refers to the resurrection of the witnesses.

14 The second woe is past; and behold, the third woe will come quickly.

The Seventh Trumpet

15 And the seventh angel sounded the trumpet; and there were loud voices in heaven, saying, "The kingdom of this world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever."

16 And the twenty-four elders who sit upon their thrones before God fell on their faces and worshipped God, saying, 17 "We give thee thanks, O Lord God almighty, who art, and who wast, because thou hast taken thy great power and hast begun thy reign.

18 And the nations were angered, but thy wrath came and the time for the dead to be judged, and for giving the reward to thy servants—the prophets, and the saints, and those who fear thy name, the small and the great—and for destroying those who corrupted the earth."

19 And the temple of God in heaven was opened, and there was seen the ark of his covenant in his temple, and there came flashes of lightning, and peals of thunder, and an earthquake, and great hail.

IV: THE SEVEN SIGNS

CHAPTER 12

The Woman and the Dragon

AND a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars.

2 And being with child, she cried out in her travail and was in the anguish of delivery.

3 And another sign was seen in heaven, and behold, a great red dragon having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his heads seven diadems.

Chap. 12, Ver. 1. A woman: this woman is not the Blessed Virgin, for the details of the prophecy do not fit her. The prophecy pictures the Church of the Old and New Covenants. The beams of the divine glory clothe her; the moon is beneath her feet; she is crowned with a crown of twelve stars, and she

4 And his tail was dragging along the third part of the stars of heaven, and it dashed them to the earth; and the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that when she had brought forth he might devour her son.

5 And she brought forth a male child, who is to rule all nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to his throne.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, that there they may nourish her a thousand two hundred and sixty days.

Michael Overcomes the Dragon

7 And there was a battle in heaven; Michael and his angels battled with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels.

8 And they did not prevail, neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And that great dragon was cast down, the ancient serpent, he who is called the devil and Satan, who leads astray the whole world; and he was cast down to the earth and with him his angels were cast down.

The Song of Triumph

10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, "Now has come the salvation, and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ; for the accuser of our brethren has been cast down, he who accused them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame him through the blood of the Lamb and through the word of their witness, for they did not love their lives even in face of death.

12 Therefore rejoice, O heavens, and you who dwell therein. Woe to the earth and to the sea, because the devil has gone down to you in great wrath, knowing that he has but a short time."

must bring forth Christ to the world. By accommodation the Church applies this verse to the Blessed Virgin.

Ver. 11. In face of death: a noteworthy expression, meaning they esteemed life as nothing in comparison with loyalty to their faith, even unto martyrdom.

The Dragon and the Woman

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had brought forth the male child.

14 And there were given to the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness unto her place, where she is nourished for a time and times and a half time, away from the serpent.

15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth after the woman water like a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the river.

16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth and swallowed up the river that the dragon had cast out of his mouth.

17 And the dragon was angered at the woman, and went away to wage war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God, and hold fast the testimony of Jesus.

18 And he stood upon the sand of the sea.

CHAPTER 13

The Beast of the Sea

AND I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon its horns ten diadems, and upon its heads blasphemous names.

2 And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, and its feet were like the feet of a bear, and its mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave it his own might and great authority.

3 And one of its heads was smitten, as it were, unto death; but its deadly wound was healed. And all the earth followed the beast in wonder.

4 And they worshipped the dragon because he gave authority to the beast, and they worshipped the beast, saying, "Who ^u Gen. 9, 6; Matt. 26, 52.

Chap. 13, Ver. 1. The picture of the first beast is based on the seventh chapter of Daniel. This beast is the figure of the kingdoms of the world, kingdoms founded on passion and selfishness, which in every age are antagonistic to Christ and seek to oppress is like to the beast, and who will be able to fight with it?"

5 And there was given to it a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and there was given to it authority to work for forty-two months.

6 And it opened its mouth for blasphemies against God, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle, and those who dwell in heaven.

7 And it was allowed to wage war with the saints and to overcome them. And there was given to it authority over every tribe, and people, and tongue, and nation.

8 And all the inhabitants of the earth will worship it whose names have not been written in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain from the foundation of the world.

9 If any man has an ear, let him hear.

10 He who is for captivity, into captivity he goes; ^u he who kills by the sword, by the sword must he be killed. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

The Beast of the Earth

11 And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth, and it had two horns like to those of a lamb, but it spoke as does a dragon.

12 And it exercised all the authority of the former beast in its sight; and it made the earth and the inhabitants therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed.

13 And it did great signs, so as even to make fire come down from heaven upon earth in the sight of mankind.

14 And it leads astray the inhabitants of the earth, by reason of the signs which it was permitted to do in the sight of the beast, telling the inhabitants of the earth to make an image to the beast which has the wound of the sword, and yet lived.

15 And it was permitted to give life to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak and cause that whoever should not worship the image of the beast should be killed.

the servants of God. Imperial Rome represents this power.

Ver. 10. The weapons of the saints are faith and patience; they must accept sufferings and persecution as Christ did His cross.

16 And it will cause all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bond, to have a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads,

17 and it will bring it about that no one may be able to buy or sell, except him who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of its name.

18 Here is wisdom. He who has understanding, let him calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man; and its number is six hundred and sixty-six.

CHAPTER 14

The Lamb and the Virgins

AND I saw, and behold, the Lamb was standing upon Mount Sion, and with him a hundred and forty-four thousand having his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven like a voice of many waters, and like a voice of loud thunder; and the voice that I heard was as of harpers playing on their harps.

3 And they were singing as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except those hundred and forty-four thousand, who have been purchased from the earth.

4 These are they who were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These follow the Lamb wherever he goes. These were purchased from among men, first-fruits unto God and unto the Lamb,

5 and in their mouth there was found no lie; they are without blemish.

The Three Angels

6 And I saw another angel flying in midheaven, having an everlasting gospel

Ver. 16. Mark: as slaves received a brand or a mark in their flesh, indicating to whom they belonged, so in the spiritual conflict there is on the side of good and of evil a brand or mark. St. Paul spoke of such marks in his own body that proved him a slave of Jesus Christ [Gal. 6, 17]. So the false prophet seeks to impress a mark on all. Just what this mark is we do not know.

Ver. 18. Six hundred and sixty-six: the most probable interpretation of the number is that it represents the name Cæsar Neron, which in Hebrew characters make up the number 666. It symbolizes extreme imperfection, for each digit is one short of seven, the number that signifies perfection.

Chap. 14, Ver. 1. A hundred and forty-four thousand: these are the faithful followers of the Lamb, to preach to those who dwell upon the earth and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people,

7 saying with a loud voice, "Fear God, and give him honor, for the hour of his judgment has come; and worship him who made the heaven and the earth, the sea and fountains of waters."

8 And another angel followed, saying, "She has fallen, Babylon the great, who of the wine of the wrath of her immorality has given all the nations to drink."

9 And another, a third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, "If anyone worships the beast and its image and receives a mark upon his forehead or upon his hand,

10 he also shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured unmixed into the cup of his wrath; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the sight of the holy angels and in the sight of the Lamb.

11 And the smoke of their torments goes up forever and ever; and they rest neither day nor night, they who have worshipped the beast and its image, and anyone who receives the mark of its name."

Blessedness of the Saints

12 Here is the patience of the saints, who keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write: Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord henceforth. Yes, says the Spirit, let them rest from their labors, for their works follow them."

Vision of the Judgment

14 And I saw, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sitting like v Acts 14, 14.—w Isa. 21, 9; Jer. 51, 8.

for they have his name and that of the Father written on their foreheads. One of their characteristics is purity; they are virgins. Cf. Apoc. 14, 4.

Ver. 5. At the end of the verse the Clementine Vulgate adds, "before the throne of God."

Ver. 8. Babylon: in Jewish and Christian circles, Babylon was a synonym for Rome.

Ver. 13. The punctuation of the Vulgate is slightly different: "... those who die in the Lord. Now from henceforth. ..." The punctuation adopted here is that of the Greek text, which is supported by some good Vulgate codices.

Ver. 14. The figure of the wheat harvest seems to refer to the good; the figure of the vintage in v. 19 refers to the bad.

to a son of man, having upon his head a crown of gold and in his hand a sharp sickle.

15 And another angel came forth out of the temple crying with a loud voice to him who sat upon the cloud, ^x "Put forth thy sickle and reap, for the hour to reap has come, because the harvest of the earth is ripe."

16 And he who sat on the cloud cast his sickle upon the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 And another angel came forth out of the temple that is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle.

18 And another angel came forth from the altar, he who has authority over the fire, and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, saying, "Put forth thy sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for its grapes are fully ripe."

19 And the angel cast his sickle to the earth, and gathered the vintage of the earth, and cast it into the great wine press of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine press, up to the horses' bridles, for a thousand and six hundred stadia.

CHAPTER 15

The Angels and the Plagues

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues. For in them has been completed the wrath of God.

The Sea of Glass

2 And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire, and those who had overcome the beast and its image and the number of its name, standing on the sea of glass, having the harps of God

^x Matt. 13, 39; Joel 3, 13.—^y Jer. 10, 7.

Ver. 20. A thousand and six hundred stadia: a considerable distance, but the number is symbolical and signifies a judgment that is complete and final, and reaching to all corners of the earth.

Chap. 15, Ver. 3. The song of Moses: a hymn of victory over Pharaoh. This victory finds its full expression in the sacrifice of the Lamb, and so the saints break into a more perfect melody, the song of Moses and the song of the Lamb.

3 and singing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, "Great and marvellous are thy works, O Lord God almighty; just and true are thy ways, O King of the ages.

4 Who ^y will not fear thee, O Lord, and magnify thy name? for thou alone art holy. For all nations will come and worship before thee; because thy judgments are manifest."

V: THE SEVEN BOWLS

1. PREPARATORY VISION

The Angels and the Bowls

5 And after this I looked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony was opened in heaven,

6 and there came forth out of the temple the seven angels who had the seven plagues, clothed with clean white linen, and girt about their breasts with golden girdles.

7 And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls, full of the wrath of God who lives forever and ever.

8 And the temple was filled with smoke from the majesty of God, and from his power; and no one could enter into the temple till the seven plagues of the seven angels were finished.

2. THE FIRST SIX BOWLS

CHAPTER 16

The First Three Bowls

AND I heard a loud voice from the temple saying to the seven angels, "Go and pour out the seven bowls of the wrath of God upon the earth."

2 And the first went and poured out his bowl upon the earth, and a sore and grievous wound was made upon the men who have the mark of the beast, and upon those who worshipped its image.

Ver. 5. The temple of the tabernacle of the testimony: the inner sanctuary of the heavenly temple.

Chap. 16, Ver. 1. Loud voice: the divine voice from the throne itself.

Ver. 2. The plague falls on those who carry the mark of the beast; it resembles the sixth Egyptian plague, the plague of boils. Cf. Ex. 9, 8-12.

3 And the second poured out his bowl upon the sea, and it became blood as of a dead man; and every live thing in the sea died.

4 And the third poured out his bowl upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters saying, "Thou art just, O Lord, who art and who wast, O Holy One, because thou hast judged these things;

6 because they poured out the blood of saints and prophets, blood also thou hast given them to drink; they deserve it!"

7 And I heard the altar saying, "Yes, O Lord God almighty, true and just are thy judgments."

The Second Three Bowls

8 And the fourth poured out his bowl upon the sun,

9 and he was allowed to scorch mankind with fire. And mankind were scorched with great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who has authority over these plagues, and they did not repent and give him glory.

10 And the fifth poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and its kingdom became dark, and they gnawed their tongues for pain.

11 And they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their wounds, and they did not repent of their works.

12 And the sixth poured out his bowl upon the great river Euphrates, and dried up its waters, that a way might be made ready for the kings from the rising sun.

3. AN INTERMEDIATE VISION AND THE SEVENTH BOWL

The Unclean Spirits

13 And I saw issuing from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs.

14 For they are spirits of demons working signs, and they go forth unto the kings of the whole earth to gather them together for the battle on the great day of God almighty.

15 "Behold, ^z I come as a thief! Blessed is he who watches and keeps his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame."

16 And he gathered them together in a place that is called in Hebrew Armagedon.

The Seventh Bowl

17 And the seventh poured out his bowl upon the air, and there came forth a loud voice out of the temple from the throne, saying, "It has come to pass!"

18 And there were flashes of lightning, rumblings and peals of thunder, and there was a great earthquake such as never has been since men were first upon the earth, so great an earthquake was it.

19 And the great city came into three parts; and the cities of the nations fell. And Babylon the great was remembered before God, to give her the cup of the wine of his fierce wrath.

20 And every island fled away, and the mountains could not be found.

21 And great hail, heavy as a talent, came down from heaven upon men; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for it was very great.

VI: BABYLON THE GREAT

CHAPTER 17

The Woman on the Scarlet Beast

AND there came one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls, and he spoke with me, saying, "Come, I will show thee the condemnation of the great harlot who sits upon many waters,

2 with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth were made drunk with the wine of her immorality."

3 And he took me away in spirit into a desert. And I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet-colored beast, full of names of ^z Apoc. 3, 3; Matt. 24, 43; Luke 12, 39.

Ver. 15. Behold, I come: the voice of Christ.
Ver. 16. Armagedon: or, as in Hebrew, "Har-Megiddo," i.e., the mountain of Megiddo. The place indicated here is the plain of Esdraelon, the great battlefield of Palestine; here the fortunes of kings have been decided, here rulers fought and fell. This battleground becomes the symbol of the divine struggle.

blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns.

4 And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and covered with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the uncleanness of her immorality.

5 And upon her forehead a name written—a mystery—Babylon the great, the mother of the harlotries and of the abominations of the earth.

6 And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And when I saw her, I wondered with a great wonder.

The Angel's Explanation

7 And the angel said to me, "Wherefore dost thou wonder? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carries her which has the seven heads and the ten horns.

8 The beast that thou sawest was, and is not, and is about to come up from the abyss, and will go to destruction. And the inhabitants of the earth—whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world—will wonder when they see the beast which was, and is not.

9 And here is the meaning for him who has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains upon which the woman sits; and they are seven kings;

10 five of them have fallen, one is, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain a short time.

11 And the beast that was, and is not, is moreover himself eighth, and is of the seven, and is on his way to destruction.

12 "And the ten horns that thou sawest are ten kings, who have not received a kingdom as yet, but they will receive authority as kings for one hour with the beast.

13 These have one purpose, and their power and authority they give to the beast.

14 These will fight with the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, ^a for he is the Lord of lords, and the King of kings, and they who are with him, called, and chosen, and faithful."

15 And he said to me, "The waters that thou sawest where the harlot sits, are peoples and nations and tongues.

16 And the ten horns that thou sawest, and the beast, these will hate the harlot, and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh, and will burn her up in fire.

17 For God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose, to give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God are accomplished.

18 And the woman whom thou sawest is the great city which has kingship over the kings of the earth."

CHAPTER 18

The Fall of Babylon

AND after this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was lighted up by his glory.

2 And he cried out with a mighty voice, saying, "She has fallen, she has ^b fallen, Babylon the great; and has become a habitation of demons, a stronghold of every unclean spirit, a stronghold of every unclean and hateful bird;

3 because all the nations have drunk of the wrath of her immorality, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and by the power of her wantonness the merchants of the earth have grown rich."

Her Sins and Punishment

4 And I heard another voice from heaven saying, "Go out from her, my people, that you may not share in her sins, and that you may not receive of her plagues.

^a Apoc. 19, 16; 1 Tim. 6, 15.—^b Apoc. 14, 8; Isa. 21, 9; Jer. 51, 8.

Ver. 12. One hour: ten other kingdoms are allies of the beast and battle against the Church. But their dominion is short, typified as an hour.

Ver. 17. The Greek text reads: "... to do his purpose and to make common cause and to give their kingdom. ..."

Chap. 17, Ver. 5. A mystery: the name is not literal but symbolical and its meaning will be revealed in due time.

Ver. 11. The beast spoken of here seems to be the Roman Empire, as in chapter 13.

5 For her sins have reached even to heaven, and the Lord has remembered her iniquities.

6 Render to her as she also has rendered, and give her the double according to her works; in the cup that she has mixed, mix for her double.

7 As much as she glorified herself and gave herself to wantonness, so much torment and mourning give to her. Because in her heart she says, c 'I sit a queen, I am no widow, and I shall not see mourning.'

8 Therefore in one day her plagues shall come, death and mourning and famine; and she shall be burnt up in fire; for strong is God who will judge her."

Dirge of the Kings

9 And the kings of the earth who with her committed fornication and lived wantonly will weep and mourn over her when they see the smoke of her burning,

10 standing afar off for fear of her torments, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, Babylon, the strong city, for in one hour has thy judgment come!"

Dirge of the Merchants

11 And the merchants of the earth will weep and mourn over her; for no one will buy their merchandise any more:

12 merchandise of gold and silver, and precious stones and pearls, and fine linen and purple, and silk and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all vessels of ivory, and all vessels of precious stone, and of brass, and of iron, and of marble,

13 and cinnamon and amomum and spices, and ointment and frankincense, and wine and oil, and fine flour and wheat, and beasts of burden and sheep and horses, and chariots and slaves, and souls of men.

14 And the fruit which was the desire of thy soul departed from thee; and all the fat and splendid things perished from thee, and men will find them nevermore.

15 The merchants of these things, who grew rich by her, will stand afar off for fear of her torments, weeping and mourning,

16 and saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, which was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, and gilded in gold, and precious stone, and pearls;

17 for in one hour riches so great were laid waste!"

Dirge of the Mariners

And every shipmaster, and everyone who sails to a place, and mariners, and all who work upon the sea, stood afar off,

18 and cried out as they saw the place of her burning, saying, "What city is like to this great city?"

19 And they cast dust on their heads, and cried out weeping and mourning, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, wherein all who had their ships at sea were made rich out of her wealth; for in one hour she has been laid waste!"

20 Make merry over her, O heaven, and you the saints and the apostles and the prophets, for God has judged your cause upon her.

The Angel's Promise

21 And a strong angel took up a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, "With this violence will Babylon, the great city, be overthrown, and will not be found any more.

22 And the sound of harpers and musicians and flute-players and trumpet will not be heard in thee any more; and no craftsman of any craft will be found in thee any more; and sound of millstone will not be heard in thee any more.

23 And light of lamp will not shine in thee any more; and voice of bridegroom and of bride will not be heard in thee any more; because thy merchants were the great men of the earth, for by thy sorcery all the nations have been led astray.

24 And in her was found blood of prophets and of saints, and of all who have been slain upon the earth."

c Isa. 47, 8.

Chap. 18, Ver. 9-19. This passage does not appear to be an account of a vision but rather a direct prophecy, after the manner of the prophecies of Isaiah and Ezekiel concerning Tyre. Tyre furnishes a type of the vengeance of God upon pride and luxury.

Ver. 13. Beasts of burden: the Greek has "cattle."
Ver. 22. The city had boasted previously of her craftsmen, skilled in every craft.

CHAPTER 19

The Angelic Song

AFTER these things I heard as it were a loud voice of a great crowd in heaven, saying, "Alleluia! salvation and glory and power belong to our God.

2 For true and just are his judgments, who has judged the great harlot who corrupted the earth with her fornication, and has avenged the blood of his servants at her hands."

3 And again they have said, "Alleluia! And the smoke of her goes up forever and ever!"

4 And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshipped God who sits on the throne, and they said, "Amen! Alleluia!"

5 And a voice came forth from the throne, saying, "Praise our God, all you his servants, and you who fear him, the small and the great!"

The Song of Triumph

6 And I heard as it were a voice of a great crowd, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunders, saying, "Alleluia! for the Lord, our God almighty, now reigns!

7 Let us be glad and rejoice, and give glory to him; for the marriage of the Lamb has come, and his spouse has prepared herself.

8 And she has been permitted to clothe herself in fine linen, shining, bright. For the fine linen is the just deeds of the saints."

9 And he said to me, "Write: d Blessed are they who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb." And he said to me, "These are true words of God."

10 And I fell down before his feet to worship him. And he said to me, "Thou must not do that. I am a fellow-servant of thine and of thy brethren who give the testimony of Jesus. Worship God! for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy."

Chap. 19, Ver. 10. Fellow-servant: one bond of service unites angels and men.

Ver. 16. King of kings: the power of Christ is irresistible. His kingship universal. This is an affirmation of His divinity.

VII: THE CONSUMMATION

The Divine Warrior

11 And I saw heaven standing open; and behold, a white horse, and he who sat upon it is called Faithful and True, and with justice he judges and wages war.

12 And his eyes are as a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems; he has a name written which no man knows except himself.

13 And e he is clothed in a garment sprinkled with blood, and his name is called The Word of God.

14 And the armies of heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and pure, were following him on white horses.

King of Kings and Lord of Lords

15 And from his mouth goes forth a sharp sword with which to smite the nations. f And he will rule them with a rod of iron, and he treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God almighty.

16 And he has on his garment and on his thigh a name written, g "King of kings and Lord of lords."

Defeat of the Beast and the False Prophet

17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that fly in midheaven, "Come, gather yourselves together to the great supper of God,

18 that you may eat flesh of kings, and flesh of tribunes, and flesh of mighty men, and flesh of horses, and of those who sit upon them, and flesh of all men, free and bond, small and great."

19 And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered together to wage war against him who was sitting upon the horse, and against his army.

d Matt. 22, 2; Luke 14, 16.—e Isa. 63, 2.—f Ps. 2, 9.—g Apoc. 17, 14; 1 Tim. 6, 15.

Ver. 19. The true King is followed by his army; it is one army, united by one bond and under one King. The army of the beast is made up of diverse armies and united only by opposition to the good. The battle appears to be that of Armagedon.

20 And the beast was seized, and with it the false prophet who did signs before it wherewith he deceived those who accepted the mark of the beast and who worshipped its image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire that burns with brimstone.

21 And the rest were killed with the sword of him who sits upon the horse, the sword that goes forth out of his mouth; and all the birds were filled with their flesh.

CHAPTER 20

Satan Chained

AND I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he laid hold on the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years.

3 And he cast him into the abyss, and closed and sealed it over him, that he should deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years should be finished. And after that he must be let loose for a little while.

Reign of the Saints

4 And I saw thrones, and men sat upon them and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the witness to Jesus and because of the word of God, and who did not worship the beast or his image, and did not accept his mark upon their foreheads or upon their hands. And they came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

5 The rest of the dead did not come to life till the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.

Ver. 20. The false prophet: the second wild beast, that of chapter 13.

Chap. 20, Ver. 2. A thousand years: not to be taken literally. It signifies that, after the destruction of hostile kings and the chaining of the dragon, the Church will enjoy a long era of peace. During this era Christ will reign over the souls of men, and Christians, through their influence over the world, will reign with Christ.

Ver. 5. The rest of the dead: sinners who will not enjoy any kind of resurrection until the end of time. The first resurrection: the spiritual reign of the faithful with Christ during the long period of a 6 Blessed and holy is he who has part in the first resurrection! Over these the second death has no power; but they will be priests of God and Christ, and will reign with him a thousand years.

Satan Loosed

7 And when the thousand years are finished, Satan will be released from his prison, and will go forth and deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, ^h Gog and Magog, and will gather them together for the battle; the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.

8 And they went up over the breadth of the earth and encompassed the camp of the saints, and the beloved city.

9 And fire from God came down out of heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was cast into the pool of fire and brimstone, where are also the beast

10 and the false prophet; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

The Last Judgment

11 And I saw a great white throne and the one who sat upon it; from his face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was found no place for them.

12 And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and scrolls were opened. And another scroll was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things that were written in the scrolls, according to their works.

13 And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and hell gave up the dead that were in them; and they were judged each one, according to their works.

^h Ezech. 39, 2.

thousand years. The general resurrection, on the last day, is referred to in ver. 12 and 13.

Ver. 7. Gog and Magog: after a thousand years the nations will attack the Church. These nations are designated as Gog and Magog. The names are taken from Ezechiel. In rabbinical books the names were used to signify the nations that would rise against the Messias. The names are to be understood figuratively and signify the earthly powers that will make the last onslaught against the Church.

Ver. 12. Out of those things that were written in the scrolls: i.e., according to their works, a frequent idea in the New Testament.

14 And hell and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death, the pool of fire.

15 And if anyone was not found written in the book of life, he was cast into the pool of fire.

CHAPTER 21

New Heaven and New Earth

AND I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and the sea is no more.

2 And I saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband.

3 And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Behold the dwelling of God with men, and he will dwell with them. And they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God.

4 And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes. And death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain any more, for the former things have passed away."

The Promise

5 And he who was sitting on the throne said, "Behold, I make all things new!" And he said, "Write, for these words are trustworthy and true."

6 And he said to me, "It is done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To him who thirsts I will give of the fountain of the water of life freely.

7 He who overcomes shall possess these things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

8 But as for the cowardly and unbelieving, and abominable and murderers, and fornicators and sorcerers, and idolai Isa. 65, 17; 66, 22; 2 Pet. 3, 13.—j Apoc. 7, 17; Isa. 25, 8.—k Isa. 43, 19; 2 Cor. 5, 17.

Chap. 21, Ver. 1. New: there are two words that are translated "new" in our English versions. One refers to time; the other to quality. The quality of the earth will be changed but not the substance; there will be some resemblance between the old and the new. Cf. Rom. 8, 19.

Ver. 16. Foursquare: the length and breadth are ters and all liars, their portion shall be in the pool that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death."

The Heavenly Jerusalem

9 And there came one of the seven angels who had the bowls full of the seven last plagues; and he spoke with me, saying, "Come, I will show thee the bride, the spouse of the Lamb."

10 And he took me up in spirit to a mountain, great and high, and showed me the holy city Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, 11 having the glory of God. Its light was like to a precious stone, as it were a jasper-stone, clear as crystal.

12 And it had a wall great and high with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written on them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel.

13 On the east are three gates, and on the north three gates, and on the south three gates, and on the west three gates.

14 And the wall of the city has twelve foundation stones, and on them twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

15 And he who spoke with me had a measure, a golden reed, to measure the city and the gates thereof and the wall.

16 And the city stands foursquare, and its length is as great as its breadth; and he measured the city with the reed, to twelve thousand stadia: the length and the breadth and the height of it are equal.

17 And he measured its wall, of a hundred and forty-four cubits, man's measure, that is, angel's measure.

18 And the material of its wall was jasper; but the city itself was pure gold, like pure glass.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone. The first foundation, jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, agate; the fourth, emerald;

20 the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, equal; the height is equal to the length and breadth. This is a symbol of perfect symmetry, and signifies the grandeur of the city.

Ver. 17. Man's measure . . . angel's measure: the measure is the measure of a man but the reed is handled by an angel; the measure is true for men and true for angels.

beryl; the ninth, topaz; the tenth, chryso-prase; the eleventh, jacinth; the twelfth, amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; that is, each gate was of a single pearl. And the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

God and the Lamb Give It Light

22 And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord God almighty and the Lamb are the temple thereof.

23 And the city ^lhas no need of the sun or the moon to shine upon it. For the glory of God lights it up, and the Lamb is the lamp thereof.

24 And the nations shall walk by the light thereof; and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honor into it.

25 And ^mits gates shall not be shut by day; for there shall be no night there.

26 And they shall bring the glory and the honor of nations into it.

27 And there shall not enter into it anything defiled, nor he who practises abomination and falsehood, but those only who are written in the book of life of the Lamb.

CHAPTER 22

The River and Tree of Life

AND he showed me a river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming forth from the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the city street, on both sides of the river, was the tree of life, bearing twelve fruits, yielding its fruit according to each month, and the leaves for the healing of the nations.

The Throne of God and of the Lamb

3 And there shall be no more any accursed thing; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him.

4 And they shall see his face and his name shall be on their foreheads.

5 And ⁿnight shall be no more, and they shall have no need of light of lamp, or light of sun, for the Lord God will shed light upon them; and they shall reign forever and ever.

EPILOGUE

Confirmation

6 And he said to me, "These words are trustworthy and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent his angel to show to his servants what must shortly come to pass.

7 And behold, I come quickly! Blessed is he who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book."

8 And I, John, am he who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed me these things.

9 And he said to me, "Thou must not do that. I am a fellow-servant of thine and of thy brethren the prophets, and of those who keep the words of this book. Worship God!"

Words of Christ

10 And he said to me, "Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book; for the time is at hand.

11 He who does wrong, let him do wrong still; and he who is filthy, let him be filthy still; and he who is just, let him be just still; and he who is holy, let him be hallowed still.

12 Behold, I come quickly! And my reward is with me, to render to each one according to his works.

13 I ^oam the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end!"

14 Blessed are they who wash their robes that they may have the right to the tree of life, and that by the gates they may enter into the city.

15 Outside are the dogs, and the sorcerers, and the fornicators, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practises falsehood.

^l Isa. 60, 19.—^m Isa. 60, 11.—ⁿ Isa. 60, 20.—^o Apoc. 1, 8; 21, 6; Isa. 41, 4; 44, 6.

Chap. 22, Ver. 7. I come quickly: these are the words of Christ and confirm the declaration of the last verse. He will come quickly but the precise time is not determined. "One day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day!" [2 Pet. 3, 8].

Ver. 11f. No permission is given to continue in evil. The meaning is that we reap what we sow.

Final Attestation

16 "I, Jesus, have sent my angel to testify to you these things concerning the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star."

17 And the Spirit and the bride say, "Come!" And let him who hears say, "Come!" And let him who thirsts come; and he who wishes, let him receive the water of life freely.

18 I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book. If Ver. 17. The Spirit: the Holy Spirit. The bride: the Church of Christ.

Ver. 20. I come quickly: the words are Christ's, now repeated for the seventh time.

anyone shall add to them, God will add unto him the plagues that are written in this book.

19 And if anyone shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his portion from the tree of life, and from the holy city, and from the things that are written in this book.

20 He who testifies to these things says, "It is true, I come quickly!" Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!

21 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all. Amen.

p Isa. 55, 1.

Ver. 21. The Greek Codex Sinaiticus has, "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with the saints."

REFERENCES

HISTORICAL AND CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

BIBLICAL HISTORY really begins with Abraham. The first eleven chapters of Genesis are historical only in the widest possible sense; their primary purpose is to teach theological truths: the transcendence of God; the creation of the universe; man's spiritual nature and state of original justice; the Fall and humanity's progressive subsequent moral deterioration. Without attempting to fix even an approximate date, the natural scientists agree that man has been on this planet many millennia, perhaps more than one hundred thousand years. By contrast, the Flood, which undoubtedly reflects an authentic tradition, probably occurred about 4000 B.C., yet it is the earliest actual bit of "history" recorded in the Bible. What then of the genealogical lists interspersed throughout these early chapters? By means of these it would seem possible to determine not only the number of generations between Adam and Abraham but to count the years that intervened as well. Here we are faced with an example of what Pope Pius XII called the interpreter's need to "go back wholly in spirit to those remote centuries of the East" and determine from the varied relevant circumstances the author's meaning and intention. With a reasonable amount of confidence we can assume that this was twofold: first to give a Messianic framework to pre-history, to show, that is, how all the events of those first eleven chapters lead up to Abraham. Man's original blessedness is to be regained through him. Secondly, we may gather from the extraordinary ages given to the patriarchs between Adam and Noe that the author wished to insinuate his astute but uninformed suspicion that mankind was older than its records.

When we say that Abraham marks a beginning to Biblical history we mean that he can be dated within a relatively limited period, specifically between 1900-1700 B.C. It is doubtful if we will ever be able to be more precise than this. A similar margin of error must be allowed for the date of the Exodus, the central event in Israelite history, about which historians and archeologists are divided. Some hold to a date in the fifteenth century B.C., others, today perhaps most, to a date in the thirteenth century. Needless to say, there are excellent reasons on both sides of this question and it is one which is more likely to be resolved by the continued advances in archeological research.

IMPORTANT EVENTS IN SACRED HISTORY	B.C.	IMPORTANT EVENTS OUT- SIDE ISRAEL
Abraham	around 1900	End of the III Dynasty of Ur. Aryan infiltrations in Asia-Minor. Beginning of the Hittite Empire. Paleo-Babylonian King- dom in Mesopotamia
The Israelites descend into Egypt	around 1700	The Hyksos in Egypt
Beginning of the oppres- sion of the Israelites	1580	Expulsion of the Hyksos
Moses and the Exodus (?)	1486-1410	Hatshepsut, Thutmosis III, Amenophis II, Rulers of Egypt
	1370-1353	Amenhotep IV (Akhenaton). Religious reform in Egypt. Incursions of "Ha- biru" in Canaan
Moses and the Exodus (?)	1290-1214	Ramses II and Merneptah, Pharaohs in Egypt
Period of Israelite settle- ment in Canaan. The Judges	1200-1100	Fall of the Hittite Empire. Philistines in Canaan. "People of the Sea" re- pulsed by Ramses III in Egypt. Rise of Assyrian power in Mesopotamia

IMPORTANT EVENTS IN SACRED HISTORY

B.C.

Samuel and Saul

around 1050

David King

around 1000

Solomon King. Building of the Temple

around 960

Division of the Kingdom

931/930

End of the Northern Kingdom. Fall of Samaria.
Isaiah the prophet

722

Religious reforms of King Josiah. Jeremiah the prophet

622

End of the Kingdom of Judah. Fall of Jerusalem.
Ezekiel the prophet

586

The return from exile.
Zachariah and Haggai prophets

539

Nehemiah returns to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem

445

353

IMPORTANT EVENTS OUT- SIDE ISRAEL

The Dorian invasion of Greece. Decline of Eryptian power

Homer and Hesiod (Greek poets). Founding of Rome (753)

Assyrian power at its height

Decline of Assyrian power.
Rise of Babylon under Nabopolassar

Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon. Ionian philosophers. Confucius in China; the Buddha in India

Cyrus the Great of Persia takes Babylon. Decree releasing the Jews

Artaxerxes I King of Persia.
Socrates

IMPORTANT EVENTS IN SACRED HISTORY

B.C.

Deportation of many Jews because of their participation in a rebellion against Artaxerxes III.
Palestine comes under Greek domination (332)

351

Jewish revolt against Seleucid (Greek) rule under Judah Maccabee. The gradual formation of sects within Judaism:
Sadducees, Pharisees, Essenes (Zadokites?)

175

Pompey captures Jerusalem

64

Herod made King of Judea
by the Roman Senate

37

Birth of Jesus Christ

around
7

A.D.

The Crucifixion

30/33

The Destruction of Jerusalem

71

354

IMPORTANT EVENTS OUT- SIDE ISRAEL

Plato

Aristotle

Alexander the Great

Hellenism

Punic Wars and the destruction of Carthage.
The rise of Roman power

Julius Caesar crosses the Rubicon (49 B.C.)

Battle of Actium. Augustus
Emperor (31 B.C.)

Egypt becomes a Roman province

A Table of References

ABSOLUTION. The power promised and given to the pastors of the church, St. Matt. 16. 19; chap. 18. 18; St. John 20, 22, 23.

ANGELS. They have a charge over us, St. Matt. 18, 10; Heb. 1. 14. See also Exod. 23. 20, 21; Psalm 90. 11, 12, &c. They offer up our prayers, Apoc. 8. 4, and pray for us, Zach. 1. 12. We have a communion with them, Heb. 12. 22. They have been honoured by the servants of God. Josue 5. 14, 15, and invoked, Gen. 48. 15, 16; Osee 12. 4; Apoc. 1. 4.

BAPTISM. Ordained by Christ, St. Matt. 28. 19. Necessary to salvation, St. John 3. 5. Administered by the Apostles in water, Acts 8. 36, 38; chap. 10. 47, 48; also Eph. 5. 26; Heb. 10. 22; 1 St. Peter 3, 20, 21. For the baptism of infants, St. Luke 18. 16, compared with St. John 3. 5.

CHRIST. He is the only begotten, the true, and natural Son of God, St. Matt. 16. 16; St. John 1. 14; chap. 3. 16, 18; Rom. 8. 32; 1 St. John 4. 9. The same God with his Father, and equal to him, St. John 5. 18, 19, 23; chap. 10. 30; chap. 14. 1, 9, &c.; chap. 16. 14, 15; chap. 17. 10; Phil. 2. 5, 6. True God, St. John 1. 1; chap. 20. 28, 29; Acts 20. 25; Rom. 9. 5; Titus 2. 13; 1 St. John 3. 16; chap. 5. 20. Also Isa. 9. 6; chap. 35. 4, 5; St. Matt. 1. 23; St. Luke 1. 16, 17; Heb. 1. 8. He is the Creator of all things, St. John 1. 3, 10, 11; Col. 1. 5, 16, 17; Heb. 1. 2, 10-12; chap. 3. 4. The Lord of Glory, 1 Cor. 2. 8. The King of kings, and Lord of lords, Apoc. 17. 14; chap. 19. 16. The first and the last; Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the Almighty, Apoc. 1. 7, 8, 17, 18; chap. 2. 8; chap. 22. 12, 13. He died for all, John 3. 16, 17; Rom. 5. 18; 2 Cor. 5. 14, 15; 1 Tim. 2. 3, 4, 5, 6; chap. 4, 10; Heb. 2. 9; 1 John 2. 1, 2. Even for the reprobate, Rom. 14. 15; 1 Cor. 8. 11; 2 Pet. 2, 1.

THE CHURCH stands for ever, St. Matt. 16. 18; 28. 20; St. John 14. 16, 17; Psalm 47. 9; Psalm 71. 5, 7; Psalm 88. 3, 4, 29, 36, 37; Psalm 131. 13, 14; Isa. 9. 7; chap. 54. 9, 10; chap. 59. 20, 21; chap. 60. 15, 18, &c.; chap. 62. 6; Jer. 31. 35, 36; chap. 33. 17, &c.; Ezech. 37. 24, 26; Dan. 2. 44. The church is the kingdom of Christ, St. Luke 1. 33; Dan. 2. 44. The city of the great King, Psalm 47. 2, his rest, and his habitation for ever, Psalm 131. 13, 14. The house of the living God, 1 Tim. 3. 15. The fold of which Christ is the shepherd, John 10. 16. The body, of which Christ is the head, Col. 1. 18; Eph. 5. 23. The spouse, of which he is the bridegroom, Eph. 5. 31, 32. Ever subject to him and ever faithful to him, chap. 5. 24, ever loved and cherished by him, chap. 5. 25, 29, and joined to him by an indissoluble union, chap. 5. 31, 32. The church is the pillar and ground (or strong foundation) of the truth, 1 Tim. 3.

15. God's covenant with her is an everlasting covenant of peace, Ezech. 37. 26. confirmed by a solemn oath, never to be altered; like that made to Noe, Isa. 54. 9. A covenant like that of the day and night to stand for all generations, Jer. 33. 20, 21. God shall be her everlasting light, Isa. 60. 18, 19. Whosoever shall gather together against her shall fall; and the nation that will not serve her, shall perish, Isa. 60. 12, 15, 17. The church is always one, Cant. 6. 8; John 10. 16; Eph. 4. 4, 5. Always visible, Isa. 2. 2, 3; Mich. 4. 1, 2; Matt. 5. 14. Spread far and near, and teaching many nations, Psalm 2. 8; Psalm 21. 28; Isa. 49. 6; chap. 54. 1-3; Dan. 2. 35, 44; Mal. 1. 11, &c. The church is infallible in matters of faith. This follows from the premises: particularly see St. Matt. 16. 18; chap. 28. 19, 20; St. John 14. 16, 17, 26; chap. 16. 13; 1 Tim. 3. 14, 15; Isa. 35. 8; chap. 54. 9, 10; chap. 59. 19-21, &c.

CHURCH GUIDES, and their authority, Deut. 17. 8, 9, &c.; St. Matt. 18. 17, 18; chap. 28. 18-20; St. Luke 10. 16; St. John 14. 16, 17, 26; chap. 16. 13; chap. 20, 21, &c.; Eph. 4. 11, 12, &c.; Heb. 13. 7, 17; 1 John 4. 6.

COMMUNION in one kind sufficient to salvation, St. John 6. 51, 57, 58. Body and blood of Christ now inseparable, Rom. 6. 9. Mention of one kind alone, Luke 24. 30, 31; Acts 2. 42, 46; chap. 20. 7; 1 Cor. 10. 17.

CONFESSION of sins, Num. 5. 6, 7; St. Matt. 3. 6; Acts 19. 18; St. James 5. 16. The obligation of confession is gathered from the judiciary power of binding and loosing, forgiving and retaining sins, given to the pastors of Christ's Church, St. Matt. 18. 18; St. John 20. 22, 23.

CONFIRMATION, administered by the Apostles, Acts 8. 15, 17; chap. 19. 6. See also 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22; Heb. 6. 2.

CONTINENCY: possible, Matt. 19. 11, 12. The vow binding, Deut. 23. 21. The breach of that vow damnable, 1 Tim. 5. 12. The practice commended, 1 Cor. 7. 7, 8, 27, 37, 38, 40. For reasons which particularly have place in the clergy ver. 32, 33, 35.

COUNCILS of the church, gathered in Christ's name, are assisted by Christ, St. Matt. 18. 20. And by the Holy Ghost, Acts 15. 28. Their decrees are diligently to be observed by the faithful, Acts 15. 41; chap. 16. 4. See Church Guides.

EUCCHARISTS. The real presence of the body and blood of Christ, and Transubstantiation, proved from Matt. 26. 26; Mark 14. 22, 24; Luke 22. 19; John 6. 51, 52, &c.; 1 Cor. 10. 16; chap. 11. 24, 25, 27, 29.

ETERNITY of Hell's torments, Matt. 3. 12; chap. 25. 41, 46; Mark 9. 43-46, 48; Luke 3. 17; 2 Thess. 1. 7-9; Jude 6, 7; Apoc. 14. 10, 11; chap. 20. 10. See also Isa. 33. 14.

EXTREME UNCTION, James 5. 14, 15.

FAITH. True faith necessary to salvation, Mark 16. 16; Acts 2. 47; chap. 4. 12; Heb. 11. 6. Faith without good works is dead, James 2. 14, 17, 20, &c. Faith alone doth not justify, ver. 24. But faith working by charity, Gal. 5. 6. Faith doth not imply an absolute assurance of our being in grace; much less of our eternal salvation, Rom. 11. 20-22; 1 Cor. 9. 27; chap. 10. 12; Phil. 2. 12; Apoc. 3. 11.

FASTING commended in Scripture, Joel 2. 12. Practised by God's servants, 1 Esdras 8. 23; 2 Esdras 1. 4; Dan. 10. 3, 7, 12. &c. Moves God to mercy, Jonas 3. 5, &c. Is of great efficacy against the devil, Mark 9. 28. And is to be observed by all the children of Christ, Matt. 9. 15; Mark 2. 20; Luke 5. 35. See also Acts 13. 3; chap. 14. 22; 2 Cor. 6. 5; chap. 11. 27. Christ's fast of forty days, Matt. 4. 2.

FREE WILL. Gen. 4. 7; Deut. 30. 19; Eccli. 15. 14, &c. Often resists the grace of God; Prov. 1. 24, &c.; Isa. 5. 4; Ezech. 18. 23, 31, 32; chap. 33. 11; Matt. 23. 37; Luke 13. 34; Acts 7. 51; Heb. 12. 15; 2 Pet. 3. 9; Apoc. 20. 4.

THE HOLY GHOST. His Divinity, Acts 5. 3, 4; chap. 28. 25, 26; 1 Cor. 2. 10, 11; chap. 6. 11, 19, 20. See also Matt. 12. 31, 32; Acts 13. 2; chap. 20. 28, &c.; 2 Cor. 13. 13. And the solemn form of Baptism, Matt. 28. 19, 20. He proceeds from the Father and the Son, John 15, 26.

IMAGES commanded by God, Exod. 25. 18, &c.; Numb. 21. 8, 9. And placed on each side of the mercy seat, in the sanctuary, Exod. 37. 7. And in the temple of Solomon, 2 Paralipomenon 3. 10, 11; 3 Kings 6. 23, 32, 35. And this by divine ordinance, 1 Paralipomenon 28. 18, 19. Relative honour to the images of Christ and the saints authorized, Heb. 11. 21. See also 2 Kings 6. 12-16; 2 Paralipomenon 5. 2, &c.; Psalm 98. 5; Phil. 2. 10.

INDULGENCES. The power of granting them, Matt. 16. 18, 19. The use of this power, 2 Cor. 2. 6-8, 10.

MASS. The sacrifice prefigured, Gen. 14. 18. Foretold, Mal. 1. 10, 11. Instituted and celebrated by Christ himself, Luke 22. 19, 20. Attested, 1 Cor. 10. 16, 18-21; Heb. 13. 10. See Eucharist, &c.

MATRIMONY. A sacrament representing the indissoluble union of Christ and the church, Eph. 5. 32. See also 1 Thess. 4. 3-5. Marriage not to be dissolved but by death, Gen. 2. 24; Matt. 19. 6; Mark 10. 11, 12; Luke 16. 18; Rom. 7. 2, 3; 1 Cor. 7. 10, 11, 39.

HOLY ORDERS instituted by Christ. Luke 22. 19; John 20. 22, 23. Conferred by imposition of hands, Acts 6. 6; chap. 13. 3, chap. 14. 22. Give grace, 1 Tim. 4. 14; 2 Tim. 1. 6.

ORIGINAL SIN, Job. 14. 4; Psalm 50. 7; Rom. 5. 12, 15-19; 1 Cor. 15. 21, 22; Eph. 2. 3.

PENANCE, a sacrament. See Absolution. Confession.

POPE, or chief bishop. St. Peter by Christ's ordinance, was raised to this dignity, Matt. 16. 18, 19; Luke 22. 31, 32; John 21. 15, 17, &c. See also Matt. 10. 2; Acts 5. 29; Gal. 2. 7, 8.

PRAYERS FOR THE DEAD, 2 Mach. 12. 43, &c.

PURGATORY, or a middle state of souls, suffering for a time, on account of their sins, is proved by those many texts of Scripture which affirm that God will render to every man according to his works: so that such as die in lesser sins shall not escape without punishment: for which also see Matt. 12. 36; Apoc. 21. 27. Likewise Matt. 5. 25, 26; chap. 12. 32; Luke 12. 58, 59; 1 Cor. 3. 13-15; 1 Pet. 3. 18-20.

RELICS, miraculous, 4 Kings 13. 21; Matt. 9. 20, 21; Acts 19. 11, 12.

SAINTS departed assist us by their prayers, Luke 16. 9; 1 Cor. 12. 8; Apoc. 5. 8. We have a communion with them, Heb. 12. 22, 23. They have power over nations, Apoc. 2. 26, 27; chap. 5. 10. They know what passes amongst us, Luke 15. 10; 1 Cor. 13. 12; 1 John 3. 2. They are with Christ in heaven, before the general resurrection, 2 Cor. 5. 1, 6-8; Phil. 1. 23, 24; Apoc. 4. 4; chap. 6. 9; chap. 7. 9, 14, 15, &c.; chap. 14. 1, 3, 4; chap. 19. 1, 4-6; chap. 20. 4. For their invocation, consult the texts quoted above with relation to Angels: and such as testify the great power which the prayers of God's servants have with him; and which authorize us to call for their prayers. For which see Exod. 32. 11, 14; 1 Kings 7. 8-10; Job 42 7-8; Rom. 15. 30; Eph. 6. 18, 19; 1 Thess. 5 25; Heb. 13. 18; James 5. 16.

HOLY SCRIPTURES hard to be understood, and wrested by many to their own destruction, 2 Pet. 3. 16. Not of private interpretation, 2 Pet. 1. 20. Corrupted by Heretics, St. Matt. 19. 11; 1 Cor. 7. 9; chap. 9. 5; chap. 11. 27; Gal. 5. 17; Heb. 11. 21.

APOSTOLICAL TRADITIONS, 1 Cor. 11. 2; 2 Thess. 2. 14; chap. 2. 6; 2 Tim. 1. 13; chap. 2. 2; chap. 3. 14. See also Deut. 32. 7; Psalm 19. 5-7.

TRANSUBSTANTIATION. See Eucharist.

TRINITY of persons in God, Matt. 28. 19; 2 Cor. 13. 13; 1 John 5. 7.

THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY. Her dignity, Luke 1. 28, 42, 43. All generations of true Christians shall call her blessed, Luke 1. 48. See for her veneration and invocation, what is said above of Angels and saints.

WOMEN must not preach nor teach, 1 Cor. 14. 34, 35, 37, 1 Tim. 2. 11, 12.

GOOD WORKS meritorious, Gen. 4. 7; chap. 22. 16, 18; Psalm 17. 21, 23, 24; Psalm 18. 8, 11; Matt. 5. 11, 12; chap. 10. 42; chap. 16. 27; 1 Cor. 3. 8; 2 Tim. 4. 8.

EPISTLES AND GOSPELS

SUNDAYS AND HOLYDAYS* THROUGHOUT THE LITURGICAL YEAR

SUNDAYS AND HOLYDAYS	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
First Sunday of Advent	Rom. 13, 11-14	Luke 21, 25-33
Second Sunday of Advent	Rom. 15, 4-13	Matt. 11, 2-10
Immaculate Conception (Dec. 8)	Prov. 8, 22-35	Matt. 1, 1-16
Third Sunday of Advent	Philipp. 4, 4-7	John 1, 19-28
Fourth Sunday of Advent	1 Cor. 4, 1-5	Luke 3, 1-6
Christmas: First Mass	Titus 2, 11-15	Luke 2, 1-14
Second Mass	Titus 3, 4-7	Luke 2, 15-20
Third Mass	Heb. 1, 1-12	John 1, 1-14
Sunday in Octave of Christmas	Cal. 4, 1-7	Luke 2, 33-40
Octave of Christmas	Titus 2, 11-15	Luke 2, 21
First Sunday after Epiphany	Rom. 12, 1-5	Luke 2, 42-52
Second Sunday after Epiphany	Rom. 12, 6-16	John 2, 1-11
Third Sunday after Epiphany	Rom. 12, 16-21	Matt. 8, 1-13
Fourth Sunday after Epiphany	Rom. 13, 8-10	Matt. 8, 23-27
Fifth Sunday after Epiphany	Col. 3, 12-17	Matt. 13, 24-30
Sixth Sunday after Epiphany	1 Thess. 1, 2-10	Matt. 13, 31-35
Septuagesima Sunday	1 Cor. 9, 24-10, 5	Matt. 20, 1-16
Sexagesima Sunday	2 Cor. 11, 19-12, 9	Luke 8, 4-15
Quinquagesima Sunday	1 Cor. 13, 1-13	Luke 18, 31-43
First Sunday in Lent	2 Cor. 6, 1-10	Matt. 4, 1-11
Second Sunday in Lent	1 Thess. 4, 1-7	Matt. 17, 1-9
Third Sunday in Lent	Eph. 5, 1-9	Luke 11, 14-28
Fourth Sunday in Lent	Gal. 4, 22-31	John 6, 1-15
Passion Sunday	Heb. 9, 11-15	John 8, 46-59
Palm Sunday	Philipp. 2, 5-11	Matt. 26 and 27
Easter Sunday	1 Cor. 5, 7-8	Mark 16, 1-7
Octave Day of Easter (Low Sunday)	1 John 5, 4-10	John 20, 19-31
Second Sunday after Easter	1 Peter 2, 21-25	John 10, 11-16
Third Sunday after Easter	1 Peter 2, 11-19	John 16, 16-22
Fourth Sunday after Easter	James 1, 17-21	John 16, 5-14
Fifth Sunday after Easter	James 1, 22-27	John 16, 23-30
Ascension of Our Lord into Heaven	Acts 1, 1-11	Mark 16, 14-20
The Sunday after Ascension	1 Peter 4, 7-11	John 15, 26-16, 4
Whitsunday, or Pentecost	Acts 2, 1-11	John 14, 23-31
Trinity Sunday	Rom. 11, 33-36	Matt. 28, 18-20
First Sunday after Pentecost	1 John 4, 8-21	Luke 6, 36-42
(Same day as Trinity Sunday)

*In the United States of America.

SUNDAYS AND HOLYDAYS	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
Second Sunday after Pentecost	1 John 3, 13-18	Luke 14, 16-24
Third Sunday after Pentecost	1 Peter 5, 6-11	Luke 15, 1-10
Fourth Sunday after Pentecost	Rom. 8, 18-23	Luke 5, 1-11
Fifth Sunday after Pentecost	1 Peter 3, 8-15	Matt. 5, 20-24
Sixth Sunday after Pentecost	Rom. 6, 3-11	Mark 8, 1-9
Seventh Sunday after Pentecost	Rom. 6, 19-23	Matt. 7, 15-21
Eighth Sunday after Pentecost	Rom. 8, 12-17	Luke 16, 1-9
Ninth Sunday after Pentecost	1 Cor. 10, 6-13	Luke 19, 41-47
Tenth Sunday after Pentecost	1 Cor. 12, 2-11	Luke 18, 9-14
Eleventh Sunday after Pentecost	1 Cor. 15, 1-10	Mark 7, 31-37
Assumption of the B.V.M. (Aug. 15)	Eccli. 23, 11-20	Luke 10, 38-42
Twelfth Sunday after Pentecost	2 Cor. 3, 4-9	Luke 10, 23-37
Thirteenth Sunday after Pentecost	Gal. 3, 16-22	Luke 17, 11-19
Fourteenth Sunday after Pentecost	Gal. 6, 16-24	Matt. 6, 24-33
Fifteenth Sunday after Pentecost	Gal. 5, 25-6, 10	Luke 7, 11-16
Sixteenth Sunday after Pentecost	Eph. 3, 13-21	Luke 14, 1-11
Seventeenth Sunday after Pentecost	Eph. 4, 1-6	Matt. 22, 35-46
Eighteenth Sunday after Pentecost	1 Cor. 1, 4-8	Matt. 9, 1-8
Nineteenth Sunday after Pentecost	Eph. 4, 23-28	Matt. 22, 1-14
Twentieth Sunday after Pentecost	Eph. 5, 15-21	John 4, 46-53
Our Lord Jesus Christ the King (Last Sunday in October)	Coloss. 1, 12-20	John 18, 33-37
Twenty-first Sunday after Pentecost	Eph. 6, 1-17	Matt. 18, 23-35
Twenty-second Sunday after Pentecost	Philipp. 1, 6-11	Matt. 22, 15-21
Twenty-third Sunday after Pentecost	Philipp. 3, 17-4, 3	Matt. 9, 18-26
The Last Sunday after Pentecost	Col. 1, 9-14	Matt. 24, 15-35

FEASTS OF OUR LORD

FEAST	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
Holy Name of Jesus (Jan. 2 or Sunday between Jan. 1 and Epiphany)	Acts 4, 8-12	Luke 2, 21
Epiphany of Our Lord (Jan. 6)	Isa. 60, 1-6	Matt. 2, 1-12
Holy Family (First Sunday after Epiphany)	Col. 3, 12-17	Luke 2, 42-52
Commemoration of the Baptism of Our Lord (Jan. 13)	Isa. 60, 1-6	John 1, 29-34
Corpus Christi (Thursday after Trinity Sunday)	1 Cor. 11, 23-29	John 6, 56-59

SUNDAYS AND HOLYDAYS	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
Sacred Heart of Jesus (Friday after Octave of Corpus Christi)	Eph. 3, 8-19	John 19, 31-37
Most Precious Blood (July 1)	Heb. 9, 11-15	John 19, 30-35
Transfiguration of Our Lord (Aug. 6)	2 Peter 1, 16-19	Matt. 17, 1-9
Nativity of Our Lord (Dec. 25)	See Christmas

MAJOR FEASTS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

FEAST	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
Purification (Feb. 2)	Mal. 3, 1-4	Luke 2, 22-32
Annunciation (March 25)	Isa. 7, 10-15	Luke 1, 26-38
Mary, Our Queen (May 31)	Eccli. 24: 5, 7, 9-11, 30-31	Luke 1, 26-33
Visitation (July 2)	Cant. 2, 8-14	Luke 1, 39-47
Assumption (Aug. 15)	Judith 13, 22-25; 15, 10	Luke 1, 41-50
Immaculate Heart (Aug. 22)	Eccli. 24, 23-31	John 19, 25-27
Nativity of B.V.M. (Sept. 8)	Prov. 8, 22-35	Matt. 1, 1-16
Holy Name of Mary (Sept. 12)	Eccli. 24, 23-31	Luke 1, 26-38
Seven Sorrows (Sept. 15)	Judith 13, 22-25	John 19, 25-27
Our Lady of the Rosary (Oct. 7)	Prov. 8, 22-24	Luke 1, 26-38
Motherhood of B.V.M. (Oct. 11)	Ecclus. 24, 23-31	Luke 2, 43-51
Immaculate Conception (Dec. 8)	Prov. 8, 22-35	Luke 1, 26-28

FEASTS OF ST. JOSEPH

FEAST	EPISTLE	GOSPEL
St. Joseph (March 19)	Ecclus. 45, 1-6	Matt. 1, 18-21
St. Joseph the Workman (May 1)	Col. 3, 14-15; 17, 23-24	Matt. 13, 54-58

A decorative border of asterisks surrounds the text. The top and bottom borders are horizontal rows of asterisks. The left and right borders are vertical columns of asterisks. The asterisks are arranged in a repeating pattern, with some larger and more prominent than others, creating a frame around the central text.

THE FOLLOWING OF THE SAINTS

Miniature Lives of the Saints for daily meditation

Compiled by HENRY SEBASTIAN BOWDEN of the Oratory

Edited and revised by DONALD ATTWATER

NIHIL OBSTAT

MECHLINIÆ, 23 Januarii 1959.

A. VAN DEN DRIES, can., lib. cens.

IMPRIMATUR

MECHLINIÆ, 23 Januarii 1959.

† L. SUENENS, vic. gen.

Library of Congress Catalog Number : LC 59 - 7524

PREFACE TO THE REVISED EDITION

WRITTEN accounts of the martyrs and other saints have been favourite Christian reading from very early times, and they still are. They can be read for various reasons; but for very many people it is certainly in the hope of "doing oneself good". The saints are presented to us as people to be followed. But each saint is "different", just as each Christian is "different"; and to follow surely means, not so much to imitate particular aspects of a holy man or woman, as to follow their example of faithfulness to the gospel principles of faith, hope and charity that are the same for everybody. For this the lives of the saints are a pattern, an inspiration and an encouragement.

In the preface to his Miniature Lives, Father Henry Sebastian Bowden states that they were originally produced as separate leaflets. These leaflets were designed for the use of the brothers of the Little Oratory in London, who followed a custom of "drawing" a patron saint at the beginning of every month. Father Bowden tells us that this custom was popularized among the brothers of the Oratory by St Philip Neri himself.

The leaflets were collected and published as a book in 1877, Miniature Lives of the Saints for Every Day in the Year (two volumes). It was hoped that in this form they would "serve as daily spiritual reading for those who have no time to read much, for the poor, the young, the sick, the members of schools and confraternities, while persons of every class may be glad to have at hand the lives of the saints in a brief and devotional shape".

This hope was amply fulfilled. Since their first publication over eighty years ago, there has been a regular demand for Father Bowden's little volumes, a demand which has been met by repeated reprintings of the first edition. When, therefore, the publishers decided to reissue so popular a work in one volume, it was decided, with the concurrence of the Father Superior of the London Oratory, that the time had come for a certain revision and re-editing.

A large number of saints have been canonized since 1877. Some dozen of Father Bowden's choice have therefore been left out, and representative saints from among the new canonizations put in their place. The opportunity has been taken to revise the Lives themselves in the light of later historical research, and also sometimes to give more biographical particulars. A few of the Lives have had to be entirely rewritten.

The dates allotted to many saints have been changed, so that in this edition many more saints are found on the days on which they are celebrated, priority being given to the general calendar of the Western church and diocesan calendars of English-speaking countries. It was not possible for every saint to appear on his own feast-day, because often there is more than one on the same date. When a saint has had to be thus displaced, the right date is noted.

Except here and there where other translations have been used for the sake of clarity, biblical quotations have been kept in the Challoner-Douay version used by Father Bowden himself, which is most in accordance with the style of the book.

Many writers contributed to Miniature Lives; yet there is a remarkable uniformity in the way most of the Lives were written and, though Father Bowden's name appears on the original title-page only as editor, most readers probably have assumed that he wrote them all himself, forgetting, or not having read, what he said about this in the preface.

Here there was a special difficulty for a new editor. During the past eighty years a considerable change has come over the writing of saints' lives and their use for devotional and religious purposes. A method and style that appealed to and touched the hearts of the Catholics of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century is now less effective : a generation has grown up that finds much religious writing of that era stilted and old-fashioned; the "flavour of old lavender" that a monk of 1958 finds in it is no longer so acceptable. The present editor, therefore, while endeavouring to keep Father Bowden's religious and devotional spirit and much of his wording, has taken the liberty of trying to recast the book into a form more in consonance with the taste and spirit of his contemporaries.

In the preface to the first edition, Father Bowden expresses his special thanks to, among others, the archbishop of Westminster, who at that time was Cardinal Manning; to Dom Cuthbert Hedley, the famous Benedictine bishop of Newport; to Dr Newman, who two years later was to be made a cardinal; to Father H. I. D. Ryder, one of Newman's "dearest brothers" at the Birmingham Oratory and his successor as superior there; to the Revd Dr J. S. Northcote, a great president of Oscott; to Father T.E. Bridgett, C.S.S.R., an historical writer whose Life of Thomas More is still a standard work; to Father George Porter, S.J., afterwards archbishop of Bombay; to Dom Jerome Vaughan, first conventual prior of Fort Augustus; to Father Bertrand Wilberforce, a very well-known Dominican; to Mother Francis Raphael Drane, O.P., historian and poetess; to Mrs Anne Hope, née Fulton, a friend of Newman, W. G. Ward and J. D. Dalgairns, who wrote a Life of St Philip Neri and other hagiographical works; and to David Lewis, lay canonist and translator of the writings of St Teresa of Avila.

These few names bring vividly to mind a very important period in the history of the Catholic Church in Great Britain. And in that period Father Henry Sebastian Bowden was himself a distinguished figure. He was born in 1836, his father being the younger brother of John Bowden, Newman's great friend of Anglican days. Young Henry followed his father into the Church at the age of sixteen and, after being a cavalry officer for twelve years, he joined the London Oratory, of which his cousins John and Charles were already members; his ordination to the priesthood took place in 1870. He was superior of the London Oratory during 1889-1892 and again in 1903-1907, and died in 1920 at the age of eighty-four. On the lines of his Miniature Lives of the Saints, Father Bowden wrote Mementoes of the English Martyrs and Confessors, a Miniature Life of Mary, for the month of May, and a Miniature Life of St Philip, for his novena and octave. His The Witness of the Saints was written in the first instance as a preface to Butler's "Lives", and later published separately. He published a volume on the Religion of Shakespeare and one of Hospital Addresses, and made several important translations from German. Finally, in his old age, he compiled Crumbs of Comfort, from More's Dialogue against Tribulation.

The present editor must express his gratitude to Father William H. Munster, Superior of the London Oratory, for his biographical notes on Father H. S. Bowden and on Mrs Hope.

D. A.

1

ST FULGENTIUS

IN spite of delicate health, Fulgentius was appointed at an early age to a responsible post in his province of Carthage. This, however, did not satisfy his heart. Collecting taxes proved daily more distasteful, and when he was twenty-two, St Augustine's treatise on the Psalms decided him to be a monk. After six years of peace, his monastery was attacked by Arian Numidians, and Fulgentius himself driven out destitute to the desert. He sought the solitude of Egypt, but finding that country also in religious disorder, he turned his steps to Rome. There the splendours of the court spoke to him only of the glory of the heavenly Jerusalem, and at the first lull in the persecution he re-sought his African cell. Elected bishop of Ruspe in 508, he was summoned to face new dangers, and was shortly after banished by the Arian king, Thrasimund, with other orthodox prelates, to Sardinia. Though the youngest of the exiles, he was the mouthpiece of his brethren. By his books and letters, still extant, he corrected false teaching, and strengthened the Catholics in Africa and Gaul. On Thrasimund's death the bishops returned to their flocks, and Fulgentius, having re-established order in his diocese, retired to an island monastery. After a year's preparation, he died in peace in the year 533.

Patience through Faith

Each year may bring us fresh changes and trials; let us learn from St Fulgentius to receive all that happens as from the hand of God and appointed for our salvation.

“Lord, grant me patience now and forgiveness hereafter.”—St Fulgentius, on his deathbed.

An Arian priest betrayed Fulgentius to the Numidians, and ordered him to be scourged. His hair and beard were plucked out, and he was left naked and bleeding. An Arian bishop was ashamed of this brutality, and offered to punish the priest if the saint would prosecute him. But Fulgentius replied : “A Christian must not seek revenge; God knows how to right His servants’ wrongs. If I were to bring human punishment on that priest I should lose my own reward with God. And it would be a scandal to many little ones that a Catholic and a monk, however unworthy he be, should seek redress from an heretical bishop.”

“For patience is necessary for you, that doing the will of God you may receive the promise.”—Heb. x, 36.

2 ST MACARIUS OF ALEXANDRIA

MACARIUS when a youth left his fruit-stall at Alexandria to pass sixty years in the wilderness, where he had dwelling-places in three adjoining deserts. His life was one long conflict with self. Since sleep at times overpowered him, he kept watch for twenty days and nights : being about to faint he entered his cell and slept, but henceforth slept only at will. A gnat stung him, he killed it. In reparation for this, he remained naked till his body was covered with bites, and he was almost unrecognizable. Once he received a present of grapes, but passed them untouched to a hermit who was toiling in the heat. This one gave them to a third, who handed them to a fourth; thus the grapes went the round of the desert, and returned to Macarius, who thanked God for his brethren's abstinence—but still did not eat them himself. When he visited St Pachomius's monastery at Tabennisi as a stranger, he was recognized through his feats of Lenten fasting. In his old age, thinking nature tamed, Macarius desired to spend five days alone in uninterrupted prayer. On the third day the cell seemed on fire, and Macarius came forth. God permitted this delusion, he said, lest he be ensnared by pride. In old age he was driven into exile, and brutally outraged by Arian heretics. He died about the year 394.

Mortification the Support of Prayer

Prayer is the breath of the soul. But St Macarius teaches us that mind and body must be brought into subjection before the soul is free to pray.

"I am tormenting my tormentor," replied Macarius to one who asked him why he was carrying about a basket of sand in the heat of the day. "Whenever I am lazy and idle I am pestered by desires for travel." When he was quite worn out he returned to his cell.

Macarius seemed to see evil spirits assailing the hermits at prayer. They put their fingers into the mouths of some, and made them yawn. They closed the eyes of others, and sent them to sleep. They put enticing images before many of the brethren, and then mocked those who were caught by them. Only those could overcome these spirits who by constant vigilance repelled them at once. Macarius visited one hermit daily for four months, but never could speak to him, as he was always at prayer; he called him an "angel on earth."

"The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent bear it away."—Matt. xi, 12.

3

ST GENEVIEVE

GENEVIEVE was the daughter of poor people at Nanterre, near Paris. St Germanus of Auxerre saw something so remarkable in her, when he passed by her home, that he urged her to consecrate herself to God, and publicly blessed her in the church. Next day, having tested the firmness of her resolve—for she was but seven years old—he gave her a medal or coin stamped with a cross, and told her not to wear any other ornament. Her life became one of remarkable austerity and prayer, and God shielded her miraculously from harm. One day her mother, vexed at her frequent visits to the church, struck her in the face. That instant, we are told, the woman lost her sight, nor was it restored till she had bathed her eyes in water which her daughter had blessed. Later on Genevieve was denounced as an impostor, but a messenger from St Germanus testified to her innocence. Henceforth the fame of her holiness spread throughout Gaul. During the siege of Paris by the Franks, Genevieve, with only a few followers, brought in corn to the starving citizens; and when Attila and his Huns threatened the city, she promised the people deliverance if they would turn to God and do penance; and her words were fulfilled. Her holy example over many years enlightened and sanctified her land until her death about the year 500.

The Power of Holiness

Genevieve was only a poor peasant girl, but Christ dwelt in her heart. She was anointed with His Spirit and with power; she went about doing good, and God was with her.

“None are holy besides thee, O God, for none are holy but by thee.”—St Augustine.

A pestilence broke out in France in 1129 which in a short time swept off thousands, and daily added to its victims. At length, on November 26, the shrine of St Genevieve was carried in procession through the city of Paris. That same day only three persons died, the rest recovered, and no others were taken ill. This was but the first of a series of testimonies to the power with God that the citizens of Paris attribute to the intercession of their patron saint.

“They all blessed her with one voice, saying: ‘Thou art the glory of Jerusalem, thou art the joy of Israel, thou art the honour of our people. For thou hast done manfully, and thy heart has been strengthened because thou hast loved chastity’.”—Judith xv, 10-11.

4

ST PETER BALSAM

PETER was martyred in Palestine in the last of the Roman persecutions. In baptism he added to his family name Balsam that of Peter, and God allowed him to die, like St Peter and Peter's Master, upon a cross. When brought before the president, he was reminded of the imperial decrees, and told to offer sacrifice. But he was resolved to obey "the true and eternal King", and was proof against the threats and entreaties of his judge. He bade him do what he had to do, and finish his work. Thereupon Peter was fastened to the rack and the judge asked him how he liked the torture. "Set to with the hooks," said the saint, "I will not sacrifice, save to the God for whom I suffer." And in his anguish he cried aloud, "What shall I give to the Lord for all that He hath given to me? I will receive the chalice of salvation and call on the name of the Lord." When his blood poured on the pavement till the crowd was moved to pity and implored him to yield, he answered that his pain was nothing. When sentence was given, that "Peter Balsam, for having refused to obey the order of the invincible emperor, and having obstinately defended the law of a crucified man, be himself nailed to a cross", he replied, "You have given me the desire of my heart." His feast-day is on January 3.

Love of Suffering

Love of suffering for His sake marks the most perfect degree in love of God. Our Lord Himself desired to suffer, because He was on fire with love of God. We must begin with patience and detachment. At last we shall learn to love the sufferings which liken us to the passion of our Redeemer.

"Present tribulation is the way to glory, the way to the kingdom."—St Bernard.

The martyrs were so eager to suffer because they were detached from everything, forgot everything, except the sufferings of their crucified Lord. "What office do you have?" said the judge to Peter Balsam. "I am a Christian," he answered, "I cannot have an office greater than that." "Have you any relations?" "None."

“You lie. I have heard of your relatives.” “Yes; but I have learnt from the Gospel that when we come to confess the name of Christ we must renounce everything else on earth.”

“Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up what is wanting in the sufferings of Christ.”
—Col. i, 24.

5 ST SIMEON THE STYLITE

ONE winter's day about the year 402 snow lay thick around Sisan, a little place in Cilicia. A shepherd boy, who could not take his sheep to pasture because of the weather, went to church instead, and there he listened to the eight Beatitudes, which were read that morning. He asked an old man how these blessing were to be earned, and when he was told, longing for perfection rose within him. He became that wonder of the world, St Simeon Stylites (stylos = pillar). Still only a lad, he went off to a monastery and passed twenty years as monk and hermit. Thus trained in humbleness and cheerful obedience, he resolved to adopt an entirely new way of life. For his remaining thirty-seven years Simeon lived, near Antioch, on a small platform at the top of a high pillar, worshipping God's majesty and twice a day speaking to the people who flocked to see and hear him. The words which God put into his mouth encouraged the faithful, brought sinners to repentance and heathen to baptism, for his discourse was as plain and straightforward as his way of living was strange. Then, one day in the year 459, people below noticed that Simeon had not moved for three whole days; they went up the pillar and found the old man's body bent as if in prayer, but his soul was with God.

Longing for Perfection

Extraordinary as the life of St Simeon appears, it teaches us two plain and practical lessons. First, we must constantly renew an intense desire of perfection within ourselves. Secondly, we must with faithfulness and courage use the means of perfection that God points out to us.

“This is the business of our life : by effort and toil, by prayer and supplication, to advance in God’s grace till we come to that height of perfection in which with clean hearts we may behold Him.”—St Augustine.

Perfection was all in all to St Simeon; the means to it were nothing, except in so far as God chose them for him. The solitaries of Egypt were suspicious of a life so new and so strange, and they sent one of their number to tell Simeon to come down from his pillar and return to the common life. In a moment the saint made ready to do so; but the messenger was satisfied with this proof of Simeon’s sincerity : “Stop there,” he said, “and take courage; your way of life is from God.”

“Blessed are they who hunger and thirst for holiness; they shall have their fill.”—Matt. v, 6.

6

ST DOROTHY

ACCORDING to her story as it has come down to us, St Dorothy was a young woman of Caesarea in Asia Minor, whose parents seem to have been martyred before her in the Diocletian persecution. When the governor Sapricius came to Caesarea he called her before him, and sent this child of martyrs to the home where they were waiting for her. She was offered marriage if she would consent to sacrifice to the gods, or death if she refused. But she replied that Christ was her only bridegroom, and death her desire. She was then put in charge of two women who had fallen away from the faith, in the hope that they might pervert her; but the fire of her own heart rekindled the flame in theirs, and led them back to Christ. When she was put on the rack, Sapricius was astonished at her happy looks, and asked her the cause. "Because", she said, "I have brought back two souls to Christ, and because I shall soon be in Heaven rejoicing with the angels." When she was sentenced to be beheaded, "Blessed be thou," she exclaimed, "Lover of souls, who dost call me to you in Paradise." The feast-day of St Dorothy is on February 6.

Desire for Heaven

If we are to be safe amid the world's pleasures and happy amid its troubles we have to pray that we may desire all that is good, and to say with St Philip Neri, "Paradise, Paradise!"

"We are not able to comprehend or understand, but we can desire and long for."—St Augustine.

St Dorothy suffered in mid-winter. It is said that on her way to execution one Theophilus, a lawyer and a baiter of Christians, asked her in derision to send him fruit from her Bridegroom's garden. She said she would. At the place of execution she prayed and then gave a napkin to a child, telling him to take it to Theophilus and tell him it was the fulfilment of her promise. In the napkin were three apples and three roses. Theophilus was converted in consequence of this marvel, and himself was put to death for the faith.

“Where thy treasure is, there is thy heart also.”— Matt. vi, 21.

7

ST NICEPHORUS

THERE is a story told that Sapricius, a priest, and Nicephorus, a layman, loved one another like brothers; but then they quarrelled, and could not bear to meet. After some time, Nicephorus entered into himself, and reflected that hatred comes from Satan. Three times he sent friends to intercede for him with Sapricius, but in vain. He went and threw himself at his feet, saying, “Father, forgive me;” but Sapricius would not. Suddenly the persecution of Valerian came on Christians, in the year 260, and Sapricius was led before the Roman magistrate at Antioch. He was cruelly tortured and led out to die. On the way, Nicephorus met him and besought him again. “Martyr of Christ, forgive me,” he said, “He whom you have confessed before many witnesses is waiting to crown you.” Sapricius was silent, and Nicephorus went on entreating, while the executioners mocked him. At last the sword was raised to strike Sapricius, when he turned and said, “Stop! I will sacrifice!” “What are you doing, brother!” Nicephorus exclaimed. “Do not lose the crown your sufferings have earned you.” But Sapricius was obstinate in his apostasy, as he had been obstinate in his hatred. The victory was not for him, but for Nicephorus, who confessed himself a Christian, and received the martyr’s crown. His feast-day is on February 9.

Brotherly Charity

Nicephorus is an example of humility, for he was ready to confess himself in the wrong; and of charity, for he was tireless in his endeavours to reconcile himself with his brother. If we make these virtues ours, Christ will most surely add the third and crowning gift of perseverance.

“He who closes his heart against his brother finds the gates of Heaven closed against himself, for the grace of the divine and life-giving Spirit flies from him.”
—The Acts of St Nicephorus.

When Sapricius was tortured he said, “You have power over my body, but no one has power over my soul except Christ, who created it.” These are true words, and if Sapricius had reflected upon them he would not have fallen away. Christ, who made our souls, not we ourselves, has power over them. He alone can enable us to live and to die well, and this He will not do unless we are ready to love and forgive one another, as He loved and forgave us.

“If any man say, ‘I love God,’ and hates his brother, he is a liar.”—1 John iv, 20.

8

ST ARCADIOUS

THE time and the place at which Arcadius suffered are uncertain, but the story goes that he fled from his home to escape persecution. The heathen searched his house and, unable to find him, seized a relation of his and threw him into prison, because he would not reveal his hiding-place. The news of this reached Arcadius, and he came to take his kinsman's place. He went straight to the governor of the province, refused the pardon offered him on condition of apostasy, and answered threats of death with the words of the Apostle,

“For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.” At the place of his passion he commended himself to God, and then offered his neck to the axe. But the judge had given secret orders to the executioners, and Arcadius was to glorify God by a very different death. He was told to stretch out his hand, and joint after joint the executioners severed his fingers, arms and shoulders. Then throwing him on his back, they cut off his toes, feet, legs and thighs. Thus was he slowly hacked to pieces, limb by limb, till his body lay on the ground a mere trunk. One member only remained to him—his tongue, and with it he thanked God to the last for His mercies, saying to his severed limbs, “Happy members! Now you really belong to God, for you are sacrificed to Him.” His feast-day is on January 12.

Thanksgiving

Learn to thank God for all things, especially for pain and sorrow. You cannot offer any sacrifice so pleasing to Him.

“You say you cannot be silent when stung by pain? I would not have you silent. I wish you to give thanks. It is this which repels Satan and brings you help from God.”—St John Chrysostom.

The judge boasted of the novel death he had contrived for Arcadius; but the martyr found it a new motive for thanksgiving. He kept on repeating : “Lord, teach me your wisdom”; and then added, turning to the crowd, “All that I suffer is nothing. If only you knew the God who strengthens me! I am glad to suffer for Him, whose love cannot grow cold. I shall soon be with Him for ever.” The Christians gathered up his scattered remains, praising Christ, who triumphs in His saints and reigns for evermore.

"In all things give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you all."—1 Thess. v, 18.

9 BD VERONICA OF BINASCO

VERONICA'S parents were peasants of a village near Milan. From her childhood she toiled hard in house and field, and cheerfully did every menial task. Gradually the desire for perfection grew within her; she became deaf to the jokes and songs of her companions, and sometimes when reaping and hoeing would hide her face and weep. Knowing no letters, she used to get up at night and try to teach herself to read; our Lady told her in a vision that other things were necessary, but not this. After three years' patient waiting, she was received as a lay-sister in the Augustinian convent of St Martha at Milan. The community was extremely poor, and Veronica's duty was to beg through the city for their daily food. Three years after receiving the habit, she was afflicted with constant bodily pain, yet would never consent to be relieved of any of her labours or to omit one of her prayers. By exact obedience she became a living copy of the Rule of her house. She sought to the last the most hard and humbling occupations, and received many unusual graces, notably a remarkable gift of tears. She died in 1497, on the day she had foretold, aged fifty-two years. Bd Veronica's feast-day is January 13.

Constant Diligence

When Veronica was urged in sickness to accept some exemption from her duties, her one answer was, "I must work while I can, while I have time." Dare we waste ours?

“How much is time worth?—as much as God is worth. For God is the reward of time well spent.”—St Bernardine of Siena.

Our Lady's lesson to Veronica was that she need know only three “letters”, which would teach her more than books. The first signified purity of intention; the second, abhorrence of murmuring or criticism; the third, daily meditation on the Passion. By the first, she learnt to do her daily duties for no human motive, but for God. By the second, to carry out what she had thus begun by minding her own business, never judging her neighbour, but praying for those who manifestly were in the wrong. By the third, she was enabled to forget her own pains and sorrows in those of her Lord, and to weep over the memory of His wrongs. She saw in successive visions the whole life of Jesus, and many other mysteries. Yet nothing ever interrupted her work, which ended only with death.

“In carefulness not slothful, in spirit fervent, serving the Lord.”—Rom. xii, 11.

10 ST JOHN CALYBITES

JOHN was born in Constantinople of wealthy parents, but when he was still very young he began to long to take up Christ's sweet yoke. One day an abbot, on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, came to his father's house, and John made him swear to call for him on his return, and take him to be one of his monks. So when the abbot returned, John went away with him, secretly, for he feared his mother's grief. After he had served Christ manfully in the monastery for six years, his heart grew sad and he began to pine for home. His superior, seeing him so miserable, let him go, for he knew that, by God's mercy, grace would triumph in the end. And so it was. When half-way home, John changed clothes with a beggar, and so disguised himself that his mother, disgusted at the sight of his rags, drove him from her door. He went to live in a neighbouring hovel (kalybe), spending his time in prayer and good works. After three years the Lord visited him and said, "Your trial is over; I will give you rest after three days." Then John sent for his mother, and showed her a book of the gospels which she had given him in his childhood. Thus at last he was made known to his parents, and died in their arms, c. 450. His feast-day is on January 15.

Putting God First

The calls of kindred must give way before the call of God. St John Calybites so pined for home that he left his monastery for its sake; yet in his hovel, before its gates, he chose God, not it. For God is a "jealous God."

"Peace be with you; like John the Beloved you have forsaken all to follow me."—Words heard by St John Calybites

John as he lay dying made his mother promise to bury him in his rags. But after his death she wrapped his body in an expensive shroud, so that his burial might be worthy of her house. But she was straight-way taken ill, and did not recover till she restored the beggar's dress. God kept His own, and did not suffer him to be buried as any other's than His.

"If any man come to me, and hate not his father and mother and wife and children and brethren and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple."—Luke xiv, 26.

11

ST THEODOSIUS

THEODOSIUS was born in Cappadocia in 423. The example of Abraham urged him to leave his country, and his desire to follow Jesus Christ attracted him to the dedicated life. He placed himself under a hermit, Longinus, who sent him to govern a monastery near Bethlehem. Unable to bring himself to command others, he retired to an isolated cave, where he lived in penance and prayer. Charity, however, forbade him to refuse the charge of some disciples, who, few at first, became in time a large number, and Theodosius built a monastery, with four churches for monks of different nationalities. He became eventually superior of all the religious communities of Palestine, whence his name "Cenobiarch". Theodosius never refused assistance to any in poverty or affliction; on some days the monks laid more than a hundred tables for those in want. In times of famine he forbade alms to be diminished, and miraculously multiplied provisions. He also built three hospitals, in which he lovingly served the sick and aged, while by spiritual reading he maintained himself in perfect recollection. He opposed the Eutychian heresy in Jerusalem, and for this was banished by the emperor. He suffered a long and painful malady, and refused to pray to be cured lest he should seem to be impatient. St Theodosius died at the age of 106, in the year 529.

Self-sacrificing Charity

St Theodosius for the sake of charity sacrificed all he most prized—his home for love of God, and his solitude for love of his neighbour. Can ours be true charity if it costs us little or nothing?

“Always give preference to charity towards your neighbour, unless the love you owe to God should be diminished by it.”—St Nilus.

Theodosius accommodated himself so carefully to the characters of his subjects that his reproofs were loved rather than dreaded. But once, when he was obliged to separate from the others a religious guilty of a grave fault, the monk was arrogant enough to pretend to exclude Theodosius in revenge. Theodosius did not stand on his dignity, but meekly submitted to this false and unjust action. This so touched the heart of his disciple that he submitted at once, and acknowledged his fault.

“Purifying your souls in the obedience of charity, with a brotherly love, from a sincere heart love one another earnestly.”—1 Peter i, 22.

12 ST BENEDICT BISCOP

AT the age of twenty-five, Benedict, a noble Angle, left the court of King Oswy to make a pilgrimage to Rome. He came back full of enthusiasm for the Roman church, and soon made a second journey to Rome, whence he went on to Lérins, and there became a monk. After a third visit to Rome he was for a time in charge of SS. Peter and Paul's monastery at Canterbury, and then returned to his native Northumbria, there to spread Roman usages and the monastic rule. With this end he built two abbeys, one dedicated in honour of St Peter at Wearmouth, and the other of St Paul at Jarrow. He brought from France skilled workmen to construct stone churches in the Roman style, lit with glass windows, which were then unknown in England. John, the head chanter of St Peter's in Rome, taught the monks chant and reading aloud; and Benedict made three more journeys to Rome, to obtain relics and pictures, and books for his monks to study. The pictures in the church were so arranged that the most ignorant might learn from them the truths of salvation and the duty of reforming their lives. St Benedict lived to see monasticism firmly established in the north, and his country conforming in ritual, as in faith, with the Roman See. He died in 690.

Devotedness to the Holy See

It was no mere sentiment, but a deep religious instinct which made the Anglo-Saxon saints strive for conformity, even in unessential matters, with the Roman See. For they saw that there God had fixed the throne of His Vicar, the chief guardian of His truth.

St Bede, himself a novice of St Benedict at Jarrow, relates that the monasteries of St Peter and St Paul were so united in heart and spirit that they were like one monastery in two places; for as in life the body cannot be separated from the head through which it breathes, nor the head from the body by which it lives, so nothing can disturb the concord between two monasteries founded on the brotherly union of the leaders of the Apostles.

When Benedict lay dying, Sigfrid, his coadjutor, also found his end approaching, and had himself carried to Benedict's side that they might select a new abbot. Together they chose St Ceolfrid, because his fidelity to Roman traditions would secure the unity of Wearmouth and Jarrow.

“Built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone... in whom you also are built together into an habitation of God in the Spirit.”—Eph. ii, 20, 22.

13

ST KENTIGERN

IT is to St Kentigern (also called Mungo = darling) that parts of the western district of Scotland owe their first knowledge of the faith. He began his apostleship as a hermit at the place where Glasgow now stands, and is venerated as the first bishop there; his personal holiness and invincible zeal turned a heathen wilderness into a fruitful vineyard of the Lord. It is said that political disturbances drove him into Wales, where some maintain that he founded the monastery at Llanellwy afterwards directed by St Asaph. Later he returned to Glasgow, where his austerity of life and evangelical enthusiasm continued unabated. Several startling miracles were related of him. St Kentigern died, at the age of eighty-five, about the year 603. His feast-day is January 14.

Good Example

By example whatever grace God gives us is increased and multiplied; it attracts to itself whatever is the work of grace in others. Thus God's gifts are made instruments of His service; neither gifts nor graces are given us for ourselves alone.

“Look at the living examples of the saints, who are set as our patterns to encourage us to well-doing.”
—Imitation of Christ.

It is related that St Columba, hearing the fame of Kentigern, came with some of his monks to visit him; and Kentigern with his clergy came out to meet him. As the parties came towards each other they sang hymns on both sides. Then Columba said to his followers, "I see a fiery light like a golden crown from Heaven on the bishop's head." See here how like meets like. If we would live with the saints, we have to strive to be holy ourselves.

"Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven."—Matt. v, 16.

14 ST HILARY OF POITIERS

ST HILARY was a native of Poitiers in Aquitaine. Born and brought up a pagan, it was not till near middle age that he became a Christian, moved thereto mainly by the idea of God presented to him in the Holy Scriptures. He was soon followed by his wife and daughter. He was ordained priest, and about the year 350 was chosen bishop of his native city. The heresy of Arianism, under the protection of the Emperor Constantius, was then at the height of its power, and Hilary found himself called upon to support the orthodox cause in several councils at which Arian bishops formed an overwhelming majority. He was in consequence accused to the emperor, who banished him to Phrygia. He spent his three years of exile in composing his great work on the Trinity. In 359 he attended the Council of Seleucia, and afterwards went to Constantinople; there he so dismayed the heads of the Arian party that they prevailed upon the emperor to let him return to Gaul. Persecution of the Catholics ceased soon after, with the emperor's death. But St Hilary continued to be active on behalf of purity of faith, till his death at Poitiers about the year 368. He is honoured as a doctor of the Church.

Hatred of Heresy

Like St Hilary, we are called to a life-long contest with misbelievers; we shall succeed in proportion as we combine hatred of heresy with love and compassion for its victims.

St Hilary points out that the Church is one, while heresies are many. These all attack the Church, but they also attack one another. And in confuting one another they vindicate the faith of the Church.

Though he was the kindest of men, Hilary in the early days of his conversion would not eat with Jews or heretics or greet them in the street. Later on he gave up such behaviour.

“Beware lest any man cheat you by philosophy and vain deceit, according to the tradition of men, according to the elements of the world, and not according to Christ.”—Col. ii, 8.

15 ST PAUL THE HERMIT

THIS St Paul was born in Egypt, about the year 230, and became an orphan at the age of fifteen; he was well-off and well educated. When persecution of Christians began again in 250, he hid himself in a friend's house; but his heathen brother-in-law denounced him, and abandoning all he had, Paul fled into the desert. His first idea was to return to the world when the persecution was over; but he found delight in prayer and penance and remained the rest of his life in solitude. After many wanderings he found in the depths of the wilderness a small space enclosed by rocks, where a solitary palm-tree grew, with a spring of water at its foot. Here he spent ninety years in work and contemplation. In a dream God revealed his existence to St Antony, who sought him for three days. Seeing a thirsty she-wolf run through an opening in the rocks, Antony followed her to look for water, and found Paul. They knew each other at once, and praised God together. Having passed the night in prayer, at dawn of day Paul said he was soon going to die, and asked to be buried in the cloak given to Antony by St Athanasius. Antony hastened to fetch it, and on his way back saw Paul going to Heaven in glory. He found his dead body kneeling with hands outstretched, and there he buried it. Paul died in his one hundred and thirteenth year.

Trust in God

We shall never repent of having trusted in God, for He cannot fail those who lean on Him; nor shall we ever trust in ourselves without being deceived.

“God continually protects those who put all their trust in Him; and they who do so may rest assured that no harm will happen to them.”—St Vincent de Paul.

Rather than go where his faith was in danger, St Paul lived in the barren desert, trusting that God would supply his wants. And his confidence was rewarded, for in the spot to which Providence led him he found the fruit of the palm tree for food, its leaves for clothing, and the water of the spring for drink. When St Antony visited him, we are told, a raven brought him a loaf, and

Paul said, "See how good God is! For sixty years this bird has brought me half a loaf every day; now you have come, Christ has doubled the provision for His servants."

"Cast thy care upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee."—Ps. liv, 23.

16

ST SATURNINUS

SATURNINUS was sent to preach the faith in Gaul, where other missionaries had already gathered a plentiful harvest. He fixed his episcopal see at Toulouse, and thus became the first Christian bishop of that city. There were but few Christians in the place, but their number grew fast after the coming of the saint. His power was felt by the spirits of evil, who received the worship of the heathen, and the oracles sought at their shrine were no longer given. Saturninus had to pass daily by the temple which was the high place of the heathen worship, on the way to his church from his home. One day a multitude was gathered by an altar, where a bull stood ready for sacrifice. A man in the crowd pointed out Saturninus, who was passing accompanied by a priest and two deacons. The people fell upon him, and would have forced him to idolatry; but the bishop answered: "I know but one God, and to Him I will offer the sacrifice of praise. How can I fear gods who, as you say, are afraid of me?" Thereupon he was tied by the feet to the bull, which was driven furiously down the hill till the bishop's brains were dashed out. His mangled body was taken up and buried by two devout women, in a ditch outside the city walls. The feast of St Saturninus is on November 29.

Trust in the Prayers of the Saints

When beset by temptations we do well to call upon the saints, who reign with Christ. They are stronger than the evil spirits who fight against us. They were powerful during their lives against the Devil and his angels, and they are more powerful now that they have passed from the Church on earth to the Church triumphant.

“He who was strong on earth is yet stronger in Heaven, where he stands before the face of his Lord.”—St Bernard.

The “acts” of his martyrdom witness to the confidence of the faithful in the intercession of Saturninus. For some time, they tell us, his body lay honoured by God alone. The next bishop, fearing to move the relics, built a humble chapel over his grave, and many Christians were buried hard by, desiring to rest near his body. In better times Bishop Exsuperius completed a church for the reception of the relics; but he felt unworthy to attempt the translation, till encouraged to do so by a vision. “And they,” so the acts conclude, “who ask his intercession will feel the power of his protection.”

“To me thy friends, O God, are made exceedingly honourable.”—Ps. cxxxviii, 17.

17 ST ANTONY THE ABBOT

ST ANTONY was born in the year 251, in Upper Egypt. Hearing at Mass the words, “If thou wilt be perfect, go sell what thou hast and give to the poor,” he gave away all his possessions. He then begged an aged hermit to teach him the spiritual life. He also visited various other solitaries, learning in himself the principal virtue of each. To serve God more perfectly, Antony went into the wilderness and shut himself in a ruin, building up the door so that none could enter. Here Satan assaulted him furiously, appearing in various disguises; but Antony's courage never failed, and he overcame all by confidence in God and the sign of the cross. His only food was bread and water, which he never tasted before sunset, and sometimes only once in three or four days. He wore sackcloth and sheepskin, and often knelt in prayer from sunset to sunrise. Many came to him for advice, and after twenty years of solitude he consented to guide them in holiness, thus founding his first monastery. Other colonies of ascetics followed, which Antony visited from time to time; he twice went to Alexandria to encourage the persecuted and combat the Arian heresy. He died peacefully at a very advanced age in 356. St Athanasius, his biographer, says that knowledge of how St Antony lived is in itself a good guide to virtue.

Courage in Temptation

The more violent the assaults of temptation suffered by St Antony, the more firmly did he grasp his weapons, namely, mortification and prayer. We must imitate him in this if we wish to obtain victories like his.

“You know what snares evil spirits lay for us. You have witnessed their fury, and at the same time their weakness. Give yourselves wholly to the love of Jesus Christ. Trust completely in Him, and you will triumph over their malice.”—St Antony.

One night, whilst Antony was in his solitude, temptation was so fierce that he lay exhausted. A friend found him thus and, believing him dead, carried him home. But when Antony came to himself he persuaded his friend to take him back to his solitude. Here, prostrate from weakness, he defied his assailants, saying, "I do not fear you; you cannot separate me from the love of Christ." After more vain assaults, temptations ceased and Christ appeared to Antony in glory.

"Expect the Lord; do manfully, and let thy heart take courage, and wait thou for the Lord."—Ps. xxvi, 14.

18

ST FELIX OF NOLA

A PRIEST of Nola, his native town in Italy, Felix was already gray-haired when thrown into prison in a persecution, which seems to have been that of Decius in the middle of the third century. He was loaded with irons, his feet fixed in the stocks, and the floor spread with broken pottery, to make sleep impossible. One night a bright light filled his cell, and an angel loosed his chains, opened the prison door, and bade him go to the assistance of Maximus his bishop, who had fled to a place of refuge. Felix found the bishop at the point of death. He revived his failing strength, and carried him back to Nola. Soon the persecutors were again on the track of Felix : but, we are told, on one occasion God held their eyes, so that they did not know him; on another, a spider spun its web across a hiding-place which Felix had just entered; on a third, food was supplied to him by a miracle. On the death of Maximus, Felix was chosen in his place. Everything fitted him for the office : the esteem of Maximus, the veneration of the faithful, his prudence, and the miracles by which God had preserved him to His Church. But he humbly declined the office, as he had declined his inheritance, fearing the danger of riches. He died a simple priest, in a little garden which he cultivated for himself and for the poor, about the year 260. His feast-day is January 14.

Distrust of Self

Do not try to advance yourself, and get people's good opinion, under the pretext that you will be able to do more for God. It is when we forget and distrust ourselves that God makes us His instruments. To desire riches and honours is the surest sign that we are not able to use them well.

“This is the highest and most profitable lesson—to know and to despise ourselves. We are all weak; but do not think anyone weaker than yourself.”—Imitation of Christ.

God allowed St Felix to remain in the obscurity which he chose as the safest way to Heaven. But after his death the saint was crowned with the glory and honour he had refused on earth. He was scarcely dead when the faithful came to touch and kiss his body, and for generations they flocked to his tomb outside Nola. More than a century later St Paulinus, bishop of Nola, wrote about him, and attributed every grace he had received to the intercession of St Felix.

“To whom shall I have respect but to him that is poor and little and of a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at my words.”—Isa. lxvi, 2.

19

ST WULFSTAN

WULFSTAN, the last Anglo-Saxon saint, gave an example of perfection in various states of life. His youth was passed in innocence. Once, when flushed with victory in sport, being inclined to succumb to a temptation he had before successfully resisted, he fled into a thicket to spend the night in prayer, and was never again subject to that temptation. He became a priest, and afterwards a monk at Worcester, where he spent twenty-five years of holy life. Named bishop of Worcester by St Edward the Confessor, Wulfstan frequently visited his flock, ministering to the wants of all and defending them against the Bristol slave-traders. He fasted three days in every week, and never failed by night or day to say office in church at the appointed hours, even while travelling, although for this he often walked far in snow and rain. He saw his country laid low under the Norman invasion, which he called the scourge of God for its sins. He did not fear the conquerors, but continued his holy life and gained their respect at last. He refused to adopt the splendid dress of Norman prelates, and would himself cut off the flowing locks of young dandies. Wulfstan has been called "a faultless character", a model monk and bishop of his time. He died, in his eighty-seventh year, in 1095.

Perfection in Daily Duties

Few are called to serve God by great actions, but all are bound to follow St Wulfstan's example by striving after perfection in the ordinary actions of their daily life.

"A Christian must desire perfection, or he sins."—St Jerome.

Summoned by the Norman Archbishop Lanfranc to resign his see, as being too simple to govern it, Wulfstan refused : he had, he declared, received his pastoral staff from King Edward by authority of the Apostolic See, and to him alone would he resign it. Thereupon, it is said, he went up to the king's tomb and placed his staff upon it, saying, "Take this, my master, and deliver it to whom you will." The staff remained imbedded in the stone; no force would dislodge it. So Lanfranc reinstated him in his see, and bade him ask his holy master King Edward to restore him the staff. Wulfstan did so, and the staff yielded to his hand at once; and all praised God who is wonderful in His saints.

"Be you therefore perfect, as your heavenly Father also is perfect."—Matt. v, 48.

20

ST SEBASTIAN

ST SEBASTIAN was said to be an officer in the Roman army, esteemed even by the heathen as a good soldier; he is honoured by the Church as a champion of Jesus Christ. St Ambrose and St Charles Borromeo were specially devout to him; and it was while he watched and prayed in the catacomb of St Sebastian at Rome that St Philip Neri received miraculously the gifts of the Holy Ghost. According to his legend, Sebastian came from Gaul to Rome about the year 284, and entered the lists with the powers of evil. He found the twin brothers Marcus and Marcellinus in prison for the faith, and when they were near yielding to the entreaties of their relatives, encouraged them to die for Christ. God confirmed his words by miracle : light shone round him while he spoke; he cured the sick by his prayers; and in this divine strength he led many to the faith, and among them the prefect of Rome, with his son Tiburtius. Sebastian eventually was led before Diocletian, and at the emperor's command pierced with arrows and left for dead. But he recovered, and of his own accord went before the emperor and urged him to stop the persecution of the Church. Again sentenced, he was beaten to death with clubs, and so crowned his labours by a double martyrdom. Whatever the circumstances, St Sebastian was buried on the Appian Way, where the basilica of his name now stands.

Fervour in the Faith

Your ordinary occupations will give you opportunities of labouring for the faith. Ask help from the prayers of St Sebastian. He was not a priest or a religious, but a soldier.

“The Devil strains every nerve to secure the souls which belong to Christ. We should not grudge our toil in wresting them from the tyrant, and giving them back to God.”—Words attributed to St Sebastian.

It was in a contest of fervour and charity that Sebastian found the occasion of martyrdom. The prefect of Rome after his conversion retired to his estate in Campania, and took some of his fellow converts with him to this place of safety. It was a question whether Polycarp the priest or Sebastian should accompany the neophytes. Each was eager to stay and face the danger at Rome, and Pope Caius decided that the Roman church could not spare Sebastian's services. He continued to labour at the post of danger till he was betrayed to death.

“That the trial of your faith (much more precious than gold which is tried in the fire) may be found unto praise and glory and honour at the appearing of Jesus Christ.”—1 Peter i, 7.

21

ST AGNES

ST AGNES was still very young when, in revenge for refusing an offer of marriage, she was denounced as a Christian at Rome, led to the altar of Minerva, and commanded to obey the persecuting laws of Diocletian by offering incense. She raised her hands to Christ, and made the sign of the life-giving cross. She did not shrink when she was bound hand and foot, though the fetters slipped from her young hands, and the heathen who stood around were moved to tears. The bonds were not needed for her, and she went to the place of torture like a bride on her wedding-day. When the judge saw that physical pain had no terrors for her, he ordered her to be exposed in a brothel, yet even this did not daunt her. “Christ,” she said, “will guard His own.” So it was; for the frequenters of the place were touched by her innocence and did not molest her. To flattery and offers of marriage she answered, “Christ is my bridegroom : He chose me first, and His I will be.” So sentence of death was passed. For a moment she stood erect in prayer, and then bowed her neck to the sword. Agnes was buried beside the Nomentan road, where a catacomb bears her name.

Safeguarding Innocence

Her innocence endeared Agnes to Christ, as it has endeared her to His Church ever since. Even as penitents, we may imitate this innocence of hers in our own degree. If we guard our senses strictly, Christ, when He sees that we keep our hearts pure for love of Him, will renew our youth and give us back the years we have wasted.

“He set a seal upon my face, that I might admit no love but His. He pledged my troth with the ring of faith, and adorned me with a necklace of beauty. Having loved Him, I am chaste; having touched Him, I am pure; having received Him, I am maiden.”—Responsory of St Agnes’s office.

The wonders with which the enthusiasm of later ages adorned the lives of the early martyrs add nothing to their glory in Heaven. It was their faithfulness, their goodness, their correspondence with God’s grace, that earned them their crowns.

“Turn away mine eyes, that they may not behold vanity.”—Ps. cxviii, 37.

22 ST VINCENT OF SARAGOSSA

VINCENT was deacon of the church at Saragossa. St Valerius, the bishop, had an impediment in his speech; so Vincent preached in his stead, and answered in his name when both were brought before Dacian the governor, during the persecution of Diocletian. When the bishop was sent into banishment, Vincent remained to suffer and to die. He was stretched on the rack, and, when almost torn asunder, Dacian asked him in mockery “how he fared now.” Vincent answered, that he had ever prayed to be as he was then. Thereupon his flesh was torn with hooks; he was laid upon a frame of red-hot iron spikes; salt was rubbed into his wounds : and amid all this he kept his heart raised to Heaven, and remained unmoved. He was then left in a dungeon, with his feet in the stocks; but the light of Christ illumined the darkness, and assured Vincent that he was near his triumph. The faithful were allowed to come and dress his injuries, and they carried away as relics cloths dipped in his blood. St Vincent died in prison; it was about the year 304, in the city of Valencia.

Trust in Christ

You wish to be at peace amidst suffering and temptation. Then make it your principal endeavour to grow in habits of prayer and in union with Christ. Have confidence in Him. He will make you victorious over your spiritual enemies and over yourself. He will enlighten your darkness and sweeten your sufferings, and in your solitude and desolation He will draw nigh to you.

“Remember how the Lord Christ admonishes His disciples in the Gospel. Remember how the King of martyrs arms His soldiers and points out the foe, ministers help and promises reward. He told His disciples they would have tribulation in this world. Then He added, to console them in their fear, “Have confidence, I have overcome the world.”—St Augustine.

Even the dead bodies of the saints are precious in the sight of God, and the hand of iniquity cannot touch them. Several stories were told of the remarkable safeguarding of St Vincent's relics and veneration of him was soon widespread. At Milan he is named in the canon of the Mass.

“Have confidence, I have overcome the world.”—John xvi, 33.

23 ST RAYMUND OF PEÑAFORT

BORN in 1175, of a Spanish noble family, Raymund at the age of twenty already taught philosophy at Barcelona with success. Ten years later his abilities won him the degree of doctor in the University of Bologna, and he was made the bishop's archdeacon. In middle life he renounced all his honours and joined the Order of Preachers. It is maintained by some that a vision of the Mother of Mercy instructed him to co-operate with his penitent St Peter Nolasco, and with King James of Aragon, in founding the Order of Our Lady of Ransom for the redemption of captives; and that he began this great work by preaching a crusade against the Moors, and rousing to penance the Christians enslaved in soul and body by them. In 1230 Pope Gregory IX summoned him to Rome, made him his confessor, and directed him to compile a collection of the scattered canonical decisions of popes and councils. Having refused the archbishopric of Tarragona, Raymund found himself in 1238 chosen master general of his order, a post he again succeeded in resigning, two years later, on the score of advanced age. His first act when free was to resume his labours among the Moors in Spain, and it was he who induced St Thomas Aquinas to write his famous work called Against the Gentiles. St Raymund lived to be a hundred years old.

Captivity to Sin

Ask St Raymund's prayers to protect you from that fearful servitude, worse than any bodily slavery, which even one sinful habit tends to form.

“An uncurbed will led to lust, and lust served became habit, and habit not resisted became necessity. By which links joined together (whence I called it a chain) a hard bondage held me enthralled.”—St Augustine.

King James of Aragon, a man of great qualities but held in bondage by a ruling passion, was bidden by the saint to put away the cause of his sin. On his delay, Raymund asked for leave to depart from Majorca, since he could not live with sin. The king refused, and forbade anyone to help him go, on pain of death. Nevertheless St Raymund got back to Barcelona, it was said in circumstances that were extremely remarkable. We are told, furthermore, that the king, overcome by the miracle, became a sincere penitent, and the disciple of the saint till his death.

“For by whom a man is overcome, of the same also is he the slave.”—2 Peter ii, 19.

24

ST TIMOTHY

TIMOTHY was a convert of St Paul, probably born at Lystra in Asia Minor. His mother was a Jewess, his father a pagan, and though Timothy had read the Scriptures from his childhood he had not been circumcised as a Jew. On the arrival of St Paul at Lystra, young Timothy, with his mother and grandmother, were converted to Christ. Seven years later, when the Apostle again visited the country, the boy had grown into manhood, and holy men were prophesying great things of him. St Paul at once saw his fitness for the work of an evangelist. Timothy was forthwith ordained, and from that time became the constant and much-beloved fellow-worker of the Apostle. In company with Paul he visited the cities of Asia Minor and Greece, at one time hastening on in front as a trusted messenger, at another lingering behind to confirm the faith of some recently founded church. Finally, he was made the first bishop at Ephesus; and here he received the two Epistles which bear his name, the first written from Macedonia and the second from Rome, in which St Paul from his prison gives vent to his longing desire to see his "dearly beloved son," if possible once more before his death. St Timothy himself is believed to have been martyred, about the year 97.

Spiritual Reading

This was Timothy's great grace. As a child he delighted in reading the sacred books, and to his last hour he would remember the words of his spiritual father, "Attend to your reading."

"Those who live 'in the world' should persevere in coming to church to hear sermons, and should remember to read spiritual books, especially the lives of the saints."—St Philip Neri.

St Paul is writing to Timothy, a faithful and well-tried servant of God, a bishop now getting on in years. Yet he addresses him as a child, and seems most anxious about his perseverance in faith and godliness. The letters abound in minute personal instructions. It is remarkable what stress the Apostle lays on the avoiding of idle talk and on application to holy reading. These are his chief topics. Over and over again he exhorts his "beloved son Timothy" to avoid tattlers and busy-bodies, to give no heed to empty chatter and knowledge falsely so called; but to hold to sound doctrine, be a good example in everything, and carry out his duties as a bishop.

“Attend unto reading, to exhortation, and to teaching.”—I Tim. iv, 13.

25

ST PAULA

ST PAULA was a Roman matron of high rank. She led a holy life, and had the deepest affection for her family. She was deprived of her husband when she was only thirty-two years of age, and her grief was as deep as her love had been, until the widow St Marcella showed her the divine purpose in her regard. She then generously resolved to be all for God, and began a life of retirement, penance and almsgiving. After five years of widowhood Paula determined to leave her family and serve God under a rule. She bade farewell to her children, except her daughter St Eustochium who accompanied her, and sailed to the Holy Land, to make her home at the spot consecrated by the birth of her Lord. At Jerusalem she found a mansion prepared for her reception, but chose instead a humble cottage. She built a hostel for pilgrims near the holy city, a house for St Jerome and his monks, and another at Bethlehem for maidens and widows, of which she took charge, making herself the servant of all. Their rule of life was extremely austere, and St Paula's discipline strict. During her last illness she constantly repeated the psalms which express desire for the heavenly Jerusalem, and died in peace, in the fifty-seventh year of her age, in 404. Her feast-day is January 26.

Devotion to the Sacred Childhood

If we cannot like St Paula make our home in Bethlehem, we can invite the divine Child into our hearts, and by meekness of spirit, mortification and charity prepare Him a dwelling-place such as He loves.

“He who does not contemplate my littleness upon earth will not behold my greatness in Heaven.”—Words heard by Bd Angela of Foligno.

St Paula's love for the Child Jesus was stronger than that she bore to her own son, whose tears were unable to weaken her resolve to live and die at Bethlehem. When she entered the holy grotto, St Jerome tells us, she beheld with the eyes of faith the newborn Saviour lying in the manger, worshipped by the Wise Men; and with tears of joy she exclaimed, “I salute you, Bethlehem, the ‘house of bread’ wherein was born that living Bread who came down from Heaven.”

“For a Child is born to us, and a Son is given to us, and the government is upon his shoulder.”—Isa. ix, 6.

26

ST POLYCARP

ST POLYCARP, bishop of Smyrna, was a disciple of St John the Evangelist. About the year 166 persecution broke out in Smyrna. When Polycarp heard that his pursuers were at the door, he said, “The will of God be done”; he gave them a meal and begged to be left alone for a little time, which he spent in prayer for the whole Church throughout the world. He was brought to Smyrna early the next day, and as he entered the stadium a voice was heard from heaven, “Polycarp, be strong.” When the proconsul besought him to curse Christ and go free, Polycarp answered, “Eighty-six years I have served Him, and He never did me wrong; how can I blaspheme my King and Saviour?” When threatened with fire, Polycarp told the proconsul that his fire lasted but a little, while the fire prepared for the wicked lasted for ever. At the stake he thanked God aloud for letting him drink of Christ's chalice. The fire was lighted, but it did him no hurt; so he was stabbed to the heart, and his dead body was burnt. "Then," say the writers of the narrative, "we took up the bones, more precious than the richest jewels or gold, and put them in a fitting place, at which may God grant us to assemble with joy to celebrate the birthday of the martyr to his life in Heaven!"

Zeal for True Faith

If we love Jesus Christ we shall love the Church and hate heresy, which rends His mystical Body and destroys the souls for which He died. Like St Polycarp, we shall maintain our constancy in the faith by love of Jesus, who is its author and its finisher.

"Be firm and immovable in the faith. Love the brethren. Be affectionate to one another, being bound together in the truth."—St Polycarp.

When the false teacher Marcion met St Polycarp at Rome, he asked the aged bishop if he knew him. "Yes," Polycarp answered, "I know you for the firstborn of Satan." These were the words of a man who was most loving and charitable, and noted for his compassion to sinners. He had drunk deep of the spirit of St John, that beloved master whose words were ever in his mouth, who fled the company of those who taught heresy. They hated false teaching because they loved God and man so much.

"Every spirit that severs Jesus is not of God."—
1 John iv, 3.

27 ST JOHN CHRYSOSTOM

JOHN CHRYSOSTOM was born at Antioch about the year 347, and when he was twenty-three he retired for six years to a neighbouring mountain. Having thus acquired the art of Christian quietness he returned to Antioch, and there laboured as priest until he was ordained bishop of Constantinople in 398. The effect of his sermons was everywhere marvellous. He was very urgent that his people should join together regularly at the Holy Sacrifice, and it is said that, in order to remove all excuse, he abbreviated the long liturgy until then in use. Beloved as he was in Constantinople, his denunciations of vice made him numerous enemies. In 403 they brought about his banishment; although he was almost immediately recalled, it was not more than a reprieve. In 404 he was exiled to Cucusus in the mountains of Armenia, where he was kept for over two years. Then it was decided to confine him in a more remote place, on the Black Sea, and he was hurried off on a long, rough journey. He was exposed to every hardship, heat, wet and semi-starvation, but nothing could overcome his cheerfulness and his consideration for others. On the way John was taken ill, and he was warned that his end was nigh. Thereupon, exchanging his travelstained clothes for white garments, he received Viaticum, and, with the words "Glory be to God for all things", he passed to Christ, on Holy Cross day, 407.

Assisting at Mass

We should try to understand that the most productive work in the whole day, both for time and eternity, is that involved in assisting at Mass. St John Chrysostom was so keenly conscious of this that he allowed no consideration of venerable usage to interfere with the ease of doing it.

“At the Holy Sacrifice the angels present, not olive-branches, but the Lord’s own body. They appeal to Him on mankind’s behalf, saying as it were, ‘We are suppliants for those whom you have loved even to death; we pray for those for whom you shed your blood; we entreat for those for whom you sacrificed this very body.’ Let us remember this, and eagerly use that precious time of worship, that we may find mercy and grace for help in need.”—St John Chrysostom.

To those who objected that they could pray quite well at home, Chrysostom replied that of course they could. But, he went on, not so well as in church in company with your fellow Christians; there the worshippers’ voice goes up with one accord, the clergy presiding and joining the weaker with the stronger supplications into one great prayer to Heaven.

“From the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the gentiles; and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation.”—Mal. i, 11.

28

ST PETER NOLASCO

ST PETER, of the noble family of Nolasco, was born in Languedoc about 1189. At the age of twenty-five he was strongly urged to marry; but his heart from childhood had been given to the poor and suffering, and after a night spent in prayer he took a vow of chastity and dedicated himself and his wealth to God. It was the time when the Moors were masters of much of Spain and the sight of Christian slaves groaning under the tyranny of the Moors filled Peter with indignation : he longed to set them free. Thereupon, according to Mercedarian tradition, the Blessed Virgin appeared on the same night to Peter, to St Raymund of Peñafort, his confessor, and to King James of Aragon and bade them go ahead with a scheme they had devised. After great opposition, the Mercedarian Order for the redemption of captives was established, and Peter was made the first master general, and one of the first two ransomers. For twenty-five years he toiled for the afflicted slaves, releasing them from physical bondage and from sin, and sometimes by the example of his charity converting their Moslem masters. Worn out by his labours, Peter died on Christmas day 1256.

Zeal for the Salvation of Others

St Peter and his knights were laymen, yet they considered the salvation of their neighbour entrusted to them. We can each of us, by advice, by prayer, but above all by good example, assist the salvation of our brethren, and thus help on our own.

“Behold eternal treasures which never fail.”—St Peter, at the sight of slaves.

We are told that St Peter at Algiers guaranteed a large ransom for some captives, and wrote to Spain for the sum. The prisoners, however, contrived meanwhile to escape. On this, Peter was taken up, scourged as a thief, and put on board a vessel with orders to bring back from Spain the money promised. The Moorish crew had secret instructions to scuttle Peter's ship, and save themselves on board the convoy vessel. They did so, and left Peter without oar or sail in a sinking ship. But his trust was in God, and he was carried safely into the harbour of Valencia.

“I, the Lord, have called thee... that thou mightest... bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house.”—Isa. xlii, 6-7.

29 ST FRANCIS DE SALES

FRANCIS was born of noble parents near Annecy in 1567, and studied with brilliant success at Paris and Padua. On his return from Italy he gave up the career which his father had marked out for him in the service of the state, and became a priest. When the duke of Savoy resolved to restore the Church in the Chablais, Francis offered himself for the work, and set out on foot with one companion, his cousin Canon Louis de Sales. It was a work of toil, privation and danger; every door and every heart were closed against him; he was rejected with insult and threatened with death. But nothing could daunt or resist him : soon his efforts began to tell, and very many Calvinists were converted. Francis then had to become coadjutor bishop of Geneva, and succeeded to the see in 1602. He was universal in his care, and his gentleness and sweetness won all hearts. Together with St Jane Frances de Chantal he founded at Annecy the Order of the Visitation, which soon spread over Europe. Though poor, he refused other benefices and dignities, and even the great see of Paris. His numerous writings are at once profound and simple, marked by a wide sympathy and understanding. He died at Lyons in 1662, and was declared a doctor of the Church in 1877.

Gentleness

You will catch more flies, St Francis used to say, with a spoonful of honey than which a hundred barrels of vinegar.

“Were there anything better on earth than gentleness, Jesus Christ would have taught it us; and yet He has given us only two lessons to learn of Him—to be meek and humble of heart.”—St Francis de Sales.

At times the gentleness with which Francis treated heretics and sinners almost scandalized his friends. One of them said to him, “Francis de Sales will go to Paradise, of course; but I am not so sure about the Bishop of Geneva : I am almost afraid his gentleness will play him a shrewd turn.” “Well,” replied the saint, “I would rather account to God for too great gentleness than for too great severity. Is not God all love? God the Father is the Father of mercy; God the Son is a lamb; God the Holy Ghost is a dove, that is, gentleness itself. And are you wiser than God?”

“Well-ordered words are as a honeycomb, sweet to the soul and health to the bones.”—Prov. xvi, 24.

30 BD SEBASTIAN VALFRE

SEBASTIAN was born of poor parents at Verduno in Piedmont in 1629. He persevered through many and great obstacles in studying for the priesthood; and in 1651, being then deacon, was admitted into the Oratory of Turin, at that time struggling into existence. Of this Oratory Sebastian was co-founder, and there for more than sixty years he worked for God and for man, with a zeal, patience, prudence and charity which made men call him a second St Philip, the St Philip of Turin. God bestowed on him many gifts, natural and supernatural, and gave his labours great success. He changed the face of the city, protected it in war with his counsels and his prayers, and guarded it from the assaults of heresy. In his unresting labours he maintained an abiding union of soul with God, and was preserved amidst all honours by his humility and perfect detachment, from the world and from self. He refused the archbishopric of Turin, withdrew himself as far as possible from all positions of dignity and influence, and strove in every way to lessen the universal veneration in which he was held. His charity was inexhaustible, and his intense love for people softened the hardest hearts. "The slow fever," as he called his life in the Oratory, was closed by a most holy death in 1710.

Faithful Service

"Do you know," asked Bd Sebastian, "what is meant by our being servants of God? It means that we are bound to be concerned for God's 'interests' more than our own : extending His supreme dominion over us to all our actions, inward and outward; to our health, our life, our death; to our reputation and credit; to our talents, riches and goods."

"Far, far from us, dear fathers and brothers, be the foul stain of being called unfaithful servants."—Bd Sebastian Valfrè.

Two fathers of the Oratory of Fossano were grievously tempted against their vocation and, having in vain sought help from experienced people, they decided to leave the congregation. Before doing so, however, they resolved to consult Father Valfre at Turin. On their arrival there they found that he was preaching, and entered the church unseen by him. Suddenly he broke off his sermon to exclaim, "Manete in vocatione in qua vocati estis—Remain in the vocation to which you are called"—and went on most fervently to expound this text. The fathers received his words as a warning from God, and by the saint's advice returned to their congregation, where they persevered faithfully till death.

"Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of life."—Apoc. ii, 10.

31

ST JOHN BOSCO

LIKE many another saint, John Bosco was the child of a peasant farmer; he was born in Piedmont in 1815. From early years, enlightened from above, he recognized that he was called to work among boys. After he had become a priest, he started a boys' club and night-school in Turin, where he had the help of his widowed mother. Miraculous happenings were soon reported of him. He opened schools for the training of apprentices, and in 1854 laid the foundation of the Salesian Congregation of priests and brothers to carry on his work. This grew rapidly, and Don Bosco, with St Mary Mazzarello, then founded the Daughters of Our Lady Help of Christians for similar work among girls, and also an association of lay helpers. He was in great request as a preacher, and was responsible for the building of several big churches : when he went abroad to collect for these he was acclaimed as a saint and wonderworker. Don Bosco's friend and adviser, Joseph Cafasso, has also been canonized, as has one of his boy pupils, Dominic Savio : thus does one saint encourage others. Before he died, Don Bosco's congregations had spread from Europe to South America, and they now run schools and training establishments of all kinds for boys and girls throughout the world. The founder wore himself out with work, but he lived to be over seventy, dying in 1888. "In his life", declared Pope Pius XI, "the supernatural almost became natural and the extraordinary ordinary."

Love for Children

Christ calls us imperatively to love and care for children, other people's as well as our own. Love may call for strictness towards them, but that strictness must always be kind and never rough.

"Anything that a boy regards as a punishment may be used as such. A word of praise to one who deserves it, a word of rebuke to one who has forgotten himself, may often be a real reward or a real punishment."—
St John Bosco

Certain dreams or visions marked critical moments in St John Bosco's life. In the first of these he was trying rather roughly to pacify a crowd of unruly children, when our Lord appeared and told him that he must go gently and lead them if he wanted to win them. Henceforth love and gentleness marked his dealings with his charges, and helped to form his ideas about punishment. His methods were to foster a sense of personal responsibility, to get rid of occasions of disobedience, to be appreciative of effort and always to be friendly. But he was also acutely aware of the harm done by misdirected kindness, about which he used to warn parents. Nobody can do anything successfully with children who does not have a liking for them; but the love must also be seen.

“Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God.”—Mark 10, 14.

1 ST IGNATIUS OF ANTIOCH

ST IGNATIUS, bishop of Antioch, was a disciple of St John the Evangelist, but little is known about his earlier life. There is a story that in the year 107 Trajan came to Antioch, and forced the Christians to choose between apostasy and death. "Who are you, wicked one," said the emperor when Ignatius was brought before him "who disobeys our orders?" "Do not call him wicked," Ignatius answered, "who bears God within him." When the emperor questioned him about his meaning, Ignatius explained that he bore in his heart Christ crucified for his sake. Thereupon the emperor condemned him to be torn to pieces by wild beasts at Rome. Ignatius thanked God, who had so honoured him, "binding him in the chains of Paul, His apostle." What is certain is that Ignatius was taken to Rome, guarded by soldiers, and with no fear except of losing the martyr's crown. He was devoured by lions in the Roman amphitheatre. They left nothing of his body except a few bones, as he had wished—his words are quoted in the communion-verse of the proper of his Mass today. St Ignatius's few letters that have survived are among the most precious documents of early Christianity.

Oneness with Christ

Ask St Ignatius's prayers to obtain for you the grace of profiting by all you have to suffer, and rejoicing in it as a means of likeness to your crucified Redeemer.

"I write to you while I am still alive, but longing for death. My Love has been crucified, and there is no desire of earthly things in me."—St Ignatius.

On his way to Rome St Ignatius wrote seven letters to different churches, which breathe the same desire for union with Christ. He exhorts the faithful to union with the Church, through which we are members of Christ. He speaks of the "Bread of God, which is the flesh of Jesus Christ..., and for drink I desire His blood, which is incorruptible love." He welcomes death, that he may be offered as a libation to God, and rise to Him. "Pray that I may have strength, outwardly and inwardly, so that I may be a man of resolution, and not simply of words. Thus I shall not only be called a Christian, but shall actually be one."

"I desire to be dissolved and to be with Christ."—Phil. i, 23.

2 ST BRIGID OF KILDARE

BRIGID was born at Faughart, near Dundalk, a few years after St Patrick had arrived on his mission to Ireland. The reverence in which she was held is shown by the many stories of wonders that became attached to her name. One day, after milking the cows, she gave the contents of her pail to some poor persons who were passing, and then, fearing her mother's anger, prayed God to make good the loss. On reaching home Brigid's pail was found to be fuller than those of the other maidens. From her childhood she gave everything she could lay hands on to the poor; and her father, who found his goods thus disposed of, determined to get her married without delay. Her beauty found her many suitors, but Christ was her only love, and she prayed to be always His. Her desire was granted, for her face became deformed, and she was let alone. Yet when, prostrate before the altar, Brigid consecrated herself to God, the deformity vanished; her face shone anew with a beauty that brought to men's minds the beauty of the Mother of God. She founded the first Irish nunnery, at Kildare, and died about the year 525. Her feast-day is kept on February 1.

Mary our Pattern

We all have to seek to resemble the mother of Jesus in purity of heart. This grace St Brigid's prayers have obtained in a wonderful degree for the daughters of her native land, and she will never fail to ask it of God for all those who turn to her.

"If you love Mary and wish to please her, make her your model."—St Bernard.

At a synod held near Kildare, during the lifetime of the saint, says an old legend, one of the fathers declared that he had seen a vision, and that the Blessed Virgin would on the morrow appear among them. Next day Brigid arrived with her companions, and the father immediately exclaimed, "There is the holy Mary whom I saw in my dream." Brigid accordingly came to be called "The Mary of the Gael," that is, of the Irish; for so pure was she in spirit, so holy in every action, so modest, so gentle, so filled with mercy and compassion, that she was looked on as a living image in soul and body of Mary the Mother of God.

“He that hearkeneth to me shall not be confounded, and they that work by me shall not sin.”—Ecclus. xxiv, 30.

3

ST WERBURGA

ST WERBURGA was born of royal parents at Stone in Staffordshire, and her mother, Queen Ermenilda, was also revered as a saint. But Werburga was the humblest, the most obedient and the most given to prayer of all her family. While she was still young her father insisted on her marriage with a powerful but infamous noble. Werburga, however, had made a vow of chastity, and firmly resisted. At length, her suitor dying, the king's heart was softened, and he himself assisted at his daughter's clothing at the convent of Ely, of which her great aunt, St Etheldreda, was abbess. Werburga's life in religion was so holy and exact that after a few years she was entrusted by her uncle, King Ethelred, with the supervision of all the nunneries of Mercia. She brought them to a state of perfect observance, and founded several new ones; but in the midst of all her cares her life was still hidden with Christ in God. St Werburga made a blessed end about the year 700. Her body eventually rested in Chester cathedral, where her shrine was a place of pilgrimage for centuries.

Regularity in Prayer

Men do not go about their business at haphazard or by fits and starts. Let us be equally punctual and orderly in the service of God, not casting about for new things but perfecting our ordinary devotions. If we persevere in these, Paradise is ours.

“The divine wisdom is full of order, and imposes its order on all things. And the orderly wisdom of God wants prayer to be offered Him at the hour corresponding to the prayer.”—Bd Angela of Foligno.

We see order in all God’s works; it is sin which makes it so wearisome in our spiritual life. St Werburga, we are told, assisted every day, from childhood, at the full Office of the Church. The self-sacrifice which this regular worship cost was rewarded by her call to religion; whilst as a nun her fidelity to the hours of prayer was the secret of her holiness, and of her influence with others.

“Seven times a day have I given praise to thee for the judgments of thy justice.”—Ps. cxviii, 164.

4

ST ANDREW CORSINI

ST ANDREW, who belonged to one of the noblest families in Florence, in his youth fell into every kind of sin, so that his mother never ceased to implore God’s mercy on his soul. One day, when he had shown her unusual insolence, she reproached him with the sorrow he had caused her, and told him how she had longed for his birth, and had vowed him, when in her womb, to God and our Lady. Her words touched Andrew's heart. He went to the Carmelite church, and, kneeling before the image of her to whom he had been consecrated so long before, obtained through her intercession the grace to break with the world and sin, and to enter the Order of Mount Carmel there and then. There followed dark times of inward strife and evil memories; but after heroic perseverance he became prior of his convent and then bishop of Fiesole. Although thus accepted by God, Andrew could never forget the years he had wasted in sin : every day he recited the penitential psalms and took the discipline; every night he lay on a hard bed of faggots. But if he was unsparing to himself he was all love for sinners, and moved the hardest hearts. In a time of turbulence the peace in his own soul softened the most violent, and enabled him to reconcile inveterate feuds. He died in 1373, greatly mourned by his flock.

True Repentance

St Andrew Corsini is an example of a true penitent, one who trusts firmly in God's forgiveness but never forgives himself.

"Too late have I loved you, O Beauty so old and so new, too late have I loved you! You were within, and I was elsewhere; you were with me, but I was not with you. I was running after the things that you have made; those things which have no being apart from you kept me from you. You called to me, and my deafness was pierced; you shone on me, and my blindness was dispelled. I have tasted you, and I hunger for you; you have touched me, and I burn for your embrace."—St Augustine.

Before Andrew was born his mother dreamt that she brought forth a wolf, and that it ran into a church and was there turned into a lamb. Thus did God provide consolation for the mother and conversion for the son. For it was hearing this dream which moved Andrew again to enter a church and seek help in prayer; sorrow for sin wrought the change and turned the wolf into a lamb.

“For the sorrow that is according to God worketh penance, steadfast unto salvation; but the sorrow of the world worketh death.”—2 Cor. vii, 10.

5

ST AGATHA

ST AGATHA was a maiden martyr at Catania in Sicily in the early centuries of Christianity, and her praises have been sung by the poet St Venantius Fortunatus and others. But nothing is certainly known about the circumstances of her martyrdom, for the story told of her is a composition of later ages. According to it, a Roman official named Quintian made overtures to her which she rejected. In revenge, he handed her over to a house of ill-fame, where for a month on end she had much to suffer, but came to no harm. Quintian made the imperial laws against Christianity the pretext for carrying his persecution further, and, after being tortured and mutilated, Agatha was put to death. The lesson of her legend, thus briefly summarized, is that God by His grace enables us to live in integrity of soul and body in the most adverse circumstances. Agatha had given herself wholly to Jesus Christ, and when she called upon Him for help He heard her. But we on our part have to do our utmost to avoid anything that can be the occasion of our stumbling.

Avoidance of Bad Company

Purity is a gift from God; we can gain it and keep it only by the most watchful care in avoiding everything that may prove an encouragement to sin.

“Jesus Christ, Lord of all, you know what is in my heart and mind. Take me and all that I am for your own. I am a sheep of your flock; make me fit to overcome Satan.”—Words attributed to St Agatha.

“Make your friends among people who are good and well-behaved,” wrote Tertullian. “Remember the words whose use was consecrated by the Apostle, ‘Bad companionship is the ruin of good morals’.” When he used those words, St Paul was quoting a pagan proverb, and it has become familiar as an English proverb in the form “Evil communications corrupt good manners.” Thus the wisdom of the ages, enlightened by God, testifies to the harm that can result from bad company. If, as was the case of St Agatha, it is forced upon us, all our trust must be put in God, who will enable us to set and maintain a good example.

“The care of discipline is love, and love is the keeping of her laws; and the keeping of her laws is the firm foundation of incorruption, and incorruption bringeth near to God.”—Wisdom vi, 19-20.

6

ST TITUS

TITUS was a convert from heathenism, a disciple of St Paul, one of the chosen companions of the apostle at the Council of Jerusalem, and his fellow-labourer in many apostolic missions. From the second letter which St Paul sent by the hand of Titus to the Corinthians we gain an insight into his character, and understand the strong affection which his master bore him. Titus had been commissioned to carry out a twofold office needing firmness, discretion and charity. He was to be the bearer of a severe rebuke to the Corinthians, who were giving scandal and wavering in their faith; and at the same time he was to put their charity to a further test by calling upon them for abundant alms for the church at Jerusalem. Paul anxiously awaited the result; at Troas he writes, "I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother." He set sail to Macedonia, and at last Titus brought good news. His success had been complete. He reported the sorrow, the zeal, the generosity of the Corinthians, till Paul could not contain his joy, and sent back his faithful messenger with the letter of comfort from which we have quoted. Titus was finally left as bishop in Crete : here he in turn received the epistle which bears his name, and here he died in peace.

Sympathy

Saints win men's hearts by their wide and affectionate sympathy. This was the characteristic of St Titus, as it was of St Paul or St Francis Xavier or St Philip Neri.

"Dear brother, bear with others, and they will bear with you; excuse, and you will be excused; pity the sinner's weaknesses, and you will be pitied; comfort the afflicted, and you shall be comforted; raise up him that falls, and you shall be yourself raised up by God's help."—Thomas a Kempis.

The mission of Titus to Corinth shows us how well the disciple caught the spirit of his divine Master. He knew how to be firm and to inspire respect : the Corinthians, we are told, "received him with fear and trembling." He was patient and painstaking : St Paul "gave thanks to God who had put such carefulness for them in the heart of Titus." And these gifts were enhanced by a quickness to detect and call out all that was good in others, and by a joyousness which overflowed upon the spirit of Paul himself, who "abundantly rejoiced in the joy of Titus."

"Rejoice with them that rejoice, weep with them that weep, being of one mind one towards another."
—Rom. xii, 15-16.

7

ST ROMUALD

IN 976 one Sergius, a nobleman of Ravenna, quarrelled with a relation about an estate, and slew him in a duel. His son Romuald, horrified at his father's crime, entered the monastery of Saint Apollinaris-in-Classe to do forty days' penance for him. This penance ended in his own vocation to religion. After three years at Classe, Romuald went to live as a hermit near Venice, where he was joined by St Peter Orseolo, doge of Venice, and together they led a most austere life. St Romuald founded many monasteries, the chief of which was that at Camaldoli, a wild desert place, where he built a church which he surrounded with a number of separate cells for the solitaries who lived under his rule. His disciples were hence called Camaldolese Benedictines. He is said to have seen here a vision of a ladder, and his white-clothed monks going up by it to Heaven. Among his disciples was the missionary monk St Boniface (or Bruno) of Querfurt, afterwards a martyr in Prussia. Romuald passed years travelling about Italy and founding small, religious houses, and he was revered and consulted by many men of his time. He died, as he had foretold twenty years before, alone, in his monastery of Val di Castro, in 1027. His life was written by another saint, Peter Damian.

Good out of Evil

St Romuald's life teaches us that, if we only follow the impulses of the Holy Spirit, we shall find good everywhere, even on the most unlikely occasions. Our own sins, the sins of others, their ill-will against us, or our own mistakes and misfortunes, are equally capable of leading us, with docile hearts, to the feet of God's mercy and love.

"The elect rise again from their falls, more humble, cautious and fervent."—St Augustine.

In his youth Romuald was much troubled by temptations of the flesh; to escape them he used to go hunting, and in the woods he first found his love for solitude. His father's sin, as we have seen, first prompted him to undertake a forty days' penance in the monastery, which he then made his home. Some bad example of his fellow-monks induced him to leave them, and adopt a solitary mode of life. The flight from the world of Orseolo, who may have obtained his power wrongfully, brought him his first disciple; temptation compelled him to his severe life; and finally the persecutions of others were the occasion of his settlement at Camaldoli and the foundation of his order.

"To them that love God all things work together unto good."—Rom. viii, 28.

8

ST JOHN OF MATHA

THE life of St John of Matha was one of self-sacrifice for God's glory and his neighbours' good. He was born in Provence in the twelfth century, and became a priest. Under God's inspiration, he determined to found a religious order, of the Holy Trinity, for the ransoming of captives among the Moslems in Spain and North Africa. In this work he associated himself with a hermit, St Felix, who lived in the province of Valois in France. Though its original object is happily no longer relevant, the Trinitarian Order exists to this day, engaged in teaching, nursing and similar activities. A good deal is related about the lives and achievements of its founders; but unfortunately, owing to the lateness and the circumstances of composition of the sources of information, little credit can be given to their biographies. But there is no doubt that they were selfless and holy men who devoted their lives to a task of charity that was full of dangers and difficulties, and the Western church observes their feasts, of St John of Matha today, of St Felix of Valois on November 20. They are said to have died in 1213 and 1212 respectively.

Self-Sacrifice

Never let us forget that our Lord told us that we have to love our neighbour not only as ourselves, but as He loved us—and He afterwards sacrificed His life for us.

“When the service of our neighbour is in question we must reserve neither time nor place for ourselves.”—St Philip Neri.

In such a case as that of St John of Matha and St Felix of Valois, as in the very similar one of St Peter Nolasco, it is disappointing to find that such few authentic historical particulars have come down to us; and there are many other saints of which the same is true. Nevertheless the fact of their holiness and heroism is beyond question, and holiness and heroism always involve self-sacrifice, of one sort or another. It may be of a striking, public kind, such as that of men who for Christ's sake devoted their charity to the service of oppressed slaves; or it may be of the hidden, inner kind, such as is exemplified in the lives of cloistered monks and nuns, or of lay men and women living "ordinary" lives in the world.

"The Son of man is not come to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a redemption for many."—Matt. xx, 28.

9 ST CYRIL OF ALEXANDRIA

ST CYRIL became archbishop of Alexandria in 412. Having at first thrown himself with ardour into the party-politics of the place, God called him to a nobler conflict. In 428, Nestorius, archbishop of Constantinople, began to deny the unity of person in Christ, and to refuse to the Blessed Virgin the title of "Mother of God." He was strongly supported by disciples and friends in parts of the East. St Cyril, after expostulating in vain, accused Nestorius to Pope St Celestine I, who commanded retraction under pain of separation from the Church, and entrusted Cyril with the conduct of the proceedings. The appointed day in 431 found Nestorius and Cyril at Ephesus, with over 200 bishops. But Nestorius refused to appear before them, and the council deposed him from his see. Upon this the Nestorians presumed to excommunicate St Cyril, and delated him to the emperor as a peace-breaker. Imprisoned and threatened with banishment, the saint rejoiced to confess Christ by suffering. In time it was recognized that Cyril was right, and with him the Church triumphed. He was a man of strong and impulsive, even violent, character, but he took the right side at a critical moment, and in 1882 he was declared a doctor of the Church. He died in 444.

The Incarnation

The Incarnation is the mystery of God's dwelling as man with us, and therefore should be a most dear object of our contemplation. It was the passion of St Cyril's life : for it he underwent toil and persecution, and willingly sacrificed credit and friends.

"The only-begotten Word of God . . . through whom and in whom are all things, the true Light and the Being giving life to all, in the later times of the world was born according to the flesh of the holy God-bearer Mary. . . . Although He became flesh, that is to say, a man like us, He did not cease to be God. For inasmuch as God is in His nature subject to no change, remaining that which He was and is and ever will be, He became the Son of man."—St Cyril.

As the assertion of the divine motherhood of our Lady was necessary to the integrity of the doctrine of the Incarnation, so with St Cyril devotion to the Mother was the necessary complement of his devotion to the Son. He left us a sermon full of praises of Mary.

"And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us."
—John i, 14.

10

ST SCHOLASTICA

OF this saint little is known save that she was the sister of the great patriarch of monks, St Benedict, and that under his direction she founded and governed a community near Monte Cassino. St Gregory the Great sums up her life by saying that she devoted herself to God from her childhood, and that her soul went to Him in the likeness of a dove, as if to show that her life had been enriched with the fullest gifts of the Holy Spirit. She was accustomed to visit her brother every year, for "she could not have enough of the words of grace which flowed from his lips." When she died her body was borne to Monte Cassino, and laid by her brother in the tomb he had prepared for himself, in which he too was eventually buried : "so that these two, whose minds had always been at one in the Lord, were not parted in the grave." They bewailed her many days; and Benedict said, "Do not weep, sisters and brothers; Jesus has taken her before us to be our aid and defence against our enemies, that we may stand in the evil day, and be in all things perfect." She died about the year 543.

Family Affection

Our relations must be loved in and for God. Otherwise the purest affection becomes inordinate, and is by so much taken from Him.

"By them it pleased God to show the way of truth to either sex. From Benedict as from the sun, his sister as the moon, shining gently with charity and wisdom, was received the light of spiritual life."—De laudibus S. Scholasticæ.

On St Benedict's last visit, after a day passed together,

Scholastica, knowing that her end was near, said, "My brother, please do not leave me; stop here tonight and talk to me about the bliss of those who see God in Heaven." Benedict would not break his rule even for her, so she bowed her head on her hands and prayed: and there arose a storm so violent that Benedict could not return to his monastery, and they passed the night in heavenly conversation. Three days later Benedict saw in a vision the soul of his sister going like a dove into Heaven. Then he gave thanks to God for the graces He had given her, and for the glory which had crowned them.

"Lovely and comely in their life, even in death they were not divided."—2 Kings i, 23.

11 ST BENEDICT OF ANIANE

BENEDICT was born about 750. In his early youth he served as cupbearer to King Pepin III of the Franks and his son Charlemagne. Grace entered his soul at the age of twenty, and he resolved to seek the kingdom of God with his whole heart. Without relinquishing his place at court, he lived a most exemplary life for three years; then a narrow escape from drowning made him vow to quit the world, and he entered the cloister of Saint-Seine. Here God bestowed upon him the gift of tears, and endowed him with an infused knowledge of spiritual things. As procurator, he was most careful of the wants of the brethren and most hospitable to the poor and to guests. Declining to accept the abbacy, he built himself a little hermitage beside the brook Aniane and lived some years in solitude and poverty. But the fame of his holiness drawing many souls around him, he was obliged to build a large abbey, and within a short time governed many monks. He became the great restorer of monasticism throughout France and Germany; and in a council held in 817 under Charlemagne it was decreed that all monks of the empire should adopt the Rule of St Benedict, with the regulations of his namesake of Aniane annexed. This Benedict died in 821.

Dread of Lukewarmness

The decay of monastic discipline and its restoration by St Benedict of Aniane prove that none is safe from loss of fervour, but that all can regain it by being faithful to grace.

“Let us cast off this fatal lukewarmness which provokes God to reject us.”—St Bernard.

Three causes, says the learned Mabillon, led to the relaxation of monastic discipline in the West—undue severity or indulgence of superiors, greed for property, and the consequent lawsuits and quarrels. To these evils Benedict applied wise remedies. First, he drew up a code of the rules of St Benedict, his great namesake, collated with those of the chief monastic founders, showing their similarity, and enforced their exact observance; secondly, he minutely regulated all matters regarding food, clothing, and every detail of life; and thirdly, by prescribing the same for all he excluded jealousies and encouraged charity. If we would maintain our fervour we must daily make detailed, practical and penitential resolutions against our self-love.

“He who despiseth small things shall fall by little and little.”—Ecclus. xix, 1.

12 ST ALEXIS FALCONIERI

ON the feast of the Assumption in 1233 seven Florentine gentlemen met together, as their custom was, to recite the Office of the Blessed Virgin. While they were doing so our Lady appeared to them in a vision, and bade them forsake the world for a more perfect life. At once, like the Christians of old, they sold their goods, gave the money to the poor, and changed their fine clothes for the simple dress of religious. Later on, our Lady appeared to them again, called them her servants, and indicated for them a black habit in memory of her Son's passion. Hence their order is called the Servants of Mary, or Servites. One of these seven founders was Alexis Falconieri. He could not be prevailed upon to receive ordination and in religion always sought out the most humbling offices. Like all Servites, he worked to spread devotion to Mary's sorrows, and every day of his life he repeated the Hail Mary a hundred times; it was at the end of the hundredth Ave that he died in 1310. He had long outlived His seven companions. His last words were "Happy is the man who serves Jesus faithfully."

Devotion to Mary's Sorrows

Think of the great grief, the sword, which pierced the heart of our Queen and Mother at the sight of her Son's sufferings. Remember too that His sufferings were caused by us and borne for us.

Mother, fount whence love flows truest,
Let me know the pain thou knewest,
Let me weep as thou hast wept.

Stabat Mater.

At the time of the foundation of the Servite Order several irregular religious bodies were troubling the Church. Pope Innocent IV therefore commissioned St Peter Martyr to investigate its true character, and its approval is said to have been brought about through an intervention from on high. When this book was first published the Seven Holy Founders were still beati; they were canonized by Pope Leo XIII in 1887.

“And Simeon said to Mary... ‘Thy own soul a sword shall pierce, that out of many hearts thoughts may be revealed.’ ”—Luke ii, 35.

13 ST CATHERINE DEI RICCI

ALEXANDRINA dei Ricci was the daughter of a well-known Florentine. At the age of thirteen she entered the third order of St Dominic in the monastery of Prato, taking in religion the name of Catherine, after her patroness of Siena. Her visions of our Lord's passion are among the most remarkable recorded. In the Lent of 1542, being then twenty years of age, she had a vision of the Crucifixion so heartrending that she was confined to bed for three weeks, and was only restored on Holy Saturday when she seemed to see the risen Jesus appearing to St Mary Magdalen. For twelve years she passed every Friday in ecstasy, and she received in her body the impress of Christ's wounds. These gave her continual and intense suffering, and inspired her with a loving sympathy for the sufferings of the holy souls in Purgatory, on whose behalf she offered all her prayers and penances. Her charity towards them became so famous throughout Tuscany that after every death the friends of the deceased hastened to Catherine to ask her prayers. She frequently conversed with St Philip Neri without ever leaving her convent at Prato, seeming to appear before him in Rome in bodily form. With all this, St Catherine had "a magnificent psychological and moral healthiness", was a good administrator for her community, and a very lively letter-writer. She died in 1590.

The Holy Souls

If we truly love Jesus crucified, we must long, like St Catherine, to release the holy souls, whom He has redeemed but has left to our charity to set free.

"Help the souls in Purgatory by your prayers, deliver them by your good works."—St Albert the Great.

St Catherine offered many prayers, fasts and penances for a certain man; it was shown to her that he was in Purgatory, and such was her love that she offered to suffer all the punishment he had incurred. Her prayer was granted, and for forty days she underwent great suffering. It went with her forceful character that Catherine had such great reverence for the memory of Savonarola, the fearless reformer who had been put to death in Florence during her parents' lifetime.

"It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from their sins."
—2 Mach. xii, 46.

14

BD JOHN BAPTIST OF ALMODOVAR

“STUDY, John”, said St Teresa to him when a child; “one day you will follow me.” He followed her in penance too, saying, “If penance hurts, it will heal.” While studying theology he was beset by temptations, and he resolved to quit the world and become a Trinitarian friar. He was a learned man, but he loved tending the poor and the sick, and devoted himself to the plague-stricken in 1590. He became the apostle of Andalusia, while suffering from an illness of twelve years’ duration, and was then prepared for his life’s work, the reform of his order. While he was at Rome for this purpose his brethren accused him of theft, and slandered him to the pope, but he was encouraged by St Francis de Sales, St Camillus de Lellis, and St Mary Magdalen dei Pazzi. The approval of the reform raised much discontent among the Trinitarians, and some friars in Spain assaulted him physically; he found himself almost alone. But he gradually attracted kindred souls. As he lay dying, with the brethren of the reform around him, he prayed like St Martin : “If I am necessary to the work, I do not refuse it. Thy will be done.” But further sacrifice was not demanded of him, and he entered into his rest in 1613.

Stability

Let us beware of capricious change, lest, under the illusion of more perfect service of God, we do but distrust His providence and gratify self-love.

“The Devil often transforms himself into an angel of light, and makes men leave what is good under the pretext of doing better.”—St Philip Neri.

When Bd John Baptist-of-the-Conception was seeking support for his reform in Rome he found himself hated by his brethren whose perfection he had at heart, opposed by the Spanish government, and worn out by sickness. He was staying, as he had done in his childhood, in a Carmelite house; and the friars pressed him to leave the Trinitarians and become one of them, since the reform seemed plainly contrary to the will of God. In a moment of discouragement Bd John entered their novitiate; but God enlightened him in a vision, and he returned to his own order, to recommence his apparently fruitless efforts. Soon after, Pope Clement VIII of his own accord recognized the reform.

“Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast and unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labour is not vain in the Lord.”—I Cor. xv, 58.

15

ST ILDEPHONSUS

ST ILDEPHONSUS is believed by some to have been in youth a disciple of St Isidore of Seville. Forsaking the worldly honours of his noble birth for the love of Christ, he became a monk in a monastery near Toledo, of which in course of time he was chosen abbot. In 657 he was made archbishop of Toledo. He had always been most devoted to the Mother of God, and when some people in Spain revived the heresy of Helvidius and denied her perpetual virginity, St Ildephonsus wrote a treatise against them, in which he displayed the greatest zeal for the glory of the virgin mother Mary. By this work, and by frequent exhortations to his flock, he effectually checked the heresy. In this connexion there are two well-known legends about St Ildephonsus. One is that on the feast of the Annunciation our Lady appeared to him, seated in his episcopal chair, thanked him for all that he had done in her defence, and in token of her gratitude gave him a chasuble. St Ildephonsus died in the year 667, and his feast-day is on January 23. Spain chose him as one of its principal patrons; and his example and writings did much to foster the national devotion to the maiden Mother of God.

Love for our Lady

No one could listen patiently to falsehoods about his mother; nor should we hear with indifference those about our Lady. We should try to make up by the warmth of our piety for the neglect of those who will not honour her, and to do all in our power to spread devotion to her amongst others.

“Virgin Mother of God, may I cleave to God and to you, wait on your Lord and on you, serve your Son and you : Him as my Maker, you as the mother of my Maker; Him as the Lord of Hosts, you as the handmaid of the Lord; Him as my God, you as the mother of my God.”—St. Ildephonsus.

The other story about St Ildephonsus is that St Leocadia, a virgin martyr of Toledo, appeared to him and made known the resting-place of her relics, for which he had long searched. She then praised him for his devotion to Mary and for all he had done to glorify the Queen of Heaven.

“This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, and no man shall pass through it : because the Lord the God of Israel hath entered by it, and it shall be shut.”—Ezech. xliv, 2.

16 ST GILBERT OF SEMPRINGHAM

GILBERT was ordained priest in 1123, and received from his father, who was lord of the manor, a good benefice in Lincolnshire, at Sempringham, his birth-place. He gave his revenues to the poor, and by unwearying care brought his flock to a state of almost monastic discipline. After a while he built a small house beside the church for seven young women who wished to dedicate themselves to God. Others followed their example, and Gilbert soon found himself at the head of a rising community, which he thought at first of offering to the Cistercian Order, then spreading in England. By the advice of Pope Eugenius III, however, he instituted them as a separate body, and incorporated therewith a community of canons regular. Such was the origin of the Gilbertines, the only ancient religious order founded in England. Its rules were strict, and strong emphasis was laid on simplicity of life and worship. Gilbert's work now seemed complete, but his trials were yet to come. Some of his subjects shamefully slandered him to his bishop; Gilbert committed his cause to God, and his innocence was declared. He went blind in old age, but lived to be 106, dying in 1189. The order to which he had devoted his life was destroyed by King Henry VIII.

A Good Conscience

St Gilbert teaches us that we need care little for the judgements of men if only our consciences are at rest and pure in the sight of God.

“You are not more holy for being praised, nor worse for being blamed; what you are, you are, and you cannot be called better than God sees you to be.”—Imitation of Christ.

Just when Gilbert's character was cleared and his order firmly established, another charge was brought against him. He was accused of sending help to St Thomas of Canterbury, then in exile. The charge, as it happened, was false; and the judge, who greatly respected Gilbert, offered to release him at once if he would but plead innocent. This, however, he refused to do, preferring to risk imprisonment and the suppression of his order rather than, by denying the charge, to appear opposed to the Church's champion. He was eventually released without further trouble.

“For our glory is this : the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity of heart and sincerity of God, and not in carnal wisdom, but in the grace of God, we have conversed in this world.”—2 Cor. i, 12.

17 ST ANASTASIUS THE PERSIAN

IN the year 614, Chosroes, king of Persia, took Jerusalem and carried away the cross of Jesus that was treasured there. One of his soldiers, hearing of this prize, began to ask about Him who had died thereon. The story of Christ's passion went to his heart. He left the army and his native land, and travelled into Syria to learn more. The pictures of the martyrs in the churches of Hierapolis completed his conversion. Taking the name Anastasius, he was baptized in Jerusalem, and became a monk. The superstitions of his past life perpetually haunted him; but he burned with longing to die for Christ, and it was shown to him that his prayer was heard. After seven years in Jerusalem he went on a pilgrimage to the shrines of Palestine. At Caesarea, then in Persian hands, he spoke against their religion and was thrown into prison, chained to another prisoner. Nothing was left undone to induce him to deny Christ, but bribes and threats were unavailing, and torture was in vain. At length he was taken to the king, at Bethsaloen on the Euphrates; here he was tortured again, and sixty-eight other Christians were strangled before his eyes. But Anastasius never faltered. At last he was strangled too. This was in 628. The relics of St Anastasius eventually rested in Rome, and his feast is kept on January 22.

The Sign of the Cross

Christ has left the cross as the symbol of His religion. He seals our foreheads, our lips and our hearts with this triumphant sign; with it we begin and end our days; and with it He consigns us to the tomb.

“At every step, at our coming in and our going out, when we wash, when we sit down to eat, when we light a candle, when we go to bed, in whatever conversation we join, we sign our foreheads with the sign of the cross.”—Tertullian.

When St Anastasius was taken before King Chosroes he had as yet asked no favour, except to go to torture unbound, that he might suffer of his own free will. But now he asked to be allowed to assist once more at the Church's offices, and through a Christian officer his request was granted. So he worshipped Him who died on the cross for the last time on earth; and in the strength of that saving sign he went "even to the mount of God."

"God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ; by whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world."—Gal. vi, 14.

18

ST FLAVIAN
OF CONSTANTINOPLE

FLAVIAN was elected patriarch of Constantinople in 447. His short episcopate of two years was a time of conflict and persecution from the first. Chrysaphius, the emperor's favourite, suggested that Flavian should make a gift to the emperor at the time of his consecration; but instead of money or jewels the bishop sent the usual blessed bread. Thus he incurred the enmity of the most powerful man in the empire. A graver trouble soon arose. In 448 Flavian had to condemn the heresy of the monk Eutyches, who denied that our Lord had two perfect natures after His incarnation. Chrysaphius obtained from the Emperor Theodosius the assembly of a council at Ephesus in 449, presided over by his friend Dioscorus, patriarch of Alexandria. In this "Robber Council", as it is called, Eutyches entered surrounded by soldiers, and the proceedings were violent and disorderly. The Roman legates could not even read the pope's letters; at the first sign of resistance to the condemnation of Flavian fresh troops entered with drawn swords, and in spite of the protests of the legates terrified most of the bishops into acquiescence. Flavian had scarcely time to appeal to Rome when he was set upon, it is said at the instigation of Dioscorus and other ecclesiastics; he was thrown down, beaten, kicked, and finally carried into banishment, where he died in a few days of his injuries.

Reverence for Christ's Vicar

By his loyalty to the authority of the Vicar of Christ, Flavian held fast to the truth and gained the martyr's crown. Let us learn from him to turn instinctively to that one true guide in all matters concerning our salvation.

"I judge it to be fitting that injuries to the Faith should be repaired there where the Faith cannot fail. This is indeed the prerogative of that see. For to what other was it ever said, 'I have prayed for thee, Peter, that thy faith fail not'?"—St Bernard.

There is a striking contrast between the ends of the people concerned. St Flavian upheld the teaching of the Roman pontiff, and sealed his faith with his blood. Dioscorus professed to excommunicate the Vicar of Christ, and died in the heresy of Eutyches; Eutyches, too, died in his errors; Chrysaphius was executed by the successor of Theodosius, who buried Flavian's body with honour at Constantinople.

"His seed shall endure for ever; and his throne as the sun before me, and as the moon perfect for ever, and a faithful witness in heaven."—Ps. lxxxviii, 37-38.

19 ST CONRAD OF PIACENZA

CONRAD was a nobleman of Piacenza in Lombardy, a good family man, but apt to waste too much time in the chase. God used this passion to lead him to a better life. One day the game he was hunting took shelter in a thicket, which Conrad at once set on fire, but wind carried the flames to neighbouring cornfields and dwellings. He slipped away quietly, and a poor woodcutter was taken in his stead, tried, and condemned to die; on this Conrad came forward, owned his guilt, and made all possible reparation, so that he and his wife were reduced to poverty. A call to religion was the reward of their sacrifice. His wife took the veil, and Conrad joined the third order of St Francis. Eventually he fixed his abode in a cave near Noto in Sicily, where he spent his remaining years. He was besieged in his solitude by temptations, especially to gluttony, provoked by the good food sent to him by his friends. But grace triumphed. Conrad kept the food indeed, but never ate it till it was stale and unappetizing. Every Friday he went to pray before a celebrated crucifix in Noto, and it was on his knees before this crucifix that he died, one day in 1351.

Friday Abstinence

Week by week the Church calls upon us for this slight self-denial in memory of the passion and death of Christ. He who is sinless suffered for us; shall not we sinners deny ourselves cheerfully for Him?

“It is impossible to win the crown without mastering the flesh.”—St Gregory.

Many surprising stories were told about this holy man. When the bishop of Syracuse visited him, Conrad, though he had no food in his cave, invited him to dine, and set before him four dishes prepared by no human hand. On another occasion mischievous men persuaded him to dine with them on a Friday, and then served up pork disguised as fish. Whereupon, we are told, they were rebuked by Conrad's being enabled to keep his abstinence miraculously.

"But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not be defiled with the king's table ... And God gave to Daniel grace and mercy."—Daniel i, 8-9.

20 ST JOHN THE ALMSGIVER

WHEN his wife and two children died, this John considered it a call from God to lead a perfect life. He began to give away all he possessed, and became known throughout the East as the Almsgiver. He was appointed patriarch of Alexandria; and when he took possession of his see he told his servants to go over the town and bring him a list of his masters—meaning the poor. They brought word there were seven thousand five hundred of them, and these he undertook to feed. On Wednesday and Friday every week he sat outside the church to hear the complaints of the needy and aggrieved, and he saw no one weep without joining his tears with theirs. But he was merciless to those of the rich who themselves showed no mercy. St John had a gift for quiet, effective rebuke, whether of himself or others. When people hung about outside church during service time he went and sat with them, for, he said, "the shepherd must be with his flock." He spent untold sums upon the poor, and God blessed his almsgiving in many striking ways. He died in Cyprus, his native place, about the year 619. His feast-day is on January 23.

Compassion

What sacrifices can we make for the poor which will seem enough, when we reflect that kindness to them is our only means of repaying Jesus Christ, who gave His life for us?

“If we, however vile or unworthy, can enter the church day and night and ask God to hear our prayers, how careful should we be to hear and grant the requests of our fellow creatures.”—St John the Almsgiver.

St John helped a merchant by giving him five pounds weight of gold. Having suffered shipwreck and lost all, the merchant came again to John, who said, “Some of your merchandise was ill-gotten,” and gave him ten pounds more; but the next voyage he lost ship as well as goods. John then said, “The ship was dishonestly acquired. Take fifteen pounds of gold, buy corn with it, and put it on one of my ships.” This time he was blown out of his course, and came to the distant island of Britain, where there was a famine, and he sold the corn for its weight in tin. On his return to Alexandria the merchant found the tin was silver.

“He that is inclined to mercy shall be blessed, for of his bread he hath given to the poor.”—Prov. xxii, 9.

21 ST MOSES THE ETHIOPIAN

MOSES was a slave in Egypt, and was often punished by his master for theft and disobedience. He grew from bad to worse; at last, having killed a fellow slave, he ran away, joined a band of robbers, and led a life of unbridled wickedness. In his fortieth year he was converted to God; and his repentance, although sudden, was lasting and sincere. He sought a monastery, and, in the presence of the monks, made public confession of all his sins and asked to be admitted amongst them. After some trial this was granted; and Moses spent the rest of his life in severe penance and willing obedience. His fervour in overcoming temptation was as great as had been his former impetuosity in vice. When he was told that the best means to get rid of illusions that tormented him during sleep was to watch and pray, he went to a distant cell, where he seemed never to sleep at all, passing the night standing in prayer. After many victories over himself, he was ordained priest, and as he stood in his white robe he said with a smile, "Now the black man is white—but only outside." In old age, about the year 405, Moses and several companions were murdered by Berbers; he was a man of huge frame, but refused to resist, saying, "All that take the sword shall perish with the sword." His feast-day is on August 28.

Sorrow for Sin

If we wish to progress in goodness our actions must agree with our prayer, by avoiding relapses into the faults for which we ask God's forgiveness.

"God will not hear our prayers unless we acknowledge ourselves to be sinners. We do this when we ponder our own sins, and not those of our neighbour."—St Moses.

When one of the solitaries had been guilty of some fault, the fathers were called together to decide what was to be done. Moses was invited, but did not come until he heard that the brethren were waiting for him.

He then left his cell and came, carrying on his back a basket filled with sand. The brethren, seeing the basket, asked him what he was going to do with it. He answered, "These are my sins; I feel their weight but I can't see them. And yet I am sent for to judge the sins of others." This example induced the fathers to pardon the accused.

"According to the multitude of my sorrows in my heart, thy comforts have given joy to my soul."—Ps. xciii, 19.

22 ST MARGARET OF CORTONA

MARGARET of Cortona was born at Laviano, in Tuscany, about the middle of the thirteenth century. At the age of sixteen she fell away from God, and for nine or ten years led a life of shame. Then one day she came upon the mutilated body of her partner in guilt, who had been murdered. She entered into herself, and resolved to do penance for her evil life. She returned to her father's house with her little son, but her stepmother thought that this compromised the respectability of the family, and persuaded her father to send her away. Margaret thereupon went to Cortona, and put herself under the care of the friars of St Francis. One Sunday she visited Laviano and, with a rope round her neck, begged pardon publicly in the parish church for the scandal she had given; and the friars, after a long trial to test the sincerity of her conversion, admitted her into the third order, called the Order of Penance. She who had once lived in luxury lived henceforth a life of heroic mortification, obedient to her confessor, growing in holiness, in mastery over self and in perfect detachment from the world. She founded and served in a hospital for the sick poor, and many were brought to God by her example; her son became a Franciscan. St Margaret died in 1297.

Penance

God plants our feet on the road of innocence; but if we wander from it we must travel afterwards on the road of penance, for there is no other.

“Go where you will, seek what you will, but you will not find a higher way above, nor a safer way below, the way of the holy cross.”—Imitation of Christ.

Margaret left her father's house, and was driven away after returning to it, that she might find her true Father's house, who never sends the penitent away. She punished herself that God might not do so, and so severely by fast and discipline that even in summer the sun brought no warmth to her worn-out frame. But while her body suffered from cold, her soul was on fire with divine love, burning sweetly and gently refining the earthly tabernacle which held it.

“My father and my mother have left me, but the Lord hath taken me up.”—Ps. xxvi, 10.

23

ST PETER DAMIAN

ST PETER DAMIAN was born in 988, and lost both parents at an early age. His eldest brother, in whose hands he was left, treated him so cruelly that a younger one, a priest, moved by his piteous state, sent him to school at Parma, where he acquired great distinction.

His studies were sanctified by religion and almsdeeds, till at last, thinking that this was only serving God by halves, he resolved to leave the world. He joined the hermit monks of Fonte Avellana, then in great repute, and by his wisdom and goodness rose to be abbot. He was employed on delicate and difficult missions, including the reform of ecclesiastical communities, which was effected by his zeal. Seven popes in succession made him their adviser, and he was at length created cardinal-bishop of Ostia. He withstood Henry IV of Germany, and laboured in defence of Alexander II against an antipope. He was charged with the repression of simony and concubinage, was commissioned to settle discords amongst various bishops, and finally to adjust the affairs of the Church at Ravenna. In such matters, as in less public ones, St Peter Damian showed himself a severe and unbending reformer, a man of remarkable moral force. He died in a monastery at Faenza in 1072, whilst the monks chanted Matins around him.

Humility in Learning

The saints studied, not in order to be accounted learned, but to become perfect. Wisdom and true greatness is to account ourselves ignorant, and to follow the Church's teaching and mind in all things.

“Learning without charity puffs up, love without learning goes astray.”—St Bernard.

St Peter, so learned as to be recognized as a doctor of the Church, regarded himself as the least of God's servants. Nothing less than the threat of excommunication on the part of Pope Stephen IX induced him to accept the cardinalate. And when, in deference to his urgent entreaties, he was allowed to resign his dignity and retire again to his hermitage, all he wanted was to be hidden among his brethren. He enjoyed making wooden spoons and doing other manual work which the rule prescribed; and it was from such occupations that he was summoned to act as papal legate.

“For I say, by the grace which is given me, to all that are among you, not to be more wise than it behoveth to be wise, but to be wise unto sobriety.”—Rom. xii, 3.

24 ST MATTHIAS THE APOSTLE

AFTER our Lord's ascension, His disciples met together, with Mary His mother and the eleven apostles, in an upper room at Jerusalem. The little company numbered no more than 120 souls. They were waiting for the promised coming of the Holy Ghost, and they persevered in prayer. Meanwhile there was something to be done on the part of the Church which could not be postponed. The place of the fallen Judas must be filled so that the chosen number of apostles might be complete. St Peter therefore, as their leader under Christ, addressed the assembly. That which the Holy Ghost had spoken by the mouth of David concerning Judas, he said, must be fulfilled. Of him it had been written, “His bishopric let another take.” A choice therefore was to be made of one among those who had been their companions from the beginning, who could bear witness to the resurrection of Jesus. Two were named of equal merit, Joseph called Barsabas and Matthias. Then, after praying to God, who knows the hearts of all men, to show which of these He had chosen, they cast lots, and the choice fell upon Matthias, who was forthwith numbered with the apostles. Nothing else is known for certain about him.

Perseverance in our Vocation

Our ignorance of St Matthias's life serves to fix attention all the more firmly upon the occasion of his call to apostleship and the fact of his perseverance. We then naturally turn in thought to our own vocation and our own end.

“But who shall persevere to the end? He that shall have been in the Body of Christ, he that shall have been among the members of Christ, and from the Head shall have learned patient persevering.”—St Augustine.

The lesson of St Matthias is enhanced by the warning we derive from the fate of Judas, to whom he is set by Scripture in such fearful contrast—Judas, who had been a friend of Jesus, with the grace and vocation of an apostle. But Judas loved money, and little by little avarice ate away all the good that was in him. Hardening his heart, he judged others and became bitter and false. At last, blind with ambition and pride, he betrayed his Saviour for a few pieces of silver. He then hanged himself in despair, and went, in the words of St Peter, “to his own place.” Not he who begins, but he who perseveres to the end shall be saved.

“Wherefore, brethren, labour the more, that by good works you may make sure your calling and election.”—2 Peter i, 10.

25

ST WALBURGA

ONE of a family of saints—for her father, called Richard, and her brothers, Willibald and Winebald, are also venerated as such—Walburga was a nun under Tetta, abbess of Wimborne in Dorset. She lived there in quiet and holiness till the year 748, when the English St Boniface, then evangelizing the people we now call Germans, wrote to Abbess Tetta and asked her to send over some nuns to help him in his work. Some thirty were sent, including St Walburga and Boniface's charming relative, St Lioba. At first they all lived together at Bischofsheim; but soon Walburga was called to the abbey at Heidenheim, governed by her brother St Winebald; and when he died she was chosen abbess of the double monastery of monks and nuns there. These English women who helped St Boniface in the wilds of the north are among the most striking groups in Christian history. By their life and labours the truths they taught were commended to an uncivilized people; the barbarians had before their eyes the example of respected women combining the work of household and farm with humane studies and religious apostleship. St Walburga herself is said to have practised medicine among them. She died in 779, and portions of her relics are to be found in many churches of western Europe. But her principal shrine, at Eichstätt, is famous for an allegedly miraculous oil, which exudes from the rock on which her relics rest; it is an aromatic, watery fluid, perhaps having natural medicinal properties, to which many cures have been ascribed over centuries.

Respect for Relics

Christian bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, and in life and death should be treated with the greatest respect. And where the bodies of holy men and women are concerned, there can be no doubt that after death Almighty God sometimes chooses them as instruments or occasions of manifestations of His grace and power.

“Christ gives us the relics of saints as health-giving springs through which flow blessings and healing. This should not be doubted. For if at God’s word water gushed from hard rock in the wilderness—yes, and from an ass’s jaw-bone when Samson was thirsty—why should it seem incredible that healing medicine should distil from the relics of saints?”—St John Damascene.

It has not been unknown in the course of history for reverence for holy relics to become disordered and a source of abuse. This was made the pretext for the wholesale destruction of saints’ relics in our own country during the sixteenth century. Having been deprived of the great shrines of the past, we ought to respect their sites, as at Canterbury and Durham and Saint Albans, and specially to reverence the relics that remain or have been enshrined since, such as those of St Edward the Confessor at Westminster Abbey, of St Chad in Birmingham Cathedral, of Bd Oliver Plunket at Downside Abbey and of Bd John Southworth in Westminster Cathedral.

“Your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb, and the hand of the Lord shall be known to his servants.”—Isa. lxvi, 14.

26

ST PORPHYRY

AT the age of twenty-five, Porphyry, a native of Thessalonica, left the world for one of the great religious houses in the desert of Skete. Here he remained five years, and then finding himself drawn to a more solitary life passed into Palestine, where he lived in a cave near the Jordan, till ill-health obliged him to moderate his austerities. He then made his home in Jerusalem, and in spite of his ailments visited the Holy Places every day, thinking, says his biographer, so little of his sickness that he seemed to be afflicted in another body and not his own. Then God put it into his heart to sell all he had and give to the poor, and, while he was praying on Calvary, restored him to perfect health. In 393 he was ordained priest, and entrusted with the care of the relics of the True Cross; three years later, in spite of his opposition, he was consecrated bishop of Gaza. That city was a stronghold of paganism, and Porphyry found ample scope for his apostolic zeal. His labours and the miracles which attended them effected the conversion of many; but an imperial edict for the destruction of heathen temples led to his being nearly killed by the infuriated mob. Porphyry lived to see his diocese for the most part clear of idolatry, and died in 420.

Hatred of Superstition

All superstitious searching into hidden things is forbidden by the first commandment, equally with the worship of false gods. Let us ask St Porphyry for great zeal in keeping this commandment, lest we be led away as so many are by an inquisitive and prying mind.

“The Devil will never deceive, God will never suffer him to deceive, that soul which has no confidence whatever in itself, but which is always trying to mould itself on the teaching of the Church.”—St Teresa of Avila.

When St Porphyry went to Gaza he found one temple more splendid than the rest, in honour of the god Marnas. When the edict was issued against the heathen shrines, this was the first to be destroyed; a Christian church was built upon the site, and its approach was paved with the marble of the temple. Thus every worshipper of Jesus Christ trod the relics of idolatry and superstition under foot each time he went to assist at the Holy Mysteries.

“Deceitful divinations and lying omens and the dreams of evil-doers are vanity.”—Ecclus. xxxiv, 5.

27

BD ANNE LINE

ANNE HEIGHAM and her brother were disinherited by their father when they became Catholics. She subsequently married a gentleman of Hampshire, Roger Line, and when in 1594 he died in exile for his faith, his widow devoted the rest of her life to helping hunted Catholics. She was of particular service to the famous Jesuit John Gerard, who wrote of her in his Autobiography; he chose her to be in charge of the house of refuge for clergy that he established in London, “to manage the finances, do all the housekeeping, look after the guests, and deal with the inquiries of strangers. She was full of kindness, very discreet, and possessed her soul in great peace.” After Father Gerard’s escape from the Tower in 1597, Mrs Line came under suspicion, and she was eventually arrested. She was charged at the Old Bailey with sheltering priests, found guilty, and sentenced to death. She told her judges, "My lords, nothing grieves me more but that I could not receive a thousand more." On 27 February 1601 Anne Line was hanged at Tyburn. Someone wrote of her the same day : "She behaved herself most meekly, patiently and virtuously to her last breath. She kissed the gallows and, before and after her private prayers blessing herself, the cart was drawn away; and she made the sign of the cross upon her, and after that never moved." There suffered at the same time Mrs Line's confessor, the Venerable Roger Filcock, S.J., and a Benedictine monk, Bd Mark Barkworth.

Patience in Ill-Health

Relatively few are called to die for Christ. But we all have to live for Him; and we assimilate ourselves to the martyrs whenever we bear trials uncomplainingly and with composure for God's sake, especially the great trial of bad health.

"If you suffer thankfully your profit will increase in proportion to the greatness of what you suffer. The crown of glory is not earned through bodily suffering alone but through spiritual suffering as well; even more through spiritual suffering if it be gladly accepted."—St John Chrysostom.

Throughout her later years Bd Anne Line had chronic ill-health. She was dropsical, had constant headaches, and every spring and autumn seemed as if it would be her last. But through it all she persevered in her activities for those who needed her help. Father Gerard wrote : "Often she would say to me : 'I naturally want more than anything to die for Christ, but it is too much to hope that it will be by the executioner's hand. Possibly our Lord will let me be taken one day with a priest and be put in some cold filthy dungeon where I won't be able to live very long in this wretched life.'... and the Lord granted the petitions of her heart."

"If I shall touch only his garment, I shall be healed."
—Matt. 9, 20.

28 ST OSWALD OF WORCESTER

OSWALD was born of a family of Danish origin, and was endowed, says the chronicler, with a beautiful form of body and an unusual piety of soul. He was brought up by his uncle, St Odo, archbishop of Canterbury and was ordained among the clergy of Winchester, then very relaxed. His attempt to reform them was a failure; and he saw, with that instinct which so often guides the saints in critical times, that the true remedy for the corruptions of the clergy was the restoration of monastic life. He therefore went to France, and took the habit of St Benedict, but returned only to receive the news of Odo's death. He found, however, a new patron in St Dunstan, now metropolitan, through whose influence he was nominated to the see of Worcester. To these two saints, together with St Ethelwold of Winchester, the monastic revival of the tenth century was mainly due. Oswald's first care was to discipline slack and disorderly clergy, and he established several monasteries, including eventually the great abbey of Ramsey. In 972 he was made archbishop of York, but was allowed to continue to govern his beloved diocese of Worcester as well.

Yet he was never too busy daily to feed and tend a dozen poor people with his own hands. St Oswald died in 992.

Discipline

A soul without discipline is like a ship without a helm : she must inevitably strike upon the rocks, founder on the shoals, or float unknowingly into the harbour of the enemy.

“Be careful to keep your rule of life, and your rule will keep you.”—St Bernard.

Realizing that no men are wholly bad, St Oswald did not turn the unsatisfactory clergy out of his cathedral at Worcester, but went to work another way. Adjoining the cathedral he built a church in honour of the Mother of God, served by a body of monks. He himself assisted at the Divine Office in this church, and his example was followed by the people. The cathedral clergy, finding themselves isolated and their church deserted, chose rather to embrace the religious life than to continue, not only to injure their own souls, but to be a mockery to their people because of the contrast offered by their worldliness to the religious life of their monastic brethren.

“The way of life [is] to him that observeth discipline; but he that forsaketh reproofs goeth astray”—Prov. x, 17.

29 ST JOSEPH OF LEONESSA

JOSEPH was born in Umbria in 1556. His parents dying early, he was put in charge of an uncle, who after a time proposed a good marriage for him. But Joseph had resolved on celibacy, so he ran away and became a Capuchin friar. His obedience was perfect : he received commands bareheaded and on his knees; he was always recommending himself to the prayers of others, and in spite of perpetual penance was never downcast or sad. His superiors, seeing his great love for souls, sent him to Turkey to minister to the Christian galley-slaves. Crucifix in hand, he taught the poor captives to unite their sufferings with those of their Lord, and by his patience and gentleness gained many a hardened soul. With the same saving image he consoled the Turks, struck down by a devouring plague, and converted many to Christ. For this he was twice imprisoned, and at last hung up for hours by one hand and one foot; but the death sentence was commuted to banishment. Joseph spent the rest of his life near his birthplace at Leonessa, preaching, visiting prisons, and founding hospitals for the sick. Long martyrdom from cancer at length completed the unfinished sacrifice; he died peacefully in 1612, after having been twice operated on. After death the scars disappeared from his body, which took on an unearthly beauty and sweet fragrance. This St Joseph's feast-day is on February 4.

Love for the Crucified

The crucifix is the book wherein is contained the learning of the saints. Here we too must find our wisdom and our strength, our riches and our consolation.

“Behold the wounds of Him who hangs, the blood of Him who dies, the price of Him who redeems! See the head leaning to kiss you, the heart opened to love you, the arms widespread to embrace you, the whole body exposed to redeem you.”—St Augustine.

St Joseph had a most loving devotion to the image of Jesus crucified; he never preached without a crucifix in his hand, and often spent entire nights before it. When he was to be operated on for his disease, it was proposed to bind him according to custom. But he fixed his eyes upon the cross, and said, “This is the strongest bond, this will keep me still better than any cords could do;” and so, gazing on Jesus crucified, and saying over and over again, “Holy Mary, pray for us poor sinners,” he bore the pain without a murmur.

“They shall look upon me whom they have pierced.”
—Zach. xii, 10.

1

ST DAVID

ST DAVID, the patron saint of Wales, is said to have been born in the south-western corner of what is now Pembrokeshire, and brought up on the coast of Cardigan. From his earliest years he gave himself to God's service, and eventually established a monastery near his birthplace, in the place called Mynyw (in Latin, Menevia), now known after him as Saint Davids. He was abbot-bishop of this community, whose life was extremely austere. He was called "the Waterman", because water was the only drink he allowed; even bread was rationed, and his monks had to till the ground without the help of plough-oxen. The monastery became a resort of holy men both from western Britain and Ireland. When a church council met at Brefi, David was summoned to address the assembly, but, we are told, he refused to attend and had to be fetched : he then preached with much effect. As St David lay dying, with his monks and neighbours around him, he said to them, "Be joyful, brothers and sisters! Cherish your faith, and do the little things that you have seen and heard with me." His death took place probably between 588 and 601, and there are more ancient Welsh churches dedicated in his honour than of any other saint; they are all in the southern half of Wales. There are also a few in the south-west of England.

Cherishing the Faith

The Christian faith is the precious pearl to buy which the wise merchant sold everything that he had : where Christ's riches are there can be no poverty.

“When the soul journeys by the light of Christian truth it is safe from all mishap.” — St John-of-the-Cross.

St Gildas the Wise, a contemporary of St David, reminds us that physical austerity is useless without charity and humbleness. We are blessed, not simply for drinking only water and restricting our food, but for hungering and thirsting after holiness; he is a better man who lightens his labour humbly than he who carries his burdens arrogantly. We must beware of “preferring fasting to charity, vigils to justness, our own ideas to peaceableness, privacy to praying with our brethren in church, rigour to humility—in a word, man to God.”

“I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith.”—2 Tim. iv, 7.

2

ST CHAD

CHAD was abbot of Lastingham, near Whitby. He was well read in the Holy Scriptures, and practised what he learnt therein. He was placed in the see of York by King Oswy during the absence of St Wilfrid, and St Theodore, as primate of England, had to ask him to withdraw. Chad declared that he willingly resigned an office of which he had always deemed himself unworthy, and which obedience alone had forced him to accept. Theodore soon after appointed him bishop of the Mercians. He fixed his see at Lichfield, and for two years and a half spent himself in the care of his flock. Like the other apostolic bishops of the North, Chad lived in poverty, making his visitations on foot until, because of his age, St Theodore forbade it. Chad longed for the peace of his cloister, and often refreshed his soul by retiring to a monastery and meditating on the eternal Sabbath. Here he withdrew when warned that his end was near; and he went to his heavenly reward in 672. St Chad's shrine in Lichfield Cathedral was the scene of miracles till its desecration by Henry VIII. Part of his body, however, was providentially saved, and it now reposes in the cathedral of Birmingham that bears his name.

Longing for Heaven

The desire of heavenly glory is the soul's comfort in her pilgrimage; and in death it makes sweet a sacrifice which is most bitter to nature.

"My son, when you feel that the desire for everlasting blessedness is poured out on you from above, and you long to leave the tabernacle of your body so that you may be able to behold my brightness unhindered, open your heart wide to this inspiration."—Imitation of Christ.

Before St Chad's death a brother in the monastery heard voices singing most sweetly, and noticed that the unseen choir seemed to rest over the cell of the holy bishop. Chad soon after summoned the brethren and asked for their prayers, since in seven days he would depart; for, he said, the voices of angels had come to call him to that heavenly reward which he had so long desired. On the seventh day he died as he had said.

“I rejoiced at the things that were said to me :
‘We shall go into the house of the Lord’.”—Ps. cxxi, 1.

3

ST AELRED

“ONE thing you lack.” In these words God called Aelred from the court of a royal saint, David of Scotland, to the silence of the cloister. He left the king, the companions of his youth and a most dear friend, to obey the call. Long afterwards the bitterness of the parting remained fresh in his mind, and he declared that, “though he had left his dear ones in the body to serve his Lord, his heart was ever with them.” He entered the Cistercian Order, and even there his talent for friendship showed itself in a special attraction to one among the brethren named Simon. This good monk had left the world in his youth, and appeared like one deaf and dumb, so recollected was he in God. One day Aelred, forgetting the rule of silence, spoke to him, and then at once knelt at his feet, in token of his fault; but Simon’s look of pain and surprise haunted him for many a year, and taught him to let no human feeling disturb for one moment his union with God. St Aelred left several written works, among them On Spiritual Friendship and the Mirror of Charity. In the latter he says that true love of God is only to be learned by joining ourselves in all things to Christ’s passion. He died in 1167 as abbot of Rievaulx in Yorkshire. He was a most lovable character. Walter

Daniel, who wrote his life, says, "I lived under him for seventeen years, and in all that time he did not dismiss one man from the monastery."

True Friendship

When a man has given himself to God, God gives back friendship with all His other gifts, a hundredfold. Friends are then loved no longer for themselves only, but in and for God, and with a love that is living and strong : for God can purify feeling. It is not feeling, but self-love, which corrupts friendship.

"Your friend's love must be rooted in Me, and you must love him for My sake."—Imitation of Christ.

A novice once came to Aelred, saying that he must return to the world. But Aelred had remembered him before God, and answered, "Brother, don't ruin your life. Anyway, you couldn't even if you wanted to." However, the youth would not listen, and wandered off among the hills, thinking all the while he was going far from the abbey. At sunset he found himself before a house strangely like Rievaulx, and so it was. The first monk he met was Aelred, who embraced him, saying, "Son, why do you treat me like this? I have wept many tears for you, I have prayed God that you may not be lost, and I trust in Him." The world does not love its friends like that.

"He that is a friend loveth at all times, and a brother is proved in distress."—Prov. xvii, 17.

4

ST CASIMIR

CASIMIR, second son of Casimir IV, king of Poland, was born in 1461. From the custody of a most virtuous mother, Elizabeth of Austria, he passed to the guardianship of a devoted master, the learned and religious John Duglosz. Thus encouraged from his earliest years by precept and example, his innocence and piety ripened into heroic virtue. At the age of twenty-three, sick of a lingering illness, he foretold the hour of his death, and chose to die as he was rather than take the life and health which doctors held out to him in the married state. In an atmosphere of luxury, the young prince had fasted, worn a hairshirt, slept upon the bare earth, prayed by night, and watched for the opening of the church-doors at dawn. At Mass he seemed quite rapt out of himself, and his charity to the poor and afflicted knew no bounds. His love for our Lady was expressed in his frequent use of a hymn that is known to us in English as "Daily, daily sing to Mary." But he did not, as is sometimes said, write it himself—it was known long before his time. As a youth Casimir was interned for a time by his father for refusing to prosecute an unjust war; he withdrew his troops without engaging those of the Hungarian king. The young saint died in 1484.

Singing Mary's Praises

May reflection on St Casimir's life make us increase in devotion to the Mother of God, a sure means of preserving purity.

Holy Mary, we implore thee,
By thy purity divine,
Help us, bending here before thee,
Help us truly to be thine. "Daily, daily."

One hundred and twenty-two years after his death Casimir's tomb in the cathedral of Vienna was opened that the body might be transferred to the chapel where it now lies. The place was damp, and the very vault crumbled away in the hands of the workmen; yet the saint's body, wrapped in silk, was found whole and incorrupt, and giving out a fragrance which filled the church. Under his head was found a copy of the hymn to our Lady, which he had had buried with him; in its original Latin form it is much longer than the few verses that we know.

"I am the mother of fair love, and of fear and of knowledge and of holy hope."—Ecclus. xxiv, 24.

5 ST JOHN JOSEPH OF THE CROSS

WHILST a schoolboy, John Joseph showed his concern for the welfare of others in ways that to us seem rather precocious; nobody was surprised when, at the age of sixteen, he left Ischia, his birthplace, and received the habit of St Francis at Naples. Three years later he was sent by his superiors to start a new friary at Piedimonte di Alife, though so young and of course not yet a priest. In the hope of leading a solitary life he retired to a hermitage; but his superiors soon recalled him, and in 1678 he was made novice-master and then superior, being at the time only twenty-four years of age. He was a man of strong feeling, a fond and devoted son, and all the affection of his nature was poured out on his brethren in religion. His faith, his austerities and his prayers endowed his charity with wonderful effectiveness. In times of famine he fed the friars with bread that multiplied and vegetables that grew at his command. No suffering seemed too trivial for his wonder-working sympathy, and ills of mind and body were healed at his word. St John Joseph was re-elected as guardian several times, and his firmness and charity saved the existence of his order in the kingdom of Naples at a time of grave difficulty. He worked to his life's end, and died at the hour he had foretold in 1734.

Christian Sympathy

True sympathy consists in realizing the sufferings of others as our own. St John Joseph teaches us that to do this we have to put aside our own feeling for the love of Jesus Christ.

When told to spare himself in works of mercy, John Joseph answered, "I have no infirmity to keep me from work; and if I had, ought I not to give my life in the same cause for which Jesus Christ died?"

The saint was not content to relieve others of their cares and sorrows, but at times took them upon himself. A priest, in great suffering and with a painful operation in view, begged his prayers, whereupon St John Joseph besought God to transfer the malady to himself. And accordingly he experienced the sufferings of the sick man, who was at the same time freed from his disease. Again, a man plunged in vice made a general confession to the saint, who, moved by his repentance, gave him only a light penance, binding himself to fulfil what still remained due for his crimes.

"For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that being rich he became poor for your sakes; that through his poverty you might be rich."—2 Cor. viii, 9.

6 SS. PERPETUA AND FELICITY

AT Carthage in the year 203, Perpetua, married and but twenty-two years old, together with Felicity, a slave-girl, and others, were cast into prison for the name of Christ. Perpetua's father, who was not a Christian, implored her to pity his white hairs, to remember that she had always been his favourite child, and to think of her own baby still at the breast. Even in court he continued his entreaties, till the magistrates had him driven away with blows. Perpetua felt his sufferings as her own; when her child was brought to her it seemed to change the prison into a palace; but Christ was dearer to her than father and child. God changed the darkness of prison into light. In vision St Perpetua saw herself and the others going up into Heaven by a ladder, but that first she would have to fight with Satan and overcome him; and another martyr, Saturus, beheld the happiness prepared for them. These things are known from what they themselves wrote down. In accordance with their sentence, these martyrs were first exposed to wild beasts. So "lost in the Spirit" was Perpetua that she did not know she had been tossed by a savage cow. They all had strength to rise and salute each other with the kiss of peace. They were then despatched with the sword, and entered together into the heavenly City.

Strength in Weakness

God puts the example of women before us that we may learn courage in His service. He calls upon us to endure suffering of body and of mind, if it be necessary, to prove our faithfulness to Him; and He promises to uphold us by His strength, His light and His divine encouragement.

“Christ’s martyrs feared neither death nor pain. He triumphed in them who lived in them; and they, who lived not to themselves but for Him, found in death itself the way to life.”—St Augustine.

While St Felicity was in prison she was overtaken by the pains of childbirth; and when she showed that she suffered, one of the heathen asked her how she would endure to be thrown among wild beasts. She replied, “Now it is I who suffer; then Another will be with me and will suffer for me, since I am to suffer for Him.” This is the faith and victory of the saints.

“My grace is sufficient for thee : for power is made perfect in infirmity.”—2 Cor. xii, 9.

7 ST THOMAS AQUINAS

ST THOMAS was born of noble parents at Aquino, near Monte Cassino, about the year 1225. At the age of nineteen, much to the indignation of his family, he received the Dominican habit at Naples, where he was studying. Seized by his brothers on his way to Paris, he suffered a two years’ captivity in their castle of Rocca Secca; but neither the cajolery of his mother and sisters nor the threats of his brothers could shake him in his vocation. Having at length been set free, he went to Cologne to study under St Albert the Great, and after that to Paris, where he taught philosophy and theology for many years. The Church has ever looked on his numerous writings as a treasure-house of sacred doctrine, while in naming him the Angelic Doctor she has indicated that his learning is more divine than human. The rarest gifts of intellect were combined in him with the most profound religion. Prayer, he said, had taught him more than study. His devotion to the Blessed Sacrament shines out from the office and hymns which he composed for Corpus Christi. To the words which he seemed to hear from a crucifix, "You have written about me well, Thomas. What reward would you like?" he replied, "Nothing but yourself, Lord." He died at Fossa Nuova in 1274, on his way to the general council of Lyons, to which Pope Gregory X had summoned him. St Thomas Aquinas was as modest as he was learned.

Chastity

Knowledge of God is for all, but there are hidden treasures reserved for those who have followed the Lamb in perfection.

"I cannot understand how a man can ever smile if he is in a state of mortal sin."—St Thomas Aquinas.

It is related that, while St Thomas was confined at Rocca Secca, his brothers tried to entrap him into sin; but the attempt only ended in his triumph. A lascivious girl was sent to him in his room, and he at once picked up a burning brand from the hearth and drove her away. Then, marking a cross upon the wall, he knelt down to pray, and at length fell asleep. He dreamed that two angels girded him with a cord, in token of the gift of perpetual chastity which God had given him. Hence the cord worn under their clothing by members of the Confraternity of the Angelic Warfare for the preservation of chastity, whose patron St Thomas is; and so it happened that he first was called Angelic.

"The wisdom that is from above is, first, chaste."
—James iii, 17.

8

ST JOHN OF GOD

NOTHING in this John's early life foreshadowed his future sanctity. He ran away as a boy from his home in Portugal, tended sheep and cattle in Spain, and served as a soldier against the French, and afterwards against the Turks. When about forty, feeling remorse for his loose life, he resolved to devote himself to the Christian slaves in Africa, and went there with the family of an exiled nobleman, for whom he worked without wages. On his return to Spain he sought to do good by selling sacred pictures and books at low prices, and the business prospered. But at Granada a sermon by the celebrated John of Avila shook his soul to its depths, and his expressions of self-abhorrence were so wild that he was taken to the lunatic asylum. There John of Avila brought him to his senses, and he employed himself in ministering to the sick. He had found his vocation. He began to collect homeless poor and to support them by his work and by begging. By degrees help flowed in; the bishop became his patron, and gave him the name of John-of-God. When his hospital was on fire John was seen searching uninjured amidst the flames until he had rescued all his patients. After ten years spent in the service of the suffering, his life came to a fitting end. He plunged into the river to save a drowning boy, and died of an illness brought on by the attempt. This was in the year 1550.

The Rewards of Charity

God often rewards men for works that are pleasing in His sight by giving them grace and opportunity to do yet better ones. St John-of-God used to attribute his conversion, and the grace which enabled him to do so much, to what he had done in Africa.

"I have never seen a compassionate and charitable man die a bad death."—St Augustine.

One night St John found in the streets a poor man who seemed near death; he carried him to the hospital, put him to bed, and began to wash him. When he reached his feet he started back with awe; the feet seemed to be pierced and bright with an unearthly radiance. Then he heard a voice saying, "John, all you do for the poor in my name is done for Me. It is my hand that receives your alms; it is my body that you clothe, my feet that you wash." Then the vision disappeared, leaving John filled with confusion and consolation.

"When thou shalt pour out thy soul to the hungry and shalt satisfy the afflicted soul, then shall thy light rise up in the darkness, and thy darkness shall be as the noonday."—Isa. lviii, 10.

9 ST FRANCES OF ROME

FRANCES was born at Rome in 1384. Her parents overruled her desire to become a nun, and married her to Lorenzo Ponziano, a Roman noble. They had several children, and during forty years of married life they never had a disagreement. While spending much time with her sister-in-law in charitable works, Frances attended promptly to every household duty, saying, "A married woman must leave God at the altar to find Him in her housekeeping." It is said that she once found the verse of a psalm in which she had been four times interrupted completed for her in letters of gold. During a famine, having nothing left of her own, she begged food for the poor from her wealthy neighbours, and met with ridicule and contempt for her pains. During the invasion of Rome in 1410, Ponziano was banished, his estates confiscated, and his eldest son taken as a hostage. Frances endured patiently, living in a corner of her ruined home. When peace was restored Ponziano recovered his property, but he was a broken man; two of the children died, and he soon followed them. Frances had already founded a community of Benedictine oblates (it still exists) at Tor de' Specchi, and after her husband's death she begged admission to the community, and was soon elected superioress. She lived always in the presence of God, and died happily in 1440.

Our Guardian Angels

God has appointed an angel to guard each one of us, to whose promptings we are bound to attend. If we listen to his voice here we shall see him hereafter, when he leads us before the throne of God.

“Reverence your guardian angel; do not dare to do before him what you would not dare to do before me.”—St Bernard.

St Frances's angel used to appear to her under the form of a child about eight years of age, and this happened over a period of many years. He shielded her in temptation, and directed her in every good deed. But when she was betrayed into some fault he faded from her sight; and if light words were spoken before her, he covered his face in shame. This vision could not be seen by anyone present except herself.

“His angel hath been my keeper, both going hence and abiding there..., and the Lord hath not suffered me, his handmaid, to be defiled.”—Judith xiii, 20.

10 THE FORTY MARTYRS

THE Forty Martyrs were soldiers quartered at Sebastea in Armenia, about the year 320. When their legion was ordered to offer sacrifice they separated themselves from the rest, and formed a company of martyrs. After they had been imprisoned and tortured with no effect, they were led to a lingering death. It was a cruel winter, and they were condemned to lie naked on the icy surface of a pond till they were frozen to death. But they were undismayed, stripped off their garments, and with one voice besought God to keep their ranks unbroken. "Forty," they cried, "we have come to combat; grant that forty may be crowned." There were a fire and warm baths hard by, and a soldier stood on guard, ready at any moment to bring to the fire any one amongst them who would deny Christ. One gave in and crawled into the bath, but he died at the spot where he expected relief. But the soldier on guard, when he went off duty, dreamed that he saw the thirty-nine crowned by angels, whereupon he was inspired to confess Christ and make up the number of forty again by taking the place of the man who had given in. They remained steadfast while their limbs grew stiff and frozen, and died one by one; those who survived till morning were thrown into the fire.

Strength in Union

All who live the life of grace are one in Christ. But besides this there are many special ties—of family, of community life, of aspirations in prayer and good works. Thank God if He has bound you to others by these spiritual ties; remember "of what spirit you are" (Luke ix, 55) and pray that the bond which unites you here may last for eternity.

“Friendship which is broken by death is no true friendship.”—St Ambrose.

Among the Forty Martyrs one of the youngest was called Melito, and when the officers came to cart away the bodies they found him still breathing. They were moved with pity, and wanted to leave him alive, in the hope that he would still change his mind. But his mother stood by, and she could not bear to see her son separated from the band of martyrs. She called on him to be faithful to the end and herself helped to lift his frozen body into the cart. He was just able to make a sign of recognition, and was borne away to be thrown into the flames with the bodies of his brethren. The text of the last message of these martyrs, written down by one of their number before their passion, is still in existence.

“A brother that is helped by a brother is like a strong city.”—Prov. xviii, 19,

11

ST JOAN OF VALOIS

BORN of the blood royal of France and herself a queen, Joan of Valois led a life remarkable for its humiliations even in the annals of the saints. She was physically small and misshapen, and her father, Louis XI, banished her from his palace, and at an early age, against her own inclination, she was married to the Duke of Orleans. Towards an unworthy husband who disliked her her conduct was most patient and dutiful. By interceding with her brother she saved him from a traitor's death and shortened the captivity which his rebellion had merited. But nothing could win a heart which was hard and calculating. When her husband came to the throne, as Louis XII, his first act was to repudiate one who through twenty-two years of cruel neglect had been his true and loyal wife, and a decree of nullity was pronounced. At this the queen exclaimed, "God be praised! He has allowed this so that I may serve Him better than I have done up to now." She withdrew to Bourges, where she realized her long-formed desire of founding the Order of the Annunciation in honour of the Mother of God. In this St Joan was allowed to be professed without doing a novitiate, but she was not spared to live long in her new-found happiness. She died in 1505. Her feast is on February 4, but the Friars Minor keep it on the 14th.

The Angelus

During the lifetime of St Joan the threefold Angelus was established in France. The sound of the Ave bell thrice each day gave her hope in her sorrow, and encouraged her desire still further to honour the Incarnation. How often might we derive grace from that same beautiful prayer, so encouraged by the Church, yet neglected by so many Christians.

"As nothing was made without the Word, so nothing was remade without Mary, the mother of the Word."—St Damasus.

Under the guidance of her confessor, the Franciscan Bd Gabriel Mary, St Joan was enabled to overcome the serious obstacles which even good people raised against the foundation of her new order. Its chief object was the encouragement of "the ten virtues of our Lady" as exemplified in the mystery of the Incarnation; the superioress was called "Handmaid," in honour of Mary's humility. St Joan built and endowed the first convent of the order, which is under the direction of the Franciscan Friars Minor.

“Evening and morning and at noon I will speak and declare : and he shall hear my voice.”—Ps. liv, 18.

12 ST GREGORY THE GREAT

GREGORY was a Roman of noble birth, and while still young was governor of Rome. But in this office his heart was ill at ease; and on his father's death he gave his great wealth to the poor, turned his house on the Caelian Hill into a monastery, which now bears his name, and for some years lived as a perfect monk. Pope Pelagius II called him from his seclusion to make him one of the seven deacons of Rome; and he did great service to the Church as what we now call “nuncio” to the imperial court at Constantinople. On the death of the pope, Gregory succeeded him, and for fourteen years his pontificate was a model of ecclesiastical rule. Nothing escaped his eye; nothing was too big, nothing too small, for his all-embracing care. He strove with the Lombards who were laying Italy waste, and kindled anew in Britain the light of Christianity which the English had almost put out in blood. He guided and consoled pastors with letters, preached incessantly — most effectually by his own example — and still found time to write. Among his books are a famous instruction for bishops and the no less famous Dialogues, about the holy men of Italy. “Other popes,” wrote St Bede, “applied themselves to building churches or decorating them with precious metals, but Gregory was altogether intent on men's souls.” He died in 604, worn out by austerity and toil; the Church reckons him one of her four great Western doctors, and reveres him as Gregory the Great and the apostle of the English.

The Conversion of England

St Gregory has not forgotten the land he loved so well. He watches over it, prays for it still. Let us join our unceasing, trustful prayers with his, that it may be once again restored to the light of faith and the unity of the Church.

“In very truth no sacrifice is so pleasing to God as zeal for souls.”—St Gregory.

St Bede records the tradition that, while still a monk, the saint was struck by the looks of some boys who were exposed for sale in the Roman slave-market. “Of what race are they?” he asked. “They are Angles.” “Worthy indeed to be angels of God,” said he, “And of what province?” “Of Deira”, was the reply. “Truly we must rescue them from the wrath (de ira) of God. And what is the name of their king?” “He is called Aella.” “It is well,” said Gregory; “Alleluia must be sung to God in their land.” He is said actually to have set out to convert our forefathers, when the murmurs of the people led the pope to recall him. Still, the Angles were not forgotten, and one of the saint’s first cares as pope was to send from his own monastery St Augustine and other monks to England.

“Convert us, O Lord, to thee, and we shall be converted; renew our days, as from the beginning.”—Lam. v, 21.

13 ST ISIDORE OF SKETE

THIS Isidore was another of the hermits of the Egyptian desert, first in Nitria and then in Skete. From his youth he was careful never to leave his cell without good reason, in order to keep his heart in union with God. He said that by so doing he imitated the wild beasts, who found safety in their dens. He constantly said psalms while doing manual labour, and thus sanctified his work by joining prayer with it. He continued to work most of the night even when very aged; and when urged to take more rest he replied, "After what Jesus Christ has done in coming into the world, if Isidore were to be burnt and his ashes scattered to the winds he would not have repaid the debt of gratitude he owes to so good a Master." Isidore took so great care to stifle the very first movements of anger that one day, feeling an angry thought rise in his heart whilst he was selling the baskets he had made, he left them in the market-place and went away. In this way the kindness of his character became such that the most obstinate were touched by it, and the forces of evil feared to come near him. He died in his hermitage about the year 390.

Watch over the Senses

Avoid all occasions of sin; not only those which lead to grave danger, but also such as may give rise to the smallest feelings of anger, vanity or other passions. It was by this means that St Isidore attained to so great perfection.

"The enemy of our souls in his malice does all he can to induce us to sin; let us on our part do all that we ought. Have recourse to prayer, and the enemy will be put to flight. It is by thinking of God that we gain the victory.”—St Isidore.

Isidore once had occasion to visit Theophilus, the bishop of Alexandria. On his return the solitaries asked for news of the town; but he told them he had seen no one but the bishop himself. “Why, father,” they said, “has that great city been destroyed?” “No,” he answered; “but I thought I ought to keep guard over my eyes; so I saw absolutely no one but the bishop.”

“The path of the just departeth from evils; he that keepeth his soul keepeth his way.”—Prov. xvi, 17.

14

ST FRUCTUOSUS

ST FRUCTUOSUS was bishop of Tarragona in Spain in the third century. Little is known of his life, but we are told that he was revered as a great example of the virtues which St Paul requires in a bishop, and that he won the love of heathens as well as Christians. He was arrested for the name of Christ; when he heard the soldiers at the door he got up calmly, with the words, “Arise, let us go,” and was taken to prison, accompanied by two deacons. He spent his time there in prayer; the Christians of his flock visited him and begged his intercession. After five days, when brought before the magistrate, he declared that he worshipped the one God, and would worship no other. His deacons showed the same constancy, and all three were condemned to be burned alive. On his way to execution Fructuosus was offered a cup of wine, which he refused because it was Friday, a day on which Christians, according to the custom of that time, did not eat or drink before three o'clock. At the place of martyrdom he prayed for the whole Catholic Church, consoled his spiritual children, and was then bound to the stake. When the fire burned through the ropes, he fell on his knees, his arms extended like a cross; and in this customary attitude of prayer he breathed forth his soul. St Fructuosus and his deacons suffered in the year 259, on January 21, which is their feast-day.

Perseverance in Prayer

We lose the joy of the Holy Spirit, and we fail in the hour of trial, because we do not pray. Our Lord teaches us to pray always if we are not to faint. If we were men of prayer we should gain the strength we need against our spiritual enemies, and we should be ready to meet them with confidence of victory. "In this," says the Psalmist, "I know that thou hast received me, because my enemy has not rejoiced over me."

"Prayer is the bridge over temptation, an end to sadness, and the earnest of future glory."—St John Climacus.

Prayer made Fructuosus strong and tranquil in martyrdom. "Leave me, my son," he said to one of his clergy, who wanted to take off the bishop's shoes at the stake. "I will do that myself. I am strong and rejoicing, assured of the Lord's promise." And our Lord was indeed faithful to His promise. Fructuosus began Friday with the fast and prayer of the Church militant, and finished it in the joy of the Church triumphant. Two Christians of the magistrate's household had a vision of the martyrs going into Heaven, and sent to tell their master : "but he was not worthy to behold it."

“Know ye that the Lord will hear your prayers, if you continue with perseverance in fastings and prayers in the sight of the Lord.”—Judith iv, 11.

15 ST CLEMENT HOFBAUER

“A VERITABLE apostle, a true saint, and a pillar of the Church”. Thus spoke Pope Pius VII, who knew St Clement personally. He was born in Moravia in 1751, of poor parents, and was apprenticed to a baker; after baking for a monastery for a time he lived as a hermit, till the persecuting laws of Joseph II drove him from his cell. A call to the priesthood led him to Vienna and then to Rome, where he became a Redemptorist, and when ordained priest he went to establish his congregation in Warsaw. After twenty years of apostolic labour he was expelled from Poland by the civil power, and his companions dispersed. Clement then went back to Vienna, and was appointed rector of the Ursuline church. In spite of the restrictions of the state, which was trying to turn the clergy into government officials, he made his parish a centre of real religion and restored the beauty of the house of God. By his fervent preaching he rekindled the devotion of the people, reformed the youth of the city, and converted many, in spite of all the difficulties put in his way by the supporters of “Josephinism.” He was very influential as a confessor, and was sent for by the dying all over the city. St Clement himself was called to God in 1820.

Defence of the Faith

The fearlessness with which St Clement Hofbauer opposed all encroachments attempted upon the Church's freedom and teaching should make us courageous in bearing witness to her authority and upholding her rights whenever we hear them impugned.

“Alas! I am a vain man, proud and ignorant; but at any rate there is one good thing about me—I am every inch a Catholic.”—St Clement Hofbauer.

When Hofbauer was studying at the University of Vienna he one day heard a professor advance an opinion contrary to the teaching of the Church. He at once rose from his seat, and saying “Sir, what you have just said is not Catholic,” left the hall. Years afterwards an aged priest came to him and asked him if he remembered the incident; it was the professor himself, who, though nettled by the frankness of the rebuke at the time, had afterwards come to see that Clement was right and renounced the error.

“Stand fast in one spirit, with one mind labouring together for the faith of the gospel.”—Phil. 1, 27.

16 ST JULIAN OF ANTIOCH

JULIAN was a citizen of Anazarbus in Cilicia, and was arrested there during one or other of the early persecutions. We are told that he was tormented in a variety of ways without effect, and that the governor then devised a trial likely, as he thought, to wear out his patience. For a whole year he led Julian from one place to another in the province, hoping to fill him with shame and wear down his resistance. But the effect was very different. All over the country the sight of Julian encouraged the Christians; his patient suffering was a lesson better than any words he had ever spoken, his shame was a triumph in Jesus Christ, spreading knowledge of the Lord like a perfume. (2 Cor. ii, 14). Nothing was left except to kill him. The judge condemned Julian to a death reserved by the law for parricides. He was sewed up in a sack with vipers and scorpions, and flung into the sea. But neither sack nor snakes nor sea could keep the martyr's soul from Heaven, or destroy the memory of his virtues among the Christians who had seen and known them.

Good Example

There is not one of us who may not be a cause of blessings to others, though not through anything we can do of ourselves. We must learn silence and suffering that we may die to ourselves and become the instruments of Christ.

"The heavens declare God's glory, not because their voice is heard, but because the very sight of them leads man to praise their Creator. So it is, only in a higher way, with the martyrs."—St John Chrysostom.

Christ shines in those who make entire surrender of themselves, and He makes even their dead bodies the instruments of His grace. This Julian is called "of Antioch" because his relics were enshrined in that city. Diseases were cured at his shrine; persons possessed by the devil were healed; others obtained pardon of sins and spiritual gifts through visiting it. "To this day," says Chrysostom, preaching there, "we have the body of the saint, and find it a treasure of innumerable graces."

"For we are the good odour of Christ unto God, in them that are saved and in them that perish. To the one indeed the odour of death unto death, but to the other the odour of life unto life.”—2 Cor. ii, 15-16.

17

ST PATRICK

ST PATRICK was born in Britain about the year 389, and as a youth was carried off to be a slave in Ireland. Amidst the mountains of Antrim his time was given to looking after his master's flocks and, as he tells us himself, to frequent prayer. At the end of six years he escaped, at the age of twenty-two, and, warned by a voice from Heaven, he dedicated himself to the conversion of the Irish people. After twenty years of training in Gaul, he was consecrated bishop, and sailed for Ireland. The great result of his preaching is known throughout the world. He found Ireland heathen, and left it Christian. He encountered the pagan leaders at Tara, and overcame them by "great signs". He converted warrior chiefs and baptized them, with their subjects, in the holy wells which still bear that name. Youths and maidens gave themselves to Christ, schools and churches rose throughout the land. At Armagh he established the bishop's see that is still the leading bishopric of Ireland; and Croagh Patrick where he fasted is still the foremost place of pilgrimage. In the midst of this wonderful success St Patrick's life was what it had always been, one of penance and prayer, his humbleness increasing as he drew near his end. It seems certain that he died in or about 461, at Saul where he had built his first church.

Zeal for the Faith

By the instrumentality of St Patrick the Christian faith is now as fresh in Ireland as when it was first planted. Ask him to obtain for you the special grace of his children, to prefer the loss of every earthly good to the least compromise in matters of faith.

“Your faith is confirmed, not only in men’s hearts, but before men’s eyes. Heaven bears witness to it and earth likewise, the angels in glory and the lost in Hell.”—St Augustine.

Ireland is the nursery whence Patrick sent forth his missionaries and teachers. Lindisfarne bore testimony to the labours of Irish priests and bishops for the conversion of northern England. Iona is to this day the most venerated spot in Scotland. Columban, Gall and many others evangelized the “rough places” of France and Switzerland. In modern times America and Australia owe much of their Christianity to the faith and zeal of the sons and daughters of St Patrick, to say nothing of many foreign-mission lands.

“The sower went forth to sow..., and some fell upon good ground; and they brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, and some thirtyfold.”—Matt. xiii, 3, 8.

18 ST CYRIL OF JERUSALEM

WE know nothing of Cyril’s life until he was ordained priest by St Maximus, bishop of Jerusalem, who gave him the important charge of instructing and preparing candidates for baptism. This he did for several years, and we still have one series of his instructions, given in the year 347 or 348. They are of the greatest interest as being the earliest record of the systematic teaching of the Church on the creed and sacraments, and as having been given in the churches built by Constantine at Mount Calvary and the place of the Resurrection. They are solid, simple, profound; saturated with Holy Scripture; exact, precise and terse; and invaluable as a witness and exposition of the Catholic faith. On the death of Maximus, Cyril was chosen bishop in his place. At the beginning of his episcopate a luminous cross was seen in the air, reaching from Calvary to Olivet, so bright that it shone at noonday. St Cyril wrote an account of it to the emperor, in which he says that "this was no mere fancy. Everybody saw it." Like other great bishops of his time he was persecuted, and even driven from his see several times; but on the death of the Arian Emperor Valens he finally returned to Jerusalem. He died in peace in 386, after an episcopate of thirty-five years, sixteen of which had been spent in exile.

Trust in the Abiding Word

"As a stout staff", says St John Chrysostom, "supports the trembling limbs of a feeble old man, so faith sustains our vacillating mind, lest it be tossed about by sinful hesitation and perplexity."

"You have to contend with misbelievers, with Jews and Samaritans. Your armour is ready; in particular, the sword of the Spirit is to hand. Seize it manfully and fight the Lord's battle."—St Cyril of Jerusalem.

While Cyril was bishop, the apostate Julian resolved to falsify the words of our Lord by rebuilding the temple at Jerusalem. He employed all the resources of a Roman emperor, and did not appeal to Jews for help in vain. Cyril was unmoved. The word of God abides, he said, one stone shall not be laid on another. And so it was. It is not altogether clear exactly what happened—even a pagan historian speaks of preternatural occurrences—but the enterprise had to be abandoned after huge preparations had been made and work begun.

“I have known from the beginning concerning thy testimonies, that thou hast founded them for ever.”—Psalm cxviii, 152.

19

ST JOSEPH

ST JOSEPH was by birth of the family of King David, but he was living in humble obscurity as a carpenter when God raised him to the heights of holiness, fitting him to be the husband of His virgin-mother and foster-father and guardian of the incarnate Word. Joseph, says the Bible, was a just man, a God-fearing-man : he was innocent and pure, as became the husband of Mary; he was gentle and tender, as one worthy to be called the father of Jesus; he was prudent and not talkative, as became the master of the holy household; above all, he was faithful and obedient to divine calls. His conversation was with angels rather than with men. When he learnt that Mary was with child, he feared to take her as his wife; but an angel bade him fear not, and all doubts vanished. When Herod sought the life of the newborn Jesus, an angel told Joseph in a dream to fly with the Child and His mother into Egypt. Joseph at once obeyed. When the danger was past, the angel spoke a third time; and at his bidding the faithful

Joseph returned to the land of Israel, and went to live in Nazareth. It is not known for how long he lived, uniting with his domestic care and daily work the continued contemplation of heavenly things until his task was done; but when he did die, no doubt this great saint breathed his last breath in the arms of Jesus and Mary.

Sanctification of Home

St Joseph, the Eternal Father's shadow upon earth, protector of Jesus in his home at Nazareth, and a lover of all children for the sake of the holy Child, should be the chosen guardian and pattern of every Christian family.

“Be God's house, and He will be yours; let Him dwell in you, and you shall dwell in Him.”—St Augustine.

The happiest homes must have their crosses, and the love of father and mother be strengthened by the afflictions that God allows to come upon them. Mary became our mother in a special sense at the foot of the cross, bringing forth children in sorrow. So with Joseph. The three days' loss of the Boy was a renewal and consecration of his fatherhood. The Holy Ghost had infused into his soul the instincts and feelings of a father, and in his grief for that loss they were perfected. At this moment Mary could dare to give her husband the name of father, and say to her Son at finding Him in the temple, “Thy father and I have sought thee, sorrowing.”

“Who, thinkest thou, is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath appointed over his family?”—Matt. xxiv, 45.

20

ST CUTHBERT

ST CUTHBERT, the memory of whose holy life drew so many of our ancestors to pray at his shrine in Durham Cathedral, was when a shepherd-boy in Northumbria noted for his proficiency at games; and his fondness for them drew down the rebuke of a companion which Cuthbert did not forget. Then, one night when he was fifteen, he had a vision of angels bearing the soul of St Aidan to Heaven, and this eventually led to his becoming a monk at Melrose. After a time he developed into an energetic missionary; he travelled, on horse or foot, throughout Northumbria, teaching not only from hamlet to hamlet but from house to house in those isolated regions. As he thus went about doing good, proclaiming the power of the Gospel with many a miracle, his cheerfulness and loving sympathy attracted everybody. In 665 Cuthbert went with St Eata to the monastery on Lindisfarne, the Holy Island, from whence he carried on his missions as before, until he withdrew to be a solitary on a neighbouring islet. There he remained for nine years, when he was consecrated bishop of Lindisfarne, much against his will. As a bishop "he was still the same man as before", and rapidly wore himself out in the service of God's children. In two short years, feeling death approaching, he betook himself to his former solitude, where he fell asleep in Christ in 687. One of the greatest and most attractive of English saints, he was buried at Lindisfarne abbey; but afterwards his body was removed to the cathedral at Durham, where it still rests.

Peace through Faith

The peace of God, the priceless treasure of the kingdom of Heaven, is realized both in the Christian soul and the Christian Church : to taste its sweetness we must be living members of the Church, thinking and feeling with her in all things.

“Whenever you are tempted against faith, say to Satan : ‘You left the church of the angels, and you want me to leave the church of the saints. Go away! I’ll have nothing to do with you. I belong to Holy Church, and I will never forsake her’.”—St Francis de Sales.

When he was dying St Cuthbert gave their abbot a message for the monks of Lindisfarne, in which he stressed that Christians must be one in faith. “Be of one mind together”, he said, “and live peaceably with other servants of God. Do not turn away any of the faithful who seek your hospitality : treat them kindly and with charity, and do not think yourselves better than others who have the same faith and often live the same life as you do. But do not hold communion with those who err from the unity of the Catholic faith.”

“Being justified therefore by faith, let us have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.”—Rom. v, 1.

21

ST BENEDICT

ST BENEDICT, blessed by grace and in name, was born of a good family at Nursia in Italy about 480. When a young man he was sent to Rome, and there placed in the public schools. Scared by the licentiousness of the Roman youth, he fled to the desert mountains of Subiaco, and was directed by the Holy Spirit to a cave, deep, craggy and almost inaccessible. He lived there for three years, unknown to anyone except a monk, Romanus, who clothed him with the monastic habit and brought him food. But the fame of his life soon brought disciples round him, while parents confided their children to his care. After he had established twelve groups of monks at Subiaco, he removed to Monte Cassino, where he founded an abbey, in which he wrote his monastic rule and lived until death. Through that rule St Benedict became the spiritual father of subsequent monasticism (properly so called) in the Western church. Its moderation commended itself; and its adaptability enabled monks to become missionaries and civilizers throughout Europe and beyond. "If you are really God's servant", Benedict said, "do not bind yourself with an iron chain but with the chain of Christ." At the heart of his rule is prayer, and it was by prayer that he did all things : wrought miracles, saw visions, prophesied. Six days before his death he ordered his grave to be dug, and fell ill. On the sixth day he asked to be borne into the chapel and, having received the Body and Blood of Christ, with hands uplifted in prayer and leaning on one of his disciples, he died. It was about the year 547.

The Power of Prayer

Saints never fear to undertake any work, however arduous, for God because they distrust self and rely wholly upon prayer for assistance and support.

"Whatever good work you begin to do, first ask God earnestly to bring it to a good conclusion."—St Benedict.

A peasant whose boy had just died ran to St Benedict, crying, "Give me back my son". The monks joined the man in his entreaties; but the saint replied, “Such miracles are not for us to do, but for the blessed Apostles. Why do you lay upon me a burden which my weakness cannot bear?” Moved at length by compassion, he stretched himself out on the child’s body, praying from his heart. Then he got up, saying, “Do not look at my sins, Lord, but at the faith of this man, who desires the life of his son. Restore to the body that soul which thou hast taken away.” Hardly had he spoken when the child’s body began to move, and taking him by the hand he restored him alive to his father.

“And Elias measured himself upon the child three times, and cried to the Lord and said, ‘O Lord my God, let the soul of this child, I beseech thee, return into his body.’ And the Lord heard the voice of Elias : and the soul of the child returned into him, and he revived.”—3 Kings xvii, 21-22.

22 ST NICHOLAS OF FLÜE

NICHOLAS, called “of Flüe” from his native village in the Swiss canton of Unterwalden, was born in 1417. His childhood was marked by prayer and penance. Returning late from the fields he would turn aside to some solitary place to be alone with God; and he fasted rigorously, in spite of his parents’ fears. At the age of thirty he married, and brought up a family of ten children. With advancing years his hunger for prayer did but increase : not content with the day, he would steal out at night to pray in a neighbouring church. As a soldier in more than one war, and as counsellor and judge in his own canton, he gave an example of uprightness that impressed all with whom he came in contact. When fifty years old, following an irresistible call, he left home and family, and retired to the mountains. Here God enabled him to lead an extraordinary life : his holiness and spiritual talents drew to him all who needed strength, counsel or consolation. At a critical moment in the history of the Swiss confederation, in 1481, the deputies turned for advice to Bruder Klaus (as he was called), and he resolved a serious difficulty for them. Upon all who came to him with their troubles he urged obedience and peaceableness. St Nicholas of Flüe died peacefully in his hermitage in 1487, and his memory is greatly revered by the Swiss.

Sanctification in our State of Life

As a young man working in the fields, as father of a family, as a soldier, and as a public man, St Nicholas shows that it is possible to reach a high degree of prayer and union with God while living and working "in the world".

"My Lord and God, take from me all that may keep me from you. My Lord and God, give me all that may take me to you. My Lord and God, take me from myself, and give me to yourself."—Prayer of St Nicholas.

When Nicholas was serving in a war against Austria, the Swiss were about to set fire to a Dominican friary which the enemy had strongly fortified. Nicholas implored the commander to hold his hand, saying (as indeed it came to pass) that the enemy would withdraw of their own accord, and that the friary would be a source of great good in time to come. Having prevailed with the commander, he ran to the spot, and at the risk of his life snatched the brands from the soldiers' hands and put out the rising flames. If we have God's glory at heart we can find opportunities of serving it in every state of life.

"I am the Almighty God : walk before me and be perfect."—Gen. xvii, 1.

23

ST TORIBIO

BORN of a noble Spanish family and a brilliant lawyer, Toribio was appointed by King Philip II to be chief judge of the court of the Inquisition at Granada. This office he discharged for five years, with such wisdom and justice that when the archbishopric of Lima fell vacant he was adjudged to be the best qualified man to evangelize Peru, and to remedy the scandals which obstructed the conversion of the Indians there; and this although he was at the time still a layman. Obedience overcame his scruples, and in 1581 he sailed for his distant diocese. His jurisdiction extended along a coast-line of four hundred miles, embracing cities and rough mountain districts. The native population was infamous for debauchery; the Spaniards for cruelty, avarice and extortions. Toribio at once began a visitation of the whole country, which occupied him for years; he travelled, often on foot, over the snows of the Andes and the scorching sands of the coast to the most remote villages; churches, seminaries and hospitals sprang up in his steps. Even on his journeys he offered Mass and confessed daily, and he gave much time to learning the local languages, which most of the clergy had neglected to do. He was especially zealous on behalf of the Indians, and protected them from the tyranny of their conquerors so far as he was able. St Toribio died while on one of his visitations, in 1606. His feast-day is on March 23.

Sympathy with Suffering

No heart has such keen sympathy with the afflicted as the heart of Jesus; in proportion as our hearts are united to His, this sympathy will increase in us.

“Those who love the poor in life shall have no fear of death.”—St Vincent de Paul.

When St Toribio received the news of his appointment to the episcopate he objected that to appoint a layman was uncanonical, and prayed that he might be excused from so heavy a burden. It was not till the miserable condition of the native Peruvians was represented to him that he agreed to accept the office, in order to help them in their troubles. Thus only at the call of charity did he consent to take upon himself the unwelcome honour. His sacrifice ended in a blessed death. He asked for psalms of praise to be sung round him as he lay dying, and with a calm joy gave back his soul to God.

“From my infancy mercy grew up with me, and it came out with me from my mother’s womb.”—Job xxxi, 18.

24 ST IRENAEUS OF SIRMIMUM

IRENÆUS was still young when he was made bishop of Sirmium; but his virtues fitted him for this high office, and in his death he proved himself detached from all save the service of God, a minister who had no need to be ashamed. When brought before the governor of Pannonia during the persecution of Diocletian, he refused to offer sacrifice, and to the threat of torments he replied, "I will bear them gladly that I may share in the passion of the Lord." But another trial awaited him after torture. His friends and relations, mother, wife, children, pressed round him and besought him to take pity on himself. But he was not to be moved; he would not close his ears to his heavenly calling; neither the tears of his loved ones nor imprisonment and fresh torture could cool his desire to die for Christ, whose words he repeated: "If anyone deny me before men, him will I deny before my Father who is in Heaven." Irenaeus hurried on the judge to pass sentence at once, and see how Christ would make His servant victorious over death. As he reached the bridge where he was to be beheaded, he stripped off his clothes, raised his hands to Heaven, and prayed Christ to receive His servant, who suffered for His name and for the people of His Church. This martyrdom took place at present-day Mitrovica in Serbia, in the year 304.

First Things First

Christians are bound to love their relatives and friends; but it must be in God and for God, and when our duty to Him is in question we have no right to put flesh and blood first. Our Lord has taught us in the Gospel what He requires from His disciples. When He called, He expected them to follow. He forbade one of them to go and bury his father, another to bid his family farewell. Perfection is impossible without a certain "detachment".

"Unhappy is the soul who is enslaved by the love of anything that is mortal."—St Augustine.

The judge asked Irenaeus if he had any relations. "None," he replied. "Who, then," said the judge, "were those who stood weeping at your trial?" The martyr explained his meaning : "Our Lord, Jesus Christ," he said, "has given us this rule—'He who loves father and mother more than me is not worthy of me'." And so, looking to God and fixing his mind on His promise, he put everything else behind him, and declared that no one was present with him except God.

"For whosoever shall do the will of my Father that is in Heaven, he is my brother and sister and mother."
—Matt. xii, 50.

25

BD CLARE OF RIMINI

CLARE was the daughter of wealthy parents; she was twice married, and her life up to her conversion was spent in a thoroughly frivolous and worldly way. But one day when she was in the Franciscan church at Rimini our Lady appeared in a vision and seemed to speak to her. "What good", she said, "to your first husband, whom you loved so well, were his honours, his money and his youth, since death has taken him from you and from them?" This opened Clare's eyes to the folly of her life, and she made up her mind. The hairshirt, the sharp discipline were to be hers for the future; she would exchange her comfort and luxury for a small cell, a floor to sleep on, bread and vegetables to eat. To these austerities she added active good works : she served a community of Poor Clares; she would run messages for the poorest; she offered herself to ransom a criminal in the common prison. With the companions whom she had gathered round her she founded a convent in a waste spot by the town wall, but she herself continued her own way of life outside. Ever since her death in 1346 Clare has been venerated in Rimini, where her feast-day is on February 10.

Penance for Venial Sin

We know nothing worse of Clare's life "in the world" than that she lived as the world lives. There are few of us who are not conscious of more grievous sins. And yet compare our penances with hers.

"Can any sin be called light, when every sin involves some defiance of God?"—St Eucherius.

At the beginning of her conversion Bd Clare was often tempted to return to the softness of her old life; but she resisted every impulse of the kind, however harmless in itself, by constant prayer and self-imposed mortifications. Once, having been tempted to some small self-indulgence in eating, she picked up some unattractive insect and swallowed it, saying, "Eat, glutton, eat this tit-bit." She never suffered another temptation with regard to food or drink. This was a mild example of her penances, and there were good people in Rimini who recognized that she sometimes "overdid things."

"And when thou shalt seek the Lord thy God thou shalt find him : yet so if thou seek him with all thy heart and all the affliction of thy soul."—Deut. iv, 29.

26

ST JOHN DE BRITTO

DON PEDRO II of Portugal when a child had among his friends a boy named John de Britto, who had much to suffer from his careless-living companions, to whom his goodness was a reproach. It is said that when he was seriously ill his mother asked the prayers of St Francis Xavier, a saint well loved by the Portuguese, and when he recovered she dedicated the boy to him. From that time John wanted to be a Jesuit and to follow the example of the Apostle of the Indies. He gained his double wish. In 1662 he entered the novitiate of the Society at Lisbon; and eleven years later, in spite of the determined opposition of his family and of the court, he left all to go and preach the Gospel in India. He toiled there for twenty years, amid privations, hardships and persecution. Once he was seized, tortured and nearly killed in the Marava country. At last he fell a victim to a woman's malice. She was one of the several wives repudiated by an Indian prince before his baptism by Father de Britto. She complained to her uncle, a raja, and he threw the priest into prison, where he wrote a noble letter to his colleagues at Madura. A few days later St John was beheaded at Oriur, on 4 February 1693, and on that date his feast is kept.

Fidelity to God's Call

When John's mother knew that her son was going to the Indies, she used all her influence to prevent him leaving his own country, and persuaded the papal nuncio to interfere. "God called me from the world into religious life, and now calls me from Portugal to India," was John's reply. "Not to answer the call would be to provoke Him to wrath. As long as I live I shall never stop trying to get to India."

“It is a great honour and a great glory to serve you, O God, and to despise all things for you. They who freely subject themselves to your most holy service shall have great grace.”—Imitation of Christ.

John entered the novitiate on Christmas-day, and with his brethren laid his supplication at the crib, begging to be sent to Japan to labour long years amidst sufferings and hardships, and then to give his blood for the faith of Jesus Christ. These desires, he used to say, he owed to St Francis Xavier; and to them he was faithful to death.

“And the Lord said to Abram : ‘Go forth out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and out of thy father’s house, and come into the land which I will show thee’... So Abram went out as the Lord had commanded him.”
—Gen. xii, 1, 4.

27 ST JOHN OF DAMASCUS

THE great city of Damascus had been taken by the Saracens. They were indulgent to Christians, and St John’s father was an important government official. John was born about 690, and educated with great care by a learned Greek monk, who had been brought as a slave to Damascus. On his father’s death John succeeded to his office, but after some years he resigned, and went to be a monk at Mar Saba, near Jerusalem. It was probably at this time that he wrote his three treatises, of much force and beauty, in defence of holy images, whose use and veneration was under serious attack. His life is a record of prayer, labour and obedience, and the cell is still shown in which he lived and wrote at Mar Saba. His great work On the Orthodox Faith is the first attempt at a compendium of dogmatic or scientific theology, and was a text-book and model to succeeding ages. His homilies show great fervour and tenderness, especially when he speaks of the Mother of God, and he and another monk composed the words and music of many hymns together. This was disapproved of in the monastery, for to write poetry, even religious poetry, was looked on as frivolous in a monk. But some of St John's hymns are still sung. He was called to Jerusalem as a preacher but soon came back to Mar Saba: he preferred writing to speaking. St John of Damascus died about 749; he is accounted a doctor of the Church and the last of the Greek fathers.

Reverence for Holy Images

"I express the deeds and sufferings of the saints in pictures," said St John. "I grow holier from the sight, and am strengthened to imitate them."

"We revere your flesh, Lord, not because it is flesh, but because it is yours. We revere your passion, your image, and all that is yours—your servants, your friends, and above all your true Mother."—St John of Damascus.

The Damascene points out that under the old covenant no temple was dedicated to God in the name of a man; no man's death was the occasion of anything but mourning. But under the new covenant the memory of the blessed is held in honour, so that "mourning for a Jacob" is changed into "rejoicing for a Stephen." We do not give divine honour and worship to sacred images—that would be idolatry. The image is a mirror in which we dimly see the reflection of Him whom alone we worship.

“Their bodies are buried in peace, and their name liveth unto generation and generation.”—Ecclus. xliv, 14.

28 ST JOHN OF CAPISTRANO

ST JOHN was born in 1385, at Capistrano in the kingdom of Naples. At the age of thirty an unjust imprisonment opened his eyes to the vanity of the world, and he entered the Franciscan friary at Perugia. After an exceptionally rigorous training he was ordained priest and sent out to preach. On one meal a day, except when a particularly fatiguing journey obliged him to take more, and with his night's rest curtailed to three or four hours' sleep upon bare boards, he preached throughout Italy, Austria, Poland, and elsewhere for nearly forty years. People thronged in crowds to hear him, and to act on what they heard. His words did not cease to be effective when they had to be translated because he could not speak the local language. Faith and devotion revived wherever he went, and he was specially sent for to counteract the Hussite sectaries in the imperial dominions. John spent his last years in rallying the Hungarians to oppose the advancing Turks. In 1456 their army confronted the triumphant Turkish forces on the banks of the Danube. After stirring them to enthusiasm by his fiery exhortations, the friar put himself at the head of the troops, crucifix in hand, and they won a complete victory against overwhelming odds. John died soon after, worn out by his exertions, for he was seventy years old.

The Ministry of the Word

Some sermons are pleasanter to listen to than others; but we should try and persuade ourselves that the word of God in sermons has an especial grace over and above the merit of the preacher. Devotion to God's word is one of the signs that He has chosen us : "He that is of God heareth the words of God. Therefore you hear them not, because you are not of God."

"Pay little attention to the defects of the preacher; if only he speak the truth, receive that truth as coming from God its fountain-head : do not trouble about the channel through which it flows."—Blosius.

St John of Capistrano's sermons often ended in his healing the sick that were brought to him. At one sermon in Vienna he healed twenty persons. "The object of this showing forth of visible wonders", to use St Gregory's words, "was that they might draw the hearts of beholders to believe in what they did not see, so that through the seeing of an external miracle some understanding might be obtained of the greater miracle within."

"Therefore we also give thanks to God without ceasing : because that when you had received of us the word of the hearing of God, you received it not as the word of men, but (as it is indeed) the word of God, who worketh in you that have believed."—1 Thess. ii, 13.

29 SS. MONTANUS AND FLAVIAN

SOON after the death of St Cyprian about the middle of the third century, eight Christians who had been his disciples fell into the hands of the persecutors at Carthage. In a letter that is still extant, they tell us that they used the time of their imprisonment to fit themselves for Heaven by fellowship in prayer and charity, and found their loathsome dungeon a place of delight. Charity was ever on their lips and in their actions. One of their number, Flavian, so loved his brethren that, when they were all suffering from hunger, he used to put by a portion of his scanty allowance so that there might be more for the rest. But this charity shone brightest in the hour of death. Two of them died in prison. The rest were led out to be beheaded, except Flavian, who was spared for the time and was full of grief at this separation. Just before his head was struck off, Montanus, another among them, prayed that Flavian might join them in three days; then he tore in two the bandage for his eyes, and left one half for him. In three days Flavian suffered too. He blessed the Christians who stood by, and urged them to keep in the unity of the Church and the bond of charity. Then he bound his eyes with the other half of the bandage which Montanus had left him, and knelt for the stroke of the sword. The feast-day of these martyrs is February 24.

Brotherly Love

Love of our brethren is the great means of growing in the love of God. Supernatural charity is not easy; it costs many a sacrifice : but it is worth them all. It is the way to peace, the way to the graces which will enable us to conquer our temptations and do great things for God. Martyrdom is the crowning act of the love of God, and the martyr's crown was given to those who had been fervent disciples in the school of charity.

“Let us keep the bond of charity, and we shall obtain all that we ask from God.”—From the Acts of these Martyrs.

We see from the history of these martyrs how their perseverance hung upon the maintenance of true charity. Montanus had some disagreement with Julian, and they behaved rather coldly to one another. Then Montanus in a dream seemed to stand in the white-robed army of the martyrs in Heaven; but when he looked at himself he saw the dirty mark of his fault within. When he woke up, he went straight to Julian and was reconciled with him.

“If God hath so loved us, we also ought to love one another.”—I John iv, 11.

30

ST JOHN CLIMACUS

JOHN was possibly a Palestinian, and probably lived married “in the world” before he went to the monastery of Mount Sinai and put himself under the direction of an experienced monk. Never was novice more fervent and more unrelaxing in his efforts for self-mastery. After four years he took the vows, and an aged abbot foretold that he would some day be a great light of the Church. On the death of his director, John withdrew into a deeper solitude, where he studied the lives and writings of the saints, and was raised to an unusual height of contemplation. The fame of his holiness and practical wisdom drew many to him for advice and encouragement, and he in turn visited the hermits in Egypt. At the age of seventy he was chosen abbot of Mount Sinai, and there "he dwelt in the mount of God, and drew from the treasure of his heart priceless riches of doctrine, which he poured forth with wondrous abundance and blessing." He was induced by a brother abbot to write a work on religious perfection; this book, called the Climax (or Ladder) of Perfection, is notable for its wisdom and its clearness, and it was very popular for centuries (its title accounts for the author's surname). When he could no longer endure the distractions of his office, St John again retired to his solitude, where he died about 649.

Mounting the Ladder

"Do not, brother," says the Imitation of Christ, give up hope of attaining to the spiritual life : you still have the time and the means."

"Aim at being as absolute in your own heart as a king is in his kingdom; and be as much raised above yourself by your reason's rule over your passions as you are brought beneath God by humble and perfect subjection to His supreme power."—St John Climacus.

"Among these men," St John writes of the solitaires of the desert, "I saw many whose heads were white with age and whose faces were like the faces of angels. By their fervour of spirit and converse with God they had attained a simplicity of wisdom and an innocence which had nothing in common with the decay of intelligence and the second childishness we often see in old men of the world. Outwardly they were marked by great gentleness and a quiet gaiety of heart : nothing studied, nothing 'put on'; inwardly their soul was turned towards God, like simple, innocent children to a loving father."

"How blessed is the man who finds his strength in thee! Where there are hearts set on pilgrimage, the parched ravine turns into a water-course at their coming."—Ps. lxxxiii, 6.

31

ST APOLLONIA

AT Alexandria in 249 the mob rose in savage fury against Christians. Metras, an old man, was the first to perish; his eyes were pierced with splinters, and he was stoned to death. A woman named Quinta was the next victim. She was led to a temple and bidden to worship. She replied by abusing the idol, and she too was stoned to death. The houses of Christians were sacked and plundered, but none resisted and none were known to apostatize. St Apollonia, an aged deaconess, was the most famous among these martyrs. Her teeth were beaten out; then a fire was kindled, and she was told that she must deny Christ, or else be burnt alive. She was silent for a while, and then, moved, says St Augustine, by a special inspiration of the Holy Ghost, she leapt into the fire and died in its flames. The same courage showed itself the next year, when Decius became emperor and persecution grew in intensity. Then there were indeed many Christians who came pale and trembling to offer heathen sacrifice. But the judges were struck with horror at the numbers who did accept martyrdom, and executed them quickly to save their own face. The feast-day of St Apollonia (who is invoked against toothache) is kept on February 9.

Desire for Martyrdom

Many saints who were not martyrs (St Philip Neri among them) have longed to shed their blood for Christ. We too may pray for something of their spirit; and the least suffering for the faith borne with humility and courage is the proof that Christ has heard our prayer.

“On us sinners too, who trust in your countless mercies, bestow some part and share with your holy apostles and martyrs.”—Canon of the Mass.

The story of Dioscorus illustrates the courage of the Alexandrian Christians and their joy in martyrdom. He was a boy of fifteen, but his resistance could be overcome neither by cajolery nor blows. His older companions were executed, but Dioscorus was spared on account of his youth; the Christians could not but think that he had been deprived of the martyr's crown only to receive it afterwards more gloriously. “Dioscorus,” writes St Dionysius, bishop of Alexandria at this time, “remains with us, reserved for some longer and severer contest.”

“For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel shall save it.”—Mark viii. 35.

1 ST PAUL THE SIMPLE

A PEASANT, whose wife was unfaithful to him, abandoned to her all he had and fled into the Egyptian desert. After journeying for eight days he found St Antony's cell, and determined he too would be a monk. This man was Paul, surnamed "the Simple", Antony's most celebrated disciple. Antony at first refused to receive him, but Paul stood outside praying patiently for three days and nights until he relented. But Antony really thought Paul was too old to be a monk (he was sixty), so he set a specially severe period of trial for him. To start with he laid a meal, to which they sat down, but got up again without tasting it. He bade him weave palm-leaves all next day, and not till that evening did they break their fast. Antony gave him one disagreeable job after another—weaving baskets and then pulling them to pieces, tearing his clothes and mending them, spilling honey and gathering it up : but never did Paul falter in his obedience. Delighted with his fervour, Antony at length built a cell three miles from his own, where Paul spent the rest of his life. Paul in some respects surpassed his master, who sometimes sent him cases too hard to deal with himself. It appears that Paul could read men's minds, and could tell at a glance whether, a fellow monk's thoughts were good or bad. He died about the year 340, and his feast-day is March 7.

Singleness of Heart

We have only one thing to do—the will of God; one thing to fear—offence against God; one thing to hope for—the possession of God. Our actions should have but one motive—the glory of God. All our loves must be bound up in one—the love of God. Can we truly say, as Paul could have done, that this is a description of our lives?

“Paul puts us all to shame : for we do not listen to the commands of God on high, while he obeys every word that drops from my lips.”—St Antony the Great.

Paul was called “simple” not only because he was childlike but also because of his lack of knowledge. He once asked in front of some visiting monks whether the prophets lived before or after our Lord. Antony was vexed at his disciple’s display of ignorance, and told him to hold his tongue and go away. Hours afterwards, when Antony had forgotten all about the incident, he discovered that Paul had not uttered a word since. It was then that Antony spoke the words just quoted.

“The simplicity of the just shall guide them.”—Prov. xi, 3.

2 ST FRANCIS OF PAOLA

ABOUT 1431 this Francis, named after Francis of Assisi, left his home at Paola in Calabria to live as a hermit in a cave by the sea. In time disciples gathered round him, and with them he founded the "Minims," so called to show that they wanted to be looked on as the least (minimi) of religious. They observed a perpetual Lent, and never touched meat, fish, eggs or milk. Francis himself set the example in their austere life, and as his body weakened his faith grew powerful, and he "did all things in Him who strengthened him." He cured the sick, expelled evil spirits, brought sinners to penance. When King Ferdinand of Naples offered him money for his friary, Francis told him to give it back to his oppressed subjects, and for a time Ferdinand was his bitter enemy. Louis XI of France, terrified at the approach of death, sent for Francis in the hope that he could ward off the foe whose advance neither his fortresses nor his guards could check. Francis went by the pope's command, and the king underwent a change of heart and died in his arms. Charles VIII was equally attached to Francis of Paola and his order, and the saint spent the rest of his life in France, dying there in 1507. A French bishop told Pope Leo X that Francis "told me many things that were known only to God and myself."

Reliance on God

Rely on God in all difficulties. That which enabled St Francis to do miracles will, in proportion, do wonders for you by giving you strength and consolation.

"All creatures obey those who serve God with a perfect heart."—St Francis of Paola.

A priest, egged on by some misguided monks, set to work to preach against Francis of Paola, who took no notice of it. The preacher, finding that he made no way with his hearers, determined to see and confound him in person. The saint received him kindly, gave him a seat by the fire, and listened to a long exposition of his own fraudulent miracles. He then quietly took some embers from the fire and, closing his hands upon them unhurt, said, "Come, Father Antony, warm yourself : you are shivering for want of a little charity." Father Antony withdrew his charges and became an admirer of Francis. There are other examples related of his immunity from the effects of fire.

"The Lord God is my helper; therefore am I not confounded."—Isa. l, 7.

3 ST RICHARD OF CHICHESTER

RICHARD was born about 1197 in the town of Droitwich, not far from Worcester. He and his elder brother, Robert, were left orphans when young, and Richard gave up the studies which he loved to farm his brother's impoverished estate. Robert, in gratitude for Richard's successful care, proposed to make over all his lands to him; but he refused both estates and a marriage to study at Oxford. In 1235 he was appointed chancellor of that university, and afterwards by St Edmund of Canterbury chancellor of his diocese. He stood by that saint in his long contest with King Henry III, and accompanied him into exile in France; here he was ordained priest, being then well over forty. After Edmund's death Richard returned to England to be parish-priest at Deal, but was soon elected bishop of Chichester in preference to the worthless nominee of Henry III. The king refused to recognize the election, and seized the revenues of the see. Thus Richard found himself fighting the same battle as had St Edmund. He went to Lyons and was there consecrated by Pope Innocent IV in 1245. For some years Richard had to contend with the king's active hostility, but eventually Henry recognized him as bishop. He died at Dover in 1253, while preaching a crusade against the Saracens.

Faithfulness

As a brother, as chancellor, and as bishop, St Richard faithfully performed each duty of his state without a thought of his own interests. Neglect of duty is the first sign of that self-love which ends in loss of grace.

"I am your servant, Lord, ready to obey you in all things : I do not want to live for myself, but for you. May I do so fully and faithfully!"—Imitation of Christ.

Young and old loved St Richard. He gave all he had to feed the poor and heal the sick; but when the rights and integrity of the Church were concerned he was inexorable. A priest of noble blood was an open sinner : Richard deprived him of his benefice, and refused the king's plea in his favour. On the other hand, when a knight violently put a priest in prison, Richard compelled the knight to walk round the priest's church with the same log of wood on his neck to which he had chained the priest; and when the burgesses of Lewes seized a criminal in a church and hanged him, Richard made them dig up the body from its unconsecrated grave and take it back to the sanctuary they had violated.

"It is required among the dispensers [of God's word] that a man be found faithful."—1 Cor. iv, 2.

4 ST ISIDORE OF SEVILLE

ISIDORE was born about the year 557 at Cartagena in Spain. His two brothers, Leander, bishop of Seville, and Fulgentius, bishop of Ecija, and his sister Florentina, are also venerated as saints. When a boy he was discouraged by his poor progress at school, and ran away. Resting at a roadside spring, he noticed a stone which was hollowed out by the slow drip of water. He took the hint, went back to his master, and with God's help became one of the most learned men of the time. That master was his brother Leander, who was very strict with him. Isidore succeeded Leander in the see of Seville, and completed his work of converting the heretical Visigoths in Spain and organizing the Church there. For thirty-six years he laboured as teacher, ruler, founder and reformer; of the monasteries which he founded the chief one was near Seville, where many saints were trained. St Isidore died in 636, and many centuries later was declared a doctor of the Church by the Holy See. Among his works was a sort of encyclopaedia, which was a popular text-book all through the middle ages.

Fear of Flattery

The strength of temptation often lies in the fact that its object is something flattering to our pride, agreeable to our laziness, or attractive to the meaner passions. St Isidore teaches us to listen neither to the promptings of nature nor the plausible advice of friends when they contradict the voice of God.

“Strengthen your hearts in the love of Christ, the Son of God, and do not be caught by the wiles of those who go round sea and land to make one convert to their own ideas.”—St Isidore.

When St Isidore retired into solitude at one time every effort was made to persuade him to come out again; emphasis was laid on the needs of the times and the good he could do, and had already done, among the people. He refused; and, as far as we can judge, that refusal gave him the necessary opportunity of acquiring the virtue and power which afterwards made him an illustrious bishop and doctor of the Church.

“Pleasing speeches and good words seduce the hearts of the innocent.”—Rom. xvi, 18.

5 ST VINCENT FERRER

THIS wonderful apostle, of English or Scottish descent, was born at Valencia in Spain in 1350, and at the age of eighteen was clothed in the Dominican Order. After a brilliant course of study he became master of sacred theology; for three years he read only the Scriptures, and knew the Bible by heart. Grief at the great schism in the papacy then tearing the Church apart overwhelmed him; but our Lord bade him go forth to convert sinners, “for my judgement is nigh.” This wonderful apostolate lasted twenty years. He preached in many countries of western Europe, and everywhere thousands of sinners were reformed, Jews, infidels and heretics converted. Astonishing miracles enforced his words, and he seems to have had the gift of tongues, as well as a voice of remarkable range. People used to follow him from place to place, and some of them were organized, as “Penitents of Master Vincent,” to help him in his missions. Religious houses, orphanages, hospitals arose in his path, and amidst it all his humility remained profound, his prayer constant. Towards the end

Vincent was again drawn into the affairs of the papacy, and contributed towards bringing the schism to an end. He fell ill at Vannes in Brittany and died there, in 1419.

The Power of God's Word

"Whatever you do," said St Vincent, "do not think of yourself, but of God." In this spirit he preached, and God spoke by him; in this spirit, if we listen, we shall hear the voice of God.

"I must fulfil the commands I have received from God : He has commanded me to preach the judgement to all peoples."—St Vincent Ferrer.

St Vincent Ferrer always prepared for preaching by prayer. Once, however, when somebody important was to be present at his sermon, he neglected prayer for study. The nobleman was not particularly struck by the discourse which had been thus carefully worked up; but on a second occasion, when Vincent did not know he was there, the sermon made a deep impression on him. When St Vincent heard of this he remarked that in the first sermon it was Vincent who had preached, but in the second, Jesus Christ.

"Take no thought how or what to speak... for it is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you."—Matt. x, 19-20.

6

ST PAMBO

PAMBO chose in youth the life of a solitary in the Egyptian desert. Full of the fear of God, he was never seen to lose his recollection; he never spoke without thinking; and when consulted upon any spiritual matter he replied that he did not know what to say, and then took time to pray and reflect. He sometimes waited three months before giving an answer, until God taught him what he should say. The brethren in consequence received his words as if they came from God. When a solitary asked if it was not good to praise others, he answered that "it is still better to be silent." Pambo used to pray that God would not glorify him before men : but this prayer was not heard, for his face often appeared so majestic and shining as to impress those who looked at him. St Athanasius sent for him to testify in Alexandria to the divinity of Jesus Christ, and received him with great honour. But, unlike some monks and ascetics, Pambo did not have a narrow outlook on other ways of life; "There are other ways of perfection besides being a monk," he told his brethren. At his death he said he had always lived by his own labour and did not remember saying a word he repented of, but that he seemed not to have yet begun to serve God. He died about the year 390, and his feast-day is on July 18.

Control over the Tongue

We may often think the saints' self-denial and mortifications beyond our strength, but we can emulate the guard they kept over their tongue : this is within the reach of all.

"It is good to fast and to give alms from the work of your hands, but this will not make you a monk. If you are careful never to offend against charity you will save your soul."—St Pambo.

Pambo left the world before he had learnt to read. He asked a solitary to teach him some psalms by heart.

His first lesson was the words, "I said I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue." "That will do for today," said Pambo, "I will come back for another lesson when I know this one." Six months afterwards the solitary met him and asked him why he had not yet returned, and Pambo replied that he had not yet learnt his first lesson. In after life he told a friend it had taken him nineteen years to master it.

"I was dumb and was humbled, and kept silence from good things."—Ps. xxxviii, 3.

7

BD HERMAN JOSEPH

FROM his early childhood in Cologne Bd Herman showed the deepest love for our Lady, playing in church before her image and carrying on conversations with her : the many visions and anecdotes related of him were full of the innocent simplicity that marked the whole of his life and character, and some of them afterwards became popular subjects among poets and painters. He entered the Norbertine monastery at Steinfeld, and there found that waiting at table and other domestic duties left him little time for prayer; but he was reassured by a vision, in which Mary told him that nothing is more pleasing to God than to wait upon others in charity. Then he was made sacristan, a job after his own heart, since it meant spending so much time in the church, and in due course he was ordained priest; he was constantly being rapt out of himself while celebrating Mass. In his later years he wrote a number of hymns and prayers and spiritual treatises. In common with other mystics, Herman's "practical" side was well-developed. He was, in fact, a good mechanic, and went from house to house of his order looking after the clocks : doubtless this was one more source of fruitful meditation on the fleetingness of earthly things. He suffered much from ill-health, borne with courage and patience, and eventually died while ministering for a convent of nuns in Holy Week 1241.

Childlike Devotion to Mary

Do not approach our Mother in Heaven in set forms only. Speak familiarly to her; confide in her; commend every want and undertaking, small as well as big, to her prayers, with childlike reliance and trustful appeal.

“I do not promise to make you happy in this life, but in the next.”—Our Lady, to Bernadette.

The name Joseph was added to Herman by Bd Herman's fellow novices at Steinfeld, because of the blamelessness and innocence of his life. This was very disturbing to his modesty; but it is said that the name was confirmed by a vision, in which our Lady appeared and mystically bound him to herself with a ring, as representing an earthly Joseph. This story is the subject of a well-known picture by Van Dyck.

“Amen I say to you, unless you be converted and become as little children, you shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.”—Matt. xviii, 3.

8

ST COLETTE

COLETTE was of humble birth, at Corbie in Picardy in 1381, and after her parents' death she joined a society of devout women; but not finding their state sufficiently austere, she entered the third order of St Francis, and lived in a hermitage near her parish church. Here she had passed four years of penance when St Francis, in a vision, bade her restore the observance of the original rule of the Poor Clares. Armed with due authority, she travelled about and, in spite of violent opposition, founded seventeen convents of the strict observance and reformed many others. Her remarkable successes were in France, Burgundy and Flanders, and behind them all lay her life of intense prayer. She was frequently rapt in ecstasy, especially at Mass, and a number of supernatural visions are recorded of her. She was herself professed as a Clare, and her love for children and animals was a faithful reflection of the spirit of St Francis; convents of her reform still exist. St Colette lived at the time when the Church was convulsed by the existence of three claimants to the papal chair, and this schism was a matter of terrible distress to her, as to all faithful Christians. She saw the matter composed by the election of Pope Martin V, but trouble again broke out; and we read that Colette died, in 1447, in a transport of intercession for sinners and for the suffering Church. Her feast is kept on March 6.

Prayer for the Holy See

One of the great tests of being a good Catholic is zeal for the Church's welfare and devotion to Christ's vicar, the Pope.

"Let us pray for our pope, N... : May the Lord watch over him and fill him with life, give him happiness on earth and deliver him from his enemies." — From the Litany of the Saints.

St Colette never ceased to pray for the Church, and her prayer never ceased to be beset with difficulties. She felt herself surrounded by the spirits of evil, who seemed to attack her physically, while at other times she was grievously tempted to sin. But she triumphed alike over threats and allurements, and said she would count that day the unhappiest of her life in which she suffered nothing for God.

“Peter therefore was kept in prison. But prayer was made without ceasing by the church unto God for him.”—Acts xii, 5.

9 SS. APOLLONIUS AND PHILEMON

IN the persecution of Diocletian, Apollonius, an Egyptian deacon, was instrumental in converting a popular entertainer named Philemon. They were brought before a judge, Arrian, who sentenced them to death, and they were drowned in the sea at Alexandria. In later ages this simple story of martyrdom was much embroidered. It was said that Apollonius got frightened and asked Philemon, a pagan, to sacrifice to the gods in his place. This Philemon prepared to do, but then was struck to the heart, confessed Christ, persuaded Arrian the judge that he was in earnest, and took his place by the side of Apollonius, who had repented of his weakness. Arrian tortured Apollonius and reproached him as a deceiver, and when he got no answer except a prayer for his conversion, he ordered him to be burnt alive. But rain extinguished the flames, and Arrian, at the sight of this and other strange wonders, was changed from a persecutor to a martyr.

He was led before the prefect of Egypt, and was thrown into the sea at Alexandria along with Philemon and Apollonius. The saints' feast-day is on March 8.

Meekness

We often wonder why the arguments we use with non-Catholics or with unbelievers bear so little fruit. It is because we think too much of ourselves, too little of charity and of truth. We should forget ourselves, and learn to be humble and meek. Then Christ will speak in us, and our words will be words of power.

“Our King conquered the Devil by meekness. The Devil raged; Christ suffered. He who raged was overcome; He who suffered overcame.”—St Augustine.

We are told that when the prefect of Egypt sent orders that Apollonius, Philemon and Arrian should be led in chains to Alexandria, he chose the most brutal of his officers to take them. These men were not moved by talk of miracles or by a conversion so extraordinary as that of Arrian. But Apollonius spoke to them on the way, and with such effect that they too confessed Christ, and were martyred with their prisoners. They were subdued by the strength of a man who had learnt to subdue himself.

“Learn of me, because I am meek and humble of heart.”—Matt. xi, 29.

10 ST MICHAEL DE SANCTIS

MICHAEL was a native of Spain, born about 1590. As a child he determined to be a religious when he grew up, and when his mother told him about St Francis of Assisi he tried to imitate that saint, in ways unsuitable to his age. After his parents' death, his guardian apprenticed him to a merchant, whom Michael served faithfully; he spent all his leisure time in church, and was even then found in ecstasy before the Blessed Sacrament. Eventually he entered the Trinitarian Order at Barcelona, and in due time was professed. A few months after his profession a call from God led him to exchange into the stricter, barefooted, branch of the same order. The vow of virginity which he had now renewed for life was blessed by God. He is said to have been remarkably free from temptations, yet he chastised his body with constant austerities; for years he deprived himself of bed or pillow, so that he might literally have not where to lay his head. The Blessed Sacrament was the centre of all his devotions, and the inspiration of the innocence and charity of his life. St Michael spent much time labouring in the hospitals and prisons, and died at an early age in 1625.

Preparation for Holy Communion

The saints made their whole lives a preparation for communion, and never felt themselves prepared. We give a short half hour, and are perfectly content.

“Do what you are able, and do it diligently : not simply from habit or necessity, but with awe and reverence and love, receive the Body of your dear Lord God who is pleased to come to you.”—Imitation of Christ.

Some people said that St Michael's unusual devotion before the Blessed Sacrament was exaggeration and hypocrisy. Among these was a priest named Fernandez. One day, when Michael was preaching on preparation for holy communion, Fernandez sat listening with inward derision. Suddenly he saw the saint raised above the pulpit, and heard him say in a tone of deep penitence, "Woe is me!" These words and the emotion that accompanied them struck deep into the heart of Fernandez, for he felt that they expressed his own state. He repented sincerely of his irreverence towards our Lord, and for the rest of his life was fond of repeating the words which had so moved his soul.

"The work is great, for a house is prepared, not for man, but for God."—I Par. xxix, 1.

11

ST LEO THE GREAT

LEO was born at Rome, where he was made deacon by Pope St Celestine I, and under him and Sixtus III had very responsible duties in the Church. On the death of Sixtus, Leo was chosen pope, and consecrated bishop in 440. It was a time of terrible trial. Vandals and Huns were wasting the provinces of the Empire, and Nestorians, Pelagians and other heretics wrought grievous harm to religion. Whilst Leo's zeal made head against these perils, there arose the new heresy of Eutyches, who taught falsely regarding the two natures of Christ. Leo set out the true doctrine of the Incarnation in his famous "tome," but the heresy gained a strong hold amongst many Eastern monks and bishops. After three years of unceasing toil, Leo brought about its solemn condemnation by the Council of Chalcedon, the fathers signing his tome and exclaiming, "Peter has spoken by Leo!" Soon after, Attila with his Huns broke into Italy, and marched through its burning cities upon Rome. Leo went out boldly to meet him, and prevailed on him to turn back in return for tribute. Three years later the city fell a prey to the Vandals; but even then Leo saved it from a general massacre. St Leo was one of the greatest of the popes, fearless, strong and straightforward, a good theologian who avoided needless speculation, always acutely conscious of his responsibilities as St Peter's successor. He died in 461, and is venerated as a doctor of the Church.

Devotion to St Peter

Leo was happy to ascribe the fruits of his unsparing labours to the prayers of the great chief of the Apostles, who, he declared, lives and governs in his successors.

“In return for their sufferings and to show forth their merits the martyrs have been given the privilege of helping those in danger, driving away sickness, putting evil spirits to flight, healing numberless infirmities. Who, then, can have so unenlightened or so grudging an estimate of blessed Peter's glory as to think that there is any part of the Church which is not directed by his solicitude, which is not prospered by his aid?”—St Leo.

Astonished to see the terrible Attila, the “Scourge of God,” fresh from the sack of Aquileia, Milan, Pavia, with Rome within his grasp, turn his great host back to the Danube at Leo's word, his chiefs asked him why he had acted so strangely. It is said that he replied that he had seen, standing beside Leo, a majestic pontiff, who with drawn sword and terrifying gesture threatened him unless he did the saint's bidding. If the perils of the Church are as great now as in St Leo's day, St Peter's watchfulness is not less.

“ ‘Simon, son of John, lovest thou me?’ ... ‘Lord, thou knowest all things : thou knowest that I love thee’ ... ‘Feed my sheep.’ ”—John xxi, 17.

12 ST SABAS THE GOTH

SABAS was a Goth at the place now called Targoviste, in Rumania, where he was an ordained reader. He was poor in the world's goods but rich in virtue, and he proved his fidelity three times under persecution. On the first of these occasions he induced many Christians to confess the faith openly, instead of pretending to eat food offered to idols, and thus outwitting the persecutors. On another, when the leading townsmen of the place swore they had no Christians among them, he said openly, "Let no man swear for me; I am a Christian." The persecutors spared his life, but the third time his insignificance did not save him. In the year 372 he was going to help celebrate the Easter feast at a distance, when he was prevented by what seemed to be an interposition from Heaven. So he kept the festival at home, and three days later he was arrested as a Christian. He was dragged naked over rough ground to prison, and after other torments sentenced to die by drowning. He stood alone on the riverbank with the guards, and they were inclined to let him go, for he seemed harmless enough and nobody need know. But Sabas would have none of it : "Do your duty," he said, "I see what you cannot see—people waiting for me on the other shore ready to receive me into glory." So he was thrown into the water, and held down by a pole till he was dead.

Faithful Service

We entangle ourselves in many troubles because we try to serve two masters instead of following Christ with simplicity. Let us ask Him for single-heartedness, through the intercession and example of the holy martyrs.

“Do not follow any road but that which Christ trod. This way seems hard, but it is safe.”—St Augustine.

The blood of the martyrs was the seed of the Church in the early ages because Christians studied the lives of the martyrs, celebrated their feasts with devotion, and encouraged themselves by their example. The great St Basil asked a friend to send him relics of the Gothic martyrs, and in due course he received those of St Sabas for his own church in Cappadocia. At the same time the Christians there received a letter from their brethren in Dacia, inviting them to rejoice in the Church's new martyr and celebrate the Holy Mysteries on his feast-day. Basil received the relics with joy, thanking God who waters the Church with martyrs' blood and encourages those who remain by the example of those who have gone before.

“Behold, I come quickly; hold fast that which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.”—Apoc. iii, 11.

13 ST JOHN OF EGYPT

TILL he was twenty-five John worked as a carpenter with his father at Asyut. Then, hearing a call from God, he left the world, and committed himself to the care of a solitary in the desert. His master tried his spirit by many unreasonable tasks, bidding him tend dead trees, and the like. John obeyed with the simplicity of a child. After trying several monasteries, he withdrew to the top of a steep cliff, and there he dwelt in contemplation of divine things for fifty years, till his death, never quitting his cell. This cell was in fact three-roomed, a workroom, a bedroom and a chapel cut in the rock, and it was rediscovered fifteen hundred years later. From his long communings with God, John turned to men with gifts of healing and prophecy. Twice each week he spoke at a window with those who came to him, blessing oil for their sick and predicting things to come (But women visitors he did not allow). To the Emperor Theodosius I he foretold his future victories and the time of his death, and among his visitors was the writer Palladius, who left an account of his visit. On a day in the year 394 St John was found on his knees as if in prayer, but his soul was with the blessed. His feast-day is on March 27.

Examination of Conscience

The saints examine themselves in the light of God's perfections, and repent and do penance accordingly. We judge our conduct by the standard of other men, and rest satisfied with it. Yet it is by the divine holiness alone that we shall be judged when we die.

“Teach me to know myself, teach me to know Thee.”
—St Augustine.

St John left first his natural and then his spiritual brethren, and gave himself to contemplation that he might learn the state of his conscience and cleanse himself by God's grace. The more he knew of himself, the more he distrusted himself; that is why for fifty years he saw men as little as possible and women not at all. The result of this vigilance and purity was threefold : a holy joy and cheerfulness which encouraged all who conversed with him; obedience to those to whom he owed obedience; and in his turn authority over creatures, whom he had forsaken for their Creator.

“Be holy because I am holy.... For I am the Lord.... your God.”—Lev. xi, 44-45.

14

ST JUSTIN

ST JUSTIN was born of heathen parents at Neapolis in Samaria, about the year 103. He was well educated, and gave himself to the study of philosophy, always with one object—that he might learn the knowledge of God. He sought this knowledge among the contending schools of philosophy, but always in vain, till at last God himself slaked the thirst which He had created. One day, while Justin was walking by the seashore, meditating on his problems, he got into conversation with an old man, who questioned him on the subject of his doubts. When Justin confessed that the philosophers taught nothing certain about God, the old man told him of the writings of the Hebrew prophets and about Jesus Christ whom they announced, and bade him seek light and understanding through prayer. The Bible and the constancy of Christian martyrs led Justin from the darkness of human reason to the light of faith. Henceforth, as he says himself, he gloried only in the name of Christian, and desired only to bear it well. He travelled about, teaching his newly found faith, and at last came to Rome, where he continued his apostleship. St Justin expounded Christianity in writing as well as speech, and was almost the first of the many "scribes and wise men" whom Christ sent according to His promise. At Rome he sealed his testimony with his blood, being beheaded, with six companions, about the year 165.

The Certainty of Faith

We have received the gift of faith with little or no effort of our own. Let us learn how to value it from those who reached it after long search, living in the misery of a world which did not know God. Let us fear, as St Justin did, the account we shall have to render for God's gift.

"Christ's word is full of a majesty which strikes fear into those who reject it. For those who are obedient to it, it is a peaceful haven, full of delight."—St Justin.

When he was brought to trial, the prefect of Rome asked St Justin, "Do you think that by dying you will enter Heaven and be rewarded?" "I do not think," was Justin's reply, "I know." Then, as now, there were many religious opinions, but only one certainty—the certainty of the Catholic faith. This certainty should be the measure of our confidence, our faithfulness, our love and our thanksgiving.

"I know whom I have believed."—2 Tim. i, 12.

15

BD PETER GONZALEZ

AT an early age this Peter was appointed by his uncle, the bishop, to be a canon of Astorga, his birthplace. He had brilliant talents, but had only entered the ranks of the clergy for worldly reasons. As he rode in state to take possession of his canonry his horse fell, covering him with mud. Mortified and humbled by the laughter of the crowd, Peter got up a changed man : "Since the world mocks at me, I will mock at the world." He became a Dominican friar, and accompanied King St Ferdinand III as chaplain in his campaign against the Moors. By the strictness of his religious observance under the most trying circumstances, and by the force of his preaching, he set a good example before both court and camp. At the taking of Cordova he saved the lives of prisoners and the honour of women from the lawlessness of the troops and called on both captors and captives to amend their lives. At the first chance Peter went to minister to the peasants in the mountainous district of Galicia and to the sailors on the coast. He had a special affection for these last, appreciating the difficulties involved in their calling, and he had a gift for reaching the understanding of the most ignorant. The last years of his life were spent on their behalf and, under the name "St Elmo", Bd Peter is still invoked as the patron of Spanish sailors. He died in 1246, and his feast is kept on April 14.

Preaching Christ Crucified

Every word spoken for God and in opposition to the world, the flesh, and the devil is the word of Christ, from whom all grace comes. Learn from this Peter that none are beyond the power of such words, modestly but boldly proclaimed.

"The sound of the words strikes the ear; the master teaches within."—St Augustine.

Some courtiers, incensed at Bd Peter's unsparing denunciation of wickedness, bribed a woman to lead him into sin. She came to him ostensibly as a penitent declaring her sorrow for an evil life; then, throwing off the mask, she made the object of her visit clear. Peter went into an inner room, where there was a fire, lay down on the burning coals, and invited her to join him. The sight of Peter unhurt by the fire shook her soul to its depths : she confessed her sins and became sincerely penitent.

“The word of the cross to them indeed that perish is foolishness : but to them that are saved, that is, to us, it is the power of God.”—1 Cor. i, 18.

16

ST BENEDICT LABRE

BENEDICT JOSEPH LABRE was born at Amettes in the diocese of Boulogne in the year 1748; he was the son of a shopkeeper. After making unsuccessful trial of the religious life in several orders, he at the age of twenty-two finally left his home and spent the remainder of his days as a beggar and pilgrim, wandering from shrine to shrine all over western Europe. His clothing was in rags; his bed the ground; food, such scraps as he might pick up. If alms were given him, he shared them with the poor. He showed no interest in the places through which he passed. He spoke little, and only when necessity or charity required; he was indifferent to bodily cleanliness, to contempt of himself, to blows. All he cared about was prayer and the things of God. He spent the last nine years of his life in Rome going from church to church by day, sleeping in the Colosseum at night. Wherever the Forty Hours was being observed, Benedict was there, so that people called him “The poor man of the Forty Hours.” His love of Mary was great, and the words "Mary, O my mother" would often burst from his lips. Though only thirty-five, he had at length to accept the hospitality of a shelter for old and infirm men; on Wednesday in Holy Week in 1783 he was found dying on the steps of the church of Santa Maria dei Monti. The fame of "the beggar of Rome" soon spread throughout Christendom.

Prayer before the Blessed Sacrament

If you had some dear friend living close by, you would often go to see him, and the dearer he was to you, the oftener you would visit him. Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament is always waiting for you. Try then to visit Him often, if possible every day.

"My God—my All—I love you and only you. Come to me! I am longing for you, sighing for you, waiting for you. Every little delay seems a thousand years. Come, Lord Jesus, do not delay!"—St Benedict Labre.

Benedict before the Blessed Sacrament was so devout, his body, head and eyes fixed upon it, so motionless, that people compared him to a statue, while others said that he did not seem like a man praying but like an angel adoring or a person in ecstasy. In the presence of Jesus the fire of his heart shone in his face, ordinarily so pale and worn but then lit up and animated with love for his Lord and Master, whose life of poverty and dependence he had so faithfully sought to follow.

"I will seek him whom my soul loveth."—Canticle iii, 2.

17 ST STEPHEN HARDING

AFTER being educated at Sherborne Abbey in Dorsetshire, Stephen entered the Benedictine house at Molesme in Burgundy, then in all the fervour of a new foundation. But as time went by observance relaxed; and Stephen, having in vain protested against the growing remissness, followed St Robert with twenty other monks to Cîteaux. There he became abbot, and strictly carried out the rule of manual work and poverty. No industry of the monks, however, could at first supply the necessary food. When only threepence remained, Stephen bade a brother go and buy three waggon-loads of provisions. His faith was rewarded : the monks' starved looks moved a dying man to give the required sum. But still the community did not prosper : novices shrank from so severe a life, and sickness carried off monk after monk. Stephen, fearing that his strictness was displeasing to God, bade one, who was dying, return if possible to enlighten him. A vision reassured him, and before long a remarkable thing happened : a troop of thirty men, led by the young St Bernard, arrived at the monastery and asked to be admitted as novices. The first trials of Cîteaux were now over; daughter houses were planted out far and near, and Stephen became, with St Robert and St Alberic, co-founder of the great Cistercian Order. He died in 1134.

Beware of Idleness

St Stephen teaches us never to let the Devil find us one moment unemployed. How many of our past sins began in the boredom of an idle hour!

“If it is necessary for the brethren to harvest their crops themselves, that must not grieve them; for they are truly monks when they live by the work of their hands, like our fathers and the Apostles...Idleness is the enemy of the soul.”—Rule of St Benedict.

In Cistercian abbeys nothing was allowed to interfere with manual labour. Mass finished, the priest exchanged his chasuble and stole for the pickaxe and spade. St Bernard broke off one of his sermons on the Cantic of Canticles because the monks must go to work. The choir-monks cultivated the lands near the church, and the lay-brothers the distant farms. When the bell rang for the Office, the latter knelt in the fields, and said such prayers as they knew by heart. The old or ailing were not exempt from work. “To brethren who are infirm or delicate,” says St Benedict, “let employment be given suitable to their condition, so that they shall be neither idle nor overworked.” So acceptable to God was their lowly service that, as St Bernard was preaching on the feast of the Assumption, angels brought him tidings of the humble lay-brother who in a lonely farm was repeating the Ave Maria with extraordinary devotion.

“The slothful hand hath wrought poverty, but the hand of the industrious getteth riches.”—Prov. x, 4.

18 BD MARY OF THE INCARNATION

BARBE AVRILLOT, born in Paris in 1566, was destined to attain holiness as a married woman. At the age of seventeen she married a young lawyer named Peter Acarie, they had six children, and their household was a model one. What God required of her in every action became Barbe's one thought : husband, children, servants were imbued with the same spirit; nothing was undertaken without asking the supreme guidance. They had to undergo great trials and difficulties. Peter Acarie was banished by Henry IV as a partisan of the League, and his property was then seized by his creditors. His wife arranged his defence in the courts, compounded with his creditors, and got the king's leave for his return home. She had the joy of seeing her three daughters in Carmelite houses, and each of her sons fulfilling his calling. But Barbe Acarie is particularly remembered for the leading part she took in the bringing of the Teresian Carmelites to France in 1604. In 1613 she was widowed, and the last four years of her life were spent as a lay-sister in Carmel, where she was known as Mary-of-the Incarnation. Her growing infirmities did not prevent her from working energetically, and she was happy to do a kitchen-maid's job in the convent she had founded. For years Bd Mary had led a mystical life of a high order "in the world," and she is an outstanding example of the truth that great holiness is not to be looked for only in the cloister. She died in 1618.

Purity of Intention

When she was asked if she were bringing up her children with the idea that they should all become priests and nuns, Bd Mary replied, "I am preparing them to do God's will. A religious vocation can come only from Him."

"Whatever you do, do not think of yourself, but keep your intention pure. Begin nothing without an impulse from God, or under obedience to a superior who stands in His place. Whatever you do, keep your eyes fixed on God. Be ready at each moment to help your neighbour, whoever he be."—Bd Mary.

When she was thirty Barbe's horse stumbled and threw her; her foot was caught in the stirrup, she was dragged some distance and her hip dislocated. The following year she slipped and broke her thigh, and did the same thing again soon after. On each occasion she silently suffered agonies from the clumsy surgery of those days, and was partly crippled for the rest of her life. She appeared so insensible to pain that the surgeon asked her whether she were dead or alive.

"If thy eye be sound, thy whole body shall be full of light."—Matt. vi, 22.

19

ST ALPHEGE

ST ALPHEGE was born in the year 954 and first became a monk in the monastery of Deerhurst, near Tewkesbury; afterwards he lived as a hermit near Bath, where he later joined the community under the Rule of St Benedict and became its abbot. At thirty years of age he was chosen bishop of Winchester, and twenty-two years later archbishop of Canterbury. In 1011 the Danes landed in Kent and took the city of Canterbury, putting it to fire and sword. Alphege was captured while trying to restrain the marauders, and carried off in the expectation of a large ransom. He was unwilling that his ruined church and people should be put to such extortion, and was kept in prison at Greenwich for seven months. As he still refused to give ransom, the drunken Danes fell upon him, beating him, pelting him with bones, till one of them put an end to his life by the blow of an axe. He died on Easter Saturday in 1012, his last words being a prayer for his murderers. His body was first buried in St Paul's in London, but was afterwards translated to Canterbury by King Canute. When Archbishop Lanfranc pointed out that St Alphege did not actually die for the faith, St Anselm retorted that in his opinion to die for justice was tantamount to martyrdom; and he is recorded as a martyr in the Roman Martyrology.

Defence of the Poor and Oppressed

Those who are in a good position should look on themselves as stewards, rather than owners, of the wealth or power entrusted to them for the benefit of the poor and weak. St Alphege died rather than extort his ransom from the poor tenants of church lands.

“Believe me, he who does not think of the wants of the poor is not a member of the body of Christ : for if one member suffers, all suffer.”—St Alphege.

When Alphege was in prison, some friends came and urged him to lay a tax upon his tenants to raise the sum demanded for his ransom. “What will happen to me,” said he, “if I spend upon myself what belongs to the poor? Better give the poor what is ours than take from them the little which is their own.” “May almighty God have mercy on all Christian men because of the merits of the holy St Alphege,” wrote an ancient chronicler.

“As every man hath received grace, ministering the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.”—1 Peter iv, 10.

20 ST AGNES OF MONTEPULCIANO

AGNES was born in 1268, and as a mere child entered an austere house of nuns where she surpassed all in the fervour of her prayers. At the age of fifteen she was transferred to a new convent at Proceno, and almost at once was chosen as abbess there, necessitating a papal dispensation because of her youth. It is said that a shower of white "manna" descending on the altar when she was installed declared how dear she was to God; and this curious manifestation was reported on other occasions. Agnes became so famous that her townspeople prevailed upon her to return to Montepulciano, and to build a convent there. She chose for its site a lofty ridge, where had formerly been a disorderly house, and for greater stability she decided to associate her community with the Dominican Order. She governed the community with much prudence, and bore years of illness with heroic patience. In the hope of restoring her health she was sent to some medicinal waters, but her hour had come. She had time to return to her convent, and died, as she had lived, in a state of ecstatic prayer. This was in 1317, when she was forty-nine years old. St Catherine of Siena was very devoted to the memory of St Agnes of Montepulciano; and her biography was written by Bd Raymund of Capua, who was confessor of the Montepulciano nuns half a century after Agnes's death.

The Prayer of Faith

St Agnes asked in faith, and her prayers were granted. Ours are often unheard, because we doubt if God will hear them.

"We must be convinced that what God refuses to our prayer He grants to our salvation."—St Augustine.

St Catherine of Siena heard our Lord say to her :
“If you ask me why I kept that dear maiden Agnes in such want, I tell you that I did this that I might satisfy her by my providence. When her community had been without food for three days she said to me, ‘Father and Lord, have you taken these daughters out of their fathers’ houses to starve? Look after them, Lord’. Then I inspired somebody to take them five small loaves. They sat down to table, and I gave her so much power in breaking the bread that they were all satisfied, and it sufficed them for a second meal.”

“Therefore I say unto you, all things whatsoever you ask when ye pray, believe that you shall receive : and they shall come unto you.”—Mark xi, 24.

21

ST ANSELM

ANSELM was a native of Piedmont. When a boy of fifteen, being refused admittance to a monastery, he for a while lost his fervour, left home, and went to study in France. At length his vocation revived, and he became a monk at Bec in Normandy, where he was elected abbot. He was much respected in England, and this led William Rufus when dangerously ill to take him for his confessor, and to name him to the vacant see of Canterbury. Now began the strife of Anselm's life. With new health the king relapsed into his former sins, plundered the Church, scorned the archbishop's rebukes, and forbade him to go to Rome to consult the pope. Anselm went, and remained in exile till the king's death. But he was again involved in bitter strife with William's successor, Henry I, who claimed the right of investing prelates with the ring and crozier, symbols of the spiritual jurisdiction which belongs to the Church alone. Sooner than yield the archbishop went again into exile, till at last the king was obliged to come to terms with the inflexible old man. In the midst of his harassing cares St Anselm found time for writings which have made him celebrated as the father of scholastic theology, and he is numbered among the doctors of the Church. He was a man of very sympathetic character and personal charm, in spite of the rigorousness that his difficulties imposed on him; among his pastoral activities was an active opposition to the slave trade. He died in 1109, and his body probably still rests in Canterbury Cathedral.

True Loyalty

Whoever, like St Anselm, contends for the Church's rights, is fighting for God against the tyranny of Satan.

“Let all and each of you understand that in whatever relates to God I will obey the successor of St Peter; and in whatever belongs to the earthly authority of my lord the king I will dedicate to him my fidelity and my assistance according to my knowledge and conscience.”
—St Anselm.

Time-serving prelates did not scruple to call St Anselm a traitor for his defence of the pope's ecclesiastical supremacy; on which he stood up in council and exclaimed, “If any man says that I violate my faith to my king because I will not reject the authority of the holy Roman see, let him stand forth : and in the name of God I will answer him as I ought.” No one took up the challenge; and to the disappointment of the king the barons sided with the archbishop : they respected his courage, and saw that his cause was their own.

“There is no power but from God, and those that are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth power resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist purchase to themselves damnation.”—Rom. xiii, 1-2.

22 SS. EPIPODIUS AND ALEXANDER

EPIPODIUS and Alexander suffered martyrdom at Lyons in 178, the year after the great persecution which overtook the church of that city. Both were young and they had been friends from their boyhood. The Christian who records their martyrdom saw in it the fitting sequel to what had gone before, for they had lived the lives of men who were to be offered up one day as victims to God. They had fled from their persecutors to a hamlet some little way out of Lyons, and there they were taken in their hiding-place and led to trial. Epipodius, who was the younger of the two, was tried and tortured alone in order to break his constancy. He was struck till blood flowed from his mouth, and was stretched on the rack while his sides were torn with iron hooks. But in his torments he cried out, “I confess that Christ is God, with the Father and the Holy Ghost. I am not losing my life, but changing it for a better.” The crowd clamoured for his death, and he was beheaded by the sword. Alexander was cruelly scourged, and he thanked God that he could tread the way of suffering with better heart because his friend had already passed to Heaven. He was nailed to a cross, the sign of our salvation, and at once passed from this life, calling on Christ with his last breath.

Strictness of Life

The death of the martyrs was the crown and not the beginning of their holiness. They died well because they had lived well. We too must follow Christ along the narrow way of virtue and self-denial if we would have Him accept our death as an oblation precious in His sight.

“God looks within us, He searches our hearts. If He sees in you virtue fit for a martyr’s death, He will reward you according to your virtue.”—St Cyprian.

The judge besought Epipodius not to waste his youth in the service of a crucified criminal who drew men from the joyous worship of the gods to a life of fasting, chastity and gloom. But Epipodius knew the sweetness and the beauty of Christian virtue. He told his judge that the world’s pleasures lead to everlasting death; and that Christ, who had been crucified, had risen again and opened the way to everlasting life.

“So run that you may obtain. And every one that striveth for the mastery refraineth himself from all things : they indeed that they may receive a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible one.”—1 Cor. ix, 24-25.

23

ST GEORGE

ST GEORGE was a martyr who suffered at Lydda in Palestine, perhaps during the persecution under Diocletian. That is all that can be confidently affirmed about him; but in later ages it was said that he was a soldier, a favourite of Diocletian, who advanced him to the rank of tribune. When, however, the emperor began to persecute Christians, George rebuked him sternly and openly for his cruelty, and threw up his commission. He was in consequence subjected to many torments, and finally beheaded. There was something so inspiriting in the defiant cheerfulness of the young soldier that every Christian felt a personal share in this triumph of fortitude, and as centuries went by St George became a type of successful combat against evil, the slayer of the dragon, a theme of camp song and story, until "so thick a shade his very glory round him made" that his real lineaments became hard to trace, and his legend became more and more embroidered. Veneration for him was early and widely spread; he was referred to, as "a sun of victories", in an Irish "calendar" at the end of the eighth century, and he was known in England well before the Norman Conquest. But it is not clear how St George came to be chosen as patron and protector of the kingdom of England; no doubt crusaders returning from the East had something to do with it.

Fortitude

When Christian honour is at stake, compromise is the worst form of imprudence. It is sometimes a duty to smash the idols we are called upon to worship.

"What shall I say of fortitude, without which neither wisdom nor justice is worth anything? Fortitude is not of the body : it is a constancy of soul. It enables us to triumph in righteousness, patiently to bear all adversities, and in prosperity not to be puffed up. He who is overcome by pride, anger, greed, drunkenness and the like is wanting in fortitude; so are those who, when in adversity, try to escape at their souls' expense : which is why the Lord said, 'Fear not those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul.' So, too, those who are puffed up in prosperity and give themselves up to selfsatisfaction cannot be called strong. For how can they be strong who cannot hide and repress their inward feelings? Fortitude is never conquered; if it is conquered it is not fortitude."—St Bruno.

During penal times St George's day was a holiday of obligation in England; we might at least not let the day pass entirely unnoticed.

"The life of man upon earth is a warfare."—Job vii, 1.

24 ST FIDELIS OF SIGMARINGEN

FIDELIS was born at Sigmaringen in Germany in 1577, and as a young man visited the sick and poor and spent many hours before the altar. For a time he followed the legal profession, and was remarkable for his advocacy of the poor and his courtesy towards opponents. Finding it difficult to become both a wealthy lawyer and a good Christian, Fidelis entered the Capuchin Order and gave himself to a life of austerity and prayer. Ordinary mortifications were penances too light for his fervour; he was filled with a desire for martyrdom and rejoiced at being sent to Switzerland by the newly-founded Congregation for the Spreading of the Faith. Here he braved every peril to rescue souls from the errors of Calvinism. At Sewis in 1622 an attempt was made on his life while he was preaching on "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." The shot went wide; but on the road afterwards he was waylaid by a gang of men. They called on him to renounce his faith to which Fidelis replied, "I came here to enlighten you, not to accept your errors. I am not afraid to die. I will not renounce the age-long Catholic faith." Thereupon he was struck down, and done to death with a prayer for his murderers on his lips. St Fidelis was the first martyr of the Congregation de Propaganda Fide, and the first fruit of his martyrdom was the conversion of a Protestant minister who had been present at it.

Concern for our Neighbour

We delight in decorating God's altar with flowers, lights and jewels, and it is right to do so; but if we wish to offer God gifts of higher value we must, following St Fidelis, seek to save souls who but for us might be lost; so we shall offer Him, as it were, the jewels of Paradise.

"Of all divine things, the most godlike is to co-operate with God in the conversion of sinners."—St Denis "the Areopagite."

Before his profession St Fidelis wrote this testament : "Jesus Christ, when He was sweating blood in the olive garden and afterwards dying upon the cross, resigned Himself into the hands of His Father. So, that I may be fully conformed to His charity, I by this my last will offer my body and soul as a living sacrifice for ever to the service of the Divine Majesty, of the holy and immaculate Virgin, and of the seraphic father St Francis. And as I was born poor and naked, so, being stripped of all earthly goods, I abandon myself poor and naked into the hands of Jesus Christ, my Saviour." His perfect fulfilment of this resolve was seen in every act of his missionary life.

“How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, of them that bring glad tidings of good things!”—Rom. x, 15.

25 ST MARK THE EVANGELIST

ACCORDING to ancient tradition St Mark, a kinsman of St Barnabas, was closely associated with St Peter, whom he accompanied to Rome, acting there as his secretary or interpreter. When Peter was writing his first epistle to the churches of Asia, he joined with his own salutation that of his faithful companion, whom he calls “my son Mark.” It is in Rome that St Mark is believed to have written his gospel, and to have got some of his information from St Peter himself. It is commonly held that Mark the Evangelist is the same man as the John Mark referred to in the Acts of the Apostles; he will then have been also associated with St Paul, and “profitable to [him] in the ministry.” There is another old tradition which says that St Mark was sent to Egypt to found the church of Alexandria, and St Jerome speaks of him as the father of the anchorites who at a later time thronged the Egyptian desert. It is quite probable that he did end his days as bishop in Alexandria, and no doubt he was martyred, there or elsewhere. But no trust can be put in the account of the martyrdom, which was written long after the event. St Mark’s church in Venice has claimed to be the resting-place of his body since the early ninth century. The emblem of this evangelist is a lion (Apoc. iv, 7-8).

Christ's Manhood

Learn from St Mark to keep the image of the Son of man ever before your mind, and to ponder every syllable which fell from His lips.

"He who meditates on the humble life and miracles of Jesus, and sweetly nourishes his soul on them, drinks in milk and honey from the mouth of Jesus."—Thomas a Kempis.

To St Mark we owe many slight touches which often give vivid colouring to the gospel scenes, and help us to picture to ourselves the very gestures and look of our blessed Lord. It is he alone who notes that at the temptation Jesus was "with the beasts;" that He slept in the boat "on a pillow;" that He "embraced" the little children. He alone preserves for us the commanding words "Peace, be still!" by which the storm was quelled; and even the very sounds of His voice, the "Ephpheta" and "Talitha cumi," by which the dumb were made to speak and the dead to rise. So, too, the "looking round about with anger," and the "sighing deeply," long treasured in the memory of the penitent Peter, who was himself called back by His Saviour's look, are here recorded by his faithful helper.

"God... hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of God's glory in the face of Christ Jesus."—2 Cor. iv, 6.

26 ST GREGORY OF NYSSA

GREGORY was a younger brother of St Basil, and like him began life as a teacher of rhetoric; he was married to a young woman named Theosebeia. But he became dissatisfied with secular teaching and, after some hesitation, gave himself to the service of the Church as a priest; and he was in due time chosen bishop of Nyssa in Cappadocia. There the Arians persecuted him and prevailed on the governor to drive him away; and not until the death of the Arian emperor Valens did he return to his see. He was deputed to visit the churches of Arabia and Palestine to redress the abuses and heal the dissensions left by years of controversy. "When I saw the Holy Places," he says, "I was filled with a joy and pleasure which no tongue can express"; but he warns Christians against making pilgrimages into idle pleasure-trips, or regarding them as in any way a substitute for holiness and spiritual effort : it was a subject on which he felt and wrote strongly. St Gregory sat in the second general council, at Constantinople in 381, and was looked on as a mainstay of the Church; to be in communion with him was considered a test of orthodoxy in the East. He died about the year 395, leaving many sermons and other works, remarkable for their clearness of expression and sound reasoning. His letters are especially attractive; like his brother Basil he had a strong appreciation of physical beauty, natural and artificial. The feast-day of St Gregory of Nyssa is March 9.

Hope in Evil Times

Few sorrows are more bitter than to live at a time and place wherein false religious teaching is generally accepted, to hear sacred truths reviled, and to see people led astray and lost. Learn from St Gregory to stand up earnestly and humbly for the truth, and to leave the rest to God, in whose hand the gift of faith is.

"Nature loves leisure and rest; but grace cannot be inert, and eagerly embraces labour.”—Imitation of Christ.

When St Gregory visited Palestine his heart was wrung with anguish by the religious wrangling that went on around the very cradle and tomb of our divine Lord, and by the coldness of many who called themselves Catholics. His mission had but little success; and on his return he wrote a letter expressing his grief, and urging the faithful remnant to abide firm and unshaken in the faith and communion of the one Church, and to shun all heretical teaching. This was the occasion of his warnings to those who go on pilgrimages.

“He hath exalted me upon a rock, and now he hath lifted up my head above my enemies.”—Ps. xxvi, 6.

27

ST PETER CANISIUS

CANISIUS was born in 1521 at Nijmegen, then in Germany, and in 1543 was the first of his countrymen to enter the Society of Jesus. He had had a very good education, and was entrusted with several missions, including teaching for a short time in the first known Jesuit school, at Messina. Then he was sent to Ingolstadt in Bavaria to reform the university there, which was riddled with heresy. Canisius succeeded in his task, and thenceforth for fifty years he laboured unceasingly in Germany and central Europe. With amazing energy and prudence he revived the zeal of the Catholic princes and bishops, reformed universities, established colleges and brought whole cities and provinces back to the Church; he defended the faith in imperial diets and in public conferences. Nevertheless he found time to compose learned controversial works, and two catechisms which have had an enormous circulation. Canisius was the first provincial superior of the Society of Jesus in Germany, and founded the college in Switzerland that was to become the University of Fribourg. It was here that he died in 1597, and when he was canonized in 1925 he was declared a doctor of the Church. St Peter Canisius stands out as a man of moderation in an age of violence, and he did more to restore the faith and purify living in south and west Germany than any other. He was a principal originator of the Catholic press and the first great Jesuit writer.

Upholding Catholic Truth

The champions of faith prove the truth of their teaching no less by the holiness of their lives than by the force of their arguments. Never forget that to help to convert others you must first see to your own soul.

“All who seek to be children of God must make the incarnate Lord be born again in their hearts, the Child whom the angels acclaimed on Christmas night. From Him, as their Master, they have to learn how to become meek and humble of heart. He is the model of simplicity and obedience, whom they must follow as closely as possible.”—St Peter Canisius.

Canisius was stern towards the leaders and preachers of heresy, and, like most people in those days, was prepared to use force to repress their activities. But to the rank and file who had been born in Protestantism he was always gentle and understanding. The leaders themselves, he said, must be met courteously and good-temperedly : to do otherwise “is to break the bruised reed and quench the smoking flax, the opposite of Christ's example."

"The things which thou hast heard of me by many witnesses, the same commend to faithful men who shall be fit to teach others also. Labour as a good soldier of Christ Jesus."—2 Tim. ii, 2-3.

28 ST PAUL OF THE CROSS

THE eighty-one years of this saint's life were modelled on the passion of Jesus Christ. In his childhood his mother taught him to bear hurts and annoyances for the sake of the crucified Jesus, and with his younger brother, John Baptist, he early undertook a life of penance. In 1714 Paul enlisted in a crusade against the Turks; but he did not remain a soldier long : in 1720 three vivid visions showed him that he was to serve Christ alone, and that he should found a congregation in His honour. With the approval of his bishop he began while still a layman to preach the Passion, and a series of crosses tried the reality of his vocation. All his first companions, save his brother, deserted him; the pope refused him an audience; and it was only after seventeen years that papal approbation for his rule was obtained, and the first house of his congregation opened on Monte Argentario, the spot where he and John Baptist had been living as hermits. The members were called Barefooted Clerks of the Cross and Passion, and are commonly known as Passionists. Paul was endowed with unusual supernatural gifts, and was a moving preacher, vehement in his words and actions. A soldier once said to him, "Father, I have been in battles without being frightened, but when I listen to you preaching I tremble all over.” Through fifty years of bodily pain and amidst all his trials Paul read the love of Jesus everywhere, and would say to the flowers and grass, “Oh, be quiet, be quiet,” as if they were reproaching him with ingratitude. He died whilst the gospel passion was being read to him, and so passed with Jesus from the cross to glory, in 1775.

Devotion to the Passion

One sign of devotion to the Passion is a love of those for whom Christ died. Paul prayed and suffered specially for England, where he saw so many souls in danger of perishing through religious error and unbelief. Do we ever unite our sufferings with those of Christ for the conversion of our countrymen?

“God does us great honour when He ordains that we should tread the same road which was trodden by His only-begotten Son.”—St Paul of the Cross.

St Paul chose as the badge of his order a heart surmounted by a cross and bearing three nails, in memory of the sufferings of Jesus. One of his own most grievous sufferings was when John Baptist died in 1765. The brothers had always been together, and after becoming priests were each other’s confessors. Together they had striven for perfection, and only once had disagreement come between them : that was when John ventured to praise Paul to his face. When Pope Clement XIV gave the Passionists a church in Rome, he chose that of SS. John and Paul in memory of this close association.

“With Christ I am nailed to the cross. And I live, now not I, but Christ liveth in me.”—Gal. ii, 19-20.

29 ST PETER OF VERONA

THIS PETER was born in 1205, of parents who belonged to a Catharist sect, of which a distinguishing belief was that material things are evil and not created by God. In spite of this he was sent to a Catholic school, so that when his Catharist uncle asked what he learnt, "The Creed," answered Peter, "I believe in God, Creator of heaven and earth." No persuasion could shake his faith nor bad example corrupt him, and while still a youth he received the Preachers' habit from St Dominic himself at Bologna. After ordination he preached throughout Lombardy with much success, until his superiors listened to a false accusation and disciplined him. He submitted humbly, but asked our Lord in prayer "Why do you let me be falsely accused?" And the crucifix seemed to answer, "And I, Peter, what did I do?" Every day at Mass he prayed, "Grant, Lord, that I may die for Thee, who didst die for me." His prayer was answered. In 1252, while carrying out the duties of inquisitor in Lombardy, he was set upon by two Catharists, one of whom struck his head with an axe. Peter fell, commending himself to God, then dipped his finger in his blood, and wrote on the ground, "I believe in God," Credo in Deum. Whereupon he was killed by another blow.

Confessing the Faith

Peter spent his life preaching the Catholic faith to heretics, and received the crown of martyrdom for so doing. We, too, live surrounded by people who (mostly through no fault of their own) reject parts or all of the Catholic faith. Are we courageous, firm, zealous, full of prayer for their conversion, unflinching in our profession of faith?

"So clear is my knowledge of the mysteries and so firm my conviction of the truths of the faith, that it seems to me more like sight than faith. The very word Faith fills me with joy."—St Peter Martyr.

When warned that his life was in danger, Peter replied, "Let them do their worst. I shall be more influential dead than alive." This was exemplified in his murderer, Carino. He repented almost at once, was accepted by the Dominicans as a lay-brother, and lived so holily that he is remembered to this day at his birthplace near Milan.

"For with the heart we believe unto justice, but with the mouth confession [of faith] is made unto salvation."—Rom. x, 10.

30 ST CATHERINE OF SIENA

CATHERINE, the daughter of a well-to-do tradesman, was raised up to be a guide and guardian of the Church in one of the darkest periods of its history, the fourteenth century. As a girl she had much to suffer for refusing to marry, but eventually she was allowed to join the third order of St Dominic, continuing to live in her father's house, where she joined a life of active charity with the prayer of a contemplative. Here she became the leader of a group of aspiring Christians, men and women, clergy and laity, who were known as her Fellowship or Family. Then she was drawn into the troubled public affairs of the Italian cities and of the Church. In the face of the world she sought out Pope Gregory XI at Avignon and brought him back to Rome. By her letters to the kings and queens of Europe she upheld the cause of his successor, Urban VI, and sternly rebuked the disloyal cardinals who had part in electing a rival pope. Catherine was a young woman of extraordinary spiritual influence : she could read minds, knew people's troubles at a distance, and was so persuasive with sinners that special confessors had to be appointed to deal with so many. She experienced the "mystical betrothal," and later received the stigmata of our Lord's wounds, though these were not visible to others till after her death. But while so many saw her as a saint, others looked on her as a fanatic or even a hypocrite and impostor. She wrote a celebrated mystical work called her Dialogue. St Catherine was still young when she died in 1380, probably thirty-three.

The Church's Welfare

St Catherine willingly sacrificed the delights of contemplation to work for the Church and the Apostolic See. How deeply do the troubles of the Church, and their inevitable effects on individual members, weigh on our minds? How often do we pray for the Church and for the Pope?

"Lord, let my body, to the very marrow in my bones, be beaten to a jelly—only restore your holy Church to her comeliness and beauty."—St Catherine of Siena.

One who had known Catherine from her childhood wrote of her : "The outbreak of plague in Siena seemed her finest hour. She was always with the stricken; she helped them to die happily; she buried them herself. With my own eyes I saw the joy she took in nursing them and her great influence over them—she brought many to repentance." As for her activity in public affairs, it has been well said that it is her devotion to the cause of the Church's welfare that makes Catherine. such a noble figure.

“Christ loved the Church, and delivered himself up for it.”—Eph. v, 25.

1

ST PETER CHANEL

PETER Louis Mary Chanel was the first martyr of Oceania and of the Society of Mary. He was a Frenchman, and had been for four years a parish priest when in 1831 he became a Marist, in the hope that he would be sent on the foreign missions. His hope was fulfilled. In 1837 he was made superior of a band of missionaries to the Pacific islands, and was appointed to Futuna, in the New Hebrides, together with a lay-brother. With the help of an Englishman he had met, Father Chanel set himself to learn the local language, sometimes celebrating Mass in public, with as much solemnity as circumstances allowed, in order to attract the people. His evangelization had some success, sufficient to provoke the enmity of the local ruler, whose son had been baptized. One day in 1841, taking advantage of the absence of Brother Nizier, the chieftain sent a band of his men to Father Chanel's hut. He was knocked about and left lying half-conscious while the hut was looted. Then he was killed by the blow of an axe. The only words he uttered, in the island tongue, were "It is well with me". One of his catechumens, when asked why he had become a Christian, had replied : "This man loves us. He does what he teaches.

He forgives his enemies. His teaching is true." St Peter Chanel's feast is kept on April 28.

The Seed of Christians

Martyrdom is the highest form of witness to Christ. We are not all called to be martyrs; but we are all called to be witnesses. We too can sow the seed by being really loving, by doing what Christ teaches, by forgiving our enemies.

"The more you mow us down, the more we grow : the blood of Christians is the seed."—Tertullian.

The Futuna mission was abandoned for over twelve months. Then some of the inhabitants asked that missionaries should be again sent to them. This was done, and within another year the whole island was Christian, including those who had made the attack on St Peter Chanel. So once again the famous words of Tertullian were verified.

"Christ therefore having suffered in the flesh, be you also armed with the same thought : for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sins."—1 Peter iv, 1.

2

ST ATHANASIUS

ATHANASIUS was born in Egypt towards the end of the third century, and was from his youth deeply religious and versed in the sacred writings, as befitted one whom God had chosen to be the champion and defender of His Church against the Arian heresy, which was an attack on our Lord's godhead. While still a deacon, he was chosen by his bishop to go with him to the Council of Nicaea in 325, and he attracted the attention of all by the learning and ability with which he defended the faith. A few months later he became archbishop of Alexandria, and for forty-six years he bore, often well-nigh alone, the brunt of the Arian assault. He stood unmoved against four Roman emperors, was banished five times, was the butt of every insult, calumny and wrong his enemies could devise, and lived in constant peril of death. Though firm as adamant in defence of the faith, St Athanasius in character was meek and humble, pleasant and winning, beloved by his flock, unwearied in pastoral duties, in prayer, in mortification and in zeal for souls. In the year 373 his stormy life closed in peace, rather because his people would have it so than that his enemies were weary of persecuting him. He left to the Church the whole and ancient faith, defended and explained in writings rich in thought and learning, clear, keen and stately in expression. He is honoured as one of the greatest of the doctors of the Church and of her leaders in times of stress. He always kept in touch with the desert hermits, and wrote the life of their great St Antony.

Standing Up for the Faith

The Catholic faith, says St Augustine, is far more precious than all the riches and treasures of earth; more glorious and greater than all its honours, all its possessions. This it is which saves sinners, gives light to the blind, restores penitents, perfects the righteous and is the crown of martyrs.

“God has promised to be like a wall of fire round those who rightly believe in Him.”—St Athanasius.

So widespread was the Arian heresy that St Jerome wrote of "the world groaning and wondering at finding itself Arian"; and the Emperor Constantius asked Pope Liberius, "Who are you to stand up for Athanasius against the world?" St Athanasius fought false teaching doggedly with tongue and pen, not without an occasional touch of bitterness, but also not without humour. Though it bears his name the "Athanasian Creed" was not drawn up by him.

"Contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints."—Jude 3.

3 ST CATHERINE OF BOLOGNA

CATHERINE, the daughter of a distinguished Italian family, was placed when only eleven at the court of the Marquis d'Este at Ferrara, to be a companion to his daughter. She soon tired of the splendours around her, and went at the age of fourteen to serve God in religion. After some years she made her profession as a Poor Clare, and was sent to found a convent of the order at Bologna. She was tried by many false apparitions and terrible temptations, but she overcame them all by persevering obedience, and God consoled her by heavenly visions. She gained from these trials a salutary fear of God's majesty, and a deep conviction of her own nothingness made her seek the lesser occupations in the convent. But she was not confined to these, and at different times was novice-mistress as well as abbess. Catherine greatly feared to be a cause of sin in others, and this humility drew Jesus into her soul, to kindle there the consuming fire of love. She had a great devotion to St Thomas of Canterbury, who is said to have appeared to her, but the best known of her visions was one Christmas night : she was given permission to spend the vigil in church, and at midnight it seemed to her that she saw, and even touched, the holy Child in Mary's arms. St Catherine died in 1463, and her feast-day is March 9.

The Spirit of Worship

Man's soul is endowed with many noble powers, and feels a keen joy in their exercise; but the keenest joy we are capable of consists in concentrating all our powers of mind and heart in humblest worship before God.

“Consciousness of my nothingness is a very great force. It has unbarred all the gates of my soul, and given entrance to Him who is infinite.”—St Catherine of Bologna.

Catherine was accomplished in both “useful” and “fine” arts : she was a baker, a miniaturist, and a hymn-writer. The breviary she illuminated is still at her convent of Corpo di Cristo at Bologna, and she has been honoured as a patron-saint of artists. If we have a religious spirit, any kind of honest work can be part of our worship of Almighty God, who himself made all things.

“Adore ye him that made heaven and earth, the sea and the fountains of waters.”—Apoc. xiv, 7.

4 THE ENGLISH AND WELSH MARTYRS

FROM the reign of Henry VIII to the Titus Oates "plot" one hundred and fifty years later numerous Catholics of England and Wales suffered death for their religion. Of these, so far, two have been canonized and one hundred and eighty beatified; they include priests and religious, lay men and lay women from every walk of life. The charges on which they were put to death were various; the ultimate reason for which they all died was faithfulness to Jesus Christ by unyielding adherence to His Church and its chief shepherd on earth, the Bishop of Rome. The first to suffer, on this day, May 4, in 1535, were three Carthusian monks (BB. John Houghton, Robert Lawrence, Augustine Webster), a Bridgettine monk, Bd Richard Reynolds, and a secular priest, Bd John Haile. The first lay man was St Thomas More, two months later, and the first lay woman Bd Margaret Pole, in 1541. The first seminary priest from abroad to be martyred, under Elizabeth I in 1577, was Bd Cuthbert Mayne, and the first missionary Jesuit, Bd Edmund Campion in 1581. At the other end of the story was Bd William Howard, beheaded on 29 December 1680, and finally the archbishop of Armagh, Bd Oliver Plunket, who was hanged, drawn and quartered in London in 1681. The great majority of these martyrs were English, but the Welsh contribution was weighty in quality, notably the schoolmaster Bd Richard Gwyn and the Benedictine Bd John Roberts. To all these martyrs their countrymen owe a debt that can only be paid by emulating their faithfulness.

Strength in Faith

Constancy and self-sacrifice are the best arguments for the Catholic faith : from the seed these martyrs sowed for that faith a harvest of faithful people has grown up.

“I honour my husband and love my children according as duty and nature bind me; but I am so far from seeking to help them by yielding to your demands that I wish both husband and children might suffer death with me in this good cause.”—Bd Margaret Clitherow

These martyrs set us the example of dying for the confession of the Catholic faith, the religion in which their forefathers had lived and died. And, as Bd Robert Johnson said at his execution, if they were traitors for maintaining this faith, “then all the kings and queens of this realm heretofore, and all our ancestors, were traitors, for they maintained the same”. They built their faith, “not upon any man whatsoever, but upon the whole Catholic Church” (Bd Lawrence Richardson). Therefore we pray in the proper collect of their Mass that God will grant that “through their merits and prayers, we may all become and remain one by professing the same faith, even as thy Son prayed”.

“Unless the grain of wheat falling into the ground die, itself remaineth alone. But if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world keepeth it unto life eternal.”—John xii, 24-25.

5

ST PIUS V

A DOMINICAN friar from his youth, Michael Ghislieri, as a simple religious, as bishop and as cardinal, was famous for his intrepid defence of the Church's faith and discipline, and for the exemplary goodness of his own life. His first care as pope was to reform the Roman court and capital by the strict example of his household and the severe punishment of all delinquency—it was said of him that he “wanted to turn Rome into a monastery.” He endeavoured to obtain from the Catholic powers the recognition of the decrees of the Council of Trent, two of which he urgently enforced—the residence of bishops in their sees and the establishment of diocesan seminaries. He revised the Missal and Breviary, and imposed the new books on most of the Western church. It was he who made religious instruction of the young a responsibility of parish-priests, and the measures taken against the spread of Protestantism were severe. In 1570 Pius excommunicated Queen Elizabeth I of England and absolved her subjects from their allegiance to her : this error of judgement had serious results for English Catholics. He actively supported Don John of Austria in the campaign that dispelled the Turkish threat to Europe at the naval battle of Lepanto, and instituted an observance in thanksgiving that became the feast of the Rosary. St Pius V was pope for only six years, and died in 1572.

Respect for the Crucifix

St Pius used always to kiss the feet of the crucifix on entering or leaving his room, and when pope made two meditations each day before the sacred image. There he learnt that energetic perseverance and heroic constancy which enabled him to do so much for the Christian world.

“Your cross, Lord, is the source of all blessings, the cause of all graces : through it the faithful find strength in weakness, glory in shame, life in death.”—St Leo the Great.

An austere and rather forbidding figure in public affairs, St Pius V was known in private for his kindness and concern for the poor, sick and unfortunate, whom he often helped in person. The crucifix teaches us to be unflinching in duty and unwearying in charity.

“Looking on Jesus, the author and finisher of faith, who, having joy set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and now sitteth on the right hand of the throne of God.”—Heb. xii, 2.

6

ST MONICA

MONICA, the mother of St Augustine of Hippo, was born in 332, and was strictly brought up—she was not allowed to drink between meals. In due course she was given in marriage to Patricius, a pagan. She devoted herself to him and to his conversion, praying for him always, and winning his reverence and love by goodness of life and affectionate forbearance; but she did not have the happiness of seeing him baptized until a year before his death. When her son Augustine went astray in belief and life her prayers and tears were incessant. By going to Italy he could for a time free himself from his mother's importunities, but he could not escape from her prayers, which encompassed him like the providence of God. She followed him to Italy, and there his conversion turned her sorrow into joy. At Ostia in the year 387, on their homeward journey, as Augustine and his mother sat talking at a window, she turned to him and said, "Son, there is nothing now I care for in life. What is left for me to do, or why I am here, I do not know. The one reason I had for wishing to live on a little longer was that I might see you a Christian before I died. This God has granted me, and more, since you have dedicated yourself wholly to His service. Why do I linger here?" A few days afterwards she had an attack of fever, and died. St Monica's feast-day is May 4.

Perseverance in Prayer

It is impossible to set bounds to what persevering prayer may do; it gives man a share in the divine omnipotence. Augustine's soul was bound in the chains of false philosophy and an unhallowed love, both of which by long habit had grown inveterate. They were broken by his mother's prayers.

"He who knows what to give and to whom helps the seeker and opens to him that knocks. But if it happens that He does not give, no one should think himself forsaken. Perhaps He only delays giving, for He sends no one away empty. If He does not give at the moment, it is because He is training the seeker, not because He despises the suppliant."—St Augustine.

St Monica was once very urgent with a wise bishop that he would talk to her son in order to bring him to a better frame of mind, but he declined: "The young man's heart is as yet too stubborn; but God's time will come", he said. Monica persisted however, till the bishop dismissed her with the famous words, "It is not possible that the son of so many tears should perish."

“We ought always to pray and not to faint.”—
Luke xviii, 1.

7 ST STANISLAUS OF CRACOW

STANISLAUS was born in answer to prayer when his parents were advanced in age, in the year 1030. He was a popular and influential priest, who became in time bishop of Cracow. Boleslaus II was then king of Poland—a prince of good qualities, but spoilt by a long course of self-indulgence and success. After many acts of lust and cruelty he outraged the whole kingdom by carrying off the wife of one of his nobles, but against this public scandal the bishop of Cracow alone had the courage to raise his voice. Having commended the matter to God, he went down to the palace and rebuked the king for his crime against God and his subjects, and threatened to excommunicate him if he persisted in his sin. Boleslaus in revenge made a false charge against the bishop, but on its being refuted he only became worse than ever, and Stanislaus, finding all remonstrance useless, pronounced sentence of excommunication. In defiance the king entered the cathedral, only to find that the service was at once stopped. In a fury he later went to a chapel where Stanislaus himself was celebrating Mass, and sent in three soldiers to despatch him. It is said that each in turn came out saying he had been scared by a light from Heaven, and that then the king rushed in and slew the saint at the altar with his own hand. This murder took place in 1079.

Denouncing Sin

The safest correction of vice is a blameless life, yet there are times when silence would make us answerable for the sins of others. At such times we have, in God's name, to rebuke the offender without fear.

"It is a work of mercy to correct those who are wrong; and be sure that it is a serious fault not to rebuke sinners, especially when they are a cause of sin to others."
—St Francis Xavier.

St Stanislaus is greatly revered in Poland, especially at Cracow, but unfortunately the particulars of his life and death have been much obscured by the passage of time and by legend. But the story as it has been transmitted teaches a clear lesson of the duty not to be cravenly silent when circumstances demand that we should speak out. It is sometimes as hard to reprove those over whom we have authority (such as our children) as those who are in authority over us : but it sometimes has to be done—tactfully.

"Cry, cease not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their wicked doings, and the house of Jacob their sins."—Isa. lviii, 1.

8 SS. PETER AND DIONYSIA

IN the Decian persecution the blood of the Christians flowed at Lampsacus, a city in Asia Minor. A young man named Peter was the first who was led before the proconsul and condemned to die for the name of Christ. Young though he was, he gladly underwent torture for refusing to sacrifice to Venus, upon whose licentious worship he made a spirited attack. He was bound to a wheel and his bones broken, but he raised his eyes to Heaven and said, "I give you thanks, Lord Jesus, because you have given me patience, and made me victorious over the evil one.” The proconsul saw how little suffering availed, and ordered the martyr to be beheaded. A little later in the city of Troas the maiden Dionysia showed a like eagerness to suffer. “Wretched man,” she cried, when a Christian denied Christ under torture, “why have you feared a little suffering and chosen to be lost for ever?” For this she was seized and led away to outrage, but was divinely protected from harm. The next day she saw two Christians, Andrew and Paul, stoned to death by a mob, and she threw herself upon the bodies of the martyrs, saying, “May I die with you on earth, so that I may live with you in Heaven.” And Christ, who is the crown of virgins and the strength of martyrs, gave her her desire and she was beheaded, in the year 251. The feast-day of these martyrs is May 15.

Patience in Suffering

The martyrs were like us, and equally with us shrank from suffering. They were unmoved under it because they looked to eternal reward, made strong by seeing Him who is invisible.

“If you seek rest in this life, how will you attain an everlasting rest? Do not strive for much ease but for great patience.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Dionysia picked up the crown which Nicomachus threw away, and his history may teach us that those who lose Christ, rather than suffer with Him, lose all. With all the strength that was left him he cried out, “I never was a Christian. I will sacrifice to the gods.” So he was taken down from the rack and he offered sacrifice. But, according to the legend, the unhappy man gained nothing thereby for he fell down in a fit and died on the spot.

“Be patient therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord... Behold, we account them blessed who have endured.”—James v, 7, 11.

9 ST GREGORY NAZIANZEN

GREGORY was born of parents both of whom are venerated as saints, and he was the chosen friend of St Basil. They studied together at Athens, turned at the same time from life “in the world,” and for some years lived together in seclusion, self-discipline and toil. Gregory was raised, almost by force, to the priesthood; and was in time made bishop, acting as assistant to his father in the see of Nazianzus. When he was fifty years old he was chosen, for his rare gifts and his conciliatory disposition, to be archbishop of Constantinople, then distracted by Arian and other heretics. In that city he made his name as a theologian; St Jerome boasts that he had there sat at his feet, and calls him his master and his catechist in Holy Scripture. But Gregory was a recluse and a scholar, and the imperial city was too much for him. Some disliked him for his modesty, others for his orthodoxy; he was persecuted by the magistrates, stoned by the rabble, and thwarted and deserted even by brother bishops. In a dignified and touching address he resigned his see, hoping thus to restore peace to the tormented city, and retired to his native town, where he died in 390. He was a graceful poet, a preacher at once eloquent and solid; and as a champion of the faith so well equipped, so strenuous and so exact that he is called St Gregory the Theologian and accounted one of the principal doctors of the Church.

Patience under Persecution

“We must overcome our enemies,” said St Gregory, “by gentleness; win them over by forbearance. Let them be punished by their own conscience, not by our wrath. We must not destroy the fig-tree from which a more skilful gardener may yet entice fruit.”

“Our enemies show in their conduct what their master has taught them. Let us show in ours what we have learned at the feet of Jesus.”—St Gregory Nazianzen.

The Arians were so irritated at the defeat of their party that they pursued Gregory with slander and outrage, and even attempted to take away his life. A resolute young man readily undertook the sacrilegious commission, but God did not allow him to carry it out. He was touched with remorse, and cast himself at the saint's feet, confessing his wicked intention. St Gregory at once forgave him, treated him with kindness and received him as a friend, to the wonder of the whole city and the confusion of the heretics, whose crime had served only as a contrast to the goodness of their intended victim.

“The learning of a man is known by patience, and his glory is to pass over wrongs.”—Prov. xix, 11.

10

ST ANTONINO

ANTONINO, “Little Antony”, as he was called from his small stature, was born at Florence in 1389. After a childhood of unusual seriousness he asked to be admitted into the Dominican house at Fiesole; but the superior, Bd John Dominici, judging him unsuited physically, tried to put him off by telling him he must first learn by heart a certain book containing several hundred pages. This apparently impossible task was accomplished within twelve months; and Antonino received the coveted habit in his sixteenth year. He filled several important posts in his order, founded the famous Florentine friary of San Marco, and was consulted on questions of difficulty by the most learned men of his day, being known for his integrity and prudence as "the Counsellor." He wrote several works on theology and history, and sat as papal theologian at the Council of Florence. In 1446 he was compelled to accept the archbishopric of that city, where he earned for himself the title of "the father of the poor," for all he had was at their disposal. His household consisted of only six persons; his house contained no expensive furniture, and hardly even the necessities of life. His one mule was sold time and again for the poor, when it would be bought back for him by some wealthy citizen. St Antonino died in 1459, repeating the words, "To serve God is to reign".

Almsdeeds

"Almsdeeds," says St Augustine, "include every kind of service rendered to a neighbour who needs such assistance. He who supports a lame man bestows an alms on him with his feet; he who guides a blind man does him a charity with his eyes; he who carries an invalid or aged man imparts an alms of his strength. So none are so poor but that they may give an alms to the wealthiest man in the world."

"The poor stretch forth the hand, but God receives what is given."—St Peter Chrysologus.

St Antonino never refused an alms asked in God's name; when he had no money he gave his clothes or shoes or furniture. One day, as he drew near Rome on his way to see the pope, a beggar came up to him almost naked, and asked him for help for Christ's sake. Outdoing St Martin, Antonino gave him his whole cloak; when he entered the city another one was given him : but he never knew by whom.

“Give alms out of thy substance, and turn not thy face away from any poor person; for so it shall come to pass that the face of the Lord shall not be turned from thee.”—Tobias iv, 7.

11 SS. PHILIP AND JAMES

PHILIP was one of the first chosen apostles of Christ. On the way from Judaea to Galilee our Lord found Philip and said, “Follow me”. Philip at once obeyed, and then sought to win his friend Nathaniel also, telling him, “We have found Him of whom Moses and the prophets did write, Jesus the son of Joseph of Nazareth”. And when Nathaniel asked, “Can any good come out of Nazareth?” Philip simply answered, “Come and see”, and brought him to Jesus. Other of St Philip's words are preserved for us by St John : Christ in His last discourse had spoken of His Father, and Philip exclaimed in the fervour of his thirst for God, “Lord, show us the Father, and it is enough.” St James the Less, or Younger, writer of a canonical epistle, was also one of the Twelve. St Paul tells us that our Lord made a special appearance to him after the Resurrection. On the dispersion of the apostles this James was left as bishop at Jerusalem; and even the Jews held him in such high veneration that they named him "the Just". At the Council of Jerusalem he followed St Peter and voiced the mind of the assembly that circumcision should not be imposed on gentile converts. St James ended his life by martyrdom. Declaring that "Even the Just Man has gone astray," the Jews rose up and stoned him to death. Nothing is known for certain about St Philip's later life and death.

Simplicity and Purity

The Church commemorates St Philip and St James together on the same day. They represent two aspects of Christian holiness : the first, faith, the second, works; the one, holy aspirations, the other, purity of heart.

"A man is lifted above earthly things on two wings, simplicity and purity. Simplicity must be in our intention, purity in our affections. Simplicity tends to God; purity lays hold of and enjoys Him." — Imitation of Christ.

Writing in the later part of the second century, the Christian historian Hegesippus recorded that St James was dedicated to God from his earliest years; that he drank no wine, ate no animal food, wore only priestly garments. He knelt so much in prayer for the people that his knees were as hard as a camel's. The Jews, it is said, used out of respect to touch the hem of his garment. He was indeed a living example of his own words, "The wisdom that is from above first indeed is chaste, then peaceable, modest, easy to be persuaded, consenting to the good, full of mercy and good fruits..."

"Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you."— James iv, 8.

12 ST PAUL MIKI AND HIS COMPANIONS

IN 1588 the most powerful man in Japan, Hideyoshi, ordered that all Christian missionaries should leave the country or be put to death, but the first martyrs did not suffer till nine years later. Of these twenty-six, six were Spanish or other Franciscans and the remainder Japanese, including three of the Society of Jesus. St Paul Miki was thirty-three years old and a most successful preacher of the Christian faith. St John Goto, a youth of nineteen, and St James Kisai, a man of sixty-four, were catechists and novice lay-brothers in the Jesuit house at Miako. With the other martyrs, their ears were cut off and they were paraded about the country in carts. At Nagasaki, on a long-backed hill over the city, twenty-six crosses were reared and a dense crowd gathered. On the way up John and James made their vows of religion. John's father was awaiting him, but only to encourage him to die; he took his stand beneath his son, and saw the lance-thrust, which splashed him with the blood of his child. Paul proclaimed Christ from his cross to those beneath him, and encouraged his fellows with burning words. The venerable old brother James exclaimed "I am only a sinner!" The remaining Japanese were lay tertiaries of St Francis, three of them boys; all were stabbed to death as they hung on their crosses. These martyrs were canonized in 1862 and their feast is kept on February 5.

Thankfulness for Grace

Japan was full of zealous missionaries, all anxious to give their life for Him whose name they bore. But leaders and learned men were passed over for the most part; God took a few friars, together with lay-brothers, catechists and interpreters, even boys.

“He who would keep the grace of God, let him be grateful for grace when it is given, and patient when it is taken away. Let him pray that it may be given back to him, and be careful and humble lest he lose it.”—Imitation of Christ.

Christians in Miako tried by influence and bribes to induce the authorities to let some of the prisoners go. St Paul Miki wrote at once to them : “Is that your way of showing your love for me? Did you wish to deprive me of the immense privilege which God has given me? You ought to rejoice, and praise His goodness for it.”

“Bless the Lord, O my soul, and never forget all he hath done for thee ... who redeemeth thy life from destruction, who crowneth thee with mercy and compassion.”—Ps. cii, 2, 4.

13 ST ROBERT BELLARMINE

THIS great doctor of the Church was born in Tuscany in 1542, and admitted to the Society of Jesus at the age of eighteen. He had a career of the highest distinction; he taught theology at Louvain, taught and preached in Rome, worked on the revision of the Latin version of the Bible, drew up a celebrated catechism, and was an outstanding controversialist. In 1598 he was made cardinal, “as he had no equal for learning”. For three years he occupied the archbishopric of Capua, where he gave up all other activities to look after the duties of his charge. He then was recalled to Rome, to take a prominent part in all the affairs of the Holy See. St Robert Bellarmine was the Church's foremost theologian against the errors of the Protestant reformers, notably in his four volumes of Disputations; and he opposed the doctrine of the "divine right" of kings which did so much damage in several countries, including England. He befriended Galileo, who unfortunately did not consistently follow the good advice that the Jesuit gave him. In his later years Bellarmine wrote a number of devotional books, notably a commentary on the Psalms and a treatise on the Art of Dying, which were soon translated into English. But his most widely diffused writing was his Catechism, which was translated into a dozen languages, among them Greek, Armenian and Arabic. St Robert died in his eightieth year in 1621; he was canonized in 1930, and declared a doctor of the Church in the following year.

The Psalms

The Psalms are the Church's preferred forms of prayer, and the use of at least some of them (e.g., nos. 22, 50, 129) is strongly recommended to every Christian.

"The commentary on the Psalms that I have just published was not a laborious undertaking but a delight. Nothing pleased me more than to devote a few hours of my nights to contemplating that great truth, Know ye that the Lord is God."—St Robert Bellarmine.

While he was archbishop of Capua St Robert was particularly concerned for the proper carrying out of divine worship in his cathedral. Every morning of the year he went to choir to sing office with his canons, and his example was enough to win over those of them who had become slack. His own daily programme was Matins and Lauds before sunrise, followed by an hour's meditation; then he celebrated Mass, preceded by Prime and followed by Terce, after which he went to the cathedral for the public office; he said Sext before dinner and None in the afternoon, Vespers at eight o'clock and Compline at midnight. It was within such a framework of prayer, and particularly of the psalms, that this holy man laboured for the good estate of Christ's Church and the reconciliation of erring Christians.

"Seven times a day I have given praise to thee, for the judgements of thy justice."—Psalm cxviii, 164.

14 ST BONIFACE OF TARBUS

VERY little is known about this early martyr as his story has been overlaid with fictitious detail. According to it, a Roman patrician woman, Aglaë, and her steward Boniface lived together as man and wife. One day Aglaë was stricken with remorse, and calling Boniface, she said, "You know we have lived forgetful of the account we must render for our sins when we stand before God. But I have heard that whoever honours His martyrs will have a share in their glory." Then she bade him set out for the East, where the persecution of Diocletian was raging, and obtain relics of the martyrs, hoping to enshrine them and receive grace through their prayers. Boniface became a changed man : he besought God's mercy and throughout his journey abstained from flesh and wine in honour of the saints. At Tarsus he found himself in the thick of the persecution. He saw martyrs suspended head downwards in fire, torn with hooks, stretched on the rack, and his open respect for them drew the eyes of the persecutors upon him. He was himself arrested, tortured and beheaded. His body was carried back to Aglaë, who built a church over its tomb and after years of penance died a holy death.

Devotion to the Saints

The legend of St Boniface should teach us to turn evil into good, and make our very sins a motive for betaking ourselves with greater fervour to the intercession of God's saints.

"We should look to Heaven as our real home; there a great multitude awaits us of those who are freed from care for their own salvation but are full of care for ours."—St Cyprian.

Whilst undergoing torture Boniface asked the martyrs who were suffering at his side "to pray for him their servant." They answered, "May our Lord Jesus Christ grant that you finish your course quickly. May He write your name with the firstborn." With his last breath he besought God to "give him rest in the choir of the holy martyrs." Thus his conversion and perseverance were the fruit of his devotion to the saints; and when he went to be with them for ever, the legend says that an angel appeared to Aglaë, and assured her that God would forgive all her sins through the intercession of the martyred Boniface.

"Golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints."—Apoc. v, 8.

15 ST JOHN BAPTIST DE LA SALLE

FROM childhood John Baptist longed to be a priest, but the loss of his parents and family cares interrupted his course at Saint-Sulpice, and he was twenty-seven before his ordination took place, in 1678. He had already been appointed to a canonry at Reims, his native town, and there God inspired a certain layman to seek his aid in founding a free school for boys. The saint devoted himself eagerly to the work, and took the teachers under his own charge. Schools multiplied, amid many difficulties, and demanded a constant supply of teachers, whom John Baptist had to train; and for them he drew up a rule of life. Thus began the congregation of Brothers of the Christian Schools, which spread rapidly in France. Among the pupils were many tough youths whom no punishments nor fear of Hell could move, but who were softened and won by the patience and sweetness of John Baptist. But he had powerful enemies. The Jansenists in particular opposed him and used all means to ruin his work; both civil and ecclesiastical measures were taken against him. John Baptist left his cause in the hands of God, and after ten years' patient waiting found himself unanimously confirmed as superior of the brothers, and their organization firmly established. He wrote several books on education and spiritual matters, and died on Good Friday in 1719.

Christian Education

Our Lord, we are told, "began to do and to teach"; and all His servants who have taught with effect have been living examples of their own teaching.

"The Brothers should be filled with ardent zeal to bring up their children in the fear of God and to keep them innocent of sin. Hence they must endeavour by prayer, instruction and example to educate them in the rules and spirit of the Gospel.—St John Baptist de La Salle.

In the beginning of the brotherhood some of the teachers were much disquieted by the uncertainty of their future, owing to the absence of endowments. The founder's adviser, Father Barré, had declared that "Si vous fondez, vous fondrez"—"If you endow, you will sink"—and John Baptist urged the brothers to trust in God. But his words produced little effect, for he still had his canonry and private means, and his critics told him that when he was as poor as themselves they would be more easily persuaded. Seeing that his preaching was indeed useless without example, John Baptist resigned his benefice, gave his property to the poor, and lived to his last hour in poverty with his brethren.

"Take heed to thyself and to doctrine; be earnest in them. For in doing this thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee."—1 Tim. iv, 16.

16 ST UBALD OF GUBBIO

BEING orphaned at an early age, Ubald was brought up by his uncle, the bishop of Gubbio in Italy, who in due course ordained the young man and made him dean of the cathedral. Finding the canons very slack, Ubald spent some time with a community of canons regular, and afterwards succeeded in imposing their rule and common life on the cathedral chapter. Ubald himself wanted to live as a solitary, but in 1128 he had to accept the bishopric of Gubbio. He was distinguished by a mildness and patience that made him seem insensible to insults or affronts. On one occasion a workman whom he had reproved pushed him into a heap of mortar, covering him with wet dirt. Ubald got up without uttering one word of complaint, and when the magistrates prosecuted the man begged him off, offering him the kiss of peace. Knowing the blessings of peace, Ubald faced every danger to preserve it in his flock, and proved himself as brave as he was gentle. When a riot arose in the town, and he saw that his entreaties were of no avail, he threw himself between the combatants, regardless of drawn swords and falling stones. He fell to the ground as if wounded, and the rioters at once stopped, believing him slain. But he rose to his feet and thanked God that the tumult was stayed. During his last years he bore a most painful disease with perfect cheerfulness, and went to everlasting peace in 1160.

Hatred of Strife

“Man naturally,” says St Jerome, “gives way to anger, but the Christian as naturally stifles his passion and forgives his enemies.” Learn from St Ubald that this second nature is only obtained by prayer and self-discipline.

“Be at peace with yourself, and you will be able to give peace also to others.”—Imitation of Christ.

While St Ubald was bishop of Gubbio, the place was threatened with destruction by the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa. The saint, at the peril of his life but impelled by concern for his flock, made his way into the German camp, and succeeded in diverting the emperor from his purpose of sacking Gubbio as he had sacked Spoleto. We can learn from this that the peacemaker is not, as some would have him to be, fearful or a coward : more courage is often needed to use moral weapons than to fight in a battle.

“Whence do wars and quarrels come among you? Is it not from this, from your passions, which wage war in your members?”—James iv, 1.

17 ST PASCHAL BAYLON

FROM a child Paschal seems to have been marked out for the service of God, and he taught himself to pray as well as to read whilst herding flocks on the hills of Aragon. At the age of twenty-four, in 1564, he entered the Franciscan Order, in which he remained a simple lay-brother, and occupied himself by preference with the roughest and lowliest tasks. He was noted for his ardent love and devotion to the Blessed Sacrament. He would spend hours on his knees before the tabernacle—sometimes he was raised from the ground in the fervour of his prayer—and there, from the one and eternal Truth, he drew such wisdom that, unlettered as he was, he was counted a master in spiritual knowledge. On one occasion he was sent to Paris on business connected with his order. The journey was dangerous, owing to the hostility of the Huguenots who were numerous in the south of France, and four times Paschal came in for rough handling. At Orleans he worsted learned men when he was questioned about his belief in the Real Presence. Several remarkable visions are related of him, and many were the miracles reported at his grave after his death in 1592. Three hundred years later the man who had been an obscure lay-brother in a corner of Spain was named by Pope Leo XIII as patron-saint of eucharistic congresses and associations throughout the world.

Devotion to the Blessed Sacrament

St Paschal teaches us to try never to let a day pass without visiting Jesus there where He, whom the heavens cannot contain, dwells day and night in sacramental form for our sake. Or if we live far from a church, to turn our minds to Him there at least once daily.

Jesu, whom I look at shrouded here below,
I beseech thee send me what I long for so,
Some day to gaze on thee, face to face in light,
And be blest for ever with thy glory's sight.

"Adoro te"

A Franciscan minister provincial said of St Paschal : "In no single case do I remember noticing the least fault in him, though I lived with him in several of our houses and was his companion on two long journeys; such journeys are commonly an occasion when a man, worn-out with fatigue and the monotony, allows himself some indulgence...". Once when told to tell a visitor at the door that the father guardian was out, Brother Paschal, who knew the guardian was not out, demurred : "I will say he is engaged", and persisted in so doing when the order was repeated.

"My delights were to be with the children of men."—
Prov. viii, 31.

18 ST FELIX OF CANTALICE

ST FELIX was born in 1513 in southern Italy and his boyhood and youth were spent in keeping cattle and in the labour of the fields. In these occupations he was able to lead a nearly solitary life, and by continual prayer and penance reached a high degree of contemplation. "All created things can raise us to God if we look at them properly," he used to say. At the age of thirty, hearing of the lives of the desert fathers, he longed to follow their example, and asked admittance as a lay-brother into the Capuchin Order. He redoubled his prayers and thanksgivings, and added austerities beyond the rule, walking barefoot and wearing a shirt studded with little spikes. He spent most of the night in prayer, but went to rest while the fathers recited Matins, saying Jesus was not then alone. For forty years he daily collected alms in Rome, but his recollection was unbroken in spite of the wearisomeness and humiliations of that duty, which entailed calling from house to house. St Philip Neri greatly loved Felix, and when they met they would wish each other sufferings for God, or remain speechless with joy and part again without a word. It was by the advice of St Philip that St Charles Borromeo induced Felix to revise the rules the cardinal had drawn up for his Oblate fathers. Felix died in 1587.

Giving Thanks

Ask St Felix to help you to acquire a habit of thankfulness to God in your heart. By so doing, without changing any of your outward circumstances, you will be enabled to hold your life at a high spiritual level.

"If you look at the present, it is by God that you are living; if the future, He is the hope of everything you expect; if the past, you would never have been had He not created you.”—St Gregory of Nyssa.

St Felix always greeted people with the words, “Deo gratias”; he taught children to repeat them, and when they saw him they would call out “Deo gratias.” He was more generally known as Brother Deogratias than by his own name. He once came upon two men fighting; he called to them, “Deo gratias, brothers; say, both of you, Deo gratias!” In the heat of their quarrel they stopped short, let the holy friar arbitrate between them, and became friends. His last wish on his death-bed was that others should say “Deo gratias” for him when he could no longer speak.

“I will sing to the Lord as long as I live; I will sing praise to my God while I have being.”—Psalm ciii, 33.

19

ST CELESTINE V

PETER di Morone, born about 1210 in central Italy, was the eleventh of the twelve children of a peasant and the only one to be given any education. When he was twenty he became a hermit in the mountains; he received the Benedictine habit and was ordained priest, and when disciples gathered round he formed them into a small order (now extinct), afterwards called “Celestines”. He had lived a holy and hidden life for sixty-four years when an astonishing thing happened. The cardinals assembled to elect a new pope having failed to agree, they compromised by an unanimous choice of Peter di Morone, who had sent them a message of reproof for their long delay. The venerable old man was horrified : he was now eighty-four and knew he was totally unfitted for so tremendous a responsibility. But in spite of his protests he was consecrated bishop and installed as Celestine V. He occupied the papal chair for less than six months, during which everything fell into disorder. Unhappy and frightened in his new surroundings, Celestine became the innocent tool of a scheming king, Charles of Naples, and at last induced the cardinals to accept his resignation of the Apostolic See. The old man went happily back to his monks, but was not allowed to stay with them. Lest his simplicity should be taken advantage of further to distract the Church's peace, he was confined by his successor, Boniface VIII, in a small room of a castle near Anagni, and there after ten months of hardship he died, in 1296. Some good people judged Pope Celestine very harshly, as a coward : not so the Church, which canonized him in 1313.

Solitude with God

“Whoever”, says the Imitation of Christ, “withdraws himself from acquaintances and friends, to him will God draw near with His holy angels.”

“To speak heart to heart with God you must love to be with Him alone; he who takes pleasure in the society of the great will never hear His voice.”—St Celestine.

While he was pope, St Celestine had a wooden cell built in the papal residence, where he tried to continue his hermit's life; and when he was shut up near Anagni he said, “I wanted nothing but a cell, and a cell they have given me.” There he returned to his former loving intimacy with the saints and angels, and sang the divine praises day and night. On Whit-Sunday he told his guards he should die within the week, and immediately fell ill. He received the last sacraments; and the following Saturday, as he finished the concluding verse of Lauds, "Let every spirit bless the Lord!" he closed his eyes to this world and opened them to the vision of God.

"I will lead her [God's people] into the wilderness, and there I will speak to her heart."—Osee ii, 14.

20 ST BERNARDINE OF SIENA

ST VINCENT FERRER once suddenly interrupted his sermon to declare that there was among his hearers a young Franciscan who would one day be a great preacher, and held in much honour by the Church. This unknown friar was Bernardine. Of noble birth, he had spent his youth in good works, and had then entered religion as a Franciscan, in 1402. Owing to a weak voice, his success as a preacher at first seemed doubtful, but this obstacle was miraculously removed after he had asked for the prayers of our Lady, and Bernardine began a mission which lasted thirty-eight years. He raised his voice in turn against the civil strife, licentiousness and superstitions of his time, and by his burning words and invocation of the name of Jesus (which he displayed on a tablet at the end of his sermons) obtained numerous conversions and reformed the greater part of Italy. But this success had to be exalted by the Cross. The saint was denounced as a heretic and his devotion to the Holy Name as idolatrous. After many trials he lived to see his innocence proved, and later a lasting memorial of his work was established in the Church: the feast of the Holy Name commemorates alike his sufferings and his triumph.

He died on Ascension-eve, 1444, while his brethren were chanting the antiphon "Father, I have manifested thy name to men."

Devotion to the Holy Name

The life of St Bernardine was St Philip Neri's favourite among the lives of the saints, and the last he read before his death. Let us learn from it, as he did, the power of the Holy Name in life and death.

"Jesus, crucified for me, pour out yourself upon me, and with the nails of your love fasten my whole being to you."—St Bernardine.

Bernardine when a youth undertook the care of an old woman, a relation of his, who had been left destitute. She was blind and bedridden, and during her long illness could hardly speak except to utter the Holy Name. The saint watched over her till she died, and thus learned the devotion of his life. To understand the mysteries of Jesus, we too must become familiar with His friends—the poor, the suffering, the sick.

"God hath exalted him, and hath given him a name which is above all names, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow."—Phil. ii, 9-10.

21 ST ANDREW BOBOLA

ONE spring day in 1657 there lay upon the roadway at Janow, on the Polish-Russian border, the mutilated body of a saintly Jesuit. He had suffered a martyrdom of unspeakable atrocity at the hands of Cossacks. The sabre had almost severed his hands and feet; the torch had burned his flesh; the knife had stripped his back and head of skin; thorns pierced each finger-nail, his lips and nostrils were slit, his tongue had been torn away by the roots. Finally his head had been struck off. What preparation had fitted Andrew Bobola to undergo such revolting barbarity? There was little extraordinary in his life of sixty-five years. As a child he was innocent and obedient, as a youth diligent and modest; an instinctive love of the Society of Jesus determined his career. A thirst for suffering burnt in him as a novice. As a priest he was known as the "seeker of souls." He toiled bravely through a terrible plague. He preached diligently from town to town, and for many long years he bore patiently the insults and outrages of hostile people, who dogged his steps along the unfailing round of daily duties, which Andrew Bobola began and accomplished for the love of Jesus Christ. His body remained incorrupt, and was carried off to Moscow after the Russian revolution; thence it was conveyed to Rome in extraordinary circumstances in 1922.

Courage in Suffering

Bear bodily sufferings patiently and bravely, and prepare for the day of trial, as Andrew did, by courageous endurance of the daily crosses that beset every man and woman in every state of life.

Be always ready, like a good and faithful servant of Christ, to bear bravely the cross of your Lord, who was crucified for love of you."—Imitation of Christ.

"He is a monster! Give him claws!" So they drove thorns of sharp reed under each nail of his hands. Every moment he felt as if soul and body would snap asunder, and he called unceasingly on Jesus and His holy mother. This provoked his tormentors to cut out his tongue : they opened a gash in his neck, and tore it out by the roots with all the strength of ferocious rage. Then at last the glorious athlete of Jesus Christ, trying in vain to repeat that name so deeply graven in his heart, became insensible.

“Fear not them that kill the body, and are not able to kill the soul.”—Matt. x, 28.

22

ST DUNSTAN

ST DUNSTAN was educated by Irish priests and others at Glastonbury. He there acquired great learning, and also cultivated a taste for music, painting and metal-work. After some hesitation between the world and the cloister, a grievous sickness led him to choose the monk's habit, and he returned to Glastonbury, where he became abbot in the year 943 and began the great revival of monasticism in England. His bold condemnation of the vices of King Edwy drew upon him the royal anger, and he was forced to leave the country. Edgar, on succeeding to the throne, recalled him from exile, and in 960 nominated him to the see of Canterbury. At the cost of much dislike and obloquy, but with the zealous co-operation of St Oswald and St Ethelwold, his brethren in the cloister whom he promoted to the episcopate, Dunstan raised the clergy of England from a state of ignorance and laxity. Nor was his zeal confined to the sanctuary. He defended the poor and oppressed, watched over the court and the nobles, and as readily reproved his patron, King Edgar, as he had his adversary, Edwy. On Ascension day in 988 St Dunstan sang Mass for the last time, thrice preached to the people, and concluded by asking their prayers, as his hour was nigh. On the Saturday following he breathed his last. He was one of the greatest of English bishops and his feast is observed in many English dioceses, on May 19.

Rebuking Wrongdoing

St Dunstan's open opposition to vice brought banishment and loss upon him; and his fearless rebukes of scandal on his return proved his disregard of the world and that he was ready again to suffer for Christ. Do we use every endeavour by word and example to check our neighbour's sin?

"If you detect your brother in wrongdoing, correct him in private; if he takes no notice, correct him openly; for such reproofs are good, and often better than silent friendships. And do not refrain because he is aggrieved, for the wounds of friends are easier to bear than the kisses of flatterers."—St Ambrose.

A nobleman, whom Dunstan had excommunicated for a grave public sin, came to him with an order from the king for his pardon. Dunstan replied: "When you are truly penitent I will gladly obey the king; but so long as you are hardened in your sin, God forbid that any man should induce me to violate God's law and set aside the Church's censure." Such unexpected rigour so startled the man that he voluntarily repaired the scandal by a public and mortifying penance.

"Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, but reprove him openly, lest thou incur sin through him."
—Lev. xix, 17.

23

ST ALDHELM

ST ALDHELM was born about the year 639, of the family of the West Saxon kings. In middle manhood he went to study under St Adrian at Canterbury; but he received his earlier education from Maildubh, an Irish hermit who had established a monastery at the place since called Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, of which Aldhelm became abbot. During the thirty years of his rule the abbey increased in numbers, in learning and in sanctity; and the holy abbot himself acquired a widespread reputation for his knowledge of languages, his writings, his purity of life and his apostolic activities. Aldhelm founded small monasteries at Frome and Bradford-on-Avon, and several churches in the same neighbourhood. At about sixty-five years of age he was made bishop of the new see of Sherborne. Soon after, at the request of a synod convened by King Ine of Wessex, he addressed a letter to the ruler of the Devon and Cornwall peninsula, Geraint, as a result of which the British Christians there adopted the Roman method of dating Easter, which had been a matter of much dispute. St Aldhelm was the first Englishman to become well-known as a scholar, and he was a sincere enthusiast for learning and education; some of his writings, including a treatise on virginity, still survive. He died in 709 and was buried at Malmesbury; his feast-day is May 25.

Good Use of Talents

The greatest intellectual gifts, and their use and cultivation, need be no obstacle to perfection. On the contrary, as the gifts of God, they should be consecrated to His service; they will then not only promote our own sanctification but also that of others. St Ald-helm was perhaps the most learned and accomplished man of his time in England, yet he was a saint, and the spiritual father of many holy men and women.

“Read frequently; pray earnestly. If you labour to acquire secular learning, do so with the intention of becoming better able to understand and teach the law of God.”—St Aldhelm.

In order to attract and teach the unlettered, Aldhelm wrote verses and songs in English. He used to stand on the bridge at Malmesbury and sing these songs, which so attracted people that they stopped in crowds to listen; by degrees he skilfully introduced religious themes, and finally induced them to follow him to the church.

“All things are yours; and you are Christ’s, and Christ is God’s.”—1 Cor. iii, 22-23.

24 ST THEODOTUS OF ANCYRA

THEODOTUS was an innkeeper at Ancyra in Asia Minor. Though the story of this St Theodotus and his companions purports to be written by an eye-witness, there is good reason to think it is no more than a pious fiction from which the faithful were intended to draw salutary lessons. The following is a summary of it. He led many sinners to repentance, many Jews and heathen to the knowledge of Christ; and in the persecution of Diocletian he confirmed the faith of the confessors by prayer and good advice. He made his occupation serve his religion : his inn was a place of shelter for Christians, and he furnished bread and wine for the Holy Sacrifice. On a certain occasion he undertook to provide relics of the martyrs for a chapel which a priest, Fronto, was going to build. Seven Christian maidens having been arrested, Theodotus remained praying for them, till he got the news of their victory. Next night one of these martyrs appeared to him and told him how to recover her body and those of her companions. He did indeed recover them, but in doing so he was betrayed and beheaded. Fronto found the body of Theophilus, and thus his chapel had its relics. His feast is on May 18.

Forbearance and Mercy

Resolve to benefit others by forbearance, charity and strictness with yourself. You are truly merciful when you seek to supply the spiritual necessities of your neighbour. "Blessed," Christ says, "are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

"We owe far more to God than to ourselves; we owe as much to our neighbour as to ourselves."—St Augustine.

God rewards our prayers for our brethren by inspiring them to pray for us in the hour of our need. Thus did the martyrs pray for one another, that they might be able to contend manfully and so receive their crowns of glory. Their prayers strengthened them for the combat, and enabled them to remember the needs of others amid their own sufferings. "See," they said of each other, "how Christ can make a man of low condition victorious over princes," and told the people "to look at the sacrifice we must offer for Christ, who first suffered for us."

“And he gave to every one of them commandment concerning his neighbour.”—Ecclus. xvii, 12.

25

ST GREGORY VII

GREGORY VII (Hildebrand at baptism) was born in Tuscany about the year 1013, and was educated in Rome. From thence he went to France and became a monk, perhaps at Cluny. Afterwards he returned to Rome, and for many years filled high offices for the Holy See. Three great evils then afflicted the Church : simony, clerical concubinage, and secular interference through the custom of receiving ecclesiastical investiture from lay hands. Against these corruptions Gregory never ceased to contend. He was elected pope in 1073, and at once called upon bishops everywhere to lay down their lives rather than betray the laws of God to the will of princes. The position as between pope and emperor, Henry IV, soon became impossible. Imperial nobles laid hands on Gregory at Christmas during the midnight Mass, and cast him into prison; the following day he was rescued by the people. Next Henry professed to depose the pope; Gregory excommunicated him. Then German barons plotted against their sovereign, and Henry sought absolution of Gregory at Canossa. But he was not sincere : he set up an antipope, and besieged Gregory in the castle of Sant' Angelo. The aged pontiff was obliged to flee, and died in exile in 1085. In spite of its sad ending, Gregory's pontificate was one of great achievement as well as great struggle, and he has given his name to the whole reforming movement in the Church of the later eleventh century.

Loyalty to the Holy See

Nine hundred years are past since St Gregory died, and we see the same conflict still going on, under other forms and in different lands. Let us learn from him to suffer any persecution from the world or the state, rather than compromise our loyalty to the Holy See.

“Those who are in places of power must nevertheless always prefer God’s will to their own. They must not seek to subject Holy Church slavishly to their will; but let them strive, as befits them, to honour her eyes—that is, the priests of the Lord—as their teachers and their fathers.”—St Gregory VII.

On May 25, 1085, about the seventy-second year of his life and the twelfth of his pontificate, Gregory entered into rest. On his death-bed he expressed forgiveness of his enemies, and his last words have become proverbial : “I have loved righteousness and hated iniquity, therefore I die in exile.” A bystander is said to have exclaimed, “An exile you can never be, for God has given you the Gentiles for an inheritance and the uttermost ends of the earth for your possession.”

“The God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed, and his kingdom shall not be delivered up to another people, and it shall break in pieces and shall consume all these kingdoms; and it shall stand for ever.”—Dan. ii, 44.

26

ST PHILIP NERI

PHILIP was one of the noble line of saints raised up by God in the sixteenth century to console and bless His Church. After a childhood in which he earned the nickname of Pippo buono, "Good little Phil," the Holy Spirit drew him away from Florence, the place of his birth, showed him the world that he might freely renounce it, led him to Rome, modelled him in mind and heart and will, and then, manifesting Himself as it were as a ball of fire, filled his soul with light and peace and joy. He would have gone to India, but God reserved him for Rome, where he lived a layman for eighteen years : he went on simply from day to day, drawing souls to Jesus, exercising them in mortification and charity, and binding them together by prayer in common. Thus, unconsciously to himself, under the hands of Mary as he said, The Oratory grew up after he was ordained priest in 1551, and all Rome was pervaded and transformed by its spirit. St Philip's life was a continuous miracle, his habitual state an ecstasy. He read the hearts of men, foretold their future, knew their eternal destiny. His touch gave health of body; his very look calmed souls in trouble and drove away temptations. He was gay, genial and irresistibly winning; neither insult nor wrong could dim the brightness of his joy : A gentle joke would convey his rebukes and veil his miracles. His confessional was besieged for hours every day, cardinals sought the simple priest's advice. St Philip died in his eightieth year in 1595, and the grand title of Apostle of Rome was accorded him on all sides. (In England and Wales May 26 is the feast of St Augustine of Canterbury : for him, see page 238.)

Joyfulness

Philip wished his children to serve God, like the first Christians, in gladness of heart. This, he said, is the true spirit of sonship, this expands the soul, giving it liberty and perfection in action, power over temptation, and fuller aid to perseverance.

“I will have no scrupulosity and no melancholy in my house.”—St Philip Neri.

Philip lived in an atmosphere of gaiety and good humour that cheered up all who came near him. “When I met him in the street,” says one, “he would pat my cheek and say, ‘Well, how is Don Pellegrino?’ and leave me so happy that I could not tell which way I was going.” Marcio Altieri felt such overflowing gladness in his presence that he said Philip’s room was a paradise on earth. Fabrizio de’ Massimi when in grief or perplexity would go and stand at Philip’s door : he said it was enough to see him, to be near him. And long after his death it was enough for many when troubled to go into his room, to find their hearts lightened and gladdened. He inspired a boundless confidence and love, and was everybody’s refuge and comforter.

“The fruit of the Spirit is charity, joy, peace...”—Gal. v, 22.

27

ST BEDE

THE VENERABLE BEDE, the glory of the Anglo-Saxon Church, the first English historian, and the only English doctor of the Church, was as a child entrusted to the care of St Benedict Biscop at Wearmouth. He became a monk there and at the sister-house of Jarrow, and trained many scholars, whom his piety, learning and sweet disposition had attracted thither. To the toil of teaching and the exact observance of his rule he added long hours of private prayer, and the study of every branch of science and literature then known. He was familiar with Latin and Greek, and knew some Hebrew. In a treatise which he compiled for his scholars, still extant, he put together all that the world had then stored in history, chronology, physics, music, philosophy, poetry, arithmetic and medicine. In his Ecclesiastical History he left us accounts of early English saints and fathers, while his commentaries on the Holy Scriptures are still in use by the Church. It was to the study of the Bible that he devoted his most loving energies : "It has always been my delight to learn or teach or write," he wrote, and in these activities God's written word had the first place. He worked and prayed up to his last hour, and died as he had lived—ever joyful, giving glory to God—in 735. Bede left his monastery but rarely; yet, through his influence on the school of York, he had influence on the general development of European scholarship.

The Search for Heavenly Wisdom

"The more," says the Imitation of Christ, "a man is at one within himself and interiorly simple, so much the more and deeper things is he able to understand : for he receives the light of understanding from on high."

"Unhappy is the man who knows all other things but does not know you, God, and happy is he who knows you, though he know naught else."—St Augustine.

Bede was translating the Gospel of St John into English up to the hour of his death, which took place on Ascension eve in 735. "He spent that day joyfully", writes one of his scholars. And in the evening the boy who was writing for him said, "Dear master, there is yet one sentence unwritten". He answered, "Write it quickly." Presently the boy said, "Now it is done". He replied, "Good! you are right—"it is finished". Hold up my head, that I may have the happiness to sit facing my old praying-place, there to call upon my Father." And so, on the floor of his cell, he sang, "Glory be to the Father, Son and Holy Ghost;" and just as he said "Holy Ghost", he breathed his last and went to Heaven.

"The desire of wisdom bringeth to the everlasting kingdom."—Wisdom vi, 21.

28

ST AUGUSTINE OF CANTERBURY

"THE history of the Church," says Bossuet, "has nothing finer than the entry of the holy monk Augustine into the kingdom of Kent with his forty companions, preceded by the cross and an image of the great King, our Lord Jesus Christ, and solemnly praying for the conversion of the English." Augustine, or Austin in the English form of his name, was prior of the monastery of St Andrew on the Caelian, and was appointed by Pope St Gregory the Great chief of the missionaries whom he sent to England. Landing at Ebbsfleet, between Sandwich and Ramsgate, they met King Ethelbert and his thanes in the open air near Minster, and announced to him the good news of Jesus Christ. Instant success attended their preaching. On Whit

Sunday in 597 King Ethelbert was baptized, his example was followed by the greater number of his nobles and people, and Augustine established his see at Canterbury. By degrees the faith spread, and Augustine set out on a visitation. He failed in his attempt to enlist the Christian Britons of the west in the work of his mission, but he was highly successful elsewhere and other bishoprics were set up at Rochester and London. St Augustine died after some eight years of evangelical labours, about 605. The Anglo-Saxon Church which he founded is still famous for its learning, zeal and devotion to the Holy See, and for the number of its holy people, many of them of royal birth, who are venerated as saints. In England and Wales St Austin's feast is on May 26.

Obedience

The work of an apostle is the work of the right hand of God. He often chooses weak instruments for His mightiest purposes. The most sure sign of lasting success in missionary work is obedience to superiors and diffidence about oneself.

“If you remember that you have ever sinned against our Creator by word or deed, let that memory crush any pride that may rise in your heart. Whatever power of working miracles has been or will be given you, it is solely for the benefit of those to whom you are sent.”—St Gregory, to St Augustine.

St Augustine and his companions, having heard on their journey from Rome many reports of the barbarism and ferocity of the English, were afraid, and wished to turn back. But St Gregory replied, “Go on, in God's name! The greater your hardships, the greater your crown. May the grace of Almighty God protect you and may I, in the heavenly country, see the fruit of your labour. If I cannot share your toil, I shall share the harvest, for God knows that it is not good will which is wanting." The band of missionaries went on in obedience, and conquered.

"By the obedience of one, many shall be made just."
—Rom. v, 19.

29 ST MARY MAGDALEN DEI PAZZI

THIS Mary Magdalen, of the illustrious family of the Pazzi in Florence, was born in the year 1566, and baptized Catherine. She received her first communion at ten years of age, and as a girl took great pleasure in teaching Christian doctrine to the ignorant. Her father, not knowing she had taken a private vow of virginity, wished to give her in marriage, but she persuaded him to allow her to become a nun. It was more difficult to obtain her mother's consent; but at last she gained it, and she was professed, at eighteen years of age, in the Carmelite monastery of Santa Maria degli Angeli in Florence. She changed her name to Mary Magdalen, and took as her motto "Let me suffer or let me die." Her life henceforth was one of penance for sins not her own, and of love of our Lord, who tested her severely. But she continued obedient, observant of the rule, humble and mortified, with a great reverence for the religious life. From the Whitsunday of 1590 the winter of her trials was at an end. God raised her to high states of prayer and gave her rare gifts, enabling her to read the thoughts of her novices and filling her with wisdom to direct them aright. She was twice chosen mistress of novices, and then made prioress. God took her to Himself in 1607, after she had been bedridden and in much pain for nearly three years.

Divine Charity

St Mary Magdalen dei Pazzi was so filled with love of God that her sisters in the monastery observed it in her love of themselves, and called her "the mother of charity," and "the charity of the house."

"I love people because Jesus loves them, and I would bear anything to comfort them, for God cannot rest in a heart that is ill at ease."—St Mary Magdalen dei Pazzi.

Charity is the presence of God Himself in the soul, transforming it into a new creature. Mary Magdalen called the day of holy communion the day of love. The charity that burned in her heart led her to choose the house of the Carmelites, because its religious communicated nearly every day. She rejoiced to see others communicate, even when she was not allowed to do so herself; her love for her sisters grew when she saw them receive their Lord.

"He that loveth not knoweth not God, for God is charity. By this hath appeared the charity of God towards us, because God hath sent his only begotten Son into the world that we may live by him."—1 John iv, 8-9.

30

ST ERCONWALD AND ST ETHELBURGA

ST ERCONWALD was born at a time when the stream of divine grace let loose by the preaching of St Augustine was spreading over our land. He and his sister St Ethelburga were caught in its current and, giving themselves up to its force, were led to seek the cloister. From the monastery of Chertsey, which he founded and where he made great progress in the knowledge and love of God, Erconwald was called to be bishop of London by the great St Theodore of Canterbury, whose organization of the Church in England held for nearly a thousand years. St Erconwald helped to compose Theodore's difficulties with St Wilfrid of York. After long years of arduous service he saw that his time of warfare was drawing to its close; so, once more withdrawing himself from the cares of the world as he had formerly done from its pleasures, he sought the quiet convent which he had founded for his sister at Barking in Essex, and there committed his soul into his Master's hands. This was about the year 686. St Erconwald's feast is kept on May 13. Of St Ethelburga the Venerable Bede writes that she was "in every way worthy of her brother, godly of life and devoted to her community, as heavenly miracles bore witness." He gives an account of her death, about 678, "and no one who knew her can doubt that she went straight to Heaven." Her feast-day is October 12.

Reverence for Relics

The woman in the Gospel was healed of her infirmity by devoutly touching our Lord's garment. Shall not we, then, with humble faith touch and reverently kiss the sacred relics of the saints who stand round the throne of God, the spiritual garments of the Most High, that we too may be made whole in soul and body?

"The bodies of holy martyrs and others now living with Christ, bodies which were His members and temples of the Holy Spirit, which one day are to be raised up by Him and made glorious in everlasting life, are to be venerated by the faithful; God gives men many benefits through them.”—Council of Trent.

The citizens of London used to have a special devotion to St Erconwald whose shrine was in St Paul's cathedral up to the Reformation and was much resorted to. Its preservation during a great fire there in 1087 was attributed to miraculous agency.

“Eliseus took up the mantle of Elias..., and he struck the waters with the mantle..., and they were divided hither and thither; and Eliseus passed over.”—4 Kings ii, 13-14.

31 ST ANGELA MERICI

ANGELA MERICI was born in 1474, or a little before, in Lombardy. Having learnt in a vision that she was to found a society for the education of the young, she entered the third order of St Francis and began with other tertiaries to teach the neglected children in her native village; later she undertook similar work in Brescia. But though she was highly gifted and visibly blessed from above, she seemed no nearer the fulfilment of her project. Her youth and prime passed, while war and troublous times both prevented its execution and increased its need. It was not till 1535, after forty years of discouragement and delay, that Angela was able, with a number of young companions, to lay the first solid foundations of an organization. This eventually developed into the Company of St Ursula, the first teaching order of women to be established in the Church. But at first they simply formed a society of devoted young women, living in their own homes, but sacrificing themselves for the poor, the ignorant and the afflicted, as Christ had given Himself for others. The society was still in its infancy when Angela was called to her reward; she died in 1540, leaving her children with perfect confidence in the hands of Jesus Christ. Her personal life had always been one of prayer and austerity, during which she had frequently experienced supernatural visions and communications.

Patient waiting upon God

To will is for us; to accomplish is for God, who chooses the time and the means. After Angela's death her children were gathered into communities, and thus established, the Ursulines flourished and are now spread over the world.

“He who, when he has knocked, is angry because he is not forthwith heard, is not a humble petitioner but an imperious demander. However long He may leave you waiting, wait patiently for the Lord's own time.—St Peter Chrysologus.

During her long period of uncertainty, Angela went on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land to seek light from God. When off Crete she was suddenly struck with blindness. She went on, however, to the holy places, and the keenness of her faith made good her want of sight. On the homeward voyage her sight was restored at the very place she had lost it. When the vessel almost foundered Angela's perfect calm inspired passengers and crew with courage. And when, on landing in Italy, Pope Clement VII offered her a responsible post in Rome, Angela preferred to return to Brescia, and wait there till God should make His will known.

“Be you therefore also patient, and strengthen your hearts.”—James v, 8.

1

BD LYDWINA

LYDWINA was born in a labourer's cottage at Schiedam in Holland on Palm Sunday 1380, while the Passion was being chanted in church; the word "passion" means "suffering" and thus a single word foretold the story of her life. As a girl she dedicated body and soul to God; and then, in her sixteenth year, after recovering from a serious illness, she had a heavy fall while skating. In spite of devoted nursing, the hurt she received kept her in bed, from which she never rose for over thirty years. At the beginning of her sufferings her parish-priest led her to accept for Christ's sake all that should happen to her, and she bore uncomplainingly developments of her disease that are so distressing as to be almost unreadable. At the same time she was often rapt in ecstasy, and experienced most remarkable visions, which brought crowds of people to see her, some of whom behaved with great thoughtlessness, even brutality. But Lydwina made her squalid room a centre of charity and a paradise of joy. Her few quiet words softened hard hearts, healed quarrels, and wrought miracles of grace, until in 1433 her sacrifice was complete, and her Bridegroom took her to her everlasting home. Her feast is kept in Holland on April 14.

The Privilege of Pain

Pain comes to us with God's permission for our good. Bd Lydwina's life reminds us how great are the rewards in store for those who know its value and accept it as a mercy.

"The experience of pain is something so fine and precious that the divine Word, who knew all the joys of Paradise but was not clothed with this ornament of sorrow, came down from Heaven to seek it upon the earth."—St Mary Magdalen dei Pazzi.

It would be difficult to credit both the bodily sufferings and spiritual consolations of Bd Lydwina were it not for the fact that many of them are related by men of probity who knew her personally : one of them was her cousin, another the great Thomas Kempis. We are told that for nearly twenty years she could not take food, and practically depended for nourishment upon holy communion. Another biographer wrote that "meditation on the Passion and reception of the Eucharist became as it were two arms with which she embraced her Beloved." Veneration for Bd Lydwina was much encouraged by the son of one of her physicians, who built a hospital on the site of her home.

"As gold in the furnace he hath proved them, and as a victim of holocaust he hath received them."—Wisdom iii, 6.

2 THE MARTYRS OF LYONS

IN the year 177 at Vienne and Lyons in Gaul the people were excited against the Christians, and a terrible persecution began. Among those brought before the Roman governor was a slave, Blandina; and her mistress, also a Christian, feared that Blandina lacked strength to brave torture. She was tormented for hours, but bore it in such fashion that the executioners gave up, confessing themselves outdone. Red-hot irons were held to the sides of Sanctus, a deacon of Vienne, till his body became one great wound and he no longer looked like a man; but amid his tortures he was "bedewed and strengthened by the stream of life-giving water which flows from the side of Christ." Maturus, Attalus and Alexander, a physician, were also publicly tortured and thrown to wild beasts. Many other confessors were kept in prison, and with them were some who had been terrified into apostasy. Even the heathen marked the joy of martyrdom in the Christians who were decked for their eternal bridal, and the unhappiness of the apostates. But the faithful confessors brought back those who had fallen, and the Church, "that Virgin Mother," rejoiced when she saw her children live again in Christ. Some died in prison, the rest were martyred one by one : St Blandina last of all, after seeing her young brother put to death, and encouraging him to victory. The leader of these martyrs was St Pothinus, the bishop of Lyons, who was ninety years old. He was beaten, kicked and stoned, so that he died in prison two days later.

Joy in Christ's Service

In early times Christians showed that they were children of joy and victory. Let us seek the joy of the Holy Spirit to sweeten suffering and to temper earthly delight, till we enter into the joy of our Lord.

"Nothing is frightening if the charity of the Father be there; nothing is painful if Christ be glorified in it."—From the Acts of the Lyons Martyrs.

Among the repeated charges against these Christians was that of cannibalism. When he was tortured with fire, Attalus exclaimed to his tormenters, "This is indeed a consuming of human flesh and it is you who are doing it!" In her torture Blandina kept saying, "I am a Christian, and nothing vile is done among us." In the words "I am a Christian" she found strength and a balm that deadened pain. We must suffer and we must die. May it be our joy to know that we are Christians, that we have lived and that we die in the faith and love of Christ.

"So, rejoicing, you shall drink deep from the fountain of deliverance."—Isa. xii, 3.

3 ST MARY OF EGYPT

THE story of St Mary of Egypt enjoyed a wide popularity in the East and acquired many fictitious additions. According to it, she as a girl left her father's house that she might sin without restraint, and for seventeen years she lived in shame at Alexandria. Then she accompanied a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and entangled men in sin on the way. She was there on the feast of the Holy Cross, and went with the crowd to the church which contained the precious wood. The rest entered to pray, but Mary was invisibly held back, and at that moment she realized the depths of her corruption. Turning to the sinless Mother whose picture faced her in the porch, she vowed thenceforth to do penance if she might enter and stand like Magdalen beside the cross. Then she went in. As she knelt, a voice came to her which said, "Go over Jordan, and you shall find rest." She went into the wilderness, and there, forty-seven years after, an old monk met her. She told him that for years memories of her old life had haunted her; but since, she had had perfect peace. He brought her communion on the following Maundy Thursday, and she told him to come again in a year's time. This he did, and found her dead body lying there, with the words traced in the sand, "Bury the body of Mary the sinner here". She had passed over the Jordan of death into the rest which is promised alike to the penitent and the pure of God's people. Her feast-day is April 2.

Avoiding Occasions of Sin

Bd John Colombini was converted to God by reading about St Mary of Egypt. Let us too learn from her not to be content with confessing and lamenting our sins, but to fly from what leads us to commit them.

"Strength is given us from on high only on condition that we fear danger, not if we rashly expose ourselves to it."—St Cyprian.

He who loves danger will perish in it. After her surrender to God, after years' fasting and silence in the wilderness, Mary fled at the sight of a man, though she knew he was a priest. After he had heard her story, she only spoke with him once again, when he gave her the last communion. (This meeting of a monk with a woman penitent in the desert is the truth from which the later legend of St Mary was developed.) We who like her have left our Father's house, with our half-conversion and scanty penance, go on risking the loss of His grace because we will not avoid some plain occasion of sin.

"Flee from sins as from the face of a serpent : for if thou comest near them, they will take hold of thee."—Ecclus. xxi, 2.

4 ST FRANCIS CARACCILO

FRANCIS was born in the kingdom of Naples, of a princely family, in 1563. He was a devout and decent young man, very fond of hunting, but at twenty-two his life was threatened by a serious illness. Almost miraculously cured, he renounced his position to study for the priesthood in Naples, where he spent hours in the prisons, or visiting unfrequented churches. God called him, when only twenty-five, to found an order of clerks regular, whose rule provided that each day one father fasted on bread and water, another took the discipline, a third wore a hairshirt, while each spent an hour in adoration before the Blessed Sacrament every day. They took the usual vows, adding a fourth—not to seek office or dignities; and their motto was "To the greater glory of Him who has risen again." To establish his order, Francis undertook many journeys through Italy and Spain, on foot and without money, content with what was given him in charity. Being elected superior, he redoubled his austerities, and devoted hours daily to meditation on the Passion, besides passing much of the night praying before the Blessed Sacrament. Thus did he give power to his pastoral work in the confessional and the pulpit. As he lay dying, in 1608, St Francis exclaimed, "Let us go!" several times. "Where to?" someone asked. "To Heaven!" he replied, and died. He was only forty-four.

Worship of Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament

It is for men, and not for angels, that our Lord lives sacramentally upon the altar; yet angels throng our churches to worship Him, while men ignore Him. Learn from St Francis to avoid such ingratitude, and to spend, as he did, every possible moment before the most Holy Sacrament.

“If men would always turn to the Blessed Sacrament to seek a remedy for their woes, they would certainly not be so miserable as they are.”—St Alphonsus Liguori.

Francis was commonly called the Preacher of Divine Love, and it was before the Blessed Sacrament that his burning devotion was most clearly perceptible. In the sacramental presence of his divine Lord his face was transfigured, and tears streamed from his eyes when he prayed, according to his custom, prostrate before the tabernacle, constantly repeating, as one filled with love and adoration, “The zeal of thy house hath eaten me up.”

“How lovely are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts. My soul longeth and fainteth for the courts of the Lord.”
—Ps. lxxxiii, 1.

5 ST BONIFACE OF CREDITON

ST BONIFACE (Winfrid at baptism) was born at Crediton in Devonshire, in the year 680. Some missionaries staying at his father's house spoke to him as a child about their work, and inspired him with a wish to devote himself to God as they did. He entered the monastery of Nursling, and was there trained for his apostolic work. His first attempt to convert the pagans in what is now Holland having failed, he went to Rome to obtain the pope's blessing on his mission, and returned with authority to preach to the German tribes. It was a slow and dangerous task to bend these fierce barbarians to the gentle yoke of Christ. His life was in constant peril and the general difficulties immense. Yet his courage never flagged, and neither did that of the English monks and nuns who were his helpers. He proclaimed the good news of Christ in Hesse and Thuringia and Bavaria, with a long visit to Friesland, everywhere destroying idolatrous shrines and raising churches on their site. He was recalled to Rome in 722, consecrated bishop by Pope St Gregory II, and returned to extend and organize the rising German church. With diligent care he established religious houses, and reformed and restored the Church among the Franks. Feeling his infirmities increase, Boniface appointed a successor to his see of Mainz and set out to convert a fresh tribe. Their swords finished his life of sacrifice, and sent him to his reward in 754. St Boniface was one of the greatest Englishman of all time, and is the patron-saint of Germany.

Willingness to Die

St Boniface teaches us how love of Christ changes all things. It was for Christ's sake that he toiled, preferring poverty to riches, labour to rest, suffering to pleasure, death to life, that by dying he might live with Christ.

“Life and death are wrongly named; for what is this life but the mother of corruption? Therefore a constant dying is the true way to the life of the blessed. There is but one true life—that which leads to eternal life : and but one real death—the loss of the soul.”—St Gregory Nazianzen.

While St Boniface was waiting to minister confirmation to some newly-baptized Christians near Dokkum, in northern Holland, a group of heathen attacked him. His attendants opposed them, but Boniface intervened : “Sons,” he said, “stop fighting; the long-expected day is come at last. The gospel tells us to overcome evil by good. Let us put our hope in God : He will save our souls alive.” Scarcely had he ceased speaking when the barbarians fell upon him, and slew him with all his followers.

“But I fear none of these things, neither do I count my life more precious than myself; so that I may consummate my course and the ministry of the word which I have received from the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God.”—Acts xx, 24.

6

ST NORBERT

A German of noble rank and rare talent, Norbert passed a blameless youth, and entered the ecclesiastical state. By a strange contradiction, his conduct then became unworthy of his sacred calling, and at the court of the emperor, Henry V, he led, like many clerics of that age, a rather frivolous existence. One day in 1112, when he was thirty years of age, he was thrown heavily from his horse, and on recovering his senses resolved upon a new life. After a severe and searching preparation he was ordained priest, and began to expose the abuses of his order. Silenced at first by a local council, which accused him of hypocrisy, he sought out Pope Gelasius II and was given permission to preach the gospel wherever he chose. In the wild vale of Prémontré in France he gave to some disciples the rule of St Augustine, and a white habit to denote the virtue proper to the priesthood. These canons regular, Premonstratensians as they were called, were to unite the active work of country clergy with the obligations of monastic life. Their fervour renewed the spirit of the clergy, quickened the faith of the people, and was a bulwark against false teaching. In 1126 Norbert found himself appointed archbishop of Magdeburg; and there, amid many difficulties and dangers, he zealously carried on his work of reform, and died, worn out with toil, in 1134.

Reverence for the Sacred Host

In the course of their work St Norbert and his followers had to stand up for the reverence and honour that is due to the Holy Eucharist. How much does our present worship make up for our own past irreverences and for the outrages offered by others to it?

“The angels and archangels stand in reverence; the saints and blessed are in awe. But, you say, ‘Come to me, all of you.’ If you, Lord, did not command it, who would venture to approach?”—Imitation of Christ.

A layman named Tanchelm was the leader of a sect at Antwerp, in the time of St Norbert, which denied the reality of the priesthood, and especially blasphemed the Eucharist. Norbert was asked to combat this movement, and his burning words exposed it and rekindled faith in the Blessed Sacrament. The sectaries had shown their contempt for the Blessed Sacrament by burying it in filthy places. Norbert bade them search for the Hosts. They were found entire and uninjured, and he carried them back with honour to the church. Hence he is generally painted with a monstrance or ciborium in his hand.

“And he said, ‘I believe, Lord’; and falling down, he worshipped him.”—John ix, 38.

7 ST ROBERT OF NEWMINSTER

IN 1133 Robert was a monk at Whitby, when news arrived that thirteen religious had left the abbey of St Mary at York in order to restore the strict Benedictine rule elsewhere. He at once set out to join them, and found them on the banks of the Skell, near Ripon, living in the midst of winter in huts made of timber and roofed with turf. In the spring they affiliated themselves to St Bernard's Cistercian house at Clairvaux, and for two years struggled on in extreme poverty. At length their fame brought another novice, Hugh, dean of York, who endowed the community with his wealth, and thus ensured the continuance of Fountains Abbey. In 1138 Ralph, lord of Morpeth, was so impressed by the example of the monks at Fountains that he built them a monastery in Northumberland, called Newminster, of which St Robert became abbot. The holiness of his life, even more than his words, guided his brethren to perfection, and before his death three new communities went from this one house to become centres of religion in other parts. At the moment of Robert's death in 1159, St Godric, the hermit of Finchale, to whom the abbot was much attached, was apprised of the event: he seemed to see Robert's soul like a globe of fire, borne by angels to Heaven.

The Power of Example

Reason and religion teach us that we ought to act virtuously; but only facts prove that we do so. This is why examples have more power to move us, and why our individual actions are of such crucial importance for others as well as for ourselves.

“Most of mankind is more moved to the desire of heavenly things by example than by argument.”—St Gregory the Great.

St Robert's abstinence in the matter of food was an example to his community. One Lent he fasted so rigorously that by Easter he had lost his appetite; but he said he would have some honey with his bread. When it was brought he felt this would be giving an example of greediness to his brethren, and sent the food untouched to the poor at the gate. It was received by a young man, who straightway disappeared, plate and all. But the tale got around that the empty plate almost at once reappeared on the abbot's table. It is recorded of St Robert that he set an example of modesty in manner, gentleness in his dealings and mercy in judging.

“It is good not to eat flesh, and not to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother is offended or scandalized or made weak.”—Rom. xiv, 21.

8 ST WILLIAM OF YORK

WILLIAM was son of Earl Herbert and Emma, half-sister of King Stephen. In 1140 he was elected archbishop of York, at the time when the struggle concerning the election of bishops was going on between the Holy See and princes. King Stephen had favoured his nephew's election; St Bernard and others complained of it as uncanonical, and William was deprived of his see by Pope Eugenius III. The king's party and the people of York took up his cause. Henry, abbot of Fountains, had been elected in his place, and William's supporters prejudiced his cause by attacking the abbey and burning some of its buildings. While violent men were thus raging on his account, William retired quietly to Winchester, where for six years he lived a penitential life, chastened by his misfortunes. His prayers were heard, and peace was at length restored. On the death of Archbishop Henry, William went to Rome, where Pope Anastasius IV, who had succeeded Eugenius, restored him to his see. Then the old man came back to York, where the people received him with delight. This was in 1154. Thirty days after his return he went to join St Bernard, also lately dead, in the brightness of that Presence where zeal and love are never mistaken.

Suffering in Silence

St William, alone with God in his retirement, silently endured the unmerited accusations of St Bernard. He will teach us to bear the estrangement and hard judgements of the good, which are one of the greatest trials that can afflict God's servants.

“The truly patient man does not mind by whom he is judged : whether by his superior or by one below him, whether by a good and just man or by one who is perverse and unworthy.”—Imitation of Christ.

When St William came to Winchester after he had been deprived of his see, the bishop, Henry of Blois, who was his uncle, offered him a home in his palace and wished him to live with all his accustomed state. William was conscious of his innocence; but he preferred the path of penitence and chose the cathedral monastery; and by the life which he led he silently preached obedience to his unruly adherents.

“But Jesus held his peace.”—Matt. xxvi, 63.

9 ST COLUMBA OF IONA

ST COLUMBA, the apostle of the Picts, was born at Gartan in the county of Donegal about the year 521. His real name was Colm, later Colmcille; his Latin name, Columba, means a dove, and he was indeed a messenger of the peace of Christ. From early childhood he gave himself to God. In all his labours—and they were many—his chief thought was Heaven, to find the way there and to show it to others. He fasted all the year round, and the sweetness of his countenance told of his interior serenity; though austere, he was not morose. After preaching and founding monasteries in Ireland for many years, he sailed away to Scotland with twelve companions. There, on the island of Iona, he founded his celebrated monastery, the school of apostolic missionaries who brought the Gospel to the Picts and had a large part in the evangelization of northern England. On the day of his peaceful death in 597, in the seventy-seventh year of his age, surrounded by his spiritual children, Columba said to them, “This day is called the day of rest, and such will it truly be to me; for it will put an end to my labours.” Then he received the viaticum, and slept in the Lord. In his last blessing he had apostrophized his beloved Iona, as "a small place to which great homage shall be paid by kings and peoples from afar and by holy men of other places." In his earlier years St Columba seems to have been sometimes, in spite of his name, quick-tempered and rough; but later, his biographer Adamnan tells us, "he was loving to all, tranquil and holy, with the joy of the Holy Spirit in his heart."

Remembrance of Heaven

The thought of the world to come will always make us happy, and yet strict with ourselves in all our duties. The better we become, the sooner shall we behold that for which St Columba sighed.

"When you feel the desire for Heaven's bliss poured out on you from above, when you long to leave your earthly body so that you may wholly and uninterruptedly enjoy God's light, open your heart wide to this holy inspiration."—Imitation of Christ.

Four years before his death, St Columba had a serious illness, from which he recovered in answer to the prayers of his children. But he was sad at this, and said, "Woe is me that my sojourning is prolonged", for he desired above all things to reach his true home. How different is the conduct of most men, who dread death above everything, instead of wishing "to be dissolved and to be with Christ."

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, what things God hath prepared for them that love him."—1 Cor. ii, 9.

10 ST MARGARET OF SCOTLAND

ST MARGARET'S name signifies "pearl"; "a fitting name," says Turgot, her confessor and first biographer, "for one such as she was." A life spent amidst the luxury of a royal court never dimmed her soul's lustre, or stole it away from Him who had bought it with His blood. She was the granddaughter of the English king Edmund Ironside, and in 1070 she became the bride of Malcolm Canmore and queen of Scotland till her death. How did she become a saint in a position where holiness is so difficult? First, she was full of zeal for the house of God. She built churches and monasteries, and could not rest till she saw the laws of God and His Church observed throughout her realm. Next, amidst a thousand cares, she found time to converse with God—ordering her devotion with such discretion that she won her husband, a well-disposed but uncultivated man, to share and support her religious undertakings. Then, she was outstandingly careful for the poor and oppressed, especially those who were strangers from her own country. Lastly, with virtues so great, she wept over her sins and begged her confessor to correct her faults. On her death-bed in 1093 she received the news that her husband and her eldest son were slain in battle. She prayed that this last blow might chasten her for her transgressions, and died peacefully, murmuring, "Jesus Christ, whose death has given life to the world, save me." (In Scotland, St Margaret's feast is kept on the day of her death, November 16).

Unworldliness

All perfection consists in keeping a guard upon the heart. Wherever we are, we can make a solitude in our hearts, detach ourselves from the world, and talk confidently with God. Let us take St Margaret for our example and encouragement.

“May our hearts be set there where true joys are in store.”—Roman Missal.

St Margaret did not neglect her duties in the world because she was not of it. Never was a better mother. She spared no pains in the upbringing of her eight children, and with good effect : one daughter became known as Good Queen Maud, one son, David, was revered as a saint. Never was a better queen. She was the most trusted adviser of her husband, and she laboured for the material improvement of the country. But she always longed for the better country, and accepted death as a release that set her free to go to Christ, the author of true liberty.

“It remaineth that they that use this world be as if they used it not; for the fashion of this world passeth away.”—I Cor. vii, 31.

11

ST BARNABAS

WE read that in the first days of the Church “the multitude of believers had but one heart and one soul, neither did any one say that aught of the things which he possessed was his own.” Of this fervent company, one only is singled out by name, Joseph, a rich Levite from Cyprus. He “having land, sold it and brought the price and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.” They gave him a new name, Barnabas, the “son of consolation.” He was “a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith," and was soon chosen for an important mission to the rapidly growing church of Antioch. Here he saw the great work which was to be done among the Greeks, so hastened to fetch St Paul from Tarsus. It was at Antioch that they were called to apostleship among the Gentiles, and hence they set out together to Cyprus and the cities of Asia Minor. Their preaching and miracles struck men with amazement, and at Lystra people said that "The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men," calling Paul, Mercury ("because he was the chief speaker") and Barnabas, Jupiter. They gave an account of their work to the Council of Jerusalem, but shortly after this they parted. The gentle Barnabas, keeping with him John Mark, whom St Paul distrusted, then went to Cyprus, where the Acts of the Apostles leaves him; and here, at a later period, he is said to have been martyred, by stoning, at Salamis.

Generous Almsgiving

St Barnabas's life is full of suggestion for us who live in days when the abundant alms of the faithful are still sorely needed by the whole Church, from the pope to poor people in our own parish.

"Those who were bound together by common worship enjoyed also common life, and those who had one faith had also one property; where Christ was possessed by all, the cost of all things was shared alike, for charity seeketh not her own."—St Augustine.

It is remarkable how large a place is occupied in apostolic history by the collection and distribution of alms. For the first Christians, to send alms to Jerusalem was to testify to the unity of their faith as well as the fervour of their charity. St Barnabas began by laying his wealth at the feet of the apostles. When Agabus foretold a great famine, Barnabas, no longer rich, was chosen by the faithful at Antioch as the most suitable man, with St Paul, to take their generous offerings to the church at Jerusalem.

“Sell what you possess and give alms. Make to yourselves purses which grow not old, a treasure in heaven which faileth not, where no thief approacheth nor moth corrupteth.”—Luke xii, 33.

12 ST JOHN OF SAHAGUN

ST JOHN was born at Sahagun in Spain about 1419. At an early age he held several benefices in the diocese of Burgos, till the reproaches of his conscience forced him to resign them all except one chapel, where he daily celebrated Mass, preached and catechized. After this he studied theology at Salamanca, and then laboured for some time as a missionary priest. Ultimately he became a hermit of the Augustinian Order in the same city. His life was marked by the remarkable devoutness with which he offered Mass. Each night after Matins he remained in prayer till the hour of celebration, when he offered the sacrifice with the deepest recollection and very slowly, sometimes, it is said, being allowed to see our Lord in bodily form at the moment of consecration. The power of John's personal holiness was seen in his preaching, which produced a complete reformation in Salamanca. He had a special gift of reconciling differences, and was enabled to put an end to the quarrels and feuds among noblemen, at that period very common and violent. He was also most zealous in denouncing those hideous vices which are a fruitful source of strife, and it appears that it was this that led to his death. A woman of noble birth but evil life, whose companion in sin St John had converted, swore to be revenged on him, and it is believed that she contrived to have him poisoned. Certainly St John underwent several months of suffering, most patiently borne, before he died in 1479.

Love of Peace

All men desire peace, but those alone enjoy it who, like St John, are completely dead to themselves and willing to bear all things for Christ.

“If you realized what peace would come to you and happiness to others if you kept yourself in a good state, I think you would be more anxious for spiritual benefits.”—Imitation of Christ.

St John's boldness in reproving vice had endangered his life on a previous occasion. A powerful nobleman, having been corrected by the saint for oppressing his dependants, sent two men to kill him. The holiness of his appearance, due to the peace which reigned in his soul, so impressed them that they were afraid to carry out their purpose, but humbly sought his forgiveness. And the nobleman himself, falling sick, was brought to repentance, and recovered his health by the prayers of the man whom he had endeavoured to murder.

“Turn away from evil and do good, seek after peace and pursue it.”—Ps. xxxiii, 15.

13

ST ANTONY OF PADUA

IN 1221 St Francis held a general chapter of his brethren at Assisi at which there was present a young, unknown friar from Portugal; he had only lately joined the order, and was resolved to ask for and to refuse nothing. Nine months later Fra Antonio rose, under obedience in an emergency, to preach to the religious assembled at Forlì; as the discourse proceeded, the young man, who is now numbered among the doctors of the Church, stood revealed in all his fervour, learning and eloquence before his astonished brethren. Devoted from youth to prayer and study among the canons regular, Ferdinand, as his name was "in the world", had been stirred by the spirit and example of the first five Franciscan martyrs to put on their habit and preach the faith to the Moors. He had hardly arrived in Africa when ill-health drove him back, and at the age of twenty-seven he was taking silent but merciless revenge upon himself in the humblest offices of his community. From this obscurity he was now called, and for nine years France, Italy and Sicily heard his voice and saw his example, and men's hearts turned to God. Suddenly, in 1231, this brief apostleship was closed, and the voices of children were heard crying along the streets of Padua, "Our holy father Antony is dead." He was only thirty-six. He was buried at Padua, which had been his headquarters, and there pilgrims still flock to his tomb; from the numerous miracles reported there St Antony has been called "the wonderworker."

Hidden Life

We ought to love to pray and labour unseen, and cherish in the secret of our hearts God's graces and the growth of our souls. Like St Antony, let us attend to this, and leave the rest to God.

“Blessed is the servant who treasures in Heaven the good things which his Lord has shown him, and does not seek to show them to men in the hope of present reward.”—St Francis.

According to later accounts of the saint, once when he was staying with a friend in Padua, his host saw a bright light shining under the door of Antony's room; on looking through the key-hole, he saw a little child of marvellous beauty standing upon a book which lay open upon the table, with his arms round Antony's neck. Then the Child vanished, and Fra Antonio, finding his friend at the door, told him to “tell the vision to no man” as long as he was alive. This is the origin of statues showing St Antony with the Holy Child; his earlier emblem was a book, because of his knowledge of and love for the Bible.

“But thou, when thou shalt pray, enter into thy chamber and, having shut the door, pray to thy Father in secret : and thy Father who seeth in secret will repay thee.”—Matt. vi, 6.

14 ST BASIL THE GREAT

ST BASIL was born in Asia Minor about the year 329. Two of his brothers became bishops, and together with his father, mother and sister are honoured as saints. He studied with great success at Athens, where he formed a close friendship with St Gregory Nazianzen. He then taught oratory; but under the influence of his sister St Macrina he gave up all, and became the father of monachism in the East; he established monasteries in Pontus, and the principles he laid down for them govern the lives of Eastern monks to this day. The Arian heretics, supported by the imperial court, were then persecuting the Church; and Basil was summoned from his retirement to give aid against them. In 370 he was chosen bishop of Caesarea in Cappadocia. His commanding character, his firmness and energy, his learning and eloquence, and not less his humility and austerity of life, made him a model for bishops. Yet his whole life was one of suffering : he lived amidst jealousies and misunderstandings and seeming disappointments. But he sowed seed which bore good fruit in the next generation, and he revived the spirit of discipline and fervour in the church of Caesarea. In pastoral work St Basil's concerns were wide and sympathetic, and his methods gentle, except when he was dealing with such people as the selfish rich. His letters furnish many interesting particulars of this aspect of his life. He died in 379, and is venerated as one of the greatest doctors of the Church.

Christian Courage

“Fear God,” says the Imitation of Christ, “and you then need not be afraid of any man.”

“When I look about me I seem to have no one on my side. I can but pray I may be found in the number of those seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal. I know our present persecutors seek my life; yet that shall reduce none of the efforts I owe to the churches of God.”—St Basil.

When St Basil was called on to compromise with Arians and admit them to communion, the prefect, finding that soft words had no effect, said to him, "Are you mad, that you resist the will before which the world bows? Are you not afraid of the emperor's anger, or exile, or death?" "No," said Basil, "He who has nothing to lose need not fear loss of goods; you cannot exile me, for the whole earth is my home; as for death, it would be a kindness : one blow would end my frail life and my sufferings together." "Never," said the prefect, "has any one dared to talk to me like this before" "Perhaps," suggested Basil, "you have not had much to do with Christian bishops."

"I spoke of thy testimonies before kings, and I was not ashamed."—Ps. cxviii, 46.

15 ST GERMAINE OF PIBRAC

GERMAINE COUSIN was born of a farm-labourer and his wife at Pibrac, near Toulouse, in 1579, and her short life was one of sharp and incessant suffering; her health was bad from birth and her right hand useless. She early lost her mother, and her father having married again, she had to endure a cruel stepmother, who treated her brutally and kept her away from her stepbrothers and sisters. The child's ill-health was greatly increased by the cold and hunger to which she was exposed. Germaine's life was chiefly spent watching over the flocks in the pastures, and in spite of neglect and cruelty she was good and kind and devout. The unhappiness of her home was borne with unflinching patience; and while the villagers ridiculed her infirmities and her piety, she did all she could to be of help to them, till after a time their attitude changed. Germaine used to gather children round her and speak to them of our Lord and His mother, and they never forgot her simple goodness. Her one joy was holy communion, and there she found strength to bear her cross. Jesus called the poor shepherdess, whose life had been so faithful an imitation of His own, when she was twenty-two. One day in 1601 she was found dead on her straw mattress under the stairs. She was buried in Pibrac church, and her tomb is still a place of pilgrimage.

Patience

This peasant child, ignorant in human knowledge, learned something that is very precious in God's sight—patience. May we by her intercession obtain this virtue, and lovingly carry the crosses that strew our path.

“The crown of tribulation has blossomed into a diadem of glory and a garland of joy.”—Roman Missal.

When St Germaine was beatified in 1854 the Holy See referred to her as “a simple lowly girl, of obscure birth, who was so enlightened by the gifts of spiritual wisdom and understanding, so remarkable for her shining goodness, that she shone like a star not only in her native France but throughout the world-wide Church.” So great was the impression she made that there was attributed to her a wonder told of other holy women, notably St Elizabeth of Hungary—bread that she was accused of stealing for the poor was turned to flowers in her apron.

“We glory in tribulations, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience trial, and trial hope : and hope confoundeth not.”—Rom. v, 3-5.

16 ST JOHN FRANCIS REGIS

JOHN FRANCIS REGIS was born in Languedoc in 1597. At the age of eighteen he entered the Society of Jesus. As soon as his studies were over, he gave himself entirely to the salvation of souls. The winter he spent in country missions, principally in mountainous districts; and in spite of the rigour of the weather and the ignorance and roughness of the inhabitants, he toiled with such success that he brought many to God both from evil living and from heresy. The summer he gave to the towns. There his time was taken up in visiting hospitals and prisons, in preaching and hearing confessions, in assisting all who in any way stood in need of his services. He brought the most desperate sinners back to God, fearing neither blows nor even threats of death when there was someone to be saved. He was so filled with love of God that he seemed to breathe, think, speak of that alone, and he offered up the Holy Sacrifice with such fervour that those who assisted at it could not but feel something of the fire with which he burned. After twelve years of unceasing labour, at Christmas in 1640, St John Francis preached six times in two days and heard confessions for hours when he was ill with pleurisy : five days later he died. During his last years he had organized a complete system of social service at Le Puy in Velay.

Zeal for Others

When St John Francis was struck in the face by someone whom he had rebuked, he replied, "If you only knew me you would give me much more than that." His meekness converted the man, and it is in this spirit that he teaches us to win souls to God.

“If my efforts do no more than hinder one sin I shall consider them well worth it.”—St John Francis.

When the saint set out for his second mission at Marlies his road lay across snow-covered valleys and mountains. At one point he fell heavily, and apparently broke his leg. With the help of his companion he managed to do the remaining six miles; and then, instead of seeing a surgeon, insisted on being taken straight to the confessional. There after several hours the curate of the parish found him still seated, and when his leg was examined the fracture was found to be miraculously healed. How much might we do if we could forget our own wants in remembering those of others, and put our trust in God.

“For whereas I was free as to all, I made myself the servant of all, that I might gain the more.”—I Cor. ix, 19.

17 SS. MARCIAN AND NICANDER

MARCIAN and Nicander were soldiers in the Roman imperial service, and seem to have suffered in Bulgaria, in the early fourth century. They would not offer incense to the idols; they refused the time which the judge offered them for deliberation; and they thanked God aloud because they were to leave this world to go to the life of Heaven. “Why do you talk of life,” asked the judge, “if you want to die?” “Because,” Nicander answered, “it is everlasting life that I want, not the life of this world. Do what you like with my body. It is in your power.” After twenty days in prison they were again brought up, only to renew their good confession and beg the judge to send them quickly "to our crucified Redeemer." The judge was touched by their courage; he protested that it was the emperor, not he, who was responsible for their death, and ordered them to be beheaded. They thanked him, wished him peace, and were led away. But Marcian was put to another proof. His wife met him with her child in her arms, and implored him to yield. He embraced her, and told her not to stop and see him die; then he kissed his child and commended him to God. The martyrs embraced each other and bowed their necks to the sword, to meet again in the heavenly City.

Christian Affection

Love God above all. Do not let any natural attachment keep you from listening to His voice. You help those you love best when you follow the call of God. Do not grudge them to Him when He calls them by a religious vocation or by death. They are more than ever yours when they belong to God alone.

"There is no true friendship except that which God creates between those who cleave to Him."
—St Augustine.

Though he loved his wife and his "most sweet son" very much, Marcian loved Christ more. The wife of the other martyr, Nicander, was herself another example of the same detachment. She was present at her husband's trial; but far from discouraging him in his ordeal, she bade him "look to Heaven, and keep faith with Jesus Christ." She too followed her husband to the place of martyrdom, carrying his child in her arms. "Ten years," she said, "you were away from me on foreign service, and I prayed every hour that I might see you again. Now I see you and am happy, for I see myself the wife of a martyr."

"And they, lifting up their eyes, saw no one but only Jesus."—Matt. xvii, 8.

18

ST EPHREM

ST EPHREM is the light and glory of the Syrian church and a doctor of the universal Church. When he became a Christian as a young man it is believed that his parents turned him out of their house at Nisibis, and he entered the service of the local bishop. When the Persians occupied Nisibis in 363, Ephrem took up his abode in a cave at Edessa, from whence he energetically opposed false teaching, writing many hymns in Syriac to express Christian truth. These hymns won the hearts of the people, drove out the hymns of the heretics, and gained for him the title which he bears in the Syrian liturgy to this day—"the Harp of the Holy Ghost." Passionate as he was by nature, in his later year no one ever saw him angry. Abounding in labours till the last, he toiled for the suffering poor at Edessa in the famine of 372, and there lay down to die in extreme old age. The secret of St Ephrem's apostolic life was humbleness, which made him distrust himself and trust God. Till his death he wept for the slight sins committed in the thoughtlessness of boyhood. He remained a deacon all his days. When he made the long journey to Caesarea to see St Basil, Basil greeted him with the words "Are you Ephrem, who follows the way of salvation so well?" And he replied, "I am Ephrem, who walks unworthily in the way of salvation," and he begged Basil to instruct him. After reading a translation of his book on the Holy Spirit, St Jerome declared that Ephrem was a man "of the finest genius."

Humility

Humility is the path which leads to abiding peace and brings down God's mercies on us.

"Take off my mask, and you will see in me nothing but filth; take off my cloak of hypocrisy, and you will find a hideous sepulchre."—St Ephrem.

Tears used to choke St Ephrem's voice when he preached. He trembled, and made his hearers tremble, at the thought of God's judgements; but in penitence and humbleness he found the way to peace, and rested with unshaken confidence in the mercy of our Blessed Lord. "I am setting out," he says, speaking of his own death, "I am setting out on a hard and dangerous journey. I have taken you, Son of God, as food and support in that journey. Hell-fire will not venture near me, for it cannot bear the fragrance of your Body and Blood."

"His name is Holy, who dwelleth in the high and holy place, and with a contrite and humble spirit; to revive the spirit of the humble and to revive the heart of the contrite."—Isa. lvii, 15.

19 ST JULIANA FALCONIERI

JULIANA FALCONIERI was born, in answer to prayer, in 1270. Her father built the famous church of the Annunziata in Florence, while her uncle, St Alexis, became one of the founders of the Servite Order. Under his care, Juliana grew up, as he said, more like an angel than a human being. Her devotion to the sorrows of our Lady drew her to the Servants of Mary; she refused an offer of marriage, and received the habit from St Philip Benizi himself. Her holiness attracted many followers, for whose direction she was bidden to draw up a rule, and thus with reluctance she became foundress of the tertiary sisters of the Servites, who are called "Mantellate." She was to her children as their servant rather than their mistress, while outside her convent she led a life of apostolic charity, converting sinners, reconciling enemies, and looking after the sick and the poor. Her self-imposed mortifications were very severe; she sometimes seemed rapt for whole days in ecstasy, and her prayers saved the Servite Order when it was in danger of being suppressed. Juliana died in 1341, and the wonderful happening associated with her death is referred to in the collect of her feast.

The Seven Sorrows

"Meditate often," says St Paul-of-the-Cross, "on Mary's sorrows, sorrows inseparable from the sufferings of her beloved Son. If you seek the Cross, there you will find the Mother; and where the Mother is, there also is the Son."

"When the disciples fled and all deserted Him, she alone, to the glory of her sex, remained, amid her Son's torments, steadfast in His faith... She stood there, not complaining nor murmuring nor imploring mercy, but as a recollected, modest, patient, sorrowing maiden-mother."—St Anselm.

Juliana wasted away through a disease which prevented her taking food. She suffered with constant cheerfulness, grieving only for the deprivation of holy communion. At last when, in her seventieth year, she had sunk to the point of death, she begged to be allowed once more to worship before the Blessed Sacrament. It was brought to her cell and, reverently laid on a corporal, placed over her heart. At this moment she died, and the sacred Host "was lost to sight and never again found," according to the testimony of an eye-witness. It was said by others that an image of Jesus crucified was found impressed on her flesh at the spot on which the Blessed Sacrament had been placed.

"There stood beneath the cross of Jesus, his mother."
—John xix, 25.

20

BD GILES OF ASSISI

A NATIVE of Assisi, Giles's one ambition was to join the company of St Francis, then consisting of only three members. Eventually they met, and Giles was greeted as a fellow worker. As they were talking, a poor woman begged an alms. Francis, having nothing, bade Giles give his cloak; and in this act he first realized the joy of self-inflicted poverty. At his earnest wish his master allowed him to go on a pilgrimage to Compostela and to the Holy Land. He set out barefoot, without money or other provision, and gained by hard work whatever food he required. If anyone wished to give him more than he had earned, he said, "A religious, from his calling, deserves less, not more." Giles's great charm was his unaffected simplicity and childlikeness. Certain words and thoughts would throw him into ecstasy : and children would shout after him, "Paradise, Paradise!" just to see him fall into a rapture at the mere mention of the name. Temptations assaulted him incessantly, but Giles said he treated them as curs who bark, but if they are kicked never bite. He was venerated by St Louis of France, who visited him in his cell at Perugia. Giles recognized the king at once under his pilgrim's garb, embraced him without speaking, and knelt by his side. After a few minutes' fervent prayer, the saints parted as they had met, in silence. Many of Giles's "sayings" have been handed down to this day, notably in the Little Flowers of St Francis. He died in 1262, and his feast-day is April 23.

The Riches of Poverty

The finest thread holds a small bird captive and prevents it soaring aloft. Nor can we fully taste the blessings of detachment, or know the secret of divine love, as long as one single tie binds our hearts to earth.

"Earthly goods are of such a nature that he who possesses fewest of them is the best off."—Bd Giles.

"Father," asked Giles of St Bonaventure, "can an ignorant person love God as much as a scholar?" "A poor illiterate old woman," was the reply, "may love Him more than the most learned teacher." On this the brother ran to the gate of the garden facing Rome, and shouted happily, "Listen, all you good old women! Love the Lord our God, and you can be holier and higher and happier than Brother Bonaventure!" He then was rapt in ecstasy, and remained motionless in contemplation for three hours.

"As needy, yet enriching many; as having nothing, and possessing all things."—2 Cor. vi, 10.

21 ST ALOYSIUS GONZAGA

ST ALOYSIUS, the eldest son of Ferdinand Gonzaga, marquis of Castiglione, was born in 1568. Until he was nearly eighteen his life was passed in corrupt courts, and it was then he learned that concern and love for chastity that so distinguished his short life. He then resolved to leave the world and to join the Society of Jesus. His mother rejoiced on learning his determination, but his father very angrily refused his consent for three years. At length, in 1585, Aloysius obtained permission to enter the novitiate. He took his vows after two years and went through the ordinary course of studies. During his last year of theology a malignant fever broke out in Rome; he offered himself for the service of the sick, and he was accepted. Several of the brothers caught the fever, and Aloysius was one of them; he was brought to the point of death, but recovered, only to fall, however, into another illness, which carried him off after three months. He seemed to be getting better, but on the octave-day of Corpus Christi, he told his superior, "I am going." "Where to?" "To Heaven." "Listen to him!" exclaimed the priest, "He talks of going to Heaven as we talk of going to Frascati." That night Aloysius died; the year was 1591, and he was not yet twenty-four.

Watchful Chastity

His confessor, St Robert Bellarmine, declared that Aloysius had never sinned mortally. Yet he chastised his body rigorously, got up at night to pray, and shed many tears for his transgressions. Pray that, not having followed his innocence, you may yet imitate his penitence.

“Blessed is the man, Lord, who leaves all created things for your sake, who does violence to nature and crucifies fleshly lusts through fervour of spirit.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Aloysius used to say he doubted whether without penance grace would continue to make headway against nature which, when not firmly dealt with, tends gradually to relapse into its old ways and to lose the discipline of years. “I am a crooked piece of iron,” he said, “and I have entered religious life to be made straight by the hammer of mortification and penance.”

“And they who belong to Christ have crucified their flesh with its passions and desires.”—Gal. v, 24.

22

ST ALBAN

ST ALBAN was the first martyr in the British Isles; he was put to death at Verulamium (now called Saint Albans after him), perhaps during the persecution under the emperor Diocletian. According to the story told by St Bede, Alban sheltered in his house a priest who was fleeing from his enemies. He was so impressed by the goodness of his guest that he eagerly received his teaching and became a Christian. In a few days it was known that the priest lay concealed in Alban's house, and soldiers were sent to seize him. Thereupon Alban put on the priest's clothes and gave himself up in his stead. The judge was angered at the priest's escape and threatened Alban with death if he persisted in forsaking the gods of Rome. He replied firmly that he was a Christian, and would not burn incense to the gods; and was condemned to be beaten and then beheaded. As he was led to the place of execution (traditionally the hill on which Saint Albans abbey church now stands) a miracle wrought by the saint so touched the heart of the executioner that he flung down his sword, threw himself at Alban's feet, avowing himself a Christian, and begged to suffer either for him or with him. Another soldier picked up the sword, "the valiant martyr's head was stricken off, and he received the crown of life which God has promised to those who love Him."

Perfect Charity

"The greatness of our love of God must be tested," said St Philip Neri, "by the desire we have of suffering for His love."

"Our Lord said, 'Love one another, as I have loved you.' This means that, as Jesus always put others before Himself and still does so, giving Himself to us in the Blessed Sacrament, so it is His will that we should always put others before ourselves."—St Francis de Sales.

When Alban was brought before the judge, Bede tells us, he was asked, "Of what family are you?" The saint answered, "That is a matter of no concern to you. I would have you know that I am a Christian." The judge persisted, and the saint said, "I was called Alban by my parents, and I worship the living and true God the creator of all things." Then the judge said, "If you wish to enjoy eternal life, sacrifice to the great gods at once!" Alban replied, "You sacrifice to devils, who can bring no help or answer to the desires of the heart. The reward of such sacrifices is the endless punishment of Hell."

“In this we have known the charity of God, because He hath laid down His life for us : and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.”—I John iii, 16.

23

ST ETHELDREDA

BORN and brought up in the fear of God—her three sisters are numbered among the saints—Etheldreda had but one aim in life, to devote herself to His service as a nun. Her parents, however, had other views for her, and she was compelled to become the wife of Tonbert, a vassal of her father, King Anna of the East Angles. She lived with him—as a sister, it is said—for three years, and at his death retired to the isle of Ely; but she was forced into a second marriage, this time with Egfrid, son of the king of Northumbria. Still her life was that of an ascetic rather than a queen; she devoted her time to works of mercy and love, and refused to consummate the marriage as she had dedicated herself to God. At length she withdrew with her husband's consent to Coldingham abbey, then under the rule of St Ebba, and received the veil from St Wilfrid. Soon after she returned to Ely, and there founded a double monastery; the nunnery she governed herself, and was a living rule of perfection to her sisters. Etheldreda died in 679, and in 695 her body was found incorrupt; St Bede records many miracles reported at her tomb.

Separation from the World

Etheldreda chose rather to be a servant of Christ her Lord than the mistress of an earthly court. Resolve, in whatever state you are, to live detached from the things of the world, and to separate yourself as much as possible from it.

“Unless a man frees himself from created things he cannot give his attention to things divine.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Etheldreda (or Audrey) seems to have been the most popular of the Anglo-Saxon women saints. The Venerable Bede greatly revered her memory, and wrote a poem in her honour in which she is compared with St Agatha, St Eulalia, St Thecla, St Euphemia, St Agnes and St Cecily : “In our day, too, a peerless maiden shines on us, the unmatched Etheldreda... She is for ever among those who follow the Lamb in Heaven, close bound to Him by love.”

“Go out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord..., and I will receive you; and I will be a Father to you.”—2 Cor. vi, 17-18.

24 ST JOHN THE BAPTIST

IT was the office of St John the Baptist to prepare the way for Christ, and before he was born into the world he began to live for the Incarnate God. Even in the womb he knew the presence of Jesus within Mary, and he leapt with joy at the coming of the Son of man. In his youth he remained hidden, because He for whom he waited was hidden also. But before Christ's public life began, a divine impulse led St John into the wilderness; there, with locusts for his food and hair-cloth for clothing, in silence and in prayer, he strengthened his own soul. Then, as crowds broke in upon his solitude, he warned them to flee from the wrath to come, and gave them the baptism of repentance, while they confessed their sins. At last there stood in the crowd one whom St John did not know, till a voice within told him that it was the Lord. With the baptism by St John, Christ began His atonement for the sins of His people, and John saw the Holy Ghost in bodily form upon Him. Then John's work was done. He had but to point his own disciples to the Lamb, he had but to decrease as Christ increased. He saw everybody leave him and go after Christ. "I told you," he said, "that I am not the Christ. The friend of the bridegroom rejoices at hearing the bridegroom's voice. This joy is now mine to the full."

Forgetfulness of Self

St John was great before God because he forgot himself and lived for Jesus Christ, who is the source of all greatness. Remember that you are nothing : your own will and your own desires can only lead to misery and sin. So every day sacrifice some one of your natural inclinations to our Lord, and learn little by little to lose yourself in Him.

"May I die to the world for love of your love, for you died on the cross for love of my love."—St Francis of Assisi.

St John eventually was cast into the fortress of Machaerus by the ruler whose sins he had rebuked, and he was to remain there till he was beheaded at the wish of a girl who had pleased Herod. In this time of despair—if John could have known despair—some of his old disciples visited him. St John did not speak to them of himself, but he sent them to Christ, that they might see the proofs of His mission. Then Eternal

Truth pronounced His verdict on the man who had lived and breathed for Him alone : "Amen I say to you, there hath not risen among them that are born of women a greater than John the Baptist."

"He [Jesus] must become more and more, I [John] must become less and less."—John iii, 30.

25 ST PAULINUS OF NOLA

PAULINUS was of a family which boasted of a long line of senators, prefects and consuls. He was educated with great care, and his genius and eloquence, in prose and verse, were the admiration of St Jerome and St Augustine. While still a catechumen he was the chosen friend of saints, one of whom, Delphinus of Bordeaux, brought him to baptism. God drew him to Himself along the way of sorrow and trials. About 390, while living in Spain, his only child died at a few days old : thereupon he and his wife sold their vast estates in various parts of the empire, and distributed the proceeds so prudently that St Jerome says East and West were filled with his alms. He was then ordained priest, and retired with his wife to Nola, near Naples. There he rebuilt the church of St Felix and served it, every year writing a poem for the saint's festival. In 409 Paulinus was chosen bishop of Nola, and for more than twenty years so ruled as to be conspicuous in an age blessed with many great and wise bishops. He was extremely generous with his wealth, for the public as well as private good, and he did not like to see money wasted : it was at his suggestion that St Augustine wrote his treatise on the care of the dead, in which expensive funerals are strongly criticized. St Paulinus died in 431; his feast is kept on June 22.

Generosity

“Go to Campania,” writes St Augustine, “and look at Paulinus, that fine servant of God. With what generosity, with what still greater humility, has he cast aside the burden of this world’s grandeurs to take on him the yoke of Christ, and how serene and unobtrusive his life is in His service!”

“An athlete has not won when he has laid aside his clothing : it is then that the contest begins and on its issue hangs the crown.”—St Paulinus.

St Gregory the Great tells us that when the Vandals of Africa had made a descent on southern Italy, Paulinus was more open-handed than ever in relieving the distress of his people and redeeming them from slavery. While he lay dying it was drawn to his attention that forty pounds were owing for clothes for the needy. “Don’t worry,” said Paulinus with a smile, “someone will pay it.” And shortly after a messenger arrived with a present of fifty pounds. While the lamps were being lighted at Vespers, the old bishop roused himself and murmured, “I have made ready a lamp for my Christ.” These were almost his last words.

“The things that were gain to me, these, for the sake of Christ, I have counted loss.”—Phil. iii, 7.

26 ST ROBERT OF MOLESME

ROBERT was born in Champagne of a noble family and about 1040 became a monk of St Benedict. While still young he was made prior and soon after abbot of St Michael's at Tonnerre. Finding that the monks shrank from a strict following of the Rule of St Benedict, he withdrew to Molesme with a few companions, where they at first lived in wooden huts. But as they became better off they lost their early fervour, and Robert withdrew again to a desert place. The monks of Molesme then obtained an order from the pope that Robert should return to them; as many, however, would still not accept his reforms, he got leave from the papal legate to found a monastery in a wild spot called Cîteaux, not far from Dijon. He took possession of it with twenty companions on St Benedict's day in 1098, which is regarded as the beginning of the great Cistercian Order. Again the monks of Molesme had recourse to the pope; and at his bidding Robert at once resigned the pastoral staff of Cîteaux, released the monks from their obedience to himself, and returned to Molesme, where he died in peace in 1110, at the age of ninety-two. The Cistercian Order was carried on by St Stephen Harding and St Alberic, and later by St Bernard. St Robert died on the twelfth anniversary of the foundation of Cîteaux; his feast-day is April 29.

Obedience to Superiors

St Robert was a perfect pattern of docility, letting himself be moved from house to house as the will of his superiors directed. He surrendered his aspirations after a more perfect way of life when God required this of him, knowing that no good works and penances are acceptable to Him if they are not in accordance with the obedience that we owe.

“You may run about here and there, but you will find no rest except in humble obedience.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Robert was not obedient without pain to himself; he wrote to Cîteaux from Molesme : "Were I to use my tongue as a pen, my tears as ink and my heart as paper, I should grieve you too much... I am here in body, because obedience requires it, but my spirit is with you." But his sacrifice bore good fruit, for the Molesme monks, having got him back, submitted to his wishes and accepted his reforms.

"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"—Acts ix, 6.

27

ST ZITA

ZITA lived for forty-eight years in the service of the Fatinelli, a family of Lucca, near which place she was born in 1218. She got up each morning while the household was still asleep, to go to Mass, and then toiled incessantly till night, doing the work of others as well as her own. At first her master and mistress did not appreciate her, while her fellow servants, resenting her diligence as a reproach to themselves and despising her strict ways, treated her very badly. Zita bore all for Christ's sake, never changing the quiet tone of her voice or her gentle behaviour. At length Pagano di Fatinelli, seeing what a good girl and fine worker she was, gave her charge of his children and of the household, and she scrupulously fulfilled her trust. By her economy her master's goods were multiplied, and the poor were fed at his door. Gradually her unfailing patience conquered the jealousy of the other servants, and she spoke for them with their hot-tempered master, who dared not give way to his anger before Zita. In the end her prayers and toil sanctified the whole house, and drew down Heaven's blessing on it.

St Zita died in 1278, and was buried in San Frediano's church at Lucca, where she had been such a faithful worshipper; her feast-day is on April 27.

Prayer and Work

"What must I do to be saved?" asked a despairing man. "Work and pray, pray and work," a voice replied, "and you will be saved." The whole life of St Zita teaches us this truth.

"We are no good if we are not industrious : workshy piety is sham piety."—St Zita.

St Zita is the patron saint of domestic servants and her story and legends are well known. What is not so well known is that there was a younger contemporary of hers in Bavaria whose life was very similar. St Notburga was in service at Rattenberg in Tirol, where she died about 1313; she too got into trouble for giving away so much to the poor.

"In labour and in toil we worked night and day... that we might give ourselves a pattern unto you."—2 Thess. iii, 8-9.

28

ST POTAMIAENA

POTAMIAENA was a young woman who lived at Alexandria at the end of the second century. She had been brought up a Christian by her mother, Marcella, also a martyr, and the great Origen had been her instructor in the faith. Owing to her remarkable beauty she was exposed, after her arrest as a Christian, to attempts to make her buy her freedom at the expense of her chastity. When she was brought before the court she continued to stand firm, whereupon the judge ordered a huge cauldron of pitch to be set on the furnace. When it was boiling he turned to Potamiaena, and said, "Go and submit, or else I will have you flung into this cauldron." On her refusal he bade the attendants strip off her clothes and fling her in. She implored him, "in the name of the emperor whom you honour", to leave her clothed as she was, and instead to lower her down into the cauldron, little by little, that he might see what patience Christ would give her. The judge agreed, and the barbarous sentence was carried out. St Potamiaena suffered soon after the year 202, and several others of Origen's pupils were put to death about the same time; among them was her own mother, and a woman catechumen who was, as Origen said, "baptized by fire."

Chastity

Christ was born of a virgin, that He might enable us to follow Him in purity of soul and body. He sanctified our flesh by taking it on Himself, and with His last breath He commended us to the care of His maiden mother. Day by day He feeds us at the altar with the food of incorruption—His Body and His Blood.

"Christ, being born of a virgin, consecrated virginity."—St Gregory Nazianzen.

Devotion to the maiden saints is a great means of obtaining God's gift of purity. When Potamiaena was being led to death and the crowd attacked her with insults, Basilides, the heathen officer in charge, protected her kindly and with respect. Potamiaena promised that she would intercede for him when she came into Christ's presence, because of his kindness. In due course he said he had had a vision, in which she appeared before him and placed a crown on his head. Basilides was baptized in prison and died for Christ by beheading.

“If thy right eye scandalize thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee; for it is expedient for thee that one of thy members should perish, rather than that thy whole body be cast into hell.”—Matt. v, 29.

29

ST PETER

PETER was a native of Bethsaida in Galilee, and as he was fishing on the lake was called by our Lord to be one of His apostles. He was poor and unlearned, but candid, eager and loving. In his heart, first of all, grew up the conviction, and from his lips came the confession, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God”; and our Lord chose and fitted him to be the Rock of His Church, His vicar on earth, the head and leader of His apostles, the centre and principle of the Church’s oneness, the religious teacher divinely protected against error. In striking contrast is his thrice-repeated denial of his Master in the house of Caiphas. But after Pentecost Peter stands out in the full grandeur of his office. He takes the initiative in filling the vacancy among the Twelve; he admits the Jews by thousands into the fold; he opens it to the Gentiles in the person of Cornelius; it is possible that he founded and for a time ruled the church at Antioch, and sent St Mark to found that of Alexandria. Eventually St Peter went to Rome, the centre of the great Empire where were gathered the glories and the wealth of the earth and all the powers of evil that went with them. There he established his chair, and laboured with St Paul in building up the Roman church. He was put to death under Nero, and buried on the Vatican Hill; according to an old tradition the apostle died by crucifixion, about the year 64.

The Successors of Peter

Peter lives on in his successors, and guides and feeds the flock committed to him. The reality of our devotion to him is the surest test of the purity of our faith.

“Where Peter is, there is the Church.”—St Ambrose.

Two and a half centuries after St Peter's martyrdom came the open triumph of the Church. Pope St Silvester, with his clergy and the whole body of the faithful, went through Rome in procession to the Vatican Hill, singing the praises of God till the seven hills rang. The first Christian emperor (though yet but a catechumen) inaugurated St Peter's church, and now, on the site of that old church, stands the basilica that is known to all the Christian world : beneath the high altar is the apostle's tomb, and all around rest martyrs of Christ and popes, saints, doctors, from East and West; high over all we read the words : “Thou art Peter, and on this Rock I will build my Church.” It is the Threshold of the Apostles and the heart of the Church.

“I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of Heaven.”—Matt. xvi, 19.

30

ST PAUL

ST PAUL was born at Tarsus in Asia Minor of Jewish parents, and studied in Jerusalem at the feet of Gamaliel, a famous Jewish teacher. While still a young man he held the clothes of those who stoned the first martyr, Stephen; and in his restless zeal he pressed on to Damascus, "breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord." But near Damascus a light from heaven struck him to the earth. He heard a voice which said, "Why do you persecute me?" It was the voice of Jesus, who had been crucified for men's sins, and for three days Paul could see nothing. He awoke from his trance another man — a "new creature" in Jesus Christ. He left Damascus for a long retreat in Arabia, and then, at the call of God, he carried the Gospel out into the non-Jewish world; for years he lived and laboured with no thought but the thought of Christ crucified; no desire but to spend, and be spent, for Him. He became the Apostle of the Gentiles, whom he had been taught to hate, and was loathed by his own countrymen, who sought his life. Perils by land and sea could not damp his courage, nor toil and suffering and age dull the tenderness of his heart. At last he gave blood for blood. In his youth he had imbibed the zeal of the Pharisees at Jerusalem, the holy city of the old covenant; with St Peter he consecrated Rome, a new holy city, by his martyrdom, and poured into its church all his doctrine with all his blood. (Though June 30 is given over to him, St Paul's feast-day is June 29, with St Peter).

Complete Conversion

St Paul complains in his letter to the Christians at Philippi that all seek the things which are their own, and not the things which are Christ's. See if these words apply to you, and resolve to give yourself to God without reserve.

"You, holy apostle Paul, are a chosen vessel, a preacher of truth to the whole world; through you the Gentiles have known God's grace. Intercede for us with God who chose you."—Roman Breviary.

St Paul left fourteen letters, which have ever been a fountain-head of the Church's teaching and the comfort and delight of her greatest saints. His inner life, so far as words can tell it, lies open before us in these writings, the life of one who has died to himself and risen again in Jesus Christ. "In what", says St John Chrysostom, "in what did this blessed man gain an advantage over the other apostles? How comes it that he lives in all men's mouths throughout the world? Is it not through the power of his Epistles? Nor will his work cease while the race of man continues. He still stands in our midst like a good soldier, capturing every thought to the obedience of Christ."

"Rise, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ will enlighten thee."—Eph. v, 14.

1 ST ISIDORE OF MADRID

ISIDORE was born of poor parents at Madrid about 1090, and gained his livelihood as a ploughman. He never learned to read or write, but sanctified himself by his daily work. All his spare time was spent in prayer, and his first act in the morning was to attend Mass. His fellow servants accused him of neglecting his work for this purpose. When his master went to the field to find out, it is said that he saw two angels working by Isidore's side, to compensate for the time he had given to God. He committed all his cares to God with marvellous simplicity. Hearing in church that his donkey was in danger from a wolf, he answered, "God's will be done", and quietly continued his prayers to the end. When he reached the spot, the donkey was feeding in safety, and the wolf lay dead by its side. He constantly divided his food with the poor. Once, when all had been given away, another poor man appeared. Isidore begged his wife for God's sake to find him some soup; and on looking into the pot she found it miraculously refilled. Isidore always worked for the same master, who learned by long experience his real worth, and made him steward of his whole property. He died in 1130. His feast-day is May 15.

Simple Faith

St Isidore became a saint because he preferred prayer with God to conversation with men, and because he trusted the divine power and goodness rather than any human aid.

“The stability of our faith comes not from the acuteness of our understanding, but from the simplicity with which we cling to God’s promises.”—St Augustine.

It is said that, one summer’s day, when the whole country was parched and the rivers were dry, Isidore’s master came to him where he was ploughing, and asked him where he could find some water to drink. The saint pointed to a neighbouring hill. His master went to the spot, but returned, disappointed and angry. Then Isidore took him to the place, which indeed showed no sign of a spring; but the saint made the sign of the cross on the ground, and, piercing the surface with his goad, out gushed a stream, which flows to this day and is blessed with healing qualities.

“Trust in the Lord, and do good, and dwell in the land; and thou shalt be fed with its riches.”—Ps. xxxvi, 3.

2 BD PETER OF LUXEMBURG

PETER OF LUXEMBURG, descended from the noblest families, was born in Lorraine in the year 1369. When but a boy, twelve years of age, he was held by the English as a hostage for his brother, the Count of Saint-Pol, who had been taken prisoner. The English were so won by young Peter that they released him at the end of the year, taking his word for the ransom. Richard II now invited him to remain at the English court; but Peter returned to Paris, determined to have no master but Christ. When still only fifteen he was, by an abuse common in those days, nominated bishop of Metz, and made his public entry into his see barefoot and riding a donkey. So far as a deacon could, he governed his diocese with zeal and prudence, and divided his revenues into three parts—for the Church, the poor and his household. His charities left him personally destitute, and he had but twenty pence left when he died. He was named cardinal and called to the court of Avignon, where his austerities were so severe that he was ordered to moderate them. Peter replied, "I shall always be an unprofitable servant, but I can at least obey." Ten months after, he fell sick of a fever, but lingered for some time, his holiness increasing as he drew near his end. He died in 1387, aged eighteen years.

Self-Denial

Bd Peter teaches us how, by self-denial, rank, riches, the highest dignities and all this world can give may serve to make a saint, and that in extreme youth.

"Contempt of the world! Contempt of yourself! Welcome your own contempt, but despise no one else."—Words of St Bernard, inscribed on Bd Peter's portrait at Autun.

Peter, it was believed, never stained his soul by mortal sin; yet, as he grew in grace, his scorn for self became more and more intense. When he had received the last sacraments, he ordered his attendants in turn to scourge him for his faults, and then lay silent till he died. But God was pleased to glorify His servant by miracles after his death. Peter of Luxemburg adhered in good faith to an invalidly elected pope, but in 1527 the Holy See beatified him. This shows how the Church acknowledges true holiness, irrespective of the genuine mistakes a man may have made.

“If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.”—Matt. xvi, 24.

3

ST PACHOMIUS

IN the beginning of the fourth century levies of troops were made throughout Egypt for the service of the Roman emperor. Among the recruits was Pachomius, a young heathen, then in his twenty-first year. On his way down the Nile he passed a village whose inhabitants gave him food and money. Marvelling at this kindness, Pachomius was told they were Christians, who looked for reward only in the life to come. He then prayed God to show him the truth, and promised to devote his life to His service. On being discharged, he returned to a Christian village in Egypt, where he was instructed and baptized. Instead of going home he sought Palemon, an aged solitary, to learn a perfect life from him, and with joy embraced the most severe austerities. Their food was bread and water, once a day in summer and once in two days in winter; sometimes they added vegetables, but used no wine or oil. They slept only one hour each night, and this short repose Pachomius took sitting upright without support. Three times God revealed to him that he was to found a monastery at Tabennisi; and this he did although he had no disciples. But soon many came to him; and he trained them in perfect detachment from creatures and from self, drawing up a rule for their common observance. His death occurred in 348, and his feast-day is May 9.

Self-Effacement

“To live in great simplicity,” said St Pachomius, “and in a wise ignorance, is exceedingly wise.”

“Most men look for miracles as a sign of holiness; but I prefer a solid, heartfelt humility to raising the dead.”—St Pachomius.

One day a monk, by dint of great exertions, contrived to make two mats instead of the one which was the usual daily task, and he set them both out in front of his cell so that Pachomius might see how diligent he had been. But the saint, perceiving the vainglory which had prompted the act, said, “This brother has taken a great deal of pains from morning till night to give his work to the Devil.” Then, to cure his delusion, Pachomius imposed on him as a penance to keep his cell for five months and to eat no food but bread and water.

“Take heed that you do not your justice before men, to be seen by them; otherwise you shall not have a reward of your Father who is in heaven.”—Matt. vi, 1.

4 ST ODO OF CANTERBURY

THE father of Odo was a pagan Dane settled in England and he disinherited his son because he saw him inclined towards the Christian faith. Odo was then taken up by a Saxon noble, who had him instructed, baptized and educated for the priesthood. When his patron went on a pilgrimage to Rome, bearing to the Pope the offerings of King Alfred and his Saxon subjects, Odo accompanied him as his chaplain; and the nobleman's recovery from an illness was attributed to his prayers. So greatly was he revered for his wisdom and holiness that on his return he was made bishop of Ramsbury; and to his prayers and counsels King Athelstan ascribed a great victory which he won over the Danes at Brunanburh in 937. When he was made archbishop of Canterbury, Odo took the habit of St Benedict. He discharged every duty of a good pastor with holiness, prudence and firmness. He was the inflexible enemy of all wrong; he pruned away abuses and restored discipline amongst the clergy, and was the friend and helper of St Dunstan. Neither smiles nor threats could make him swerve from the right way, because he feared nothing and desired nothing. It was thus that he rebuked and resisted the young King Edwy, who was giving public scandal. St Odo died in 959, and his name was long held in benediction as "Odo the Good."

Fraternal Correction

"In correcting," said St Philip Neri, "we should use all possible gentleness and meekness, always remembering that, if similarly tempted, we should ourselves have fallen yet more gravely."

"In correction we must love the person while we rebuke the fault, lest correction pass into cruelty and we destroy him whom we would amend. Let, then, your gentleness be careful, and not remiss; and your correction firm, but not severe."—St Gregory the Great.

Young King Edwy, on the very day of his coronation, insulted and scandalized his nobles by leaving them for the company of a girl. St Odo sent St Dunstan to re-monstrate privately with the king, and bring him back. Edwy gave way, but in revenge banished Dunstan. Odo resisted Edwy in other evil acts, and by his mingled gentleness and decision compelled his obedience to God and the Church. To his dying day St Dunstan had great veneration for the memory of St Odo.

“Before thou inquire, blame no man; and when thou hast inquired, reprove justly.”—Ecclus. xi, 7.

5

ST ANTONY ZACCARIA

ANTONY MARY ZACCARIA lived in the early days of the religious troubles of the sixteenth century. He was born in 1502 in northern Italy. While studying medicine at Padua he learned that his vocation was to heal souls as well as bodies; as a young doctor he gave spiritual help to the dying, taught the Christian faith to children, and did his best to be of service to all. After a few years he was ordained priest, and set about founding a religious congregation for pastoral work. Because of their constant preaching on St Paul's epistles they were called the Clerks Regular of St Paul (or Barnabites, from their church of St Barnabas in Milan). Like many other saints and founders, Antony was greatly helped in his work for the people of God by the friendship, co-operation and counsel of a woman, in this case the widowed Countess Torelli. Together they established a congregation of women, called the Angelicals, to look after girls who were in danger of falling into evil ways, or had already done so. At a time when their country was ravaged by war, and when the people were not always getting the help they should have done from their clergy, St Antony and his followers went into the highways and byways to seek the lost and forsaken sheep. He was only thirty-seven when he died in his mother's house at Cremona, in 1539.

Fulfilling Apostleship

By his following of St Paul's example in going out to all men, and by the use he made of the Apostle's letters, St Antony Zaccaria gives an example to us in our turn. We have always to be ready to help our fellow men and women in every way that we can; and we should constantly re-read and ponder St Paul's expositions of the Christian faith and life.

"The trouble is that we all talk about reforming others, without ever reforming ourselves."—St Peter of Alcantara.

The aim of St Antony's apostleship was to arouse and revive love for divine worship and to promote a really Christian way of living by frequent preaching and faithful ministering of the sacraments. But he did not ignore man's physical necessities, without a reasonable satisfaction of which the soul may become enfeebled; and when Milan was stricken by an epidemic he and his priests were among the first to put themselves at the disposal of the bodies and souls of the sufferers.

"I became all things to all men, that I might save all. And I do all things for the gospel's sake, that I may be made partaker thereof."—I Cor. ix, 22-23.

6

ST SISOES

SISOES spent seventy years in the Egyptian desert. His holiness led numbers to consult him, and the virtue he recommended above all others was humility. A solitary having said, "My father, I always consider myself as standing before God," Sisoës answered, "That is not much, my son. It would be better if you looked on yourself as below all creatures." Another said, "If a barbarian tried to murder me, should I kill him if I could?" "By no means," Sisoës answered; "Commit yourself to God, and believe all evil happens to you for your sins by the just judgement of God, whose providence is righteous and cannot err." Sisoës was as gentle as he was humble. He never reproved the brethren, but patiently aided them to rise again after their falls. One whom he had often helped said to him, "Father, how many times may I get up again after I have fallen?" "Keep on", he answered, "till death finds you either fallen or risen again." At his death the face of Sisoës grew radiant, and he said, "Abbot Antony is here." A little later he said, "The choir of prophets are come," and added, "the choir of apostles too." When asked with whom he was talking, he said, "The angels are come to fetch me; but I am begging them to leave me a little longer to do penance, for I have not yet begun." Then with shining face he exclaimed, "Behold the Lord!" and died. It was about the year 429.

Humbleness

There are few of us who would like to face our friends if we were obliged to carry the catalogue of our past sins hung round our necks. Yet we know that the judgement men would then form of us would be a correct one, while the respect and friendship they now show us are based only on their ignorance of our true selves. This thought will help us to imitate the humility for which St Sisoës was distinguished.

“Hold yourself in low esteem, renounce the pleasures of the senses, detach yourself from the vain cares of this world, and you shall gain true peace of heart.”—St Sisoës.

Some solitaries once asked St Sisoës to give them a few words of edification. Out of humbleness he excused himself, and leaving them to confer with his disciple, withdrew into his cavern. Overhearing some praise of himself, he called out from within, “No, I am only a glutton, who eats without rule and without necessity.” And the brethren, who well knew the austerity of his life, went away more edified by his humility than they could have been by the finest discourse.

“In humility let each esteem others better than themselves.”—Phil. ii, 3.

7

ST ARSENIUS

ARSENIUS, as tutor to the sons of the Emperor Theodosius, filled an important place at the court of Constantinople, and lived in luxury. Possessed of all the world values, he felt the vanity of earthly goods, and feared to lose his soul. Seeking with prayers and tears to know God's will, he heard a voice say, “Arsenius, leave the company of men, and you shall be saved.” At once he left everything, and secretly taking ship for Alexandria, entered the desert and became a solitary. He soon surpassed the most fervent hermits in penance, patience and courage. Again he heard the mysterious voice say to him, "Arsenius, go further. Be silent, be still : these are the beginnings of salvation." Once more obeying, he made himself a cell forty miles away from any other, where he led a life of angelic contemplation. He hardly ate or slept, and ancient writers speak of his extraordinary gift of tears. Never would he see any one or speak unless he was obliged, and those who visited him often left him without having heard him open his mouth. But when he did speak, it was wisely and to the point. In his later years Arsenius had several times to change his place of abode in search of complete solitude. He died about the year 450, and his feast-day is on July 19.

Silence

Let us learn from the example of St Arsenius that it is not enough to mortify our bodies : we must also keep a careful watch over our hearts. Those who attend to the exterior alone are like statues that shine on the outside with gold and polish, but inside are full of dirt and rubbish.

"God knows how much I love the brethren, but I cannot be with God and man at the same time; so I will not leave God to be with them."—St Arsenius.

When Abbot Ammon visited Arsenius, who regarded him as a saint, he asked what he thought of him. Arsenius replied, "I look on you as an angel." But when they had talked together for some time, and Ammon repeated his question, Arsenius answered, "Now I look on you as a tempter; for though all the words you utter may be good, they are to me like so many stabs from a knife."

“Thus saith the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel : If you return and be quiet, you shall be saved. In silence and in hope shall your strength be.”—Isa. xxx, 15.

8 ST ELIZABETH OF PORTUGAL

ELIZABETH was born in 1271. She was the daughter of Pedro III of Aragon, and was named after her great-aunt, St Elizabeth of Hungary. At twelve years of age she was given in marriage to Denis, king of Portugal, and from a holy child became a saintly wife. She daily assisted at Mass and recited the Divine Office, but her devotions were arranged with such care that they interfered with no duty of her state. She prepared for her frequent communions by fasting thrice a week and by works of charity. She was several times called on to make peace between her husband and her son Alfonso, who had taken up arms against him. Her husband tried her much, both by his unfounded jealousy and by his infidelity to her. But God made known her innocence; and her patience, and the kindness with which she even cherished the children of her rivals, at last won him from his evil ways. After his death she wished to enter a convent of Poor Clares she had founded; but being dissuaded by her people, who could not do without her, she took the habit of the third order of St Francis, and spent the rest of her life in redoubled austerities and almsgiving. She died at the age of sixty-five, in 1336, when engaged in trying to make peace between her children.

Daily Mass

In the holy Sacrifice of the altar, St Elizabeth daily found strength to bear suspicion and cruelty patiently; and through that same holy Sacrifice her innocence was proved. By neglecting opportunities of daily Mass we lose opportunities for gaining strength.

“When you see the priest offering the Sacrifice, do not consider the priest who is ministering, but the hand of God invisibly outstretched.”—St John Chrysostom.

A slander about Elizabeth and one of her pages made the king determine to kill him. We are told that he ordered a lime-burner to cast into his kiln the first page who should arrive with a royal message. On the day fixed the page was sent; but the youth, who was in the habit of attending Mass daily, stopped on his way to do so. The king sent a second page, the very originator of the evil story, and he, coming first to the kiln, was at once thrown in and burnt. Shortly after, the first page arrived from the church, and took back to the king the lime-burner's reply that his orders had been fulfilled. Thus presence at Mass saved the page's life, proved the queen's innocence, and contributed to the king's conversion.

“Thou hast prepared a table before me, against them that afflict me.”—Ps. xxii, 5.

9

ST JOHN FISHER

JOHN FISHER was a native of Beverley, the place in Yorkshire that eight hundred years earlier gave its name to another St John. He was educated at Cambridge and in after life played an important part in the history of that university. He was a scholar and humanist (books were his one earthly pleasure), an ascetic, and a most devoted bishop. He was only thirty-five years old when he was appointed to the see of Rochester. He wrote and preached against the errors of Luther, and worked tirelessly for the reform of those among the higher clergy whose worldliness was a betrayal of the Church. When so many others temporized or yielded, John Fisher upheld the validity of King Henry VIII's marriage with Katherine of Aragon; and he further angered the king by his opposition to the royal claim to be head of the Church in England. It was this that led to Fisher's death. Having refused to take an oath which could be interpreted as a recognition of the king's religious supremacy, he was cast into prison in the Tower of London, whereupon Pope Paul III created him cardinal. This further infuriated Henry; the bishop was put on trial and sentenced to death. He was beheaded on Tower Hill on 22 June 1535. Four hundred years later, almost to the day, John Fisher was canonized as a martyr, at the same time as his friend Thomas More; and the feast of both together is kept in England and Wales on July 9.

Judgement of Others

Thank God for giving you the gift of faith; and remember that, in His inscrutable wisdom, He withholds that gift from some people. Pray for the spirit of the martyrs, the spirit that exults and rejoices in belief, the belief of faith, not of credulity.

"I do not condemn any other men's conscience. Their conscience may save them, and mine must save me."—St John Fisher.

On his way to the scaffold, John Fisher opened his New Testament with a prayer for some word of encouragement and comfort. His eyes fell on John xvii, 3-5 :

“Now this is eternal life : That they may know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent...” He shut the book, saying, “Here is even learning enough for me to my life’s end.” He was so worn with sickness and imprisonment that, when he appeared on the gallows, he appeared to the spectators as “a very image of death”. He addressed the people, telling them that he was there to die for the faith of Christ’s holy Catholic Church; and he asked their prayers that he might at that supreme moment stand steadfast and without fear in every point of it.

“My sheep hear my voice. And I know them, and they follow me. And I give them life everlasting, and they shall not perish for ever. And no man shall pluck them out of my hand.”—John x, 27-28.

10

ST THOMAS MORE

THOMAS MORE, one of the glories of England and of the legal profession, was a Londoner by birth. Having decided that he had no call to the priestly or monastic life, he pursued his profession with distinction, entered Parliament, and in 1505, at the age of twenty-seven, married Jane Colt. By her he had four children, and after her untimely death soon married again, that his young family might not be left motherless. More’s home was a centre of religion, of learning, of happiness and good fellowship. His reputation, as a just and learned jurist, man of letters, and religious scholar, spread beyond England; and his house became the resort of scholars, men of affairs and Catholic reformers from at home and abroad (none of whom suspected that their delightful host habitually wore a hairshirt).

Henry VIII appreciated him and in 1529 appointed him lord chancellor; but More had soon to oppose the king's policies and proceedings, and after less than three years he resigned his office. He endeavoured to remain aloof from public affairs, but in 1534 he was tendered the same oath as St John Fisher; with Fisher he refused it, and was confined for fifteen months in the Tower, where he prepared for death. At his trial, nine days after Fisher's martyrdom, he denied firmly that any temporal sovereign could be head in spiritual things. On 6 July 1535 he was beheaded, declaring that he died for the Catholic Church — "the king's good servant, but God's first". The feast of St Thomas More and St John Fisher together is kept on July 9 in England and Wales.

Putting First Things First

The fundamental obligations of Christian life are the same for lay persons as for priests and religious; they call for the recognition of God's sovereignty in all things, and faithfulness to them may demand not only cheerful perseverance but heroism as well.

"You must understand that, in things touching conscience, every true and good subject is more bound to have respect to his conscience and to his soul than to any other thing in all the world beside."—St Thomas More.

Humbleness and cheerfulness are commonly found together, and More was an inveterate joker. That he joked even on the scaffold is known by many who know little else about him. It was his humility that forbade him too openly to defy his king until he had been actually sentenced for "treason": for, he said,

“I am not so holy that I dare rush upon death; were I so presumptuous, God might suffer me to fall.” Trust in and love for God were the mainsprings of his life and gave him a quiet mind. When in prison he declared that God was so good to him that he was as happy and merry as if he were at home.

“Every one that hath left house or brethren or sisters or father or mother or wife or children or lands, for my name’s sake, shall receive an hundredfold and shall possess life everlasting.”—Matt. xix, 29.

11 ST VERONICA GIULIANI

VERONICA, born at Mercatello in Italy in 1660, showed signs of unusual piety from an early age, and later on resolutely rejected her father’s plans for her marriage. She was clothed as a Capuchin Franciscan nun in 1677, and after her profession her life was one of the most remarkable in the annals of mystical experience. Its starting-point and centre was St Veronica’s absorption in Christ’s passion and death. She had visions of our Lord carrying His cross, and offering her the cup of His sufferings, which she gladly accepted. Then the imprint of the crown of thorns and of His five wounds, the “stigmata”, appeared in her body; these scars did not yield to treatment, they persisted year after year, and caused her great pain. Other well-attested phenomena of this kind were recorded of her, and her whole life was one long succession of sufferings reproducing those of her beloved Lord; through all her pain her heart was fixed on Jesus crucified alone. At the same time she led the ordinary life of her convent as simple nun, novice-mistress and abbess, distinguished for her practicality and good sense. St Veronica Giuliani lived to be sixty-seven years old, and died in 1727 after an agony of three hours; like her Lord's, her very death was an act of obedience, for she asked her superior's leave before she left this world. Her feast-day is on July 9.

Devotion to the Passion

Let us ask St Veronica to help us to honour our crucified Redeemer, by denying our natural inclinations and welcoming all that is opposed to them, by flying from the praise of man, by cherishing contempt and mortification, by being lovers of the Cross, crucified in all things.

“Blessed be God! Everything seems little that is suffered for His love. Blessed be the simple Cross! Blessed be pure suffering!”—St Veronica Giuliani.

Once, after the saint had carried more than thirty pitchers full of water up two flights of steep stairs, her feet were dreadfully sore and she was quite exhausted. Then our Lord appeared to her, bearing His cross, and said, “Look at the cross which I am carrying, see how heavy it is.” At this sight she felt her strength restored and her heart burned with eagerness to suffer yet more for love of Jesus.

“Christ therefore having suffered in the flesh, be you also armed with the same thought : for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sins.”—I Peter iv, 1.

12 ST JOHN GUALBERT

JOHN GUALBERT was born at Florence about 999. Following the profession of arms at that troubled period, he became involved in a blood-feud on behalf of his murdered brother. One day, riding into Florence accompanied by armed men, he encountered his enemy in a place where neither could avoid the other. John would have slain him; but his adversary, who was defenceless, fell on his knees with arms stretched out in the form of a cross, and grace triumphed. John not only held his hand from blood, but cast from his heart the wicked spirit of revenge. A humbled and changed man, he entered the church of St Miniato, which was near; and whilst he prayed, he saw the figure of our crucified Lord before which he was kneeling bow its head, as if to ratify his forgiveness. Leaving the world, he gave himself to prayer and penance in the Benedictine Order. Later he was led to found the congregation called "of Vallombrosa," from the shady valley near Fiesole where he established his first monastery. He fought manfully against simony, and in many ways promoted religion in Italy. After a life of great austerity, he died in 1073.

Forgiveness of Enemies

The heroic act which was the occasion of St John Gualbert's conversion was the forgiveness of his enemy. Let us imitate him in this, resolving never to revenge ourselves in deed, in word or in thought.

St John Gualbert said to his enemy, "I cannot refuse what you ask in Christ's name. I grant you your life, and I give you my friendship. Pray that God may forgive me my sins."

Men came to one of John's monasteries, plundered it, set fire to it, and treated the monks with brutality. "Now," said John, "you are true monks. Would that I had had the honour of being with you when the soldiers came, that I might have had a share in the glory of your crowns."

"To no man rendering evil for evil."—Rom. xii, 17.

13 ST FRANCIS SOLANO

FRANCIS was born in Spain in 1549. As a boy he hated quarrels, and was always putting an end to disputes. He once threw himself between two fighting playfellows, and bore their blows till he forced them to stop; on another occasion his entreaties sheathed the swords of older combatants. At the age of twenty he entered the Franciscan Order in his native city of Montilla. When the plague broke out, his devotion to the sufferers nearly cost him his life; on recovering he escaped the gratitude of the people by sailing for the American mission. His ship was wrecked at sea. Francis refused to leave the vessel till he had baptized the Negro slaves who had been left on board to die. Some moments after, half the ship sank; some were saved, St Francis among them. In Peru he was an apostle of charity and peace : he stopped the duels and healed the feuds of the Spanish settlers, and taught them forbearance to the conquered Indians, many of whom he baptized. A sermon of his so stirred the hearts of the dissolute inhabitants of Lima that there was a panic that alarmed the civil authorities. Francis's zeal renewed the face of the land, and warmed it with the charity of Christ. But his own strength was worn out. Murmuring "Blessed be God!" he died on the feast of his patron St Bonaventure in 1610.

Peacemaking

The first degree of virtue is to keep at peace with God; the second to keep peace with our neighbour; the third and most perfect is to make peace between those who are enemies, and to do this for the sake of Christ, who is our peace.

"My object was to reconcile, and having succeeded in it I have suffered nothing."—St Francis Solano.

Some Indian tribes planned a massacre of Christians while they were celebrating Holy Week. Hearing of their coming, Francis went forth, filled with the Holy Spirit, and talked to them with such moving words of Christ's passion, and appealed to them so earnestly to accept His holy faith, that on that very day many were baptized; and that night some even took a severe discipline in honour of the Passion, together with the Spanish Christians.

"When the ways of a man shall please the Lord, he will convert even his enemies to peace."—Proverbs xvi, 7.

14

ST BONAVENTURE

HOLINESS and learning raised Bonaventure to the Church's highest honours, yet at heart he was ever the poor Franciscan friar, a man of humility and mortification. It is said that St Francis gave him his name : having cured him of a mortal sickness, he prophetically exclaimed of the child, "Bonaventura—good luck!" He is known as the Seraphic Doctor, from the fervour of divine love which breathes in his writings. He was the friend of St Thomas Aquinas, who asked him one day whence he drew his great learning; he replied by pointing to his crucifix. At another time Thomas found him in contemplation while writing the life of St Francis, and exclaimed, "Let us leave a saint to write of a saint." Bonaventure was an adviser of St Louis, and the director of Bd Isabella, the king's sister. At the age of thirty-five he was made minister general of his order; and only escaped the archbishopric of York by earnestly begging off. Later on, Pope Gregory X appointed him cardinal-bishop of Albano, and he sat at that pontiff's right hand and was the outstanding figure at the Council of Lyons. His religion and eloquence won over the Greeks to Catholic union, and then his strength failed. He died while the council was sitting, and was buried by the assembled bishops, in 1274.

Disregard of Honours

"The fear of God," says St Bonaventure, "forbids a man to give his heart to transitory things, which are the true seed of sin."

"Pride makes a man almost insane, for it teaches him to despise what is most precious, grace and glory, and to esteem what is most contemptible, vanity and ambition."
—St Bonaventure.

When Pope Gregory determined to make Bonaventure a cardinal he sent him a summons to return to Rome. On his way the saint stopped at a convent of his order near Florence; and there two papal messengers, sent to meet him with the cardinal's hat, found him washing the dishes. Bonaventure asked them to hang the hat on a bush that was near, as his hands were dirty, and take a walk in the garden until he had finished what he was about. Then, taking up the hat with unfeigned regret, he joined the messengers, and paid them the respect due to them.

“Mind the things that are above, not the things that are upon the earth.”—Col. iii, 2.

15 ST HENRY THE EMPEROR

IT is told of Henry when he was duke of Bavaria that he saw in a vision his former tutor, St Wolfgang of Regensburg, pointing to the words “After six”. This moved Henry to prepare for death, and for six years he continued to watch and pray. But at the end of the sixth year he found the warning verified, not by death, but by his election as emperor in the West. He proved to be one of the great rulers of the Holy Roman Empire, and after defeating a rival in Italy he was crowned in Rome by Pope Benedict VIII. He received the crown determined to reign for God’s glory. He supported those who were working for reform in the Church, and he used some of the fruits of his conquests in great enterprises of church-building in Germany. A story was afterwards told that Henry wanted to be a monk and put himself under obedience to the abbot of Saint-Vanne at Verdun; whereupon the abbot at once commanded him to continue the government of the empire. But the story is one of several about St Henry that are very difficult to substantiate historically. The city of Bamberg was one that particularly benefited by the emperor’s benefactions (he founded the bishopric there), and after his death in 1024 the grateful Bambergers invented edifying legends about their benefactor. One popular tale professed to account for a lameness that Henry had in fact contracted through illness.

Offerings for the Sanctuary

St Henry deprived himself of many things to enrich the house of God. We spend money on ourselves, and leave Jesus in poverty and neglect.

“For here [in church] all our wealth is treasured; here lies all our hope. . . and if peace were truly kept among us, what other house should we need? And the truth of this is proved by the 3000 and the 5000 who had but one house, one table and one soul.”—St John Chrysostom.

It was said that, as Henry was praying in St Mary Major's the first night of his arrival in Rome, he saw the sovereign and eternal Priest, Christ Jesus, enter to offer the Holy Sacrifice, with St Laurence and St Vincent as deacon and subdeacon. Saints innumerable filled the church, and angels sang in the choir. After the gospel an angel was sent by our Lady to give him the book to kiss. Touching him lightly on the thigh, as the angel did to Jacob, the messenger said, “Accept this sign of God's love for your chastity and justice;” and from that time the emperor was always a little lame.

“I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.”—Apoc. xxi, 2.

16

ST SIMON STOCK

SIMON is said to have been born in Kent, and to have left home when he was a boy to live as a hermit in the hollow trunk of a tree, whence he was known as Simon of the Stock. It is probable that he went to Palestine and there entered the Order of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. His holiness moved his brethren in the general chapter held at Aylesford, near Maidstone, in 1247 to choose him as prior general of the order. In the persecutions raised against the new religious, Simon went with filial confidence to the blessed Mother of God. As he knelt in prayer on 16 July 1251, she is said to have appeared before him, and presented him with the brown scapular in assurance of her protection. The devotion to the blessed habit spread throughout the Christian world. Pope after pope enriched it with indulgences, and miracles bore testimony to its efficacy. The first of them was reported at Winchester, on a man dying in despair, who at once asked for the sacraments when the scapular was laid upon him by St Simon. The saint died at Bordeaux in 1265, and in 1951 his relics were brought thence and enshrined at the restored Carmelite friary at Aylesford.

Devotion to the Scapular

To enjoy the privileges of the scapular, it is necessary to be invested with it, to wear it with faith, and to observe the few pertinent conditions. How can anyone fail to profit by a devotion so simple and so wonderfully blessed?

“This is a token of salvation, a safeguard in danger, a pledge of peace and of the covenant.”—Words attributed to our Lady when giving the scapular to St Simon.

In the year 1636 a French soldier was mortally wounded in battle, a bullet having lodged near his heart. He was then in a state of grievous sin, but he had time left him to make his confession. When this was done the surgeon probed his wound, and the bullet was found to have driven his scapular into his heart. On its being withdrawn he soon after died, overwhelmed with gratitude that his life should have been thus prolonged at Mary's intercession to preserve him from eternal death.

"He that shall overcome shall thus be clothed in white garments, and I will not blot his name out of the book of life. And I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels."—Apoc. iii, 5.

17

ST ALEXIS

ALEXIS seems to have lived and died, during the fifth century, as a beggar at Edessa in Syria, where he was revered as a saint. But in later times the following story grew up about him. He was the son of a Roman patrician who, on his wedding-night, secretly quitted Rome and, journeying to Edessa, gave away all that he had, content thenceforth to live on alms in that city. After many years, when his sanctity was miraculously manifested, he once more sought obscurity by flight. On his way to Tarsus contrary winds drove his ship to Rome. There no one recognized him, not even his sorrowing parents. From his father he begged a corner of his palace as shelter, and the leavings of his table as food. Thus he spent seventeen years. At last, when death came to him, his wife and parents learned, from a writing in his own hand, who it was that they had unknowingly sheltered.

Right Ordering of Affections

We must always be ready to sacrifice our dearest and best natural affections in obedience to the call of our heavenly Father. Our Lord has taught us this not by words only, but by His own example and by that of His saints.

O God, who made blessed Alexis, thy confessor, wonderful in his contempt for the world : grant, we beseech thee, that by the help of his intercession thy faithful people may reject earthly things and ever seek those that are heavenly. Amen.—Roman Breviary.

When the servants of Alexis, whom his father sent in search of him, arrived at Edessa and saw him among the poor at the gate of our Lady's church, they gave him an alms, not recognizing him. Whereupon the man of God said, "I thank you, Lord, who has called me and granted that I should receive for your name's sake an alms from my own slaves. Fulfil in me the work you have begun."

"Son, why hast thou done so to us? Behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing. And he said to them, How is it that you sought me? Knew ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"—Luke ii, 48-49.

18 ST CAMILLUS DE LELLIS

THE early years of Camillus gave no sign of sanctity. At the age of seventeen he took service with his father, an Italian noble, against the Turks, and after four years' hard campaigning found himself, through his violent temper and inveterate passion for gambling, a discharged and penniless soldier. A Capuchin friar converted him, and thrice he entered the Capuchin novitiate, but each time an obstinate disease in his leg forced him to leave. He went to Rome for medical treatment, and there took St Philip Neri as his confessor, and entered the hospital of San Giacomo, of which he became superintendent. The carelessness of the paid chaplains and nurses towards the patients inspired him with the thought of founding a congregation to minister to their needs. With this end in view he was ordained priest (by the English Bishop Goldwell), and in 1586 his community of the Servants of the Sick was confirmed by Pope Sixtus V. Its usefulness was soon felt, not only in hospitals, but in private houses. Summoned at every hour of the day and night, the devotion of Camillus never faltered; with unfailing gentleness he attended his patients. He suffered with them, consoled them and prayed with them, while year after year his own health became worse, till he died in 1614.

Regard for the Sick

St Camillus saw the sick as living images of Christ, and by ministering to them in this spirit atoned for the sins of his youth, led a life precious in merit, and from a quarrelsome soldier became a gentle, loving saint.

"Charity does not seek its own convenience. We must give the spur to this jade of a body of ours, to make it trot on and get forward. The good soldier dies in battle, the good sailor on the sea, and the good servant of the sick in the hospital."—St Camillus.

One day a sick man said to the saint, "Father, I beg you to make up my bed, it is very hard.” Camillus replied, “God forgive you, brother. You beg me! Don’t you know yet that you have to give me orders, for I am your servant?” “Would to God,” he would say, “that in the hour of my death one sigh or one blessing of these poor creatures might fall upon me!” His prayer was heard. He was granted the same consolations in his last hour which he had been the means of getting for so many others. He breathed his last as the priest was reciting the words of the ritual, “May Jesus Christ smile gladly upon you!”

“I was naked, and you covered me; sick, and you visited me.”—Matt. xxv, 36.

19

ST VINCENT DE PAUL

VINCENT was born in 1580. In after years, when adviser of the queen and a light of the Church in France, he loved to recount how in his youth he had guarded his father’s pigs. After his ordination, at an astonishingly early age, his attention was drawn to the awful state of the French peasantry, and he determined to devote his life to the poor. Appointed chaplain of the galleys of France, he brought hope into those prisons where hitherto despair had reigned. His charity embraced the poor, young and old, provinces desolated by civil war, Christians enslaved by the Moors. The poor man, ignorant and degraded, was to Vincent the image of One who became as “a leper and no man.” “Turn the medal,” he said, “and you will see Jesus Christ.” He went through the streets of Paris at night, seeking the children who were left there to die. Once robbers rushed on him, thinking he carried money, but when he opened his cloak they recognized him and his burden, and let him go. The society he founded, the Priests of the Mission, and thousands of Sisters of Charity, still comfort the afflicted with the charity of St Vincent. He died in 1660.

Goodness to the Poor

Most people who profess religion ask advice about their prayers and spiritual life. Few inquire whether they are not in danger of damnation from neglect of works of charity.

“Those who love the poor in life shall have no fear of death.”—St Vincent de Paul.

Not only was St Vincent the saviour of the poor, but also of the rich, for he taught them to do works of mercy. Like St Philip Neri, he knew the power of association. He made them do good openly, in order to spread the sacred contagion of charity. When the work for foundlings was in danger of failing from want of funds, he assembled the ladies of the Association of Charity and said : “Compassion and charity have made you adopt these little ones as your children. You have been their mothers according to grace, when their own mothers abandoned them. Cease to be their mothers and become their judges : their life and death is in your hands. I shall now take your votes : pronounce sentence.” The tears of the assembly were his only answer, and the work went on.

“Amen, I say to you, as long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to me.”—Matt. xxv, 40.

20 ST JEROME EMILIANI

JEROME EMILIANI was a member of one of the patrician families of Venice and, like many other saints, a soldier in early life. He was appointed governor of a fortress among the mountains of Treviso, and whilst defending his post was made prisoner by the enemy. In the misery of his dungeon he invoked the Mother of God, and promised to lead a new and a better life if he should escape alive. And escape he did. At Treviso he hung up his chains at our Lady's altar, dedicated himself to her service, and on reaching Venice devoted himself to a life of active charity. His special love was for the deserted orphan children whom, in time of plague and famine, he found wandering in the streets. He took them home, clothed and fed them, and taught them the Christian truths. From Venice he went to Padua and Verona, and in a few years had founded orphanages throughout northern Italy. Some clerics and laymen who had been his fellow workers lived together in one of these establishments, and devoted themselves to education. The saint drew up a rule of life for them, and thus was founded the congregation, which still exists, of the Clerks Regular of Somascha. St Jerome died in 1537, of an illness which he had caught in visiting the sick.

Love of Christ's Little Ones

Let us learn from St Jerome Emiliani to exert ourselves on behalf of the many children around us who are in danger for want of someone to show them the way to Heaven.

“We are bound to plead for children, since they cannot speak for themselves, and to labour that they be not deprived of the grace of Christ, which they cannot win by their own efforts.”—St Augustine.

St Jerome's orphans assembled each morning for Mass and twice daily for catechism. The working hours in which they were trained for some trade were lightened by hymns, prayers and reading aloud. They confessed monthly, and on great feasts went in procession, clothed in white and singing litanies, to some principal church. The sight of their innocent goodness brought about many conversions, and the saint used to say that, whenever he wanted any special grace from God, he would make four of his orphans under eight years of age pray for it, and that he had never yet been refused what they had thus asked for.

“The ear that heard me blessed me, and the eye that saw me gave witness to me, because I had delivered the poor man that cried out, and the fatherless that had no helper.”—Job xxix, 11-12.

21 ST CYRIL OF CAESAREA

ST CYRIL suffered while still a boy at Caesarea in Cappadocia during the persecutions of the third century. He had become a Christian, and was beaten and reviled by his heathen father. But he bore this with joy, increasing in the strength of Christ who dwelt within him, and drawing many of his own age to follow his example. When his father turned him out of doors, he said he had lost little, and would receive a great reward instead. Eventually he was brought before the magistrate on account of his faith. No threats could make him show a sign of fear, and the judge, perhaps pitying his tender years, offered him freedom, assured him of his father's forgiveness and urged him to return to his home. But the lad replied, "I left my home gladly, for I have a greater and a better which is waiting for me." He was taken to a fire as if for execution, and was then brought back and re-examined; but he only protested against the cruel delay. The infuriated governor had him put to death by the sword. This Cyril's feast-day is May 29.

Our Real Home

Ask our Lord to make all earthly pleasure unattractive, and to fill you with constant desire for Heaven. This desire will make labour easy and suffering light. It will make you fervent and detached, and bring you even here a foretaste of that eternal joy and peace to which you are hastening.

"How vile earth seems when I look up to Heaven!"—St Ignatius Loyola.

Souls on fire with longing for Heaven look forward to death, and cannot understand the sorrow of those who would hold them back. Cyril rebuked the Christians who stood weeping around him. "You ought to laugh and rejoice," he said, "now that I am about to suffer. Surely, you do not know the City to which I am going." Their grief, however, was but for a moment; and the document which relates his passion speaks of their holy joy in the glory of the young martyr.

"If our earthly house of this habitation be dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in heaven."—2 Cor. v, 1.

22

ST MARY MAGDALEN

OF the earlier life of Mary Magdalen we know only that, according to Western tradition, she was "a woman that was a sinner." From the depth of degradation she raised her eyes to Jesus with sorrow, hope and love. Full of shame, she came in where Jesus was at meat, and said not a word, but bathed His feet with her tears, wiped them with her hair, kissed them, and at their touch her sins and her stain were gone. Then she poured on them the expensive perfume prepared for far other uses; and His own lips took away her reproach, spoke her absolution, and bade her go in peace. Thenceforward she ministered to Jesus, sat at His feet, and heard His words. Hers was the better part, and it was not taken away from her. Once again, on the eve of His passion, she brought the precious ointment and, now cleansed and beloved, poured it on His head; and the whole house of God is still filled with the fragrance of her anointing. She stood with our Lady and St John at the foot of the cross, the representative of the many who have had much forgiven. And it was to Mary Magdalen first that our Lord appeared after His resurrection, making himself known and calling her by her name because she was His.

Loving Repentance

"True sorrow for sin", says St Bernard, "is a good infinitely to be desired, and an unspeakable gladness to the heart. It is healing to the soul, it is forgiveness of sins, it brings the Holy Spirit back again into the humble and loving heart."

"God is a consuming fire, for when He fills the heart His love purifies it from all the corruption and stain of sin."—St Gregory the Great.

When His followers were distressed at what seemed a waste of valuable perfume poured out on His head, Jesus defended Mary Magdalen. "She has anointed my body for burial," He said, "and I tell you that, wherever my gospel is preached, what she has done shall be told in memory of her." And fifteen hundred years ago St John Chrysostom declared : "And so it is. Wherever you go you hear her praises sung—in Persia, in India, in the British isles." No woman, after our blessed Lady, has been so glorified and blessed through all generations as "the woman who had been a sinner."

"Many sins are forgiven her, because she hath loved much."—Luke vii, 47.

23 ST LAURENCE OF BRINDISI

CONSPICUOUS among the warriors and statesmen of the sixteenth century stands the humble friar Laurence. From his first entrance into the Capuchin Order, his great and varied gifts were recognized by all but himself. Ordained priest, he was sent by Pope Clement VIII, on account of his knowledge of Hebrew, to preach to the Jews in Rome, which he did with considerable success. He was next charged with the difficult task of introducing his order into Austria, where a powerful party, including the emperor himself, withstood him. Laurence not only won over the sovereign, but was sent by him to rally the German princes to the defence of the empire. In the campaign which followed, the complete triumph of the Christian arms over the Turks owed not a little to Laurence's energy and example. But even then he was not allowed to remain undisturbed in his friary : he was employed by the pope on important embassies to various European courts. Amidst the din and strife of politics his prayer was unbroken and his union with God close, while the honours thrust upon him only made him more humble. A true son of St Francis, he possessed nothing but the crucifix which lay on his breast when he died on a mission to Portugal in 1619.

Disregard for Human Respect

In court or camp St Laurence was always a simple Capuchin; his habit and his crucifix were the secret of his success. Let our faith also be proved in word and work, and the world, which we fear, will be under our feet.

“He who lives only by faith, by faith overcomes the world.”—St Bernard.

The imperial leaders when marching against the Turks insisted on Friar Laurence accompanying them, for they believed that his presence would ensure victory: and so it was. For when they saw that the Turks outnumbered them, they turned to retreat; but Laurence persuaded them to risk battle. Riding through the ranks, he bade all invoke the holy name of Jesus, and fear nothing. Then, with no arms save the crucifix in his hand, he himself led the charge. The Turkish ranks melted away, and on all hands praise for the victory went to St Laurence. But he trusted in the Lord's might, not in the arms of mortal men.

“For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.”
—Rom. i, 16.

24 BD IPPOLITO GALANTINI

IPPOLITO was born in Florence in 1565. As a boy he attracted other children to him, and he was allowed to help the clergy teach them the words of eternal life. He longed to leave the world and serve God in a religious order, but this was not to be, for his bad health would not allow it. He followed his father's trade of silk-weaving, and had to work all day to the end of his life. Ippolito was a much persecuted man : he was placed at the head of seven confraternities, and driven from each by the ingratitude or malice of its members. Good and learned men were set against him, and publicly denounced his work. After this preparation his life's work began—the foundation of the Congregation of Christian Doctrine, for the instruction of the young. He laid down rules for his children much like those which St Philip Neri was framing for his brothers of the Oratory in Rome. The congregation changed the face of Florence; and Ippolito was sent for by many towns to establish his institute in their midst, though he himself was without temporal resources and book-learning. But his persecutions never ceased. An attempt was even made on his life, and he was accused of heresy. But Ippolito overcame it all, and his work was established. He died in 1619, and his feast is kept in Florence and elsewhere on March 20.

Teaching the Ignorant

Bd Ippolito was a working man, poor, sickly and uneducated. Yet he prepared the young for life and the sick for death, and was called by Pope Leo XII the "Apostle of Florence." God has given us more of this world's goods; what are we doing for the instruction of those souls for whom He died?

“Let us try to teach our children virtue and fear of God, and let all other things take second place.”—St John Chrysostom.

Ippolito laboured to remove that ignorance which is the cause of sin, and he never lost an opportunity of enlightening anybody. An innkeeper at Siena with whom he was staying was leading a profligate life. Ippolito pointed out to him the hideousness of his vice and, notwithstanding the man's violent abuse, ended by bringing him to a better frame of mind. Some youths whom he reproved in the streets for foul language fell upon him with their sticks and left him half dead, but he was happy to suffer for God's name; he was known to spend sixteen consecutive hours in instructing an ignorant or obstinate sinner.

“They that instruct many to justice shall shine as stars for all eternity.”—Daniel xii, 3.

25

ST JAMES THE ELDER

ST JAMES was the son of Zebedee, a fisherman on the Lake of Galilee, and it was from his father's ship, while mending his nets, that he and his younger brother John were called to be fishers of men. Among the Twelve, three were chosen as the special companions of our Lord, and of these James was one. He, with Peter and John, was admitted to the house of Jairus when the dead girl was raised to life. They alone were taken up to the high mountain apart, and saw the face of Jesus shining as the sun and His garments white as snow; and these three alone witnessed the fearful agony in Gethsemane, when His face was bowed to the earth and His garments were wet as with blood. What was it that won James a place among the favoured three? Faith, burning, impetuous and outspoken : but a faith which needed purifying before the "Son of Thunder" could proclaim the gospel of peace. It was James who demanded fire from heaven to consume the inhospitable Samaritans, and who sought the place of honour by Christ in His kingdom. Yet our Lord, in rebuking him, prophesied his faithfulness to death. "My chalice," He said, "indeed you shall drink; but to sit on my right hand is not mine, but my Father's, to give." Both the one and the other were his. First among the Apostles he drank the cup of martyrdom, and first again entered into the Kingdom.

The Cross the Way to Glory

We must all desire a place in the kingdom of our Father; but can we drink the chalice which He holds out to each? "We can," we must say with St James—"but only in the strength of Him who has drunk it first for us."

"There is no health of soul nor hope of eternal life but in the Cross. Take up your cross, then, and follow Jesus, and you shall go into everlasting life."—Imitation of Christ.

An early account says that when St James was brought before King Herod Agrippa, his fearless confession of Jesus crucified so moved the prosecutor that he declared himself a Christian on the spot. Accused and accuser were led off together to execution, and on the road the latter begged pardon of James. The Apostle hesitated for a moment whether publicly to accept as a brother one still unbaptized. God quickly recalled to him that martyrdom supplies for every sacrament; and he turned and kissed him, with the words, "Peace be with you." The Bible simply says that Agrippa "killed James, the brother of John, with the sword" (Acts xii, 2).

"The chalice which my father hath given me, shall I not drink it?"—John xviii, 11.

26

ST ANNE

ST ANNE was the wife of St Joachim, and was chosen by God to be the mother of Mary, His own mother on earth. They were both of the royal house of David, and their lives were wholly occupied in worship and good works; but, according to a very old tradition, they were childless, and this was held as a bitter misfortune among the Jews. For long years Anne implored the divine mercy to take away her reproach; and when she was an aged woman Mary was born, the fruit rather of grace than of nature, and the child more of God than of man. With the birth of Mary, Anne began a new life : she watched her every movement with reverent tenderness, and felt herself hourly sanctified by the presence of her child. But she had promised her daughter to God, to God Mary had consecrated herself, and to Him Anne gave her back. She ever waited on God's will, and began again to watch and pray, till God called her to unending rest with the Father and the Bridegroom of Mary in the home of Mary's Child. In the story of the birth of Samuel, whose mother also was called Anne (1 Kings i), may be seen a foreshadowing of this later and greater birth.

Response to Divine Calls

St Anne is glorious among the saints not only as the mother of Mary, but because she gave Mary to God. Learn from her to reverence a divine vocation as the highest privilege, and to sacrifice every natural tie, however holy, at the call of God.

“Though your father should throw himself across the threshold, step over his body and fly without a tear to the standard of the Cross.”—St Jerome.

Devotion to St Anne was nowhere greater than in medieval England. When St Hugh of Lincoln in his last sickness was crossing from France to England, “he invoked,” says his biographer, “the mother of the great Mother of God, St Anne, and the breeze which had died away suddenly filled the sails. For all who cross the sea look to Mary as the star of the sea to direct their course, and pray to Mary’s mother to obtain a fair wind. To St Anne next after her daughter St Hugh was most devout, and she in turn repaid him by speedy help.” So does she still assist those who ask her to follow the calls of God.

“Blessed is the womb that bore thee, and the paps that gave thee suck. But he said, Yea rather, blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it.”—Luke xi, 27-28.

27 ST HYACINTHA MARISCOTTI

HYACINTHA was born of noble parents in 1585, and educated in the Franciscan convent at Viterbo. Though not without piety, she showed herself a vain child, and despised her elder sister, a nun in the community. Her one desire was to marry, and she was stung to the quick when her younger sister was preferred to herself as the bride of a marquis. In obedience to her parents and without any true vocation, but fearing lest refusal should be attributed to jealousy of her sister's marriage, Hyacintha now took the veil. Her first act in the third order of penance was to arrange for separate apartments, which she furnished luxuriously; and here she lived for ten years, careless alike of scandal, of her superior's reproaches and of her sisters' tears. At length one day, not feeling well, she sent for a confessor. The sight of her furniture and comforts kindled the good man's wrath, and he refused to absolve her, saying that "Hell, not Heaven, was for her." The words struck home, but it still took a serious illness to complete her conversion. Then she publicly begged pardon of the community on her knees, and rose up a new creature. After twenty years of heroic penance, Hyacintha died in poverty, mortification and obedience, the model of a perfect nun. This was on 30 January 1640, the day on which her feast is kept.

New Beginnings

St Hyacintha teaches us that the only way to repair any fault, great or small, is humbly to renew our purpose, and begin again.

"Forget all that is past, and imagine each day that you do but begin."—St Augustine.

Hyacintha began her new life by handing over all her property to the abbess, keeping only a crucifix. The worn-out tunic of a dead lay-sister replaced her delicately-woven habit, and the hours which had been wasted in gossip were now spent in seclusion and work.

The presents which still came to her she dedicated to the sanctuary or to the poor; and the people who had encouraged her selfish luxury, reproached her care for the house of God as extravagant. Yet now virtue went forth from her cell. She reformed herself first, then the community, and lastly the city of Viterbo. Careless livers and profligate sinners alike sought her advice, and learned from her the secret of how, after years of evil habits, to begin anew.

“Now have I begun; this is the change of the right hand of the most High.”—Ps. lxxvi, 11.

28

ST SWITHIN

SWITHIN was born about the year 800 and was educated at the Old Monastery at Winchester. He devoted himself to God so manfully and humbly that he became a pattern of virtue. King Egbert made him his chaplain, and entrusted to him the education of his son Ethelwulf, the father of Alfred the Great. When Ethelwulf became king, St Swithin was made bishop of Winchester and adviser to the king in all religious concerns. We may trace his influence in Ethelwulf's pilgrimage to Rome, his alms to the pope, and the charitable provisions of his will. As bishop Swithin was noted for a manly firmness and vigilance, and for humility and mortification. His sympathy with the poor was expressed in profuse almsgiving. He died in 862, and was by his own order buried at the door of the church, that all who entered might tread upon his grave. One hundred years afterwards his relics were taken up and enshrined inside the cathedral; a hand, the instrument of so great charity, was found incorrupt, and miracles of healing were wrought at his shrine. St Swithin's feast-day is July 15.

Concern for the Poor

The smart of poverty is soothed even more by a word of true sympathy than by the alms we give. Alms coldly and casually given irritate rather than soothe. Even when we cannot give, words of kindness do their healing work; and when we can give, they are the salt and seasoning of our alms.

"Christ's poor are a fruitful soil whose harvest is speedy and abundant."—St Augustine.

As an instance of the saint's care for the poor in the smallest things, it is related that, when he was building a bridge at Winchester, some of the workmen insulted a poor woman who passed by, and in mischief broke the eggs she was carrying for sale. She complained to St Swithin, and he, touched with compassion, took the basket in which the broken eggs were, made the sign of the cross over it, and gave it back to her with the eggs whole.

"Poor man nor helpless orphan cried to me in vain; how they blessed me, souls reprieved from instant peril; with what comfort the widow's heart rejoiced!"—Job xxix, 12-13.

29

ST MARTHA

ST JOHN tells us that "Jesus loved Martha and her sister Mary and Lazarus," and yet but few glimpses are given us of them. First, the sisters are set before us with a word. Martha received Jesus into her house and was busy in lovingly looking after Him, while Mary sat in silence at the feet of the Master. Then their brother is ill, and they send to Jesus : "Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick." And in His own time the Lord comes, and they go out to meet Him. Then follows that scene of unutterable tenderness : the silent waiting of Mary; Martha, strong in faith, but realizing so vividly, with her practical turn of mind, the fact of death, and hesitating : "Canst thou show thy wonders in the grave?" And then once again, on the eve of His passion, we see Jesus at Bethany. Martha, true to her character, is serving; Mary, as at first, pours precious ointment on His head in adoration and love. Those glimpses are as eloquent as they are few. They tell us what sort of person Martha was, energetic, busy, full of good sense; and they tell as that Jesus loved her.

Active Service

"If you seek Jesus truly in all things," says the Imitation of Christ, "you will find Jesus. And if you seek yourself you will find yourself — but to your own undoing."

"Those who are at sea are still, though the ship be in perpetual movement, and the needle keeps true to the pole. Let us regard God alone in all our actions; so shall we find inward rest in the most disturbed life."
—St Francis de Sales.

When Martha received Jesus into her house, she was naturally busy in preparations for such a guest. Mary sat at His feet, intent alone on listening to His words. Her sister thought that the time required other service than this, and asked our Lord to bid Mary help in serving. Once again Jesus spoke in defence of Mary. "Martha, Martha," He said, "you are lovingly anxious about many things; do not be over-eager; do your work without being troubled, and do not judge Mary. Hers is the good part, the one only thing really necessary. Yours will be taken away, so that something better may be given you." The life of action ceases when the body is laid down; but the life of contemplation endures and is perfected in Heaven.

"He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for without me you can do nothing."
—John xv, 5.

30

ST GUTHLAC

OF noble birth, but of a wild and adventurous disposition, Guthlac at the age of fifteen joined an armed band, and became famous throughout the kingdom of Mercia for his daring deeds. One night, after nine years of this life, as he lay awake in the forest, new thoughts, of death, the vanity of earth and the joys of Heaven, stirred his heart; waking his companions, he bade them choose another chief, as he had vowed himself to the service of Christ. He exchanged his arms for the dress of a peasant, and begged admittance to the abbey of Repton. There he did penance for two years; then, following the example of the desert saints, he went into the marshes of Lincolnshire to lead a hermit's life. In this solitude he suffered much from creatures whom he took to be evil spirits, but seem in fact to have been outlaws. But God was with him, he prayed constantly, and when quite worn out drove his assailants off in the name of Jesus. Always persevering in hope, St Guthlac died in 714; and his sister, St Pega, came by boat from a nearby hermitage to bury him. The famous abbey of Croyland rose over his grave. His feast-day is April 11.

Obedience to Grace

Every good thought is the whisper of grace in our hearts. Listen and obey instantly, lest you grieve and extinguish the holy Spirit of God.

“Thy grace, Lord, is absolutely necessary if I am to begin, to continue and to accomplish what is good. Without it I can do nothing; but in thee I can do everything by the strength of thy grace.”—Imitation of Christ.

It was a dreary and fearful waste to which God called Guthlac, but it became a holy and refreshing sanctuary before he died, and the secrets of Heaven were shown to him in prayer. Wild nature obeyed him. Birds and fishes came at his call and ate out of his hand, while swallows would perch on his head and knees, and let him help them build their nests. To a man who expressed surprise he said, “Don’t you know that he who chooses God is chosen by the wild creatures and visited by angels?”

“If you be willing, and will hearken to me, you shall eat the good things of the land.”—Isa. i, 19.

31 ST IGNATIUS OF LOYOLA

ST IGNATIUS was born at Loyola in Spain in the year 1491. He served his king as a soldier till his thirtieth year. Then, being laid low by a wound, he received the call of divine grace to leave the world and follow his Saviour. He gave himself up entirely to the love of Jesus Christ. Whatever he knew to be pleasing to Jesus Christ that he did. He sacrificed everything which could separate him from Jesus Christ. He embraced poverty and humiliation that he might become more like Jesus Christ. He loved Jesus Christ so ardently that he won others to join him in serving Him. Prompted by their love for Jesus, he and his companions made a vow to go to the Holy Land : they wished to live where their divine Master had lived, to labour for souls where He had laboured; they were prepared to die where He had died. But war broke out and no ship was found to carry them. So they turned to the earthly Vicar of Christ, and placed themselves under his obedience. This was the beginning of the Society of Jesus: its motto is Ad maiorem Dei gloriam, "To the greater glory of God." Our Lord promised Ignatius that the precious heritage of His passion should never fail his Society, a heritage of contradictions and persecutions. After St Ignatius had seen that Society spread far and wide, he died in Rome in 1556.

Zeal for God's Glory

Ask St Ignatius to obtain for you the grace really and truly to desire God's greater glory, even though it may cost you much suffering and humiliation.

"When you have gone so far that tribulation becomes sweet and acceptable to you for the love of Christ, then know that it is well with you : for you have found a paradise on earth."—Imitation of Christ.

St Ignatius was put in prison at Salamanca by the Inquisition on a suspicion of heresy. To a friend who expressed sympathy with him he replied, "It is a sign that you have little love of Christ in your heart if you deem it so hard a fate to be in chains for His sake. I assure you that all Salamanca does not contain as many fetters, manacles and chains as I long to wear for love of Jesus."

"I have glorified thee on earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."—John xvii, 4.

1

BD JOHN COLOMBINI

JOHN COLOMBINI was a rich cloth-merchant of Siena, a shrewd, successful, worldly man, absorbed from his boyhood in commercial affairs. One day he took up a book which he had just thrown aside in anger, and read in it the life of St Mary of Egypt. The story of her conversion pierced his soul, and he gradually undertook a complete change of life, eventually disposing of all his wealth in charity and looking after the sufferers in hospitals. Touched by so remarkable an example, many sinners were converted, and some men left the world and joined him. It was a time of strife, pillage and bloodshed; but John and his little band of followers went about the towns and villages of Tuscany preaching Christ crucified, reconciling enemies, winning hearts to God and kindling in them the flame of divine love. Pope Urban V on his return from Avignon constituted these poor little ones of Jesus into a religious order, called the Gesuati, "Jesuats"; this order came to an end after 300 years, during which it had done much good. Bd John died in 1367, and his feast-day is July 31.

Love of God

When St Philip Neri began the conversion of the heretic Paleologus, he simply gave him the life of Bd John Colombini to read; and the apparently obdurate sinner was melted, as the saint had foretold, by this simple tale of divine love.

“Let us, dearly beloved, mourn and weep and strictly mortify ourselves. For we are guilty of ingratitude, of ignoring and almost refusing God, who, whether we will or no, gives Himself to us; we, proud ungrateful wretches that we are, without faith and love, receive this immeasurable gift with irreverence and coldness and without care. For this we ought to seek to die for Him a thousand times if that were possible.”
—Bd John Colombini.

John was by nature a delicate and chilly mortal, and used to live comfortably and dress warmly; but after his conversion he went barefoot and bareheaded, his chest exposed. A friend asked him if he were not cold, whereupon John took his hand and laid it over his own heart. “Do I seem cold?” he asked. “No,” was the reply, “You are so hot that I can scarcely bear my hand there.”

“In this is charity : not as though we had loved God, but because he hath first loved us.”—I John iv, 10.

2 ST ALPHONSUS LIGUORI

ST ALPHONSUS was born near Naples in 1696. His spiritual training was entrusted to the fathers of the Oratory in that city, and from his boyhood Alphonsus was a most devout brother of the Little Oratory. After getting his doctorate in law at an abnormally early age he became a barrister of distinction; but a mistake by which he lost an important case made him throw up his career, and determined him to live only for the glory of God. He entered the priesthood, devoting himself to the most neglected, and to carry on this work he later founded the missionary Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer. At the age of sixty-six he became bishop of Sant' Agata, and undertook the reform of his diocese with the zeal that its shocking state called for. St Alphonsus vowed never to waste time, and in a very busy life he was able to write many books, of such learning and wisdom that he has been declared one of the doctors of the Church. Yet he said of his own preaching that he had "never preached a sermon which the simplest old woman in the congregation could not understand." But he lived in evil times, and met with many persecutions and disappointments, especially in connection with the development of his congregation. In his later years (he lived to be ninety-one) he suffered much in body, and experienced a very bitter spiritual trial for over a year. This was followed by corresponding spiritual light, and he died peacefully in 1787.

Good Use of Time

Let us do each day's duty with all our heart, leaving the result to God and care of the future to God.

"Look on every occasion of self-denial as a gift which God bestows on you so that you may be able to receive greater glory in another life; and remember that what can be done to-day cannot be done to-morrow, for time past never returns."—St Alphonsus.

St Alphonsus wrote his first book at the age of forty-nine, and by his eighty-third year had published about sixty volumes. Very many of these books were written in the brief hours snatched from his labours as missionary, religious superior and bishop, or in the midst of bodily and mental suffering : with his left hand he would hold a piece of cold marble against his aching head while his right hand wrote. He counted no time lost which was spent in charity; he did not refuse to hold a long correspondence with a simple soldier who asked his advice, or to play the harpsichord while he taught his novices to sing. The best known generally of his writings is The Glories of Mary.

“Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.”
—Eph. v, 16.

3 ST GERMANUS OF AUXERRE

IN his youth Germanus gave little sign of the future that was to be his. He was born at Auxerre in Gaul, practised law in Rome, married, and was an efficient governor in Gaul. But his passion was the chase : he was so carried away as to retain in his sport the superstitions of the pagan huntsmen. Yet in the year 418 the civil governor was chosen, much against his will, to be bishop of Auxerre. Forthwith Germanus became another man, and making over his lands to the Church, adopted a life of humble penance. At that time the Pelagian heresy was having some success in the island of Britain, and Germanus was chosen to rescue the Britons from the danger. With St Lupus of Troyes he preached in the fields and highways. At length he met the heretical leaders face to face and reduced them to silence. He ascribed this triumph to the intercession of St Alban, and offered public thanks at his shrine. Towards the end of his stay, his old skill in arms enabled him to lead the Britons in driving out a raiding force of Saxons and Picts : the bloodless "Alleluia" victory, so called because the Britons routed the enemy with the paschal cry. Germanus visited Britain a second time, to complete the work he had begun on the previous occasion. He died at Ravenna in 445, while interceding with the emperor Valentinian III, for the people of Brittany who had risen in revolt.

Study of our Faith

If we would keep our faith pure we must study it. We cannot detect falsehood till we know and love the truth; and for us the truth is not an abstraction, but a person, Jesus Christ, God and man.

"Piety is of little use when not directed by intelligence."—St Gregory the Great.

St Germanus knew well that the best means to protect the Britons against heretical teachers would be sound and careful religious instruction, and it is said that he set up schools for the clergy to that end. His two missions are one of the few lights that history sheds on the Church in England before the coming of St Augustine; because of them, wrote Bede, "the faith remained uncorrupted in Britain for a long time." The feast of St Germanus is kept on August 3 in Wales, and on near-by dates in some English dioceses.

"Hold the form of sound words which thou hast heard of me in faith, and in the love which is in Christ Jesus."—2 Tim. i, 13.

4

ST DOMINIC

ST DOMINIC was born in Spain in 1170. Sympathy for the suffering and a spirit of self-sacrifice marked his youth and his whole life. At the age of twenty-five he became superior of the cathedral chapter of canons regular at Osma, and later accompanied his bishop to France. There his heart was well-nigh broken by the ravages of the Albigensian heresy, and his life was henceforth devoted to the reconciling of those who had been led astray and to defence of the faith. For this end he established his threefold religious order. A convent for nuns was founded first, at Prouille, whose original members were converts from Albigensianism. Then a company of apostolic men gathered around him, and became the Order of Preachers. Lastly came the tertiaries, persons of both sexes living in the world. God blessed the new order, and France, Italy, Spain and England welcomed the Preaching Friars; his first followers Dominic had dispersed to various places, for "We must sow the seed," he said, "not hoard it". It was said of this saint in his lifetime that "Nothing disturbed his quietness of soul except his quick sympathy for every sort of suffering. His radiant nature attracted all who met him." He died at Bologna in 1221, leaving three bequests to his brethren: "hold to humility; keep willing poverty; have charity among you." Throughout life his words had brought comfort and healing to countless souls.

Our Lady's Rosary

St Dominic "passed from reading to prayer, from the prayer of speech to the prayer of silence." No one is too unlettered or too "advanced" to pray with the aid of the rosary, with its repetitions of the Lord's Prayer, greatest of all, its frequent salutations and invocations of our Lady, its meditations.

“Let us then give honour to the holy Mother of God by means of this devotion, which is so acceptable to her : so that she, who has so often been moved by the rosary prayers of Christ’s faithful to bring their earthly adversaries to naught, may likewise enable them to overcome the powers of Hell.”—Roman Breviary.

The rosary is distinguished from other forms of prayer that involve the use of beads by the name “Dominican rosary”; and very properly, for the friars of St Dominic’s order did more than anyone else to spread its use throughout the world; it even came to be believed that the use of the rosary had been revealed to their founder in person. From the beginning he encouraged his sons to be specially devoted to the Mother of God, so that, as a medieval writer said, “studying and praying and sleeping they had her before their eyes, and she turned her eyes of mercy ever towards them.”

“Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee : blessed art thou among women.”—Luke i, 28.

5

ST AFRA

ST AFRA is an example of that enduring repentance and confidence in God’s mercy which are the marks of true conversion. She was arrested, in the year 304, at Augsburg, where her life had given public scandal, and was ordered to offer sacrifice to the gods of Rome. She answered humbly that her past sins had been sin enough; and added that, though unworthy to die for Christ, she desired to do so, and to wash her stains away in blood. In vain the judge taunted her with pretending to be a Christian. She told him that Christ came to save sinners, and that she consoled herself with the thought of St Mary Magdalen, the penitent thief, and the other examples of Christ's mercy. Afra was sentenced to death, taken to an island in the river Lech, and burnt alive. To the last she persevered in prayer, and as the flames rose around her the Christians heard her praying aloud. "Lord Jesus Christ," she said, "You came to call sinners to repentance : receive the penance of my sufferings, and save me by this fire from eternal fire. You gave yourself in sacrifice on the cross for the sins of the whole world : I offer myself as a burnt-offering for your name's sake. Amen." After Afra's martyrdom, three of her servants, penitents like herself, and her mother were burnt alive for carrying away Afra's body and burying it.

Penitence

Repent in your heart, and welcome your daily crosses as a penance due for your sins. You will bear them well if you bear them thus, and turn them into a mark of final perseverance.

"Burn and cut and do not spare me here in this world, if only you spare me for eternity."—St Augustine.

St Afra had given away her ill-gotten wealth in alms, and with such humbleness that she scarcely dared to offer help to poor Christians. "I begged and entreated them," she said, "to accept an alms from me and to pray God for my sins." Nor did she ever cease to bewail those sins; yet she could not bring herself to think that she had satisfied God's justice till He permitted her in His mercy to die for Him. "How do you know," the judge asked, "that Christ has received you into His society?" "In this," she answered, "because He allows me publicly to bear witness to His holy name, and so to obtain, as I believe, forgiveness of my sins."

"Now I am glad : not because you were made sorrowful, but because you were made sorrowful unto penance."—2 Cor. vii, 9.

6 ST DOROTHEUS OF GAZA

WHEN he was a boy this Dorotheus, who lived during the sixth century, disliked lessons so much that he said he would "rather touch a snake than a book"; but he persevered, and came in time to love learning; he liked to read at his meals. When he entered a monastery in Palestine he said, "If application to study teaches us the habit of it, surely application to virtue will make us saints". He told all his thoughts to his superiors, and let himself be guided by them in everything. When tempted to think he knew what they would tell him, he would say to himself, "Your opinions are not worth anything : you get them from the Devil", and then would go off and consult his abbot. By this means he lived in perfect peace. He founded a monastery at Gaza, and among his monks was St Dositheus, whose memory Dorotheus defended against the criticism of his fellows : "No, he did not fast much, or do miracles : but he was never a bit self-willed." Dorotheus tried always to put self last and never to utter one word that might wound another. He suffered many trials, sicknesses and temptations, but accepted all with equanimity; "I could easily find explanations for these evils", he used to say, "but it is better to believe they are sent from God, who knows how good it is for me to suffer." The ascetical writings of Dorotheus so appealed to Abbot de Rancé that he translated them into French for his monks at La Trappe, and some short extracts from them appeared in English in 1954.

Curbing of Self-will

When a traveller finds a short road to his journey's end, he takes it. He who renounces his own will has found a short way of triumphing over wicked inclinations, and ought to use it.

"He who tries hard to renounce his own will, will arrive at the blessed state of peace of heart."—St Dorotheus.

St Dorotheus thus describes his struggle with interruptions to rest : "Guests came late, and I had to stay with them; their camel-drivers arrived afterwards, and had to be attended to. I had hardly taken a few moments' sleep when I was called to church : I was tired out and felt feverish; but I answered, 'Thank you, brother; God reward your kindness.' He was hardly gone before I fell asleep again. Distressed that my laziness caused me to miss Office, I begged one brother to undertake to rouse me, and another to keep me awake in church; and I assure you I was almost as grateful to them as if they had saved my soul."

"Pamper those passions of thine, and joy it will bring—but to thy enemies."—Ecclus. xviii, 31.

7

ST CAJETAN

CAJETAN (Gaetano) was born at Vicenza in Italy in 1480. He was carefully brought up by his widowed mother, and he was known from childhood for his unusual goodness. After taking a double degree in law at the University of Padua he was made a senator of his native town, but went to Rome to study for the priesthood. There Pope Julius II gave him an office and benefice; but after being ordained Cajetan returned to Vicenza, where he upset his relatives by joining and directing an oratory, or confraternity, whose members were drawn from the humblest classes. He spent his money building hospitals, and spent himself in nursing the sick and founding similar associations in other places. Faced by a slack and ignorant clergy, and by the advance of Lutheranism, St Cajetan founded the first community of clerks regular (known as Theatines, from the see, Theate, of the co-founder, Bishop Caraffa, later Pope Paul IV). They devoted themselves to study, preaching and pastoral work in general, and were a great power for good in the troubled times of the Protestant Reformation. When in 1527 the troops of the emperor Charles V sacked Rome, Cajetan was brutally beaten, to extort from him riches which he had long before securely stored in Heaven. Worn out with trying to stop civil strife in Naples, St Cajetan died there in 1547, undergoing a sort of mystical crucifixion on his deathbed.

The Holy Eucharist

The Holy Eucharist, the sacrifice and sacrament of thanksgiving and peace, was the centre of St Cajetan's life, as it is of the life of all serious Christians. We should never forget the aspect of thanksgiving which gives it its name, thanksgiving in the first place for Christ's redeeming of mankind and for the inward peace and unity it brings to all who accept it wholeheartedly.

"We are joined to one another and to Christ like flour in a loaf : though they cannot be seen, the grains are there, so closely joined together that their individual character does not show. One of us is not fed with one body and another with another, but all with one and the same Body."—St John Chrysostom.

Among the objects of the Theatines was to ensure fitting celebration of Christian worship, in the first place, of course, the Mass. St Cajetan introduced exposition of the Blessed Sacrament in Venice; and in an era when lay people went to communion but rarely, he consistently encouraged them to go often : "I shall never be satisfied," he wrote, "till I see Christians flocking with childlike trust to feed on the Bread of life, and with eagerness and delight, not with fear and false shame." We are blessed that in these days such fear and false shame are rare; but we have to beware of other things, such as self-complacency and taking the Blessed Sacrament for granted.

"Do this for a commemoration of me."—I Cor. xi, 24.

8

ST LUTGARDIS

THERE was little in Lutgardis' early life to make her a saint. Her parents first betrothed her to a merchant; and when, through the loss of her dowry, the marriage became impossible, they urged her to take the veil.

After some resistance she entered, as a boarder, the Benedictine convent near Saint-Trond in Brabant, but lived in a discontented state, pining for the interests of life in the world. One day when she had gone to gossip in the parlour, our Lord Himself seemed to stand before her. Pointing to the wounds of His passion, He bade her seek in Him the joys of divine love. From that hour Lutgardis renounced the world, and began a new way of prayer and penance. About the year 1206, in order to have a more severe rule and to conceal the miraculous gifts with which she was favoured, she exchanged to the Cistercian Order, and prayed earnestly that she might remain there unknown. And so it was. She lived for forty years in this community of French-speaking nuns, from whom, by her ignorance of the language, she was very isolated. Towards the end of her life, her solitude was further increased by the total loss of sight. At length in 1246 her eyes, which had been closed for eleven years, opened to behold her Lord in Heaven. The feast-day of St Lutgardis is on June 16.

The Heart of Jesus

A great servant of God used to tell people to look at their own hearts, and to contrast them with the pierced and loving heart of Jesus. It was thus that St Lutgardis changed her life; thus, too, we may change ours.

“Let us make three tabernacles : one in Christ’s feet, one in His hands, and one in His side; and in this last may I watch and rest, eat, drink and read, and do my whole work in life.”—St Bonaventure.

The gift of healing which St Lutgardis possessed brought numerous visitors to the convent, who interrupted the regularity of her life. She therefore prayed for some other, less dangerous, grace, and received the power of understanding the sacred Scriptures. Still she was dissatisfied, saying that such high mysteries were not for one so simple as herself. "What would you have then?" asked Christ of her. "Not your words, but your heart, Lord," she replied. In that moment and from that time the heart of Jesus was present in hers, purifying her and encouraging her to suffer; thenceforth she never knew another wayward desire or careless thought, but lived in and for her Lord.

"And if Christ be in you, the body indeed is dead because of sin; but the spirit liveth because of justification."—Rom. viii, 10.

9

ST JOHN VIANNEY

JOHN MARY VIANNEY was the son of a poor farmer and he did not go to school till he was twenty. As a result, he was "the most unlearned seminarist in Lyons"; but he was also the most devout, and in 1815 he was ordained priest. He was then thirty-one. Two years later he was given charge of the remote country village of Ars. There the Abbé Vianney spent the rest of his long life, and became known even beyond the borders of France as "the holy curé of Ars." He found his flock in a sad state of neglect and indifference; he proceeded to sacrifice himself for them, praying and fasting in the place of those who did neither, visiting tirelessly, waging war on everything that he deemed ungodly (some of his views were very strict, even narrow). Supernatural aid of an extraordinary kind was not wanting to M. Vianney, but there were also many strange hostile manifestations that he attributed to the Devil in person. Such was the curé's reputation that hundreds of thousands of people, from archbishops to artisans, flocked to Ars, and waited even for days to confess to him, and to listen to his simple public instructions. He often had to spend sixteen hours a day in the confessional. M. Vianney became worn out, and several times he sought to retire; but his people held him back and he died at Ars, in 1859.

The Miracle of Grace

Many miracles were reported of St John Vianney; but "the most difficult, extraordinary and astonishing work that he did was his own life". Every Christian has to seek God's aid that he may do a like "miracle".

"Private prayer is like straw scattered about : if you set it on fire it makes a lot of little flames. But if these straws be gathered into a bundle and lit, you get a mighty fire blazing to the sky. Public prayer is like that."—St John Vianney.

St John Vianney was given a civil award of honour, but he refused to be invested with it. "Were I, when I die, to appear before God with such gewgaws", he protested, "He might say to me, 'Begone! You have had your reward'". Such sensitiveness was a puzzle to some of his fellow clergy, among whom were those who criticized him very unkindly. To a priest who called M. Vianney "mad", the Bishop of Belley retorted, "I wish that all my clergy had a grain of the same madness." And that was the judgement of the Church : after he had canonized the Curé of Ars in 1925, Pope Pius XI made him principal patron-saint of the parochial clergy throughout the world.

“God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world.”—Gal. vi, 14.

10

ST LAURENCE

LAURENCE was one of the seven deacons of the Roman church. In the exercise of his office he ministered to the poor, and his charity to them proved the occasion of his martyrdom. In the year 258 Pope St Sixtus II was led out to die, and Laurence stood by, weeping : “Father, where are you going without your deacon?” he asked. And Sixtus comforted him with the words, “Do not weep, my son; in three days you will follow me.” This prophecy came true. The prefect of the city heard that Laurence was in charge of the charitable and other funds of the church in Rome, and he had an exaggerated idea of the amount of this wealth. He therefore tried to cajole Laurence into giving it up (quoting, we are told, “Render unto Cæsar...”). Laurence promised that in three days’ time he would show him riches exceeding all the wealth of the empire, and set about collecting the poor, the infirm and all those who lived by the alms of the faithful. He then showed them to the prefect : “Behold the Church’s treasure!” The prefect was beside himself with anger, and condemned the deacon to an agonizing death. Christ, whom Laurence had served in His poor, gave him strength in the conflict which ensued. Roasted over a slow fire, it is said that he joked with his tormentors, asking to be turned over as one side was done; and saying before he died, “It is cooked enough; eat, and see whether it be better raw or roasted.”

Love of the Poor

Our Lord comes to us in the persons of the poor, and charity to them is a great sign that we belong to Him. It is almost impossible, the Fathers assure us, for any one who is good to the poor for Christ's sake to perish.

“‘But where, you ask, can I find Christ on earth? Where can I find Him, that I may give to Him?’ Give alms on earth, and you have fed Christ in Heaven.”
—St Augustine.

God showed by the glory which was St Laurence's the value He set upon his love for the poor. St Leo says that Rome was not less honoured by the death of Laurence than Jerusalem by that of Stephen; and we know from St Augustine how many miracles were reported at his tomb. A brother of St Ambrose was saved from shipwreck after making a vow to St Laurence. Prayers innumerable were answered at his tomb; and from his place in Heaven his charity to those in need was continued, for at his intercession, as Augustine says, “the smaller graces which they sought were granted, and they were led to the desire of better gifts.”

“For I was hungry, and you gave me to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me to drink; I was a stranger, and you took me in.”—Matt. xxv, 35.

11

BD PETER FAVRE

BORN in 1506 of Savoyard parentage, Peter at his earnest request was sent to school, and in after years to the University of Paris. His college friends were

St Ignatius of Loyola and St Francis Xavier. Ignatius found the young man uncertain what to do in life, and opened his own mind to him : Peter became his first companion, and in the year 1534 was ordained the first priest of the new Society of Jesus. From that day to the close of his life he was ever in the van of the Church's struggle with falsehood and sin. Boldly facing heresy in Germany, he laboured not less diligently to rouse the dormant faith and charity of Catholic courts and lands. By Peter's virtues drew after him into religion the duke of Gandia, Francis Borgia, and a young student of Nijmegen, Peter Canisius, both to become saints like their master. Pope Paul III had chosen Father Favre to be his theologian at the Council of Trent. Ill and worn out with work, but obedient unto death, he hastened to Rome, where his last illness came upon him. He turned his thoughts at once from all other cares to get his soul ready for departure. He died, though hardly forty, as one would wish to die, in the arms of his best friend and spiritual father, St Ignatius. Peter Favre was a great missionary: "Whoever wants to help misbelievers," he used to say, "must really love them and make friends with them; agreements, not disagreements, should be our starting-point."

Prayer and Work

As the body sinks under fatigue unless nourished by food, so external works, however holy, wear out the soul which is not regularly nourished by prayer. In the most crowded day we can make time briefly to lift our mind and heart to God and draw new strength from Him.

"Your first duty is to your soul, and then other things may come; always remembering that the good of the soul is to be the final object of everything.”—Bd Peter Favre.

One day when Father Favre was going to hear the Lenten sermon in the court chapel at Valladolid, “the doorman, not knowing me,” he tells us, “did not admit me; and so, remaining outside, I called to mind how often I had given free entrance into my soul to vain thoughts and bad influences, and had refused it to Jesus, who was knocking at the door, and how badly He was received everywhere by the world. I prayed for myself, and for the doorman, that the Lord might not make us wait very long in Purgatory before entering Heaven. Many other good thoughts came into my mind; and so I felt very grateful to the man who had occasioned me so much devotion.”

“Thy power, O Lord, is not in a multitude..., but the prayer of the humble and the meek hath always pleased thee.”—Judith ix, 16.

12

ST CLARE

ON Palm Sunday in 1212, the Bishop of Assisi left the altar to give a palm to a young woman of eighteen, whom a sudden shyness had prevented from coming up with the rest. This was St Clare, who had learnt from St Francis to wish to live for God alone. The same night she slipped away from home to the chapel of our Lady of the Angels, where she was met by Francis and his brethren. At the altar Francis cut off her hair, clothed her in his penitential habit of sackcloth with a cord as girdle. Thus was she betrothed to Christ. For a long time her relatives tried to make her return home, but she resolutely refused. At first St Francis put her with Benedictine nuns, where she was joined by her sister, St Agnes; then, in a shabby house near St Damian's church, they founded the first convent of Poor Clares. They went barefoot, observed perpetual abstinence, silence and poverty. St Clare absolutely refused all regular income, a restriction that was strongly opposed by some superiors. She governed her convent for forty years, for the last twenty-seven of which her health was very bad; but even when kept to bed she insisted on working, making altar linens and the like. St Clare died in 1253, being visited at the end by Pope Innocent IV, who gave her absolution, saying "I wish I had as little need of it".

Holy Poverty

In a self-seeking age the daughters of St Clare still bear the noble title of poor, "Poor Clares", and by their daily lives preach the poverty of Jesus Christ.

"They say that we are too poor : can a heart which possesses God be truly called poor?"—St Clare.

While the Saracen army of Frederick II was ravaging the valley of Spoleto, a body of soldiers attempted to raid St Clare's convent, which stood outside Assisi. The nuns had no servants to defend them, and no money wherewith to buy off the foe. Though very sick, Clare had herself taken to the wall, on which the Blessed Sacrament was placed in its pyx, facing the raiders. Then she prayed God to look after the sisters whom she had nourished on His love, and whom she could not herself protect now. She heard a voice, "like a child's", which said, "My protection will never fail you." A sudden panic seized the enemy, they took to flight, and the convent was spared.

“Behold, I have refined thee, but not as silver : I have chosen thee in the furnace of poverty.”—Isa. xlviii, 10.

13 ST SISINNIUS AND HIS COMPANIONS

TOWARDS the end of the fourth century the people round Trent in northern Italy were still pagans, and St Vigilus, bishop of that city, found three Cappadocian strangers—Sisinnius, Martyrius and Alexander—ready for the work of evangelization he had at heart. He ordained Sisinnius deacon, gave minor orders to the others, and then sent them to preach the gospel of peace. Converts were made, and the first church arose; but God willed that its walls should be cemented with the blood of the missionaries. The heathen tried to make the Christians join them in an idolatrous procession, and when the missionaries forbade this they were set upon in their church; it was evening, and prayers were being said. All three were beaten with cudgels, and Sisinnius died that night. But next morning his companions were again in church, singing as if nothing had happened. They hid as the mob approached. Martyrius was discovered in a garden near by, and dragged over sharp stones till he was dead. Alexander saw the bodies of his companions burnt, and when he refused to deny Christ was himself thrown into the flames. Their feast-day is May 29.

Concern for Foreign Missions

In every age the Catholic Church is a missionary church. She has received the world for her inheritance, and in our own days missionaries have watered with their blood the lands in which they laboured. Help to spread Christ's faith, by alms and above all by prayers. You will quicken your own faith, and really share in the Church's apostleship.

"If to save a man from a death, which he must some day die, deserves ample reward, what must be due to him who saves a human soul destined to life eternal?"—St Gregory the Great.

The apostles of the faith triumph by defeat. The ashes of St Sisinnius, St Martyrius and St Alexander were gathered up and enshrined, and miracles were said to take place at their tomb. St Vigilus at Trent wrote to St John Chrysostom and to St Simplician of Milan, telling them about the martyrdom, and the text of his letters has come down to us.

"Their sound hath gone forth into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world."—Ps. xviii, 5.

14

ST ALIPIUS

ALIPIUS was a fellow-townsmen of St Augustine, and for some years his pupil. Whilst a young man he was carried away, like his master, by the delusions of the Manichees; yet he retained a remarkable innocence of heart which rendered vice repugnant to him : this was felt as a keen reproach by Augustine, and it helped to feed the fire of repentance in which he was finally purified. On the other hand, Augustine's prudent advice stood Alipius in good stead on various occasions. Twice, at Carthage and at Rome, he was in danger of ruin by bad companions; but the two friends were preserved for Heaven and for one another. When the hour of Augustine's conversion came, Alipius was beside him. Together they entered that famous garden, for both the arena in which the battle of their life was fought. Together they were baptized, and together left Italy for their native Africa. They lived together first at Thagaste, afterwards at Hippo, until Alipius was made bishop of the first-named place. As bishop their intercourse was continual; and although Alipius ever loved to hide his own light behind his master's, the keen eyes of men like St Jerome could detect his effective co-operation in St Augustine's greatest achievements. The two friends died about the same year, 430; the feast-day of St Alipius is August 18.

Choice of Companions

A man's worst enemies are those who lead him into sin, his best friends those who keep him from it. Through being faithful to Augustine, Alipius shared the grace of his conversion. This friendship became the more intense as it became the more sanctified; so that, years after his conversion, St Augustine could write to St Jerome, "Anyone who knows us would say that he and I are separate only in body, not in soul."

"When we carelessly make friends with wicked people, we become involved in their sins; and our life is in discord with Him who is perfect righteousness in proportion as it harmonizes with the friendship of the bad."—St Gregory the Great.

Alipius was one day carried off by friends to some barbarous show in the amphitheatre. At first he protested, and shut his eyes; but yielding a little out of curiosity, "he was", as St Augustine says, "not now the man he came in, but one of the crowd with which he had mingled."

"Separate thyself from thine enemies, and take heed of thy friends. A faithful friend is a strong defence, and he that hath found him hath found a treasure."
—Ecclus. vi, 13-14.

15 THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

THE only things known with certainty about the Blessed Virgin Mary's life are those that are told us in God's written word, the Bible, and by the Church's dogmatic teaching, and whatever is unquestionably deducible from those sources. It was her destiny to be the mother of Jesus Christ, and therefore of God. For this she was chosen from eternity and formed to God's purpose from the first moment of her existence; she was kept free from the stain of Adam's sin; she was guiltless of any personal sin throughout her life; and she never failed to co-operate fully and perfectly with God's will. The uniquely important action of her life was when, at the Annunciation, she gave full and free assent to God's message that she should be the virgin mother of the Saviour. At that moment she conceived by the Holy Spirit. From the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem till He left their home at Nazareth to fulfil His public ministry, Mary's daily life was devoted to personal care of Him, of her husband and her household. During that ministry, she sometimes accompanied Him; when He gave His life to redeem the world, she stood at the foot of the cross offering her Son when He offered himself, and offering herself with Him. How long Mary lived after the Resurrection and Ascension is not known; but when her earthly life came to an end, she was "raised body and soul to the glory of Heaven, where as queen she shines gloriously at the right hand of her Son, the deathless King of ages."

Mary our Mother

The Church teaches us to strengthen our own prayers by seeking those of the saints and blessed in Heaven, who can hear and intercede for us. And above them all, she who can speak most powerfully for us is Mary, Mother of God.

"Behold the handmaid of the Lord : be it done unto me according to thy word."—Our Lady.

"When Jesus therefore had seen his mother and the disciple standing whom he loved, he saith to his mother : 'Woman, behold thy son'. After that, he saith to the disciple : 'Behold thy mother' " (John 19 : 26-27). When He spoke those words to Mary and John from the cross, Jesus spoke also to us : He was saying that His mother is the mother of John and of us and of all mankind. A mother is one who protects and provides, and this Mary does through her intercession with her Son in Heaven. There she loves us as a mother; and she looks for our obedience as a mother, obedience to Jesus : "Whatsoever he shall say to you, do ye" (John 2 : 5). It is for us to answer love with love; to obey as she throughout her life obeyed the Most High; and to trust in her as only the most perfect mother can be trusted.

"My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour,... for behold from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed."—Luke i, 46-48.

16

ST BESSARION

BESSARION, an Egyptian, is a well-known saint in the East, where he is called "the Wonderworker" and his feast is still observed. He was a disciple of St Antony and renounced all things to live by faith alone. He would have neither house nor land, nor even a fixed abode. Looking upon himself as a stranger upon earth, he spent his life wandering about the desert, like a bird, patiently bearing scorching heat and extreme cold. Some strange stories are told of him, as that he once stood forty days and nights in a thicket of thorns, praying and fasting as it was Lent. Another time, finding the dead body of a man lying naked, he laid his cloak on him; as he went further on he gave his tunic to a beggar, and so was naked himself till a passer-by took pity on him. His life was faultless, and his unbounded faith enabled him to work many miracles. Thus, for example, when walking by the sea-shore, a disciple said, "Father, I am thirsty." Bessarion prayed, and then said, "Drink from the sea." The man did so, and found it was fresh water. He wished to take some of it with him, but Bessarion forbade him, saying, "God, who is here, is likewise everywhere". Like so many of the desert fathers he lived to a great age, but the year of his death is not known. His feast-day is June 17.

Faith

Our faith teaches us that all we see in this world should be no more to us than a child's toys. Let us not amuse ourselves with passing things, but try to banish the world and its cares from our hearts.

"Our greatest misfortune is the value we set upon visible things, which are the only ones we care about. If we could but taste the treasures of Heaven for one moment, how we should despise those which now dazzle and fascinate us!"—St Nilus.

Bessarion would sometimes leave the wilds and visit the more inhabited parts of the desert. When he approached a monastery he stood outside, looking like a shipwrecked sailor who has lost everything. When offered shelter, he answered, "I can never enter till I have regained what I have lost", meaning his innocence. And he added, "I have fallen into the hands of pirates. I am degraded from my rank. I must suffer all the days of my life. There is nothing left for me but tears."

"Hath not God chosen the poor in this world, rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which God hath promised to them that love him?"—James ii, 5.

17 MARTYRS OF JAPAN

IN 1614 renewed persecution broke out in Japan, and all Christian rites were forbidden under pain of death. A confraternity of martyrs was formed, the object of which was to die for Christ if need be, and even little children were allowed to join it. Their constancy was soon bitterly tested. Christians were branded with the cross, or all but buried alive, while head and arms were slowly sawn off with blunt weapons. The least shudder under their anguish was interpreted as apostasy. On 10 September 1622 there took place at Nagasaki what has come to be known as the Great Martyrdom of Japan : a large number of Japanese and Europeans, clergy and laity, men, women and children, were put to death together in most impressive circumstances, before a huge crowd of onlookers. Most were beheaded, but some were subjected to slow fire, and lingered in agony for hours, or even through the night. Later on a new atrocity was invented. The victims were lowered into a sulphurous geyser, called Hell's Mouth, over which no bird could fly : the torment was sometimes inflicted several times before they were allowed to die. Many Christians broke down and apostatized during this persecution; many more were faithful to the end, and a large number of them have been beatified. They are commemorated on various dates.

Joy in Sacrifice

If mere children face torture and death with joy for Christ, can we begrudge the slight hardships He asks us to bear?

“Happy should I be were I allowed to be among these glorious prisoners of Jesus Christ, whose blessedness it is to die the martyr's death!”—Letter of a Japanese Exile.

One of the child martyrs, Peter, aged six, was awakened early, and told that he was to be beheaded with his father. Quietly he dressed himself in his best clothes, and took the hand of the soldier who was to lead him to death. The headless body of his father first met his view; calmly kneeling down, he prayed beside it and, loosening his collar, presented his neck for the stroke. Moved by this, the executioner threw down his sword and fled. No one except a brutal slave could be found for the murderous task; with unskilled and trembling hand he hacked the child to pieces, who died without uttering a cry.

“But if you partake of the sufferings of Christ, rejoice, that when his glory shall be revealed you may also be glad with exceeding joy.”—1 Peter iv, 13.

18

ST HELEN

HELEN, wife of the Roman emperor Constantius Chlorus, was born in Bithynia in Asia Minor (not, as is so often stated, in Britain). She embraced Christianity late in life; but her faith and piety were greatly influenced by her son Constantine, the first Christian emperor, and served to kindle zeal in the hearts of the Roman people. She delighted to assist at the divine offices with the poor, and by her alms-deeds was a mother to the indigent and distressed. She made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, in thanksgiving for God's mercies to her family and in the hope of finding the cross on which our Redeemer suffered. It was eventually found near Mount Calvary, together with the nails, and the inscription recorded by the evangelists. Thereupon, says St Ambrose, “she worshipped, not the wood, but the King who had hung on the wood”. St Helen encouraged her son to have churches built over our Lord's sepulchre and Calvary, overseeing the work herself, together with the bishop of Jerusalem, St Macarius. Here the holy cross was enshrined, and they sent portions of it to Rome and Constantinople, whence tiny pieces were distributed all over the world. St Helen spent her last years in the East, building many churches and looking after the needy and oppressed: “though empress of the world and mistress of the empire, she looked on herself as the handmaid of Christ's servants.” She died about the year 330 and was buried in Rome.

The Holy Cross

St Helen thought it the glory of her life to find Christ's cross, and to raise a temple in its honour. How many Christians in these days are ashamed to make this life-giving sign in public, and to confess themselves the followers of the Crucified!

"How wonderful is the power of the Cross, how inexpressible the glory of the Passion, in which are the judgement-seat of God, the condemnation of the world, and the virtue of the Crucified!"—St Leo.

In the year 312 St Helen's son, Constantine, found himself attacked by Maxentius with superior forces, and the existence of his empire threatened. In this crisis, he told the historian Eusebius, he prayed long to his father's god. Soon after, he and his soldiers saw the figure of a cross in the sky above the afternoon sun, and beneath it the words In hoc signo vinces, "Conquer through this sign." In consequence of a further vision, Constantine made a standard like the cross he had seen, which was borne at the head of his troops; and under this Christian ensign they marched against the enemy and gained complete victory.

"He humbled himself, becoming obedient unto death, even to the death of the cross."—Phil. ii, 8.

19 BD MARY OF OIGNIES

BD MARY was born at Nivelles in 1175. She married when very young, and her example induced her husband to devote himself to good works, to live in chastity and distribute his riches to the poor, and together they served a hospital for lepers in their own house. Later she was allowed to live apart in a hermitage at Oignies. Mary was frequently rapt in ecstasy, she read the secrets of hearts, and was often the divine instrument for the doing of miracles. Her spirit was so occupied with the presence of God that nothing could distract her; she passed days without speaking, except to say she wished for holy communion, and after communion she relapsed into silence. Her compassion for the sufferings of Jesus was such that she had a remarkable gift of tears, and her devotion to the Blessed Sacrament was noteworthy at the time in which she lived. She never ate until evening, and then only bread; she had an extreme horror of the smallest sin, and, although her life was so innocent, the rigour of her penance was striking. A biography of Mary was written by Cardinal James de Vitry, who knew her personally; some of the experiences and powers related of her would be unbelievable were it not for this contemporary and weighty evidence. Bd Mary died in 1213, and her feast-day is June 23.

Desire of Suffering for Christ

Bd Mary teaches us how sensitive we should be to our Lord's sufferings, and reminds us that suffering gladly for Him is the best proof we can offer of our gratitude for His boundless love.

“Write, loving Saviour, your wounds upon my heart, that I may always read in them there your pains and your love.”—St Augustine.

Mary could not look at a crucifix without weeping and to stop her tears she called to mind God's majesty and glory; but the remembrance of what this God of majesty had suffered for her made them flow faster than before. A priest once begged her to moderate her tears and to pray in silence. Unable to do this, she left the church; but she asked God to show the priest the impossibility of resisting the impulse of the Holy Ghost. The next day at Mass this priest himself was utterly unable to restrain his tears. But Cardinal de Vitry warns his readers that Bd Mary's example is not to be followed in everything.

"Let us, too, go out to him..., bearing the ignominy he bore."—Heb. xiii, 13.

20

ST BERNARD

BERNARD was born in 1090 at the castle of Fontaines in Burgundy. His physical beauty and the vigour of his intellect filled his parents with the highest hopes, and the world lay bright before him, when he renounced it and joined the monks of Cîteaux, taking thirty-one other men with him. Other monasteries were founded, and Bernard was appointed abbot of that of Clairvaux. Unsparing with himself, he at first expected too much of his brethren, who were disheartened at his severity; but soon perceiving his error, he led them forward more gently, and with the happiest results. In spite of his desire to lie hid, the fame of Bernard's holiness and abilities spread far and wide, and many churches asked for him as their bishop. Through the help of the pope, Bd Eugenius III, his former subject, he escaped this dignity, but his retirement was continually invaded : the poor and the weak sought his protection; kings, bishops and popes applied to him for advice; and in France and Germany Eugenius himself charged him to preach a crusade. Bernard's eloquence kindled the enthusiasm of Christendom, and two armies were despatched to the East; their utter defeat was due, said the saint, to their own sins. Bernard died in 1153. His precious sermons and writings earned for him inclusion among the Church's doctors, and he is sometimes referred to as the last of the Fathers. By the time of his death, sixty-eight monasteries had been established from Clairvaux. It has been said of him that he "carried the twelfth century on his shoulders, and he did not carry it without suffering."

The One End of Life

Let us constantly ask ourselves St Bernard's daily question to himself : "Why are you here?"

"If you desire to enter here, leave your earthly self at the threshold; here there is room only for your spiritual self."—St Bernard to his postulants.

All his brothers followed Bernard to Cîteaux except Nivard, the youngest, who was left to be the comfort of his father in his old age. "You will now be heir to everything," they said to him as they departed. "Yes", said the boy, "you leave me earth, and keep Heaven for yourselves. Do you call that fair?" And he soon followed them, together with their father, who exchanged wealth and honour for the poverty of Clairvaux. One only sister remained behind : she was married, and had no wish to "leave the world". One day, with a retinue and magnificently dressed, she visited Bernard; he refused to see her at first, and then came out and told her she was overdoing things. The words he spoke moved her so much that some years later she retired to a convent with her husband's consent, and she is now venerated in the Cistercian Order as Bd Humbeline.

“Thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is necessary...”—Luke x, 41-42.

21 ST JANE DE CHANTAL

AT the age of twenty Jane Frances Frémyot, who had long been a motherless child, was married to the Baron de Chantal; they had a boy and three girls, and lived together very happily and deeply devoted to one another. Jane, as a loving and beloved wife, made her house the pattern of a Christian home. But God had marked her for something higher even than domestic holiness. When she was twenty-eight and in the full tide of prosperity, her husband's life was lost in a shooting accident, in 1601. For seven years the sorrows of her widowhood were increased by ill-usage from servants and inferiors, by a bad-tempered father-in-law, and by the importunities of friends who urged her to marry again. Harassed almost to despair, she turned to her friend St Francis de Sales, and asked him if she should go into a convent. He replied by suggesting that they should together found a new order for women. So the Order of the Visitation came into being in 1610. This was not at all well received by St Jane's relatives and friends. Sickness, opposition, want, beset her, and the death of children, friends, and of St Francis himself followed: yet many houses of the Visitation rose under her hand. Nine long years of inner desolation completed the work of God's grace; and in her seventieth year she died, in 1641. St Vincent de Paul said he looked on St Jane Frances as “one of the holiest people I have met on this earth.”

Fortitude

If you profit by the successive trials of life to gain the strength and courage of St Jane Frances, they will become stepping-stones from earth to Heaven.

“Lord Jesus, may your will be done, with no ifs, no buts, no exceptions, whether for father, for children, for myself, or for any other thing whatever.”—St Jane de Chantal.

It was on 19 March 1609 that Madame de Chantal bade farewell to her family and relations. Pale and with tears in her eyes, she passed round the large room, sweetly and humbly taking leave of each. Her son, a boy of fifteen, used every entreaty, every endearment, to induce his mother not to leave them, and at last passionately flung himself across the door of the room. In an agony of distress, she stepped over his body. Her father awaited her outside, and the anguish of that parting reached its height when, kneeling at the feet of the old man, she asked his blessing, promising to repay his sacrifice by her prayers in her new home. Well might St Francis de Sales call her “the valiant woman.”

“So Isaac, so Jacob, so Moses, and all that have pleased God, passed through many tribulations, remaining faithful.”—Judith viii, 23.

22

ST SYMPHORIAN

EVERY year during Roman times there was a great procession of the heathen goddess Cybele at Autun in France. Amongst the crowd one day was one who refused to pay the ordinary marks of worship. He was therefore dragged before the magistrate and accused of sacrilege and sedition. When asked his name and condition, he replied, "My name is Symphorian; I am a Christian." The Christians of Autun were as yet few and little known, and the judge could not believe that the youth was serious in his purpose. He thought perhaps Symphorian was conceited because of his high birth or else ignorant of the law, and so had the edict enforcing heathen worship read, and ordered speedy compliance. Symphorian replied that he must obey the law of the King of kings. "Give me a hammer," he said, "and I will break your idol in pieces." He was scourged and thrown into a dungeon. Some days later he was brought out from the darkness of his prison, haggard and worn, but full of joy, and, still standing firm, was sentenced to death. He died by the sword, being beheaded outside the city walls, and about the year 421 a church was built over his grave.

Obedience to Christ

The Christian religion teaches us to be subject to every rightful authority. But no earthly authority has any right against Christ and His Church. If we are accused of disloyalty or disobedience because we are faithful to our religion, then we must choose as St Symphorian chose, and obey God rather than man.

"I fear the almighty God who made me, and I serve Him alone."—St Symphorian.

The mother of St Symphorian stood on the city wall and saw her son led out to die. She knew the honours he had refused and the dishonour of his death; but she valued disgrace for Christ's sake more than earthly good, and called out to him, "My son, my son, keep the living God in your heart; look up to Him who reigns in Heaven.” Thus she shared in the glory of his passion, and her name lives with his in the records of the Church.

“We ought to obey God rather than men.”—Acts v, 29.

23

ST PHILIP BENIZI

ST PHILIP BENIZI was born in Florence on the feast of the Assumption in 1233, which was perhaps the very day on which the seven holy founders of the Servite Order had their first vision of our Lady. From early years he longed to become himself a servant of Mary; and it was only fear of his unworthiness which made him yield to his father's wish, and begin to practise medicine. After long prayer and thought his doubts were solved, and he learned from Heaven that he was to join the Servites. Still Philip dared only offer himself as a lay-brother, and in this humble state he strove to atone for his sins. In spite of his reluctance he was later ordained priest and, in 1262, made master of novices; and as his rare abilities were daily discovered he was assigned further responsibilities. He became prior general of the order, and only escaped by flight from being chosen a candidate for the papacy at the death of Clement IV. His preaching restored peace to Pistoia and other places wasted by civil wars; and at the Council of Lyons he spoke to the assembled prelates with the gift of tongues, as was said. St Philip lived in extreme penitence, constantly examining his soul before the judgement-seat of God, and condemning himself as only fit for Hell. He died on the octave-day of the Assumption in 1285, at the hour of the evening Angelus.

The Last Things

Endeavour so to act as you would wish to have acted when you stand before your Judge. This is the rule of the saints, and the only safe rule for all.

“My God, the nearer I come to you the greater need have I to humble myself in the dust. O my God, who are you, and what am I?”—St Philip Benizi.

St Philip, though free from stain of mortal sin, was never weary of beseeching God's mercy. Daily he said the Penitential Psalms, and on his death-bed he kept reciting the verses of the Miserere, his cheeks streaming with tears. During his last hours he went through a terrible contest to overcome the fear of being rejected by God, but a few minutes before he died all his doubts disappeared, and were succeeded by a holy trust. He said to his brethren, “Love one another, reverence one another, bear with one another”, and asked for his “book”, that is, his crucifix; with his eyes and heart on it, he breathed his last.

“In all thy works remember thy last end, and thou shalt never sin.”—Ecclus. vii, 40.

24 ST BARTHOLOMEW the APOSTLE

THERE can be little doubt that Bartholomew—that is, “the son of Tholmai”—one of the twelve apostles, is the Nathanael of St John's gospel. He was a native of Galilee, and was one of the first disciples of Jesus. Once only is he presented to our view in the gospel and that once is in the story of his call and acceptance. It is always instructive to note the early graces of those who were destined for great things and were most honoured by Christ. We have not far to go in search of the characteristic grace of Nathanael, for in this instance our Lord Himself has told us : "Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile." He is shown to us, in fact, as a simple, earnest, single-minded man, leading an unworldly, quiet life, whose only power was prayer, having the innocence of the dove rather than the wisdom of the serpent. Of these materials the Holy Ghost fashioned a pillar of the Church, an apostle, a martyr. On the dispersion of the apostles, St Bartholomew according to popular traditions announced the good news of Christ in India, Armenia and elsewhere. But nothing is certainly known about the scene of his apostleship, the results of his labours, or the circumstances of his martyrdom.

Singleness of Mind

Men of the world make much of a knowledge of its ways, but the gospel shows us the true power and nobility of simple-hearted guileless souls.

"A pure heart penetrates Heaven and Hell."—Imitation of Christ.

It was Philip who first said to the future apostle, "We have found the saviour of whom the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth." Nathanael, having in mind that the Christ was to be born at Bethlehem, and the village of Nazareth being in bad repute, answered doubtingly, "Can any good come out of Nazareth?" Philip simply replied, "Come and see"; and the humble-minded man, whose single desire was to find the truth, went. When our Lord's words of praise reached his ears he was surprised, and asked Him, "How do you know me?" Jesus answered, "Before Philip called you I saw you, under the fig-tree". Nathanael saw that the secrets of his soul were read. Alone under the fig-tree, the favourite place of prayer and meditation of the devout Israelite, he had doubtless given inward voice to his religious aspirations. His guileless soul was discovered by the Searcher of hearts, and the grace of faith and the vocation of an apostle came to the new disciple, so that he exclaimed, "Master, you are the Son of God, the King of Israel".

"Think of the Lord in goodness, and seek him in simplicity of heart."—Wisdom i, 1.

25 ST LOUIS OF FRANCE

THE mother of Louis told him she had rather see him die than commit deadly sin, and he never forgot her words. King of France at the age of twelve, he at nineteen married the sister of Henry III of England's wife, and in 1235 took over responsibility for his own kingdom. Amidst the cares of government he daily recited the Divine Office and assisted at Mass twice, and fine churches in France are still monuments of his piety. The fearless protector of the weak and the oppressed, he was chosen to arbitrate in the great feuds of his age, between pope and emperor, between Henry III and the English barons. In 1248, to rescue the land which Christ had trod, he gathered round him the chivalry of France and embarked for the East on a crusade. There, in victory or defeat, on the bed of sickness or a captive, Louis showed himself ever the same, one of the best and bravest of Christian knights.

But it was not a successful campaign; Louis was a prisoner for a time, and at length the death of his mother recalled him to France in 1254. Sixteen years later he again set forth on a crusade. In August 1270 his army landed at Tunis, and typhus was soon rampant. Louis was one of the victims. He received Viaticum kneeling by his camp-bed, and gave up his life with the same joy that he had given all else for God's glory. The story of Louis IX as a crusader, told in the entrancing pages of John of Joinville, has tended to obscure the fact that he was an enlightened monarch as well as a brave soldier and a holy man.

Deeds and Words

We cannot all be important people, engaged in important enterprises; but we can all learn from St Louis's example of devotion to duty, kindness, and watchfulness over his actions and speech.

"Be careful not knowingly to do or say anything which, were all the world to know it, you could not gladly admit and say, 'Yes, I did that' or 'I said it' ".—St Louis.

St Louis once asked John of Joinville which he would prefer, to be a leper or to have committed a mortal sin. Joinville would not lie, and answered that he would rather commit thirty mortal sins than be a leper. "That is a wild and foolish answer", said the king. "Surely you know that there is no disease so horrible as mortal sin. When a man dies he is cured of all bodily ills; but if he has sinned mortally he cannot be certain that his repentance has been enough to win God's forgiveness. I beg you from the bottom of my heart to choose any bodily evil whatever rather than give way to a deadly sin."

“Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth, and a door round about my lips.”—Ps. cxl, 3.

26 ST GENESIUS OF ARLES

ST GENESIUS is the patron of Arles, the city of his birth and of his martyrdom, which took place about the beginning of the fourth century. He was young and still a catechumen when Christ perfected him once for all in the baptism of blood. He was employed as a writer in the law-courts, and he was there one day when the decrees which the emperor had issued for the persecution of Christians were read out. It was the business of Genesius to copy them down, but he had no heart to hear or write the sacrilegious words. He flung down his tablets at the feet of the judge, and fled, faithful to the words of our Lord, from the penalty that was sure to follow. Again and again he changed his hiding-place, till the persecutors gave orders that he was to be slain at once, wherever he might be found. During this time he sought the sacrament of baptism, but was still waiting for it when overtaken by his pursuers. He fled towards the Rhône, flung himself into the stream, and had just reached the other bank when he was captured and beheaded. Thus in one moment he became a member of the Church on earth, for which he shed his blood, and passed to the Church of the first-born, whose names are written in Heaven. The feast of St Genesius is observed on August 25.

Love of the Church

The martyrs loved the Church even to death, and when persecution did its worst they were certain of final victory. Learn this love and confidence from their example, and ask it through their intercession.

“The Church is assailed, but let her not fear : let Israel comfort herself, let the Church console herself, with the examples of the past.”—St Augustine.

Persecutions pass away, but the Church of Christ endures, and those who have loved her best are held in perpetual honour even upon earth. In the time of Genesius the city of Arles stood upon either side of the Rhône. The place of his martyrdom was preserved on the side where he fell; his relics were enshrined upon the other, in order that each part of the city might share in his glory. Two illustrious bishops of Arles, St Honoratus and St Hilary, were buried by his side as in a sacred place; to be buried in the vicinity of a martyr's tomb was an honour much sought after in early days.

“For no man ever hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, as also Christ doth the Church; because we are members of his body, of his flesh and of his bones.”—Eph. v, 29-30.

27 ST JOSEPH CALASANCTIUS

ST JOSEPH CALASANCTIUS was born in Aragon in 1556. He became a priest, and was sent as a missionary to the Andorra; then he heard a voice saying, “Go to Rome” and he had a vision of many children who were being taught by him. Accordingly, in 1592 he left Spain for Rome, where his heart was moved by the vice and ignorance of the children of the poor.

Their need mastered his humility, and he undertook the establishment of a congregation of teaching priests, the Clerks Regular of the Religious Schools. He himself provided all that was necessary for the education of the children, receiving nothing in payment, and there were soon over a thousand pupils under his care. But St Joseph's work was not destined to develop quietly and easily. Headstrong men among his subjects tried to disrupt the organization in the interests of their own plans, and for long they were only too successful. At the age of eighty-six, Joseph was denounced to the Holy Office, and led away through the streets like a criminal, to be examined by officials; only the intervention of a cardinal saved him from imprisonment. He bore his disappointments and injustices with a Job-like patience : "The Lord gave," he said, "and the Lord has taken away. Blessed be His name. My work has been done simply out of love for God." He never lost hope and, eight years after his death in 1648, peace and prosperity were restored to his much-tried foundation.

Teaching Children

The Curé of Ars used to say that, "I often think that most Christians who are lost are lost for want of instruction; they do not know their religion properly."

"People are better instructed in the truths of the faith by the yearly celebration of the sacred mysteries than by even the weightiest pronouncements of the Church's teaching."—Pope Pius XI.

Joseph Calasanctius did not confine his good works to teaching children or to Italian people. About 1621 there came to Rome a Mr Thomas Cocket, with his wife and family, who had put themselves within reach of the penal laws in England by becoming Catholics. St Joseph took them under his care, and at his suggestion the pope provided for their living.

“How great things he commanded our fathers that they should make the same known to their children... that they may put their hope in God and may not forget the works of God and may seek his commandments.”—Ps. lxxvii, 5, 7.

28 ST AUGUSTINE OF HIPPO

ST AUGUSTINE was born in 354, at Thagaste in Africa. He was brought up in the Christian faith, but without receiving baptism. He was a young man of brilliant talents and strong passions, and he early lost both his faith and his innocence. When he was thirty-two, and teaching rhetoric at Milan, he tells us that the faith of his childhood had regained his intellect, but that he could not as yet resolve to break the chains of evil habit. One day, stung to the heart by the account of some sudden conversions occasioned by reading the Life of St Antony, he exclaimed, “The unlearned rise and storm Heaven, and we, with all our learning, for lack of heart lie wallowing here in our sins.” Then he went into the garden, and a long inward conflict ensued. Suddenly a young fresh voice (he knows not whose) breaks in upon his strife with the words, “Take up and read.” He picks up a volume of St Paul’s letters, and his eyes fall on the passage beginning, “Walk honestly as in the day... Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ...”. The battle was won. He received baptism and returned home, to live a sort of monastic life with his friends. At Hippo, where eventually he settled, he was consecrated bishop in 395. For thirty-five years he was the centre of ecclesiastical life in North Africa, and the Church's mightiest figure there; his writings have been everywhere accepted as one of the principal sources of religious thought and theological speculation : he is one of the very greatest of Christian teachers. St Augustine died in the year 430.

The Lives of the Saints

Read the lives of the saints, and you will find that you are gradually creating a society about you to which in some measure you will be forced to raise the standard of your own daily life.

"Ancient examples of faith, which both witness to God's grace and give strength to men and women, were set out in writing so that by the reading and remembering of them God might be glorified and men strengthened."—Passion of St Perpetua and St Felicity.

When he was still afraid to commit himself to the obligations of Christian living, chastity, wrote St Augustine, enticed him with the thought of good examples. "So many boys and girls, so many young men and young women, people of every age, staid widows and maidens of ripe years. And in all these Chastity was not barren, but the mother of delights begotten of you, Lord, their bridegroom. And she mocked gently at me, as it were saying, 'Cannot you do what these men and women did?'"

"How fair a thing is the unwedded life that is nobly lived! Think not the memory of it can fade; God and man alike preserve the record."—Wisdom iv, 1.

29

BD JUVENAL ANCINA

ANCINA was a physician in Turin. One day in 1575, when he was thirty years old, the Dies irae at a requiem Mass showed him the emptiness of earthly things, and he went to Rome to seek a more perfect life. While in doubt as to his future he made the acquaintance of St Philip Neri, by whose advice he entered the Congregation of the Oratory, together with his brother Matthew. His first care was to acquire thoroughly the spirit of the Oratory, to follow the common way in all things and to be a burden to none. He became universally loved, and after being ordained priest, was in 1586 sent to Naples to help the newly-founded community there. He laboured there unweariedly for ten years, exerting himself especially in favour of young men, and making much use of music in his apostleship. In 1596 the promotion of the Oratorian Baronius to the cardinalate led to Juvenal being recalled to Rome to take his place at the Oratory; but a few years later he was named bishop of Saluzzo in Piedmont. He had previously fled to avoid such an appointment : but now he said, "It is time to obey, not to run away"; and in 1602 he was consecrated bishop, with his intimate friend St Francis de Sales. Juvenal's short episcopate was full of difficulties and ended tragically. His reforming zeal stirred up enmity, and in 1604 a friar whom he had reproved for scandalous living found means to poison the bishop's wine. Bd Juvenal died a few days later, on August 31. On that day his feast is observed.

Brotherly Love

Bd Juvenal was a living example of his master St Philip's principle to think nothing of life or reputation when it was a question of converting a sinner or drawing a soul to Christ.

“Among all the holy and great men whom I met in Rome, Father Ancina shone conspicuously. He had that sincere love of God and of his neighbour in which we see not a single thought of self, an exaltation of soul only to be found in the most perfect. He was a devoted son of his own dear Congregation of the Oratory, but he used to praise the life of all kinds of religious communities as warmly as if he himself had been a member of each. In 1603 I visited him in his diocese, and saw the reverence and love his flock bore him. Nor can I express their enthusiastic kindness to me, as their pastor’s friend.”—St Francis de Sales.

Ancina well knew who his murderer was, and every circumstance necessary to convict him; but he forbade even his name to be mentioned. His clergy were faithful to his directions : no post-mortem was allowed, nor any steps taken to discover the crime. As a Carthusian monk said, Bd Juvenal “died for virtue, for religion, for Christ, and therefore a martyr’s death.”

“Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends.”—John xv, 13.

30

ST ROSE OF LIMA

THIS first canonized saint of the New World was born at Lima in Peru in 1586. She was christened Isabel, but as a baby was called Rose because of her beauty and by that name she was always known. As a child her patience and goodness were unusual; she voluntarily gave up eating fruit, and fasted three times a week. Her beauty ripened with increasing age, and she was much and openly admired : from fear of vanity she cut off her hair, blistered her face with pepper and her hands with lime. Then she enrolled herself in the third order of St Dominic, took St Catherine of Siena as her model, and lived as a semi-recluse in a hut in the garden of her home. When her father was ruined in a mining venture, Rose worked hard to help support her parents, tilling their bit of land and taking in needlework. She spent the last three years of her life in the house of a government official and his wife; they were very kind, understanding Rose and her ways, and her deep concern for sinners, better than did some of the people among whom she had to live. For many years she suffered desolation of spirit, but never lost her inward calm, asking only to suffer more that she might love more. St Rose died in 1617, at the age of thirty-one.

Penitence and Duty

Rose was religious in spirit and innocent in life, yet she was full of penitence and inflicted the severest mortifications on herself. We are always sinning, we repent and forget, our sorrow is slight, our penance nothing. What will happen to us?

“If you want to reach Heaven you must be generous : work hard and suffer willingly; for God has prepared a very great recompense.”—St Rose.

St Rose of Lima was one of those saints whose extraordinary way of life is for our instruction rather than for our imitation : we have to look behind her strange penances to the spirit of love and of sorrow for sin that prompted them, and try to emulate that. Her ascetical practices have indeed rather obscured the memory of her faithfulness to her duty to her parents, working selflessly for them when misfortune and old age came upon them. That too is a lesson not to be overlooked.

“Honour thy father and mother, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee.”—Deut. v, 16.

31

ST AIDAN

AIDAN was an Irish monk of the island of Iona. From this great monastic establishment, founded by St Columba, went forth many missionaries to Scotland and to northern England. In the year 634, at the invitation of St Oswald, king of Northumbria, Aidan undertook the conversion of that country; and, while he was still imperfect in the English tongue, the king himself would act as his interpreter. Aidan travelled everywhere on foot, urging the faithful to live up to their religion and the heathen to listen to the good news he brought. Whatever he taught he practised; and, while he rebuked the powerful with true priestly authority, he administered his reproofs in a spirit of such Christlike meekness, humility and gentleness that no one took offence. He fixed his episcopal see at Lindisfarne, afterwards called Holy Island, from the number of saints who were nursed and trained in the monastery founded there by Aidan; from it sprang other monasteries which in later years arose in the country from the Tyne to the Forth, and owned Holy Island as their mother-house. St Aidan was a man who combined passionate enthusiasm with a gentle moderation, and he was the apostle of northern England as St Augustine of Canterbury was of the south; his example was the inspiration of the great St Cuthbert of Lindisfarne. He died in 651.

Gentleness

It is the meek, the gentle and the humble who spiritually conquer the earth. The less we give way to human impatience in our dealings with others, the more the Spirit of God works in us and for us. We have to overcome inward feelings of pride and irritation as well as their outward expression.

“It is better to make penitents by gentleness than hypocrites by severity.”—St Francis de Sales.

When a missionary bishop complained that the English of Northumbria were obstinate, barbarous and wild, St Aidan said, “It seems to me, brother, that you have been too harsh with your hearers. According to the admonition of the Apostle you should have given them first the milk of easy teaching; then, gradually fed and strengthened by the word of God, they might little by little have been led to understand the deep things and do the perfect things of His holy law”. Whereupon his brethren judged that he himself was the one who ought to be sent to teach the Northumbrians.

“The meek shall inherit the land, and shall delight in abundance of peace.”—Ps. xxxvi, 11.

1 BD COLUMBA OF RIETI

FROM childhood Columba was very religious and at an early age dedicated herself wholly to God; when her parents tried to change her resolve and chose a husband for her, she proved her determination by cutting off her hair and throwing it at their feet. The Holy Eucharist was her one desire, and hunger, thirst, sleep and other such needs never troubled her, she lived unconscious of them. At nineteen she entered the third order of St Dominic, though continuing to live in her father's house. Being warned in sleep to leave Rieti, she left home one night and found herself travelling on an unknown road. She finally stopped at Perugia, in which she recognized the city of her dream. The inhabitants received her as a saint, and eventually built for her the convent of St Catherine, in which she gathered the local tertiary sisters. When a plague was raging, she offered herself as a victim, and the plague was stayed; but Columba was struck down by it. She recovered only to find herself assailed by slanders and treated as an impostor. Nor was it till after many trials, and being deposed from her office of prioress, that her innocence was proved. She died in 1501, at the age of thirty-three; her feast-day is on May 20.

Frequent Communion

Do not say, "I am not worthy to go often to communion," but do everything to make yourself more worthy. This is the lesson of Bd Columba's life.

"God thirsts to be thirsted for."—St Gregory of Nyssa.

If the saint's communion was delayed by but one hour she suffered from physical as well as spiritual distress. Her confessor, fearing some delusion, asked her how she was able to live on the Blessed Sacrament alone. "When I receive this heavenly food," she replied, "I feel so satisfied in soul and body that all desire for earthly food vanishes, and I have a distaste for it. I hope that God will give you a sign which will remove your doubts." On Christmas-day, as this priest finished his first Mass, he felt an extraordinary refreshment of soul. When he had offered his third Mass, this heavenly love had reached such a height that he felt it impossible to touch food, and so remained fasting through the day. This was told to Columba, who said, "I rejoice, father, that you now know by experience how I can be satisfied by the Bread of angels alone."

"As the hart panteth after the fountains of water, so my soul panteth after thee, O God!"—Ps. xli. 1.

2 ST STEPHEN OF HUNGARY

GEIZA, fourth duke of Hungary, was with his wife converted to Christianity in the year 985, and at the same time their ten-year-old son was baptized, in the name of Stephen. Twelve years later he succeeded his father, and, after consolidating his position by warfare, he began to root out idolatry, suppressed a rebellion of pagan subjects, and founded monasteries and churches. He sent to Pope Silvester II, begging him to appoint bishops to the sees he had endowed, and to bestow on him, for the greater success of his work, the title of king. The pope granted his requests, and Stephen was duly crowned. His great achievement was the establishment of Hungary as an independent Christian kingdom; but the worthiness of his religious aims was somewhat obscured by the violence of his methods : he was the child of a violent age and a barbarous society. He was a strict legislator, and had the reputation of care and generosity for the poor. He died in 1038, his last years embittered by family disputes about the succession to the throne. His veneration among the Hungarians was approved by Pope St Gregory VII.

Obedience to the Holy See

“Our duty,” says Cardinal Newman, “is to follow the Vicar of Christ whither he goeth, and never to desert him, however we may be tried; but to defend him at all hazards and against all comers, as a son would a father, and as a wife a husband, knowing that his cause is the cause of God.”

“We must reverence Christ’s representative on earth.”—St Catherine of Siena.

St Stephen’s influence for good is illustrated by his son Emeric, whom his father had trained to succeed him but whose life was cut short, in 1031, by an accident while hunting : he is revered as Blessed, and his relics were enshrined at the same time as his father’s in 1083. Foreseeing the troubles that would arise from his having no heir, Stephen impressed on his nobles the necessity to foster Christianity in Hungary, to follow justice and charity, to be obedient to the laws and to show proper respect to the Holy See.

“For so is the will of God, that by doing well you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.”—
I Peter ii, 15.

3

ST PIUS X

JOSEPH SARTO was born into a very lowly state of life in the Italian province of Venetia in 1835. He was enabled to become a church student at Padua, and in due course was made bishop of Mantua, patriarch of Venice and cardinal, and, in 1903, pope, under the name of Pius X. Throughout his long and distinguished career he was noted for his sensitive personal charity and the simplicity of his way of living. The pontificate of Pius X was an eventful one; but nothing in it is better remembered than the practical encouragement he gave to frequent communion, both among children and grown-ups; with that there went a great concern for the seemliness of public worship and for the people to take active part therein. Pope Pius urged daily reading of the Bible, and set up an organization for the revision of its official Latin text. An historian of the popes, Baron von Pastor, wrote of him : “He was one of those chosen few men whose personality is irresistible. Everyone was moved by his simplicity and angelic kindness. Yet it was something more that carried him into all hearts : and that ‘something’ is best defined by saying that all who were ever admitted to his presence had a deep conviction of being face to face with a saint". The world war of 1914 hastened Pius X's end : within three weeks of its outbreak he was dead. Forty years later he was canonized, the first canonized pope since Pius V.

Simplicity of Living

Simplicity of life and spirit, humbleness and gentleness, carried St Pius X to all men's hearts, and thus God glorified him to the world.

"I was born poor, I have lived poor, and I wish to die poor."—St Pius X.

Pius X never lost the simple habits he had acquired as a boy in a poor household. As patriarch of Venice he would have only his sisters to cook for him, as pope he continued to sleep on a plain iron bedstead; he refused to confer titles of nobility on his relatives, and he was embarrassed by the ceremonial with which he was surrounded in the Vatican. He sheltered refugees from the Messina earthquake almost beneath his own windows, and his charities in money and goods were so extensive that people wondered where it all came from. Every Sunday he preached publicly in the open air on the day's gospel. On his feast-day the Church puts this prayer into our mouths : "Thou, God, didst give the courage of the Apostles and wisdom from on high to the holy pope Pius, that the Catholic faith might be defended and all things restored in Christ : grant then that we may follow his teaching and example and so attain an everlasting reward."

"If thou wilt be perfect, go sell what thou hast and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven. And come, follow me."—Matt. xix, 21.

4

ST ROSE OF VITERBO

ROSE was born some time before 1240, at a time when the emperor Frederick II was oppressing the Church and many were faithless to the Holy See. During an illness when she was eight, she is said to have had a vision of our Lady, in which she was told to wear the dress of a Franciscan penitent, but to live on at home and set a good example to her fellows. Some years later she began to preach up and down the streets of Viterbo, calling upon the inhabitants to be faithful to the pope and vehemently denouncing his opponents. When her father threatened her with a beating, Rose replied, "If Jesus could be beaten for me, I can be beaten for Him." So great was the power of her words over the excited people that the imperial party in fear and anger drove her from the city. Exile opened a wider sphere for her zeal, and she continued to preach from place to place, till Pope Innocent IV's adversary was dead. She then asked to be admitted to a convent at Viterbo, but was refused because she had no dowry. Her parish priest's attempt to settle her in a community failed through jealousy, and Rose returned to her parents' house. There she died, only about seventeen years old, probably in 1252.

Use of Present Time

Rose lived but seventeen years, and died a saint. We have lived perhaps much longer, yet with what result? Every minute something can be done for God. Let us be up and doing.

"To-morrow never becomes to-day, nor does presently become now. Through this bad habit of saying 'to-morrow,' 'presently,' each 'to-day' and each 'now', when present, brings forth a new 'to-morrow' and another 'presently'.—Lorenzo Scupoli.

If God gives us a particular work to do, He will most certainly enable us to accomplish it, however unsuitable the time and circumstances may appear. There is some uncertainty about the details of St Rose's short life; but it is at any rate clear that she wasted no time; being impelled to a certain course of action on behalf of the Church, she pursued it, "in season and out of season". "Jesus has told me what to do", she told her father, "and I must do it."

"Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation."—2 Cor. vi, 2.

5 ST LAURENCE GIUSTINIANI

LAURENCE from a child longed to be a saint; and when he was nineteen there was given him a vision of the Eternal Wisdom, in the form of a beautiful woman who said, "The quietness of spirit that you seek can only be found in me, who am God's Wisdom". All earthly things paled before the beauty of this sight, and a void was left in his heart which none but God could fill. Soon after, he left his home at Venice, and joined the canons of St George, a community on the nearby island of Alga. In the incessant combat which he now waged with himself he measured his sufferings with the crucifix, their duration with the eternity for which he sighed. He went about the streets with a sack, begged alms of his brother nobles, and stood their scorn unmoved. He became a priest in 1406, and in 1433 bishop of Castello. In spite of slander and insult he thoroughly reformed his see, which led to his being appointed the first patriarch of Venice; but he remained in heart and soul a humble priest, thirsting for Heaven. At length the eternal vision began to dawn : in 1455 Laurence was taken very ill. A special bed was made up for him. He protested : "A feather-bed for me? No. My Lord was stretched on a hard and painful tree." Laid upon straw, he gave last messages to all who came to see him, from Venetian patricians to beggars, and after two days died.

Seeking Divine Wisdom

Ask St Laurence to pray that you may have such a sense of the sufficiency of God that you too may fly to Him and be at rest.

"Why do you go about trying to satisfy your mind first with one thing and then another? Rest is to be found only in the boundless treasures of divine wisdom."—St Laurence Giustiniani.

When Laurence first joined the canons a friend went to dissuade him from the folly of thus sacrificing every earthly prospect. The young man listened patiently in turn to his friend's affectionate appeal and excited abuse. Calmly and kindly he then replied. He spoke persuasively of the shortness of life, the uncertainty of earthly happiness, and the transcendent worth of spiritual things. The objector could make no answer; he felt in truth that Laurence was wise, himself the fool. And eventually he himself followed St Laurence's example.

"I have loved wisdom, and have sought her out from my youth and have desired to take her for my bride and I became a lover of her beauty."—Wisdom viii, 2.

6

ST SYMPHOROSA

A SYMPHOROSA was buried beside the road from Rome to Tivoli, and the following story was told about her. When the emperor Hadrian was building his great palace at Tivoli he sought an oracle from his gods. They would give none till Symphorosa and her seven sons ceased to insult them by their Christian faith and consented to offer sacrifice to them. Symphorosa was brought before the emperor, who tried to win her by smooth words. She told him that her husband and his brother had held high command in the imperial army; both had confessed Jesus Christ, and had died deaths shameful in the eyes of men but full of glory in the sight of Christ. She had but one desire—to share their confession, and to join them in glory. So she was drowned in the Tiber, and her sons followed her one by one. After being tortured, each was put to death in a different way. Their bodies were honourably buried by the faithful who inscribed their names on the tombs under which they had been laid, for they knew that Christ had set their names in the Book of Life. The feast-day of these martyrs is July 18.

Suffering for Christ

When we listen to the voice of faith rather than the voice of worldly wisdom, Christ rewards the sacrifice which we make for Him. But He rewards us in His mercy for a sacrifice which is nothing in itself. Your true glory consists in following Christ and proving yourself a child of the saints.

“Suffer with Christ and for Christ if you would reign with Christ.”—Imitation of Christ.

We are told that Hadrian threatened to burn Symphorosa alive as a sacrifice to his gods. She told him this was beyond his power. If she was burnt, she would be offered up, not to demons, but to Christ the Son of God, and the fire which consumed her body would add light to her crown. So it is with every trial which can assail us; come whence it may, it is a means of consecrating ourselves anew to Christ and a further earnest of the glory to come.

“We preach Christ crucified : unto the Jews indeed a stumbling-block, and unto the Gentiles foolishness, but unto them that are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God.”
—I Cor. i, 23-24.

7

ST TARBULA

ABOUT the year 340 Sapor II, king of Persia, began to persecute the Church with unexampled fierceness. Simeon, bishop of Seleucia, the chief see in the Persian empire, was among the first victims. Just after his death the queen fell ill; and a nun named Tarbula, sister of the martyred bishop, was accused of causing the sickness of the queen by poison. When told of the charge against her, she replied that she followed the Christian law, which forbade murder. “Yes,” said the judge Mareptes, “but you wanted to revenge your brother’s death.” “My brother,” said Tarbula, “lives happily in the kingdom of Heaven; he has suffered no harm.” Now Tarbula was a young woman of great beauty, and next morning Mareptes sent her a secret message : he promised to secure her life if she would consent to marry him. She refused, very indignantly; and she showed the same firmness when the king invited her to save her life by worshipping the sun. Sentence of death was passed; she was taken beyond the gates of the city, her body was sawn asunder, and she passed from the dangers of the world to the paradise of her Bridegroom. With her suffered her sister and another woman. Their feast-day is on April 22.

Guarding Chastity

Whatever your state of life, you too are dedicated to Christ, and bound to follow Him in purity of body and soul. Loathe the least approach of impurity as you loathe the Devil, from whom it comes.

“If you do not wish to perish, run away!”—St Augustine.

St Tarbula was ready to give her own blood; she spoke calmly of her brother's death even to his murderers : but the suggestion that she should, even by marriage, forfeit the maidenhood she had undertaken for God's sake, moved her to righteous anger. “Be silent,” she said to the messenger of Mareptes. “Do not speak such words to me. I have been betrothed to Christ the Lord, and I remain a virgin for love of Him.” When she was about to die, Mareptes in person renewed his entreaties, and met with a like repulse : “Never will I give way and go to eternal death for the sake of living a little longer here.” This horror of unchastity is found in all the saints : they who were gentle to others have driven the tempter from them with disgust, even with violence.

“As for debauchery, and impurity of every kind, and covetousness, there must be no whisper of it among you; it would ill become saints.”—Eph. v, 3.

8

ST POEMEN

ST POEMEN was one of the most famous of the monks of the Egyptian desert during the fifth century. When he went to live there several of his brothers went with him, and they found a home in a ruined temple. Theirs was a life of prayer, labour and extreme mortification, often passing many days without tasting food. Although so severe towards himself, Poemen's spirit was one of marvellous gentleness towards others. He would say, "If a monk wishes to enjoy true peace, he must learn never to judge another, and be convinced of his own nothingness." A solitary once said to him, "Father, when I receive a visit from one of the brethren whom I know to be guilty of a considerable fault, I refuse to admit him; but if I know him to be a good man I gladly receive him." St Poemen answered, "If you are kind to him who is well, you should be doubly so to him who is ailing." He was celebrated for his sayings; such as : "It is always the Devil who gets the blame. I say that it is self-will. Self-willed people are their own worst tempters, and need no devil to tempt them"; "People should not waste other people's time by asking advice when no advice is necessary or wanted"; "A living faith consists in thinking little about oneself and having tenderness towards others". St Poemen lived to a great age and is commemorated on August 27.

Kind Judgements

We shall never arrive at true purity of heart until we believe ourselves to be more worthless than anybody else. This is not difficult, for even if we were to see a murderer we could say, "He has only killed one man, while I have put my soul to death many times by my sins."

“If we pass over people’s faults in silence, God also will hide ours; but if we divulge them, God will make known our own.”—St Poemen.

St Poemen greatly disapproved that bitter zeal which blames every little fault without consideration for the weakness of human nature, which is ever prone to judge and condemn our neighbour. Some monks asked him, “Father, when we see any of the brethren asleep at the hour of prayer, ought we not to awaken them?” Poemen answered, “When I see a brother thus overcome by sleep, I only wish I could pillow his head on my lap that he might rest the better.”

“Why judgest thou thy brother? Or why dost thou despise thy brother? For we shall all stand before the judgement-seat of Christ.”—Rom. xiv, 10.

9

ST PETER CLAVER

PETER CLAVER was a Spanish Jesuit. In Majorca he fell in with the lay-brother St Alphonsus Rodriguez, who became his spiritual guide and foretold to him the labours he would undergo in the Indies. In 1615 Peter was ordained priest in Cartagena, the great slave-mart of the West Indies; and there he consecrated himself to the service and salvation of those miserable creatures. For more than forty years he laboured in this work. He called himself “the slave of the slaves.” He was their apostle, father, physician and friend. He fed them, nursed them with the utmost tenderness in their loathsome diseases, did all he could to ease their oppression and soften the hearts of their masters. The conditions were such that few Europeans could face them : “If being a saint consists in having no taste and having a strong stomach," said Father Claver, "then I admit that I may be one." His rest after his labours was in nights of penance and prayer. However spent he might be, when news arrived of a fresh slave-ship St Peter was at once on board amongst his dear slaves, bringing comfort for body and soul. During his last four years of life his health was quite broken down; not only was he confined to his room, but he was neglected and almost forgotten. But he was able to hand over his work to another Jesuit and to die in peace, in 1654.

Our Neighbour's Needs

When you see anyone in need of assistance, either for body or soul, do not ask why someone else did not help him, but be thankful for the opportunity to do it yourself.

"Seek nothing in this world except what Jesus Christ sought—to sanctify men, to work, to suffer, to die for their salvation."—St Peter Claver.

In the spring of every year St Peter left the town to visit the Negroes on the plantations, and when he found a settlement he would never leave it till the last slave had had a chance to receive the sacraments. But Father Claver's activities were bitterly criticized by many and difficulties were put in his way. He once wrote: "The humble ass must be my model. When he is evilly spoken of, he is dumb. When he is despised and ignored, he is still dumb. Whatever happens he never complains, for he is only an ass. So also must God's servant be."

"Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is scandalized, and I am not on fire?"—2 Cor. xi, 29.

10 ST NICHOLAS OF TOLENTINO

BORN as one out of due time in answer to prayer and vowed before his birth to the service of God, Nicholas spent most of his days at the friary of Tolentino in central Italy. His austerities were conspicuous even in the austere order—the Hermits of St Augustine—to which he belonged, and to the remonstrances made by his superiors he only replied, “How can I be said to fast, while every morning at the altar I receive my God?” He shed constant tears while meditating on the Passion, especially at the thought of those who are still in sin. He worked in the slums of Tolentino and was a good street-preacher, “not showing off but simply glorifying God,” as was said of him. Amidst his loving labours for God and man he was haunted by one fear—his own sinfulness. “The heavens,” said he, “are not pure in the sight of Him whom I serve; how then shall I, a sinful man, stand before Him?” As he pondered on these things, it is related that our Lady appeared to him and said, “Fear not, Nicholas, for all is well with you : my Son bears you in His heart, and I am your protection.” Then his soul was at rest. Many miracles were attributed to St Nicholas of Tolentino, who died in 1305.

A good death

Would you die the death of the just? There is only one way of making sure of doing so. Live the life of the just. For it is impossible that one who has been faithful to God in life should make a bad or unhappy end.

“I love life only because it leads quickly to death.”—St Nicholas of Tolentino.

The final illness of St Nicholas went on for nearly a year; eventually his brethren were summoned to receive his last message, and he said to them, "My dear brothers, my conscience does not reproach me with anything—but I am not justified by that." Then he turned to the cross, exclaiming, "Hail, holy cross that bore the Ransom of the world! May Jesus Christ, that ransom, protect me from the Enemy!" And so he died.

"The souls of the just are in the hand of God, and the torment of death shall not touch them."—Wisdom iii, 1.

11 BD CHARLES SPINOLA

THE news of the martyrdom of Bd Rudolf Aquaviva and his companions in 1583, on the island of Salsette in India, came to the ears of a young Italian nobleman, Charles Spinola, who heard it as a call to follow, and became himself a novice in the Society of Jesus. After ordination he asked to be sent to the Indies, and sailed from Lisbon, only to be driven about on the Atlantic until he was captured off the Azores by an English buccaneer, and carried to our shores : he was held for several days at Topsnam in Devon. Eventually he again started for the East, and through perils by storm and pestilence at last reached Japan, where he was a missionary for eighteen years. Father Spinola was in Japanese favour as an astronomer; but when persecution began he was thrown into the horrible prison of Omura—an open cage, where thirty-two Christians were packed together—and for four years exposed to heat, cold and hunger, tormented by filth and vermin. Among those with him was Bd Sebastian Kimura, the first Japanese priest. They were among those who suffered in the Great Martyrdom at Nagasaki on 10 September 1622, burnt at a slow fire : but Bd Charles and Bd Sebastian succumbed to suffocation at an early stage. Their feast-day is September 10.

Death for Christ

So deeply was Bd Charles steeped in the wisdom of the Cross that he not only welcomed suffering in every way and bore it when most crushing, but even in the prison of Omura—more terrible, as he said, than death by fire—he imposed mortifications on himself.

“When, O God, did I ever deserve to be made worthy to suffer for the name of Jesus? Toil and weariness endured in the long road from Italy to Japan will have been well-spent even if they do not lead to the martyrdom which I so much desire and which nerved me to come here.”—From a letter of Bd Charles.

Among the prisoners on the hill at Nagasaki, Bd Charles saw Bd Isabel Fernandez, the wife of his former host, who had come to win her crown. “Where is my Ignatius?” he asked—a child born while he was in the house and baptized by him. “Here he is,” she answered, holding up her four-year-old boy. “I have brought him with me to offer to God, from whom I received him.” The little fellow asked the priest’s blessing, saw his mother’s head roll at his feet, and then bowed his own to receive the sword stroke.

“For to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain.”
—Phil. i, 21.

12 ST GUY OF ANDERLECHT

ST GUY belonged to the "school" of holiness of St Benedict Labre and Matt Talbot. From early years he had two loves, prayer and the poor. The love of prayer growing more and more, he left his home to seek greater poverty and closer union with God. He arrived at Laeken, near Brussels, and there showed such devotion that the parish priest besought him to stay and serve the church as sacristan. Thenceforth, like another Samuel, Guy dwelt in the house of the Lord, often spending whole nights there, and finding time and means to befriend the poor, so that his almsgiving became well known. A merchant of Brussels, hearing of the generosity of this poor sacristan, came to Laeken and offered him a share in his business if Guy would invest his small savings in it. "Thus," he said, "you will be able to help all and to refuse none." Guy could not bear to leave the church; but the offer seemed providential, and he closed with it. Their ship, however, was lost on the first voyage; and, on returning to Laeken, Guy found his place filled. The rest of his life was one long reparation for his folly and instability. He went on foot to Rome and Jerusalem, and for seven years wandered as a pilgrim from shrine to shrine. Then he returned to his home at Anderlecht, and died there about the year 1012, worn out by hardship and ill-health.

Reverence for the House of God

Jesus was nine months in the womb of Mary, three hours on the cross, three days in the sepulchre : but, sacramentally, He is in the tabernacle always. Does our reverence before Him bear witness to this blessed truth?

“Brethren, let us be filled with zeal for God’s house; in that place of prayer, where the Body of Christ is consecrated and the angels are ever present, let us strive with all our might that nothing unfitting be done, that no hindrance be placed to our own prayer or to that of our brothers.”—St Bede.

While Guy was sacristan at Laeken his happiness was to be always in the church, sweeping, cleaning, decorating, tidying. On holidays he would wreath the altar-rails with garlands of fresh flowers, and hang green branches about, so that the very walls might keep the feast. And he did all with the same recollectedness which had been remarked in him at his first coming. So people were attracted to the service of God, not only by the beauty of the church, but still more by the loving reverence of him who adorned it.

“The zeal of thy house hath eaten me up.”—John ii, 17.

13 ST FRANCIS DI GIROLAMO

FRANCIS was born in 1642 near Taranto in the kingdom of Naples, of the capital of which kingdom he afterwards became in a special sense the apostle. His childhood and youth presaged his future holiness, and at an early age he was admitted into a community of missionaries and employed in catechizing. After having made his studies in Naples and been ordained, his whole life was so completely moulded in conformity with the gospel counsels that he went by the name of “the holy priest.” At the age of twenty-eight he entered the Society of Jesus, and became a pattern of religious observance. He offered himself for the missions in Japan, but God had destined him for apostolic labour in his native country and he was appointed prefect of the missions in Naples; his zeal for God's glory and the souls of men made him a most effective missionary. Weak in body, the labours and sufferings he underwent in evangelizing prisoners, soldiers, galley-slaves and the most forsaken in Naples, and in every description of missionary work, can only be attributed to a supernatural strength; and God confirmed his preaching by miracles. It was said of St Francis di Girolamo that "he is a lamb when he talks, but a lion when he preaches" and he left nothing undone that might make a lasting impression on the fickle Neapolitans. He died in 1716, and his feast-day is May 11.

Attending to Sermons

In spite of the wisdom and power with which St Francis preached, his sermons were of no use to those who listened with hardened hearts. If we would hear preachers aright, we must examine our own conscience instead of criticizing what they say.

"He who hears the divine warning unmoved is not worthy to be healed."—St Augustine.

An important field of Francis's apostleship was among prostitutes and loose women. One night he had an irresistible impulse to go and preach in an apparently deserted corner of Naples. He did so, and was heard by a woman who was a sinner. The next day she came to him and declared her intention to mend her ways. Among his penitents was a French woman who had murdered her own father and then served as a soldier in the Spanish army, disguised as a man. She subsequently lived a life of much holiness.

“He that heareth you, heareth me; and he that despiseth you, despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me.”—Luke x, 16.

14 ST SPERATUS AND HIS COMPANIONS

IN the year 180 twelve Christians, of whom five were women, came before the proconsul at Carthage on trial for their faith. They belonged to Scillium, a town in what is now Tunisia. The proconsul promised them forgiveness if they changed their minds and consented to worship the Roman gods. But Speratus said, speaking for them all, “We have done no crime, and we have harmed no one; when we have had to bear wrong from others, we have given God thanks.” When at another time they were offered mercy, they spoke of the Christian dispensation, the true mystery of mercy, and told the proconsul that the religion of Christ must to be followed, not forsaken. “I am a Christian,” said Vestia, an aged woman; “I wish to be none other than what I am,” said Secunda; and they all spoke to the same effect. They were offered time for consideration. But they answered that they had considered once for all, before they came to baptism and renounced the Devil to follow Christ. So they went forth to die giving thanks, and their last words were : “To-day we enter Heaven as martyrs—thanks be to God.” Cardinal Baronius, in the sixteenth century, first rediscovered the genuine "acts" of their martyrdom, and called the document "more precious than gold." Their feast-day is July 17.

Perseverance

Beg of God, through the intercession of these martyrs, the gift of perseverance. Their example will tell you how to obtain this crowning gift : remember that you have renounced the world and the Devil once for all at your baptism. Do not hesitate; do not look back; do not listen to suggestions against faith or virtue. Go forward day by day along the road which you have chosen, to God who is your portion for ever.

"When the saints pray in the words which Christ taught, they ask for little else than the gift of perseverance."—St Augustine.

The Romans called the firmness of the Christians obstinacy, but it was an obstinacy which amazed them, for the strength of their empire failed in the attempt to overcome it. "I see," the proconsul said to Speratus, "that you still persevere in your Christianity." "This perseverance," Speratus answered, "comes from no strength of mine : it is from God." In the strength of this divine gift the early Christians overcame the world : and so shall we if we pray constantly for the grace of perseverance. It is a grace which we cannot merit; God keeps it in His own hands, and gives it to those who ask for it.

"He that shall persevere to the end, he shall be saved."—Matt. xxiv, 13.

15 ST CATHERINE OF GENOA

“NO more of the world; no more sin.” Such were the words with which Catherine, at the age of twenty-six, gave herself irrevocably to God. Noble in birth, rich and beautiful, of firm and independent character, she when only thirteen years of age sought admission to a convent of strict observance, but was refused on account of her youth. Three years later, to restore the waning influence of her family, she was married to Julian Adorno, a dissolute young man who apparently made no attempt to understand or to please his wife. For five years Catherine was miserable, for another five she sought distraction in Genoese society. Then she underwent a sudden “conversion” : she resolutely broke with the world, and gave herself up to a life of penance and prayer and charity. Before long her husband had a change of heart : they moved into a small house, and gave themselves to work in a hospital. Then they lived in the hospital itself, where Julian died in 1497. Catherine continued in her devotedness to the sick, battling against her own increasing ill-health. She was a mystic of a high order, with an overmastering sense of and love for God’s perfection. Her preoccupation with the holy souls took form in a famous treatise on Purgatory, and she also wrote a no less famous Dialogue, between the soul and the body. At the same time St Catherine was eminently “practical”, whether in the running of the hospital or in the disposition of her own property. She died in 1510.

Purgatory

Frequent reflection on Purgatory will help us to escape it, by avoiding the least imperfection which hinders our approach to God.

“Why have you let yourselves be so blinded by this world as to take no thought for that imperious need at the hour of death? The very goodness of God under which you shelter yourselves will rise up in judgement against you for having rebelled against the will of so good a Lord.”—St Catherine of Genoa.

St Catherine said that the bitterness of the suffering of Purgatory cannot be expressed or understood. Yet a soul with the tiniest stain will accept it as a mercy, thinking it nothing when compared with being kept from its Love. “It appears to me that the greatest pain of the souls in Purgatory comes from their being sensible of something in themselves displeasing to God, and that it has been done deliberately against so much goodness : for, being in a state of grace, they know the truth, and see the horror of any obstacle which does not let them draw nigh to God.”

“If thou, O Lord, wilt mark iniquities, Lord, who shall stand it?”—Ps. cxxix, 3.

16

ST CORNELIUS

IN the year 251 Cornelius, a Roman, was chosen to fill the Apostolic See. Already past middle age, he had served in all the degrees of the ministry, and was judged most suitable for the office by the clergy and people of Rome, writes St Cyprian. The times were full of danger; there were enemies within as well as outside the Church. Novatian, once a Stoic philosopher, now one of the leading Roman clergy, attacked the penitential discipline laid on those who, having apostatized during the late troubles, now wanted to be reconciled with the Christian community; he claimed that it was unlawful to admit such persons (and certain others) to penance, or to give them absolution, whatever their dispositions might be. The action of the Holy See was prompt and decisive : a council of bishops, held under St Cornelius, condemned such teaching and excommunicated Novatian and his adherents. Meanwhile the death of the Emperor Decius gave no relief to Christians, his successor enforcing still more rigorously the laws against them in 253. Cornelius was the first to be apprehended at Rome. It is sometimes said that he was beheaded, but it is more likely that he died a martyr from hardships endured while in prison. St Cyprian had written to him from Africa : "Whichever of us shall be taken first, let us charitably persevere in prayer to the Father for our brethren and sisters".

Compassion for Sinners

The surest way of keeping our souls in God's grace is to have a humble compassion for those who have fallen, remembering our own sinfulness.

"Hate the sin, but love the sinner."—St Augustine.

So many and so shocking had been the apostasies under persecution that, during the long vacancy of the Holy See after the martyrdom of St Fabian, the Roman clergy adopted, and recommended to the African bishops—already sufficiently inclined to severity—most rigorous measures against the lapsed. Hardly, however, was St Cornelius seated in the apostolic chair than in his compassion he absolved and admitted them to communion. The teaching and practice of Rome has been the same in all ages : the Vicar of Christ has ever had his eyes fixed on the example of his Master, who came “not to call the just but sinners to repentance.”

“There will be joy in heaven over one sinner who repents, more than over ninety-nine just who have no need of repentance.”—Luke xv, 7.

17

ST CYPRIAN

CYPRIAN was an African, a barrister and teacher of rhetoric, who in middle life was converted to Christianity. Very shortly after his baptism he was ordained priest and, in 248, made bishop of Carthage, notwithstanding his resistance. He was given up to works of charity; and his letters concerning the reconciliation to the Church of those who had fallen during time of persecution are a monument of charity and prudence. When the persecution of Decius broke out, he left Carthage so that he could more securely minister to the wants of his flock, but returned to help the sufferers during an epidemic. St Cyprian was a great upholder of the See of Peter, but was not afraid to oppose Pope St Stephen I about baptism given by heretics. When Valerian's persecution began, Cyprian was banished, and saw in a vision his future martyrdom. Being recalled from exile in 258, sentence of death was pronounced against him, which he received with the words “Deo gratias.” His great desire was to die whilst in the act of preaching the faith; and he had the happiness of being surrounded at his martyrdom by crowds of his faithful children, who all desired to die with him. He ordered twenty-five gold pieces to be given to his executioner, and blindfolded his eyes himself before he was beheaded. Even the heathen respected St Cyprian, both in life and death, and the Church commemorates him on September 16, in a common feast with St Cornelius.

Generosity

The duty of almsgiving is taught both by nature and revelation : by nature, because it flows from the principle imprinted within us of doing to others as we would they should do to us; by revelation, in many special commands of Scripture, and in the precept of divine charity by which we love God for His own sake, and our neighbour for the sake of God.

“Do not let money that the poor are in need of be idle in the bank. When a man has that which he must necessarily some time part with, he does wisely so to distribute it as to receive an eternal recompense from God.”—St Cyprian.

During the plague, St Cyprian assembled the people of Carthage and taught them from the Bible the immense value which God sets upon works of charity. He urged them to show themselves true children of their heavenly Father, “who makes His sun to rise on the just and the unjust.” They gladly answered his appeal : the rich, by giving abundant alms; the poor, by giving their personal help, not only to the faithful, but also to the pagans who were sick.

“He that hath pity on the poor honoureth his Maker.”—Prov. xiv, 31.

18 ST JOSEPH OF CUPERTINO

LIKE his spiritual father St Francis of Assisi, God made this Joseph great in His kingdom by making him like a little child. He was by nature absentminded and slow; he was dismissed by the Capuchins as being too unpromising, and when they took away his lay-brother's habit he said it was as if they tore off his skin. Received among the Friars Minor Conventual, he sought to become a priest. He could only comment on one gospel text, "Blessed is the womb that bore thee." When he presented himself for examination the bishop happened to give him that text to interpret, and was satisfied. His life was a revelation of the gifts of the blessed in Heaven, and the miraculous occurrences attributed to him are on a scale not equalled in the reasonably authenticated life of any other saint. Levitation was conspicuous among them, and some of his flights above the ground are well attested. The world was transformed in his sight; when he went out, if he met a woman he would say that he had met our Lady or some saint. He looked at a flower, and exclaimed, "O God, so visible and yet forgotten!" He called the troubles of life the war of children with popguns, and obedience the carriage to Paradise. The supernatural happenings connected with St Joseph were a source of embarrassment in some quarters, and during his later years he was treated with considerable severity by his superiors. He was secluded in remote friaries, which in turn became centres of fresh fame. He died in 1663.

Childlikeness

God alone is simple by essence; those who become as little children are most like to God.

"Man rises above earthly things on two wings, simplicity and purity".—Imitation of Christ.

Once when asked what he cared for most in the world, St Joseph answered, "I want nothing but to live at the Grotella near the image of the Blessed Virgin, whom I revere and love.” When he entered the church of Assisi for the first time, and saw on the roof a picture of the Mother of God like that of the Grotella, we are told that, exclaiming “My Mother, you have followed me,” he “flew” up to it, many feet above the ground. He would accept no present but flowers, with which he adorned his picture of the Madonna. Then he said playfully, “My Mother is hard to please : I bring her flowers and fruit, and she does not care for them and will not accept them. I ask her what she wants, and she answers, ‘It is the heart which I care for’.”

“Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, he is the greater in the kingdom of heaven.”
—Matt. xviii, 4.

19 ST THEODORE OF CANTERBURY

THE man who brought the Gospel to the heathen English was a Roman, St Augustine; the man who gave the English church a basic structure that endured for 850 years was a Greek, St Theodore. He was born about the year 602 at Tarsus, the birthplace of St Paul, studied at Athens and became a monk. He was in Rome when, the English candidate having died suddenly, Pope St Vitalian in 668 appointed him to the see of Canterbury. He was accompanied to England by an African abbot from Naples, St Adrian; both of them were scholars. St Theodore's principal achievements were in the sphere of organization, administration and discipline. He was the first archbishop whom the whole English church obeyed, and religion and learning flourished under his rule. He made visitations all over the land, he dealt with the troubles between St Wilfrid and St Chad, and he held the first national church council, in 673, at Hertford. Theodore himself had difficulties with St Wilfrid, which St Erconwald of London helped to compose. Theodore showed his quality by his humble apology for allowing Wilfrid to lose his see when he was not at fault, and by his considerate treatment of St Chad. Among the archbishop's ordinances there was said to be one which required that every householder should say the Lord's Prayer and the Creed in English with his family every day. The Venerable Bede wrote that the spiritual prosperity of the English church was greater under St Theodore than ever before. He died in 690, and his praises were written on his tomb at Canterbury.

The All-Round Christian

St Theodore was a good scholar, a devoted bishop and a holy man. We too have to do all we can to cultivate our minds, especially in the things of God; to fulfil all our duties, lovingly as well as faithfully; and to do our utmost to live in every way as befits Christians.

"I beseech you, dearest brethren, in the love and fear of our Saviour, to consider our faith with care, so that we may all unfailingly observe whatever our holy and venerable fathers of old laid down."—St Theodore of Canterbury.

St Hilary of Poitiers writes about good bishops in general in terms that can be applied to St Theodore : "The Lord calls on us all to be untiring in watchfulness, but He commands the rulers of His people, that is, bishops, to await His coming with special care. This then is the wise and faithful servant, head of the household, who looks after the welfare and the needs of those entrusted to him : he listens to his Lord's words and obeys His commands; he strengthens the weak with sound doctrine; he heals what is hurt, brings back those who stray, and feeds the family with the bread of the words of life. If he be taken in the midst of doing these things, the Lord will honour him as a wise and faithful steward, a profitable servant, and he will enter into God's glory."

"Always rejoice; pray without ceasing; in all things give thanks."—I Thess. v, 16-18.

20

ST HILDEGARD

ST HILDEGARD was born in 1098 in Germany, and brought up in a small house of nuns, to the rule of which she eventually succeeded; later she moved the community to the Rupertsberg, near Bingen. As abbess she was most exact in enforcing discipline; she read the hearts of her religious, and knew their inmost thoughts and needs. Hildegard was the recipient of many visions and revelations of a very remarkable character, which she held secret until an inner voice bade her reveal them. Her bishop submitted them to Pope Eugenius III, who on the report of holy men, amongst whom was St Bernard, wrote giving permission for them to be made public. She was consulted on all sorts of matters by popes and emperors, learned men and religious orders; and she wrote to all as she felt bidden, simply and frankly as a messenger of God, without any tinge of selfconsciousness. She wrote on many different subjects, including music and books on medicine and natural history; and she answered questions in theology with a precision and accuracy which showed that her wisdom was an infused gift. When she travelled about on the business of her convent she would address meetings of clergy and lay people, and give them very good advice. St Hildegard holds a place high and almost unique among the holy women whom God has raised up from age to age to denounce corruption and to warn church leaders of the need and duty of reform; but it is above all through her mystical writings that she is remembered. She died in 1179, and the Benedictines commemorate her on September 17.

Unassumingness

“Those who would do God’s work”, said St Hildegard, “must think what they are and what they will soon be—poor earthen vessels, in that they are mortal men and ignorant of heavenly things. They are like trumpets, uttering the secret things of God not of themselves, but as another breathes into them.”

“Self-satisfaction is a steep and dizzy height, on which there is no room to build.”—St Hildegard.

“From all parts of France and Germany,” wrote one of the biographers of the saint, “came unceasing streams of persons of every condition, to whom by God’s grace she ministered in things earthly as in things heavenly. Many came in unbelief and out of perverseness; knowing their hearts, she rebuked and exhorted them, and few resisted the force of her pleadings. Jews even, who had come from mere curiosity or in scorn, she convinced out of their own law and led them to accept the faith of Christ. For she was all things to all men. She received all with lowliness and courtesy, and spoke to each according to his need and capacity, as one dead alike to earthly honour and dishonour, to every thought of self."

"Go, therefore, and I will be in thy mouth; and I will teach thee what thou shalt speak."—Exodus iv, 12.

21 ST MATTHEW THE EVANGELIST

ONE day as our Lord was walking by the sea of Galilee, He saw, sitting at his open office, Matthew the "publican," whose business it was to collect the taxes from the people for their Roman masters. Jesus said to him, "Follow me"; and at once Matthew got up and followed Him. Now the publicans were abhorred by the Jews as enemies of their country, outcasts and public sinners, who enriched themselves by extortion and fraud; no Pharisee would sit with one at table. Our Saviour alone had compassion for them. So Matthew made a great feast, to which he invited Jesus and His disciples, with a number of these publicans, who were now eager to listen to Him. It was then, in answer to the criticisms of the Pharisees, that He said, "They that are well do not need the physician, but those who are sick. I have not come to call the just, but sinners to repentance." After the Ascension, St Matthew remained some years in Judaea, and there wrote his gospel, to teach his countrymen that Jesus was their true Lord and King, foretold by the prophets. Matthew was specially impressed by the majesty of Christ, the Sovereign of our hearts, who spoke with authority and claims obedience from His creatures, who one day will come again to judge the whole world. It is not known where St Matthew's missionary work was done, nor where, how and when he was martyred.

Answering Divine Calls

Obey all inspirations of our Lord as promptly as St Matthew who, as St Bridget says, at a single word "laid down the heavy burden of the world to put on the light and sweet yoke of Christ."

"He who has promised forgiveness to the sinner who repents has not promised a to-morrow in which to do it."—St Gregory the Great.

Traditionally the four evangelists are given emblems from the four living creatures, referred to by Ezechiel and in the Apocalypse : the eagle for St John, the ox for St Luke, the man for St Mark and the lion for St Matthew. Mystical explanations are given of these; but sometimes the last two were reversed, giving the man to Matthew because he begins his gospel with our Lord's human descent. The lion is appropriate to him, as representing Christ's kingly power.

"No man putting his hand to the plough and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God."—Luke ix, 62.

22 ST THOMAS OF VILLANOVA

ST THOMAS of Villanova, a glory of the Spanish church, was born in 1488. He was educated at the University of Alcalá, and for a time taught philosophy at Salamanca. He would break off his lectures to point to a crucifix, exclaiming, "Look there, Christians, look there!" In 1516 he became an Augustinian friar, and was rapidly promoted in the order; while prior provincial of Castile it was he who sent the first Augustinians to the New World, to Mexico. In 1544 the Emperor Charles V appointed Thomas archbishop of Granada, and from the first he made it clear that he was still a mendicant friar : he wore his old habit and lived in complete simplicity, and the souls and bodies of the poor and unfortunate were his first concern. When his chapter made him a present of a large sum of money to furnish his house he said, "What does a friar want with furniture? Our Lord will be the better served by giving this money to the hospital." As a boy he had given away things to the destitute, and now two thirds of the episcopal revenue went in alms every year. He fed several hundred people every day, made himself responsible for the city's orphans and provided for neglected foundlings. During his eleven years' episcopate not a girl was married without receiving a wedding-present from the archbishop. In an age of violence and coercion St Thomas was notably mild, and he lost no opportunity of undoing the harm done by those less gentle than himself. When he died in 1555 St Thomas of Villanova was one of the poorest men in his diocese.

Care for the Poor

To wealthy penitents anxious to make reparation for their sins, St Thomas of Villanova used to point out the means of atonement provided by their very money : "the poor were in need of what it would buy."

"If you want God to hear your prayers, hear the voice of the poor. If you want God to forestall your wants, anticipate the wants of others without waiting for them to ask you, especially those who are ashamed to ask—to make these beg an alms is to make them buy it."—St Thomas of Villanova.

St Thomas, warned of impending death, distributed what money he had to the poor and sent his other goods to the rector of his college, except the bed on which he lay. That he might leave the world as he entered it, this bed he gave to a neighbouring prison for the prisoners, borrowing it only till he should be gone. Feeling his strength fail, he ordered Mass to be offered in his presence; and after the priest's communion, with the words "Into your hands, Lord, I commend my spirit," he gave up his soul to God.

"Thy prayers and thy alms are ascended for a memorial in the sight of God."—Acts x, 4.

23

ST WALTHEOF

ST WALTHEOF was brought up at the court of his stepfather, King David of Scotland, and there formed a friendship with St Aelred. When he had to go out hunting with the king, he would withdraw to some hidden spot and spend his time reading or in prayer. At the first chance he stole away from court to an Augustinian priory in Yorkshire, where he hoped to live and die. But such was not his lot. He was chosen prior of Kirkham, and was sent to Rome to appeal against the election of William Fitzherbert as archbishop of York. On his return, an interior call and the advice of St Aelred moved him to exchange to the Cistercian Order. Scarcely had he done so when a violent reaction set in, and it was only after bitter suspense that he felt assured of having followed God's will. He became abbot of Melrose, and governed his monks with great charity. He had a very sensitive conscience, to a degree that sometimes irritated his confessor. But Waltheof was gentle with others, his voice was sweet and soft, and a certain spiritual joy always shone in his face. Once he appeared before King Stephen in England with a bundle on his back. His brother, who stood by, said to the king, "See how my brother and your kinsman disgraces his family." But Stephen answered, "If you and I had only the grace to see it, he does honour to us all." St Waltheof died about the year 1160; a stone in the ruins of Melrose marks his grave. His feast-day is August 3.

Daily Trials

St Waltheof teaches us what he taught his monks—that we must never fear a cross because it looks alarming, but must try and find that aspect of it that makes it light.

"God prepares souls for His grace by inward trials through which the affections are cleansed, constancy is tried, and an occasion is given for the exercise of virtue."—St John Climacus.

St Waltheof's trial in his Cistercian novitiate is described by his biographer. Observance of the rule became hateful to him, while his former life, less austere, seemed more guided by Christian prudence and more fit for saving of souls. The temptation increased the more he prayed against it, till at length one day he flung himself down in utter dejection and asked only to do God's will, whatever it might be. At once his spirit was filled with light, and from that moment he felt neither regret nor doubt. At the end of the year he received the white habit from his friend St Aelred, who clothed him with the usual form: "May the Lord put off the old self and its ways from you." Great was the joy of his heart as the brethren answered "Amen".

"It is I, fear ye not."—Mark vi, 50.

24 ST PACIFICO OF SAN SEVERINO

THE vocation of Pacifico was foreshadowed in childhood, when he used to dress up in old rags, declaring that he intended to be a Franciscan. Both his parents dying, he was left to the care of his uncle, a priest, who treated him with great harshness, using him as a servant in the house. But the boy suffered no harm, and in 1670, at the age of seventeen, he entered the house of Franciscan Observants at San Severino, his native place. As soon as he was ordained priest he devoted his life to gaining men for God, and travelled about the country, preaching and ministering the sacraments. After some years of this active life he was forced into retirement by a disease of the legs which almost totally deprived him of their use; but in spite of this he was summoned by his superiors to act as guardian of the convent of San Severino. His fellow townsmen received him as a saint, nor could all his humility prevent their respect being shown. During the last years of his life he suffered uninterruptedly, lameness, blindness and deafness successively hindering, though they could not stop, the various works he undertook for God's service. For this end he worked untiringly until God called him to His peace in 1721.

Regularity of Life

St Pacifico teaches us to perfect ourselves by the exact fulfilment of our individual duties, and that to fulfil them as well as possible we must live by rule.

“The more perfectly things are ordered, the greater their perfection.”—St Augustine.

St Pacifico has left no mark on the great events of his time as have many saints. His perfection lay in doing perfectly the work, humble as it might be which lay before him. He reached great spiritual heights and was marked by a supernatural absorption in God, and the one means he took was close observance of the Franciscan rule. While travelling about Italy on his missions this was the theme of his discourses and exhortations—minute faithfulness to the daily duties of life, whether in or out of the world. During his whole life in religion he was never known to infringe any direction of his rule, though he always interpreted it in the most severe and literal way.

“Hold to thy rule, leave it not : keep it, for it is thy life.”—Proverbs iv, 13.

25 ST SERGIUS OF RADONEZH

THE best known and most revered of all the holy men of Russia is St Sergius of Radonezh. He was born near Rostov about the year 1315, of a family that had come down in the world and become peasants. At the age of twenty or so he took up the life of a hermit in a forest some way from Moscow. Disciples gathered round, and the afterwards famous monastery of the Holy Trinity came into being. Like other great monks, such as St Bernard of Clairvaux, Sergius was consulted by the authorities of church and state. He was appealed to as a peace-maker and arbitrator; more than once vain attempts were made to get him to accept the primatial see of the Russian church; and Prince Dmitry Donskoy asked his advice before he, the prince, defied and routed the Tartar overlords in a great battle in 1380.. In some ways St Sergius is reminiscent of St Francis of Assisi (his attitude to wild nature, for instance), and the attractiveness of his personality gives him a similar place in Russian hearts to that of Francis in the West. His vision of the Mother of God recounted in his biography is one of the earliest things of the kind recorded in the lives of Russian saints. St Sergius lived to be nearly eighty, and his last illness was his first. He died among his monks in 1392.

Profitable Servants

‘Whether our responsibilities are great or small, God gives us the necessary grace and ability to carry them out; and we must use that ability to co-operate to the full with that grace. In particular, every one of us has the responsibility of giving a good Christian example to those among whom we live and move.

“Brethren, pray for me. I am an ignorant man : yet I have received a talent from on high for which I shall have to give an account, an account, too, of the family entrusted to me.”—St Sergius, when elected abbot.

Late one night when he was praying for his community, Sergius heard a voice call his name. He went to the window, and saw everything outside lit up by a shining radiance; and as he watched, all the air and sky was filled with what seemed to be a huge flock of birds. Then the voice went on : “God has heard your prayer. The number of your disciples will be as great as this flock of birds, gathered in the name of the ever-living Trinity under your guidance. If they follow in your footsteps they will not grow less as time goes by.”

“Well done, good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things I will place thee over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.”—Matt. xxv, 21.

26 THE NORTH AMERICAN MARTYRS

THE Jesuit martyrs of North America, all Frenchmen, suffered death at the hands of Red Indians between the years 1642 and 1649. They were eight in number, six priests and two lay helpers; and their ceaseless labours in a then unknown land, the fiendish torments some of them endured, and their noble deaths have excited universal admiration for them. They had none of the encouragement of facing their persecutors publicly and confessing Christ amidst the support of their fellow Christians : they were done to death in the wilderness and in remote villages. St Antony Daniel, St Charles Garnier and St Noel Chabanel died alone : the first two while ministering to their respective flocks during raids by hostile tribes, the last murdered out of hatred of the faith while on a journey. St Rene Goupil was tomahawked for blessing an Indian child. St Isaac Jogues and St John Lalande were tortured and killed together. St John de Brébeuf and St Gabriel Lalemant suffered the most revolting mutilations for hours on end, each encouraging the other to stand firm. Nor did they all have the help of strong natural qualities and enthusiasms; Father Chabanel was unadaptable, loathing life among the Indians, and he was in a constant state of spiritual dryness; Father Lalemant was physically weak and sensitive, yet his torments lasted longer than those of the stout Father de Brebeuf. But all died as they had lived, faithful followers of Him who was led as a sheep to the slaughter and was dumb as a lamb before its shearers.

Meekness

Thank God for every slight and injury you have to bear. An injury borne in meekness and silence is a true victory. It is a proof that we are good soldiers of Jesus Christ, disciples of that heavenly wisdom which is first candid, then peaceable.

“So, Lord, you will always protect your servants. They will not lack patience in suffering or constancy in confessing your name.”—From the Mass of St Maurice of Agaunum in the old Gothic Missal.

Violence triumphs over meekness for a little, but in the end Christ fulfils his promise and the meek possess the earth. The blood of these martyrs was the seed of a great harvest in all the tribes among which they had worked. Father de Brébeuf wrote that religion as the Indians understood it was a matter solely of fear, and so the missionaries had to start by teaching the older ones something they could understand, namely, that the ultimate destiny of every soul is either Heaven or Hell. The children were more well-disposed, and the appeal of Christ to them helped to infuriate their elders against the missionaries. It was in such unpromising ground that the harvest grew through the grace of martyrdom meekly accepted.

“We are made a spectacle to the world and to angels and to men.”—I Cor. iv, 9, quoted by St John de Brébeuf to St Gabriel Lalemant during their sufferings.

27 ST ELZEAR AND BD DELPHINA

ELZEAR, count of Sabran, was betrothed by his parents while still a child to another child, Delphina of Signe, and they were only about fifteen when they were married. By mutual agreement their relations remained brotherly and sisterly. Elzear had been schooled in a monastery, and he faithfully sought to avoid the smallest things displeasing to God, to offer himself fervently to Him at every moment, and to conceal all heavenly favours in his heart. He recited the Divine Office every day, fasted often, and wore a hair-shirt beneath his courtly garments. Delphina lived in the same way, and in this couple the world saw religious devotion amid secular affairs, contemplation amid the turmoil of public life. For they were great landowners, and Elzear was in the service of the king of Naples and Delphina of the queen. Elzear made himself the advocate of the poor, heard their complaints at all hours, pleading their cause at court; and he was incorruptible by bribery or human respect. He died in 1323, aged thirty-nine, and Delphina then sold their estates in Naples and Provence, reducing herself to live on alms, first in a convent at Naples and then as a recluse in Provence. She carried on her husband's tradition of work for the poor and survived him for thirty-seven years, dying in 1360. Their tomb is still honoured in the cathedral of Apt.

Longing for Heaven

When we expect a temporal blessing, our thoughts are full of it and we feel it can never come soon enough. But although we hope for Heaven, it does not occupy our mind, and we dread the hour of death, which is our only road to it. Let us ask St Elzear to obtain for us some share of that longing for Heaven which filled his soul.

“What a pity it is that, though we are on earth simply to prepare for Heaven, we hardly ever speak of it. How we waste our life and our energies!”—St Elzear.

Elzear lived in such union with God that he was never without the desire for Heaven. Whether he were at table, or engaged in conversation, or taking part in amusements and concerts of music, amidst it all his mind was so occupied with the harmonies of Heaven that he would fall into a kind of ecstasy. He assembled his household every evening for prayers and to talk to them about eternal truths, thus fulfilling an important responsibility in their regard. This meeting was the end of a carefully regulated day that began with Mass.

“Seek the things that are above, where Christ is sitting at the right hand of God.”—Col. iii, 1.

28

ST WENCESLAUS

WENCESLAUS was the son of the second Christian duke of Bohemia, but his mother was a hard and cruel woman, only nominally Christian. Through the care of his grandmother St Ludmila, Wenceslaus was educated in the faith, but on the death of his father, his mother Drahomira, as regent, supported the anti-Christian party in Bohemia. This party feared Ludmila's influence and brought about her murder in the year 921 (She is venerated as a martyr in (Czechoslovakia). Nevertheless Wenceslaus obtained the support of the people and a large part of the country as his own. His mother secured the apostasy of her second son, Boleslaus, who became her ally against the Christians. Wenceslaus meanwhile ruled well, provided for his people, married a wife, and had an heir. For Boleslaus this was the last straw. He invited his brother to a feast, and Wenceslaus, though warned of his danger, went. On his way to Mass the next morning he met Boleslaus and stopped to thank him for his hospitality. Boleslaus replied by a blow in the face; thereupon others ran up and fell upon Wenceslaus, who murmured as he fell at the chapel door, "Brother, may God forgive you". This murder happened in the year 929.

Family Affection

After Cain had killed Abel and was called to account by Almighty God, he asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" That question received no direct answer, for no such answer was necessary. We are our brother's keeper; and we have to remember that it is possible to do deadly harm to a brother or sister or parent in ways much less sensational than killing.

There are touching examples of family affection to be found in the lives of the saints. St Benedict and St Scholastica at once come to mind, and the supernatural vindication of her loving wish, for more time with him, against her brother's scruples.

The public reputation of St Wenceslaus was shown when he was summoned to a council of rulers by the German king, Henry I. Wenceslaus was late, and kept everybody waiting; it was contemptuously suggested that he was probably at his prayers—his habits were known. Someone proposed that he should be cold-shouldered when he did arrive; but Henry had better manners, both towards God and man, and received him with honour. Another story about Wenceslaus is very familiar through the use made of it in the carol "Good King Wenceslas", written a century ago by an Anglican clergyman and scholar, J.M.Neale.

"Whosoever shall do the will of my Father that is in Heaven, he is my brother and sister and mother."—Matt. xii, 50.

29 ST MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS

IN the Old Testament the book of Daniel refers to the archangel Michael as the special guardian of Israel; in the New Testament, the Apocalypse speaks of the great struggle in Heaven in which Michael and his angels overcame Satan and his angels. So it came about that Christians, the New Israel, venerate Michael, the captain of the heavenly host, as their special protector in times of sorrow or conflict, and in the East as having particular care of the sick. The Roman liturgy speaks of him as "a leader in Heaven whom the angelic hosts honour..., God's messenger to the souls of the righteous". He is among the witnesses whom we name when we confess our sins; and the Church calls on him to receive the souls of the dying. In St Jude's epistle there is a curious reference to Michael, which seems to convey a lesson on how controversy should be conducted : we are told that when the archangel "held debate with the devil, in their dispute over the body of Moses, he did not venture to accuse him insultingly; he was content to say 'May the Lord rebuke thee' ". Michael has been particularly revered in England and Wales, where nearly seven hundred old churches are dedicated in his honour. Here, as in other European countries, it was a favourite dedication for chapels built on a hill (such as the St Michael's Mounts in Normandy and Cornwall), doubtless with reference to the vision of the archangel that is said to have been seen on Monte Gargano in Italy, about the year 492.

The Angels

The word "angel" means a "messenger", and the angels are spirits who are God's messengers to mankind, not only on great and special occasions, but to safeguard us at all moments of life. Be mindful of them and call on them trustingly.

"Angels have been given charge of you to keep you in all your ways. Reverence them accordingly, always and everywhere. Do not dare to do in their sight anything that you would not dare to do in mine."—St Bernard.

An archangel is a principal angel; in Jewish and Christian tradition they number seven, though only three of them are mentioned by name in the Bible. As well as two feasts of St Michael, the Church observes feasts of the archangel Gabriel (March 24), who announced the incarnation of God the Son to Mary at Nazareth; of the archangel Raphael (October 24), of whom we read in the book of Tobias; and of the Guardian Angels (October 2). The well-known invocation, "Angel of God, whom God has appointed to be my guardian, enlighten and protect, direct and govern me", seems to have originated in England, in the twelfth century.

"He hath given his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways."—Ps. xc, 11.

30

ST JEROME

ST JEROME was born in Dalmatia about the year 342 and was sent to study at Rome. His thirst for knowledge was insatiable and his love of books a passion; he studied under the best masters and visited foreign cities, wholly devoted to the pursuit of learning. But Christ had need of his strong will and active intellect for the service of His Church. St Jerome felt and obeyed the call, dedicated himself to a single life, fled to the Syrian desert, and there for four years learnt in solitude, penance and prayer a new lesson of divine wisdom. He returned to Rome in 382, where Pope St Damasus gave him the task of revising the Latin version of the Bible, which was to be his noblest work. Three years later he retired to Bethlehem where, helped and encouraged by several holy women friends, he sent from his cell a stream of luminous writings upon the Christian world. It was an age of fierce controversy, and Jerome often gave rein to a hasty tongue and a biting wit; but the sad fault was repaired by a yet greater spirit of penance : he was even harder on his own shortcomings than on those of others. In Bethlehem he continued his work on the Bible, and spent thirty-five years of incessant activity : at one time upholding the sanctity of the monastic state, at another defending the virginity of Mary, but above all delighting to discuss, interpret and unfold the beauties of the word of God. He died in his Saviour's birthplace in 420, one of the four classical Western doctors of the Church.

Bible-Reading

English people have a tradition of love for the Bible, the written word of God, going back to St Bede and Bd Alcuin. Nearly a thousand years ago Abbot Aelfric of Eynsham in Oxfordshire wrote : "Whoever would be one with God must read the Holy Scriptures often and often. For when we pray we speak to God; and when we read the Bible God speaks to us... Happy is he who reads it if he convert the words into deeds."

"To be ignorant of the Scripture is not to know Christ."—St Jerome.

In his encyclical letter on the Study of the Bible, Pope Leo XIII reminds us that our Lord Jesus Christ "used to appeal to the Scriptures during His divine mission on earth"; and that the Apostles "appealed to the sacred writings with great effect in order to persuade people everywhere of the wisdom of Christianity... This is plainly seen in their discourses, especially in those of St Peter". And, says the pope, in the pages of the Bible our Lord's image "stands out, alive and breathing, everywhere bringing comfort in distress, encouragement to virtue and drawing us to love of God. And we find in Holy Scripture so many references to the Church in all her aspects, and so many ready and convincing testimonies to her, that, as St Jerome so truly says, 'The man who is well grounded in the witness of Scripture is a bulwark of the Church'".

"Blessed is the man whom thou shalt instruct, O Lord, and shalt teach him out of thy law."—Ps. xciii, 12.

1

ST REMIGIUS

REMIGIUS, called in French Remi, was born of a Gaulish family about the year 435. When only twenty-two, in spite of canon law and his own reluctance, he was made bishop of Rheims; and his subsequent career showed that the people's choice was inspired by God. Remigius was unusually tall, his face marked by dignity and serenity, his manner gentle and retiring. He was learned, and extremely eloquent in discharging the episcopal duty of preaching, while his charity and compassion were boundless : a noble and holy soul. For so fine a workman God had fitting work. The heathen Franks, under King Clovis, were wresting northern Gaul from the Gallo-Romans. He had a Christian wife, a saint moreover, named Clotilda, and she, Remigius and circumstances brought about, under God, the conversion of Clovis to Christianity. Remigius baptized him, according to tradition at Rheims on Christmas eve in 496. With him Remigius gained many of his followers for Christ, and so eventually the whole Frankish nation was converted - a most important event in the history of Europe. St Remigius encouraged the bishops of southern Gaul in their struggle against Arianism, and himself took part in the reconciliation with the Church of Arians in Burgundy. He died about the year 530, after an episcopate of the astonishing length of seventy-four years.

Humbleness in Success

St Remigius was a man of many natural talents and more divine graces, and success attended his undertakings. Yet he remained humble. We may learn from him to receive men's praise, no less than their blame, quietly and with a lowly heart.

"Humility amid honours is the very honour of honour and the dignity of dignity itself."—St Bernard.

To impress the untutored Franks, St Clotilda saw to it that her husband's baptism should be carried out with the greatest possible external solemnity and splendour. But the most famous detail of the occasion are the words to King Clovis that St Gregory of Tours ascribes to St Remigius at the font: "Humble yourself! Worship what you have burned, and burn what you have worshipped!"—words which may be addressed to every penitent to express the change of heart and conduct that is required of him.

"The greater thou art, the more humble thyself in all things : and thou shalt find grace before God."—Ecclus. iii, 20.

2 ST THOMAS OF HEREFORD

THOMAS CANTELUPE, of a noble Norman family, was born about 1218 and brought up in the court of King Henry III, and there received his call to the priesthood. As a young man he filled the post of chancellor of the University of Oxford, and was then appointed chancellor of England. It was a time full of peril, when king and barons were in armed conflict. Thomas defended the rights both of church and state, shielded the poor so far as he could, and would not look at a bribe. To a rare firmness, prudence and courage he joined a strong concern for the discipline of the clergy who were his vicars in the numerous livings that he held. But Thomas was not chancellor of the kingdom for long; and in 1275 his appointment to the bishopric of Hereford forced him into conflict with powerful lords who had seized the lands of his see. After a hard fight he won the Church's cause, only, however, to be concerned in a more painful strife during his last years. In the course of a disagreement with John Peckham, archbishop of Canterbury, Thomas was excommunicated by the primate, and he went to Rome to plead his cause with Pope Martin IV. The pope received him with respect and the excommunication was lifted. But the journey and strain had been too much for St Thomas, and he died in Italy, in 1282. His body was later taken back to Hereford, where his shrine in the cathedral became the most frequented in the west of England. His feast-day is kept on October 3, and other dates, in several English dioceses.

The Call of Duty

St Thomas wished to live in obscurity : he was obliged, in duty, to undertake high offices in church and state. He sought to live in peace with all men : he was forced into conflict with powerful nobles and with his own archbishop. He had hoped to die amongst his friends at home : he died among strangers in a foreign land.

“Do not let the labours you have undertaken for my sake crush you; do not be cast down by difficulties, whatever their source : whatever happens, find strength and comfort in my promise to you.”—Imitation of Christ.

If St Thomas of Hereford “was by nature careful and prudent in things pertaining to this world”, he was even “more so in those that pertained to God.” He was full of vigour in all that he said and did; and after a passage with him one of his opponents said, “Either the Devil is in you or else you are very familiar with God.” In later life he used to go to confession every day, but only his chaplain knew it. The number of miracles reported at his shrine in Hereford was very large.

“The wicked man fleeth when no man pursueth; but the just, bold as a lion, shall be without dread.”—Proverbs xxviii, 1.

3 ST TERESA OF LISIEUX

TERESA MARTIN was the ninth and youngest child of a French watchmaker and his wife, and was born at Alencon in 1873. She was religiously brought up, and the example of two of her sisters drew her towards the life of a Carmelite nun. This vocation was strengthened at Christmas 1886 when, she tells us, “the divine Child flooded the darkness of my soul with radiant light.” But Teresa was only fourteen, and it was nearly eighteen months later before the bishop allowed her to join her sisters in the Carmel at Lisieux. There she lived for the rest of her short life. The world would probably never have heard of Teresa had she not been told to write down her childhood recollections. The resulting manuscript, covering all her life, was published after her death as a book, The Story of a Soul : it took the Christian world by storm. Sister Teresa's "little way" of spiritual childhood, the way of trust and complete self-surrender, the way of simplicity and perfection in the doing of small things and daily duties, has become a pattern for numberless people; graces without number are attributed to her intercession in Heaven : she is the saint of an era. Feeding her soul on the sacraments and her mind on the Bible and the Divine Office, God enabled her to attain heroic holiness through ordinary means in a short time. She died on 30 September 1897; she was not yet twenty-five years old.

The Little Way

We are all called to be saints and we all think it impossible. Teresa of Lisieux is one of the company of famous saints because she tried to be like them only in their smallest, humblest, most hidden ways.

"I am far from doing what I know I ought to do, but the very desire to do it brings me peace."—St Teresa of Lisieux.

St Teresa consciously set out to be a saint. Undismayed by the seeming impossibility of reaching such a height, she said to herself : "God would never inspire me with desires that cannot be realized, so in spite of my littleness I can hope to be a saint. I could never grow up. I must put up with myself as I am, full of imperfections, but I will find a little way to Heaven, very short and direct, an entirely new way. We live in an age of inventions, and the wealthy no longer have to take the trouble to climb the stairs; they take a lift. That is what I must find, a lift to take me straight up to Jesus, because I am too little to climb the steep stairway of perfection. So I searched the Scriptures for some hint of my desired lift until I came upon these words from the lips of Eternal Wisdom : 'Whosoever is a little one, let him come to me' (Isa. lxvi, 13)."

"Father, Lord of heaven and earth,... thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and hast revealed them to little ones."—Matt. xi, 25

4

ST FRANCIS OF ASSISI

FRANCIS, the son of a merchant of Assisi, was born in that city in 1192. Chosen by God to be a living manifestation to the world of Christ's poor and suffering life on earth, he was early inspired with a high respect and burning love for poverty and humbleness. The thought of the Man of Sorrows, who had not where to lay His head, filled him with envy of the poor, and compelled him to renounce the wealth and position in the world which he abhorred. The scorn and hard usage which he met with from his father and fellow townsmen when he appeared among them in the garb of poverty delighted him. "Now", he exclaimed, "I can say truly 'Our Father who art in Heaven!' " Divine love burned in him too mightily not to kindle like desires in other hearts. Many joined themselves to him, and were constituted by Pope Innocent III into a religious order, which spread rapidly throughout Christendom. St Francis, after visiting the East in the vain quest of martyrdom, spent his life like his divine Master—now in preaching to the multitudes, now in fasting and contemplation amid desert solitudes. During one of these retreats he received on his hands, feet and side the print of the five cruel wounds of Jesus. With the cry “Welcome, Sister Death!”, he passed to the glory of God in 1226.

Poverty

“My God and my all!” This constant prayer of St Francis explains both his poverty and his wealth.

“Holy poverty is so excellent and divine a treasure that we are not worthy to possess it : for it is the heavenly virtue by which all earthly, transitory things are trodden under foot, and the soul is freed from every hindrance to its union with the eternal God. This is the virtue which makes the soul, while still on earth, converse in Heaven with the angels. This it is which was with Christ on the cross, which was buried with Him, which rose again with Him, which went up to Heaven with Him; which even in this life makes it easy for souls that love it to rise to Heaven, provided they do not fail in true humbleness and charity.”—St Francis of Assisi.

Brother Giles relates that ants were not so dear to Francis as the other creatures, because they are so concerned to heap up in summer an abundant store of food against the winter. St Francis used to say that he much preferred the birds, because they do not lay by anything today for tomorrow.

“Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.”—Matt. v, 3.

5 ST MAURUS AND ST PLACID

ST MAURUS, son of the patrician Equitius, was born in Rome, and at the age of twelve was placed under the care of St Benedict in his monastery at Subiaco; here in due course Maurus became a monk. One day another boy, Placid by name, fell into a lake, and was carried some distance from the bank. St Benedict saw this in spirit in his cell, and he called to Maurus to run and pull him out. Maurus obeyed and drew Placid safely ashore by the hair : only then did Maurus notice that he had run out on the water. He attributed this miracle to the prayers of his master, but St Benedict ascribed it to the obedience of his disciple. Placid, however, agreed with Maurus : "When I was being dragged out of the water," he said, "I saw the abbot's hood above my head, and I judged it was he who was getting me out." When St Benedict withdrew to Monte Cassino he left St Maurus in charge at Subiaco, but nothing more is known of his life except that he was revered as a saint, whose feast the Benedictines keep on January 15. It was for long mistakenly supposed that St Placid died a martyr's death in Sicily, probably through confusion with another martyr of the same name. His feast is on October 5. It is most probably equally mistaken that St Maurus founded the abbey of Glanfeuil, at the place called Saint-Maur-sur-Loire in France.

Obedience

Every act of obedience, however trifling, done for God's sake is a step towards everlasting life. God does not allow anyone to suffer harm through being obedient. Disobedience brought death into the world; obedience, life.

“The more we subject ourselves to others, having no will but that of those who are over us, the more we shall master our own will, so as to conform it to the will of God.”—St Teresa of Avila.

The counsel of obedience, to which monks and other religious commit themselves by vow, has its root in the words our Lord addressed to the rich young man : “If you want to be perfect, follow me.” Jesus submitted wholly and perfectly to His Father’s will, and we all have to obey God; to obey man too, according to our age and state of life. “The man who opposes authority is a rebel against the ordinance of God,” writes St Paul, “and rebels secure their own condemnation.”

“An obedient man shall speak of victory.”—Proverbs xxi, 28.

6

ST BRUNO

THIS Bruno was born at Cologne about the year 1030, and must not be confused with an earlier St Bruno of Cologne, who was archbishop there. When he was only twenty-seven, our Bruno was professor of theology at the cathedral school of Rheims, and afterwards chancellor of the diocese. On the death of the bishop the see fell for a time into evil hands, and Bruno retired with a few friends into the country. There he resolved to forsake the world, and live a life of retirement and contemplation. With six companions he applied to St Hugh, bishop of Grenoble, who gave them a wild solitude called the Chartreuse, which they occupied in 1084. There they lived in poverty, self-denial and silence, each apart in his own cell, meeting only for the worship of God, and employing themselves chiefly in copying books. From the name of the spot the Order of St Bruno was called Carthusian (and its monasteries, in English, charterhouses); it is said to be the only order which has never needed reform. Six years later the pope, Bd Urban II, who had been his disciple at Rheims, called him to Rome, that he might avail himself of his guidance. Bruno tried to live there as he had lived in the wilderness; but the echoes of the great city disturbed his solitude, and, after refusing high dignities, he wrung from the pope permission to resume his monastic life in Calabria. There he lived, in humility and mortification and great peace, till his death in 1101.

Remembrance of Eternity

“O everlasting kingdom,” wrote St Augustine, “kingdom of endless ages, whereon rests untroubled light and the peace of God which passes all understanding, where the souls of the blessed are at rest and everlasting joy is theirs, where sorrow and sighing have fled away! When shall I come and appear before God?”

“Eternity is stamped upon the minds of saints by gazing on the eternity of God.”—St Gregory the Great.

St Hugh of Grenoble spent so much time at the Chartreuse that St Bruno recommended him to return to his diocese lest his flock should suffer from the shepherd's absence. The Count of Nevers made a long stay there to learn how to serve God with more fervour; and on his return home he remembered their extreme poverty and he sent them many costly gifts and much plate. The saint sent back these gifts, saying that they were simply wasted on them. The count then sent them a quantity of parchment and leather, to be used in copying and binding books, and these were gratefully accepted.

“I thought upon the days of old, and I had in my mind the eternal years.”—Ps. lxxvi, 6.

7

ST AMMON

AMMON came of a wealthy family in Egypt where he was born about the year 488. Being left an orphan, he wished to serve God in solitude but his relations constrained him to marry. However, Ammon read to his wife the words written by St Paul in praise of virginity, and obtained her consent to live together as brother and sister, which they did for eighteen years. Ammon rose early and spent the day in his garden, cultivating medicines for the poor and aromatic plants. At sunset he spent some time in prayer, and then joined his wife for their only daily meal, of vegetables and fruit. At length his wife gave him liberty to go where God inspired him, and he retired to the desert of Nitria. It was a barren solitude, where he hoped to live alone with God; but his holiness became known, and before he died it was peopled with fervent solitaries, who came to live under his direction. Ammon's wife meanwhile had turned her house into a sort of convent, and he used to visit the community there every six months. Nitria was one of the two great monastic deserts of Egypt; St Ammon was one of the first hermit monks to live there and was in touch with his countryman the great St Antony. When Ammon died, about 350, he had been in Nitria for twenty-two years. Antony, many days' journey away, learned of his death instantaneously, through a vision. Feast-day, October 4.

Public Worship

The Church summons us at least every Sunday to meet together as a body for the public worship of God, leaving our private prayers in order to join in those of the Church herself. Pope Pius XII reminds us that the most effective possible means for the achievement of holiness is the worship which the Church offers to God in the celebration of Mass and her other offices.

“It is no longer as it was under the Old Covenant, when the people were not allowed to partake of the priestly things. Now the same Body and the same Blood are offered to all without distinction.”—St John Chrysostom.

There were hundreds of monks in the Nitrian desert, some living alone, others in communities. They had a great church in a central spot at which all of them assembled every week-end, spending Saturday in preparation for Sunday; on Sunday the Holy Sacrifice was offered by the senior priest, who also preached to the great gathering. Afterwards they dispersed again to their various dwellings, fortified and encouraged for the week ahead and with their sense of unity strengthened. When St Ammon wanted to impress on his monks the necessity of living recollectedly, he told them that they should always be as attentive and reverent as they were when they stood before the altar at the eucharistic Sacrifice.

“Do this for a commemoration of me.”—I Cor. xi, 24.

8 ST BRIDGET OF SWEDEN

BRIDGET was born of a Swedish noble family about 1303, and as a child was deeply affected by a sermon on the Passion; the following night she saw our Lord in a vision, covered with blood, which a voice told her was caused by men's indifference to His love. From this time the image of Christ crucified was ever present to her, and she would shed tears at the sight of His bleeding wounds. She was married to a young lord, Ulf Gudmarsson, and became the mother of eight children, one of whom, Catherine, is honoured as a saint. Ulf died in 1344, and Bridget soon undertook the foundation of a religious order, "of the Holy Saviour" ("Bridgettines"); it was primarily for nuns but also for monks, and its first house was at Vadstena. She experienced numerous visions and revelations, all of which she scrupulously submitted to the judgment of her confessor; these revelations were written down at her dictation, and the book became famous. Not long before her death, Bridget went on pilgrimage to the Holy Land, and amidst the very scenes of the Passion was further instructed in the sacred mysteries. St Bridget was ever most humble, gentle and charitable, and God's graces were poured out on her. She died in Rome in 1373.

Frequent Confession

"Is confession a matter of much time or expense?" asks St John Chrysostom. "Is it a difficult or painful remedy? Without cost or hurt, the medicine is ever ready to restore you to perfect health."

"With every confession man draws nearer to God, gains a clearer knowledge of his inward state, becomes more active in virtue, more fit for mercy, and better disposed to receive high gifts.”—St Laurence Gius-tiniani.

St Bridget's devotion to the Passion made her more and more anxious to purify her soul; she confessed very frequently and, after her husband's death, even every day. Profoundly conscious of her own sinfulness, she wept for her least faults with more tears than others shed over enormous crimes. God gave her such a horror of sin that one careless word of her own instantly brought a bitter taste to her mouth, while the bad language of others was a stench in her nostrils.

“I said, I will confess against myself my injustice to the Lord. And thou hast forgiven the wickedness of my sin.”—Ps. xxxi, 5.

9

ST JOHN LEONARDI

JOHN LEONARDI began life as an apprentice in a chemist's shop at Lucca, where he became an enthusiastic member of a brotherhood conducted on the plan of the Oratory at Rome. He thus conceived a devotion for St Philip Neri and his methods that remained with him all his life. At the age of twenty-six the death of his father enabled John to realize his long-formed wish of studying for the priesthood. Knowing no Latin, he took his place among the youngest boys at the schools, and after four years was ordained priest. His holy, kindly and gentle ways drew together several young men who served his church, and with this little community he founded his Congregation of the Clerks Regular of the Mother of God. Its object was to win souls, after St Philip's plan, by frequent preaching, popular devotions and good recreation. But it met with strong opposition in Lucca, and John had to seek support elsewhere. In Rome he was the guest and penitent of St Philip Neri, who at once detected his holiness and ability. Philip lodged him at San Girolamo, warmly defended his cause with three successive popes, and contributed to the official recognition of the new congregation. St John also received much help and encouragement from St Joseph Calas Sanctus. He died in 1609, from an infection caught while nursing the sick.

Friendship

“Do not open your heart to everyone”, says the Imitation of Christ, “but discuss your affairs with someone who is wise and God-fearing. St John Leonardi found such a one in St Philip, and he never looked for another.

“A true and firmly built Christian friendship is not brought about by selfish interest, mere bodily proximity or deceitful flattery, but by the fear of God.”—St Jerome.

Father Leonardi, shortly after his ordination, converted a young shoemaker of evil life, one George Arrichini. He became a most regular member of the saint's confraternity, and his sincere repentance inspired a young man named John Baptist Cioni with a deep regard for him. When then Leonardi took Arrichini to educate him for the priesthood, Cioni also asked to live with them, and, being admitted, voluntarily took on himself the doing of all the house-work. Cioni's example confirmed Arrichini's still wavering vocation, and the two young friends, dissimilar in all but their love of God, became John's first companions in his Congregation of the Mother of God, and died in it.

“True friendship, elixir of life, and of life eternal! Only those who fear God will come by it.”—Ecclus. vi, 16.

10 ST FRANCIS BORGIA

FRANCIS BORGIA, Duke of Gandia, was one of the handsomest, richest and most honoured nobles in Spain, and it was while he was the Emperor Charles V's viceroy in Catalonia that, as he tells us himself, God prepared him to be father general of the Society of Jesus. He was born in 1510, and his career “in the world” came to an end with the death of his beloved wife in 1546. When he had settled his children, he became a Jesuit, and where he had ruled as viceroy he went about in an old tattered habit, preaching Christ crucified to the poor. He had entered the Society of Jesus to cut himself off from any chance of dignity or preferment. But in 1565 his order chose him to be its head. Francis only abased himself the more, and an ever-growing sense of his sins, though his life had always seemed so stainless, made him feel the lowest of all. He had practically founded the Society in Spain and Portugal, and he now undertook its final organization as a whole; he sent the first Jesuits to the Americas, and was virtually the founder of the Roman College. But he did not confine himself to the duties of his office : when Rome was stricken by plague, he organized a relief-fund, and sent the fathers out two by two to attend the sufferers. When Pope St Pius V sent a cardinal on a mission to France and Spain, he chose Francis to accompany him, and, worn out though he was, the saint obeyed at once. The fatigues of the embassy exhausted what little life was left. On his return to Rome in 1572 he died within two days, after sending his blessing to each of his children and grandchildren as their names were rehearsed to him by his brother.

Contempt of Self

St Francis Borgia learnt the worthlessness of earthly greatness by long experience of the world; he learnt the dignity of Christian humility in meditation on our Lord's humiliation. Do we learn anything about ourselves in the same ways?

For six years, Francis told his novices one Maundy Thursday, he had taken his place—the one he best deserved — at the feet of Judas; but that day he had found Christ our Lord there, washing, drying and kissing those feet. There was now no fit place left for him, Francis, at all.

A Spanish nobleman said once to Borgia, "How can you bear the fatigues and hardships of your journeys, made as they are in such a poverty-stricken way?" "There is nothing to be surprised at," was the reply. "We do not travel so unprovided as you imagine. I always send someone on before to see to lodgings and whatever else we require." The gentleman was rather puzzled. "Sir," St Francis added, "knowledge of myself, and the tale of my demerits which justly deserve Hell, are my outriders and foragers."

"He that hath been humbled shall be in glory; and he that shall bow down his eyes, he shall be saved."—Job xxii, 29.

11 ST PAULINUS OF YORK

PAULINUS was one of the twelve Roman missionaries sent by St Gregory the Great to reinforce St Augustine in the conversion of England. After some stay among the Christian converts in Kent, he accompanied Ethelburga to the court of her betrothed husband Edwin, the then heathen king of Northumbria. Paulinus was already consecrated bishop; the flock was to be collected by his own exertions. King Edwin at last consented to summon his priests and nobles to hear the new teaching. The burning words of the missionary pierced the darkness of their souls, and the king was baptized, with numbers of his subjects, on the spot where York Minster now stands. Then Paulinus travelled throughout Northumbria, preaching to multitudes, and baptizing many in the rivers and streams of the countryside. At the end of six years an invasion of the heathen, in which Edwin was killed, undid the work of Paulinus for the time; and he had to go back to Kent with the widowed Ethelburga. He was then appointed bishop of Rochester, where he laboured till his death in 644. But his work in the north was not wholly lost, and aged people would tell with pride how they had been baptized by the majestic bishop, tall in stature, stooping from toil, but unbent in spirit, Paulinus, the first apostle of Northumbria. His feast-day is October 10.

Renewal of Baptismal Promises

So many Anglo-Saxon Christians became saints because they did what every Christian promises to do. They renounced the Devil and his works for ever, and they carried their white garment stainless before the judgement-seat of Christ.

“The enemy has been cast out of your hearts. You promised to renounce him, at that profession which, not man only, but God and His angels witnessed, when you said, ‘I do renounce him’. Renounce him, then, not only in word but in work, not only by the lips but in every act of your life.”—St Augustine.

When it was asked who should destroy the pagan temples of Northumbria, Coifi, a heathen priest converted by Paulinus, got up and said, “Who is fitter than myself to destroy, through the wisdom which God has given me, the things which I used to worship in my folly?” Accordingly, he went out and cast a spear into the midst of the temple, in order to desecrate it, and then ordered it to be burned to the ground. If we endeavoured with equal gratitude to destroy the idols that lead us astray the grace of our baptism would bear more fruit.

“For we are buried together with Him by baptism into death : that, as Christ is risen from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we also may walk in newness of life.”—Rom. vi, 4.

12

ST WILFRID

“A QUICK walker, accomplished in all good works, with never a sour face”—such was the great St Wilfrid, who did so much to strengthen the links between England and Rome. He was born about the year 634, and was trained by the monks at Lindisfarne in the rites and usages of the Celtic church. Even as a young man he was an advocate of Roman usage, and at the first chance set off himself for Rome. On his return, being ordained priest, he was made abbot of a new monastery at Ripon, where he introduced the Rule of St Benedict, and at the Council of Whitby obtained the adoption of the Roman date of Easter. In 664 he was elected bishop of Lindisfarne, and five years later was transferred to York. This was the beginning of a long period of troubles, during which St Wilfrid came into collision, not only with Northumbrian kings, but also with the great St Theodore of Canterbury. He was twice exiled and once imprisoned; and he thrice carried his cause to the Holy See (the first examples of such appeals in English history). Sternly uncompromising in matters of principle, Wilfrid was a most tender father with his flock. During his exile he converted many Friesland savages by his kindly ways, and taught the men of Sussex to fish while he won their souls to God. He was reconciled with St Theodore before the latter's death, but encountered more opposition from his successor; peace was at last made four years before St Wilfrid's death in 709.

Looking to Rome

To look towards Rome is an instinct planted in us for the preservation of the faith. Trust in the Vicar of Christ necessarily follows from the reign of love for Christ in our hearts.

“Because of her pre-eminent position, it is necessary that every church (that is, the faithful who are everywhere) should come to this Roman church, and all that have kept the apostolic tradition do resort to her.”
—St Irenaeus.

At the Council of Whitby in 664 the differences between the adherents of the Celtic and Roman usages—particularly as to the time of the observance of Easter—came to a crisis. Wilfrid concluded an enthusiastic address on the Roman side by quoting the words of our Lord to St Peter, "I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of Heaven...". "Can you," asked King Oswy of St Colman, the leader of the other party, "can you show any such power given to your Columba?" He answered, "None", and admitted that the promise was made to Peter alone. "Then he is the doorkeeper," replied the king, "whom I will obey, lest when I come to the gates of Heaven there be none to open to me."

"Upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, I have appointed watchmen all the day and all the night; they shall never hold their peace."—Isa. lxii, 6.

13 ST EDWARD THE CONFESSOR

EDWARD succeeded to the throne of England at the age of forty years, twenty-seven of which he had passed in exile. On the throne, the virtues of his earlier years—simplicity, gentleness, lowliness—shone with new brightness; he was not a vigorous ruler, but neither was he the feeble, ineffective man that is sometimes portrayed. It is said that so little did he set his heart on riches that thrice when he saw a servant robbing his treasury he let him escape, saying the poor fellow needed the gold more than he. He loved to stand at his palace-gate, talking kindly with the beggars and lepers who crowded about him, many of whom he healed of their diseases. He was conscientious in his kingly duties. The long wars and the Danish oppression had brought the kingdom to a sad state. The land was half untilled, the nobles turbulent, the clergy relaxed. Edward's zeal soon wrought a change, and in after years men spoke in praise of the "laws and customs of good King Edward". A later chronicler calls him "a man devoted to God, living an angelic life in the government of his kingdom, and therefore directed by Him... He was so gentle that he would not say a reproachful word to the least person." He was very hospitable, and a great hunting-man. He died in 1066, a week after the consecration of Westminster abbey-church.

Love of God's House

King David longed to build a temple for God's service. King Solomon reckoned it his glory to accomplish the work. But we, who have God made flesh dwelling sacramentally in our tabernacles, ought to think no time, no zeal, no wealth too much to devote to the beauty of a Christian church.

"The place is indeed awe-inspiring and worthy of all reverence which is the home of the faithful, the dwelling-place of angels, the very habitation of the presence of God."—St Bernard.

In commutation of a vow to visit St Peter's tomb at Rome, St Edward refounded the abbey of St Peter at Westminster, his noblest work. It occupied his last sixteen years, during which he spent a tenth of his income on it. He fell ill during the preparations for its dedication, and on his death-bed provided for its sacred vessels and ornaments, and signed the deeds for its endowment. He just lived to see the completion of his work of love, and the church he had raised became the shrine of his relics. Amid all the destruction of sacred things in England, St Edward's body has remained undisturbed within it to this day.

“I have loved, O Lord, the beauty of thy house, and the place where thy glory dwelleth.”—Ps. xxv, 8.

14

ST CALLISTUS I

EARLY in the third century Callistus, who apparently had had practical and bitter experience of temporal administration, was entrusted by Pope St Zephyrinus with charge of the cemeteries of the Christians at Rome; the pope also ordained him deacon. His name is best known in connection with the old cemetery on the Appian Way, which was enlarged and adorned by him and is called to this day the Catacomb of St Callistus. Many popes and countless martyrs and other faithful were laid to rest there, “whose bodies are buried in peace; who came out of great tribulation, having endured for Christ’s name the pains of death that they might obtain an inheritance in the house of the Lord.” On the death of Zephyrinus, Callistus was elected in his place; his short pontificate was disturbed by attacks made on him by rigorist clergy, who found his rule too mild for their taste. It has been remarked that Callistus might appear as a very great pope if only more were known about him. There is reason to think that he was martyred, perhaps during a riot, about the year 222. He was buried on the Aurelian Way, not in the cemetery that bears his name.

Reverence for the Dead

In the dead body of a Christian we see that which has been the temple of the Holy Ghost, which even now is precious in God’s eyes, who will one day raise it in glory to shine for ever in His kingdom. Let our actions bear witness to our belief in these truths.

“This is a great work. If we are bidden to clothe the naked in life, how much also the bodies of the dead. If we shelter travellers bound for distant lands, how much also those who have departed to that eternal home whence they will never return.”—St Ambrose.

The place where St Callistus was buried was called the Cemetery of Calepodius. This Calepodius was a priest who is said to have been martyred in a popular rising, and his body thrown into the Tiber. A fisherman recovered it and brought it to Callistus, who buried it honourably in the place where he himself was to rest.

“He fed the hungry, and gave clothes to the naked, and was careful to bury the dead.”—Tobias i, 20.

15 ST TERESA OF AVILA

ST TERESA was born at Avila in Spain in 1515 and, after a period of uncertainty, joined the Carmelites. There was a long period of lukewarmness and distraction, for the discipline of the order was much relaxed; but this presented itself as a challenge to the great-hearted Teresa, and in 1562 she founded the first convent of nuns of the restored primitive observance. This she followed up with sixteen further foundations, as well as, with St John of the Cross, establishing the reform among the friars. This was all done in the teeth of strong opposition, under the handicap of ill-health, and with no material resources. Teresa was one of the greatest of mystics and of mystical writers, and she received supernatural gifts as lofty as her teaching. But she feared nothing so much as being deluded, and she always acted under obedience to or with the approval of her confessors and advisers, which both made her strong and kept her safe. She learned to realize the presence of God so intensely that she saw sin as it really is, and would say that "we get more harm from one small fault than from all the powers of Hell put together." St Teresa died in 1582.

Obedience to Confessors

"After all, I die a child of the Church." These words of St Teresa teach us the lesson of her life—to trust in humble childlike obedience to our spiritual guides as the surest means of salvation.

"You, O God, prepare the ways of the obedient soul and order those things we have to do, so that, without our knowing how, but by faithfully observing for love of God the commands laid upon us, we find ourselves growing spiritually and making great progress, which afterwards fills us with wonder."—St Teresa.

"It is true", said the saint, "that I am the weakest and most wicked of creatures; but I believe that whoever will humble himself, though he be strong, and not trust in himself but in one who has experience in these matters, will not lose anything. For myself, I can say that if our Lord had not shown me this truth, and had not enabled me to meet and talk frankly with persons who were given to mental prayer, I should have gone on falling and rising till I had fallen headlong into Hell. It was God alone who gave me the helping hand. May He be praised for ever! Amen."

"We have had fathers of our flesh for instructors, and we revered them. Shall we not much more obey the Father of spirits and live?"—Heb. xii, 9.

16

ST HEDWIG

ST HEDWIG, the wife of Duke Henry of Silesia, and the mother of seven children, led a humble, austere and holy life in unpromising surroundings. Happily she had the support of her husband, and together they established a number of religious houses and hospitals in Silesia. Hedwig greatly valued the privilege of supplying the bread and wine for the Sacred Mysteries, and she would attend each morning as many times as Mass was celebrated. Summer and winter she walked barefoot to church, and spent whole hours in prayer. In honour of Christ and His Apostles, she always supported thirteen poor persons suffering from incurable disease. When they had grown up some of their children were the cause of trouble and grief to the parents. An exception was the daughter Gertrude, who became abbess of Trebnitz, near Breslau; this Cistercian house had been founded by St Hedwig and her husband, and it was the first convent of women in Silesia. Duke Henry died in 1238, and Hedwig retired to Trebnitz till her own death in 1243, a short time after her eldest son had been killed in battle.

Assisting at Mass

We all know that it is desirable to assist at Mass every day if we are able, and to receive communion at Mass whenever possible. For this is to honour God and for our own good and the good of our neighbour. But if for good reason we are not able to do these things, let us remember to be thankful for those who can and do, since all we members of Christ's Body profit by their opportunity and devotedness.

"We are not tied to a certain time and a certain place. Whenever and wherever Christians join together in the Eucharist with love and joy, there is a true Easter festival."—St John Chrysostom.

St Hedwig's devotion to the Mass communicated itself to her eldest and best loved son, Duke Henry, called "the Good". When he advanced against the Tartars who were devastating Silesia his first action on the morning of battle was to have Mass celebrated, at which he and his army received communion. That day Henry was slain; and when St Hedwig heard the news, she thanked God for having by such a death admitted him to His kingdom of glory.

"What shall I render to the Lord for all the things that He hath rendered to me? I will take the chalice of salvation, and I will call upon the name of the Lord."—Ps. cxv, 12-13.

17 ST MARGARET MARY

MARGARET MARY ALACOQUE was born in Burgundy in 1647. She was a devout and good little girl, but later was, with her widowed mother, treated very unkindly by some of her relatives. In 1671 she entered the Order of the Visitation, at Paray-le-Monial, and was professed the following year after a rather difficult noviciate. She experienced frequent visions of our Lord, but at the same time some of her sisters in religion distrusted and ill-treated her. "God alone knows what I had to suffer," she wrote, "as much through my impulsive and sensitive disposition as from my fellow creatures and the Devil." Then, in 1673, Jesus first showed her His heart, burning with love for men and wounded by their sins and cold indifference. In 1675 the great revelation was made to her that she was to be the chief instrument for instituting the feast of the Sacred Heart, and for spreading that devotion throughout the world. Thus Margaret Mary from the disciple was made the apostle of the Heart of Jesus, and her apostleship was not an easy one, though helped by Bd Claud La Colombière. She was, too, tried inwardly, by temptations to despair, vain-glory and self-indulgence. But she persevered in her duties and her mission, suffering to the last. "I shall not live, for I have nothing left to suffer", she said, and died in 1690. Seventy-five years later Pope Clement XIII first allowed the Sacred Heart feast.

Devotion to the Sacred Heart

Love for the Sacred Heart of Jesus especially honours the Incarnation, and soon makes the soul grow in humbleness and generosity, in patience and union with the object of its love.

"O God, who art pleased to pour out on us the boundless treasures of love in thy Son's heart, wounded by our sins, grant that by offering him devout homage we may also worthily fulfil our duty of reparation."—The Roman Missal.

"After that the divine heart was shown to me, as it were on a burning throne, more shining than the sun and transparent like crystal, with that worshipful wound; it was girt about with a crown of thorns, signifying how it is hurt by our sins; and above it was a cross. This cross signified that from the moment of the Incarnation, when that sacred heart was created, the cross was driven into it and it was filled with the bitterness of the humiliations, distress, sorrows and scorn that Christ's sacred manhood would suffer all through His life and in His blessed passion." Thus St Margaret Mary wrote to a priest after the first of the visions of the Sacred Heart.

"Man shall come to a deep heart, and God shall be exalted."—Ps lxiii, 7.

18 ST LUKE THE EVANGELIST

ST LUKE, a physician, was a gentile, probably a Greek, who was converted to Christ by St Paul, whose fellow worker he became. He is best known to us as the historian of the New Testament. Though not an eye-witness of our Lord's life, he diligently gathered information from the lips of the Apostles, and wrote, as he tells us, all things in order. It is the gospel of mercy and redemption through the precious Blood; and, as St Mark wrote under the influence of St Peter, so St Luke seems everywhere to be animated by the mind and heart of the Apostle of the Gentiles. The Acts of the Apostles were written by Luke as a sequel to his gospel, bringing the history of the Church down to the first imprisonment of St Paul at Rome. Luke never names himself, but by his occasional use of "we" for "they" we are able to detect his presence in many of the scenes which he describes. We thus find that he sailed with Paul and Silas from Troas to Macedonia; stayed behind at Philippi, watering where the Apostle had planted; and shared the shipwreck and perils of the memorable voyage to Rome. Here his own narrative ends, but from St Paul's letters we learn that Luke, whom he affectionately terms "the beloved physician," was his faithful companion to the end. Nothing is known for certain about what happened to St Luke after Paul's martyrdom; he is traditionally venerated as a martyr, but the historical evidence is slight.

The Precious Blood

Christ gave all He had for you: give all you have for Him.

"Precious indeed is the blood of Christ, for it is the blood of an unstained body, the blood of the Son of God, who has redeemed us, not only from the curse of the law, but also from the everlasting death of sin."—St Ambrose.

The emblem of St Luke in the vision of Ezechiel is the ox, the animal of sacrifice. The Fathers of the Church saw a special fitness in this, for in the fourfold picture of the life of Christ drawn by the Evangelists it is the priesthood of Jesus and His shedding of His blood for sinners that characterize Luke's gospel. The opening scene is the sacrifice of the priest Zachary, about to make way for the sacrifice of the new law. St Luke alone mentions the circumcision, the first bloodshedding. He alone describes the sweat of blood in the agony in the garden. The parables which he relates breathe the same spirit and, like those of the Prodigal Son and the Good Samaritan, show the wounds inflicted by sin and the tender healing mercy of the Physician of our souls.

“Knowing that you were not redeemed with corruptible things, as gold and silver,... but with the precious blood of Christ.”—1 Peter i, 18-19.

19 ST PETER OF ALCANTARA

PETER, while still a youth, left his home at Alcantara in Spain, and entered a friary of strict Franciscans. He rose quickly to high posts in the order, preached with great effect, and was remarkable for his austerity of life—so much so that when he was over fifty he determined to establish a yet stricter branch of his order. This he did in the face of some discouragement. Among the observances of these “Alcantarins” was always to go barefoot, to have cells only seven feet long, and not to accept stipends for offering Mass. St Peter’s own cell was four feet and a half in length, so that he could never lie down properly. He ate but once in three days; his sackcloth habit and a cloak were his only garments. In winter he would open the door and window of his cell that, by closing them again, he might experience some sensation of warmth. His body was shrunk and withered, and his skin like the bark of a tree; but his face shone with the love of God, and he spoke with such tenderness and conviction as to touch all hearts. We learn these details from St Teresa of Avila, whom Friar Peter helped on the road of perfection. He read her soul at once, recognized her wonderful spirit of prayer, and encouraged her in her reforming work. He died in 1562.

The Power of Penance

“It is said,” wrote St Teresa, “that man’s health has grown feeble, and that we are not now as in former times. But Friar Peter of Alcantara lived in our day : he had a spirit strong as those of another age, and so he trampled on the world. If men do not go about barefoot nor undergo sharp austerities as he did, there are many other ways of trampling on the world; and our Lord teaches them when He finds someone with the necessary courage.”

“The trouble is that we all talk about reforming others without ever reforming ourselves.”—St Peter of Alcantara.

St Teresa testifies to the power of St Peter’s intercession : “See how a penitential life is perfected in great glory : he is a greater comfort to me now, I do believe, than he was on earth. Our Lord once said to me that people could not ask Him anything in St Peter’s name and He not hear them. I have recommended many things to him that he was to ask of our Lord, and my petitions have been granted. God be blessed for ever! Amen.”

“A faithful saying : for if we be dead with him, we shall live also with Him ; if we suffer, we shall also reign with him.”—2 Tim. ii, 11-12.

20

ST JOHN OF KANTI

NO country, perhaps, has suffered more steadfastly for the faith than Poland, and its constancy is due, under God, to the many holy natives of that country whose lives have witnessed to the truth of Christ. Amongst them is this St John, who was born at Kanti in 1403, and studied at Cracow with ability, industry, and success, while his modesty and virtue were commensurate. He became professor and preacher, and won great influence by his perfect consistency, "doing as well as teaching," and his sweetness and simplicity of manner. He was for a short time sent to take charge of a parish; but he shrank from the burden of responsibility, and gladly returned to his life of professor at Cracow, where he held the chair of Sacred Scripture at the university till the end of his days. He lived a life of unobtrusive virtue, self-denial and charity. He slept little, and on the ground; for thirty years before his death he ate no meat; more than once he gave his all to the poor, even the clothes and the shoes he wore. When he went on pilgrimage to Rome, he did the journey on foot. St John's life had no great incidents: it was so hidden, so harmonious and simple that after his death the miracles which attested the power of his intercession were almost as much a surprise as an edification. He died in 1473.

Simplicity

He who orders all his doings according to the will of God, without asking or caring what others think, may often be spoken of as simple and stupid; but in the end he wins the respect and trust of the world itself, and God's approval and peace.

"No virtue is more necessary to every one of us than a modest simplicity."—St Cyril.

As St John of Kanti was going once to Rome, robbers attacked him and demanded all his money. In his confusion he forgot that some gold pieces were sewn up in his clothes, and said that he had no more. When they were gone, he remembered the hidden coins, ran after the robbers and, apologizing for telling a lie by mistake, offered them the money he had forgotten. The robbers were so startled by his simplicity and innocence that they gave back all they had taken from him, and asked his forgiveness.

“A simple and upright man, fearing God and avoiding evil.”—Job i, 8.

21

ST HILARION

ST HILARION was born of heathen parents near Gaza, and was converted to Christianity at the age of fifteen while studying in Alexandria. Shortly after, he visited St Antony, and became a solitary there in the desert. But so many people came to see St Antony that Hilarion went to Palestine to look for a quieter spot. Later there began an unsatisfied quest for complete solitude that distinguished his closing years: his wanderings took him so far afield as Sicily, Dalmatia and Cyprus; but he was in southern Palestine for nearly half a century. Here he persevered in his life of converse with Christ till he was endowed with supernatural power and charity. The mother of three children who were dying sought his aid, and he left the cell which he had not quitted for six-and-twenty years, and healed her children by his blessing. When those whom he cured offered him money in gratitude, he used to answer, “Freely I have received : freely I give.” Even the heathen sought his prayers. Many monks, attracted by his holiness, came to the desert where he lived, and it was in consequence of this that he fled from one country to another; but everywhere his miracles of mercy betrayed his presence. It was to Cyprus that he came at last, and here after a short time he died, near Paphos, about the year 371. His disciple St Hesychius took his body back to Palestine.

Charity Towards All

It is not austerity which distinguishes God's saints. They were saints because they made their austerity a means of uniting themselves with Christ, and forming themselves according to His lowliness and charity. No work is good unless it makes us grow in love for God and man.

"How much sweeter and pleasanter, how much more comforting, is the hunger of charity than the too-much of selfishness."—St Aelred.

The monks who peopled the desert cultivated it and planted it with vineyards. Before the vintage, Hilarion used to visit all his brethren, receiving their hospitality. He blessed the vineyard of a monk who was generous in entertaining the brethren, but rebuked the brother who was niggardly. Thus, solitaries as they were, he bound them together in charity, till the waste places were changed into paradise and the wilderness blossomed like the rose.

"And now there remain faith, hope and charity, these three : but the greatest of these is charity."—I Cor. xiii, 13.

22 ST CAESARIUS OF ARLES

CAESARIUS had spent thirteen years as a monk when, in the year 503, he was chosen for the bishopric of Arles. Trusting to God's grace, and taking St Augustine for his pattern, he accepted the burden and ruled that church forty years. His first care was to provide for the daily singing of the Divine Office, at which he wished the laity to assist as often as possible. He preached himself on Sundays and holidays, and prescribed spiritual reading after Matins and Vespers every day, "lest his flock should faint through hunger for the word of God." His revenues, the charge of which he left entirely to others, were consecrated to Christ in the persons of the sick and poor; and in the siege of Arles by the Burgundians he melted down sacred vessels to relieve the needs of the prisoners-of-war who were brought into the city. One of his most important achievements was the foundation of a nunnery at Arles, which became famous; he drew up a rule for it, and his sister, St Caesaria, was the first abbess. Caesarius was twice driven from his see, but was set free by King Theodoric, to whom he was brought at Ravenna. "I trembled," said the king, "when he entered my presence. He has the face of an angel." St Caesarius went on to Rome, where Pope St Symmachus gave him the pallium; it is said that he was the first bishop in western Europe to receive it. He died in 543, and his feast is kept on August 27.

Little Sins

We need to be reminded that small sins, "venial", as we say, are nevertheless sins, an offence to God and a stumbling-block to man, daily imperfections that clog the free working of the soul.

"Venial sins are blotches, which do not indeed kill the soul, but, like some hideous disease, fearfully disfigure it."—St Caesarius.

St Caesarius insisted in his sermons on the dangers of little sins, and on the punishment which awaits those who are careless about them. He says in one homily : "If any think themselves clear of serious sins, and trust in a perilous security because of their innocence, let them be careful lest a multitude of little sins make their life a burden, harassing them like the teasing of flies or fleas. We dread fierce and deadly beasts which kill at one bite, and shrink from tiny insects which can torment us, so, by God's grace, let us redeem both our mortal sins and our venial offences (without which we cannot live) by daily almsgiving, by prayer, and by loving our enemies with our whole heart."

"He that is unjust in that which is little is unjust also in that which is greater."—Luke xvi, 10.

23

ST THEODORET

ABOUT the year 362 Julian, uncle to the emperor of that name, and like his nephew an apostate, was made prefect of the East. He ordered that valuable church vessels should be given up to him, at which many of the clergy at Antioch went into hiding. A priest named Theodoret, who continued to hold Christian assemblies, was summoned before the prefect's court. The only charge against him was his zeal for the house of God; and when he refused to offer heathen sacrifice he was tortured again and again, till the blood streamed from his sides. But for himself he feared neither death nor torments, and it was the persecutors who had cause to fear. "You serve the Devil," he said to Julian, "but it is Jesus Christ, the saviour of the world, who gives victory." The prefect, though he hardened his heart, trembled when Theodoret prophesied the awful death which was soon to overtake him, and was glad to rid himself of the saint's presence. He had him despatched quickly by the sword. Julian then seized the church vessels and treated them with atrocious contempt; but his imperial nephew and namesake rebuked him for killing Theodoret and thus making a Christian martyr, and the prefect died soon after as had been foretold.

Fear of God's Judgements

St Philip Neri tells us that those who do not go down to Hell in spirit are very likely to go there in reality. Take care, then, to meditate upon the four last things, and to live in holy fear. You will learn to love God better by thinking about the miseries of those who do not love Him.

"Fear of God is the beginning of salvation : if we fear, we shall beware; if we beware, we shall save our souls."—Tertullian.

According to the legend, St Theodoret prophesied the death of the Emperor Julian, as well as of his uncle : "Your master is setting out in hope of victory against the Persians. He will never return : he will be slain in a strange land, and no one will be able to tell who struck the blow." The emperor was struck down by a stray javelin in Persia in the following year. But there has been confusion between St Theodoret and St Theodore, a contemporary who was tortured at Antioch, but not executed.

"Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself; and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread, and he shall be a sanctification to you."—Isa. viii, 13-14.

24

ST LOUIS BERTRAND

ST LOUIS was born at Valencia in Spain in 1526, of the same family as St Vincent Ferrer. As a youth he was modest and devout, and spent much time in the hospitals ministering to the sick. In 1545 he was professed in the Dominican Order and, after being made priest by St Thomas of Villanova, was made master of novices, and trained up many servants of God. Throughout his life he had an intense dread of losing the grace of God, and to safeguard it he increased the sufferings of ill-health by voluntary austerities. When the plague broke out in Valencia he devoted himself to the sick and dying and to burying the dead. About this time he met St Teresa at Avila, and encouraged her in her work. In 1562 Louis was sent to the South American mission, and there evangelized immense districts, baptizing large numbers and this in spite of the fact that he could speak only Spanish. After six years he returned to Spain, to plead the cause of the oppressed Indians, but he was not allowed to return among them. He spent his remaining days toiling in his own country, till in 1580 he was carried from the pulpit in the cathedral at Valencia to the bed from which he never rose again. He died eighteen months later, and his feast-day is October 9.

Fear of the Judgement

The saints fasted, toiled and wept for love of God; but they were not free from the fear of being eternally lost. How shall we, with our self-indulgent lives and unexamined consciences, face the judgement-seat of Christ?

“Alas! I know not on which side the sentence of my Judge will place me.”—St Louis Bertrand.

When Louis left his home in Spain for the labours and sufferings of the South American mission, he was so weak that he was often obliged to lean against walls or a tree for support; yet no amount of penance could pacify his fear of God’s judgements, and frequently the thought of the uncertainty of his salvation would make him literally tremble all over. Time wasted, graces squandered, besides actual sins, rose up to condemn him, and his only consolation was to throw himself at the foot of the cross and implore the Eternal Father’s mercy through the merits and sufferings of His Son.

“It is appointed unto men once to die, and after this the judgement.”—Heb. ix, 27.

25 ST JOHN OF BEVERLEY

MONASTERIES were to the Anglo-Saxons homes of religion, centres of industry and schools of learning. The monk who left his cloister to rule a diocese gathered crowds of eager students round him. St John of Beverley was one of these great monastic bishops. He spent his early years at Whitby under St Hilda, and was afterwards raised to the see of Hexham, and then to that of York, where none were so poor or ignorant but he tried to instruct them in the truths of salvation. St Bede, who had been ordained by Bishop John, tells this story, together with miracles wrought by him. It was the bishop’s custom to retire during Lent to some solitary spot; and on one occasion he had with him a dumb youth to teach. St John made the sign of the cross on the boy's tongue, and bade him make the sound "Yea". He uttered the sound as he was told; and then, day by day, John taught him new letters and words, till at length the youth could speak properly. So delighted was he with his new gift that he would not stop talking! St John of Beverley died in the year 721. His feast is kept on May 7 or October 25.

Teaching the Ignorant

Some people are religiously deaf and dumb : by your alms or aid open their ears and unloose their tongues.

"If you saw your son dying of hunger you would not ignore it. Will you, then, do nothing when, though fed in body, he is perishing for want of the food of heavenly knowledge?—St John Chrysostom.

Dame Julian of Norwich writes of St John of Beverley in her Revelations of Divine Love : "In his youth and in his tender age he was a dearworthy servant to God, loving and fearing God greatly. Yet God suffered him to fall, mercifully keeping him that he perished not, nor lost no time. And afterward God raised him to much more grace, and for the contrition and meekness that he had in his living, God hath given him in Heaven manifold joys, overpassing what he would have had if he had not fallen. And that this is true, God sheweth on earth by plenteous miracles done continually near his body."

"Instruct thy son, and he shall refresh thee and shall give delight to thy soul."—Proverbs xxix, 17.

26

ST MALCHUS

MALCHUS, a Syrian, in spite of opposition from his parents, gave himself to God in the monastic state, and lived in it well and happily for some years. His father's death left him heir to an estate, and he wanted to go and take possession of it for his monastery, the poor and himself. His abbot saw this as a temptation and begged him not to go : but Malchus went. On his way the caravan was surprised by Beduin, and he and a Christian woman were carried off into slavery in the desert beyond the Euphrates. Malchus worked so well among the herds that his master told him to marry his fellow captive, and thus ease his lot. But he was a monk, and she was already married in her own country. So they lived as brother and sister, and at length they made their escape together. Their master and one of his men followed in their track, but the Arabs were killed by a lioness, and Malchus with his companion escaped on the very camels which had been used to overtake them. They reached Edessa in safety, and there parted. Malchus ended his days in a monastery at Maronia, near Antioch; the woman never found her husband, and died near her old friend. St Jerome tells the story, saying that he had heard it from the lips of the aged Malchus himself. His feast-day is October 21.

Fidelity to Grace

There is no peace except in fidelity to grace. If we fly from the crosses God lays upon us, we shall find other and heavier ones in a life of sin. If we would regain our peace, we must return to God along the royal highway of the Cross.

“Let us remember our profession and our engagements to God. We should not run away because of hardships, but seek our rest in the consolations of the Lord.”—St Pachomius.

During his captivity, Malchus was one day sitting in the desert, thinking sorrowfully of his monastery and of the abbot who had been a father to him. While doing so, he saw a troop of ants hard at work, and the quietness and order with which they toiled quickened his longing for the peaceful monastery which he had deserted. It was then he resolved to trust himself to God, and to risk his life in an escape in the hope that he could again join his brethren.

“He that shall persevere to the end, he shall be saved.”—Matt. xxiv, 13.

27

ST EUSTOCHIUM

ST EUSTOCHIUM was the youngest daughter of the patrician Roman widow St Paula, St Jerome's friend and disciple. Her mother and St Marcella, “the glory of Roman womanhood,” watched over her youth with untiring care, and Jerome spared no pains to befriend her whom he calls “the flower of maidens” : Eustochium is said to have been the first noble Roman girl to take the veil of Christian virginity. When Paula gave up her position for a life of more perfect devotedness and self-sacrifice, Eustochium gladly followed her example; and when Paula, bidding adieu to her home, sailed for Palestine, she was accompanied by her best-beloved child. Togethert hey visited the places consecrated by the sufferings and resurrection of Christ; and Paula having founded a community at Bethlehem, Eustochium joined it : she was housemaid and cook. At her mother's death she succeeded her in the charge of her enterprises, and gave a bright and beautiful example of generosity in the service of God. St Jerome continued to watch over her whom his austere teaching had first guided in the path of perfection. Many of his letters are addressed to Eustochium, and her sympathy and wisdom encouraged him in his work of translating the Bible into Latin. St Eustochium died at Bethlehem about the year 419, and St Jerome soon followed her. September 28 is her feast-day.

The Spirit of Sacrifice

We may learn from St Eustochium to hold the honours and riches of this world at their true value, keeping our hearts ever fixed upon eternal joys.

“Dear Eustochium, my daughter and sister—for my age and affection allow me to give you these names—since by birth you are the first among Roman virgins, strive all the more to do your work to the end, and do not lose present and future joys through the folly of a half sacrifice.”—St Jerome.

Eustochium's resolve to follow an ascetic life provoked the opposition of her relatives, especially her uncle Hymettius and his wife Praetextata. They dressed her in fine clothes and loaded her with jewels, striving by flattery and persuasion to shake her resolution. But the young saint's firmness remained unshaken. As soon as she could escape, she joyfully resumed her plain dress and simple ways, and went to join her mother.

“None of you can be my disciple if he does not take leave of all that he possesses.”—Luke xiv, 33.

28

SS. SIMON AND JUDE

SIMON was a Galilean, called by our Lord to be one of the builders of His Church. The Evangelists are silent about his early life and the way in which he came to follow Christ. They record none of his words, but when inscribing his name in the list of the Apostles they write his character in a single word, "zealous", the name which he bore among the disciples. Armed with this zeal he went forth to the combat against unbelief and sin, and made conquest of many souls for his divine Lord. The Apostle Jude, whom the Church commemorates on the same day, was a brother of St James the Less. They were called "brethren of the Lord," on account of their relationship to His mother Mary. It is not known what happened to Simon and Jude after Pentecost; but it is said that Jude preached first in Mesopotamia, and Simon in Egypt; and that finally they met in Persia, where they won their crown of martyrdom together. They were united also in their characteristic graces. Men named St Jude, Thaddeus, "the brave"; and every line of the Epistle which he left to the Church breathes the spirit of fiery and courageous zeal. He bids all disturbers of Christian unity beware of God's judgements; while with tender words he beseeches his dearly beloved to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints."

"Other Sheep"

By baptism we are all called to be apostles, and we have when occasion serves, especially when we are questioned, to set forth our faith, not only to those who have no religion, but also to Christians who are outside the Church's unity. To do this properly we must know our religion well, by prayer, by study and by living it. We must remember, too, that our neighbours judge the Church less by our words than by our deeds and "what sort of people we are".

"Catholics are sometimes lacking in right appreciation of their separated brethren, and are even wanting in brotherly love, because they do not know enough about them."—Pope Pius XI.

After speaking very severely of those who have deliberately set themselves up against the Church, St Jude tells the faithful they must build their own lives on their holy faith and go on praying in the power of the Holy Spirit, keeping themselves in the love of God and waiting for our Lord's mercy, with everlasting life always before their eyes. Then they will be able to treat each non-Catholic or non-Christian in the way best suited to the individual, some in one way, some in another.

"Other sheep I have that are not of this fold : them also I must bring. And they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."—John x, 16.

29

ST NARCISSUS

ST NARCISSUS was consecrated bishop of Jerusalem about the year 190. He was already an old man, and God attested his goodness by miracles, which were long held in memory by the Christians of Jerusalem. But his very virtue made him enemies, and three men charged him publicly with some atrocious crime.

They confirmed their slander by fearful imprecations : the first prayed that he might perish by fire, the second that he might be wasted by leprosy, the third that he might be struck blind, if they charged the bishop falsely. Even so they were not believed; but Narcissus had long desired a life of solitude, and he withdrew into the desert, leaving his church in ignorance of where he was. But God spoke for him who would not speak for himself, and the falsity of the accusation was vindicated against those who brought it. When he heard this, Narcissus returned to Jerusalem, to find another bishop in his place; but at the entreaty of his flock he resumed his office. He died in extreme old age, bishop to the last; for God, who had protected his good name, sent him a coadjutor to share his burden when he was unable to bear it alone. The death of St Narcissus took place about the year 215, and he is said to have been 116 years old.

Trust in God

Let us do the work God gives us in His name, and commit the result to Him. He never fails those who trust in Him : He guides them through darkness and through trials gently and surely to their end, and in the evening time there is light.

“Lord, what you say is true : your care over me is greater than the care I can take of myself. He who does not cast his whole care on you is putting himself in great peril.”—Imitation of Christ.

Among the miracles of St Narcissus one is recorded which illustrates that same confidence in God which sustained him under calumny. One Holy Saturday in the church the faithful were in great trouble, because no oil could be found for the lamps which were used

In the paschal vigil. Thereupon Narcissus bade the deacons draw water from a well; when the water was brought, he prayed over it and, full of faith in God, told them to put it in the lamps. It was changed into oil, and long after some of this oil was preserved at Jerusalem in memory of the miracle.

“Cast all your care upon God, for he hath care of you.”—I Peter v, 7.

30 ST ALPHONSUS RODRIGUEZ

THIS St Alphonsus was born at Segovia in Spain, about the year 1533, his father was a wool-merchant. While he was studying in the University of Alcalá his father died, and he was called away to carry on his business in Segovia, where he shortly afterwards married and became the father of two children. But Alphonsus, who had always led a most holy life, was not destined to continue to serve God in the world. He failed in business, and death deprived him of his wife and both his children. He was already nearly forty years old and he wanted to be a priest; but eventually he offered himself as a lay-brother to the Society of Jesus. This he did from humility, and God rewarded him with a marvellous gift of prayer and of those graces of infused knowledge which flow from the immediate teaching of the Holy Ghost. Alphonsus was made hall-porter of a college in the island of Majorca, and his reputation for holiness soon became common knowledge. He was consulted by neighbours and people from a distance, in his intercourse with whom he manifested a knowledge of future events, the secret thoughts of men's hearts, and other supernatural gifts. St Peter Claver, the apostle of the Negroes, was among his spiritual children, and the two were canonized together. St Alphonsus Rodriguez, who died in 1617, must not be confused with two other Jesuits of the same name, one a beatified martyr in Paraguay, the other an ascetical writer.

The Lowest Place

Everyone praises humility, but only very good people love to be humbled. Learn from St Alphonsus to prefer always the lowest place, as the only one fitted for yourself.

“To try to know oneself is the foundation of everything. He who knows himself despises himself, while he who does not know himself is puffed up.”—St Alphonsus Rodriguez.

In 1604, when the Forty Hours' Prayer was being held in the college of Majorca, chairs were taken from the rooms of the community for the accommodation of the crowds in the church. When the chairs were afterwards taken back to the different rooms, that belonging to Brother Alphonsus was forgotten. During a whole year the good old man was left without a chair to sit on or to put his clothes on when he went to bed; and had it not been brought back after the Forty Hours in the following year, he would have remained perfectly content without it for the rest of his life. He never thought himself other than a beggar admitted through kindness, one unworthy to receive what was given him.

“He that is the lesser among you all, he is the greater.”
—Luke ix, 48.

31

ST BADEMUS

TOWARDS the end of Sapor's reign, about the year 377, persecution was still raging against Christians in Persia. Nersan, one of the king's entourage, was among the confessors, but he failed at the prospect of torture, and became an apostate instead of a martyr. This, however, was but the beginning of his misery. He had denied Christ for love of life, and then found he was expected to do more. There was an abbot, Bademus, in prison at the same time; and when King Sapor heard of Nersan's fall, he bade the officers lead Bademus to Nersan's cell, and offer him freedom and the restoration of his property if he would slay the monk. Nersan took the sword into his hand; but then stood still, mastered by remorse. He was a layman : Bademus, the head of a monastery. He was about to commit murder for release and riches : Bademus had left rank and wealth for the poverty of a religious life. He was an apostate : Bademus all but a martyr. The saint himself was touched with pity. "Poor man," he said, "I am ready to die; but I wish it might not be at your hands." But Nersan hardened his heart : again and again he struck Bademus with trembling hand till the work was done. The cup of Nersan's iniquity was full, and the martyr's sacrifice complete. The feast-day of St Bademus is April 10.

Wholesome Fear

We ought to have a dread of mortal sin, and make a good confession as soon as possible if we have unhappily fallen into it. "To serve God is to reign": but once we lose His grace we become, not our own masters, but the slaves of the Devil. There is then no sin and misery which may not be in store for us.

“You have lost your soul, and you go about carrying your own dead body. And yet you do not shed a tear or breathe a sigh.”—St Cyprian.

Even in this world no peace or happiness is to be found except in the service of God; those who desert this blessed service open the floodgates of misery. The very heathen were struck with amazement at the composure of Bademus while he was hacked by Nersan's unsteady hand, and devout men collected his relics for the veneration of the faithful. Nersan did not live to enjoy the rewards of his treachery : he perished miserably by the same kind of death which he had inflicted on St Bademus.

“What fruit therefore had you then in those things of which you are now ashamed? For the end of them is death.”—Rom. vi, 21.

1

ALL SAINTS

THE feast in honour of All Saints had its beginnings long ago in the East, in a commemoration of "the martyrs of the whole world". About the year 609, Pope St Boniface IV dedicated a heathen temple in Rome, the Pantheon, as a Christian church, in honour of our Lady and all the martyrs. By so doing, says St Bede, the pope intended that the memory of all the saints should in future be honoured at the place which had formerly been devoted to the worship of false deities. About a century after Bede, another Englishman, Alcuin, speaks of a "very holy solemnity" of all the saints kept on November 1, and the north of England seems to have been one of the centres of the development of the feast. Today it celebrates, not only all the saints in the ordinary meaning of that word, famous or obscure, remembered or forgotten, known or unknown; but also all those whom, throughout man's history, God has taken to himself in Heaven, where they live in blessedness for ever. And tomorrow, All Souls' day, the Church completes today's festival by calling to mind and praying for all those other dead who have fought the good fight and in Purgatory await with joyful patience their ultimate reward. "Therefore", says the Epistle to the Hebrews (xii, 1-2), "we also having so great a cloud of witnesses over our head, laying aside every weight and sin which surrounds us, let us run by patience to the fight proposed to us, looking on Jesus, the author and finisher of faith..."

Remembrance of the Dead

"Let us turn to the martyrs and saints and call upon them to be our protectors," says St John Chrysostom, "not only on their festivals but at other times; for they can be bolder of speech in death than when they lived, since they now bear in their bodies the marks of Jesus Christ."

"There in Heaven we shall see one another again, and be happy without ever growing tired, united together with our Saviour, praising Him with all our might and hymning His mercies for ever."—St Aloysius Gonzaga.

The feast of all the blessed is one of the greatest of the Church's festivals. "In this mystery", wrote J.J. Olier, "our Lord is perfected, for, as our head, He is only perfectly fulfilled when He is united to all His members, the saints. This feast is glorious because it manifests Jesus Christ's hidden life outwardly. The greatness and perfectedness of the saints is wholly the work of His spirit dwelling in them." The holy ones in glory are living and functioning members of Christ's mystical Body who, by that membership and by intercession with Him, are in vital contact with the Church militant and suffering; they are fruits of the Redemption who have reached their last end in the vision of God.

"These are they who have come out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and have made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore they are before the throne of God.”—Apoc. vii, 14-15.

2

ST TARCISIUS

THE acolyte and martyr Tarcisius suffered at Rome about the middle of the third century. The office of carrying the Blessed Sacrament to the imprisoned confessors of the faith was often entrusted to lesser ministers of the Church, and indeed it was frequently given into the keeping of the faithful laity, who were permitted to communicate themselves. When Tarcisius was one day bearing the Holy Eucharist he was stopped by a pagan mob, who pressed him to show them what he was carrying. Mindful of our Lord's injunction not to cast pearls before swine, he refused, and soon fell dead beneath a shower of blows and stones. The Christians buried Tarcisius in the cemetery of Callistus, and about a century later Pope St Damasus wrote some verses for his tomb, which are the sole source of knowledge of the martyr. Tarcisius, he says, was like another St Stephen whom the Jews stoned : “carrying the sacraments of Christ, he chose rather to suffer death than to betray the heavenly Body to raging dogs.” St Tarcisius is usually said to have been a boy acolyte, but this is not known : he may have been a deacon. His feast is kept on July 17 and other dates.

The Bread of Life

“If you wish to receive eternal life,” says St Augustine, “change your own. Otherwise you will be condemned, and so gain, not health, but corruption, not life, but death.”

“How can he die whose Food is life?”—St Ambrose.

The story of a child who suffered for the Holy Eucharist is found in the records of the church of Constantinople. It was there the custom to give children holy communion. One day a Jewish boy in good faith went up to the altar after the example of his Christian school-fellows. On his return home his father was enraged at hearing what he had done, and threw him into a furnace. After some time his mother, who had been looking for him, heard his voice under the fire, and she pulled him out unhurt. A beautiful lady, he said, had cooled the flames around him. The boy was examined by the Emperor Justinian and the Patriarch Mennas, and he and his mother were baptized.

“This is the bread which cometh down from heaven; that if any man eat of it, he may not die.”—John vi, 50.

3 ST MALACHY OF ARMAGH

“OF all St Malachy’s miracles, he himself,” says St Bernard, “was the greatest”, so complete was his victory over self, so active his charity for Christ’s mystical Body, whether in Purgatory or militant on earth. He was born in 1095. At the age of twenty-five he was ordained priest, and set himself to revive church discipline, so far as he was able, for it had fallen into a bad state during the Danish raids. In the course of this work he restored and repeopled the great abbey of Bangor. His devotion and zeal led to his being consecrated bishop of Connor, and shortly afterwards made archbishop of his native city, Armagh. This see having by a longstanding abuse been hereditary in one family, it required no little tact and firmness on the part of the saint to allay the dissensions caused by his election. When he at last succeeded in this undertaking of breaking the hereditary succession he retired to his former see of Connor, not to rest, indeed, but to do more for God. He twice made a pilgrimage to Rome, the first time returning as papal legate amid the joy of his people; but the second time he proved to be bound for a happier home. He was taken ill at Clairvaux, and here he died, where he would have been happy to have lived, in St Bernard's monastery, in 1148 on All Souls' day; it was a fitting birthday for eternity for one who in life had ever been so tender a lover of the Church suffering.

Prayer for the Dead

We ought to remember in our prayers not simply our own dead, not simply all the departed faithful, but all the dead whatever, such multitudes of whom have no one to remember them.

“Prayer for the dead is yet more acceptable to God than for the living; for the departed soul is in greater need, being no longer able to help him or her self.”
—St Thomas Aquinas.

We are told that once, when St Malachy was taking trouble over burying the dead, he was laughed at by his sister, and her amusement gave him pain. When she died he often offered Mass for her. Some time afterwards, in a vision, he saw her mourning, and complaining that she had not tasted food for thirty days. Remembering that it was just a month since he last offered the Sacrifice for her, he recommenced doing so; and eventually, in another vision, he saw her again, now clothed in white and surrounded by bright spirits.

“And making a gathering, he sent twelve thousand drachms of silver to Jerusalem for sacrifice to be offered for the sins of the dead, thinking well and religiously concerning the resurrection.”—2 Mach. xii, 43.

4 ST CHARLES BORROMEO

ABOUT fifty years after the Protestant revolt had begun, God raised up a mere youth to help renew the face of His Church. In 1560 Charles Borromeo, then twenty-two years of age, was created cardinal, and by the side of his uncle, Pope Pius IV, administered many affairs of the Holy See. His first care was the reassembling of the Council of Trent. He urged forward its sessions, guided its deliberations by continual correspondence from Rome, and by his firmness carried it to its conclusion. Then he entered upon a still more arduous work—the execution of its decrees. Charles had been ordained priest and consecrated bishop in 1563, and as archbishop of Milan he enforced observance of the decrees and thoroughly restored the discipline of his see. He founded seminaries for clerics, was the originator of “Sunday schools”, and established a society of priests, “Oblates,” specially trained for pastoral work. His reforms were strongly opposed by civil authorities and by the relaxed priests and religious under his charge; but he never yielded or failed in his task. To his flock he was a most tender father; he would sit by the road-side to teach a poor man the Lord’s Prayer and Hail Mary, visit hovels the stench of which drove his attendants from the door. During the great plague he refused to leave Milan, and was ever by the sick and dying. So he lived, and so he died, in 1584, a faithful image of the Good Shepherd, up to his last hour giving his life for his sheep. St Charles had several contacts with Great Britain : his confessor and vicar general were Welshmen, and he was a munificent benefactor of the English College at Douay.

Daily Renewal

Daily resolutions to fulfil, come what may, every duty asked by God, is the lesson taught by St Charles; and it is a lesson we must learn if we would overcome our weakness and lead upright lives.

“Whoever would go forward in God’s service must begin his life anew each day, must keep himself as much as possible in the presence of God, and in all his actions must have but one object, God’s glory.—St Charles.”

A member of the order called Humiliati, which St Charles was vigorously reforming, determined to destroy him. One evening, when the archbishop was with his household at night-prayers, the murderer slipped in and, as the choir were singing the words, “Let not your heart be troubled,” fired a gun at him. Charles fell forward, and the household sprang to their feet; but, lifting himself up, he told them composedly to go on with prayers. He had felt the bullet and, imagining himself mortally wounded, had commended his soul to God. On examination it was found that the bullet had not pierced his clothing, and had only made a bruise. (The order of Humiliati was abolished in the following year.)

“Though our outward man is corrupted, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.”—2 Cor. iv, 16.

5

ST WINIFRED

SOMETIME in the seventh century Winifred (properly, Gwenfrewi), a Welsh girl of high birth, was moved by the counsels of St Beuno and vowed her maidenhood to God. This excited the rage of Caradog, son of a local chieftain, who sought her in marriage : he assailed her with reproach and insult, and at last, in a paroxysm of fury, fell on her with drawn sword and severed her head from her body. The legend tells how the earth opened to swallow up the wicked Caradog and how, at the prayer of Beuno, Winifred returned to life. Afterwards, we are told, Winifred left home and entered a nunnery at Gwytherin in Denbighshire; here she became abbess, and died fifteen years later. The memory and veneration of St Winifred has been kept alive by her pool at Holywell in North Wales, which is supposed to be at the spot where she was killed. Her feast-day is November 3.

The Prayers of the Saints

“The prayers of the saints,” says St John Chrysostom, “have mighty power to help our need; but they are specially effective when we help ourselves by doing penance, and seek to obtain what we ask by striving after better things.”

“God, who created all things, is in all places, and is everywhere to be worshipped. Yet His infinite wisdom thinks fit to work wonders at the intercession of His saints, not everywhere but when and where it pleases Him.”—St Augustine.

It appears that St Winifred's Well at Holywell has been a place of pilgrimage without a break from the Middle Ages down to today, and in a measure for others besides Catholics. Nor have there ever been wanting cures of sickness, some of which are reputed to be miraculous. Largely because of this shrine of St Winifred, the Catholic community of Holywell has continuity with the faithful of pre-Reformation times.

“In his life he did great wonders, and in death he wrought miracles.”—Ecclus. xlviii, 15.

6 ST STANISLAUS KOSTKA

STANISLAUS was born of a Polish family in 1550. As a boy it was said that he was an angel now, and would be a saint by and by; he was particularly sensitive to coarse talk, and his father used to warn guests to be careful what they said in front of Stanislaus or “he will faint”. At the age of fourteen he went with his elder brother, Paul, to the Jesuits' college at Vienna. Though Stanislaus was always bright and sweet-tempered, his quietness and piety were distasteful to Paul, who treated his young brother very badly. Stanislaus had a dangerous illness, and being in a Lutheran house he was unable to send for a priest. He therefore prayed to his patroness St Barbara, and it seemed to him that she appeared, with two angels who gave him communion. Then, it was said, our Lady told him in a vision to enter the Society of Jesus. To avoid his father's opposition to this, he ran away from Vienna and, having proved his constancy by cheerfully acting as house-boy, he was admitted to the novitiate at Rome. There, after a probation of ten short months, marked by rare obedience and devotion, he died, as he had hoped to die, on the feast of the Assumption, 1568, at the age of seventeen. His feast is kept on November 13.

Patron Saints

St Stanislaus teaches us in every trial of life, and above all in the hour of death, to ask the prayers of our patron saint and to trust fearlessly to his aid.

“He was seen to be our example on earth; he was raised to Heaven to be our patron.”—St Bernard (about St Malachy).

St Stanislaus had drawn as his monthly patron for August the martyr St Laurence, and on his feast he was taken ill, after having asked our Lady that he might die on her Assumption day. A priest joked with him about his physical weakness in so slight an illness. “I am indeed a man of little heart,” he replied, “but this is not slight : I am going to die.” He rapidly got worse, and he received the last sacraments. Then he had brought to him a little book containing a litany in his own writing of his monthly patron saints, whom he constantly invoked. At three in the morning on the feast of the Assumption his face suddenly lit up with joy, and he breathed forth his soul to God.

“The eyes of the Lord are upon the just, and his ears unto their prayers.”—Ps. xxxiii, 16.

7

ST WILLIBRORD

WILLIBRORD was born in Northumberland in the year 658 and was educated under St Wilfrid in the monastery at Ripon. There he grew up like another Samuel, wise and grave beyond his years. When he was twenty he went to Ireland to study with St Egbert and St Wigbert; and twelve years later he felt drawn to go as a missionary of Christ to the heathen peoples across the North Sea. In 690 he went to Rome for the blessing of Pope St Sergius I, and with eleven companions reached Utrecht. The people would not accept the religion of their enemies the Franks; and St Willibrord could only labour in the track of Pepin of Herstal, converting the tribes whom Pepin subjugated. At Pepin's request he again went to Rome, and was consecrated bishop of Utrecht. Willibrord was a handsome man, frank and cheerful, wise in counsel, pleasant in speech, strenuous and unwearied in every work of God. With St Swithbert he evangelized many parts of the Lowlands, in circumstances of great difficulty, and was also helped for a time by St Boniface. It has been rightly said that Willibrord "inaugurated a century of English spiritual influence on the continent of Europe." He laboured unceasingly as bishop for more than forty years, beloved alike of God and of man, and died full of days and good works in the year 739.

Missionary Zeal

True zeal has its root in the love of God. It is therefore kind and tactful, not fanatical or bigoted. It can never be idle; it must labour, toil, be up and doing. It glows like fire, and like fire it can spread endlessly. See if this spirit be in you.

“How can a man say he loves God or desires His love if he leaves His image, man, lying in the mud, and makes no effort to rescue it?”—St Bonaventure.

St Willibrord was once driven by bad weather onto the island of Heligoland, where it was looked on as sacrilege to kill any animal, or to speak while drawing water from the spring. At this spring, he baptized some young Danes whom he had instructed during the voyage, saying the words in a loud voice, and slew what animals he required for food. The ruler of the Frisians ordered the sacrificing of one of the saint's companions in reparation for the outrage to his gods. When Willibrord was threatened with the same fate, he replied calmly by calling on the heathen to turn from his false gods to the one true God, in whom alone salvation is to be found. His appeal was in vain, but the missionary was allowed to go free.

“I have come to send fire on the earth, and what will I but that it be kindled?”—Luke xii, 49.

8 ST OSWALD OF NORTHUMBRIA

ON the death of his father, king in Northumbria, Oswald took refuge in Scotland, and was brought up a Christian by the monks of Iona. In the year 634 he collected an army to recover his throne. On the eve of battle, near Hexham, Oswald set up on the field a great wooden cross, before which he and his army knelt in prayer, though most of them were still heathen. That night Oswald dreamed that St Columba was watching over his troops, and the next day he gained a resounding victory and his throne. The conversion of his subjects was now his great desire; he brought St Aidan from Iona, went with him from village to village, and acted as his interpreter. The two laboured and prayed together with such earnestness and faith that Northumbria soon became a Christian land. Oswald married a daughter of the first Christian king of Wessex and had a sort of nominal overlordship among the English kings. He was most solicitous for the needs of his subjects, and won their hearts by his charity. One Easter-day he was told that a crowd of destitute people were begging at the gate. He at once sent out a silver dish full of meat and ordered the dish itself to be divided among them; whereat St Aidan, seizing the king's right hand, exclaimed, "May this hand never perish!" It is said that after his death in battle in 642, the king's right arm long remained incorrupt. His feast-day is August 9. St Oswald was once widely venerated in Europe.

Perseverance in Prayer

With the help of prayer St Oswald recovered his kingdom, converted his subjects, and attained holiness. How much might we do if only we prayed more.

"This is my only hope and consolation—to turn to you in every trouble, O God, to trust in you, to call on you lovingly, and to wait patiently for your consolation."—Imitation of Christ.

After Oswald had reigned most effectively for eight years, his kingdom was invaded by Penda, the heathen king of Mercia. At Maserfield, Oswald gave battle with inferior numbers; when he saw his force entirely surrounded, he called on Heaven to succour his dying men; as they fell one by one, their sovereign's prayer went before them to the judgement-seat. At last Oswald himself was slain, and his dying prayer, "O God, be merciful to their souls," became a proverb in the north of England.

"Will not God give redress to his elect, when they are crying out to him, day and night?"—Luke xviii, 7.

9 ST THEODORE TIRO

WE are told that this St Theodore was a young soldier in the Roman army at the time of the persecution under the emperors Maximian and Galerius, about the year 306. Theodore had just joined the legion and marched with them into Pontus in Asia Minor, when he had to choose between apostasy and death. He declared to his commander that he was ready to be cut in pieces and to offer up every limb to Jesus Christ who had died for him. Wishing to win him over by gentleness, the commander left him in peace for a while that he might think things over; but Theodore used his freedom to set fire to a pagan temple, and made no secret of this act. Still the judge entreated him to renounce his faith and save his life; but Theodore only answered, "As long as I have breath I will confess the name of Christ." After cruel torture, the judge remarked on the shame to which Christ had brought him. "This shame," Theodore answered, "I and all who call on His name take with joy." After a third examination he was condemned to be burnt alive and this sentence was carried out. His ashes were begged by a woman, who gave them honourable burial; his shrine at Euchaita became one of the most celebrated in the East, and his story was so highly embellished that it became unrecognizable.

Courage and Constancy

We are enlisted in the same service as the martyrs, we fight under the banner of the same victorious King; and we too must have courage and constancy if we would be good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Let us join with them in confessing the faith of Christ and rejecting the world, that we may have part with them in Christ's kingdom.

"I am the king's good servant—but God's first."—St Thomas More.

In an early sermon given on St Theodore's day, attributed to St Gregory of Nyssa, the preacher says : "You were a soldier, so defend us; you were a martyr, so speak for us—ask for peace. If stronger intercession be needed, get all your brother martyrs to pray for us; call on Peter and Paul and John to add their voices for the churches they founded. Pray with them that no false teaching shall arise, but that this Christian commonwealth shall be a fruitful harvest-field."

"Every one that shall confess me before men, I will also confess him before my Father who is in heaven."—Matt. x, 32.

10 ST ANDREW AVELLINO

BORN in 1521, Lancelot Avellino was ordained priest at Naples, and became an advocate in the ecclesiastical courts. One day, while defending the cause of a friend of his, he caught himself telling a lie; and that evening, while reading the Bible, he came on the words "The mouth that lieth kills the soul." He reflected that his legal duties were too engrossing, and thenceforth he devoted himself entirely to the duties of the priesthood. At the age of thirty-five he entered the Theatine Order. He took the name of Andrew, and determined always to resist his own will and daily to advance towards perfection. Terrible and continual sufferings tried this resolve. For fifty years he was afflicted with a most painful disability, and he could not walk without danger and pain; yet he would never use a carriage, and answered sick calls promptly on foot. St Charles Borromeo had great respect for St Andrew, who during his long life did much to raise the standard of the Italian clergy and was a very successful missionary. Not a few miraculous happenings were related of him. Death came to St Andrew suddenly, in 1608.

Preparation for Death

St Andrew is one of the saints specially invoked against sudden death. He was able to receive the last sacraments before he died, which many people cannot because they have put them off till too late. A good life, the last anointing, and viaticum ensure a good death.

“He who hourly awaits death will not fail to die well, even if he die suddenly.—St Alphonsus Liguori.

On the last day of his life St Andrew got up as usual to offer Mass. He was in his eighty-ninth year, and so weak that he could scarcely reach the altar; but no one liked to discourage the good old man. He began the Judica psalm and then fell forward in a fit of apoplexy. He was put to bed, and there recovered sufficiently to receive the sacraments with devotion. In the afternoon, with his brethren praying and weeping around him, he peacefully went to God.

“While life still holds, do thy duty of almsgiving; feasting there shall be none in the grave.”—Ecclus. xiv, 17.

11 ST MARTIN OF TOURS

FOR many centuries St Martin of Tours was one of the most revered saints in western Europe. He was born, about 316, in what is now Hungary, and as a young man had against his will to follow his father into the Roman army. After he was baptized, being stationed in Gaul, he refused a war-bounty, saying “I am Christ’s soldier; I am not allowed to fight”. He offered to stand unarmed between his comrades and the enemy. Subsequently he was discharged and went to Poitiers, where St Hilary enrolled him among his clergy. At Ligugé Martin established what was, traditionally, the first monastery in France, and later a no less influential one at Marmoutier. In 371 he was chosen as bishop of Tours, and became an energetic missionary. Attended by his monks, he destroyed heathen temples and shrines, and brought about a great increase in Christianity around Tours. With St Ambrose he opposed the Emperor Maximus, who had taken it on himself to have a heretic, Priscillian, put to death, and Martin defended Priscillian’s followers against persecution. In this affair he condemned himself severely for having once for the sake of peace yielded to what, he thought, was an unworthy compromise. He was always at heart a monk, and he spent all the time he could with his brethren at Marmoutier. He died in 397. The first-recorded church dedication in England, at Canterbury, was in honour of St Martin of Tours.

Toiling for Christ

It is said that Satan once appeared in royal array to Martin, representing himself to be the Son of God. "My Saviour did not come in princely state," replied the saint. "Where are the print of the nails and the scars of the wounds?" At these words the fiend vanished. It was for Christ crucified that Martin worked. Are you working for the same Lord?

"Lord, if I be still necessary to your people, I will go on working; your will be done."—St Martin, on his death-bed.

The best known story about St Martin is that one winter's day, when stationed at Amiens, he met a beggar almost naked and frozen with cold. Having no money, he cut his cloak in two and gave him half. That night he saw our Lord clothed in the half cloak, and heard Him say, "Martin, only a catechumen has clothed me in this garment." This decided him to be baptized without further delay. According to his disciple Sulpicius Severus, Martin had become a catechumen on his own initiative at the age of ten.

"I judged not myself to know anything among you but Jesus Christ, and him crucified."—1 Cor. ii, 2.

12

ST MARTIN I

POPE ST MARTIN, who occupied the Roman see from 649 to about 656, incurred the enmity of the Byzantine court by his energetic opposition to the Monothelite heresy, which denied that Christ had a human will; it had got a hold in the East. When the pope held a council that censured certain imperial statements, the Emperor Constans II sent a representative to Rome, who seized Martin and put him on board a vessel bound for Constantinople. After a tedious voyage, the island of Naxos was reached, where the pope, who had suffered much from sea-sickness, was kept in confinement for a long time, and finally, in 654, brought in chains to the imperial city. Here he was brought before the senate and found guilty on various false and flimsy charges. He was publicly stripped of his pontifical garments and dragged half-naked through the streets, condemned to die. No words of complaint escaped his lips. "I hope," he said, "that God, when He shall have taken me out of this world, will bring my persecutors to repentance." His sentence was commuted to banishment to the Crimea, where he lingered on for four months in sickness and starvation, till God released him by death. St Martin I is the latest pope to be venerated as a martyr—so far.

Trust in the Holy See

There have been times in the history of Christianity when its truths have seemed on the verge of extinction. But there is one Church whose testimony has never failed : it is the Church of St Peter, the apostolic Roman See. Put your whole trust in her teaching.

"This church of Rome, founded by the Apostles Peter and Paul, retains the tradition she received from them; and to her faith we point for the confusion of all those who in any way form irregular societies."—St Irenaeus.

During the Monothelite controversy, the Emperor Constans issued an edict known as the "Typos" in which, for the sake of peace, silence was imposed on both parties, and mention was forbidden of either one or two operations of will in Christ. To this document the approval of the Holy See was demanded, the more convincingly because a previous imperial manifesto, the "Ekthesis" of Heraclius, had distinctly asserted the heretical doctrine of the one will. But St Martin would hear of no compromise. "The Lord," he declared in council, "has commanded us to shun evil and do good, but not to reject the good with the evil. We are not to deny at the same time both error and truth."

"I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not : and thou, being once converted, confirm thy brethren."—Luke xxii, 32.

13

ST DIDACUS

ST DIDACUS (Diego, James) was born in Spain, in the middle of the fifteenth century. He was remarkable for his love of solitude, and when a youth led a hermit life, occupying himself with weaving mats, like the monks of the desert. Aiming at greater perfection, he entered the Order of St Francis. His want of learning and his humility would not allow him to aspire to the priesthood, and he remained a lay-brother till his death, perfect in his observance of the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, mortifying his will and his senses in every way that he could. In all his active employments and duties he cultivated a prayerful spirit, so that he never ceased from prayer during any part of the day. The spiritual knowledge that he thus gained was such that learned men came long distances to consult him. His works of active charity were as remarkable, his loving care of the sick reaching heroic heights. At one time he was sent to the Canary Islands, whither he went very gladly, hoping to win the crown of martyrdom. Such, however, was not God's will, and after making many conversions by his example and teaching he was recalled to Spain : not, however, before he had, though a lay-brother, served as superior of the chief friary in the Canaries. He died at Alcalá in 1463, saying over and over to himself the refrain "Dulce lignum...", "O happy wood...", from the Good Friday office.

The Gift of Speech

If God be in your heart, He will be also on your lips, for Christ has said, "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

"You have a spiritual mouth, sealed by the Holy Spirit. Ponder well the dignity of that mouth. Your dwelling-place is in Heaven. You talk with angels. The Lord holds you worthy of His kiss. By so many and so great things has God adorned your mouth—with the hymns of the angels, with more than angels' food, with His kiss, with His embrace : do you dare to speak ill?"—St John Chrysostom.

Although St Didacus desired to live as an obscure lay-brother, unknown and forgotten, his light could not be hidden : men flocked to hear the words of wisdom which, as it were, could not help falling from his lips. It is said that when he was unable to give alms to a beggar, he spoke to him with such tenderness and warmth that the poor man himself said that the brother's words were worth more than other men's money. Wherever St Didacus went, whether at home or among the heathen of the Canary Islands, his holy conversation drew people irresistibly to God.

“Let no evil speech proceed from your mouth : but that which is good, to the edification of faith, that it may administer grace to the hearers.”—Eph. iv, 29.

14

ST JOSAPHAT

IN 1595 many of the dissident Orthodox bishops, lower clergy and people in Byelorussia and the Ukraine returned to the unity of the Catholic Church. At that time Josaphat Kunsevich was a young boy at Vladimir. In 1604 he became a monk at Vilna; he was soon chosen for ordination to the priesthood, and quickly became known as a good monk and a persuasive preacher, especially on behalf of the union with Rome. Josaphat's life was devoted to maintaining and spreading this union, in the face of acute difficulties from Catholics as well as from dissidents. In 1617 he was appointed archbishop of Polotsk, and for six years he added very necessary diocesan reforms to his work for Christian unity. He refused to become involved in secular politics, and his combination of gentleness and firmness, learning and goodness, gained him many supporters. But he also had strong opponents, and a dissident reaction set in. A centre of this disaffection was the town of Vitebsk, in Josaphat's diocese, and in 1623 he decided to go there in person. The danger of this was obvious, but he could not be dissuaded : “What is this danger you are warning me about?” he asked. “Death? Why, I have just made arrangements for my tomb to be made.” While he was in Vitebsk every effort was made by the opposition to provoke a riot, and the archbishop was careful not to give or allow any provocation. But he made a slip. Thereupon his house was attacked, he was struck down, and finally shot dead; his body was thrown into the river Dvina. The feast of this martyr of the Eastern church was added to the Western calendar by Pope Leo XIII.

Suffering for the Church

St Josaphat Kunsevich, like St Thomas Becket, died for Christ by dying for His Church, the one for her unity, the other for her freedom. Do we remember to thank God that in our own country the Church enjoys complete freedom, both to live her life and to extend her membership?

“Some of you people in Vitebsk want to kill me. Well, here I am, and I have come here of my own free will. I am your shepherd, and I should be happy to give my life for you. If it please God that I should die for unity under the earthly headship of St Peter’s successor, so be it. I am ready to die for truth.”—St Josaphat.

The leader of the opposition to St Josaphat was a dissident archbishop, Melety Smotritsky, a prelate of considerable attainments; and among the reconciliations with Rome brought about by Josaphat’s martyrdom none was more remarkable than that of this Melety. He became disillusioned with the dissident church and was privately reconciled with the Holy See. After a brief lapse, the penitential zeal of his remaining few years testified to the sincerity of his change of heart. He died ten years after St Josaphat.

“...Christ loved the church and delivered himself up for it, that he might sanctify it.”—Eph. v, 25-26.

15 ST ALBERT THE GREAT

IN the year 1931 Pope Pius XI formally proclaimed Albert of Bollstädt to be a doctor of the Church, and in so doing equivalently declared him to be a saint. Thus the highest recognition was accorded to one whose contemporaries had called him “the Great” and “the Universal Doctor”, one whose knowledge was such that “he may fitly be called the wonder and miracle of our age”. Subsequent ages endorsed that verdict : St Albert, said Pius XI, had that “rare and divine gift, scientific instinct, in the highest degree... He is exactly the saint whose example should inspire the present era, which so ardently seeks peace and is so full of hope in its scientific discoveries”. He is accordingly the patron-saint of students of the natural sciences. St Albert was born in Swabia in 1206 and, against the wishes of his noble family, became a Dominican friar. He taught at Cologne, and among his students was St Thomas Aquinas. His voluminous writings deal not only with philosophical, biblical and theological subjects, but also with botany, physiology, geography and other physical sciences. He sought a synthesis of knowledge; but he took the greatest care to distinguish between the domains of reason and faith, of philosophy and theology. He laid the foundations on which St Thomas built. All Albert’s writings testify to his holiness, but it was in his later years that he reached the heights. At length his powers of memory and concentration failed, and he died very peacefully at Cologne in 1280.

The Material Creation

The material creation is God’s handiwork no less than the immaterial creation. He may be known in the beauty, order and wonders of all “nature”, which glorifies Him and can lead us to Him. Study and use of the material creation, "science", is an activity highly befitting a Christian; to delight in and thank God for that creation is a Christian obligation.

"Lord Jesus Christ, listen to my voice rising to you from the bleak valley of repentance. I beseech you that I may not be led astray by the temptations of empty words that speak of family pride, of the prestige of my order, of the pleasures of knowledge."—St Albert.

For two years Albert was bishop of the Bavarian see of Regensburg, which was in a very bad state. Its people were used to princely bishops, and they resented this simple studious friar who wanted to reform them and their affairs. They called him "the clodhopper". Great learning or intellectual interests are far from being inconsistent with apostolic effectiveness and administrative ability; but it was soon recognized that St Albert's abilities could be more profitably employed elsewhere. So he was allowed to resign and return to his teaching.

"All ye works of the Lord, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all for ever... Let the earth bless the Lord; let it praise and exalt him above all for ever."—Daniel iii, 57, 74.

16

ST GERTRUDE

GERTRUDE was born in the year 1256 in Germany, and at the age of five was entrusted for education to St Mechtildis, a nun at Rossdorf. After this community had moved to Helfta in Saxony, Gertrude was professed in it. Her strong mind had been carefully cultivated, and she wrote Latin with ease and force; she was perfect in obedience and in all monastic observance, but she was never herself (as she is often called) an abbess. Her purity of intention flooded her soul with light, and gave her great largeness and liberty of spirit. It was said of her that in her mind was no error, on her heart no cloud; none could resist her. When she was twenty-six, Gertrude received the first of those visions of our Lord that have made her famous. The effect of this experience was to turn her mind from general studies to the Bible and the Fathers. She recorded some of her visions, in which she traced in words of much beauty the intimate converse of her soul with Jesus. She was gentle to all, most gentle to sinners; filled with devotion to the saints, careful for the souls in Purgatory, above all, attentive to Christ's passion. St Gertrude was frequent at holy communion, at a time when this was not usual; and she anticipated by centuries devotion to St Joseph and, especially, to the Sacred Heart. She died about the year 1302.

Sudden Death

On the subject of sudden or unattended death, St Gertrude wrote : "I wish with all my heart to be strengthened by the health-giving last sacraments. Nevertheless, God's own will and choice seem to be the best and surest preparation. I am certain that, however my death comes about, whether suddenly or long foreseen, I shall never lack His mercy, and without that I cannot possibly be saved in any case."

"Death to a righteous man or woman is the haven of everlasting rest."—Blosius.

St Gertrude (who is called "the Great") and her tutor St Mechtildis are perhaps best-known today by a book of prayers which bears their names. But this well-loved book was not in fact written by either of these saints; it is the work of an unknown author, long after their time, though it includes an occasional passage from them. Some prayers extracted from their genuine writings were translated into English by Canon John Gray, and published under the title O Beata Trinitas in 1927. It is a pity this little book is not better known.

“I heard a voice from heaven saying to me, Write : Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.”—Apoc. xiv, 13.

17

ST GREGORY
THE WONDERWORKER

THIS St Gregory, called “Thaumaturgus,” which means “Wonderworker”, was a native of Neocaesarea in Asia Minor. He went to Palestine about the year 231, and there studied under the great Origen, who led him from the pursuit of human wisdom to Christ, who is the Wisdom of God. Not long after he was made bishop of his home-town. He was very concerned to have a yet better knowledge of the mysteries of the faith; and as he lay awake meditating one night, an old man entered his room, together with a woman of unearthly beauty, radiant with heavenly light. This old man was St John the Evangelist; and when the woman told him to give Gregory the instruction he desired, St John said that in this also he was happy to please the Mother of the Lord. Thereupon he expounded to Gregory “the mystery of godliness.” (This is said to be the first recorded vision of our Lady.) Gregory’s biographers give most attention to his wonders. They tell us he subdued demons and foretold the future, at his word a rock moved from its place, a river changed its course, a lake was dried up. He converted his diocese, and strengthened those under persecution; and he is the first missionary of whom we are told that he organized secular amusements in connection with Christian religious festivals. He died in the year 268.

The Second Eve

Devotion to the blessed Mother of God is a sure protection of faith in her divine Son. Every time that we invoke her we renew our faith in the incarnate God; we reverse the sin and unbelief of our first parents; we take our part with her who was blessed because she believed.

“The chain of Eve’s disobedience was broken by Mary’s obedience. That which Eve bound by her unbelief, Mary set free by her faith. Mary became the advocate of Eve. The cunning of the Serpent was worsted by the simplicity of the Dove.”—St Irenaeus.

When St Gregory went to his diocese there were but seventeen Christians in it; when he died, but seventeen heathen. He built a church for his people, at a time when Christians still worshipped mostly in private houses. It is said that this building survived the persecution of Diocletian, who ordered that all the Christian meeting-places should be destroyed; it stood unshaken in an earthquake. It was the symbol of that unshaken faith in which Gregory had been enlightened at the word of the Maiden Mother of God.

“I took root in an honourable people... and my abode is in the full assembly of saints.”—Ecclus. xxiv, 16.

18 ST EDMUND OF CANTERBURY

IT was said of this St Edmund that "in his mouth was never aught save peace, purity and piety, and in his heart naught save Christ alone". These graces were due to the training of his mother, Mabel Rich, and of his father, who afterwards was a monk. Young Edmund left his home at Abingdon to study at Oxford, and there in due time became a lecturer in the university. He fortified himself against temptation by a vow of chastity, and by dedicating himself to our Lady. About 1222 he was called to active public life, and as treasurer of the diocese of Salisbury showed such charity to the poor that the dean said he was rather the treasure than the treasurer of their church. In 1234 Edmund was raised to the see of Canterbury, where, notwithstanding his retiring disposition, he fearlessly defended the rights of church and state against the avarice of King Henry III. He also was involved in sad difficulties with the Canterbury monks and the papal legate in England. At last, unable to induce the king to relinquish the livings which he kept vacant for the benefit of the royal treasury, Edmund retired into exile sooner than appear to connive at a wrong. On leaving England, he wept bitterly, "knowing in spirit that he would never see his country again." He died in France shortly after, in 1240, and was buried at the abbey of Pontigny. His feast is kept on November 16.

Prayer

Despite all the public affairs in which he had to be engaged, St Edmund of Canterbury was always a man of prayer, first, foremost and all the time. We can be the same, for a prayerful spirit keeps us in God's presence even when mind and body are busy with quite other things.

“If a man would be perfected it is needful for him not to withdraw his mind from continual attention to heavenly things, and not to let his many concerns preoccupy his attention; not that he should neglect his concerns, but that he should have a free mind in their regard.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Edmund was one of the most experienced spiritual teachers in the Church of his time, and he was always eager to teach people how to pray with affection and in spirit. “Many are the people,” he said, “who are deceived in multiplying prayers. I would rather say five words devoutly with my heart than five thousand which my spirit does not relish with affection and intelligence. Sing to the Lord with understanding : what a man repeats by his mouth, that let him feel in his heart.” Edmund so well combined knowledge of the soul with the learning of the schools, mystical theology with speculative theology, that he became a perfect contemplative.

“When you are praying, speak not much, as the heathens. For they think that in their much speaking they may be heard... Thus therefore shall you pray : Our Father who art in heaven...”—Matt. vi, 7, 9.

19 ST ELIZABETH OF HUNGARY

ELIZABETH, the daughter of King Andrew II of Hungary, was born in 1207. At the age of four she was betrothed to Ludwig, son of the landgrave of Thuringia, and taken to Wartburg Castle to be brought up with him. They became more and more in love with one another, in due course were married, and had three children. Elizabeth spent much time and money helping the poor and sick, and her husband supported her benefactions. Then, in 1227, Ludwig (who is called Blessed in Germany) went to join a crusade, and died on the way. "The world", cried Elizabeth in her grief, "is dead to me, and everything that was joyous in it!" Having provided for her children, she formally renounced all state in the Franciscan church at Eisenach, and put on the simple dress of the third order; outside Marburg she built a small house, with a hospice attached for the aged and sick among the poor, to whose service she devoted herself entirely. Elizabeth's few remaining years of life were full of suffering, a great deal of which was caused by the rigour and roughness of the spiritual director to whom she had submitted herself. She went in fear of him, but bore it all with the utmost patience: "We are like a snail," she said, "which withdraws into its shell when rain is coming. So we obey, and withdraw from the way we were going." She used to go fishing to get more food for her beloved poor, and shocked a Hungarian nobleman who found the princess spinning. St Elizabeth died in 1231; she was only twenty-four.

Care for the Aged

This young feudal princess made herself servant and nurse of the old and poor. May her example teach us to disregard our own feelings and what other people say, when these things would hinder us from helping the aged and needy and serving Jesus Christ in them.

"Elizabeth's charities will bring down God's blessings on us. We shall not be allowed to want so long as we let her relieve others as she does.”—Ludwig of Thuringia.

St Elizabeth lay softly singing to herself when she was dying, and she was asked why she sang. “I will tell you why”, she replied. “Between me and the wall there was a little bird singing so gaily to me that I had to sing too.” At midnight before the day she died she stirred from her quietness and said, “It is near the hour when the Lord was born and lay in the manger and by His all-mighty power made a new star. He came to redeem the world, and He will save me.” And at dawn, “It is now the time when He rose from the grave and broke the doors of Hell, and he will release me too.”

“Eat thy bread with the hungry and the needy, and with thy garments cover the naked.”—Tobias iv, 17.

20 ST EDMUND THE MARTYR

IN 855, when a youth of fourteen, Edmund was accepted as king of the East Angles. He showed a precocious wisdom in governing, making himself acquainted with all the affairs of his kingdom. Though so watchful a ruler, he was also a religious young man, and is supposed to have learned the Psalter by heart. After he had reigned peacefully and prosperously for eleven years the Danes invaded England, plundering and destroying wherever they went, and especially bringing destruction to everything Christian. Abbot Beocca of Chertsey and Abbot Hedda of Peterborough were killed with many of their monks, and monasteries were burnt down at Bardney, Ely and other places. Edmund resolved to do all he could to save his own country, raised whatever forces he could, and is said to have routed part of the invading host near Thetford. But fresh hordes pouring in, the East Anglian troops were overcome, and all their land subdued. The king was captured and put to death, displaying the most heroic endurance to the end. Edmund was soon revered as a martyr, and he was widely venerated in England in the Middle Ages. His shrine was at Bury St Edmunds.

Patience in Adversity

St Edmund's example endures. In prosperity he lived to do God's will; and therefore in adversity he still answered when called on by that holy will to suffer. Learn from him to accept all your sufferings as from the hands of God.

"Your life is our way. And we go forward patiently towards you, O Christ, our crown."—Imitation of Christ.

A late and rather unreliable account says that, after St Edmund was taken prisoner, he was offered life and liberty on conditions equally hurtful to his country and to religion. He in reply declared that religion was dearer to him than life, which was worthless when bought at such a price. Then Ingvar the Dane subjected him to torture, vainly hoping to shake his fortitude. He was torn with whips, and at last bound to a tree and shot at with arrows until, while still living, he was pierced all over, "like a hedgehog". Only then did the Danes strike off his head. The traditional site of St Edmund's death is at Hoxne in Norfolk.

"This trial the Lord permitted to happen to him, that an example might be given to posterity of his patience."—Tobias ii, 12.

21 ST HUGH OF LINCOLN

ST HUGH, born in Burgundy in 1140, was professed among the canons regular, with whom he remained till grace drew him to the Carthusians at Grenoble. Later on he was sent to England, to establish a monastery at Witham in Somerset. He was much respected by King Henry II, who attributed his escape from shipwreck to the merits of St Hugh. His love of the Holy Scriptures was remarkable : indeed, of him it could be said, in his own words, that they were his “delight in peace, arms in war, food in famine, and medicine in sickness.” In 1186 he was made bishop of Lincoln, and his courage soon manifested itself in resisting all encroachments on his spiritual authority. On one occasion, having withstood an unjust demand of King Richard I, he went into the royal presence, rebuked the king gently but inflexibly, and got the demand withdrawn, Richard remarking later that, “If all bishops were like Hugh, no power could prevail against them.” The charity of this father of his people was as conspicuous as his courage, finding vent in innumerable acts of mercy which won all hearts. He personally cowed mobs that were baiting Jews, he fought the oppressive forest-laws, and he made King Henry compensate evicted tenants. He loved birds and children, and he loved a joke; and every year he spent some time in his Carthusian hermitage, a contemplative to his dying day. St Hugh of Lincoln died in 1200; his feast is kept on November 17.

Moral Courage

It is the presence of God in His Church which at all times has sustained and made invincible the constancy of her pastors when called on to resist the tyranny of civil powers. If God be with us, who can be against us?

“Our King goes before us, and He will fight for us. Let us follow Him manfully; let no one be afraid; let us go forward together. Jesus is with us.”—Imitation of Christ.

St Hugh was one day officiating at a funeral, when the king sent a messenger to invite him to dinner. The bishop continued his office, and another messenger was sent by the impatient monarch, to say that he was waiting. On this Hugh remarked, “Why does he expect me? It is better that the king should eat without me than that the work of the King of Heaven should be neglected. My food is to do the will of the Eternal Father.”

“Behold, I command thee, take courage and be strong. Fear not and be not dismayed, because the Lord thy God is with thee in all things.”—Josue i, 9.

22

ST CECILY

CECILY was a Roman of patrician family who lived at an unknown date, perhaps in the third century. Her story, in the form that it has come down to us, is very famous. On the evening of her wedding-day, “cantantibus organis,” as the Church sings in her antiphon at Lauds, with the music of the marriage-hymn ringing in her ears, she renewed the vow by which she had consecrated her maidenhood to God. Then she told her young husband, Valerian, “There is an angel of God watching over me. If you touch me in the way of marriage, he will be angry with you; if not, he will protect you too." Valerian was moved by all that was told him. He received baptism, and within a few days he and his brother Tiburtius, who had been brought by him to a knowledge of the faith, sealed their confession with their blood. Cecily only remained. "Do you not know," was her answer to the threats of the prefect, "that I am the bride of my Lord Jesus Christ?" The death appointed for her was suffocation, and she remained a day and a night in a hot-air bath, heated seven times hotter than usual. But as with the Three Children, so it was with her : "the flames had no power over her body, neither was a hair of her head singed." The lictor sent to despatch her struck three blows, with trembling hand, and left her still alive. For two days and nights Cecily lay with her head half severed on the pavement of her bath, fully sensible, and joyfully awaiting her crown; on the third day she died.

Joy in Christ's Service

St Cecily teaches us to rejoice in every sacrifice as a pledge of our love of Christ, and to welcome suffering and death as hastening our union with Him.

"Whoever tastes your sweetness, Lord, has no care for any other happiness."—St Augustine.

We are told that during the three days Cecily was dying, Christians came to beg her prayers and to receive her last breath. She spoke to each according to their needs, encouraging and consoling all. On the third morning came the bishop of Rome, and to him she said, "I have prayed not to die till I could recommend to your care the poor whom I have always looked after, and could give you this house, that it may be a church for ever." Then, turning her face to the ground and folding her hands like one in sleep, she passed to the presence of God.

“What treasures of lovingkindness, Lord, dost thou store up for the men who fear thee!”—Ps. xxx, 20.

23 ST CLEMENT OF ROME

ST CLEMENT, the first pope of that name, seems to have been St Peter's third successor. Some early Fathers identified him with the Clement whose name St Paul declares to the Philippians to be written in the Book of Life; and Tertullian assures us that Clement was ordained by St Peter himself. Be that as it may, it is almost certain that he had seen the Apostles and conversed with them. With their words still ringing in his ears, he began to rule the Church of God : among the first, as he was among the most celebrated, in the long line of those who have held the place and power of Peter. Clement lived at the same time and in the same city with the Emperor Domitian, a persecutor of the Church; and besides external foes he had to contend with troubles from within. The church at Corinth was torn by strife, and its members set the authority of their clergy at defiance. It was then that St Clement interfered in the fullness of his apostolic authority, and sent his famous letter to the Corinthians. He urged the duties of charity and of submission to the clergy. He did not speak in vain; peace and order were restored. St Clement is said to have suffered martyrdom, but there is no certainty about this; he may have died in exile, possibly in the Crimea.

Respect for the Clergy

God rewards a simple spirit of obedience to the clergy, for the honour done to them is done to Him. Your virtue is uncertain, your faith in danger, if you fail in this.

“Those who abide in obedience to their clergy inherit honour and glory from God. He exalts them and writes them in the book of His memorial for ever and ever.”—St Clement of Rome.

If you want to learn how to have proper respect for the teaching of the Church and of the Pope, look to the first days of the Church and to the disciples of the Apostles. Although the Corinthians had sinned by their rebelliousness, it needed only a word from the Pope to bring them to order, and they received Clement's letter almost as if it had been inspired. Not long after the middle of the second century, St Dionysius, bishop of Corinth, tells us that the Epistle of Clement was still read publicly from time to time in his church; and long after that other churches showed a like reverence to St Clement and his letter.

“Obey your prelates, and be subject to them.”—Heb. xiii, 17.

24 ST JOHN OF THE CROSS

THIS JOHN'S father had been disinherited for marrying “beneath him,” and John, thus born and brought up in poverty, chose it for himself. As a child he got up early that he might serve Mass before going to school, and people were moved by seeing his recollectedness at the altar. Unable to learn a trade, he became a servant in the hospital of Medina, and in 1563, being then twenty-one, he offered himself as a lay-brother to the Carmelite friars; they, however, knowing his talents, had him ordained priest. He would have exchanged into the severer Carthusian Order, had not St Teresa, with the instinct of a saint, persuaded him to remain and help her in the reform of their own order. Thus he became the first prior of the Barefooted Carmelites. In his mystical works John describes the inward trials and consolations of a perfectly detached soul, and many other aspects of the spiritual life; his writings are classical, and it was as a mystical writer that he was enrolled among the doctors of the Church in 1926. John's reform, though approved by the prior general, was rejected by the elder friars, who condemned him and cast him into prison, whence he only escaped after nine months' suffering. Thus was he shamefully persecuted by his own brethren, and publicly disgraced. But this treatment could not break so loving a spirit, and he died in great happiness, though still under a cloud, in 1591.

Detachment

Seeming to hear our Lord ask him, "John, what shall I give you for all you have given me?" the saint answered, "Lord, to suffer and be ill-treated for your sake." And so he was. It is in such mysterious ways that God leads His chosen ones.

"Live in the world, as if God and your soul only were in it; so shall your heart never be led captive by any earthly thing."—St John of the Cross.

When St John was in his last illness, he was given the choice of one of two friaries to go to for treatment. The one at Baeza was convenient in every way, and the prior was his friend. The other, at Ubeda, was distant, and the prior had a grudge against him. John chose Ubeda. There he got worse, and was treated with great inhumanity; in addition he had to endure the surgery of those days. But after three months the prior was converted by his invincible patience, and John's last few days were happy and serene among his brethren. Of him St Teresa says, "He was one of the purest souls in the Church of God."

"I know thy tribulation and thy poverty; but thou art rich."—Apoc. ii, 9.

25 ST CATHERINE OF ALEXANDRIA

DURING the later Middle Ages this St Catherine was one of the most venerated of martyrs, both in East and West. Unhappily her story as it has come down to us is one of those to which very little credence can be given. Reduced to its simplest form, it relates that Catherine was a beautiful Alexandrian girl, devoted to learned studies, who became a Christian. When the persecuting Emperor Maxentius came to Alexandria, Catherine defended Christianity to his face, and confuted a crowd of pagan philosophers who were brought against her. Having failed to win her over by fair words, Maxentius resorted to force and cruelty; when the wheel on which she was to be broken (the "catherine-wheel") fell in pieces, she was beheaded. This story was added to and amplified with many strange marvels, not least the carrying of Catherine's dead body by angels to Mount Sinai. What are said to be her relics are still enshrined there, at the Eastern Orthodox monastery of St Catherine, which is one of the oldest inhabited monasteries in existence. For later medieval artists St Catherine's legend was a favourite subject, especially her "mystical marriage" with the holy Child after her conversion.

Constancy

The constancy displayed by the saints in their glorious martyrdom cannot be isolated from their previous lives, but is their natural sequence. If we wish to emulate their perseverance, we must first learn to be faithful to grace.

"The most powerful weapon against the spirit of evil is an earnest life and a pure trust in God."—St Antony the Abbot.

From the fourteenth century many churches in western Europe were dedicated in honour of St Catherine of Alexandria and her name became very popular at the font. Among the saints it distinguished Catherine of Bologna, of Genoa, of Palma, of Siena, of Vadstena, Catherine dei Ricci and Catherine Labouré, as well as several beatae. It was to Catherine of Alexandria that St Joan of Arc attributed one of her "voices". Because of her supposed disputation with the learned pagans, Catherine was adopted as the patroness of philosophers and philosophical students, and that attribution has persisted to this day.

"Take unto you the armour of God, that you may be able to resist in the evil day and to stand in all things perfect."—Eph. vi, 13.

26 ST LEONARD OF PORT MAURICE

ST LEONARD was born at Porto Maurizio in Italy in 1676. He had an uncle at Rome, who, hearing of his nephew's promise, sent for him and had him educated. There Leonard became a brother of the Little Oratory, and when an old man used to speak of the blessings he had derived from St Philip's institute. While he was engaged in study and works of mercy, God called him into religion; and, at the expense of incurring his benefactor's anger, he entered the Franciscan Order. For five years his health failed him, but he was restored, and his recovery he attributed to our Lady's intercession. In gratitude he vowed to devote himself specially to sinners, and his first act on leaving his room was to make the Way of the Cross. Thenceforward he went throughout Italy preaching repentance: "Either penance or Hell." He gave very numerous missions, and in many places established perpetual adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. Being a Franciscan, he lived always on alms, and went from town to town barefoot. He used sometimes to scourge himself in the pulpit, to try in that way to move the more hard-hearted of his hearers. "I do not wish for rest on earth," he would say, "but in Paradise," and between missions he would give "missions to himself." When urged to rest in bed, he would answer, "To celebrate Mass once is worth everything in the world." St Leonard was much respected by Pope Benedict XIV, who sent him on a mission to Corsica; not long after his return he died, in 1751.

The Way of the Cross

"If the crucified Jesus," says the Imitation of Christ, "were to come into our hearts, how quickly and sufficiently learned we should be!"

“If you would advance from virtue to virtue, from grace to grace, from good to better, meditate daily, and with all the devotion you can muster on the Passion. For nothing will so thoroughly sanctify your soul as reflection on the sufferings of Christ.”—St Bonaventure.

St Leonard thought nothing would so much lead men to persevere as the regular making of the Way of the Cross. Accordingly he set up the Stations wherever he could, it is said in over 500 places in Italy. In 1750, with Pope Benedict's approval, he set them up in the Colosseum, and the Confraternity of Jesus and Mary undertook to visit them in procession, and to bring as many as possible to join in. This was the saint's last work for Rome. How often do we make the Way of the Cross?

“Think diligently upon him that endured such opposition from sinners against himself, that you be not wearied, fainting in your minds.”—Heb. xii, 3.

27 ST JOHN BERCHMANS

THE eldest boy of a shoemaker in a small Belgian town, John was a dutiful, prayerful and studious child. After a short time as house-boy to a canon of Malines, who took him out duck-shooting, he in 1616 joined the Society of Jesus. Because young Berchmans was so good a son, so promising a scholar, it cost his father much to give him up to God; but he was too good a Christian to refuse outright. John had no sooner become a novice than his faithful keeping of his rule, the faultlessness of his life, his fervour in prayer, and his love of the brotherhood impressed all who knew him. When he had taken his religious vows he was sent to Rome, and his life there was perfect as a student within college-walls. His modesty, his purity, shone out as great virtue always does; and the young laymen who attended lectures would look at his beautiful, holy face, and go away the better for the sight. Three short years, and his last sickness was upon him: three days before the feast of the Assumption in 1621 he died. In his hands were his rule-book and crucifix, with his rosary twined around them, the symbols of his obedience, his love of suffering and his devotion to his Mother in Heaven. "If I don't become a saint when I am young," John had said, "I shall never be one." He died a saint at twenty-two. His feast-day is November 26.

Faithfulness in Little Things

Like St Teresa of Lisieux two hundred and fifty years later, John's "way" was to "set great store on little things"; and this, like another saying of his, "Speak little, do much," shows how in so uneventful and short a life he became so great a saint. Nothing was of small importance to him that had to do with God.

"Labour a little now, and you will find great rest hereafter, yes, everlasting joy. If you are faithful and fervent in working, God will without doubt be faithful and generous in rewarding."—Imitation of Christ.

When he was thirteen, his father's failing business and his mother's illness seemed to make it impossible that John should go on with his studies. He was called into the sick-room, and there it was broken to him. It meant nothing less than the abandonment of his vocation to the priesthood. For a moment he was silent; then in tears he threw himself on his knees and implored his parents to let him go on the few years longer, until he could be received into college: "Don't worry about the expense. I shall be content to live on bread and water." His parents could not refuse, and God enabled him to continue his studies.

"Well done, good and faithful servant : because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will place thee over many things."—Matt. xxv, 21.

28

ST MECHTILDIS

MECHTILDIS was the sister of Gertrude of Hackeborn, a famous abbess, and the tutor and friend of St Gertrude the Great. She was sent to be educated under her sister at the age of seven, and never returned to the world. She so grew in humility, piety and obedience that it seemed to those about her that God had withheld from her no perfection. Her intellect was strong and clear, its education complete. Her voice was noted for its power and sweetness, "a nightingale of Christ," and she was chief chantress of the Helfta convent; but she made herself useful in every way, loving and serviceable in all things. Her life was one of much suffering, endured thankfully and joyously, and increased by her own penances, and St Gertrude tells something of her elder's mystical life. It was a long time before Mechtildis discovered that her pupil was writing down her confidences, and at first she was distressed; but God showed her that He willed it thus. Her heart was an unfailing spring of compassion for all in sorrow, so that she was looked on as everybody's refuge and consoler; "There was no one like her", says St Gertrude, "nor, I fear, will ever be." St Mechtildis died in 1298, "offering Christ her heart, plunging it into His." Her feast-day is November 19.

The Power of Sympathy

Sympathy is the greatest force of man's heart, and an especial note of all who have done great things for God. Sympathy means not only compassion, "suffering with" another, but also rejoicing with his joys and successes.

"The greatest consolation in life is to find a heart to which you feel you can open your own."—St Ambrose.

Just as St Gertrude has sometimes been confused with the Abbess Gertrude, so has this St Mechtildis with the St Mechtildis who was abbess of Edelstetten. Of the death of the latter in 1160 her biographer writes, "We wept little, for her glory stayed our tears. There was a multitude commending the holy woman to God, or rather through her commending themselves to Him. All around were widows and orphans mourning their loss. There were the crowds of sick whom she had healed. She had hitherto ensured their silence by threats that their sickness would return if they betrayed the secret of their healing; but now their tongues were loosed, and one told how he had been blind and now saw, and another how he had been deaf and now heard. There were those who had been paralytic, and many others once infirm, who told how they had been healed through her. And many sick who had come to her funeral recovered health."

"Come then, stiffen the sinews of drooping hand, and flagging knee..."—Heb. xii, 12.

29

BD CUTHBERT MAYNE

IN the year 1574 the missionary priests trained and ordained on the continent after the Reformation began to arrive in England. Their protomartyr, the first martyr among them, was Cuthbert Mayne. He had been born near Barnstaple in Devon, and brought up by his uncle, a schismatic priest. After graduating at Oxford, Mayne was reconciled with the Church, went to the new college at Douay, was ordained priest, and in 1576 returned to England; he was then thirty-two years old. The headquarters of his missionary work was at Francis Tregian's mansion near Truro, in Cornwall, but he was spared for only a year's ministry. He was captured when the house was raided by the high sheriff, and confined in chains in a filthy cell at Launceston. Brought to trial on a number of charges under the penal laws, he was found guilty on insufficient evidence, and sentenced to death. Before his execution he was offered his freedom if he would swear to Queen Elizabeth I's ecclesiastical supremacy, to which he replied: "The queen never was or is or ever shall be the head of the Church in England." He refused to implicate Mr Tregian or any other of his friends. On 30 November 1597 Cuthbert Mayne was hanged in Launceston market-place, cut down and disembowelled while still living, and finally his body quartered and displayed for a warning in five local towns. The head was recovered from Wadebridge, and a large part of the skull is now enshrined at the Carmelite convent at Lanherne, near Newquay.

The Lamb of God

Learn from the martyrs that, however weak and distrustful of yourself you may be, you can suffer for Christ's sake, and by suffering win your crown.

“In time of persecution, the world closes in on us, but Heaven opens; Antichrist threatens, but Christ defends; death comes, but everlasting life follows; we are destroyed and lose the world, but we are renewed and gain Paradise; the life of time is ended, the life of eternity begins.”—St Cyprian.

When Mr Tregian's house was searched and Bd Cuthbert came out of an inner room, the sheriff seized him by the coat, asking, “What are you?” Mayne, who passed for the estate-steward, replied simply, “I am a man.” But an agnus Dei was found round his neck; that was sufficient ground for his arrest, and it afterwards contributed to his conviction. For an agnus Dei was esteemed “a vain sign and superstitious thing”, and he had brought it into England. The slaughtered Lamb of God was what Cuthbert Mayne had always before the eyes of his mind and heart, and he himself became like to that which he contemplated.

“Who then shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation? Or distress? Or famine? Or nakedness? Or danger? Or persecution? Or the sword?... ‘For thy sake we are put to death all the day long. We are accounted as sheep for the slaughter’.”—Rom. viii, 35-36.

30 ST ANDREW THE APOSTLE

ST ANDREW is named by the Greeks “the Protoclete,” as it was his privilege to be the “first-called” of the Apostles. He was one of the fishermen of Bethsaida, brother of St Peter, and became a disciple of St John the Baptist. He stands in the background of the gospel narrative, yet the few things recorded of him suggest a valuable lesson. He seems always eager to bring others into notice; when called by Christ on the banks of the Jordan, his first thought was to go in search of his brother: "We have found the Messiah," he said, and brought him to Jesus. When some Greeks at Jerusalem desired to see Jesus it was Andrew who, with Philip, spoke for them and introduced them to our Lord. It was he again who, when Christ wished to feed the five thousand in the desert, pointed out the boy with the five loaves and fishes. Hence St Bede calls him the "introducer to Christ," and we can learn that an essential quality for an apostle is to be forgetful of self and thoughtful for others. After our Lord returned to the Father, St Andrew went forth upon his mission to proclaim the good news of Christ and to win a martyr's crown. His martyrdom may have happened somewhere in Greece. St Andrew is the patron-saint of Russia as well as of Scotland.

Self-Sacrifice

The faithful disciple left all things, his boat and his nets, to become a fisher of men, and took up the cross to follow Christ. If we would do good for others we must, like St Andrew, keep close to the Cross.

"Give me," St Philip Neri used to say, "ten men who are truly detached, and with them I will convert the world."

It is a very late tradition that St Andrew suffered on an X-shaped cross; but an earlier legend agrees that he was crucified. It says that when he saw the cross on which he was to die, he exclaimed, "O good cross, made beautiful by Christ's body, you are welcome! Receive me and present me to my Master, that He who redeemed me through you may now accept me from you.” Two whole days he remained hanging on this cross alive, with outstretched arms speaking of Jesus from this chair of truth to all who passed by.

“Whosoever doth not carry his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple.”—Luke xiv, 27.

1

ST ELIGIUS

ELIGIUS (Eloi), a goldsmith at Paris, was commissioned by king Clotaire II to make a throne. With the gold and precious stones given him he made two. Struck by his skill and honesty, the king made him master of the mint, and tendered an oath of fidelity; but, perhaps fearing what he might be called on to do or approve, Eligius prayed to be excused the oath. In his new position he became a person of importance, and he cultivated the friendship of good men, among them St Ouen. Eligius was very concerned for the succour of captives, and for their deliverance would sell his jewels, his food, his clothes, and take the ransomed into his own service. The poor besieged his door, they surrounded him in the street and sat at his table, and he never refused them. His great delight was in making shrines for relics; for this he always found time, and it is said that he made reliquaries of St Martin, St Denis, St Germanus, St Geneviève and other famous saints. He was used by the king in public affairs, and at length in 641 he was made bishop of Noyon. He filled this office vigorously and effectively for nearly twenty years, but still worked at his trade in his leisure hours. St Eligius died in the year 660.

Sacred Relics

When God calls His saints to Himself, He might, did He so please, take their bodies also; but He wills to leave them in our charge, for our help and consolation. Be careful to follow St Eligius in his respect for these sacred things.

“We honour the relics of the martyrs in order to worship Him whose martyrs they are. We honour the servants that the honour may redound to their Lord, who says, ‘He that receiveth you, receiveth me’.”—St Jerome.

In his later years St Eligius was a friend and counselor of the queen-regent, St Bathildis, who shared his solicitude for slaves and prisoners. For she herself as a girl had been carried off from her home in England and sold into slavery in the household of the mayor of the palace to King Clovis II. That king she eventually married. It is said that Eligius after his death told a courtier in a dream to reprove the queen for dressing in a way unbecoming a widow.

“And his bones were visited, and after death they prophesied.”—Ecclus xlix, 18.

2

ST OSMUND

OF the many nobles who came into England with William of Normandy, none was more illustrious than Osmund, whose life “in the world” was that of courtier and magistrate, for he was soon appointed chancellor of England. But he was already a cleric; and he was called to the care of a diocese, and in 1078 was consecrated bishop of Salisbury. Being in everything zealous for the glory of God's house, he finished building his predecessor's cathedral at Old Sarum, giving it a chapter of canons and a school. Osmund seems to have been of a retiring disposition, fonder of copying and binding books than of the public affairs in which he had to take part. At the Council of Rockingham in 1095 he was induced to join those who, to please the king, opposed St Anselm; but later he saw his mistake, and asked Anselm's forgiveness for his opposition. Osmund was known for his strictness with penitents, and was no less strict in his own life. He died in 1099. In the next generation a chronicler speaks of Osmund's outstanding virtue, and in 1457 he was canonized—the last canonization of a saint from England until 1935. His feast is kept on December 4.

Reverence at Worship

“Twofold is our nature, twofold also is the worship which we offer to God,” writes St Thomas Aquinas. “We worship Him spiritually by the inward devotion of the mind; we worship Him outwardly by lowliness of our body; and as in all worship the outward act is referred to the inward, so by the signs of humility manifested in the body the soul is stirred to subject itself to God.”

“Do not cause confusion, hustling and pushing one another; but draw near with awe and lowliness, with prayer and fasting. Remember, you are dust and ashes and you are receiving Christ's Body and Blood.”—St John Chrysostom.

Much confusion had arisen from the introduction, by the foreign clergy who came into England, of the particular forms of service of the places from which they came. To remove this inconvenience and to regulate public worship with the utmost decency and devotion, St Osmund rearranged the forms of Mass, Divine Office and ministration of the sacraments for his diocese. Thus he left a lasting monument of his name in the Sarum Rite, which nearly all England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland, used in public worship for about five centuries, Osmund's provisions having been generally adopted in these islands.

“Put off the shoes from thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.”—Exod. iii, 5.

3

ST FRANCIS XAVIER

A YOUNG Spanish gentleman, in the troubled days of the Reformation, was trying to make a living teaching philosophy in Paris. He had seemingly no higher aim, when St Ignatius Loyola won him to the cause of Heaven. Then and for ever after Francis gave himself unreservedly to gain men for God. After a brief apostleship amongst his countrymen in Rome, he was sent by St Ignatius to the East, where for twelve years, like another St Paul, he was to wear himself out bearing the Gospel to India, to Malacca and to Japan. Though nuncio apostolic to the East and superior over his religious brethren, he only used his authority to take the largest share of the toils and dangers of the work for himself. Thwarted by the jealousy, covetousness and carelessness of those who should have helped and encouraged him in India, neither their opposition nor the difficulties of every sort which he encountered could make him slacken his labours. He was ever preaching, baptizing, hearing confessions, discussing with the learned, instructing the ignorant; yet all this was done with the greatest pains, as the elaborate instructions and the long letters which he left behind prove. After his mission to Japan, the vast closed land of China appealed to his charity, and he resolved to risk his life to force an entry. But God took him to Himself, like Moses, in sight of the land of promise; it was on a desolate island just off the Chinese coast that St Francis Xavier died, in 1552.

Thirst for Souls

Some are called specially to work for men's souls, but there is no one who cannot help in their salvation. Good example, earnest intercession, the offering of our actions on their behalf—all this needs only some of the spirit which animated St Francis Xavier, a desire to make some return to God.

“If God bids us rather lose our own life than give up the salvation of souls, we are determined to obey His command with His own good help, confirmed by Him with strength and courage.”—St Francis Xavier.

A Portuguese gentleman once sailed in the same ship with Xavier, and was very anxious to see the famous missionary. Great was his disappointment on being shown a man standing in a group round a chess-table, chatting familiarly with the soldiers, crew and passengers, like any ordinary person. The Portuguese had doubtless never heard Francis's words that “the best means to acquire true dignity is to wash one's own clothes and boil one's own pot, un beholden to anyone.” Later he was to experience Xavier's holiness.

“I endure all things for the sake of the elect, that they also may obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus, with heavenly glory.”—2 Tim. ii, 10.

4 ST PETER CHRYSOLOGUS

PETER was born at Imola, near Ravenna. He was brought up as a monk by Cornelius, his spiritual father, who afterwards, when bishop of Imola, ordained him deacon. On the death of the archbishop of Ravenna, the clergy and people, we are told, elected a successor and sent deputies to Rome to get Pope St Sixtus III's confirmation of their choice. But the pope, warned by a vision, cancelled their election, and appointed Peter instead. However, the circumstances of his election about the year 433 were probably rather different. The life of the new archbishop was that of a zealous pastor, preaching earnestly on fasting, almsgiving and the frequenting of the sacraments, and practising what he taught. A single incident in a hard-working but uneventful life illustrates his faith. The heretic Eutyches had written circular letters to the Western bishops in appeal against his condemnation. “We exhort you”, wrote the saint in reply, “to submit obediently to all that is written by the most blessed pope. St Peter, who lives and presides in his own see, gives the true faith to all who seek it.” Peter is chiefly famous for his sermons—short, pithy and full of solid instruction. These won for him the name of Chrysologus (“golden speech”), not because he pleased the ear with mere eloquence, but because his words were good, true and most valuable. He preached often, sometimes thrice in a day, but his sermons were never long. He died about the year 450, and was named a doctor of the Church in 1729.

Listening to Sermons

To listen attentively and profitably to sermons is a great grace from God. To gain this grace, begin with praying for the preacher. If a man gets no good from sermons, the fault is always his own.

“I am but the basket of the Sower, that is, of Christ. He has given me the seed, which I sow among you, my hearers. Do not look at the worthlessness of the basket but at who the Sower is.”—St Augustine.

St Peter Chrysologus once broke off in the middle of a sermon as if struck dumb, and could not go on. In a subsequent sermon, when discoursing on the dumbness of Zachary, he took the occasion to draw a lesson from what had befallen himself. “Sermons,” he said, “unlike all other speeches, are the word of God. They are not under the command of man, but of God. It is He who gives facility of speech and fruitfulness to sermons, according to the needs or the deserts of the hearers. A good sermon, therefore, often depends on the congregation as much as the preacher. If he speaks, let them listen well; if he is silent, let them be patient and pray for him. Speech would come to the preacher through their prayers, as the use of his tongue came to Zachary through his son.”

“The man who makes me of no account, and does not accept my words, has a judge appointed to try him : it is the message I have uttered that will be his judge at the last day.”—John xii, 48.

5

ST DOSITHEUS

DOSITHEUS was brought up in luxury and attained high rank in the imperial army, in the sixth century. He had never been taught any religion. At Jerusalem he saw a picture depicting Hell, and wondering what it could mean, inquired about it. What he was told made a deep impression on him; he began to live virtuously, and his friends, seeing his life changed, said in joke, "If you want to live like this you should go into a monastery." He asked what a monastery was, and someone took him to that of St Seridon. This saint, seeing him in military uniform, told St Dorotheus to question him on various points; but the only answer he got was, "I want to save my soul." Dorotheus then told him he was too delicate to seek holiness through bodily penance, but must perfect himself by interior mortification. So Dositheus devoted himself to learning obedience, to curbing his tongue, to controlling his will, and was eventually given charge of the sick. He himself, after five years, contracted a distressing disease, which soon brought him to his death-bed, where he said to St Barsanuphius, "Bid me die, father : I can bear no more." The monk answered, "Yet a little patience, my son; the hour of God's mercy draws nigh." Afterwards Dositheus said, "Father, I can live no longer." And Barsanuphius replied, "Go in peace, my son, to appear before the Blessed Trinity, and pray for us." And Dositheus by obedience slept in the Lord. His feast-day is February 23.

The Value of Obedience

There are many ways of mortifying our will, but in most of these we retain the liberty of choice. Obedience alone puts it to death. Let us seek every opportunity of making this sacrifice to the God-man, who of His own free will sacrificed Himself for us.

“The example of blessed Dositheus shows what progress we make by renouncing our own will. By giving up his own judgement and inclinations in favour of perfect obedience, this man, who had never heard the name of God till late in his life, soon became a saint.”—St Dorotheus.

After the death of Dositheus some of his fellow monks said to one another, “Dositheus fasted but little; he did no great penance. Why does our father Barsanuphius ask his prayers, as though he were already a saint in Heaven?” But there was a certain holy man who asked God to show him the merits of the former religious of that monastery. He saw them all in vision, and among the venerable aged monks a young one, equal to them in glory. From his description the monks recognized Dositheus, and learned that a short life of heroic obedience is equal before God to many years of austere but self-chosen mortification.

“Obedience is better than sacrifices, and to hearken rather than to offer the fat of rams.”—1 Kings xv, 22.

6 ST NICHOLAS OF MYRA

ST NICHOLAS was bishop of Myra in Lycia, in Asia Minor, during the fourth century, and that is all that is certainly known of one who came to be revered among the greatest wonderworkers of the early Church. In later times many legends grew up about his life, of which perhaps the best known concerns a man who, through poverty, was going to abandon his three daughters to a life of sin. Determined to save their innocence, Nicholas went out by night and, taking a bag of gold, flung it into the window of the sleeping father and hurried off. He on awaking saw the gift as a godsend, and with it dowered his eldest child. Nicholas, pleased at his success, made like venture for the second daughter; but the third time, as he stole away, the father, who was watching, overtook him and kissed his feet, overwhelming him with gratitude. Nicholas became a priest, and the desire to hide himself in some distant place led him to sail for the Holy Land; but God overruled his purpose, and on his return to Myra he found himself elected bishop there. All his life he showed himself a special protector of the innocent and the wronged. He once saved three officers unjustly sentenced to death, who invoked him in prayer, by appearing in a dream to the emperor at Constantinople and warning him of the impending wrong. He was buried at Myra, but in 1087 his relics were carried off to Bari in Italy; there, after fifteen centuries, "the manna of St Nicholas", a sweet-smelling matter, is said still to be given off by his bones.

Innocence

Those who would enter Heaven must be as little children, whose greatest glory is their innocence. Now two things are ours to do : first, to preserve it in ourselves, or regain it by repentance; secondly, to love and shield it in others.

"It is for you I long, O goodness and innocence, you who are so beautiful and lovable to pure eyes, something of which they can never tire."—St Augustine.

Through a misunderstanding of the tale of the three girls, Nicholas came to be looked on as a patron-saint of children, with various corresponding observances. One of these was the giving of presents in his name at Christmas time : thus he was the origin of "Santa Klaus". He is also one of the patron-saints of sailors and of captives. After St Paul, he is the national saint of Greece and, with St Andrew, a patron of Russia. Nearly four hundred pre-Reformation English churches were dedicated under his name.

"With the pure in heart I will wash my hands clean, and take my place among them at thy altar."—Ps. xxv, 6.

7

ST AMBROSE

AMBROSE, of noble family, was governor of Milan in 374, when a bishop was to be chosen for that great see. As Arian heretics were many there, he was present to preserve order during the election. Though only a catechumen, it was God's will that he should himself be chosen, by acclamation; and, in spite of his resistance, he was baptized and consecrated. He rose at once to the full height of his office, gave generously to the poor, and led a life of austerity and hard work. He was unwearied in every duty of a pastor, full of sympathy and charity, gentle but inflexible. He prevented a pagan altar being restored to the senate-house at Rome, braved the anger of the Empress Justina by refusing to give one of the churches of Milan to the Arians, and soundingly rebuked the great Emperor Theodosius. He was the friend and consoler of St Monica in her sorrows, and in 387 had the joy of admitting to the Church her son St Augustine, who left in his Confessions a living picture of Ambrose's life and work. He was a great hymn-writer, and among his other works is a treatise on virginity, which caused him to be accused of trying to depopulate the empire. "Wars, not maidens," he retorted, "are what destroy the human race." St Ambrose died in the year 397; he is revered by the Church as one of her greatest doctors.

Fear of God

Whence came St Ambrose's grandeur of mind, his clearness of insight, his intrepidity in maintaining the faith and discipline of the Church? Whence but from his contempt of the world, from his fearing God alone?

"The fear of God sets us free from the fear of His enemies."—St Ambrose.

The Emperor Theodosius I punished a fatal riot by a hideous massacre of the inhabitants of Thessalonica. St Ambrose, regardless of his own safety, remonstrated with him: "What has been done at Thessalonica is unparalleled in the memory of man." He separated the emperor from the communion of the Church, and would not restore him until he had done public penance. Theodosius, who had noble and generous qualities, did not resist: Ambrose was, he said, the only bishop he knew who was worthy of the name.

"The eyes of the Lord are upon them that fear him. He is their powerful protector and strong stay, a defence from the heat, and a cover from the sun at noon."—Ecclus. xxxiv, 19.

8

ST PHOCAS

PHOCAS was an early martyr at Sinope in Asia Minor, who at one time was widely venerated. No details of his life and passion are known, but the following story was afterwards told. Phocas was a gardener, who cultivated a small piece of land for a living. He gave to the poor what he could spare, his house was open to every wayfarer, and he spent the last evening of his life entertaining the men who sought his blood. The soldiers sent to kill him as a Christian came to his house for food and shelter, not knowing it was his. He gave them hospitality with his usual readiness, and when he asked their errand, they answered that they were looking for one Phocas, and asked his help. He invited them to stop there that night, promising to be their guide next day. After they had gone to bed he dug his grave, made everything ready for burial, and prepared his soul for death. Next day the officer again asked his assistance to find Phocas. "I," he said, "am he; do what you have to do." They were naturally unwilling to stain their hands with the blood of their host; but he assured them he wanted to die for Christ, and so they struck off his head. His feast-day is September 22.

The Immaculate Conception

"Recalling the greater sins of the gentiles", says St Bernard, "Paul says that they were without affection. Such want of affection was far from Mary's heart; let it also be far from the hearts of her servants."

"If you follow her, you do not stray; if you think of her, your mind does not err; if you ask of her, you will not be disappointed; if you cling to her, you will not fall. If she be with you, all is well, and you will realize the truth of the words 'the name of the virgin was Mary'."—St Bernard.

In a sermon of St Jerome read at Matins on the feast of the Immaculate Conception it is written : "The blessing of Mary wholly took away whatever curse was put upon Eve; and Solomon in the Song of Songs says, as if in praise of her, 'Come, my dove, my spotless one...'. She had a dove's simplicity in all things, everything about her was purity and modesty, truth and grace; all was mercy and goodness from Heaven. No sin was found in her, therefore she was without blemish."

"Thou art all fair, O my love, and there is not a spot in thee."—Canticle iv, 7.

9

ST PETER FOURIER

PETER FOURIER was born in Lorraine in 1565. At the age of twenty he entered the house of canons regular at Chaumousey, and there led a life of the strictest observance and endured many bitter trials from his relaxed brethren. In 1597 he was appointed to the difficult country parish of Mattaincourt, where his zeal and charity won the hearts of his flock, who again came to the sacraments and eagerly adopted the devotions, especially one in honour of the Immaculate Conception, which he established amongst them. To provide for their temporal interests he set up a savings-bank and insurance-company, and a "court" where claims might be equitably settled without the strife of law. Lastly he founded, together with Bd Alix Le Clercq and other devoted young women, the congregation of Augustinian Canonesses of Our Lady, for the free education of girls, which before his death numbered thirty-two houses. Having so successfully reformed his parish, Father Fourier was given the task of re-establishing discipline in the monasteries of his order in Lorraine, and this work was effectively done by 1629, three years before Fourier was appointed their general superior. Political troubles made it necessary for St Peter to leave Lorraine in 1636, and he died four years later.

Working for God

Peter gave himself to the care of one poor parish, seeking only the salvation of his flock; by that hidden work he became a saint, and founded the congregation which has spread so far in the world. Strive then to perform your own humble duties for God's sake. So will you reap untold blessings and eternal life.

“As Jesus Christ gives Himself to men in the Blessed Sacrament, looking for no return but the good they shall receive in communion, so do I give myself to you this day, not for the sake of any honour or advantage I may receive thereby, but simply for the salvation of your souls, which I am set on, even should it cost me my life.”—St Peter Fourier.

His flock were his children. “It is true,” said he one day to his brother, who had come to see him, and whom he dismissed in order to attend to a poor parishioner, “it is true you are my brother and my nearest earthly relation; but this man is my child, and I should be convicted before God of injustice did I not give him preference over you”.

“Do, while time serves, what needs doing; when the time comes, he will reward you.”—Ecclus. li, 38.

10

ST BARBARA

THIS famous saint is better known by the former popularity of her legend than by the story of her life, which is quite unknown. But the main particulars of the legend have a lesson for us which is often needed. They illustrate our Lord's words that He came not to send peace on earth, but a sword, to set a man at variance with his father, and that a man's enemies should be those of his own household. Barbara, we are told, was brought up a heathen. Her father, Dioscorus, kept her jealously secluded in a lonely tower which he had built for the purpose. Here in her forced solitude, she gave herself to prayer and study in search of divine truth, and God rewarded her with the gift of faith. She contrived to receive baptism by stealth from a Christian priest. Dioscorus on discovering his daughter's conversion was beside himself with rage. He himself denounced her before the magistrate, by whose order she was grievously tortured. Then she was beheaded, her own father acting as her executioner. But at once he was struck by lightning and utterly destroyed. The day of St Barbara's commemoration is December 4.

Viaticum

Pray often that you do not meet with a sudden and unprovided death; and above all that you may be fortified against the perils of your last journey by the holy viaticum of our Lord's sacramental Body and Blood.

“No one can be fit for martyrdom unless the Church has armed him for the conflict with Christ's Body and Blood; the soul is enfeebled if it has not been enlivened and strengthened by receiving the Eucharist."—St Cyprian.

The intercession of our Lady and St Joseph is habitually sought on behalf of the dying. We may also in our prayers well call upon St Benedict, of whom St Gregory the Great tells us that : "On the sixth day of his sickness he had himself carried into the church by his disciples, and there armed himself for death by receiving the Body and Blood of the Lord. Then, supporting his failing limbs by his disciples' help, he raised his hands to Heaven and, standing thus, breathed his last breath amid words of prayer."

"Enlighten my eyes that I never sleep in death, lest at any time my enemy say 'I have prevailed against him'."—Ps. xii, 4-5.

11 ST DIONYSIUS OF ALEXANDRIA

DIONYSIUS was born of heathen parents, and after his conversion he became a disciple of the learned Origen. Later on he succeeded his master in the care of the famous catechetical school at Alexandria, and in 247 he was consecrated bishop of that city. For seventeen years he held this see, which then ranked next to that of Rome; he ruled it well, and came forth victorious from trials, manifold and life-long, in the strength of his humility. He was assailed by heathen persecution, which drove him into banishment; and he told the story of his sufferings and apostolic zeal in this trial only because the slander of an envious Christian forced him to the folly, as he calls it, of justifying himself. Even then he minimizes his own renown by dwelling on praise of others, and by making a touching avowal of his own imperfections. In the same spirit he helped to restore peace to the Church when it was disturbed by internal disputes; he won sinners to penance and erring Christians to the truth; and he corrected his own teaching on certain points where his namesake, Pope St Dionysius, had told him that he was mistaken. It was in his old age that he gave this last proof of his humility, shortly before the close of a life which earned for him the title of "the Great." He died in the year 265, and his feast is on November 17.

Humility

God will do nothing for us till we are humble. Whenever we feel tempted to take pride or pleasure in ourselves, let us reflect that this comes from the Devil, who wants to draw us away from God, back to our own nothingness and sin.

"So fundamental is humility that we are not left to learn it from any ordinary teacher. It is our divine Saviour Himself who says : "Learn of me, for I am meek and humble of heart."—St Dionysius the Great.

Great were the learning and talents of St Dionysius and his part in the defence of the Christian faith. When he was presiding over the theological school of Alexandria he read, as his duties required, many works of heretics, in order to refute them. Yet so little did he trust himself, so much did he fear the danger to himself, that it needed a vision to encourage and reassure him. Our Lord appeared to him and said, "Read all that comes your way, for you are fit to examine and correct anything." Happy are they who, like Dionysius, put their faith under the guard of their humility.

"He hath exalted the humble."—Luke i, 52.

12 THE MARTYRS OF GORKUM

IN 1572, during the Dutch war of independence, the fortress of Gorkum was surrendered under the express stipulation that its occupants should have their freedom. No sooner, however, was the town in the hands of Calvinist soldiers than the Catholic clergy were cast into prison. There were among them eleven Franciscans, two of whom were lay-brothers, one Augustinian canon, one Dominican, two Premonstratensians and four secular priests. The Friday following, though starving with hunger, they refused the meat offered them, and were subjected to further ill-treatment and ridicule in consequence. Some of them were over sixty, and one ninety years of age. Twice they were brought to the foot of the gallows, in the hope that fear of death might induce some at least to apostatize; and they were offered liberty if they would deny the Real Presence and the primacy of the Pope. They refused, and when contemptuously told to sing the litany of the Saints they gladly did so. When artifices and threats had alike been used in vain, the final sentence was executed. In the middle of the night they were led away to a fuel-shed, and there hanged from the beams. Some of them lingered for hours, and their bodies were mutilated while they were still alive. The feast-day of these martyrs is July 9.

Obedience

Faith and obedience are the conditions of eternal life. The martyrs obtained their crowns not only because they believed, but because they proved their faith by obedience.

“Obedience plants the other virtues in the soul, and guards them when they are planted.”—St Gregory the Great.

The Church allows meat to be eaten on Friday when there is really no other food to be had, and in some other circumstances. But these martyrs refused it because it was offered them by apostates in contempt of religion, and because, had they eaten it, the act would have been taken as a denial of their faith. It is instructive that two of the Gorkum martyrs were priests whose lives had not been beyond reproach, but who, by God's grace, rose to the heroic occasion; while another, of blameless character, failed at the last moment.

“If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.”
—Matt. xix, 17.

13

ST LUCY

ST LUCY was an early martyr at Syracuse in Sicily; a church in Rome bore her name in the sixth century, and the English St Aldhelm praised her in prose and verse. But her story as it exists is not historically reliable. It relates how Lucy's mother was cured of a disease at St Agatha's tomb; and in gratitude the mother allowed her daughter to distribute her wealth among the poor, and consecrate her maidenhood to Christ. A young man, to whom Lucy had been promised in marriage, accused her as a Christian to the magistrate; but to her, on fire with the love of Christ, martyrdom was easy. "I have sacrificed," she said to him, "all that I had : now I offer the one sacrifice which remains—myself." Our Lord, by a miracle, saved from outrage this maiden whom He had chosen. The fire kindled around her did her no hurt. Then the sword was plunged into her throat. St Lucy may have suffered in the persecution under Diocletian.

The Love of Christ

The saints had to bear sufferings and temptations far greater than yours. How did they overcome them? By the love of Christ. Nourish this love by meditating on the mysteries of His life, and by the holy Eucharist, which is the antidote against sin and the pledge of eternal life.

"If we have you, O Christ, what more do we need? Are you not enough for him who loves?"—St Bonaventure.

Dame Julian of Norwich tells us how our Lord showed her Himself on the cross : "Full merrily and gladly our Lord looked towards His side, and said, 'See! How I loved thee!' as much as to say, 'My child, since thou cannot look into my Godhead, see here how I let open my side, and my heart be cloven in two, and let out blood and water, all that was therein. This pleases me, and so I would that it please thee'. Our Lord showed me this to make us glad and merry."

“That you may be able to comprehend, with all the saints, what is the breadth and length and height and depth, to know also the charity of Christ, which surpasseth all knowledge.”—Eph. iii, 18-19.

14 ST ABRAHAM KIDUNAIA

ABRAHAM was born into a wealthy family near Edessa in Mesopotamia during the sixth century. At his parents' desire he married, but before the festivities were over he had run away from home to a cell in the wilderness. Entreaties were of no avail. He walled up the cell-door, leaving only a small window through which he received his food. There he sang God's praises and implored mercy for himself and for all men. The wealth which fell to him on his parents' death he gave to the poor. As many sought him for advice and consolation, the bishop of Edessa, in spite of his unwillingness, ordained him priest. He was sent, soon after his ordination, to an idolatrous village which had hitherto been deaf to every missionary. Abraham at first fared like the rest. He was insulted, beaten and three times driven away, but he returned each time with fresh enthusiasm. For three years he pleaded with God for those souls, and in the end prevailed. Every one came to him for baptism. After providing for their spiritual needs, he went back to his cell more than ever convinced of the power of prayer. When it was known that he was dying, all Edessa streamed out to ask a last blessing. Many miracles of healing were attributed to him. St Abraham's feast-day is March 16.

Prayer for Sinners

It is sad that we do not realize the almightiness of prayer. Every man and woman is created to glorify God eternally; and it is in the power of every one to add to God's glory by the salvation of his neighbour. Let us make good use of this talent of prayer, lest our brother's blood be required of us at the last.

“Lovingly I entreat you to pray earnestly for the salvation of sinners, for whom I ask of you striving and tears, that I may satisfy my longing to show them grace and mercy.”—Revelation to St Catherine of Siena.

An addition to the Life of St Abraham says that he became the guardian of his niece Mary, whom he trained to follow in his footsteps. But she, having been seduced, left her cell to be a harlot in a distant city. At length Abraham went in search of the lost sheep, found her, and talked with her so lovingly and persuasively that she returned to the desert. Her repentance was sincere, and she lived the rest of her life in much holiness.

“He who causeth a sinner to be converted from the error of his way shall save his soul from death and shall cover a multitude of sins.”—James v, 20.

15

BD ANNE TAIGI

ANNE MARY GESUALDA was born of poor parents at Siena in 1769, but grew up in Rome. Here she became a domestic servant, and learned to admire her own good looks and to be too fond of pretty clothes.

But at twenty-one she married a footman, Dominic Taigi, and after a time underwent a "conversion". She became a tertiary of the Trinitarians, and began a life of stern mortification, at the same time perfectly fulfilling her duties to her husband and children. Before long a luminous disc, in which she saw things past, present and future, appeared to her, and was with her till death. Moved by the Holy Spirit, she offered herself as a victim of expiation for the sins of the world and the evils afflicting the Church. She became the adviser of many young men, whose temptations she foresaw, and, illiterate as she was, was consulted by prelates and statesmen, and was supernaturally informed of distant public events. Her husband, who testified in Anne's beatification proceedings at the age of ninety-two, referred to the many unexpected sort of people who called at his home, to difficulties with his children, and to his wife's unfailing tact : "She was my comfort, and everybody else's too". By the sufferings, spiritual and bodily, of her last years Bd Anne, whose life had been modelled on her Master's, was found worthy to have some share also in His passion. She died in 1837, and her feast is kept on June 9.

Knowledge of Heavenly Things

The routine of every-day commonplace duties is no hindrance to a free intimacy with God. He will disclose His hidden ways to you in proportion as you follow your vocation faithfully, whether in the world or the cloister.

"Every man speaks readily of that which fills his mind. If we lived more for God, with God and in God, we should have little difficulty in speaking about Him."—H. E. Manning.

When in the midst of her work she felt a sudden ecstasy, Bd Anne Taigi would exclaim, "Leave me in peace, Lord; leave me to my job! I am a poor mother of a family—please, please!"

Raptures of divine love would come upon her when she was busy in the kitchen, and then the torrent of spiritual happiness would oblige her to lean against the wall, were she would remain for some time, rapt. On returning to herself, her fear was to find the fire burnt out or the saucepan upset; but all was always in perfect order.

"Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; and your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. Moreover upon my servants and handmaids in those days I will pour forth my spirit."—Joel ii, 28-29.

16 ST NILUS OF SINAI

DURING the later fourth century there was a high official at Constantinople named Nilus. Some time after his second child was born he was taken by a strong desire for solitude. His wife consented to a separation, and, leaving her one child, Nilus took his younger, Theodulus, to the desert of Sinai, where they led a life whose watchword was: "We must praise God by our words, serve Him by our actions, and worship Him by our thoughts." Their peaceful existence was disturbed by an irruption of Arabs, who killed a number of monks and carried off Theodulus to be a slave. After burying the martyred solitaries, Nilus went in search of Theodulus, and for long sought him in vain. Then, hearing he was a slave in Eleusa, near Beersheba, Nilus hastened thither. The bishop of Eleusa ransomed Theodulus, and ordained them both priests; they returned to Sinai, and fulfilled the vow each had made to serve God yet more faithfully than before. Nilus died in peace at a great age, about the year 430.

God's Will

God does not ask from everybody such sacrifices as He required from St Nilus; but in His goodness He gives us all some things to renounce or to suffer for Him. It is by our loving submission to His will that we show ourselves to be Christians.

“The penance that God wants from us is obedience. There is plenty to put up with cheerfully—heat, cold, sickness, the tiresome ways of other people.”—St John Bosco.

Contemporary with St Nilus of Sinai was another St Nilus, abbot of a monastery at Ancyra in Asia Minor, to whom certain existing writings are attributed. There was something of the Stoic in his outlook : “Look upon the causes of happiness or of sadness in this life as a shadow or as a wheel,” he wrote. “The shadow vanishes, and the wheel does not stop turning.” He held the life of a hermit to be preferable to that of a monk in community; but coming upon a man living at the top of a pillar, he expressed his disapproval, saying, “Every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled.” This Nilus was a supporter of St John Chrysostom, and when John was banished wrote to the Emperor Arcadius to protest.

“His will is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he shall meditate day and night.”—Ps. i, 2.

17

ST OSWIN

THIRTEEN centuries ago Oswin was king of the English north-country province of Deira. In person he was handsome, tall and winning, his rule was just and happy, and he loved and was beloved by his subjects. He found a bosom friend in the venerable bishop St Aidan, and a mortal enemy in his jealous cousin and neighbour, King Oswy of Bernicia. Each in turn served Oswin with occasions of virtue. At one time we find him on his knees before St Aidan asking forgiveness for a hasty speech; at another, disbanding his men to save them from Oswy's superior force. Seeing at last that his own death could alone pacify Oswy and save his people, he retired with one faithful companion to Gilling in Yorkshire, whose lord he had recently benefited. This man betrayed his king and benefactor to those whom Oswy had sent in pursuit, and Oswin was slain at Gilling, in 651. His memory was ever held in love and veneration; he was honoured as a martyr, and his body was buried in a monastery that King Oswy's wife, Eanfleda, built at Gilling. During the Danish invasions the relics were removed to Tynemouth, of which town St Oswin is accounted the patron. His feast-day is August 20.

Admission of Faults

By readily acknowledging any fault, great or small, we foil the Devil, humble our pride, and rise by our very falls.

“It is not enough simply to accuse yourself; you must accuse yourself first, and not wait for others to bring the charge against you.”—St John Chrysostom.

St Aidan used to travel about his diocese on foot, at the cost of much time, fatigue and even danger. King Oswin therefore gave him a good horse. Shortly afterwards the bishop, meeting a beggar, gave the poor man the horse, rich trappings and all. This apparently uncalled-for generosity vexed the king, and he remonstrated with Aidan, who replied, "What, my lord king? Is that foal of a mare dearer to you than that son of God?" The king soon came to himself, fell on his knees, and sought forgiveness of Aidan so humbly that the bishop said mournfully to one of his priests in Gaelic (so that Oswin should not understand), "I know that the king will not live long, for never did I see a prince so humble. This nation is not worthy of him, and he will be taken from us."

"The just man is the first accuser of himself."—Prov. xviii, 17.

18 ST ODO OF CLUNY

AT Christmas time about the year 880 an Aquitanian nobleman prayed earnestly that he might have a son. His prayer was heard; Odo was born, and his grateful father dedicated him to St Martin of Tours: "Martin, gem of priests, take this boy". Odo grew in wisdom and in virtue, and his father longed to see him a gentleman at arms. But grace was too strong. Odo's heart was sad and his health failed, until his father let him be tonsured and accept a canonry in the church of St Martin at Tours. There he studied and wrote, and ripened in grace and in devotion to his patron saint; he would go at night to pray at his tomb, wrote hymns in his honour, and kept his example before his eyes. Later on he took the habit of St Benedict at Baume, and in 927 was chosen second abbot of the great abbey of Cluny. He ruled it with a rod of iron and the winningness of a saint; the service of God was celebrated with splendour, the rule enforced with exactness, and other abbots invoked Odo's help in the improvement of their communities, improvement that was sometimes strongly resisted. The Holy See sent for St Odo to act as peacemaker between contending princes, and it was on returning from one of these missions that he died, in the city of "his own St Martin", in 942. His feast is kept on November 18.

Our Patron Saints

Our patron saints are, as it were, our guardians in God's family, guardians not appointed by the law but chosen by ourselves. We must, then, honour and trust them, follow their example and call on the help of their prayers.

"Choose some particular saints, that you may enter more deeply into their spirit and imitate them, and have a special confidence in their intercession."—St Francis de Sales.

St Odo was taken ill at Rome, and at once felt a longing again to visit the shrine of St Martin, his first love and his great attraction through life, and to die there. He set out on his long journey, upheld by "his exceeding devotion to St Martin." He reached Tours on St Martin's day; and on the octave, after a week of longing for God and humble preparation for death, he uttered the name of Martin, and, murmuring "O Christ, spare those whom thou hast redeemed," died.

"And the smoke of the incense of the prayers of the saints went up before God."—Apoc. viii, 4.

19 ST MACRINA THE YOUNGER

ST MACRINA belonged, both by father and mother, to some of the most illustrious families in Asia Minor, families equally eminent for religion and holiness. Her paternal grandparents, during persecution, lost all they had, and were forced to leave home for the mountain forests, where they lived for seven years. Her maternal grandfather gave his life for the faith. Her father was St Basil the Elder; her mother Emmelia, too, was a saint, and three of her brothers. Macrina was the eldest of ten. Her betrothed husband dying before marriage, she chose a single life. She remained at home, and was the comfort and stay of her mother, taking charge of the house and family, of their property, and still more of their growth in holiness. First she took in hand the eldest brother, and he became St Basil the Great, the father of Eastern monasticism. Then she turned to Naucratus, an accomplished and attractive youth, and the only one who remained a layman, very devoted to the poor. Then came Gregory, who was married; he at length took orders, ending by being bishop of Nyssa, and a saint. The youngest of the children was Peter; he too became a bishop, of Sebastea, and a saint. This family was one of the most remarkable in Christian antiquity. St Macrina the Elder was the paternal grandmother of this Macrina, who died in 379. Her feast-day is July 19.

Family Affection

The children of one home, brothers and sisters, may love each other with an intense affection when young; but that love will not stand the wear and tear of time, unless it be baptized in the grace and in the image of the eternal Trinity, the God of love. Blessed are they whose brotherhood is not only of blood, but of spirit, recorded, not in an earthly register merely, but in the Book of Life.

“The most holy Lord has consecrated to Himself an unblemished family, spotless amid the clinging filth of human sin.”—St Ambrose.

Macrina at length retired to the community of women established by her eldest brother and her mother. Nine months after Basil's death she was taken ill, and the second brother, Gregory, then a bishop, went to see her. He found her lying on a plank bed, with a piece of wood for pillow. Seeing in him not only the brother but the bishop, she tried to raise herself on her knees to receive his blessing, but he stopped her. She died at the hour of evening office, when the lamps were being lit, and so poor was the house that there were no proper burial clothes in it. St Gregory of Nyssa left a written memoir of his beloved sister.

“Andrew was one of the two who had heard of John and followed him. He findeth first his brother Simon, and saith to him, ‘We have found the Messias’, which is, being interpreted, the Christ. And he brought him to Jesus.”—John i, 40-42.

20 SS. TARACHUS, PROBUS AND ANDRONICUS

ST TARACHUS and his companions were arrested at a town called Pompeiopolis in Cilicia about the year 304, and died at Anazarbus. Differing as they did in age and position, they were alike in the constancy of their faith and courage under torture. Tarachus was an old ex-soldier, Probus a plebeian, Andronicus a young patrician. They were scourged and racked, and their teeth knocked out. Andronicus' tongue was cut out and burnt, lest, as the governor Maximus said, "foolish women" should honour it as a relic. At last they were taken to the amphitheatre, and the wild beasts let loose on them. But God showed that men have no power of their own over the souls and bodies of His saints. Maximus was obliged to despatch them with the sword, for the wild beasts crouched fawning at the feet of the martyrs and would not harm them. Their dead bodies were thrown among those of the gladiators, and a watch set over them. But at night a very violent storm scattered the guards, and the Christians were able to recover the bodies of their fellows and give them burial. The writer of the account says that he watched the scene in the arena from a hiding-place on a neighbouring hill. The feast-day of these martyrs is on October 11.

Sacred Bodies

The Church encourages a special respect for holy relics, and this devotion should teach us a double lesson—confidence in the intercession of the saints, and reverence for our own bodies, which are the temples of the Holy Ghost.

"Even when the soul is gone, power and virtue remain in the bodies of the saints, because of the righteous souls which have dwelt in them."—St Cyril of Jerusalem.

O God, who dost gladden us every year by the festival of thy holy martyrs Tarachus, Probus and Andronicus, grant in thy mercy that we, who rejoice in their merits, may be inspired by the example that their lives afford us.

“The Lord keepeth all their bones; not one of them shall be broken.”—Ps. xxxiii, 21.

21 ST THOMAS THE APOSTLE

ST THOMAS was one of the fishermen on the Lake of Galilee whom our Lord called to be His apostles. There are only three incidents related of him in the gospels, but these are enough to make his character more familiar to us than that of any other except Peter and John. By nature slow to believe, apt to see difficulties and to look at the dark side of things, he had nevertheless a sympathetic, loving and courageous heart. Once when Jesus spoke of the mansions in His Father's house, Thomas in his simplicity asked, “Lord, we know not whither thou goest, and how can we know the way?” When Jesus turned to go towards Bethany to the grave of Lazarus, the desponding Thomas at once feared the worst for his beloved Lord, yet said bravely to the rest, “Let us also go, and die with Him.” After the Resurrection incredulity again prevailed, and whilst the wounds of the crucifixion were imprinted vividly on his mind, he would not credit the report that Christ had indeed risen. But the actual sight of the pierced hands and side and the gentle rebuke of his Saviour went home at once to his generous heart. Unbelief was gone for ever; and his faith and ours has ever triumphed in the joyous exclamation, “My Lord and my God!”

The Triumph of Faith

Cast away all disquieting doubts and learn to overcome old weaknesses as did St Thomas, who "by his ignorance instructed the ignorant, and by his incredulity served the faith of all ages."

"By his confession and touching of the wounds he taught us what we ought to believe. He saw one thing and believed another. His eyes beheld Manhood alone, but by his faith he confessed Godhead."—St Augustine.

"He who once saw danger in the short journey to Bethany," says St John Chrysostom, "now, full of courage, carries the faith further than any of the other Apostles." How far exactly is not known for certain; but there is an old tradition, not unsupported by some evidence, that St Thomas proclaimed the good news of Christ in India. The local belief there is that he suffered martyrdom at Mylapore, now a suburb of Madras.

"Because thou hast seen me, Thomas, thou hast believed. Blessed are they who have not seen, and have believed."—John xx, 29.

22 ST FRANCES CABRINI

FRANCES XAVIER CABRINI was the first citizen of the United States of America to be canonized, but she was born in northern Italy, in 1850, the daughter of a farmer. After being refused admittance by two religious congregations, on the score of poor health, she gained experience in running an orphanage, and in 1877 began the foundation of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart. She wanted to work in China; but Pope Leo XIII directed her to America, where the state of the numerous Italian immigrants was causing grave concern to the ecclesiastical authorities. Mother Cabrini, with six companions, landed at New York in 1889. For twenty years, her congregation growing rapidly all the time, she laboured at the establishment of orphanages, hospitals and schools, for others as well as immigrants, and often in the face of dire difficulties and opposition. Nor was her activity confined to the United States : she travelled tirelessly to make foundations in various parts of South America, in France and in her native Italy, and in England. Mother Cabrini was a woman of iron determination and a born ruler, though sometimes perhaps too strict in her dealings. But she knew where her strength lay : when the difficulties of opening a high-school in Buenos Aires were emphasized to her, she retorted, "Are we doing this? Or is our Lord?" Death came to her suddenly, at Chicago, in 1917. Many years earlier Leo XIII had declared she was a saint, and Pius XII confirmed that opinion by canonizing her in 1946.

Refusal to be Discouraged

In the difficulties with which we have to contend we must arm ourselves with courage, which consists not only in making the most of good things, but also of outfacing and overcoming the obstacles in our way, with the help of God that is always at hand.

"Love one another. Sacrifice yourselves for your sisters, readily and always. Be kind to them, and never sharp or harsh. Don't nurse resentment, but be meek and peaceable."—St Frances, to her nuns.

St Frances Cabrini's career began with an endeavour to organize an orphanage that someone else had reduced to utter confusion. The beginnings of her congregation were hampered by deliberate obstruction and by objections that were sometimes frivolous. In New York she was told to go back home again, as arrangements for her community's work had fallen through. She was involved in a long lawsuit in Italy, and at Milan she had to face rioting mobs. Her long journeys were carried out at a time when facilities for travel were not what they are today, and she had a fear of the sea. Those were only some of her trials; she met them with unflinching determination, and complete trust that God would do what was best for her works of charity which, she knew, were really His.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you : not as the world giveth do I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, nor let it be afraid."—John xiv, 27.

23 BD ANGELA OF FOLIGNO

ANGELA was born at Foligno in Italy about 1248. Marrying early, she passed her youth in frivolity and pleasure-seeking, if not worse, but suddenly, when she was about thirty-seven, she underwent a conversion. She saw her state, and her heart was possessed by a hard and bitter sorrow, which the thought of Christ's passion alone could soften. By degrees she gave up her easy way of life, with its comforts and amusements, but felt shame rather than love in these sacrifices, and resented keenly every little slight put upon her, real or imagined. Then she had a succession of piercing losses. Her much-loved mother died, and Angela lost in quick succession her husband and her sons. Alone in the world, she gave her whole heart to God, and one day, when saying the Lord's Prayer, understood like a new revelation His goodness and her own ingratitude. She entered the third order of St Francis, and followed that saint in his spirit and his poverty. At her confessor's request she dictated an account of her life and visions, which were very remarkable and told in a restrained and convincing way. In 1309 Bd Angela, one of the great mystics of the Middle Ages, died, as she had said of another, "buried in the knowledge of her own defects but risen to taste the sweetness of God." Her feast-day is February 28.

God our Father

Look upon the child Jesus, and learn from Him, as did Bd Angela, the love of God, your Father in Heaven, and of Christ, your Brother on earth.

"I said the 'Our Father' with so much contrition and recollection, pronouncing every word carefully, that though I was in anguish at the thought of my sins, I yet received immense comfort and tasted something of the bliss God grants His loved ones. I have never found a better way for realizing His mercy than by saying that prayer which Jesus Himself taught us."—Bd Angela of Foligno.

The solitude of a sick-bed, constant pain, incessant temptations, the loss of every earthly friend—these only convinced Angela of her absolute dependence on her Father in Heaven. She learned to love poverty, sorrow and hardship as the companions which He had chosen for His Son, and by studying the life of the God-man she acquired so perfect a detachment, and such an intimate knowledge of the things of God, that the writings of this penitent worldling rank high among the revelations of the saints.

“You have received the spirit of adoption of sons, whereby we cry Abba, ‘Father’... and if sons, heirs also : heirs indeed of God, and joint-heirs with Christ.”
—Rom. viii, 15, 17.

24 SS. BONOSUS AND MAXIMIAN

BONOSUS and Maximian were officers in the Herculean cohort at Antioch, and seem to have been in charge of the standard. In the year 363 they were ordered, in accordance with a decree of Julian the Apostate, to remove the cross which Constantine had set upon the imperial standard, and to put a symbol of idolatry in its place; this they would not do. Their refusal was treated as an act of mutiny, and Count Julian, uncle to the emperor, summoned them before his tribunal. It was in vain that he tried to terrify them by threats, and when he passed from words to deeds they bore the flogging like men dead to pain. The cruelty of their judge did not stop here, and he proceeded to have the officers tortured in several other ways; but, we are told, God rendered the punishments harmless. Finally the pagan prefect, Secundus, refused to allow any more torture. The two officers were shut up for days with nothing to eat except bread stamped with idolatrous symbols; but when the prison doors were opened, the bread was untouched and the martyrs, still strong and vigorous, were praising God. So Count Julian ordered them to be beheaded. They received the sentence gladly, and died as they had lived, faithful to the cross of Christ. Their feast-day is August 21.

The Sign of the Cross

The early Christians hallowed every action with the sign of the life-giving Cross. Use it as they used it, remembering that you are the disciples of a crucified God.

“He who has not learnt what the Cross means knows nothing, and he who knows the Cross has nothing more to learn.”—St Vincentia Gerosa.

Constantine set the Cross and the monogram of Christ on the military standards, and under this sign led his armies to victory. Julian the Apostate tried to undo the work of Constantine and re-establish idolatry. But Christians knew well that the triumphs of the Cross do not cease when men cease to honour it, and counted every martyrdom a victory for it. It is said that when Bonosus and Maximian went forth to die, St Meletius, the bishop of Antioch, with troops of Christians, accompanied them in triumphal procession, and the whole city exulted in the glory of the martyrs.

“Then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven. And then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn; and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with much power and majesty.”—Matt. xxiv, 30.

25

ST ANASTASIA

AT the second Mass on Christmas day a commemoration is made of St Anastasia, martyr. She probably suffered death for Christ at Sirmium in what is now Serbia, during the persecution under Diocletian.

About the year 460 her relics were translated to Constantinople, and her memory became widely venerated. In Rome, the pope used to sing the dawn Mass of Christmas at a church which came to be called St Anastasia's, and so we have the corresponding commemoration to this day. It is disappointing that this is all that is known of a saint with such a remarkable distinction as being mentioned in the Christmas liturgy : but her true story has been forgotten, and what passes as an account of her life and death is only fictitious. "Grant, we beseech thee, almighty God, that we, who celebrate the festival of thy martyr the blessed Anastasia, may experience the power of her advocacy with thee."

The Saviour's Birthday

When we see the image of the holy Child in the crib, let us remember above all why the Son of God became man : to ransom all of us children of Adam and bring us to everlasting life, by giving His life for us on Good Friday and rising from the grave on Easter day.

"He came not so as to shake the world at the presence of majesty, not in thunder and lightning, as on Sinai : he came quietly, no man knowing it."—St John Chrysostom.

In a sermon read at Christmas Matins, Pope St Leo the Great says : "Our Saviour was born today : let us rejoice! It is not right that there should be any sadness among those who are keeping the birthday of life, the birthday which swallows up fear of death and brings us gladness because of its promise of a happy eternity. No one is shut out from sharing this joy, the cause of it is for everybody. Our Lord, who destroys sin and death, finds no one guiltless, and so it is all of us whom

He comes to set free. Let the good man be glad, for his palm is near at hand; let the sinner rejoice, for he is called to forgiveness; let the heathen take heart, for he is summoned to life. For, at the time willed by divine wisdom, the Son of God took on man's nature in order to reconcile it with its Maker, so that the Devil, from whom death came, might be conquered through that very nature which had been conquered by him."

"The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us; and we saw his glory, the glory as it were of the only-begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."—John i, 14.

26

ST STEPHEN

THERE is good reason to believe that St Stephen was one of the seventy-two disciples of our Lord. After the Ascension he was chosen one of the seven deacons at Jerusalem. His name is put first, and he is specially praised as "a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." The ministry of the seven was very fruitful; but Stephen especially, "full of grace and fortitude, did great wonders and signs among the people." Many adversaries rose up to dispute with him, but "they were not able to withstand the wisdom and the Spirit that spoke." At length he was brought before the Sanhedrim, charged, like his divine Master, with "blasphemy against Moses and against God." He boldly upbraided the chief priests with their hard-hearted resistance to the Holy Ghost and with the murder of the Just One. They were stung with anger, and railed violently against him. And when, filled with the Holy Ghost and looking up to Heaven, he cried, "Behold, I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God," they rushed on him and dragged him outside the city walls. There they stoned him to death, whilst he cried out, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!" And when he had prayed aloud for his murderers, "he fell asleep in the Lord." St Stephen is called "the protomartyr," because he was the first who, after our Saviour's death, had the happiness to lay down life for life.

Forgiveness of Injuries

If ever you are tempted to resentment, pray from your heart for him who has offended you.

"Lord, do not count this sin against them!"—St Stephen.

Among those who had a hand in St Stephen's death a chief part was borne by Saul of Tarsus, a young Pharisee, full of zeal for the law. It was he who stood by the heap of outer garments that the murderers cast off to give their limbs freer play. A little while afterwards, on the road to Damascus, in the full course of his relentless persecution of Christians, he was converted by a vision of Jesus, who said, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?" And Saul the persecutor became Paul the apostle. Such was the glorious answer to Stephen's dying prayer.

"Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you; and pray for them that persecute and calumniate you; that you may be the children of your Father who is in heaven, who maketh his sun to rise upon the good and bad, and raineth upon the just and the unjust."—Matt. v, 44-45.

27 ST JOHN THE EVANGELIST

BY divine inspiration St John wrote the greatest testimony to himself, when he named himself in his gospel as "the disciple whom Jesus loved." Our Lord loves purity of heart above all things, and it was this grace which endeared John to the heart of his Master. He is said to have been the youngest of the Apostles, he outlived the others, and he is the only one of them of whom it is sure that he did not die a martyr. He was called to follow Christ on the banks of the sea of Galilee during the first days of our Lord's ministry. He was one of the privileged three present at His transfiguration and His agony in the garden. At the Last Supper, his head rested on Jesus' bosom, and in the hours of the passion, when others fled or denied their Master, John kept his place by the side of Jesus, and at the last stood by the cross with Mary. From the cross the dying Saviour bequeathed His mother to his care, who "from that hour took her to his own"; thus fittingly, as St Augustine says, "to a virgin was the Virgin entrusted." After the Ascension, St John lived first at Jerusalem, and then at Ephesus, and at one time he was banished to the isle of Patmos, where he received the heavenly visions described in the Apocalypse. St Jerome tells us that, when he no longer had the strength to preach, the aged John would be carried to the assemblies of the faithful, where he would say to them simply, "My little children, love one another!" For that, he explained, is the Lord's word, "and if you keep it you do enough." St John died at a great age about the year 100.

Purity of Heart

St John is a living example of our Lord's saying, "Blessed are the clean of heart, for they shall see God."

“God is seen with the heart..., and just as light cannot be seen unless with eyes that are clear, so neither is God seen unless that is pure by which He can be seen.”—St Augustine.

It was St John's special gift to see and to show forth the mysteries of the Godhead. “Not undeservedly,” says St Augustine, “is this evangelist compared to the eagle, for his teaching is yet more profound and rises higher than that of the other three. He soars aloft, and he wants our hearts to do likewise. The other evangelists walk with the Lord as a man upon earth, and tell us little of His Godhead. But John, at the very beginning of his gospel, soared above earth and air and sky, above the heavenly host, and reached Him who made them and all things. ‘In the beginning’, he writes, ‘was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God’.” So, too, St John is the one prophetic seer of the New Testament. To him alone was it granted to see and to describe the heavenly Jerusalem, with the Lamb on His throne; the woman clothed with the sun; and the army of angelic spirits.

“Create a clean heart in me, O God, and renew a right spirit within me.”—Ps. 1, 12.

28 THE HOLY INNOCENTS

THE Herod who ruled in Judaea at the time of our Lord's birth is sometimes called “the Great”; he was in fact no more than a puppet-king under the Romans, noted equally for his cruelty and for his luxurious magnificence. When, then, he heard that, in accordance with Jewish expectation, a Child had been born king of the Jews in Bethlehem, he trembled for his throne. He told the Wise Men to come back and report to him when they had seen this Child; but, warned by God, they did not. Then Herod was very angry, with the anger born of fear; and he sent soldiers, who killed all male children of two years old or less who were to be found in Bethlehem and round about. But Jesus they did not find, because He had been taken into Egypt at God's word. Then, writes St Matthew, "A voice in Rama was heard, lamentation and great mourning, Rachel bewailing her children and would not be comforted, because they were not". Bethlehem and its immediate neighbourhood was not very populous : the number of boy babies so ruthlessly killed has been estimated at twenty-five or so at the most, half a dozen at the least. The Church venerates these innocents as martyrs, martyrs, moreover, who died not simply for Jesus but actually instead of Him. She greets them in the Divine Office as "flowers of martyrdom"; they were, as St Augustine says, "buds", killed by the frost of persecution as soon as they showed themselves. Under the church of the Nativity at Bethlehem is an altar in their honour, and every afternoon the Franciscan friars with choir-boys and other children visit it and sing the hymn "Hail, flowers of martyrdom!"

Strength out of Weakness

We learn from these, and other, child martyrs that, however weak we may be, we can still suffer for Christ's sake, and so win our crown.

"These martyrs are indeed a work of grace. They bear witness in silence; they fight unknowingly; they triumph unawares; they die unconsciously; they find themselves with crowns and palms before they even know the words."—St John Chrysostom.

St Augustine says in a sermon read at Matins today : "On this day we celebrate those children who, as the Gospel tells us, were put to death by a heartless king, Herod. So let the earth rejoice with great joy, for she is the fruitful mother of the great army of faithful soldiers in Heaven. The wicked enemy's favour could never have done so much for these blessed little ones as did his hatred. For the holy feast we are keeping shows clearly that, as iniquity abounded against these babes, so much the more were blessings from on high poured out on them."

"Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise."—Ps. viii, 3.

29 ST THOMAS OF CANTERBURY

THOMAS, son of Gilbert Becket, was born in London in 1118. After a few years "in the city", he was given a post in the household of Theobald, archbishop of Canterbury, who ordained him deacon and presented him to several benefices. Soon he became archdeacon of Canterbury, and in 1155 was chosen by the king, Henry II, as chancellor of England. His great abilities and the services rendered by him gained him the especial confidence of Henry, and when Archbishop Theobald died in 1160 the king insisted that Thomas be ordained priest and bishop and promoted to the primatial see. At first Thomas refused, warning Henry that from that hour their friendship would be broken. In the end he yielded, and at once became a changed man. From being, in his own words, "proud, vain, a feeder of birds and a follower of hounds," he showed the other side of his character, austere, devout, a most faithful shepherd of his flock. Conflict soon broke out. Thomas resisted, sometimes with violence, royal customs and policies which violated or threatened the Church's liberties and rights. After ten years of contention, partly spent in exile at Sens and Pontigny, Thomas with full foresight of what lay before him, returned to England, and on 29 December 1170 was murdered in his own cathedral. He was at once acclaimed a martyr, the people declared him a saint, and the popular verdict was confirmed by Pope Alexander III, who canonized him in 1173. St Thomas's shrine at Canterbury was one of the most famous in Christendom for 350 years.

The Things of God

Learn from St Thomas, says Father Faber, to fight the good fight even to the shedding of your blood, or to what men find harder, the shedding of their good name, by pouring it out on the earth.

"I am ready to die for the name of Jesus and in defence of His Church."—Dying words of St Thomas.

Vespers were beginning when four knights broke into the cathedral, crying, "Where is the archbishop? Where is the traitor?" The monks fled, and Thomas might easily have escaped, but he stood his ground, saying, "Here I am. No traitor, but archbishop and God's priest. What do you want?" The knights shouted certain demands at him. He refused them. There was a scuffle in the semi-darkness. Thomas was struck down, and a sword clove through his head. Terrified people in the nave said to one another, "He was a saint". Twice did King Henry submit to humiliating public penance : he had probably not intended Thomas's death, but his infuriated words had certainly brought it about. St Thomas Becket is the patron saint of the English secular clergy.

“Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.”
—Matt. xxii, 21.

30 ST CASPAR DEL BUFALO

OUR Lord’s precious blood has been regarded as a synonym for the Redemption from apostolic times, but the spread of a special devotion in its honour was in great measure due to St Caspar del Bufalo. He was born in Rome in 1786, a time when western Europe was entering on a dangerous era, but the presence of evil seemed only to quicken his zeal for God’s glory and a devotion to the Precious Blood, which men so ignored and despised. As a schoolboy, in spite of blows and ridicule, he was a young apostle, and after he was ordained priest he amply fulfilled the promise of his early years. Soon after his ordination Napoleon’s troops occupied Rome, and Caspar was among the clergy exiled by the French for his fidelity to the Holy See. On the return of Pope Pius VII he was appointed to give missions in an Italy suffering seriously from lack of sufficient clergy. He was determined to arouse in men’s souls love of the Blood of Jesus, and no sickness or dangers could check his delivery of the divine word. Followers gathered to his side, and with these he formed the congregation of the Missioners of the Precious Blood. He said he would die content if a feast were established in its honour; and twelve years after his death Pope Pius IX gave the feast to the whole Western church for July 1. St Vincent Strambi called St Caspar’s sermons “religious earthquakes”; he gave his last mission in 1836, at St Philip Neri’s Chiesa Nuova in Rome, and died shortly after. His feast-day is January 2.

The Precious Blood

Learn from St Caspar to grow in hatred of sin, love of God and zeal for men’s souls by devotion to the Precious Blood.

“In these days, when wicked men in their hatred of the Catholic religion make open war against it... zeal for God’s glory ought to bestir every Christian like a fire, that the triumphs of the Crucified may be endlessly increased through the merits of the Precious Blood.”—St Caspar del Bufalo.

A disciple of St Caspar, inspired by one of his missions, was Bd Mary de Mattias, who founded the Sisters Adorers of the Precious Blood. Among her supporters were two English prelates in Rome, Mgr George Talbot and Mgr Edward Howard. In 1847 a Confraternity of the Precious Blood was established in England by Father F. W. Faber at Cotton in Staffordshire. This confraternity was re-erected in 1850 in the church of the London Oratory, and countless graces and conversions have been obtained by its prayers. In 1910 the senior metropolitan cathedral of England, at Westminster, was dedicated to Jesus Christ under the title of the Precious Blood.

“Blessed are they that wash their robes in the blood of the Lamb.”—Apoc. xxii, 14.

31

ST SILVESTER I

SILVESTER was born in Rome towards the close of the third century. He lived through the last but most bloody Roman persecution of Christians, under the Emperor Diocletian, when it was scarcely possible for a Christian to escape being put to the test of offering sacrifice, with the alternative of apostasy or death. In the year 313 a new era set in. The Emperor Constantine having triumphed under the standard of the Cross, he declared himself the protector of Christians, and granted privileges to the Church, including possession of the Lateran basilica, henceforth to be the mother church of Rome and the world. At this juncture Silvester was elected to the chair of Peter, and was thus the first of the Roman pontiffs to rule Christ's flock in security and peace. He profited by these blessings to renew the discipline of the Church, and in 325 the first general council assembled at Nicaea in Asia Minor; Silvester was represented by legates, and the devastating Arian heresy was condemned, Jesus Christ being declared to be really and truly God. St Silvester, of whom little is known personally, died in 335. The church of San Silvestro, where he was eventually buried, is the national church of English Catholics in Rome.

Trust in the Church

Never forget to thank God daily for having made you a member of His undying Church, and grow daily in your attachment, devotion and faithfulness to the Vicar of Christ.

“Christ conquers, Christ reigns, Christ rules. May Christ preserve us from all ill.”—Prayer inscribed on the Obelisk in St Peter's Square.

St Silvester witnessed the end of the Roman persecutions, yet other trials soon came upon the earthly heads of Christ's Church. Barbarian hordes, unruly emperors, turbulent Italian nobles, foreign usurpers, antipopes have in turn assailed the holy city of Rome. Of the 258 or so pontiffs who have sat in Peter's chair, some were martyred in the first three centuries, some were driven into exile, some imprisoned, some were unable to set foot in the Eternal City and had to fulfil their office from elsewhere; many were saints, a few were bad men. Thus the condition of the Vicars of Christ is to live as their Master did, in a state of suffering, contradiction and conflict; but, like their Master again, they speak in every age the words of eternal truth, and outlive the persecutions of men and Satan with a vitality which comes from God.

“Behold, I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.”—Matt. xxviii, 20.

ONE HOUR OVERTAKES ANOTHER AND, THOUGH NEVER SO LONG, AT LAST COMES DEATH. AND YET NOT DEATH; FOR DEATH IS THE GATE OF LIFE TO US WHEREBY WE ENTER INTO EVERLASTING BLESSEDNESS.

Bd John Almond of Allerton.

INDEX OF SAINTS

Abraham of Kidunaia,	14 Dec.	Apollonius & Philemon,
Aelred,	3 March		9 April
Afra,	5 Aug.	Arcadius,	8 Jan.
Agatha,	5 Feb.	Arsenius,	7 July
Agnes,	21 Jan.	Athanasius,	2 May
Agnes of Montepulciano,		Augustine of Canterbury,
	20 April		28 May
Aidan,	31 Aug.	Augustine of Hippo,	28 Aug.
Alban,	22 June
Albert the Great,	15 Nov.	Bademus,	31 Oct.
Aldhelm,	23 May	Barbara,	10 Dec.
Alexis,	17 July	Barnabas,	11 June
Alexis Falconieri,	12 Feb.	Bartholomew,	24 Aug.
Alipius,	14 Aug.	Basil,	14 June
All Saints,	1 Nov.	Bede,	27 May
Aloysius Gonzaga,	21 June	Benedict,	21 March
Alphege,	19 April	Benedict Biscop,	12 Jan.
Alphonsus Liguori,	2 Aug.	Benedict Labre,	16 April
Alphonsus Rodriguez,	30 Oct.	Benedict of Aniane,	11 Feb.
Ambrose,	7 Dec.	Bernard,	20 Aug.
Ammon,	7 Oct.	Bernardine of Siena,	20 May
Anastasia,	25 Dec.	Bessarion,	16 Aug.
Anastasius the Persian,		Bonaventure,	14 July
	17 Feb.	Boniface of Crediton,	5 June
Andrew,	30 Nov.	Boniface of Tarsus,	14 May
Andrew Avellino,	10 Nov.	Bonosus & Maximian,	24 Dec.
Andrew Bobola,	21 May	Bridget of Sweden,	8 Oct.
Andrew Corsini,	4 Feb.	Brigid of Kildare,	2 Feb.
Angela Merici,	31 May	Bruno,	6 Oct.
Angela of Foligno, Bd,
	23 Dec.	Caesarius of Arles,	22 Oct.
Anne,	26 July	Cajetan,	7 Aug.
Anne Line, Bd,	27 Feb.	Callistus I,	14 Oct.
Anne Taigi, Bd,	15 Dec.	Camillus de Lellis,	18 July
Anselm,	21 April	Casimir,	4 March
Antonino,	10 May	Caspar del Bufalo,	30 Dec.
Antony Zaccaria,	5 July	Catherine dei Ricci,	13 Feb.
Antony of Padua,	13 June	Catherine of Alexandria,
Antony the Abbot,	17 Jan.		25 Nov.
Apollonia,	31 March	Catherine of Bologna,	3 May

- | | |
|---|---|
| Catherine of Genoa, 15 Sept. | Epipodius & Alexander, 22 April |
| Catherine of Siena, 30 April | Erconwald, 30 May |
| Cecily, 22 Nov. | Ethelburga, 30 May |
| Celestine V, 19 May | Etheldreda, 23 June |
| Chad, 2 March | Eustochium, 27 Oct. |
| Charles Borromeo, 4 Nov. | |
| Charles Spinola, Bd, 11 Sept. | Felix of Cantalice, 18 May |
| Clare, 12 Aug. | Felix of Nola, 18 Jan. |
| Clare of Rimini, Bd, 26 March | Fidelis of Sigmaringen, 24 April |
| Clement I, 23 Nov. | Flavian of Constantinople, 18 Feb. |
| Clement Hofbauer, 15 March | Forty Martyrs, The, 10 March |
| Colette, 8 April | Frances Cabrini, 22 Dec. |
| Columba of Iona, 9 June | Frances of Rome, 9 March |
| Columba of Rieti, Bd, 1 Sept. | Francis Borgia, 10 Oct. |
| Conrad of Piacenza, 19 Feb. | Francis Caracciolo, 4 June |
| Cornelius, 16 Sept. | Francis di Girolamo, 13 Sept. |
| Cuthbert, 20 March | Francis de Sales, 29 Jan. |
| Cuthbert Mayne, Bd, 29 Nov. | Francis Solano, 13 July |
| Cyprian, 17 Sept. | Francis Xavier, 3 Dec. |
| Cyril of Alexandria, 9 Feb. | Francis of Assisi, 4 Oct. |
| Cyril of Caesarea, 21 July | Francis of Paola, 2 April |
| Cyril of Jerusalem, 18 March | Fructuosus, 14 March |
| | Fulgentius, 1 Jan. |
| David, 1 March | |
| Delphina, Bd, 27 Sept. | Genesius of Arles, 26 Aug. |
| Didacus, 13 Nov. | Genevieve, 3 Jan. |
| Dionysius of Alexandria, 11 Dec. | George, 23 April |
| Dominic, 4 Aug. | Germaine, 15 June |
| Dorotheus, 6 Aug. | Germanus of Auxerre, 3 Aug. |
| Dorothy, 6 Jan. | Gertrude, 16 Nov. |
| Dositheus, 5 Dec. | Gilbert of Sempringham, 16 Feb. |
| Dunstan, 22 March | |
| Edmund of Canterbury, 18 Nov. | Giles of Assisi, Bd, 20 June |
| Edmund the Martyr, 20 Nov. | Gorkum, Martyrs of, 12 Dec. |
| Edward the Confessor, 13 Oct. | Gregory I, 12 March |
| Eligius, 1 Dec. | Gregory VII, 25 March |
| Elizabeth of Hungary, 19 Nov. | Gregory of Nazianzus, 9 May |
| Elizabeth of Portugal, 8 July | Gregory of Nyssa, 26 April |
| Elzear, 27 Sept. | Gregory the Wonderworker, 17 Nov. |
| English Martyrs, The, 4 May | Guthlac, 30 July |
| Ephrem, 18 June | Guy, 12 Sept. |

- | | | | |
|----------------------------|----------|--------------------------|----------|
| Hedwig, | 16 Oct. | John Leonardi, | 9 Oct. |
| Helen, | 18 Aug. | John Regis, | 16 June |
| Henry the Emperor, | 15 July | John Vianney, | 9 Aug. |
| Herman Joseph, Bd, | 7 April | John of Beverley, | 25 Oct. |
| Hilarion, | 21 Oct. | John of Capistrano, | 28 March |
| Hilary of Poitiers, | 14 Jan. | John of Damascus | 27 March |
| Hildegard, | 20 Sept. | John of Egypt, | 13 April |
| Hugh of Lincoln, | 21 Nov. | John of Kanti, | 20 Oct. |
| Hyacintha Mariscotti, | 27 July | John of Matha, | 8 Feb. |
| | | John of Sahagun, | 12 June |
| Ignatius of Antioch, | 1 Feb. | John the Almsgiver, | 20 Feb. |
| Ignatius of Loyola, | 31 July | John of the Cross, | 24 Nov. |
| Ildephonsus, | 15 Feb. | John of God, | 8 March |
| Innocents, The Holy | 28 Dec. | Josaphat, | 14 Nov. |
| Ippolito Galantini, Bd, | | Joseph, | 19 March |
| | 24 July | Joseph Calasanctius, | 27 Aug. |
| Irenaeus of Sirmium | | Joseph of Cupertino, | |
| | 24 March | | 18 Sept. |
| Isidore of Madrid, | 1 July | Joseph of Leonessa, | 29 Feb. |
| Isidore of Seville, | 4 April | Jude, | 28 Oct. |
| Isidore of Skete, | 13 March | Julian of Antioch, | 16 March |
| | | Juliana Falconieri, | 19 June |
| James the Greater, | 25 July | Justin, | 14 April |
| James the Less, | 11 May | Juvenal Ancina, Bd, | 29 Aug. |
| Jane de Chantal, | 21 Aug. | | |
| Japan, Martyrs of, | 17 Aug. | Kentigern, | 13 Jan. |
| Jerome, | 30 Sept. | | |
| Jerome Emiliani, | 20 July | Laurence, | 10 Aug. |
| Joan of Valois, | 11 March | Laurence Giustiniani, | 5 Sept. |
| John, | 27 Dec. | Laurence of Brindisi, | 23 July |
| John Baptist, | 24 June | Leo I, | 11 April |
| John Baptist de La Salle, | | Leonard of Port Maurice, | |
| | 15 May | | 26 Nov. |
| John Baptist of Almodovar, | | Louis Bertrand, | 24 Oct. |
| | 14 Feb. | Louis of France, | 25 Aug. |
| John Berchmans, | 27 Nov. | Lucy, | 13 Dec. |
| John Bosco, | 31 Jan. | Luke, | 18 Oct. |
| John de Britto, | 26 March | Lutgardis, | 8 Aug. |
| John Calybites, | 10 Jan. | Lydwina, Bd, | 1 June |
| John Chrysostom, | 27 Jan. | Lyons, Martyrs of, | 2 June |
| John Climacus, | 30 March | | |
| John Colombini, Bd, | 1 Aug. | Macarius of Alexandria, | |
| John Fisher, | 9 July | | 2 Jan. |
| John Gualbert, | 12 July | Macrina the Younger, | |
| John Joseph, | 5 March | | 19 Dec. |

- | | | | |
|------------------------------|----------|-------------------------|----------|
| Malachy of Armagh, | 3 Nov. | Oswald of Northumbria, | 8 Nov. |
| Malchus, | 26 Oct. | Oswald of Worcester, | 28 Feb. |
| Marcian & Nicander, | 17 June | Oswin, | 17 Dec. |
| Margaret Mary, | 17 Oct. | Pachomius, | 3 July |
| Margaret of Cortona, | 22 Feb. | Pacifico, | 24 Sept. |
| Margaret of Scotland, | 10 June | Pambo | 6 April |
| Mark, | 25 April | Paschal Baylon, | 17 May |
| Martha, | 29 July | Paul, | 30 June |
| Martin I, | 12 Nov. | Paul Miki, | 12 May |
| Martin of Tours, | 11 Nov. | Paul of the Cross, | 28 April |
| Mary, The Blessed Virgin, | 15 Aug. | Paul the Hermit, | 15 Jan. |
| Mary Magdalen, | 22 July | Paul the Simple, | 1 April |
| Mary Magdalen dei Pazzi, | 29 May | Paula, | 25 Jan. |
| Mary of Egypt, | 3 June | Paulinus of Nola, | 25 June |
| Mary of Oignies, Bd, | 19 Aug. | Paulinus of York, | 11 Oct. |
| Mary of the Incarnation, Bd, | 18 April | Perpetua & Felicity, | 6 March |
| Matthew, | 21 Sept. | Peter, | 29 June |
| Matthias, | 24 Feb. | Peter & Dionysia, | 8 May |
| Maurus, | 5 Oct. | Peter Balsam, | 4 Jan. |
| Mechtildis, | 28 Nov. | Peter Canisius | 27 April |
| Michael the Archangel, | 29 Sept. | Peter Chanel, | 1 May |
| Michael de Sanctis, | 10 April | Peter Chrysologus, | 4 Dec. |
| Monica, | 6 May | Peter Claver, | 9 Sept. |
| Montanus & Flavian, | 29 March | Peter Damian, | 23 Feb. |
| Moses the Ethiopian, | 21 Feb. | Peter Favre, Bd, | 11 Aug. |
| Narcissus, | 29 Oct. | Peter Fourier, | 9 Dec. |
| Nicephorus, | 7 Jan. | Peter Gonzalez, Bd, | 15 April |
| Nicholas of Flüe, | 22 March | Peter Nolasco, | 28 Jan. |
| Nicholas of Myra, | 6 Dec. | Peter of Alcantara, | 19 Oct. |
| Nicholas of Tolentino, | 10 Sept. | Peter of Luxemburg, Bd, | 2 July |
| Nilus of Sinai, | 16 Dec. | Peter of Verona, | 29 April |
| Norbert, | 6 June | Philip, | 11 May |
| North American Martyrs, | 26 Sept. | Philip Benizi, | 23 Aug. |
| Odo of Canterbury, | 4 July | Philip Neri, | 26 May |
| Odo of Cluny, | 18 Dec. | Phocas, | 8 Dec. |
| Osmund, | 2 Dec. | Pius V, | 5 May |
| | | Pius X, | 3 Sept. |
| | | Placid, | 5 Oct. |
| | | Poemen, | 8 Sept. |
| | | Polycarp, | 26 Jan. |
| | | Porphyry, | 26 Feb. |
| | | Potamiaena, | 28 June |

Raymund of Peñafort, 23 Jan.	Theodore Tiro, 9 Nov.
Remigius, 1 Oct.	Theodore of Canterbury, 19 Sept.
Richard of Chichester, 3 April	Theodoret, 23 Oct.
Robert Bellarmine, 13 May	Theodosius, 11 Jan.
Robert of Molesme, 26 June	Theodotus, 24 March
Robert of Newminster, 7 June	Thomas, 21 Dec.
Romuald, 7 Feb.	Thomas Aquinas, 7 March
Rose of Lima, 30 Aug.	Thomas More, 10 July
Rose of Viterbo, 4 Sept.	Thomas of Canterbury, 29 Dec.
Sabas the Goth, 12 April	Thomas of Hereford, 2 Oct.
Saturninus, 16 Jan.	Thomas of Villanova, 22 Sept.
Scholastica, 10 Feb.	Timothy, 24 Jan.
Sebastian, 20 Jan.	Titus, 6 Feb.
Sebastian Valfrè, Bd, 30 Jan.	Toribio, 23 March
Sergius of Radonezh, 25 Sept.	Ubaldo, 16 May
Silvester I, 31 Dec.	Veronica Giuliani, 11 July
Simeon Stylites, 5 Jan.	Veronica of Binasco, Bd, 9 Jan.
Simon, 28 Oct.	Vincent Ferrer, 5 April
Simon Stock, 16 July	Vincent de Paul, 19 July
Sisinnius, 13 Aug.	Vincent of Saragossa, 22 Jan.
Sisoës, 6 July	Walburga, 25 Feb.
Speratus, 14 Sept.	Waltheof, 23 Sept.
Stanislaus Kostka, 6 Nov.	Wenceslaus, 28 Sept.
Stanislaus of Cracow, 7 May	Werbunga, 3 Feb.
Stephen, 26 Dec.	Wilfrid, 12 Oct.
Stephen Harding, 17 April	William of York, 8 June
Swithin, 28 July	Willibrord, 7 Nov.
Symphorian, 22 Aug.	Winifred, 5 Nov.
Symphorosa, 6 Sept.	Wulfstan, 19 Jan.
Tarachus & Probus, 20 Dec.	Zita, 27 June
Tarbula, 23 March
Tarcisius, 2 Nov.
Teresa of Avila, 15 Oct.
Teresa of Lisieux, 3 Oct.

INDEX OF SUBJECTS

- Almsgiving, 10 May; 11 June.
See also Love of Neighbour.
 Angels, The, 9 March; 29 Sept.
 Angelus, The, 11 March.
 Apostleship, 12 March; 15, 27 April; 15 May; 5 July; 13 Aug.; 11 Nov. See also Witness, Zeal.
 Baptism, 11 Oct.
 Bible-reading, 30 Sept.
 Blessed Sacrament, The, 16 April; 17 May; 4, 6 June; 2 Nov. See also Eucharist.
 Charity, 7, 11 Jan.; 21 Oct.
See also Love.
 Chastity, 7, 8 March; 21, 28 June; 7 Sept.
 Childhood, The Sacred, 25 Jan.
 Children, Care for, 31 Jan.; 20 July.
 Christian Living, 10, 14, 17, 29 July; 2, 30 Aug.; 4, 19, 24 Sept.
 Church, The, 30 April; 26 Aug.; 14 Nov.; 31 Dec.
See also Holy See.
 Clergy, Respect for the, 23 Nov.
 Compassion, 20 Feb.; 16 Sept. See also Sympathy.
 Communion, Holy, 10 April; 1 Sept.; 10 Dec.
 Confession, 8 Oct.
 Conscience, 16 Feb.; 13 April.
 Conversion, 30 June.
 Correction, Brotherly, 7, 22 May; 4 July.
 Creation, The Material, 15 Nov.
 Cross, The, 17 Feb.; 5 May; 2, 25 July; 18 Aug.; 26 Nov.; 24 Dec.
 Daily Duties, 19 Jan.; 4, 27 Nov.
 Dead, Memory of the, 13 Feb.; 14 Oct.; 1, 3 Nov.
 Death, 5 June; 23 Aug.; 10 Sept.; 10, 16 Nov.
 Detachment, 24 March; 24 Nov.
 Diligence, 9 Jan.
 Discipline, 28 Feb.
 Eternity, 6 Oct.
 Eucharist, The Holy, 7 Aug.
 Example, Good, 13 Jan.; 17 March; 7 June.
 Faith, 14, 20 April; 1 July; 16 Aug.; 21 Dec.
 Faith, The Christian, 1, 15 March; 3 Aug. See also Zeal.
 Faithfulness, 30 Jan.; 6, 26 March; 3, 21 April; 9, 25 Nov.
 False Teaching, 14 Jan.
 Fear of God, 23 Oct.; 7 Dec.
 Forbearance, 24 May.
 Forgiveness, 12 July; 26 Dec.
 Fortitude, 23 April; 21 May; 14 June; 21 Aug.; 9 Nov.
 Friendship, 5 Feb.; 3 March; 14 Aug.; 9 Oct.

Generosity, 25 June; 17 Sept.
 Gentleness, 29 Jan.; 31 Aug.
 Glory of God, The, 31 July.
 God's House, 15 July; 12
Sept.; 13 Oct.
 Good out of evil, 7 Feb.
 Grace, 12 May; 30 July;
 9 Aug.; 26 Oct.
 Heaven, 6 Jan.; 2 March;
 9 June; 21 July; 27 Sept.
 Hell, 24 Oct.
 Hiddenness, 13 June.
 Holiness, 3 Jan.; 22 March;
 22 April.
 Holy Name, The, 20 May.
 Holy See, The, 13 Jan.;
 18 Feb.; 8, 11 April;
 25 May; 29 June; 12 Oct.;
 12 Nov.
 Home and Family, 10 Feb.;
 19 March; 28 Sept.; 19
Dec.
 Hope, 26 April.
 Human Respect, 23 July.
 Humility, 24 Feb.; 4, 9 April;
 18 June; 3, 6 July; 20, 26
Sept. 1, 10, 30 Oct.; 11 Dec.
 Idleness, 17 April.
 Ill-health, 27 Feb.
 Images, Sacred, 27 March.
 Immaculate Conception, The,
 8 Dec.
 Incarnation, The, 9 Feb.;
 25 April; 25 Dec.
 Innocence, 21 Jan.; 6, 28
Dec.
 Joyfulness, 26 May; 2 June;
 22 Nov.
 Judgement of Others, 9 July;
 8 Sept.
 Little Way, The, 3 Oct.

Love of God and His Christ,
 10 Jan.; 1 Feb.; 29 May;
 17, 22 June; 1 Aug.; 29 Nov.
 13, 23 Dec. See also Charity.
 Love of our Neighbour,
 28 Jan.; 29 March; 19, 24
April; 16 June; 19, 28 July;
 10, 29 Aug.; 9, 22 Sept.;
 3, 14 Dec. See also Charity.
 Lukewarmness, 11 Feb.
 Martyrdom, 11 Sept.; 29 Dec.
 Mass, The, See Worship.
 Moral Courage, 21 Nov.
 Mortification, 2 Jan.; 19 Feb.;
 6 April; 23 Sept. See also
 Penitence.
 Obedience, 28 May; 26 June;
 22 Aug.; 2 Sept.; 5, 15
Oct.; 5, 12 Dec.
 Our Lady, 2, 12, 15 Feb.;
 4 March; 7 April; 19 June;
 15 Aug.; 17 Nov.; 8 Dec.
 Passion, The, 28 April; 11
July.
 Patience, 1 Jan.; 8, 9, 31
May; 15 June; 20 Nov.
 Peace and Peaceableness, 20
March; 16 May; 12 June;
 13 July.
 Penitence, 4, 22 Feb.; 22, 27
July; 5 Aug.; 19 Oct.
 See also Mortification.
 Perfection, 5, 19 Jan.
 Perseverance, 14, 24 Feb.;
 30 March; 14 Sept.; 22
Dec.
 Poor, The. See Almsgiving,
 Love of our Neighbour.
 Poverty, 20 June; 12 Aug.;
 4 Oct.
 Prayer, 2, 16 Jan.; 3 Feb.;

- 14, 21 March; 3, 6, 13 May;
 11 Aug.; 8, 18 Nov. See also Worship.
 Precious Blood, The, 18 Oct.;
 30 Dec.
 Psalms, The, 13 May.
 Purgatory, 15 Sept.
 Purity of Heart, 27 Dec.
 Reading, Spiritual, 24 Jan.;
 30 Sept.
 Relics, Sacred, 25 Feb.;
 30 May; 1, 20 Dec.
 Rosary, The, 4 Aug.
 Sacred Heart, The, 8 Aug.;
 17 Oct.
 Saints, The, 14 May; 28 Aug.;
 1, 5, 6 Nov.; 18 Dec.
 Scapular, The Brown, 16
 July.
 Self-accusation, 17 Dec.
 Self-distrust, 18 Jan.
 Self-forgetfulness, 8 Feb.;
 24 June.
 Self-sacrifice, 27 Oct.; 30
 Nov.
 Separated Brethren, 28 Oct.
 Sermons, 28 March; 5 April;
 13 Sept.; 4 Dec.
 Service of God, 20 Aug.;
 25 Sept.; 9 Dec.
 Sick and Old, Care of the,
 18 July, 19 Nov.
 Silence, 7 July.
 Simplicity, 3, 18 Sept.; 20
 Oct.
 Sin, 23 Jan.; 21 Feb.; 13, 25
 March; 3 June; 23, 31
 Oct.
 Singleheartedness, 1, 12, 18
 April; 11 May; 24 Aug.
 Solitude, 19 May.
 Speech, Careful, 25 Aug.;
 13 Nov.
 Suffering, 4 Jan.; 29 Feb.;
 1, 8 June; 17, 19 Aug.;
 6 Sept.
 Superstition, 26 Feb.
 Sympathy, 6 Feb.; 5, 23
 March; 28 Nov. See also
 Compassion.
 Talents, Use of, 23 May.
 Teaching the Ignorant, 24
 July; 27 Aug.; 25 Oct.
 Temptation, 17 Jan.
 Thanksgiving, 8 Jan.; 18
 May.
 Trust in God and His Christ,
 15, 22 Jan.; 18 March;
 2 April; 29 Oct.
 Unity, 10 March.
 Unworldliness, 10, 23 June.
 Vocation, 26 July; 21 Sept.;
 2 Oct.
 Will, God's and Man's, 6
 Aug.; 16 Dec.
 Wisdom, 27 May; 5 Sept.;
 15 Dec.
 Witness, 31 March; 29 April;
 1, 2, 4 May. See also Apostleship.
 Work, 27 June, 11 Aug.
 Worship, Public, 27 Jan.;
 8 July; 7, 16 Oct.; 2 Dec.
See also Prayer.
 Zeal for the Faith, 20, 26
 Jan.; 17 March; 7 Nov.;
See also Apostleship.

ATLAS of the BIBLE LANDS

List of Maps

Physical Map of the Holy Land	A - 3
The Nations According to Genesis 10	A - 4
The Biblical World at the Time of the Patriarchs (2000-1600 B.C.)	A - 5
Canaan Before the Conquest	A - 6
The Route of the Exodus and the Conquest of Canaan	A - 7
Canaan as Divided Among the Twelve Tribes (c. 1200-1020 B. C.)	A - 8
The Kingdom of Saul (c. 1020-1000 B. C.)	A - 9
The Empire of David and Solomon (c. 1000-925 B. C.)	A-10
The Kingdoms of Israel and Judah (c. 925-842 B.C.)	A-11
Israel and Judah at the Time of the Syrian Conquests (c. 840-800 B.C.)	A-12
Israel and Judah at the Time of Jeroboam II (c. 785-745 B.C.)	A-13
The Assyrian Empire (824-625 B.C.)	A-14
Judah After the Fall of Israel (c. 700 B.C.)	A-15
Great Empires of the Sixth Century B.C.	A-16
The Restoration of Judah (c. 445 B.C.)	A-17
The Empire of Alexander the Great (323 B.C.) and the Kingdoms of Alexander's Successors (c. 305 B.C.)	A-18
Palestine Under the Maccabees (166 to 63 B.C.)	A-19
The Roman World in the Time of Caesar (60-44 B.C.)	A-20
The Dominions of Herod the Great (37 to 4 B.C.)	A-21
Palestine in the Time of Christ	A-22
The Journeys of Christ	A-23
a. Early Journeys
b. Galilean Ministry
c. Later Ministry
The Journeys of the Apostles	A-24
St. Paul's First and Second Journeys	A-25
St. Paul's Third Journey and His Journey to Rome	A-25
Dominions of Herod Agrippa I (37-44 A.D.)	A-26
Palestine at the Time of the Jewish-Roman War (66-73 A.D.)	A-27
The Roman Empire at its Greatest Extent (c. 117 A.D.)	A-28
The Spread of Christianity	A-29
Jerusalem in Old Testament Times	A-30
a. The City of David (c. 1000 B.C.)
b. Temple Area of Jerusalem as Built by Solomon
c. Jerusalem Under Nehemiah (c. 445 B.C.)
Jerusalem in New Testament Times (20 B.C. - 70 A.D.)	A-31
The Holy Land Today	A-32

Title page picture of Nazareth by E. L. Jordan.

Top: The "Siq," narrow gorge cut in sandstone leads to the Nabataean rock city of Petra in ancient Edom. Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

The River Jordan lined with vegetation winds through the semi-desert valley of El Ghor.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

Egyptian wall painting of about 1500 B.C. showing harvesters working under supervision of an estate inspector who appears at the upper left.
 Davies, "Ancient Egyptian Wall Painting," pl. L1

Egyptian mural from about 1450 B.C. showing Asiatic captives making bricks as the Israelites were forced to do during their bondage in Egypt.
 Lepsius, "Denkmaeler," part 3, pl. 40

Queen Nefertiti, about 1375 B.C.
Metropolitan Museum of Art

The Great Sphinx and pyramids at Gizeh, Egypt, built about 2500 B.C.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

CANAAN BEFORE THE CONQUEST

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

0 5 10 20 30 40

Perennial Rivers Seasonal Rivers & Streams
Capitals

Phoenicians from the cities of Sidon and Tyre traded throughout

Sidon

Zarephath

Tyre

Achziv

Accho

Achshaph

Chinnereth

Madon

Shimron

Jokneam

Dor

Megiddo

Taanach

Ibleam

Dothan

Sochoh

Tirzah

Shechem

Jacob's Well

Aphek

Joppa

Ono

Lod

Gezer

Ekron

Chephirah

Kirjath-yearim

Beth-shemesh

Makkedah

Libnah

Jarmuth

Adullam

Bethlehem

Memre

Kirjath-arba (Hebron)

Lachish

Eglon

Kirjath-sepher (Debir)

Gerar

Ashkelon

Gaza (Azah)

Raphia

Sharuhin

Beer-sheba

Hormah

Arad

En-gedi

Rehoboth

Kadesh-barnea (En-mishpat)

Wilderness of Zin

Ascent of Akabbim

Arabah

Oboth

Punon

Bozrah

Moab

Ammon

Edom

Amalekites

Kenites

Amorites

Philistines

Canaanites

Hebrews

Israelites

Jews

Christians

Muslims

Arabs

Syrians

Assyrians

Babylonians

Chaldeans

Medes

Parthians

Sassanians

Byzantines

Arabs

Crusaders

Mamluks

Ottomans

British

French

Italian

American

European

Asian

African Oceanic

HITTITE EMPIRE
Ubi

Damascus

BASHAN
(KINGDOM OF OG)

The 13th and 12th century kingdoms of Bashan, Ammon, Moab and Edom displaced the Rephaim, Zuzim, Emin and Horites respectively

KINGDOM OF SIHON

AMMON

MOAB

EDOM

Ivory female head from Canaanite palace at Megiddo, c. 1300 B.C.
Oriental Institute

Libation vase in the form of a bearded Semite, found at Beth-shemesh.
Handcocke, "Archaeology of the Holy Land," pl. 19-20

Tell el-Judeideh in Syria with "step trench" showing layers of occupation. Cultural levels are indicated by typical objects. Earliest occupation c. 5000 B.C., latest c. 600 A.D.
Oriental Institute

THE ROUTE OF THE EXODUS AND THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

0 20 40 60 80 100

Perennial Rivers
Seasonal Rivers & Streams
Capitals
Trade Routes
Route of the Exodus
Israelite Campaigns in Canaan
Israelite Expansion & Settlement

The traditional Mount Sinai where Moses received the Ten Commandments.
Underwood and Underwood

The remains of the walls of the Canaanite fortress of Jericho.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

Watering well in present day Jericho a short distance from the Biblical site.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

Typical Philistine pottery found at Beth-shemesh,
c. 1200 B.C.

Palestine Exploration Fund

Ivory box with cherubs and lions in relief from Megiddo, c. 13th century B.C.

Oriental Institute

CANAAN AS DIVIDED AMONG THE TWELVE TRIBES

c. 1200-1020 B. C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

0 5 10 20 30 40
Perennial Rivers Seasonal Rivers & Streams

Mt. Tabor in Lower Galilee where the prophetess Deborah directed Barak to gather his forces and attack the Canaanite army under Sisera.

Bonfils

THE KINGDOM OF SAUL

c. 1020-1000 B. C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

Model of an Egyptian royal harp of about 1090 B.C. On perhaps a cruder version of such a harp young David played for King Saul.
Oriental Institute

Ruins at Beth-shan, which served as a fortress to Egyptians, Canaanites and Philistines. Saul was slain at nearby Gilboa and his body taken to Beth-shan.
Frances Jenkins Olcott

Model of the Stables of Solomon at Megiddo.
Oriental Institute

Solomon's Pool which supplies water for Jerusalem even today.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

A Cedar of Lebanon. The monarchs of ancient empires drew heavily from these forests for their luxurious palaces.
Religious News Service

Hittite hunting scene of later Hittite time (9th cent. B.C.) from Tell Halaf. In the 14th cent. B.C. the Hittite Empire rivaled those of Egypt and Babylonia.
Metropolitan Museum of Art

where Elijah challenged the priests of Baal.
Israel Gov't Tourist Office, N.Y.

THE KINGDOMS OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH c. 925-842 B.C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N.Y.

Scale of Miles

0 5 10 20 30 40

Perennial Rivers
Seasonal Rivers & Streams

Capitals
Egyptian & Syrian Attacks

The introduction of Phoenician cults following the marriage of Ahab with Jezebel caused violent reactions in Israel that eventually led to the fall of Omri.

A replica of the Diban stele erected by Mesha, King of Moab, to commemorate his successful revolt against Israel and the "House of Omri," around 845 B.C.
(2 Kings 3:4 ff.)
Oriental Institute

Ivory carving of the Israelite period found at Samaria.
Oriental Institute

ISRAEL AND JUDAH AT THE TIME OF THE SYRIAN CONQUESTS c. 840-800 B.C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

0 5 10 20 30

Perennial Rivers

Seasonal Rivers & Streams

Capitals

Syrian Attacks

Typical Jordan countryside.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

View of modern Damascus, the world's oldest continuously inhabited city. The Aramaean kingdom of Damascus founded by Rezon dominated Palestine and southern Syria until it was wiped out by the Assyrians about 732 B.C. Damascus continued to be an important trade center and rich prize for succeeding conquerors down through the ages.

Philip Gendreau

Port of Aqaba on the Red Sea near the Biblical Elath and Ezion-geber.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

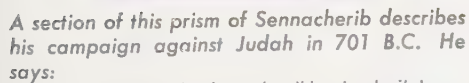

Assyrian winged bull from the Palace of Sargon at Khorsabad, 15 miles north of Nineveh.
Oriental Institute

Right: Assyrian relief sculpture from the palace of Ashurnasirpal II (885-859 B.C.)
Metropolitan Museum of Art

As for Hezekiah the Jew, who did not submit to my yoke, 46 of his strong walled cities, as well as the small cities in their neighborhood, which were without number—by constructing a ramp out of trampled earth and by bringing up battering-rams, by the attack of infantry, by tunnels, breaches, and (the use of) axes I besieged and took (those cities). Two hundred thousand one hundred and fifty people great and small, male and female, horses, mules, asses, camels, cattle, and sheep, without number, I brought away from them and counted as spoil. Himself like a caged bird I shut up in Jerusalem, his royal city."

Oriental Institute

Ruins of Susa, ancient capital of Elam and winter residence of Persian kings.
Aerial Survey—Oriental Institute

A Mede bringing two horses as tribute to King Sargon II of Assyria (722-705 B.C.)
Metropolitan Museum of Art

Relief from Persepolis showing King Darius seated on his throne and his son Xerxes standing behind him.
Oriental Institute

The ruins of Persepolis give impressive evidence of the height which Persian culture attained. This city was begun by Darius I, the Great, around 522 B.C. and later completed by his successors. In 331 B.C. Alexander the Great conquered the Persian Empire and sealed his conquest by setting fire to the palaces which symbolized the power of the Achaemenids.

New York Public Library

Silver stater with its design of lion and bull in combat, from the treasury at Persepolis.
Oriental Institute

Coin of Alexander the Great minted in Persia a few years after his death, also from the treasury at Persepolis.
Oriental Institute

Coin of Ptolemy II (285-246 B.C.) with his wife (also his sister).
Metropolitan Museum of Art

Tetradrachm of Antiochus III, the Great, King of Syria (222-187 B.C.)
Metropolitan Museum of Art

Unique bronze lamp from Syria decorated with Jewish religious symbols.
Miriam Schloessinger, N.Y.—Frank J. Darmstadter Photo

Bust of Julius Caesar.
Museo Nazionale, Naples

The Emperor Augustus (27 B.C.-14 A.D.)
Vatican Museum

The "Treasury" at Petra, built by the great Nabataean King Aretas, father-in-law of Herod Antipas.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

Roman ruins of the 2nd century A.D. at Jarash, ancient Gerasa, important Decapolis town.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

Right: The fortress of Masada built by the Hasmonaeans and fortified by Herod the Great. In the Jewish-Roman War the Israelites defended it against the Romans until 73 A.D.
Israel Gov't Tourist Office, N.Y.

PALESTINE IN THE TIME OF CHRIST

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Scale of Miles

0 5 10 20 30 40

Perennial Rivers
Seasonal Rivers & Streams

Roads & Trade Routes

Tetrarchy of Lysanias

Tetrarchy of Philip

Tetrarchy of Herod Antipas

Territory under Roman procurator

Areas tributary to Salome

Decapolis*

Independent*

Roman province of Syria

Cities of the Decapolis.....

* The Decapolis and Ascalon retained their independence under the Roman governor of the province of Syria.

Ruins of a synagogue (2nd or 3rd century A.D.) at site of Biblical Capernaum.
Philip Gendreau

The Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem, built on what is claimed to be the site of the Inn where Christ was born.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

Below: The traditional Mount of Temptation, modern Jebel Quruntul.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

The Mount of Olives seen from the Temple Terrace in Jerusalem.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

Greek inscription from the synagogue in Jerusalem built by Theodotus before the Roman destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. In such a synagogue the preaching of Stephen was disputed by Jewish leaders (Acts 6:9).

Sukenik, "Ancient Synagogues in Palestine and Greece," pl. XVI:A

St. Stephen's Gate in the fortress-like wall which surrounds the Old City of Jerusalem. The gate derives its name from the fact that St. Stephen was stoned to death in the vicinity.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

View of the Taurus Mountains near Tarsus, birthplace of St.
Paul.
New York Public Library

The Temple of Erechtheum at Athens. When Paul visited Athen the city was the world's most important center for philosophy, architecture and art.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

The Appian Way near Rome.
Italian State Tourist Office, N.Y.

View of Tiberias on the shore of the Sea of Galilee. The city was founded by Herod Antipas and was the capital city of Galilee. After the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. it became the center of Jewish learning. Israel Gov't Tourist Office, N.Y.

Roman theatre at the Decapolis city of Philadelphia, present day Amman and Rabbath-ammon of Old Testament times. At Caesarea, in a similar theatre while attending games, Herod Agrippa I was seized with a fatal disease. Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

The Wailing Wall in Jerusalem. It is part of the western wall of the Temple enclosure and was built by Herod the Great. Here the Jews lamented the loss of their Temple and independence. TWA—Trans World Airlines

One of the jars which contained the Dead Sea Scrolls, ancient Biblical manuscripts of the Essene community at Khirbet Qumran. Oriental Institute

Bronze cast from the Arch of Titus showing Temple treasures from Jerusalem being carried in triumphal procession. The Jewish Museum, N.Y.—Frank J. Darmstaedter Photo

The Arch of Constantine in Rome. It was built to commemorate the victory of Constantine, the first Christian emperor, over Maxentius in 312 A.D. To the right is a portion of the Colosseum completed by Titus in 70 A.D. During times of persecution, Christians were forced to fight wild animals in the huge arena.

TWA—Trans World Airlines

Decorated vault of the San Sebastian catacomb in Rome. Early Christians used such underground chambers for burial vaults and in times of persecution as places of secret worship.
Italian State Tourist Office, N.Y.

Silver chalice known as "The Chalice of Antioch." The figures in relief are of Christ and the Apostles. The cup was once claimed to be the "Holy Grail" but is now dated from about the 4th or 5th century A.D.
Metropolitan Museum of Art

The Dome of the Rock, Jerusalem. This shrine is built over the site of the ancient Jewish Temple. The site is sacred to Moslems as well as Christians and Jews. The present-day mosque dates from the late 7th century.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

THE CITY OF DAVID c. 1000 B. C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N.Y.

Scale of Feet
0 500 1000

TEMPLE AREA OF JERUSALEM AS BUILT BY SOLOMON

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N.Y.

JERUSALEM UNDER NEHEMIAH c. 445 B. C.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N.Y.

Scale of Feet
0 500 1000 1500

Old City of David
Probable extent of Solomon's City
New Quarter (Mishneh) added under succeeding kings

Air view of Jerusalem looking to the northeast. The walled rectangle encloses the Temple terrace and the Dome of the Rock. To the right is the Valley of the Kidron and the Mt. of Olives.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

King David's Tower, Jerusalem. On this site once stood one of the towers built by Herod the Great to protect his palace.
TWA—Trans World Airlines

Via Dolorosa within the Old City of Jerusalem. Tradition claims this street as the one used by Jesus on His way to the crucifixion.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Jerusalem. This site has been the traditional location for the crucifixion and entombment of Jesus since the time of Constantine.
Jordan Tourist Attaché, N.Y.

JERUSALEM IN NEW TESTAMENT TIMES 20 B.C. - 70 A.D.

Copyright by C. S. HAMMOND & CO., N. Y.

Therefore all that you wish men to do to you, even so do you also to them; for this is the Law and the Prophets.

—Matthew 7:12

